LEADERS FEEL COURT REFORM MEASURE LOST

Death of Robinson Severe Blow to Proposed Change

TALK HEARD OF END'G CONGRESS

Considering Possibility of Cleaning Up Legislation and Adjourning

Washington, July 14.—(AP)—Senate leaders expressed agreement today the death of Administration Leader Robinson was a "serious blow" to the Roosevelt court bill, and some forecast it would be abandoned.

While discussions of the court bill's prospects was off the record, there was widespread talk among senators of dropping the measure, cleaning up the legislative program as quickly as possible and adjourning.

Senators shocked by the leader's sudden death, were reluctant to discuss the legislative situation. But they agree the death of Robinson had struck an almost fatal blow to the drive for the legislation.

The Arkansas senator not only was directing the drive to push the compromise measure through the senate, but was the main author of the substitute.

He had been given a free hand by President Roosevelt to negotiate a bill the senate would pass.

The immediate effect of Robinson's death was to interrupt the furious debate which had been proceeding in the senate for more than a week. What the ultimate effect might be, no one was willing to forecast immediately.

Senator Wheeler (D. Mont.) after expressing regret at the "untimely passing" of a "political and personal friend," predicted the controversy might be ended speedily as a result of the leader's death.

COUNTY COURT ENDS TUESDAY

Numerous Cases Tried Following Luncheon Recess

Continuing work at a rapid pace during the afternoon yesterday, this week's session of County court was completed in one day after a large number of cases had been disposed of by Judge Dink James and Solicitor Charles Whedbee.

Since no court had been held in several weeks, it was expected that the session might run over into Wednesday, but the court officials completed its work in the one day.

After 19 cases had been tried in the morning, many others were heard during the afternoon.

Harold Ennis, William Newton, James McKelley and Tom Jones were given eight months each on an assault charge, but Kelly and Newton appealed and Judge James increased their sentences to 12 months each.

Rosie Armstrong, Douglas Rhodes and Roosevelt Freeman were acquitted on a charge of transporting liquor for sale.

J. L. Dunn was charged with possessing liquor for sale, but the state accepted a plea of only possession and he was fined $25, costs to be deducted, and given a 90-day suspended road sentence.

More Light Requested On State's Liquor Statutes

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, July 14.—Attorney General Sewell's succession of opinions on the North Carolina beverage control law have not clarified that statute sufficiently and both yesterday and today attorneys have been with Mr. Sewell seeking to get a clearer understanding of the state law so that the dealers holding federal licenses do not run into trouble.

Mr. Sewell's series of opinions have come in response to specific cases calling for his opinion. There is so much of this act that both the attorney general and the supreme court pass upon such matters in a law as related to the case in point. There is a lot of law on the wine and beer question. The federal dealers' license does not protect violations of the North Carolina acts, but just what they are the supreme court and the attorney general have not yet said.

Many of these requests for a departmental ruling come from energetic drys who have a hunch that the dry cause has been wrecked by

Members of Body Are Sworn in by Justice George Connor

Raleigh, July 14.—(AP)—Told by Governor Hoey that no other state commission has a task so important as the new school commission took office today and re-elected Lloyd Griffin of Edenton as its executive secretary.

Associate Justice George Connor administered the oath to 10 of the commissioners in the offices of the governor, John Oates of Fayetteville, the eleventh member, is ill.

Taking office the first time were Archie Gay of Jackson and Julie Warren of Raleigh, and starting new terms were T. B. Athmore of Washington, A. McLe Graham of Clinton, Henry Dwire of Durham, John Polger of Mount Airy, O. J. Holler of Union Mills, Grady Gaston of Gastonia, Edwin Pate of Laurel Hill and B. B. Dougherty of Boone.

"Taking care of the highways and reconstructing new roads is a big thing," Governor Hoey told the commission, "but conduct of the public schools is essential and it can't be neglected. I congratulate this commission on its record and work in the past and know there will be better work in the future."

The governor emphasized he wanted the people of the state to "realize that you are doing a good job and everything for the public schools possible within your budget limitations."

the heavily fortified wines and beers. Complaint is made that wine and other less hard drinks have been greatly hardened and that there is no chance to enforce the dry laws in territory because so much alcoholic content can be found in these fermented drinks as to make the drinking of whiskies and brandies useless. But the federal dealers with their national protection will be in constant jeopardy if they do not know what the North Carolina law is and it is hard to know.

Federal dealers may be punished federally. They can lose their permits to sell and fines may be laid upon the merchant without actual trial by court and a jury. Then the state can seek the sinners, so that all in all the manufacturers of beers and wines are having considerable trouble in North Carolina. They are asking for a statement from the attorney general clearing up the misunderstanding.

The repeal of national prohibition did not stop the operation of all the drys (Continued on page four)

Body Discovered On Bathroom Floor of Capital Home

Washington, July 14.—(AP)—Senator Joe Robinson, the Democratic leader, died early today—in President Roosevelt's words—his face to the battle.

The 64-year old Arkansan, his party leader in the senate since 1922, died alone early in the day at his apartment. He was found face-downward on his bathroom floor, after a weary week of fighting for the administration's court reform bill.

Plans were made for a state funeral service in the senate chamber Friday with Mr. Roosevelt as chief mourner. Funeral services and burial will be at Little Rock Sunday.

Both senate and house adjourned until tomorrow out of respect. Leaders of the nation over, expressed sorrow.

Coroner Magruder MacDonald said his death was due to heart disease.

Dr. George Calver, capital physician, said Robinson, 64, apparently had left his bed about midnight and gone to the bathroom where he fell face downward.

The physician said Robinson had suffered seven heart attacks in recent months.

