GEORGIA TOBACCO AVERAGING ABOUT 24 CENTS

THREE WEEKS MORE OF WORK FOR CONGRESS

Rayburn Sees Adjournment by End Of That Time

COURT BILL ONLY POSSIBLE TIE - UP

Wage-Hour Bill Up This Week; Housing Legislation Next To Be Considered

Washington, July 29.— (AP) — Majority Leader Rayburn told the house today congress should be able to adjourn in three weeks.

"Unless there is a tie-up in the court bill in the senate by something arising to call a halt," Rayburn said, "we can finish all of this (legislative) program in three weeks. There is a degree of certainty that we can adjourn at that time and not be forced into a session before December."

Questioned by Minority Leader Snell about the program, Rayburn said accounts of it published today after a conference yesterday between President Roosevelt and legislative leaders were "encouraging."

He spoke of prospects of senate action this week on wage and hour and on housing legislation and on the court bill next week.

The court bill, to which Rayburn referred, is awaiting senate action behind two other measures, the wage-hour bill and the Wagner housing bill.

The senate met an hour early today in an attempt to finish action on the wage-hour bill before night fall. Should they accomplish this, they probably would call up the housing bill tomorrow.

Plans were subject to change, however, Mr. Roosevelt was scheduled to meet all afternoon with congressmen interested in driving through sugar legislation this session.

Senator George (D-Ga.) told the senate during the day standards provided in the administration's wage-hour bill were "poetry, and nothing but poetry."

George opened a southern Democratic attack on the measure. Senator Austin (R-Vt.) who preceded George, said the bill, the Black-Conner measure, would put a straight-jacket on labor and mean an economic loss for agriculture.

The administration's long pending but little worked upon plan for reorganizing the executive branch of the government, however, became a matter for more intense legislative consideration today when the senate committee handling it ordered 10 days of public hearings beginning Monday.

Fort Bragg Camp Opens On Tuesday

Fort Bragg, July 29.— General Manus McCloskey, the commanding general of Fort Bragg, announces August 3rd as the date of opening of Camp Daughtry, the C.M.T.C. camp at Fort Bragg. This camp for 650 boys from all parts of North Carolina and fifteen counties of South Carolina is enrolled to capacity, many applications having been turned down because of lack of vacancies.

All preparations have been completed for a banner year. A full program of athletic events, featuring swimming, boxing, baseball, track, volleyball and gymnastics events has been arranged. Prizes and medals have been procured to reward efficiency in the various sports. Several valuable scholarships to reward all-around proficiency are offered, including one from Furman university, one from Wofford college and one valued at $500 from Western Military academy, Alton, Illinois. The first two scholarships accrue to enrollees at Fort Bragg alone, while the last named is awarded to the outstanding C.M.T.C. student in the United States. These prizes and scholarships are well worth working for.

All enrollees are reminded that they will be reimbursed immediately upon reporting to camp for the mileage travelled from their homes. A number of Pitt county boys will attend the encampment.

Streamlined Trains Tie Up Traffic Holdrege, Neb. — (AP) — Mayb streamlined trains speed up railroad traffic but they appear to be slowing down Holdrege city traffic. So many automobiles have jammed the streets near the railroad station to watch the streamliners arrive every night that police have warned citizens they would take court action unless the practice of blocking traffic is discontinued.

PEACHES BRING HIGHER PRICES

North Carolina Growers Realizing Better Returns

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, July 29.—North Carolina peach growers are now receiving from 15 to 65 per cent more for their crop than they did over the same period last season. Randal B. Etheridge, chief of the State Department of Agriculture's markets division, announced today.

"The exceedingly light crop in Georgia created an active demand for North Carolina peaches during the opening of the season about three weeks ago and growers experienced as high a market as has been seen during the last 15 years," he added.

"However, growers were witnessing a sharp decline in prices paid for peaches early this week." North Carolina producers had shipped 337 carloads of peaches through Monday as compared with 163 carloads on the same date last year.

Based on information from state-lateral crop reports, Etheridge said that the estimated peach crop this year in North Carolina as of July 1 was 1,690,000 bushels as compared with 1,358,000 bushels last year, or an increase of 302,000.

Highway Body Officials Pleased At Celebration

Reflector Bureau By J. C. BASKERVILL Raleigh, July 29.—Officials of the State Highway and Public Works Commission are watching with great interest the preparations being made for the celebration to be held Tuesday, August 3, of the completion of the "Cotton Road" between Faison and Clinton and in which both Goldsboro and Mount Olive will participate.

Offensive Against Santander Declared Imminent

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, July 29.—(AP)—Spanish insurgent military authorities said today "the Russian commander" of an international brigade had been killed defending Madrid.

Dispatches identified the commander as "General Arubensco" and said further the "foreign chief" of the fourth international brigade was captured with all his general staff.

Insurgent sources said a new offensive against government-held Santander on the Bay of Biscay was imminent.

General Francisco Franco's eastern army was reported to have driven across the Teruel-Cuenca provincial border, poised like a scalpel over the Spanish government's Madrid-Vallencia lifeline.

While the battle for Madrid on the inland city's western front raged into a deadlock lull, the insurgent legions some 100 miles east of Madrid, were reported thrusting slowly south from the rocky Albaracin sector toward the provincial capital, Cuenca.

The drive was aimed at the vital highway between Madrid and Valencia, Mediterranean port and temporary capital of the government.

Severance of this route, over which supplies, troops and communications have passed back and forth between the two major cities held by the government might bring the civil war victory which Franco was unable to achieve in nearly nine months' siege of Madrid.

Fear For Lives Of Americans Living In Tientsin, China

Japanese Officers Declare Situation Forces Them to Ignore Previous Assurance Not to Expose Foreign Residences

(By the Associated Press) The lives of Tientsin's many Americans were imperiled today by a literal death struggle between the Chinese and Japanese armies in North China.

The Japanese army in a drastic effort to rout a Chinese attack that threatened to drive it from Tientsin, its North China stronghold, loosed a devastating aerial bombardment on the city.

Japanese officers declared the acute situation compelled them to ignore earlier assurance not to expose the city's foreign residences to peril.

Wave on wave of bombing squadrons set many of Tientsin's main buildings afire, particularly the railroad center and burned the international bridge connecting the foreign concessions and the Chinese city.

