Child Labor Bill Passed In Senate Without Dissent

Measure Incorporates Same Words As the Wage-Hour Act

CHEAP HOUSING GETS ATTENTION

Conference Committee Attempts to Reconcile House - Senate Differences

Washington, Aug. 19.—The Senate passed the Wheeler-Johnson child labor bill by unanimous consent today and sent it to the House.

The measure would prohibit interstate commerce in goods made by children under 16 years of age and in the case of hazardous industries.

The same language was incorporated in the wage-and-hour bill, which passed the Senate, but the Senate passed the separate measure today when Chairman Wheeler (D-Mont.) suggested action might result in approval of that part of the wage-hour measure at this session of Congress.

The wage-hour bill has been shelved for the session.

Meantime a committee of senators and representatives took over the job of eliminating House and Senate differences over the administration's low-cost housing bill.

Within half an hour after it met, the swiftly moving Senate rejected changes made in the measure as approved by the House yesterday and Vice-President Garnet appointed members of a conference committee. Even before that the Senate had disposed of the bill to tighten income tax laws.

The tax measure, which treasury experts say will add more than $100,000,000 a year to federal revenues, went through without a record vote.

Except to work out differences on the housing bill, the tax bill, in which minor changes were made by the Senate to discover if it was possible to unsmother the tie-up over the sugar bill, final action on the third deficiency appropriation was all that remained between Congress and Saturday night adjournment.

Passed over to next session were such matters as a general farm bill, wage-and-hour control and government reorganization.

The $98,000,000 deficiency appropriation bill is slated to reach the Senate floor Friday or Saturday.

Junior Biologist Avers Bob White Adapted To State

Quail, King of Game Birds and Friend of Farmer, Will Thrive if Given Half a Chance

Raleigh, Aug. 19.—The Bob White quail—king of game birds, a delicacy for royalty, and a friend of the farmer—will thrive in North Carolina when given half a chance.

With this statement, George B. Lay, junior biologist of the U. S. Biological Survey, with headquarters at State college, said that the quail is not only the best bird that can be raised here but it is also the bird best adapted to North Carolina conditions.

Given feed and cover and enough protection from hunters so that it can propagate, he added, the Bob White quail could in a few years become plentiful enough to make the state a hunters' paradise.

Moreover, he said, quail consume large quantities of insects that would otherwise attack farm crops.

At least five quail should be left in each covey at the end of the hunting season, Lay continued. Five birds can produce a new covey for the next season.

Farmers can increase the number of quail on their land by permitting wild plants to grow in fence corners, along ditch banks, and in other suitable places to provide feed and cover, Lay pointed out.

These plants will also conserve moisture and check soil erosion, he went on, and they add to the appearance of the landscape.

A string of youth hostels on the European model, intended to encourage hiking by providing cheap accommodations has been established in northern California.

N. C. ROAD BIDS GET APPROVAL

Commission Declines OK Beaufort Work, However

Raleigh, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The State Highway and Public Works Commission approved today low bids on 26 highway projects totalling nearly $100 million, but rejected all proposals for grading and structures on 554 miles of Route 99 in Beaufort county.

The commission decided also to hold in abeyance bids on concrete surfacing of 31 of a mile of U. S. highway 52 in Wadesboro, leaving a final decision up to Frank Durlop chairman, and Chief Highway Engineer Vance Base.

Dunlap said the Beaufort county work would be done by the commission forces, and not by contract.

A. F. Powell, Jr., of Whiteville, was sworn in as commissioner to succeed Robert Johnson of Buraw, who resigned from the commission today to become penal division director Sept. 1. Chief Justice Walter S.acey administered the oath of office and Powell attended his first meeting.

High bidder on the Beaufort project was C. A. Ragland of Louisburg at $26,512.50, and Blythe Brothers of Charlotte, made the lowest proposal for the Wadesboro work, $11,278.25.

Raleigh, Aug. 19.—Patrick Healy, Jr., executive secretary of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, is today in Winston-Salem completing preparations for the league's 27th annual convention which will be held in the Twin Cities, September 27-28.

Before leaving Raleigh Mr. Healy said he would confer with Mayor W. T. Wilson and Commissioner of Finance Ralph L. Dixon on details of the sessions. Mr. Dixon is directed in charge of arrangements in Winston-Salem.

Among matters which will be considered at the convention are delinquent taxes, highway financing, bonded debt, personnel training and centralized purchasing, Mr. Healy said.

Membership of the league includes most of the municipalities of the state.

The two have been held in the Wayne county jail here without privilege of bond since they were arrested April 17, the night Williams' body was found.

Increased Tobacco Crop Predicted For All Belts

Raleigh, Aug. 19.—Lowest conditions reported in the state occur in the prospective tobacco crop of the Old Bright Belt, yet even there the outlook is for larger production than last year, a study of the United States Bureau of Economics crop report for August reveals.

The report prepared by Frank Parker, U. S. D. A. statistician with the State Department of Agriculture, forecasts a crop of 182,700,000 pounds in the Old Bright Belt (2.8 per cent more than was harvested last year); 288,640,000 pounds for the New Bright Belt (up 13 per cent from 1936); and 68,400,000 pounds in the South Carolina Belt (an increase of 33 per cent over 1936).