Calver further said when Robinson made the address which cut off fire senate debate on the court issue he became very pale and apparently cut his address short.

Tentative plans were made to send Sen. Robinson's body to Arkansas tomorrow morning.

As word of his death spread over the capital, many of his colleagues went to the Robinson home, the first to arrive were Senators Harrison (D. Mass.) and Walsh (D. Mass.).

The sudden death of Robinson shocked the capital and threw the administrative legislative program into turmoil.

Robinson had personally been in charge of the administration's two major legislative campaigns to enact President Roosevelt's bills to reorganize the court and the executive departments. His colleagues generally had expected his appointment to the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Justice Van Devanter.

Rep. Warren (L. N. C.) said of Senator Robinson's death: "I am shocked at the untimely passing of this great American, whose close friendship I have valued and esteemed for many years."

Reprieve Granted Convicted Slayer

Raleigh, July 14.—(AP)—Parole Commissioner Edwin Gill said today a 60-day reprieve had been granted Brady Laurence, Ireddell Negro convicted of murder who had been slated to die Friday in the gas chamber, but two Mecklenburg Negroes would be executed, he said.

Last week the first legal execution since Governor Hoey took office, that of a Pitt county Negro youth, Robert Glenn Brown, took place. Brown was convicted in Craven county of killing J. B. Peacock, party blind store keeper. Seventeen other condemned men face death before August 20 unless some get reprieves.

Gill said "The Governor has granted a 60-day reprieve to Laurence for further investigation."

The commissioner said "The Governor will not intervene" in the cases of Fred Steel and Sam Jones, convicted of murder in Mecklenburg county.

British Ship Captured; Loyalists Forge Ahead

Madrid, July 14.—(AP)—From the sky and across the sun-baked plains west of Madrid, General Jose Miaja's combined air and land forces were forging a ring of fire today around a great segment of General Francisco Franco's insurgent army of siege.

The apparent strategy of the government offensive, now in its second week and marked by combat on World War scale, was to encircle the insurgents by a westward salient, at the same time subjecting those within the oval-shaped trap to fierce frontal attacks.

Government captors of Villanueva del Pardillo, certified their positions today and launched a slight attack on the outskirts of the town.

SOVIET FLIERS COMPLETE TRIP FROM MOSCOW

Trans-Polar Airmen Land 90 Miles From San Francisco

LONG DISTANCE RECORD BROKEN

Gasoline Tank Leaking When Plane Set Down After 6,700-Mile Trip in 62 Hrs.

San Jacinto, Calif., July 14.—(AP)—The Russian trans-polar fliers landed here at 6:30 a. m., Pacific time, 9:30 a. m. (EST) after a non-stop flight from Moscow which broke the world's long distance flight record.

The fliers came down safely in a pasture three miles west from here after 60 hours in the air.

The landing near here ended an epochal flight of more than 6,000 miles which began Sunday night (EST) at Moscow.

The gasoline tank was leaking a stream of fuel when the big monoplane was brought down at a point 90 miles east of Los Angeles.

The airline distance from Moscow was computed roughly at 6,700 miles for the plane's slightly more than 62 hours in the air.

San Jacinto is at the eastern edge of the San Jacinto mountains 25 miles from March field, which the fliers evidently were trying to make.

From March field, the army headquarters of the first wing DHK air force, officers were immediately sent to the scene.

ASK CITIZENS TO CLEAN CITY

Campaign to Be Waged to Beautify Homes and Streets

With the arrival today of a new street sweeper, city officials announced plans for a general cleanup campaign to be waged during the next few weeks and asked the assistance and cooperation of all citizens.

For some time the city has been without adequate facilities to clean the streets in proper manner, the old sweeper having completely worn out. Officials, who decided to purchase the new equipment, declared that they had been anxious for some time to secure the proper facilities for keeping the streets clean.

"But, we can not do much good unless we get the cooperation of all citizens," declared George Clark, who has charge of the street cleaning department.

At the same time officials laid much stress on the necessity of cleaning up back lots and alleys. "We are anxious for the residents to clean up their lots and alleys and keep them clean," declared Chief Clark. He said if the citizens would place the trash and garbage in the proper containers city employees would go around and haul refuse away. Such a plan would greatly facilitate the removal of garbage, it was declared.

Underground garbage cans are being considered for Greenville and the city will provide them at cost and install them for any citizen who will cooperate in the campaign.

Another plan being urged as the use of lock boxes for trash and garbage in the business district. Under the plan the business house would (Continued on Page Two)

Plan To Abandon Search For Amelia On Saturday

Number of Planes Joining in Hunt Already Reduced

Honolulu, July 14.—(AP)—Naval authorities directing a vast aerial search along the equator for Amelia Earhart and her navigator, Frederick Noonan, missing 12 days, reduced the number of searching planes today and indicated the hunt would be ended Saturday.

Fliers of the aircraft carrier Lexington awaited passing of a tropical storm today before resuming their "last chance" search for the aviator and her navigator, who disappeared on their flight from New Guinea to Howland island July 2.

The storm forced cancellation of an afternoon flight yesterday after 60 planes fruitlessly had scanned 21,000 square miles of the South Pacific during the forenoon.

"Somewhere" in the 265,000 square miles of search area the pair was forced down, out of fuel, after missing the small coral islet which lifts itself above the ocean.

The Lexington's 69 planes took off while the carrier was 120 miles northwest of Howland and sped southward. They took up positions two miles apart in two divisions, one on each side of the Lexington. Each pilot was accompanied by an observer.