Bombs rained on densely populated Chinese quarters. One village on Tientsin's outskirts was an inferno. Both at Tientsin and Peiping Americans huddled in the cellars of the foreign concessions and

NAME JOHNSON TO RUN PRISON

Burgaw Man Chosen Director of Penal Division

Raleigh, July 29.—(AP)—The Highway and Public Works Commission unanimously elected Robert Grady Johnson of Burgaw today as director of prisons and announced it had been recommended he be paid $6,000 a year.

The commission issued a statement saying Johnson had accepted the job, effective Sept. 1, and Oscar Pitts acting director of the prison division would be retained in the organization.

"There will be no major changes in the personnel of the prison division until the new director has had an opportunity to carefully study the situation and make personal recommendations concerning his findings," the commission's statement said.

"In simple justice to Mr. Johnson," the commission announced, "it should be stated he has never been an applicant for this position but on account of his special fitness the commission has sought his services."

Large Number Of Farm Boys, Girls Attending Course

4-H Club Members to Pack Their Bags Tomorrow Night and Depart from Raleigh Saturday

Raleigh, July 29.—The largest number of farm girls and boys ever to attend a 4-H Short Course at State College will pack their bags tomorrow night and depart Saturday for homes scattered throughout every section of North Carolina.

Nearly 950 club members registered Monday for the five-day period of education and entertainment, setting an all time attendance record, according to L. R. Harrill, State 4-H club leader.

Harrill attributed the large enrollment to a returning farm prosperity and to an increased interest in 4-H club work. Every dormitory at the college was taxed to capacity.

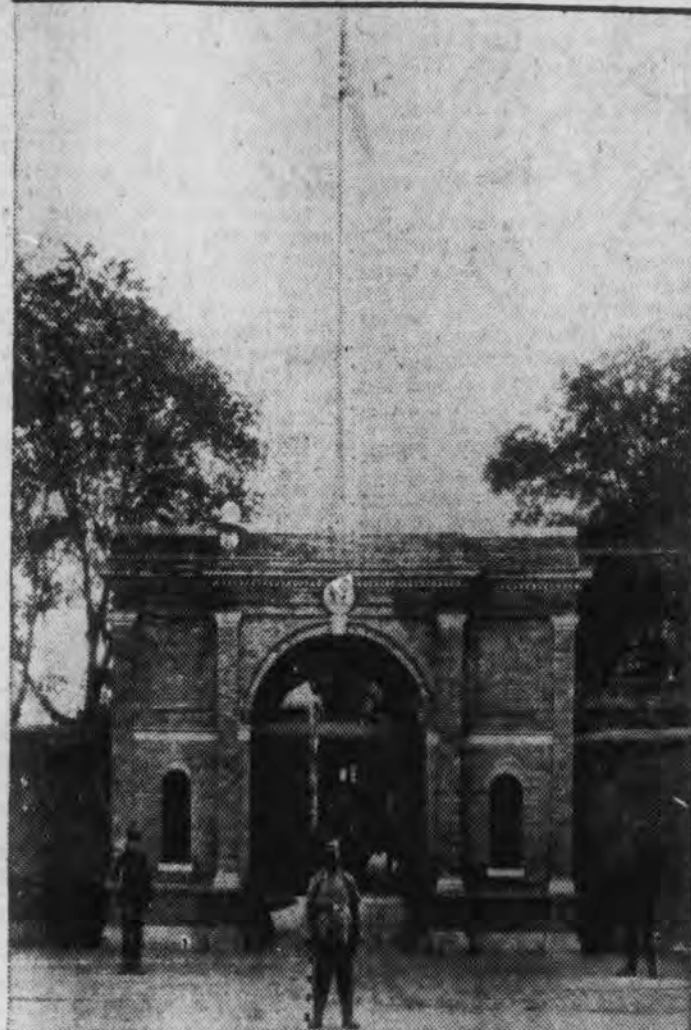

Inclement weather during the first two days of the short course failed to dampen the spirit and enthusiasm of the delegates. Evening exercises which were scheduled for Riddick stadium were brought indoors when washed out by showers.

Rising at 6:30 o'clock each morning, the club members attended a morning watch and flag raising exercise 16:50. Following breakfast, they attended chapel where they heard prominent North Carolinians advise them in the art of living. Team demonstrations were also featured during the morning chapel.

Classroom instruction in practical farming and homemaking occupied the delegates' time for the remainder of the morning. Subjects were taught by specialists of the State College Extension service and of the school of agriculture.

Included on the afternoon schedule were radio programs, demonstrations, and recreation. Community singing, plays, dress reviews, recreation, and informal talks were a part of the evening programs.

America Destination Of Another Russian Plane

Ideal Weather Conditions Ahead For Trans-Polar Flight

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 29.—(AP)—Daylight around the clock and ideal weather conditions most of the way lay ahead of a third Soviet trans-polar airplane flight scheduled to start from Moscow today for an unannounced destination in America.

An American trained pilot, Sigmund Levanefsky, known as the "Lindbergh of Russia," set the take off for 8 a. m. (EST). Three to five other persons will accompany Levanefsky in a four-motored plane.

Absence of word of a take-off after the announced time recalled delay of Moscow in announcing previous trans-polar flights. The first venture was not reported for 24 hours.

Fairbanks was listed as a refueling stop. A group of Russian engineers hastily completed establishing of a refueling station here where the plane can land, take on gas and then fly on—possibly to Chicago or New York.

The U. S. Signal Corps' giant Northland radio networks was busy again long before the flight started, sending out reports of good weather most of the way and of ideal temperatures prevailing on the American side of the pole.

From here to within 1,500 miles of Moscow it is daylight 24 hours a day at this time of the year.

Fairbanks is about 3,500 miles from Moscow.

Rising vanilla prices in the world market are improving the economic conditions of South Seas natives.

Johnson Slated Be Named Highway-Prison Director

Reflector Bureau By J. C. BASKERVILL Raleigh, July 29.—The State Highway and Public Works Commission is expected to appoint one of its own members, Commissioner Robert Grady Johnson of the Third division, as executive director of the prison division of the highway commission, or possibly of the entire highway commission, before the commission adjourns its meeting here today, according to very reliable reports heard here today.