The probable yield per acre, indicated by conditions of August 1 by belts is as follows: Old Bright

Spanish Insurgents Claim Heavy Gains In Offensive

PAIR ESCAPES BAD INJURIES

Farmville Couple In Car Which Burns After Wreck

Two Farmville residents had a close call late yesterday afternoon when the expensive car in which they were riding turned over and caught fire about five miles from Greenville on the Washington highway.

W. J. Turnage, son of Mrs. W. J. Turnage, escaped without serious injury, but Mrs. Louise Turnage, widow of the late Clarence Turnage, suffered cuts and bruises and is in Pitt General hospital here.

Deputy Sheriff C. P. Pierce, who investigated the wreck, declared that the car evidently was speeding and turned over after running along the shoulder of the highway about 75 yards.

Just after several persons, who had gathered at the wreck had opened a door of the car, which was lying on its side, and dragged the couple out, the vehicle burst into flames and was completely destroyed by fire.

It was understood Mrs. Turnage and Mrs. Turnage had been to Bay View Stores and other business houses were closed in Farmville for the Wednesday afternoon holiday and it was understood the pair had been to the resort on a pleasure trip.

Mr. Turnage was not admitted to the hospital and Mrs. Turnage's injuries were not serious, no bones having been broken or internal injuries suffered.

Futrell's Parole System Approved

Forms with which to keep records of paroled prisoners, devised by K. T. Futrell, Pitt county welfare officer, hereafter will be used throughout the state.

The welfare officer has received a letter from Edwin Gill, state parole commissioner, thanking him for drafting the forms and advising that the system was being inaugurated throughout the state.

The new method provides county welfare officers, to whom paroled prisoners have to report each month with a file which will show them immediately if an ex-convict is complying with the regulation.

Grant Approved For Beaufort Co., Schools

Washington, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Rep. Lindsay Warren of Washington, N. C., said today President Roosevelt had approved the Public Works act of Beaufort county for a grant of $56,250 for school buildings at Belhaven, Chocowinity and Pintelown.

Mr. Warren said presidential approval also had been given a school construction grant of $31,500 to Chowan county.

Belt 700 pounds; New Bright Belt, 880 pounds; South Carolina Belt, 950 pounds, and Burley 900 pounds.

The state average is estimated at 817.5 pounds. This estimate has been exceeded but twice in the history of the crop in North Carolina—in 1934 and again the following year.

The August 1 condition reported by growers was 75 per cent of normal. Brunswick, in the South Carolina Belt; Jones Carter, Chowan and Perquimans, in the New Bright Belt, and Transylvania in the Burley Belt, reported 90 per cent of normal, these being the highest counties in the state.

Severe attacks by insects and lighter rainfall in July are attributed to be the causes of the Old Bright Belt's smaller prospective yield.

High Command Says Biscayan Defenses Have "Melted"

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Spanish insurgent high command asserted today Santander's outlying defenses to the southwest of the Biscayan seaport had "melted away" while the insurgent attackers ploughed to within 20 miles of their goal.

The five day push for Santander the government's last city stronghold on the Bay of Biscay, was estimated to have brought capture of 16,000 of the stubborn defenders.

The government positions have been gobbled up by the relentless thrusts of General Francisco Franco's infantry, artillery, tanks and planes.

The insurgent column on the Valencia road to Santander also has taken 4,700 prisoners. Many of the captured warriors were placed in concentration camps south of Remosa.

The advance, the headquarters reports asserted, was more like a maneuver than a stiffly resisted offensive. "There is not more enemy to oppose our advance," it was said.

"The operations Wednesday could be called a practical march."

ISLAND AFFAIR HUGE SUCCESS

Washington, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Representative Lindsay Warren of Washington, N. C., upon his return today from the Virginia Dare celebration at Roanoke Island, N. C., where President Roosevelt spoke yesterday, said he was "replete over the success" of the event.

"The entire program went off without a hitch," Warren said. "The President and his party were enthusiastic over the whole affair."

Representative Warren, who extended the invitation to President Roosevelt to attend the celebration, was chairman of the committee in charge of yesterday's program.

SECURITY AID CHECKS ARRIVE

Second Batch Brings Payments Totaling $265

The second batch of old age assistance checks was received here this morning for distribution in Pitt county by the local welfare office.

The 25 checks totalled $265, but several of them were for more than one person. K. T. Futrell said 32 persons would benefit from the 25 checks, making an average of $8.21 per person. The largest single check was for $24 and the smallest for $6. All of the checks were for old age benefit checks although the first batch included 14 for aid to the blind.

The first batch, received some time ago, contained 47 checks for old age benefit and 14 for blind aid.

In addition other applications have been approved which will make a total of 126 checks expected to be sent here each month. Fourteen applications for aid for dependent children have been approved and 26 more for old age assistance. No checks have been received so far for aid to dependent children, but Mr. Futrell said he was expecting a batch within a week or so.

Possible Angle In Cincinnati Cases Uncovered in N. C.