Authority Director Goes To Washington

Raleigh, July 13.—(AP)—Dudley Boley, director of rural electrification, said today he would go to Washington to confer with federal authorities on the Town creek in Edgecomb county, Hatteras and Engelhard projects. Involved is 120 miles of line in Edgecomb, 22 miles in Hatteras island and 40 miles from Engelhard to Stump Point and Fairfield.

Hoey Asked To Proclaim Policy On Whipping Post

Reflector Bureau Sir Walter Hotel Raleigh, July 14.—Editorial counsels to Governor Hoey that he declare his views in regard to the present act of the state highway and public works commission in publishing to state prisoners the notice of the lash as a means of discipline, is expected to bring a statement from his excellency this week.

Discovery of that act was made after Governor Hoey left for his vacation in Shelby. It is not whether he was consulted as to the policy. The old law required the consent of the Governor and several of the executives, including Governor Max Gardner, plainly refused to sanction it. Recently it was found out that there had been a number of whippings. That moved the commission to make a ruling and the whip is in the rules.

While the governor does not have power of veto over the acts of his commission it is almost universally believed in Raleigh that he would be opposed to whipping prisoners. The style is entirely out of character for him, his friends point out. The lash humiliates quietly with his gentleness, it is further said. He speaks softly, in the language of the late Theodore Roosevelt but he never carried the Big Stick because he did not like the idea of putting the coarseness of the timber into the timber of his voice.

SEVERAL HURT AT MARSEILLE

Six Persons Shot In France's Bastille Day Ceremonies

Marseille, France, July 14.—(AP)—Six persons were wounded by revolver bullets today in fighting among Rightists and Leftists during ceremonies of Bastille Day, France's "Fourth of July."

Many others were slightly injured in hand to hand fighting. Police charged the crowd to rescue the wounded from being trampled under foot.

The shooting occurred as a parade by People's Front adherents to the government of Premier Camille Chautemps passed headquarters of the Rightist popular party, which is led by Jacques Doriot.

Deny Confessions In Kidnaping Case

Stoney Brook, N. Y., July 14.—(AP)—The forces of Federal agents investigating the mysterious disappearance of Mrs. Alice McDonnell Parsons was increased today as reports of a "confession" quickly denied, were heard.

The Long Island society matron, wife of William Parsons, poultry farmer and retired business man, vanished June 9. A note demanding $25,000 for her safe return was found in the Parsons car.

The supposed "confession" was reportedly in the hands of the federal men although they denied any such document existed.

Figures for North Carolina Issued By Statistician

Condition of Crop on July 1, 67 Per Cent Normal, Compared With 59 in 1936

Raleigh, July 14.—(AP)—B. H. Rhodes, chief statistician for the agriculture department, forecast a 541,620,000 pound North Carolina tobacco crop for 1937 today, or an estimated yield 18.4 per cent higher than last year's.

State-Federal crop reporters' information, Rhodes said, gave an acreage increase of 12.1 per cent to 669,000, conditions 67 per cent normal as compared with 59 per cent on July 1, 1936, and "generally good" prospects the first of this month.

The state had an unfavorable planting season, he said.

Based on federal data, the department reported that the blue-cured tobacco growing states have increased acreage by 11 per cent, to 958,000 acres, with conditions 69 per cent normal, indicating a yield of 767,215,000 pounds, an increase of 12 per cent over the 1936 yield of 682,850,000 pounds.

In the Old Bright belt conditions were worst with only 60 per cent of normal July 1. Severe insect attacks killed 50 per cent of the crop in some counties. A total of 261,000 acres were in cultivation, up 16 per cent from last year, but the indicated harvest of 183,700,000 pounds exceeds last year's by only 2.8 per cent.

"Extra good conditions" were listed for the New Bright belt. Spotted stands and varying stages of growth were general, but conditions at 70 per cent of normal, compared to 59 per cent this season last year indicated a crop of 263,720,000 pounds where only 228,680,000 pounds were harvested last year.

Especially good conditions were listed in the area surrounding Pitt (Continued on Page Four)

Plan Celebration At Dedication Of Cotton Built Road

Project Declared by Chief Highway Engineer Baise to Be Only Similar one Ever Constructed

Raleigh, July 14.—(AP)—Plans for a celebration August 3 of the opening of the Paison-Clinton road, Governor L. Peteron of Clinton discussed the event with state officials.

Peteron, mayor of Gileon, said it was hoped to make the celebration one of such scope that it would attract wide attention.

Peteron said he understood the link of cotton-built road was the longest of its kind yet completed in the nation.

W. Vance Baise, chief engineer for the highway commission, said the project was the only one to which the state and federal road forces cooperated to determine the usefulness of cotton fabric in surface treatment of highways.

Various weights of the cotton fabric are used in different stretches of the road and other sections are given identical surface treatment with out any cotton fabric. A complete check will be kept on the road for three years.

Baise said cotton fabric had been used in construction of about 100 miles of other routes in the state near Raleigh, Chapel Hill, Rocky Mount and Sunbury.

Greenville Citizen Goes To Farmville

Greenville today lost one of its best-known citizens and greatest boosters of the local tobacco market, when J. B. "Uncle Jimmie" Roberts moved to Farmville.

Mr. Roberts moved to this city in 1924, joining the Forbes and Morton warehouse. He at once began soliciting tobacco in Greene and Wayne counties and continued boosting the local market as long as he lived here.

Last year, however, he was with the Monk warehouse in Farmville but continued to live in this city.

In addition to his work on the tobacco market, he also sells fertilizer and is pastor of four Primitive Baptist churches, preaching every Saturday and Sunday and sometimes twice daily, despite his 67 years.