FARMERS SAY PRICES 'GOOD'

Figures Compare Favorably with Last Year When Georgia Averaged A Strong 22 Cents on Opening Day With A Heavy Crop

Telegraphic reports from Greenville tobaccoists on the Georgia markets and also Associated Press dispatches from various centers indicated an opening day average of approximately 24 cents per pound.

The 1937 bright leaf crop of Southern Georgia and Northern Florida went on the auction blocks today and the first sale reported at Valdosta brought a comment from the grower that the price was "good."

Millions of pounds of the leaf was offered as the auctions began. The cryptic drone of auctioneers' voices started another marketing season in nearby a score of Georgia and Florida towns. Thousands of growers listened attentively to monosyllabic cries of the bidders, cries that were meaningless to the uninitiated, but which quickly told planters how much they could expect for eight months of labor.

The following private reports were received: Valdosta—First 20 piles tobacco averaged twenty-six cents at Nat Smith House. Valdosta looks like market average of twenty-four cents.

Metter—Market good, average twenty-four to twenty-six. Quality fair.

Will Moore Douglas—Looks like average about twenty-one cents. Quality good.

B. B. Sugg Hazlehurst — Good tobacco averaging about twenty-four cents. Common grades three to five cents higher. Medium to good about same as last year.

Tarboro Tobaccoist Top prices reported from Moultrie in the early sales was 43 cents a pound, but the average ranged from 25 to 29 cents. Growers said this was equal to last year's opening with better grades up a little.

Other opening quotations included: Hahira, 34 cents; Vidalia, 36; Hazlehurst, 27 cents; top 64 cents; Tifton, 26 to 33 cents; Blackshear, 29 cents.

The opening of the Georgia market this year is several days earlier than last year, when it opened on August 4. Reports from Valdosta today put prices about in line with those on opening day last year, but today's indicated average of 24 to 26 at Metter was about six cents higher than on opening day last year.

State officials expressed the opinion execution of a Negro for ravishing a Negro was very unusual. The governor had previously announced he would intervene for A. W. Watson, 20, convicted in Martin county last December of the robbery murder of Thomas Holliday, a filing station attendant.

Several arrests were made by the Greenville police force last night after several days of almost complete quiet.

Most of the arrests involved charges of public drunkenness, with one person having been charged with driving while under the influence of whiskey.

Crop forecasters have placed Georgia's 1937 yield in the neighborhood of 61,000,000 pounds, down some 26 per cent from last year's more than 85,500,000 pounds, the decrease being charged to the invasion of blue mold. Last year Georgia's price averaged 20.96 cents for the season and returned more than $18,000,000 to the well-satisfied customers.

In 1935 Georgia markets sold 71,826,352 pounds for $13,582,912. Florida expects to sell 14,120,000 pounds this year, about 4,000,000 more than in 1936, when the official average was 23.21.

Following the Georgia-Florida auctions, buyers will move north. South Carolina's bright leaf belt will open on August 10. The new Bright Leaf belt, embracing Eastern Carolina markets, will start auctions on August 26.

Louisburg Alumni Living In County

Louisburg, July 29.—The number of students enrolled at Louisburg college during the 160 years of its existence from Pitt county and surrounding counties is quite large and indicates to some extent the major contribution that this institution has made to the life of this section of the state.

During the 160 years of Louisburg's life more than 30,000 students have enrolled, which gives an average of over 300 for each of the 100 counties of the state for the period, if the number was evenly distributed through the state.

Pitt county has enrolled 418 students at Louisburg college since its founding more than a century and a half ago. Nearby counties and their enrollments are: Greene, 266; Martin, 140; and Lenoir, 490.

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine
By Dr. Ingo Goldstein

MUSCLE INJURIES

Injuries involving the skin, bones or joints are usually readily appreciated and treated promptly, but those affecting the muscles are frequently overlooked.

The result is that many an injury that requires expert treatment is neglected or badly handled. This sometimes results in permanently handicapping the efficiency of the muscle affected.

Dr. Clifford W. Henson of New York cataloged the common types of injuries suffered by muscles. The most common type of muscle injury is that due to direct trauma. The blow struck by a blunt object and the penetrating wound caused by a sharp instrument belong in this class.

Indirect injury is brought about when muscles are continuously used after fatigue has set in, or when a heavy strain is put upon muscles which have been relatively inactive for a long time. Sudden action in an unusual manner which calls for more force than the muscle is capable of exerting may result in muscle injury.

The type of resultant injury may vary from case to case, and may range from a complete rupture of the muscle to slight hemorrhage or contusion. The common signs and symptoms of muscle injury are swelling, pin-point hemorrhage under the skin, tenderness and limitation of motion.

In addition, the muscles may manifest involuntary spasms and strong contractions which at times produce marked rigidity. The late results of the injury may be permanent stiffness, lack of pliability and marked functional limitations.

Muscle injuries, especially when severe, call for expert medical attention. Emergency treatment consists of applying cold compresses to the injured muscles promptly after the injury has been suffered, and keeping the injured muscle or muscles at rest.

Massage should not be applied during the acute stages of the inflammation and never except under medical instruction until two weeks after the injury. Heat applications will prove beneficial after the acute symptoms, pain and redness, have subsided.

RABBITS AND PNEUMONIA

The story is told of a French sausage maker who sold a sausage made 50-50 of horse meat and rabbit, that is, one horse and one rabbit.

While the rabbit is no match for the horse in sausage making, it does appear to prove a match, and more, as a source of serum to be used in the treatment of certain types of pneumonia. Indeed, rabbit serum as a therapeutic agent in lobar pneumonia is so markedly superior to that derived from horses that it is quite likely that the rabbit market will experience a boom.

First, there is the item of economy. Estimates indicate that unit per unit, the protective substance of rabbit serum will cost about one-fifth as much as that of the horse serum. Furthermore, almost 100 per cent of the rabbits used, when properly treated, produce anti-serum against Type I pneumonia, whereas not all horses treated produce potent serum.

It takes six months or more for a horse to produce pneumococcus anti-serum, whereas by intensive immunization, it is possible to obtain within four weeks anti-pneumococcus serum from the rabbit, which is about four times as concentrated as that of the horse.