Letter Received From Greensboro Woman Says She Was Drugged By Mrs. Anna Hahn

Cincinnati, Aug. 19.—(AP)—A possible North Carolina angle developed today in police investigation of 11 deaths here, two of whom Mrs. Anna Hahn, 31, is charged with committing.

Detective Lieut. George Scattle of the homicide squad, said he had received a letter bearing the signature of Sina Cable of rural route five, Greensboro, N. C., saying: "I'm almost sure the person she met in a bus station here, July 15, 1936, did who bought drinks."

"I don't remember of noticing what she put into the drinks," the officer quoted the letter as saying, "although I'm sure there was something."

The North Carolinian, the officer said, asserted she arrived at Los Angeles, Calif., July 18 in a dazed condition and was treated at a hospital for poisoning.

CHARGES MADE BY PORTUGAL

Diplomatic Relations With Czecho-Slovakia Severed

Lisbon, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The authoritarian government announced formally today it had severed diplomatic relations with the Republic of Czechoslovakia over an unfilled order of machine guns.

Simultaneously Portugal accused Czechoslovakia of yielding to the "influences and pressures" of an unidentified "third party" in blocking fulfillment of the arms order.

One newspaper promptly declared in interpretation of the move that Czechoslovakia had received "instructions from an Eastern power not to supply arms to a country which was a sure guarantee against a Communist Iberian peninsula."

In the same comment the newspaper declared "Czechoslovakia is the Russian stronghold in central Europe and perhaps the Soviet's largest air base."

Praha, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Czechoslovakian government today voiced astonishment over the Portuguese decision to break diplomatic relations because of a munitions dispute.

The foreign office issued a communique asserting "no political or diplomatic conflicts have existed or now exist between Czechoslovakia and Portugal."

"It is therefore unprecedented in the history of international relations that failure of business negotiations should have led to the formal and unilateral breaking of diplomatic relations."

N. C. Auto Dealers Will Hear Cherry

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Aug. 19.—Gregg Cherry, chairman of the state Democratic Executive Committee, will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the North Carolina Automobile Dealers Association, August 23. It was announced today by Mrs. Bessie Phoenix, executive secretary of the group.

In addition to being state chairman of his party, Mr. Cherry, the "Iron Major" is speaker of the North Carolina House.

Guests at the banquet will include both United States Senators from North Carolina, Josiah W. Bailey and Robert R. Reynolds, Mrs. Phoenix said. A number of state officials and members of the 1937 General Assembly will likewise attend, she added.

At the opening session on August 23, the principal address will be made by Commissioner Revenue A. J. Maxwell who will speak on the "Relation Between the State and the Taxpayer."

Birds Blamed for Wrong Numbers

Eglin, Ill.—(AP)—The telephone girls have a new alibi for giving wrong numbers—it's the birds.

They said blackbirds and sparrows set up such a din in a tree outside the exchange that they (the girls, of course), could not hear the numbers correctly.

Ordinary shoeing methods failed, so city firemen installed an auto horn in the tree and sounded it at intervals day and night until the birds got tired of it and moved away.

Promotion Of Fulk Seen As Slap To Capt. Farmer

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Aug. 19.—Perhaps it was not intended to be so, but the appointment of Arthur Fulk, director of the Highway Safety Division, as major commanding the Highway Patrol, aroused to a direct slap at Captain Charles Farmer, former commanding officer who must now change his gold bars for two silver ones.

Commenting on the new appointments, Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell said that Captain Farmer was not being demoted in rank or salary, but to the man who has commanded the Highway Patrol ever since its organization in 1929 it certainly could not seem other than a practical, if not actual demotion.

The 1937 General Assembly provided that the patrol should consist of "one person to be designated as Major and such other additional subordinate officers" as the Commissioner of Revenue should choose. After the law became effective Captain Farmer, acting under a legal opinion, assumed the rank of major and donned the gold shoulder leaves emblematic of that grade.

Appointment of Lieutenant L. R. Fisher to the grade of Captain and to command the western department, with official approval, the famous liquor raids that officer conducted in Mecklenburg county early this year—raids which resulted in much discussion over whether or not they were authorized and directed by Captain Farmer and which likewise resulted in a lot of trouble for Mecklenburg's rural police chief, Vic Pesperman.

DEATH CLAIMS 'SHEP' MORTON

Local Tobacconist Succumbs to Illness in Georgia

J. Sheppard Morton, 39, native of Martin county, but who has made his home in Greenville since early boyhood, succumbed today of an illness he developed while on the Metter, Ga., tobacco market.

The body will arrive in Wilson tomorrow morning at 5:30 and will be brought here for funeral services. Plans for the last rites have not been completed, but it was understood they would be held some time tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. Morton died of peritonitis at 3 o'clock this morning after having been critically ill for several days.

He was the son of the late W. Z. and Mrs. Connie Hardison Morton of Robersonville. He moved here when he was a boy and made his home with his brother, W. Z. Morton.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Hester Phelps, one daughter, Ann Morton; three sisters, Mrs. J. W. Phelps of Williamston, Mrs. G. M. Roberts of Norfolk, Va., and Mrs. T. O'H. Dupree of Miami, Fla., and two brothers, W. Z. and Hubert Morton, both of this city.