Colonial Dames in Celebration
Wilmington, July 14.—July 31st has been officially designated as Colonial Dames Day in connection with the 350th Anniversary celebration of the First English Settlements in America and of the birth and baptism of Virginia Dare, first child of English parents born in America. The North Carolina Society of Colonial Dames of America will hold commemorative exercises in old Fort Raleigh, Roanoke Island, on this day, July 31, at 11 a. m. Mrs. J. Walter Williamson, president of the North Carolina Society of Colonial Dames of America urges all Colonial Dames and their friends to attend.

The celebration as planned by the Roanoke Island Historical Association, Manteo, N. C., began on July 4 and extends to September 6. This Association proposes to stage such a celebration on Roanoke Island as will rivet the attention of the civilized world and provide pleasurable lifetime memories for all who are so fortunate as to visit the Island while the celebration is in progress. Among other interesting features, the Association will endeavor to re-enact in part the Roanoke Island in 1857 and in a primitive setting re-enact the drama and romance of those first settlements. Paul Green, North Carolina's and America's distinguished playwright, is setting forth a new theory as to the fate of Raleigh's colony in his play, "The Lost Colony" written by Mr. Green especially for the 350th Anniversary celebration.

Everyone interested in the early beginnings of this great nation will want to see the marvelous collection of ancient relics gathered from this country and England to be on exhibition in the Fort Raleigh museum. Historians and guides will be stationed in the museum each day to explain in detail the significance of each relic. For those attending who wish to spend the night, hundreds of rooms are available on Roanoke Island in addition to regular service offered by the Hotel Fort Raleigh, Tranquil House and boarding houses. Also the Nag's Head and Kitty Hawk beach hotels and inns have made preparations to accommodate those who will attend the celebration. Nightly play and historical pageants are given.

Boulder, Colo., July 13.—(AP)—Dick Kearns, University of Colorado hurdler, is one of the hardest men to shut out in competition in American track annals. He has placed in every race he has run during the past two years. At the 1937 Kansas relay, he won the decathlon.

POULTRY CROP OUTLOOK GOOD

Larger Grain Production Reflected in Lower Prices

Raleigh, July 13.—Better corn and wheat crops this year are improving the poultryman's outlook, according to C. J. Maupin, extension poultry specialist at State College.

The greater production of grain is being reflected in lower feed prices, he added, and at the same time egg prices are holding up well for this time of year.

The outlook is not bright at present, he emphasized, for feed prices are still in comparison with egg prices. But the improvement that has been noted since June is encouraging.

In June nearly 10 dozen eggs were required to buy 100 pounds of feed. Normally, less than 7 dozen eggs should be required to buy that much feed in June, Maupin explained.

Still further improvement is in prospect between now and November, he continued. In December and the following winter months, feed prices are expected to be lower and egg prices higher than they were for the corresponding period last winter.

The farm price of chickens may decline during the summer, he went on, but they may not decline any more than they did last summer and after September the decline may not be as much as it was last fall.

In view of the present situation, Maupin stated, the poultryman's best course is to continue rigid culling of his flock so that he will be feeding only the best birds which lay the most eggs.

Smith Considered For Governorship Campaign In 1940

Lull in Gossip Brings Out Name of Willis Smith, Another Prominent Raleigh Attorney

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, July 13.—Raleigh may have two candidates for governor and the plurality may hurt both, according to political gossips who are hearing again that Willis Smith of Raleigh is about to dispute the territory with J. Melville Broughton about whose candidacy nobody seems to have any doubt.

The Smith talk followed the late Bermuda cruise in which the State Bar and State Press Associations were joint sailors. Travelers said they heard no politics during the visit, but there was some when they got back. It was pretty widely talked the past week that Smith will enter the race for the nomination.

Smith probably would have run in 1932 had J. C. B. Ehringhaus, also of Elizabeth City, not been in the race. Smith went to Duke University, then Trinity College, from Elizabeth City. He settled in Raleigh, went to the army, married here and lives in one of the handsomest residences of the capital. In which fortune he has nothing particularly on Broughton who is also a highly paid barrister.

Smith was speaker of the 1931 House, backed as Broughton had done in the senate, the Gardner program and each is exceedingly close to all the living ex-governors. A race between Broughton and Smith would be what the sports writers call a "natural." Smith would naturally have the favor of Duke collegians and Broughton would be highly pleasing to Wake Forest and to a sizeable portion of the University alumni. It is yet early to get up steam over the governorship, but if this brace of lawyers should take a notion to run, political gossips think the state somehow would find it out pretty soon.

And daily the bronze Indians sit in the committee room hearing white attorneys argue.

Talks To Parents

By Brooks Priests Church

SUPERSEDED

"But you've known him only two months, and already claim that you love him better than you love your parents."

It is hard for parents to believe that a child who seems to them small and dependent, can all of a sudden be ready to leave home and parents and go out into the world with a complete stranger. They argue that the child can not possibly know what it is doing.

Even if the acquaintance between the girl and boy is of long standing and the thought of marriage has come gradually over a period of years, the parents are unable to grasp the fact that they must now step aside. Having been first in their child's affections for so long a time, they forget completely that the time must come when another loyalty will push them aside.

The future relationship of parents and children, and perhaps the child's own happiness, can be greatly influenced for good or bad by the attitude of the parents when a child becomes engaged.

If a girl has known a boy for a very short time, objections will only make her more obstinate, and may precipitate the marriage. Far better to accept the situation and actually advise a little delay. If the engagement is acknowledged the young people get a sense of security which makes them more willing to wait. And time is the one thing needed.

No happy marriage includes parents. Of course they must step back. They can advise, but cannot interfere. Never again can they hope to be first in their child's affections, though their love for the child is as

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York — Bleeks in the mid-town tavern where most of the newspapermen in town report for their favorite brand of oolong. It is pronounced "Blakes."