Certain individuals are sensitive to horse serum and in them the administration of anti-pneumococcus serum derived from horses gives rise to disturbing and dangerous reactions. In addition, the use of horse serum is sometimes followed by what are termed "chill reactions" and "serum sickness." All of these hazards and untoward developments are substantially reduced when rabbit serum is used.

According to a recent report from the hospital of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research where much of the work on anti-pneumococcus rabbit serum has been done, rabbit anti-pneumococcus serum is more effective than horse serum in the prevention of common complications of pneumonia, empyema (infection of the pleural coverings of the lung and chest wall).

Much of the experimental work on rabbits has been done with the pneumococci Type I. There is reason to believe that rabbits will prove even better sources of protective serums for the other types of pneumococci than horses have proved in the past.

for the sake of consistency punish or prove them every time. The result is constant nagging, which exhausts everyone, and in the end undermines authority.

It does not hurt a child to get away with an occasional piece of mischief, so long as he things he is undetected. For generations small boys used to play hookey from school and steal an early swim. No parent in his senses would permit his child to do such a thing. To let him cut school and risk pneumonia both, would seem criminal negligence. But no doubt many a parent, remembering his own youth, guessed at the offense, and held his tongue. The small boy came thru unharmed by either truancy or the cold water, and achieved a refreshing sense of freedom and independence from the escapade.

Today truant officers, parents, and interfering neighbors are so ubiquitous that a child must feel like a gold fish. The result is often a lack of enterprise and a sense of dependence on home and family.

Undoubtedly in the crowded modern world, all adults should wear blinders, but the children should not know about them.

Prosperity by Quarts
Stockholm—(AP)—The annual report of the liquor monopoly indicates that Sweden is in a period of rare prosperity. Last year the net income of the monopoly was $3,787,500 against $3,575,000 in 1935. In spite of this increase drunkenness continues to decline.

FLAME TRAIL

BY MARIE DE NEVOUD

SYNOPSIS: Kay Crandon decides to rebuild her burned ranch house and barn, though Neighbor Josh Hastings, whom she hates, wants to buy her ranch and marry her. Ted Gaynor, a puncher she impulsively hired, fights Scrap Johnson, a cowboy who molested Kay. They shoot it out, wounding each other. Hastings sneaks up and kills Scrap with Ted's gun. Ted crawls to a cabin where a girl (Marion) nurse him a week before the sheriff arrests him due to a tip unconsciously given by Kay. The sheriff and his posse start off with Ted for Clear Water Basin jail.

Chapter 38

The Cards Are Stacked

"Wait a minute!" Ted reined in by the stream where he had so nearly breathed his last. "Where was Scrap Johnson found?"

"Exactly where you dropped him. Ain't that a surprise, now?" Sam Cutter winked at one of his men, who guffawed in appreciation of his chief's sarcasm. "Come on! The state ain't asking you to do any investigating."

Beating his lips to cut off the report that sprang to them, Ted obeyed the order. But there was one more question he had to know. He turned to the man following him.

"How did you find me? And how did it happen that both posse got there at the same time?"

The other one grinned. "Tipped off by a girl," he answered with relish. "You're sure one hell of a fellow with the ladies!"

"A girl!" Ted echoed, his grip on himself shaken for a moment with the surprise and shock of this news. "What girl?"

Ted's mind reeled before the thought that Marion might have crept away while he was sleeping, and have betrayed him. She certainly was the only girl that knew his whereabouts! But the next instant he cursed himself for even harboring such a thought.

Marion would have been utterly incapable of such a sneaking act! She could no more have done a thing like that than Kay could.

"Search me!" It was evident that the man he was questioning was greatly enjoying Ted's stupefaction. "It was some Jane over in the Red River section. You seem to have girls all over the place!" he ended with mock admiration.

"Red River!" Ted had a gone feeling at the pit of his stomach, and for a moment he swayed dizzily in the saddle. "The Red River section?" he repeated incredulously. "There just be some mistake there! No one in those parts had any idea where I was!"

"Pears she was prowling around doing a bit of investigating on her own. Hi, there, Sam!" he called ahead to the sheriff. "What was the name of that girl that tipped Zeke Farley off about this bird's whereabouts?"

"Crandon," the sheriff called back. "Old Man Crandon's daughter, who's been running the Lazy Nine since he kicked off, about a year ago."

Ted gripped the saddle horn to keep himself from toppling over as a rushing blackness closed in on him. Fighting with all his power against the faintness that assailed him, he gradually felt the roaring in his ears give way, and the reeling landscape steadied itself.

"It must all be a mistake," he kept telling himself, but a terrible conviction persisted that Sam Cutter knew what he was talking about. As though in a nightmare, Ted listened to the conversation of the two men, who were still talking back and forth, over his head, to each other.

"I didn't stop to ask Zeke any more about it," Sam Cutter was saying. "The Crandon girl was staying at Josh Hastings' ranch, and she telephoned in from there. Said she saw him up there, with the black haired felly." He turned around in his saddle and leered at Ted. "Take it from me, it don't pay to have too many of 'em on the string at one time! Get 'em jealous and they raise hell!"

Ted was too dazed even to attempt a retort. Kay! Kay Crandon had betrayed him! He felt like shouting aloud that it was all a wild lie, but the shout died in his throat.

Pride To His Aid

They said that Kay had seen him with Marion How... a sudden groan escaped Ted. He remembered now that Marion had thought she had heard something the afternoon before, when they had been talking. But if Kay had happened on them, why hadn't she made her presence known? Why... suddenly, the significance of Sam Cutter's jeering advice flashed over him. Jealous! Could it be possible that Kay had been jealous?

Ted's heart quickened at this thought and what it implied, but the next minute he was in the depths again. Fool that he was, he told himself savagely, to think for a moment that Kay cared enough about him to be jealous!

For a long time, Ted rode on in silence, his mind turning this way and that in an effort to find a way out of the labyrinth of despair that this act of Kay's had thrown him into.

Any way you looked at it, the conclusion was forced upon him that he had been mistaken in Kay. There was no excuse, after what had passed between them, for her to have given him up to the sheriff without allowing him a chance to explain his side of the story to her. He could forgive anything but treachery. And that was what Kay's act had been.