Mr. Morton was the youngest of the six children.

Mrs. Morton, her sister, Miss Mary Phelps, W. Z. Morton and Hubert Morton were in Metter when he died and will accompany the body home.

Grasshoppers Feast on Auto Seals

Wallace, Neb.—(AP)—Dee Raney bought a new automobile, gave it a good tryout, then locked it up tightly while he retired at home for a night's rest.

When he unlocked the car the next morning, the upholstery showed signs of wear and tear, with many a hole.

Raney found he had locked up a number of hungry grasshoppers which had promptly decided on a good meal.

These new employees will work 20 shifts, one from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m., and the other from 3 p. m. to 11 p. m. Estimates are that they will take six weeks to get the work of workers in the state post office for the first quarter of this year and another six weeks to get the second quarter reports posted.

Employers make these reports to quarters. Records are transferred to ledger sheets, the additions being made to bring the worker's record up to date each three months.

When a worker becomes unemployed, and is eligible after the first of next year, he will receive compensation based on his earnings shown by these records. Only a few minutes will be needed to establish his work and wage status at any given time, Mr. Powell pointed out.

STUDENTS GET SELF-AID JOBS

410 at University Selected from 1,490 Applicants

Chapel Hill, Aug. 19.—Rated on the basis of scholarship, actual need, character, and general fitness a total of 410 students have been awarded self-help jobs at the University of North Carolina for the fall quarter which opens in September.

The Self-Help committee of the university, of which Harry P. Comer is chairman and Edwin Lanier secretary, completed the list of assignments today after the committee had carefully considered each application. All applicants will be notified this week as to their status. Of the 410 jobs assigned, 210 will be for NYA work made available by the government and 200 will be self-help jobs within the various university departments.

There was a total of 1,490 applications for the 410 jobs available. Which means that more than two-thirds of the applicants, most of whom were worthy and deserving, may be denied an opportunity, at least for the time being, of earning part of their expenses for an education in the university.

Of course there are a few other jobs in town, such as those in cafes, boarding houses, stores, and homes, that are not under the control of the University Self-Help committee, but these jobs usually go to old students by virtue of previous contacts with employers.

The committee also selected a generous list of alternates who will be assigned to jobs vacated by failure of successful applicants to enter the university.

All old students who were on the NYA last year, and whose grades were around "C" or better and whose need remains acute, were re-assigned.

Under a ruling from Washington the NYA jobs this year will be one-third less than last, although the pay, an average of $15 monthly, remains the same. The ruling requiring satisfactory academic grades is steadily being more rigidly enforced so that it is practically impossible for students with less than a "C" average to keep a self-help job.

The Self-Help bureau, which is located at the YMCA, will continue its service of information to students throughout the year and will follow carefully the record of students on assigned jobs, the announcement of Chairman Comer and Secretary Lanier said.

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine
By Iago Goldston, M.D.

The Mentally Ill: I

Few of us may be willing to subscribe to the conviction that man is primarily an economic animal. But none can deny that economic conditions deeply affect both individual and communal life. So health problems may be reviewed either from the purely humanitarian viewpoint or the viewpoint of their economic implications.

The problem of mental hygiene viewed in terms of its costs in dollars and cents presents a staggering picture. For example, New York state during the last 12 years has invested $130,000,000 in new institutions for the care and treatment of the mentally sick. It costs $4,000 a patient-bed to build a hospital. In other words, a hospital of 1,000 beds costs approximately $4,000,000.

There are more persons confined in mental hospitals than there are in all other types of hospitals combined. It is estimated that the maintenance of mentally sick persons in state institutions costs (in tax money) some $30,000,000 annually. The economic losses suffered in the waste of the earning powers of the persons disabled by mental illness is estimated at $700,000,000 a year. When we add the costs of that portion of delinquency and crime which is chargeable to bad mental hygiene, the figure rises to some $13,000,000,000.

This money is really a tax imposed in various ways upon that part of the community which must be its "brothers' keeper."

Unfortunately, there is as yet but little organized attack on the mental hygiene problem. We may expect little progress in this direction until there is a wider and deeper public appreciation of the magnitude, significance and importance of the mental hygiene problem.

This problem confronts every man individually. It can only be solved effectively when every man contributes his share. The fulfillment of his individual obligations he cannot delegate to another. In other words, he cannot expect the school teacher, the physician or the law officer to do his job for him, though they can and will cooperate with him.

Editorial Hails "The Road Back"

"The Road Back," which will be shown at the Pitt theatre here Friday and Saturday, is being acclaimed as one of the best pictures of the season.

The following editorial about the picture was taken from the Greensboro Daily News:

"The Road Back"

When Erich Maria Remarque returned home from the great war—he was a German soldier of the ranks—he wrote "All Quiet on the Western Front," a true and graphic picture of war by one who had experienced it, a book that was read 'round the world, and one which seemed the strongest possible sort of argument against war. It revealed war's diabolical horror and utter futility. It was packed with human interest, stark tragedy, but relieved occasionally by bits of comedy.

Then Remarque wrote "The Road Back." It is a mighty sequel to "All Quiet . . ." telling of the problems of "heroes" after the war, and of what becomes of them! The screen version of "The Road Back" is now showing at the Carolina theatre, and it is by all odds one of the most gripping and moving offerings seen in Greensboro within recent years.