Strangers dropping into Bleeks for the first time are often jolted with the suspicion that they have happened unwittingly into the upper nursery of an asylum, for the thing that greets their eyes very often surpasses understanding.

Almost invariably five or six young men at the bar will be gravely holding clenched fists behind them, then one after the other will submit one fist and suddenly open his hand. A number of matches, never more than three, will be in each hand.

After a hasty inventory, the process is repeated until, by the process of elimination, one is left. This is the "match" game, and the stakes run from bank notes (when a reporter happens to have a bank note) to "bricks."

Everybody plays "matches" at Bleeks. There is more to it than guess work. No player is permitted to hold more than three matches. If there are four men in the game, the total matches could not possibly be over twelve. You hide your hands behind you, attempt to guess how many matches the others will have, then hold hands out and open.

The lucky guesser is eliminated and waits patiently for the others to finish the game, the last one being stuck for the drinks.

Bleeks is also a good place to eat, if you are comfortably in the chips, although the real charm of the place is its lack of formality, its intimate atmosphere, and its convivial companionship. Such personalities as Stanley Walker, who wrote "City Editor," John O'Hara ("Butterfield 8"), Lucius Beebe, the millionaire reporter; Dick Maney, whose gift for getting things into the papers is referred to by theatrical producers as "Maney's Magic," and the like are landmarks in the place. They are the ones who have made Bleeks what it is.

As a partner at a party the other night I drew Serf, a Javanese dancer, but beforehand the host warned me that she was deaf. So I bowed and smiled but said nothing. That is a funny predicament to be in. From time to time you smile and point to things, saying nothing. Finally, with a show of impatience, Serf turned to me: "You haven't said a word all evening. Am I boring you?"

Really, nothing is sacred in this town. It's getting so now a man can't even trust his own host.

Paying heed to guests who are athletic-minded, one cafe has provided its patrons with a tennis court, showers, and also a handball court. No extra charge. You have a good workout, a shower, a brisk rub down. And then dinner (the proprietor hopes), with all of the trimmings.

"Another Owens' Is Coming Along," Lancaster, Pa., July 13.—(AP)—Norwood (Barney) Ewell, hailed as the "Jesse Owens of Lancaster high school," won every track and field event he entered in the 1937 season—the 100 and 200-yard dashes and the broad-jump—and set records in many. He was beaten only once in 1935 and once last year.

Lancaster's "Flying Ebony" was laced in 9.6 for the 100, 21.4 in the 200 and 26.4 in the 220 low hurdles.

He will be graduated from high school next February.

greatest as ever. From the time the baby is in his cradle, his parents should begin to prepare themselves for the inevitable day when they will be superseded by a complete stranger.

'OLDEST MAYOR'

W. E. Seat

TRENTON, Tenn. (AP)—Trenton's 86-year-old mayor, W. E. Seat, thinks he's the oldest living mayor in the United States.

In any case, he's Trenton's oldest citizen, has run for city and county jobs 34 times and been elected to 31.

He was just a child at the time of the Civil war. But he remembers distinctly the first time General Nathan Bedford Forrest, the Confederate cavalry leader, rode into Trenton.

"I was only 12 years old," he says. "I've lived here all his life and says he'd rather be mayor of Trenton than of New York."

He told him I wanted to enlist. He said "I was only 12 years old," he said "You young scamp! You run home to your mother."

He's lived here all his life and says he'd rather be mayor of Trenton than of New York.

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine

By Dr. Iago Goldstein

CIVILIZATION AND RHINITIS
Poor civilization! A multitude of sins are charged against it, and many an ailment.

Rousseau believed that all the evils of his age arose from "civilized society," and he urged the return to Arcadian simplicity.

Now Dr. C. Stewart Nash of Rochester, N. Y., declares that "rhinitis is fundamentally a disease of civilization." He urges, not a return to the primitive, but studies in diets and in "experimental adjustments in social stabilization" in an effort to restore nature's immunity against rhinitis (inflammation of the mucous membranes of the nose).

There is much to be said in validation of these indictments against civilization, and there is much appealing good sense in Dr. Nash's hypothesis. To begin with, rhinitis is a common affliction of civilized man, and is rather rare among primitive and uncontacted races. Concerning the latter we have the common testimony of many explorers.

What there is about civilization which renders those affected by it more susceptible to inflammation of the mucous membranes of the nose, we are not in a position to state with any degree of certainty. However, Dr. Nash suggests these points:

"The primitive man eats meat raw and cooked; he prefers the non-muscular portion, particularly the liver, adrenals and kidneys; he recognizes blood as an essential part of his diet. Milk, preferably from animals grazing in green pastures, green vegetables, particularly sea weeds and an abundance of fish are considered essential constituents of the tribesman's diet, and he thrives on it. He also leads a simple social existence. Something protects him against rhinitis.

"Civilization, on the other hand, gives us polished rice, branless wheat flour, refined sugar, highly specialized cereals an appetite for muscular meat, rather than the endocrine bodies (gland tissues). Civilized man leads a complex social existence. Something makes him susceptible to rhinitis."

More specifically, Dr. Nash reports that candy eaters often have a vasodilator (not caused by infection) rhinitis. Large quantities of white bread eaten over an extended period sometimes produce the same condition. Irish potatoes, macaroni and citrus fruits will occasionally cause vasodilator rhinitis. Mucal catarrhs are sometimes traceable to these causes.

COPS ARE 'VILLAINS' OF DENVER MOVIE
Denver, July 13.—(AP)—A half dozen Denver traffic officers, honored guests of the mayor at a preview of a film blushed with embarrassment.