A reckless despair closed over Ted, but pride finally came to his aid. If Kay had done that, there was all the more reason to prove his innocence! If he was convicted, she would feel justified in her treacherous act. But when he was proved innocent, she would know what a despicable thing she had done.

Not that he ever wanted to see her again, Ted told himself fiercely. This time, he was finished with women, now and forever.

A vision of his mother and sister flashed before him, and he reproached himself bitterly for having concentrated so on Kay, to the exclusion of them. For their sake, he must fight himself clear of this web that he had become enmeshed in! For their sake, and for no one else.

It was nearly dark before the lights of Clear Water Basin showed up in the distance, and Ted was hanging on to his ebbing strength by sheer force of will.

When they at last reached the county jail, he heaved a great sigh of relief. Anything was better than that endless ride, with the desperate fight against physical weakness and those torturing thoughts.

He swayed as he dismounted, and reeled like a drunken man into the jail. The only thing of importance at the moment was sleep!

Like a man in a trance, he answered the questions put to him, and at last, after what seemed an eternity, he was led to a cell at the end of a corridor, and the key grated in the barred door behind him.

Drooping down on the iron cot, he fell into a deep sleep of exhaustion.

Wheels Within Wheels

IT WAS dawn of the second day of the trial. Ted Gaynor sat on the edge of his bunk, and watched the gray light steal through the bars of the high window opposite him.

For seven days, now, he had watched that light change from drab gray to a sunny radiance, and back to gray again; then had come the long period of black void, through which he snatched fitful hours of sleep.

As he sat now, with his chin in his hands, he was forced to admit that things were going badly. There was no doubt that feeling was being stirred up to run fiercely against him, and it was not hard to recognize who was behind it.

Josh Hastings was out to get him convicted, and Ted knew that from that source he could expect no quarter. He held a damning knowledge of Josh Hastings' past that would utterly ruin him, if Ted could ever bolster it up with tangible proof.

Knowing this, Josh Hastings naturally was out to make the most of this chance to get him out of the way once and for all.

As Ted had sat in the courtroom the day before, watching the forces arrayed against him, he had realized that far more than the murder of Scrap Johnson was involved. There were many wheels within wheels, and he was being made the victim of varying passions and desires.

Sam Cutter was determined to have a conviction to his credit before election. Josh Hastings wanted Ted out of his path. And Tom Runyon, Ted suspected, wanted to gain credit in Kay's eyes by helping to convict him.

Ted writhed inwardly as he remembered Tom Runyon's testimony yesterday. He had described finding Kay on the trail, and how she had told him about Ted and Marion. He had carefully left out any word of her real condition, and her delirium. Ted had heard only the damning confirmation of the account of his capture that had been given him on the trail by Sam Cutter.

The gun Kay had given him had been exhibited, and the bullet that had killed Scrap Johnson had been indisputably proved to have come from that gun.

They had also produced as witnesses the men who had been in Kelly's place the time Ted had fought with Scrap Johnson, and they testified, one after the other, that Ted had threatened to kill Scrap if he ever heard him mention a certain girl again.

Kay springs a surprise at the trial tomorrow.

PRELUDE TO PASSION: HERE'S WHAT'S REALLY BEHIND ALL THAT MOVIE LOVE-MAKING

1 Here is how a couple of Hollywood stars warm up for the big love scene. William Gargan on the floor is supposed to be overcome by gas but he looks more as though he'd been overcome by boredom as Director Erle Kenton tells him and Orien Heyward what to do.

2 Bill stifles a yawn and Orien looks miles from love as they wait for the camera to start. The picture is called "Accidents Will Happen." Looks as if it'll be one if they ever get this love scene made.

3 Now what? Can this be our sweet, demure heroine making faces at a sideline technician? If it is. And our hero, what do you think he's doing? Why, examining his manicule, the dear. Are you getting impatient?

4 At last, a little action. She takes him tenderly in her arms—and the camera-man's assistant stalks in with a tape measure. Gotta be scientific about focusing, you know. Well, anyway, Orien can hardly say there's no true measure of her love for Gargan.

5 And finally it's happening—right in front of our eyes. Love blooms. Orien embraces him passionately. Of course, Gargan doesn't return the embrace—but what do you expect of a guy who's sniffed too much gas. "Oh, my darling, I love you." Et cetera. Fadeout.

Cheer Up, You Low-Browed Folks: Prof. Says You, Too, May Be Brawny

1—This Denver student is getting her face plastered—and it's not a beauty treatment. It's one step in Dr. T. R. Garth's search for a link between facial features and brain power.

2—Next the plaster mask is removed, giving a faithful copy of student's face. "Quite an ordeal," she says, as she sits up and wipes off the grease paint coating which went on first.

3—A study of finished masks like these has convinced Dr. Garth, Denver university psychologist, there are no facial "key signs" which point to intelligence. Left to right, a football player, a student high in scholarship, who later became a minister, a girl who combined beauty with intelligence, and a girl who had beauty but failed in an intelligence test.

By ROBERT GEIGER (AP Feature Service Writer)

DENVER — In seeking intelligence, do not be misled by a pretty face.

Nine out of ten persons are, says Dr. T. R. Garth, author of many books on race psychology, who is convinced after four years of study that a person's face does not reflect his intelligence and character.

Dr. Garth made dozens of plaster casts of the faces of students of Denver university, where he is professor of psychology. Some were football players, some were beauty queens, others were high in scholarship.

He was hunting for facial characteristics that definitely gave a hint of a person's brain power. After the masks were made the students were given intelligence tests.

No "Key Signs"

"The tests," he asserts, "indicate there are no facial 'key signs' which point infallibly to a definite degree of intelligence or the lack of it."

"It is commonly supposed that a high forehead and certain characteristics of the nose, mouth and chin denote intelligence. So far as we can determine a person with a low forehead and coarse features may be just as intelligent as his person with refined features.

"We have shown the casts to dozens of students and none of them could pick the masks of the more intelligent subjects."

Beware Snap Judgment

"Usually men were influenced by the beauty of the mask and picked the most beautiful women as the most intelligent. Women also were influenced by masculine beauty. But beauty does not have any connection with intelligence, our tests indicated."