This story—this picture—like its predecessor is, apparently, the strongest and the most convincing argument against war. But, alas! as brought out in the closing scenes of "The Road Back," all the world paradoxically, is feverishly preparing, arming, drilling, getting ready for war!

Did the world war teach nothing? Ah, how quickly we forget! What of war-blasted hopes, broken hearts, crippled soldiers, widows and orphans—and what of those almost innumerable legions, the dead, who sleep today somewhere on the far-flung battlefields of Europe, those who gladly gave their all—and for what? And what of those—thousands who served in war and who, like some of the characters in Remarque's arresting tale, have not and perhaps never will find the road back? Can it be that the world today is taking the road back—the road that leads back to another great war?

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

By Robbb Coom

Hollywood—Wendy Barrie was between pictures the day I called, and she hadn't much to do.

There were three gentlemen from radio going over some songs with her for an impending airing, and the newspaper boy wanted to collect, and I came early because all the clocks in town were fast.

Her agent called and said she was set to go on the air in Shakespeare after her bout with Bill Fields and Charlie McCarthy and she'd better brush up on "As You Like It." The telephone rang a couple more times and she promised to call back, and then her hairdresser came in—this was while we were lunching—and waited to give the Barrie bob its daily brushing of one hour.

"I hate to go out," said slim Wendy Barrie, who had to go out twice that evening, calling off her own dinner party for the occasion.

Her first date was to be with Douglas Montgomery. They were going to do some night-clubbing publicity pictures. Then Wayne Morris would call and they'd go to a film welfare benefit, actually go this time.

"But I don't want to go out," wailed bronze-haired, green-eyed Wendy. "I want to stay home and crawl in bed and read a book. I hate going out. Everything I do I do so intensely I'm worn out by 10 o'clock I don't want to be seen places. I get frightened and want to crawl under tables because I feel I look so terrible. . . ."

In the morning she would call up the radio man to make an appointment for a rehearsal with Don Ameche, that depending on what time Ameche would be free from his movie work. She would have voice and dancing lessons, and then she would try once more to get out of her next picture assignment because she liked nothing about it, and she thought she deserved better after the notices she got on "Dead End."

She thinks she probably owes her performance in that film to William Wyler, although during the making she burned and boiled at the director. He would tell her how bad an actress she was, and she'd feel like crying, but take it out in acting—which was, she admits, probably what Wyler intended her to do.

Wendy Barrie lives alone and wishes her mother and sister could be with her. She misses having a family. But her sister, ill in the east, needs mother more, she says. Wendy has a devoted Negro couple who take care of her, try to make her eat fattening foods, and go to all her previews to fill review cards with "raves" for Wendy Barrie.

Chapter Four In Fanning's Suite

"WHAT are you doing tonight?" Fanning asked.

"Eating alone, worse luck," said Neil.

"Look, I'm having a little party, and I need another man. I'd be darn glad to have you join us. I like the cut of your jib, Patton. We must see more of each other."

Neil grinned inwardly at the thought of Janet's face when Fanning brought him to the party. It would be a pretty little revenge. "Certainly is nice of you to ask me," he said. "I haven't my evening clothes with me."

"It doesn't matter, my boy! The girls will dress up, bless their hearts! But we don't have to. You're a good-looking young guy, Patton, damned if you're not, and you'll be a credit to my party just as you are."

"Well, thanks a lot," said Neil. "Let's go up to my suite and

"That you, Pres?" Neil subdued his voice to a husky whisper. "Right."

"What's the matter?" asked the voice sharply.

"Nothing. There are others in the room here."

"Oh! I just wanted to tell you that everything is all right. The old girl hasn't squawked."

"Who did you say?"

"I say the old girl hasn't squawked."

"Good!"

"Shall I see you tomorrow as agreed?"

"Right. Where are you now?"

"Again he drew a blank. "Read's drugstore. So long."

"So long."

Neil hung up. Eyster might be mad, but even the few words he had heard were enough to confirm the fact that Fanning was a crook! As yet however, he had secured no concrete evidence to lay before Janet. He looked around the room sharply. There was no time to make a search.

'One Last Spot'

FANNING returned with his made-to-order laugh saying: "These darn realtors call on you at all hours. It's almost impossible to get rid of them."

"That's right," agreed Neil. He was thinking: That was no realtor, old man!

Fanning fetched a sealed bottle of Scotch from a cabinet. "We must have one last shot before we go," he said.

"Just a short one for me."

"This is something special," said Neil.

wash. We can start out from here."

"Okay."

They paid for their drinks and went up in an elevator. Fanning talking and laughing. At the same time there was a glitter in his black eyes that spelled danger. Neil's job had accustomed him to that. He was armed.

Fanning's suite was one of the most expensive in the hotel. High above the street it looked over the harbor to Federal hill. Neil noted that though Fanning presumably had occupied it for several weeks, there were no photographs or knick-knacks, no personal belongings of any kind on display; nothing to give a line on the man's past.