For there on the screen they were shown "laying down the law" to erring motorists in an unenviable manner.

Two patrolmen had been assigned, with a motion picture camera, to get "action pictures" of traffic officers performing their duties. The two men had been at work a month before it was disclosed the pictures were being taken.

Mayor Ben F. Stapleton hopes the film will help some of the officers improve their dispositions.

Hot Weather is Here— Beware of Biliousness!

Have you ever noticed that in very hot weather your organs of digestion and elimination seem to become torpid or lazy? Your food sours, forms gas, causes belching, heartburn, and a feeling of restlessness and irritability. Perhaps you may have sick headache, nausea and dizziness or blind spells on suddenly rising. Your tongue may be coated, your complexion bilious and your bowel actions sluggish or insufficient.

These are some of the more common symptoms or warnings of biliousness or so-called "torpid liver," so prevalent in hot climates. Don't neglect them. Take Calo-tabs, the improved calomel compound tablets that give you the effects of calomel and salts, combined. You will be delighted with the prompt relief they afford. SNAKES STOP BILLIES' STREAK
Tarboro, July 14.—The latest winning streak of the league-leading Snow Hill Billies was snapped yesterday afternoon—Tarboro accomplished this in a game which was as wild as any the league will probably produce. The final count was 15-13. The result snapped the Billies' string of victories at eight.

Base hits were plentiful, the Snow Hill boys getting 15 while the Tarboro nine collected 14. Home runs by the Snakes' Myers and Ware and Snow Hill's Hyder topped a collection of eight extra-base knocks.

Ware also hit a triple and a single to bat 750. Hyder topped that, with four for five, and his collection included a triple and two singles in addition to his homer. Ware batted in six runs. Robinson batted in five for the Billies.

Snow Hill used three pitchers in an attempt to silence the bats of the Tarborians, while the Snakes used four.

The scoring for both sides came in the first six innings. Neither team scored in the last four frames.

LUCKY SEVENTH
Ayden, July 14.—Excellent hurling by Steve Gurth and a blast of three circuit blows in the seventh inning gave Ayden's Aces a victory over the Kinston Eagles here yesterday afternoon. The score was 4-2.

Gurth kept the Eagles away from the plate until the ninth inning, and though he weakened to the extent that he had to call on Earl Webb for relief, the four-run lead was too much for the Cellarites to overcome.

Kinston's ninth went something like this: Myrozek singled, but went out as Schut's grounder was turned into a double play. Patton singled, and Gillenwater pounded a home run. Hicks drew a walk, and Webb replaced Gurth. Earl fanned Wright to end the game.

Skinner Monk Joyner of the Aces started off the homer outbreak in the seventh. After Joyner's circuit clout came Baker's four-tripper. McCormick was the third Ace to clout a circuit blow.

The Aces' first run came in the first inning, on Schuerholz's triple, and Jirok's single.

The Eagles were held hitless by Gurth until the third inning. All told, Gurth gave seven hits. He fanned seven and walked only two.

The Aces reached Mublenheim for nine hits in his turn of seven innings. He went out for a ninth-inning hit in the eighth, and Krim Bess furlied the eighth. Bess pitched hitless ball.

Joyner with two hits was the only Aydenite to eat more than one safety. Gillenwater and Wright got two each to lead the Eagles.

GOLDSBORO WINS 6-2
Goldsboro, July 14.—It was all right for Owen (Ace) Elliott to shove last night.

Elliott, too, hurler of Goldsboro's entry in the Coastal loop, and several of his teammates decided last week to quit shaving until the Bugs sprang out of a losing streak. The losing streak went on and on, and Monday the Bugs dropped their eighth in a row.

So Elliott looked like a rookie member of a House of David team as he went to the hill to oppose Williamston's Martins here yesterday afternoon. The Ace came through with four-hit hurling, his mates banged Grant Jefferson's offerings for 13 hits, and the Bugs emerged the victors—by a 6-2 score.

Carolina Sales Victorious Over Carolina Dairy, 8-7

The Carolina Sales softball team yesterday won its first game in second half play, defeating Carolina Dairy 8-7 when it scored three runs in the first half of the final frame.

The game was featured by good fielding on both sides and both teams played tight ball all the way through. The dairymen led up to the sixth inning, but the Carolina Sales players got busy and scored three runs to forge ahead. The dairymen were kept scoreless in their half of the last frame.

E. G. Lynch, who joined the Carolina Sales team for the first time, saved the game for his teammates when he caught a line drive which staved off two runs. Ed Hooks also made a pretty catch when he ran into deep center to snag a fly off the bat of D. C. Fleming.

The Carolina Sales team, winner of first-half play, had previously lost to Blount-Harvey and Flanagan Buggy company during the second half.

Mexican Health Official Discusses Own Problems

Raleigh, July 14.—The percentage of syphilis is not high in the rural districts of Mexico, which are peopled largely by Indians, because these Indians marry young and continue to live with the same women," said Dr. F. Garcia Sanchez, of the Mexican Public Health Department, a Rockefeller Foundation student, who has been in Raleigh making a study of the work of the North Carolina State Board of Health, which is favorably known throughout the world.

Dr. Sanchez came to the United States about ten months ago and will return home the latter part of July. He left Raleigh for Winston-Salem, to spend a week in the office of Dr. J. Roy Heese, county health officer for Forsyth.

"Syphilis is a big problem in Mexican cities, just as it is everywhere," Dr. Sanchez said. "In some instances, the percentage of those infected will run as high as ten, even twenty per cent. We are giving the Wassermann and other tests for diagnostic purposes, while those found to be infected are given free treatment in many clinics throughout Mexico. We are seeking to impress upon our people the importance of cooperation with public health officials in fighting this disease and seeking to bring it under control.