Artists, says Dr. Garth, likewise selected the most beautiful specimens as the most intelligent.

"And therefore my warning is that a person should hesitate to make a snap judgment about a fellow human being, based entirely upon appearances."

Among the Farmers

The slogan of every Negro farmer in Pitt county is to have a pig a cow, a year round garden, 48 pints of vegetables and fruit canned for each one in the family, and as many chickens as possible.

In the absence of a home demonstration agent, the Negro farm agent is asking the help of the teachers, preachers and all leaders to help carry this program to every door to keep so many from depending on relief for a living.

It is time now to get ready for fall gardens, can all surplus vegetables, the Negro agent is advising that during the season of plenty not to forget to lay up clothing and shoes for winter.

In order to help the farmers save their meat the agent is vaccinating hogs in each community.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—That 70 to 20 vote by which the President's court bill was sent back to committee to be pared down to a shaving has brought real discouragement to some sincerely liberal members of congress.

Whether or not there is reason to agree with them, it should be known that even some of those who voted for recommitment were almost physically sick with despair at the defeat. They had fought through weeks to escape it, and voted for recommitment only because continued fighting was futile.

The President won in November but the Liberty League won in July," was the comment of one liberal senator. That may not be fair to the Liberty League for as an organization it did not stand out in the battle against the measure.

This same senator outlined his view of the matter in about this fashion:

Before the last presidential campaign and in its early weeks, an effort was made by the foes of President Roosevelt to raise an issue by which he might be defeated. Failing in that, the attack was directed at him personally.

But even the personal phase of the campaign failed, as was disclosed in November. A waiting process began while an issue should present itself upon which a patriotic emotional campaign could be waged. Then the President advanced his court reform measure and the horses of indignation were whipped to a lather.

These are the sentiments of the several senators (their number is fairly limited) who sincerely believed there was need of reform in the supreme court and that the President's plan was the best way of meeting it. They doubted there was any real danger of the court's being made a toy of the present or later administrations.

Some are disheartened enough to think that with the ball set rolling by defeat of the court bill, almost every measure now to be advanced to remedy farm conditions, help to stabilize labor and industry and to provide better working and housing conditions will be whittled away to near-nothingness.

Just Beginning That is a black outlook and is not shared by all who saw the bill go down to defeat. The President indicated the country had been made court-conscious and constitution-minded. Elaborating on that a certain capitol hill law and economic specialist said, in effect:

"This fight isn't more than begun. When I was in law school 15 years ago it was rare that a voice ever was raised in the class room, especially by instructors, against the sanctity of the supreme court decisions and the saving boundaries of the constitution.

"That is not so now. The crops of lawyers coming from the schools since 1932 have been given a different smell of the law. Their instructors have felt free to point out a different course. And remember, too that even the supreme court pointed out a different course for itself, all within a half dozen months."

Man About Manhattan

New York -- New York in tabloid must necessarily fly the big names, but it is the youngsters, the kids on the way up, who hint today what Broadway and 52nd street will be like tomorrow. Let's amble over to the milky white way and see for ourselves:

Nena, slender and supple as a willow. She's Spanish and has talented feet. But her English seldom goes beyond, "Some day I die," and "Phoony on war!" Such pessimism in one so young is inexplicable, but her anti-combat attitude is explained. War in Spain has skyrocketed the cost of all those things she likes in Seville. Especially castanets, which she needs in her dancing. Quite unexpectedly she broke one of her castanets the other night. It cracked into a thousand pieces, and to get a new, authentic, Spanish, imported one, she was compelled to shell out $25. That got Nena's dander up.

"Phoony," she says. "Phoony on war."

Fred: This red hair doesn't know whether to become another Fred Astaire or merely to command admiration through the medium of his verse. "What's to stop me?" he yelps, and means it, in the enthusiasm of his first job he gets $39 a week for hooding and his nineteen years.

"Nothing, Fred except that poets go hungry, and there aren't any more Astaires. If there were the craze would wear down." Fred is really very adept at shuffling his feet, but he's still somewhat shy on her father's reputation.

Jean: A grand young actress and the daughter of a famous artist. Pretty, too. Last seen on Broadway in the revue, "New Faces." She's from Ohio, where her family is well known, though she never mentions that part of it unless asked to bring it up. She's afraid somebody might think she is trying to trade

BEGINNING TO SPROUT

Can You Solve This Mystery?

Here are the clues in the famous Crater Case—the unexplained disappearance of the New York supreme court justice who dropped from sight at the height of a spectacular political and legal career.

(By the AP Feature Service) JUST seven years ago Justice J. P. Crater of the New York Supreme Court mysteriously disappeared. Where he went and why, whether he is today alive or dead, no one knows.

then you're a better detective than any of the sleuths who have worked on the case since 1930. But you'd better act quickly. Under New York law a person who has been missing seven years can be adjudged legally dead. And even now Judge Crater's wife is preparing to ask the courts to declare her a widow.

1—Ten years ago Joseph Force Crater was one of New York's most brilliant young lawyers. He also found time to lecture in law schools and, his wife says, had an offer to become dean of one.

2—He got into politics through Tammany Hall and considered himself a protégé of U. S. Senator Robert Wagner. At 41 he was appointed by Gov. Franklin Roosevelt to New York's Supreme Court.

3—A man of many facets, he liked to doff his black robes and play among the Broadway night spots. There, some said, he gathered material for mystery stories which he wrote as a hobby.

4—On August 2nd, 1930, Judge Crater said goodbye to his wife at their estate in Maine and left for New York. She didn't know it then, but Stella Crater was never again to see her husband.

5—Friends say Judge Crater around New York for a few days after that. On August 4 he worked in his judicial chambers. On the evening of August 6th he dined with a party in a Times Square restaurant.

6—Leaving the restaurant, he hailed a taxi, waved goodnight to his friends—and hasn't been seen since. A detective later said the cab was a "gip" taxi, perhaps operated in league with hold-up men.

7—On January 22, 1931, Mrs. Crater found in their Fifth Avenue apartment a check from her husband dated August 30th, three weeks after his disappearance. And a note: "I am very weary. Love, Joe."

8—Last summer a traveler reported he had camped in the California mountains with a man who answered Judge Crater's description. Like dozens of similar clues, this one collapsed on investigation.