They made themselves ready for the party, Fanning keeping up a running fire of humorous stories. As they were slipping into their coats again, there was a knock at the door of the parlor. Fanning went to answer it, but held the door in such a manner that Neil could not see who was outside. A whispered conversation took place.

Mysterious Phone Call

PRESENTLY Fanning opened the door further, but still Neil could not see who was on the other side of it. As the crack between door and frame widened, he had a sense that somebody was giving him the once over.

The conversation continued. Though the voices were low, Neil suspected that they were disputing. Finally he heard Fanning say: "Well, you'll have to lump it then!"

"Aah! I never thought to get this from you," rumbled the other voice sorely. "Shh!" said Fanning.

He went out, pulling the door almost to behind him, and Neil heard the two of them walking away. Tiptoeing to the door, he put an eye to the crack and saw the two figures moving in close converse towards the elevators. They were gesticulating angrily. Fanning's visitor was a rough-looking man of enormous physical strength. His shoulders were so heavy they were bowed forward, and his big hands hung almost to his knees.

Neil retired from the door, leaving it exactly as he had found it. The telephone rang, and he picked it up. A man's voice said cautiously over the wire:

Fanning. "A friend of mine brought it from abroad. Such whiskey as this is not ordinarily shipped to our country."

Neil was on his guard, but there seemed to be no danger in drinking from an unopened bottle, since Fanning was preparing to drink from the same bottle. Fanning where he could be heard washing them. He brought them back still wet, and opened the bottle.

"When I get my own little place I'll have a cellar, Patton, stocked with the choicest wines and liquors that the world produces. I'm not a heavy drinker, but I must have the best!" He poured two drinks. "Here's how," he said.

"Same to you," said Neil. He waited until he saw the liquor actually running down Fanning's throat, and then tossed off his own. Certainly it was superfine whiskey.

"Let's go," said Fanning. His last act before leaving was to take a packet of 100 new $5 bills from a drawer of the bureau and drop it in his wallet. "Just an evening's pleasure" he said.

"Well, you're no piker," said Neil.

They descended in the elevator and hailed a taxi at the door of the hotel. "To the Belvedere," Fanning said to the driver. "That's where we pick up the girls," he added to Neil.

From Hanover street they turned into Fayette and then into Charles. The pavements of Baltimore's best street were almost empty now. Fanning began to tell another funny story, but his voice seemed far away.

Neil felt great. He had never found the streets at evening so beautiful. A delicious languor was stealing through his limbs. He seemed to be reclining on a fleecy cloud that was being wafted away into space.

By a certain tone in Fanning's voice he realized that he had come to the point of his story, and he laughed politely. Fanning began another.

Meanwhile Neil was being wafted farther and farther away from all earthly cares. He passed into unconsciousness.

IOWANS TO LEARN 'FIGHT' FROM PSYCHOLOGICAL SIGNS

Iowa City — (AP) — Coach Irl Tubbs plans to pep up his University of Iowa football team with psychology.

The team's dressing rooms are to be adorned with signs or slogans reminding the boys what it takes to make the scores. Tubbs and his assistant, Bill Prey, say the signs will form a psychological reaction to keep up the old fighting spirit. The signs will be changed weekly, to read:

"It takes nerve to get in perfect physical condition—but it takes guts to stay there," or—

"Metzger (Bert Metzger, diminutive Notre Dame guard) weighed 150 pounds—weight doesn't count, it's the heart."

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL.

Raleigh, Aug. 19.—The paradox of the self-styled "Friends" of the railroads opposing a requested rate increase was presented before the Utilities Commission yesterday.

Carriers of the state sought a 5 to 20 cent per bale increase in intrastate rates on cotton. They claim this would only put rates within the state on the same basis as the rates without.

In opposition to these increases appeared representatives of the Cotton Association of Cotton Manufacturers. These opponents declared their friendship for the railroads but at the same time contended that if the rates were hiked the railroads would lose the entire business instead of increasing revenues as the carriers hoped. It was pointed out that the Cone Mills of Greensboro, alone used 240,000 bales last year, of which 220,000 moved by motor carrier and only 20,000 by rail. Increases, they said, would drive the small share of the business the railroads are now getting, directly into the arms of the motor carriers.

Back from Washington where he participated in conferences with the I. C. C. regarding efforts of the southern states to have rail differentials against the south removed, Utilities Commissioner Stanley Winborne said he listened to speeches by Senators Copeland Burke and White, all of whom opposed the confirmation of Senator Black to a post on the Supreme Court.

"They were the worst speakers I think I have ever heard," he said. "They hemmed and hawed and couldn't make themselves heard at any time. Even though he read his speech, Senator Copeland couldn't go ahead without stumbling over his own words."

Death of Mrs. John E. (Mother) Ray of Raleigh, has robbed World War veterans, particularly the disabled, of one of their best friends.

During her last illness Mrs. Ray never lost her interest in "her boys." So ill she had to be propped up in bed she demanded pencil and paper, envelopes and stamps and continued to write scores of letters to T. B. victims at Oteen Veterans Hospital. Thousands of veterans will sincerely mourn her passing.

Governor Clyde R. Hoey intends to take his first real vacation of the summer next week. He plans to go home to Shelby and to a few other places thereabout.