"Tuberculosis is one of our biggest health problems. Like syphilis, this disease is more prevalent in the cities. Indians have it less than the purely Spanish and 'Criollo' groups. This is because the Indians are isolated from the cities and, in many instances, from other tribes."

"More precautions are necessary in some sections than in others. For example, the water that supplies residents of Mexico City, which comes from high in the mountains, does not require as much treatment as that which is taken from the rivers in the lower sections of the country."

Dr. Sanchez has been in public health work for the past six years, and his duties have taken him into all parts of Mexico, among people of all classes, in the rural districts and in the cities.

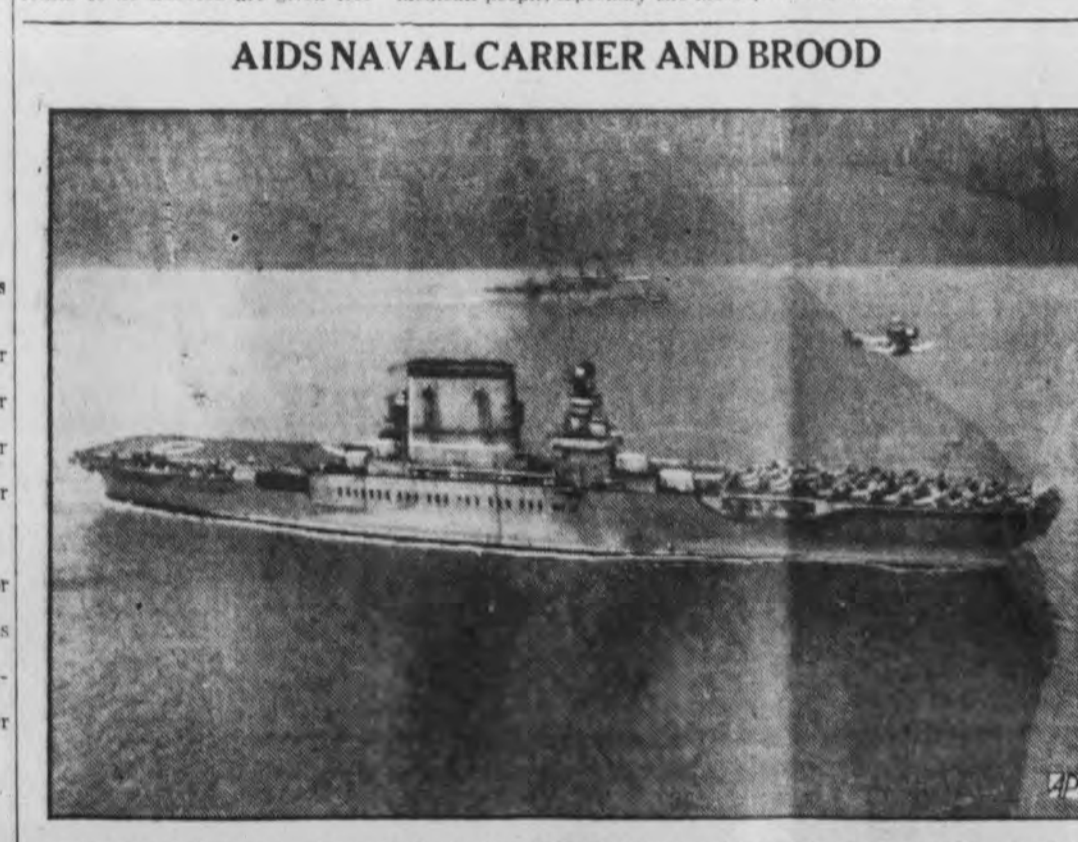

"Relations between Mexico and the United States were never more satisfactory than they are at the present time," he declared. "This is due in no small measure to a better understanding of our country and its problems. Every year now, thousands of American tourists, some in large groups, visit Mexico City and other places of interest. On these trips, they see the things we are trying to do and realize we are working toward progress."

"Your ambassador, Josephus Daniels, is very popular among the Mexican people, especially the laboring and poorer classes, because they feel he understands their problems and sympathizes with their needs. They have great respect for him. He has done much toward promoting friendly relations between Mexico and the United States."

KENTUCKY'S PROUD OF Kentucky Pride

A CALVERT WHISKEY

"THERE'S NO SPORT LIKE IT," say the devotees of fox-hunting. "And there's no Bourbon like Kentucky Pride," says Huntsman Washburn (right). "It's so smooth and mellow—no wonder Kentucky is proud of it."

Pasadena, Calif., July 13.—Some traffic jams in the far distant parts of the universe where hundreds of Milky Ways get together, are being discovered by a little new telescope which will stand alongside the giant 200-inch now under construction here.

The new telescope is a Schmidt, its diameter only 18 inches. It photographs a wide expanse of sky, contrasted to the shots of the Big Bertha telescopes which penetrate to great distances but see only a tiny spot at a time.

In one region of the sky, out in the direction of the constellation Pisces, the fish, the little telescope has spotted a jam of between 300 and 400 Milky Ways. Each is a nebula, an island universe, like the Milky Way. Dr. F. Zwicky, who located the swarm, says clusters like this represent the largest concentrations of matter known. He thinks their study will shed light on the evolution of the universe out of the primeval matter.

"LIVED IN KENTUCKY ALL MY LIFE," says Edgar W. Hughes, Jr., of Burgin. "But I've never found a whiskey that beat Kentucky Pride."