9. On July 29th this year, Mrs. Crater was quoted as charging that her husband had been murdered in connection with politics, but she offered no new evidence. Now it's your guess: "What happened to Judge Crater?"

as he points out the similarity of their first names. Still you can never tell. Nobody knew Astaire would be what he is when he was Fred's age, except, of course, Fred himself.

Jean: A grand young actress and the daughter of a famous artist. Pretty, too. Last seen on Broadway in the revue, "New Faces." She's from Ohio, where her family is well known, though she never mentions that part of it unless asked to bring it up. She's afraid somebody might think she is trying to trade on her father's reputation. Tom: Good at light comedy and also has a flair for designing scenery. It astounds people to know that he once spent four months in the Rockies alone—hunting. It surprises them because he is only 22 and has been kicking around Broadway nearly three years. He's had four nice "bits" and recently he wisely refused an invitation to go to the coast, where he was born, because he knows he doesn't know enough about acting.

Rita: Another dancer, but not much individuality. She's from Grand Rapids, and sometimes she wishes she were an airplane stewardess. . . . Then there's Jane, yellow-haired with big wondering eyes. . . . Ted is so ugly that he is charming, and probably will get somewhere. . . . Sally ought to go in for sophisticated comedy, but she thinks she ought to be a dramatic actress. That's the way they stack up. . . . There are hundreds of them, and all with that great big "hope" welling in their chests. Well, who knows?

department for either an assistant to the chairman or for an executive director, but none was ever employed after George Ross Fox resigned to run for congress, since Chairman Jeffers and later Chairman Capus M. Waynick, decided they did not need either an assistant to the chairman or an executive director of prisons.

It has been known for several weeks that Chairman Dunlap and members of the commission have been trying to persuade Johnson to accept the job as executive director of the prison division. But until the last few days it is understood that Johnson has remained adamant and maintained that he could not give up his job as executive secretary of the Petroleum Industries committee, with headquarters here in Raleigh, with its salary of $5,000 a year and expenses, also that he did not want to resign as a member of the highway commission. But within the last 48 hours it is understood that Johnson has at last been persuaded to accept the post. In fact, it is understood that last night Chairman Dunlap and Commissioner T. Max Watson of Rutherford county, the other two members of the committee named by the commission to investigate the prison situation and make recommendations, conferred with Johnson and finally accepted him as director of the prison division. This was about the time that Jack B. Roach resigned as director of the prison division, after having succeeded Sam B. Scott in that capacity. But Chairman Waynick decided to try Oscar Pitts in the job, who had been a prison supervisor, and made him acting director, which job he has held ever since. But now indications are that Johnson will become executive director and Pitts will stay either as assistant executive director or as director of the division. It is also expected that Johnson will become an advisor to Chairman Dunlap on highway matters as well as have full authority over the prison division.

It is further being recalled here today that Johnson has already been much interested in the prison system and that more than two years ago he was an applicant for the position as assistant director of the prison division. This was about the time that Jack B. Roach resigned as director of the prison division, after having succeeded Sam B. Scott in that capacity. But Chairman Waynick decided to try Oscar Pitts in the job, who had been a prison supervisor, and made him acting director, which job he has held ever since. But now indications are that Johnson will become executive director and Pitts will stay either as assistant executive director or as director of the division. It is also expected that Johnson will become an advisor to Chairman Dunlap on highway matters as well as have full authority over the prison division.

some 70,755 square yards of the roadway were paved without the use of any of the cotton fabric. Baise pointed out, in addition to the cotton fabric used, some 215,000 gallons of bituminous surfacing and 5,700 tons of crushed stone was used in the construction of the road, while approximately 45,000 cubic yards of sand and clay were used in the base.

While this particular "cotton road" has not been constructed long enough to be of much value from an experimental standpoint, it is holding up well under the heavy traffic going over it every day, according to T. V. Fahnestock, bituminous engineer for the highway commission and under whose supervision all bituminous and "cotton roads" have been and are being constructed. None of these roads have been down for more than a year in North Carolina, with the result that it is still too early to compare the manner in which they are standing up under traffic with the bituminous surfaced roads built without the cotton binder. But in other states where the cotton fabric binder has been used, especially in South Carolina, the "cotton roads" have stood up better and lasted longer than those built without the cotton fabric, Fahnestock said. For not only does the cotton binder tend to hold the sand-clay base together better and prevent water from seeping into it, but it gives greater elasticity to the surface and tends to keep it from cracking and breaking.

"Our observations have been that the cotton fabric in a highway acts very much like the cord fabric in an automobile tire, in that it permits the surface to give and stretch without breaking," Fahnestock said.

The "Cotton Road" celebration in which Governor Clyde R. Hoey will participate and be the principal speaker at Clinton, will start with a motorcade from Goldsboro which will leave there at 9:30 Tuesday morning, following a program that will start at 8:30. The motorcade will arrive in Mount Olive at 10 o'clock and stay until 10:45, then proceed on to Faison, where it is scheduled to arrive at 10:55 and remain until 11:55 during which time a program of speaking and a watermelon feast will be enjoyed. The motorcade is scheduled to arrive in Clinton at 12:15, where Governor Hoey will speak and a barbecue dinner served afterwards.

HOW TO TELL HORSE'S AGE STIRS A FIERCE DEBATE
Boone, Ia.—(AP)—The problem of "how to tell a horse's age" has divided Boone county residents into two camps.
One argumentative farmer challenged the historic method of "looking at a horse's teeth." He said the wrinkles on a horse's neck were the proper gauge of its years.
A pony was brought out to test the theories, and when both schools of thought had finished they were only one year apart on its age.

Old Herbs Uncovered In Western Carolina

Raleigh, July 29.—Herbs found in old gardens in Jackson county are closely associated with Biblical, mythical and traditional history.

for their aromatic, medical and culinary qualities. Most of our herbs found their way into England from Southern Europe and were brought over to America by the early settlers.

"Some of the herbs have been grown throughout the centuries in the far-flung gardens of the world

Tea was introduced into Europe by Spanish traders in 1528.

CAMPAIGNS ON CONTROL MICE

Efforts Already Underway in Southeastern States

Raleigh, July 29.—Rat and field mouse control campaigns in five southeastern states were conducted on 124,206 premises and 11,799 acres of land during the past year.