"I hope he will not keep on making speeches every day, and that he will take a rest," said his secretary, "Bob" Thompson. "But he probably will."

North Carolina received some more publicity, though there's more than a doubt that it was favorable, when the famed Wilmington poisoning case against E. L. Smoak, now awaiting execution for the murder of his daughter, was aired over a radio hookup Tuesday night.

Buying power of farm products on July 15 was 94 per cent of the pre-war level, compared with 93 per cent a year earlier, according to the North Carolina Farm Forecaster, publication issued monthly by the State Department of Agriculture.

"Some people grow with a prominence, others just puff up," said Arthur Fulk, just named commander of the North Carolina Highway Patrol. "I hope I am not one of the latter class."

Washington—Many a New Dealer has boasted that a major accomplishment of the Roosevelt regime has been the moving "of the real capital of the United States" from New York back to Washington.

Roosevelt partisans have declared that before "the New Deal" returned the plain people to authority, New York's financial barons exercised a more or less invisible control of national governmental

LINER REMOVES REFUGEES

The liner, President Taft, was utilized Monday, August 16, to remove hundreds of American women and children from the Shanghai war zone. politics which they described as amounting to a "dictatorship for a privileged few."

With the Roosevelt "revolution," the less opulent south and west were said to have leaped into the political saddle—riding a strangely-hybrid Democratic donkey with unwonted disdain of the once proud and politically powerful financial east.

In the 1936 race for the presidency, with its sharply divergent polls and prognostications of voter preference, the political sharps as usual—excepting Mr. Farley, of course—red-penciled New York state with its large electoral vote as a very possible determinant of who would be the winner.

But when the Roosevelt juggernaut rumbled to a new record in opposition-crushing, even the Empire state's prestige as a political factor was eclipsed by a sweep that fastened the Democratic label on every state except Maine and Vermont.

Now New York has moved back into the very center of oppositional picture, with the prognosticators predicting that the future of the New Deal may depend in large measure upon the outcome of the mayoralty fight in New York City. They figure that if anti-Roosevelt Alford E. Smith and Tammany Leader Christopher Sullivan win the mayoralty nomination for Senator Royal Copeland over Justice Jeremiah Mahoney, backed by New Deal Democrats, they might gain control of the entire party organization in New York City.

Even if Mayor LaGuardia, sympathetic to the New Deal, defeated Copeland in the final, Smith and Sullivan might be able to retain control of the party organization in the city and take an anti-Roosevelt delegation to the 1940 Democratic convention.

Combined with conservative Democrats from the south, the Tammany delegation might make the going tough for any New Deal candidate for the presidential nomination.

Such appraisal of the possible power of anti-Roosevelt forces at the next convention is predicated upon a sizeable contingent from the south being hostile to Mr. Roosevelt or any candidate he favored for the nomination. Veteran politicians, however, believe it is a bit premature to begin counting on formidable southern opposition to the President, particularly at a time when he may be preparing to give the go ahead signal on millions of dollars in loans to Dixie's cotton farmers.

Some old-line Democrats, who have no particular liking for the Copeland-Smith objectives, are fearful nevertheless that a second victory for Fiorello "Little Flower" LaGuardia might turn out to be a sprig of poison ivy for the Democratic party from a national standpoint.

The building up of a strong LaGuardia organization, combined with a continued split in the Democratic forces of New York City, might deprive the Democratic party of a long-time bulwark of strength in presidential contests.

Between elections the tiger frequently has been looked upon as an unsuitable running mate for the donkey; but when that quadrennial crucial day in November rolled around, the tiger could almost invariably be counted upon for an effective vote-getting performance.

New Bern, Aug. 19.—Greenville's Greenies got a taste of their own medicine yesterday when the New Bern Bears defeated them 3-0. The Greenies blanked the Bears the day before 8-0. The victory strengthened Doc Smith's Coastal Plainers in their fourth place position in the local loop standings.

New Bern's Stuart Flythe and Greenville's Freddie Caliguri tied up in a hurler's duel. Flythe fanned 10, walked four and yielded 8 hits. Caliguri yielded six hits, fanned three, walked four, made a wild pitch and a balk. That quick summary, plus the score, indicates that Flythe was head man in everything but hits allowed.

Three stolen bases helped the Bears to its first run in the opening inning. With one away Douglass walked and stole second. Mullinax walked, and then he and Douglass put on a double steal. Knowles grounded to Thompson, who threw wild in an effort to head off Douglass at the plate. Thoele hit into a double play to end the inning.

Tex Thornton singled in the third, Douglass bunted, and Caliguri's throw to second was too late to get Thornton. Mullinax beat out a bunt to fill the sacks. Knowles' fly to center tallied Thornton. With the squeeze play on, Caliguri threw a pitch-out—and Douglass was trapped between third and home and put out.

New Bern other tally came in the seventh—on a walk, Flythe's single, and Thornton's squeeze bunt.

Aces Win Slugfest From The Eagles

Ayden, Aug. 19.—Kinston cellarite Eagles felled Ayden's chances to gain in the Coastal Plain loop race by handing the locals a 10-9 setback yesterday.