FLAME TRAIL

BY MARIE DE NERVAUD

SYNOPSIS: Josh Hastings, owner of the Flying Six, tries to buy Kay Crandon's Lazy Nine after her ranch house and barn burn. He also tries to court Kay. She distrusts him and is determined to keep her ranch and rebuild. Hastings' coughed, Scrap Johnson, molester Kay, but Ted Gaylor, a puncher she impulsively hired, rescues her and she scrap. Later they shoot it out, wounding each other. Hastings, who hates both men, finds them unconscious and murders Scrap, using Ted's gun to frame him. Ted travels to a shack where a girl takes him in.

Chapter 25 Who's Gun?

TWO days had passed, and still there was no sign of Ted Gaylor. "I don't understand it, Flicks," Kay whispered brokenly, as she slipped off Flicker's bridle and leaned her head for a moment against his mane. "Do you suppose—" She broke off abruptly, as she saw Shorty coming toward her. "Hi, there! Let me do that!" He took the bridle from her hand. "You hop to it and get some chow, or you'll be out of luck."

"Thanks, Shorty," Kay braced herself, and tried to smile. "Has everyone finished?"

"Do you know that gun?" asked the sheriff.

"Seth and a couple of the boys are still there," Shorty answered, bending down to Flicker's cinch. "What'd you think of the timber we're cutting?"

"I think it's fine. Only I hate to see those great tamaracs come crashing down!"

"Now, ain't that just like a girl?" Shorty commented to Flicker, cocking a quizzical eye at Kay to catch the effect of his words. "Here we're breaking our backs building a barn for her, and she wants us to keep the trees to have picnics under!"

"No, I don't, Shorty," Kay laughed at Shorty's comical expression in spite of her heavy heart. "I'm anxious to get the barn built as you are, only I wish—" She left the sentence unfinished.

"Sure. So do I," Shorty agreed, answering Kay's unspoken thought with the freedom of an old friend. "You know, it almost seems as though something must have happened to that guy! He wasn't the kind to go back on his word!"

"He wasn't, was he?" Kay agreed eagerly. Then, fearful of saying too much, once the flood gates of her troubled thoughts were opened, she turned and made for the mess shack.

The Sheriff's Queries

AS SHE and Seth were discussing the dimensions of the new barn, a sudden clatter of hoofs broke in on them. Springing to her feet, with a quick premonition of trouble, Kay was half way to the door, when it was suddenly darkened by the lanky figure of Zeke Farley, the sheriff of Butte county.

"Hello, there!" he pulled off his hat, as his eye caught Kay. "You're just the girl I wanted to see. Do you know that gun?"

For a moment, everything swam before Kay's eyes, as she caught sight of the gun the sheriff held out to her. She felt as though every drop of blood was drained from her heart as she stared at it, and braced herself against one of the chairs.

Conscious of curious faces crowded into the doorway behind the sheriff, she cleared her throat once or twice, before she could bring herself to speak.

"Why—why, yes," she faltered. "That was one of Dad's."

Seth came around the table behind her, and took the gun out of the sheriff's hand. "Sure, it was," he corroborated, and then added before Kay could stop him, "But, look here! Wasn't this the one you gave to that Gaylor guy?"

"What's that?" the sheriff snapped, his keen eyes traveling from Seth to Kay. "Gave it to who? When? Where is he now?"

Kay moistened her lips, before attempting to answer this rapid fire of questions. Her mind was leaping in lightning flashes from one desperate conjecture to another.

What did this gun in Zeke Farley's hands mean? Was Ted hurt—or killed? Or had he killed someone else? Beating through her fears for him, was the instinctive feeling that she must watch her step and not say something that would incriminate him.

"Where did you find it?" she asked for time, by meeting his questions with another.

"Never mind that now," Zeke Farley spoke more gently, as he saw Kay's distress, but his eyes were none the less keen. "Just you tell us everything you know about it."

Realizing that all she could do was to tell the truth, Kay explained how she had given the gun to Ted Gaylor, and had last seen it when he started off for Clear Water Basin, to get his mother and sister and bring them back.

"How did the gun come into your hands?" Kay ended, forcing herself to face the facts whatever they might be.

The sheriff hesitated, and gave an imperceptible nod to Seth over Kay's head.

"Don't you worry about that," he evaded soothingly. "I'll talk to Seth outside."

"No you won't!" Kay interposed, her eyes flashing, and her body straight and taut with determination. "You've got to tell me anything you have to say about it! I won't be kept in suspense."

Found: A Dead Man

THE sheriff shrugged. "Well, I reckon you've got to hear about it, sooner or later, so there's no point in making a mystery about it. Also, I want to know all you can tell me about this Gaylor guy—where you met him and how long you've known him, and so forth."

"But how did you come by the gun?" Kay insisted. "You must tell me that first."

The sheriff took the gun back from Seth, and gravely weighed it in his hand, as he eyed it critically.

"There ain't much doubt," he said slowly, "but what this gun has killed a man."

Kay put her hand up to her throat. "Yes—yes—go on!"

"One of the fire patrol was coming back over the divide, yesterday, and by the head waters there, he found a dead man, shot through the temple. And not 30 feet away, he came on this gun, lying where the murderer had left it."

"The dead man was a mile or so over on the Idaho side of the state line, so he brought the gun down to me. I called up the sheriff at Clear Water Basin, but he was off after a bunch of rustlers, and his deputy asked me to help out on the job until he could join me."

"Who was the man?" Kay got the question out through parched lips.

"A fellow named Scrap Johnson, who was one of the Flying Six outfit. He—"

He got no further, for Kay, with a cry of mingled relief and dismay, suddenly sank down on the chair near her.