These figures are taken from the annual report of George B. Lay, junior biologist of the U. S. Biological Survey, with headquarters at N. C. State college, who is in charge of rodent control work in the Carolinas, Virginia, Georgia and Florida.

HELPS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Do not dampen clothes too far in advance for summer ironing. They mildew much more readily in warm weather than in winter.

A novel bread to be served with soups, salads or tea may be made by fashioning dough into one-inch balls—rolling the balls into strips one-fourth of an inch thick and tying a knot in each strip.

To cover scratches on dark-colored furniture apply tincture of iodine on a swab of cotton that is tightly fastened to a lead pencil.

Small brushes—such as discarded tooth-brushes—are handy for polishing and cleaning shoes and for applying silver polish or cleaning powder to brass and other metal ornaments.

Use plenty of clothes pins in hanging the laundry on the line. Careful pinning will save much ironing and pressing.

Strain starch to remove lumps that might cause "blisters" when the clothes are ironed.

VonHumboldtStipend Awarded to Tar Heel

Durham, July 29.—Dr. Floyd M. Riddick, of the faculty of American university, formerly a resident of Durham and a graduate of Duke, will spend the next year traveling and studying in Germany.

Dr. Riddick has been awarded the distinguished Alexander von Humboldt travelling fellowship that will enable him to make a close study of municipal government in Germany.

The fellowship winner received his A. B. in 1931 and his Ph.D. in 1935 from Duke. He has also taught at Vanderbilt university.

Professor At Duke Writing On Milton

Durham, July 29.—Prof. Merritt Yerkes Hughes, of the University of Wisconsin, who is a member of the Duke summer school faculty, is writing his third book on the poet Milton.

In the current book Professor Hughes has made an extensive selection from Milton's prose. Important supplementary material that will be included will be a critical introduction and footnotes on the work covered.

N. Y. Stock Market
 New York, July 29—(AP)—Most steel stocks responded only half heartedly to favorable earnings statements in today's market and raising tendencies elsewhere were lukewarm.
 A selective upturn at the opening was followed by quiet selling which reduced initial gains of fractions to a point in many instances. Volume was much under yesterday and prices were uneven near the fourth hour.
 Another break in cotton futures on private estimates of greater crop acreage was a depressant for stocks. Grains and other commodities were mixed along with bonds.
 Transfers were about 650,000 shares.

New York Cotton

New York, July 29—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, two to five lower with hedge selling and on a private crop estimate of 15,610,000 bales.
 December eased from 11 to 10.87 and shortly after the first half hour prices were at the lowest thus far representing net losses of nine to 14 points.
 After easing to within one to six points of Monday's extreme lows for net losses of 19 to 21 points, slight rallies followed. December sold up from 10.80 to 10.85, which left the market at net losses of 12 to 17 points at midday.
 Futures closed steady 23 to 27 lower. Spot quiet, middling 11.21.

GAINS BY USE OF PHOSPHATE

Experiment Like Waving Magic Wand Over Poor Land

Raleigh, July 29.—Applying triple superphosphate on some poor land of Polk Bryan in Madison county was like waving a magic wand over it, according to George W. Miller, farm agent of the State College extension service.
 In 1936, Bryan replowed and seeded to cowpeas an unproductive field that had been plowed and left idle in 1935. In addition, he applied 100 pounds of triple superphosphate per acre.
 The peas were turned under in the fall of 1936 and the land seeded to wheat. Another 100 pounds of phosphate was applied to each acre. In the spring of this year, the field was seeded to lespezea.
 Where the phosphate was used, the yield amounted to 25 13-6 bushels per acre partially dry weight. Where it was not applied the yield was 15 bushels per acre, partially dry weight. The samples were cut and weighed the same day. Miller said.
 Bryan also secured good results with phosphate on his oat land. This field was in pasture from 1930 through 1935. Planted to corn in 1936, the land received 200 pounds per acre of 16 per cent superphosphate and 16 pounds per acre of 50 per cent muriate of potash.
 Where Bryan used phosphate alone, his yield was 3,328 pounds of straw and grain per acre, while the unfertilized plot yielded only 1,663 pounds.
 Miller explained that where 400 pounds of phosphate and chicken manure were used together, the total yield per acre was 3,731 pounds. This indicates that the extra 200 pounds of phosphate was almost unnecessary, since the 200 pounds per acre used alone produced yields almost as high as did the 400 pounds and manure mixture, Miller explained.

Trailers Hit Sweden

Stockholm—(AP)—The modernized automobile trailer has made its triumphant entry into Sweden. Many foreign makes are for sale and a Swedish manufacturer who recently pointed the field, is doing a rushing business. The trailers sell for approximately $875.

Build Church of Tar Cups

Adel, Ga.—(AP)—Negroes desirous of a place of worship built their own church out of tar cups by flattening them out like shingles.

Grenadier Hats Popular

Paris—(AP)—Grenadier hats, inspired by the recent Directorate ball, are making a big ripple on the fashion sea here, they are chic bi-comes with backs of black plush and fronts of black felt crossed with colored ribbons which end in rosettes.

Announcing . . .

THE ORANGE CRUSH BOTTLING CO.

at Greenville

as official wholesale distributors for

Miller HIGH LIFE

America's finest slow-mellowed beer — for flavor — for quality

RUMORS to the effect that Miller High Life, the best Milwaukee beer, would no longer be available in this territory, are absolutely without foundation.

On the contrary, in order to facilitate service, both to the retailer and the public, new official wholesale distributors have been appointed to replace the temporary arrangement by which retailers have been serviced in months past.

Consumers who have not yet tried Miller High Life, the champagne of bottled beer, will discover a new delightful pleasure when they taste this slowly matured brew. Sweet only with the sweetness of pure grain . . . no sugar is added . . . never too bitter, Miller High Life is the perfect blend of only the finest ingredients natural to true beer.

Look for the smart, new streamlined bottle, with "gold" foil around the neck.

Retailers are cordially invited to communicate with The Orange Crush Bottling Company. (P. S. All Miller High Life Beer is bottled at the Miller Brewing Company, Milwaukee, of course.)