The free-scoring affair was a thriller, especially in the stretch. Kinston had a 7-2 lead after four innings. Ayden closed the gap when Corrado homered with two on in the sixth, Kinston scored once in the seventh, and the Aces came back with two in the eighth.

The ninth inning arrived with the Eagles out in front by 8-7. A walk to Wright, his stolen base, and an error on Hicks on second. He scored on Sekers' single.

The Aces rallied in their half but they couldn't get started until two were away. Successive doubles by Fary, Johnson and Corrado brought two runs, and then Crosshite grounded out to end the game.

Monk Joyner, Ayden manager, hit a homer in the second—his 22nd of the season. Girard Corrado 16th homer cleared the centerfield fence about 425 feet from the plate.

Holiday for Louis
 Pompton Lakes, N. J., Aug. 19.—Joe Louis today enjoyed another of his intermittent holidays. The champion's customary six-mile jaunt was dispensed with this morning because of a heavy rain. Pedro Montañez, Puerto Rican lightweight, visited the champion's camp this afternoon.

Tarboro Wins Again To Hold 3rd Place

Snow Hill, Aug. 18.—Tarboro's Serpents clung to third place in the Coastal Plain League today by defeating the league-leading Billies, 6-1, for a sweep of the 2-game series.

Doug Hautz and Eddie Malone combined to pitch three-hit ball for Fred Henry's Snakes in today's contest. Hautz started but was yanked after two innings of work. The Billies hit his offerings hard, but their only safety was a second-inning home run by Harry Soufas. Malone took over in the third and fanned eight while pitching two-hit ball in a seven-inning stretch.

Tarboro clinched the game in the first inning. Ware singled with one out, and George Rimmer homered. With two out, Campbell walked and scored on Tatum's double.

Hruska, Snow Hill starting hurler, was relieved after the first. He was replaced by Joyce who yielded only four hits and one earned run. A walk, Rimmer's infield hit and Henry's clean single earned a tally for Tarboro in the seventh. Errors figured in two eighth-inning scores.

Johnny Fischer, the slim son of a Cincinnati letter carrier, is not likely to give up the U. S. amateur crown without a struggle when the field assembles at Portland, Ore. for the national tournament.

Fischer typifies the slugging young generation of American golfers. He is one of the lonest drivers in amateur ranks, and for all his distance, is remarkably accurate.

He is a fighter, too. Like many of the youngsters who will be shooting for the title he holds, Fischer learned the game as a caddy. He simply learned golf—he wasn't taught.

He is a gambler on the fairways. He doesn't know what it is to play safe. He is ever ready to take chances. Without the element of risk the game would lose its thrill for him.

Johnny stepped into the spotlight in 1932 when after winning Big Ten and national collegiate titles, he took the qualifying medal in the U. S. amateur at Five Farms, Baltimore, with a 89-73. He was eliminated by Francis Outmet in the match play but not before he had showed something. He came back the next year and set a new qualifying mark of 141 in the national test at Kenwood, Cincinnati.

Last year at Garden City, N. Y., he came into his own. After defeating Chick Evans and Johnny Goodman on his way to the final round he evened an old score with Jock McLean by taking the title in a thrilling 37-hole contest. McLean had put Fischer out of the 1934 British amateur.

Three down with eight holes to play against McLean at Garden City, Fischer staged a great rally to tie on the 36th. The break came on the 34th green when Johnny laid McLean the much-discussed stymie. Fischer ended the match with birdies on the last three holes, sinking a 20-foot putt for a three on the 37th.

Texas colleges showed the following were to forsake their "professors" to follow the pigskin: Two lacemen. Fifteen oil field employes. Five members of pipe line and refinery crews. Twelve farmers. One cowboy. Two grain elevator workers. One oil truck driver. Eight laborers engaged in building construction. One telephone lineman.

Martins End Long Losing Streak to Win

Long Branch, N. J., Aug. 19. — (AP)—Continuing to stress defense against a left hoow, Tommy Farr, boxed six fast rounds today in preparation for his title bout with world champion Joe Louis at the Yankee stadium, August 26.

The Welshman went one round each with Roscoe Manning and Joe Wagner and two with Basher Dean and Abe Feldman. Though his hired hands followed orders to peg hooks at him, not one connected solidly during the workout. Farr either parried the blows or rolled with them.

Young Bunn Hearne went the route for the Bugs and was reached for scores in six of the Martins' eight turns. It was the locals' first win in five starts.

A walk, Stanley's triple, and McCay's single gave the Martins a two-run start in the opening inning—and they weren't headed. Steve Lakot's homer with one on featured a four-run fourth inning.

Bruce McCay later added a homer and wound up as the day's batting star. He also hit a single and two doubles. Ace Vilepique hit three singles.

Maisano homered for Goldsboro with one on in the fourth. Big Jim Rollins pitched the victory. He yielded six hits. Top hitters for the Bugs were Balla and Gadd, with two safeties each.

Estes Park, Colo.—(AP)—Harold Pales of Orleans, Neb., not only won the Estes Park golf championship for the second successive year, but also set a new course record of 64, seven under par.

The golf course here, 7,180 feet above sea level, is popularly called "the highest in the world."
