PARTY CHIEFS EXPECT F. D. R. TO MAP PLAN

One of Two Courses of Strategy is Open To President

TRIAL 'BALLOONS' MAY SET ACTION

Reconciliation With Opposing Forces In Party May Cause Loss of Pet Projects

Washington, Aug. 23. (AP)—Democratic leaders, worried by the strife within their party, predicted today before Congress reconvenes President Roosevelt must choose one of these far-reaching courses of strategy:

1. Reconciliation at the cost of abandoning some of his most cherished objectives with the party factions which have refused to support all of his program.

2. A new campaign to rally public support and hammer through his controversial issues, risking disruption of the party beyond all repair.

One of the New Deal's most trusted strategists said privately today Mr. Roosevelt would base his decision of the trend of public opinion within the next few weeks.

He described as "trial balloons" two contradictory speeches made almost simultaneously last week by men often regarded as White House spokesmen, Postmaster General Farley and Senator Guffey (D.-Pa.)

Meantime a few of Congress' key men remaining at the capital despite adjournment are quietly preparing for a special session, they said they believed inevitable about November.

They described much of the unfinished business left by their home-ward-bound colleagues as too urgent to await the regular session next January.

Senator L. Wolfe (Prog.-Wis.) one of the President's most intimate congressional advisors, frankly asserted the administration would court disaster if it delayed its permanent farm program until next year.

Mrs. John Burgess Of Ayden Hurt In Wreck Yesterday

Both Legs and One Arm Broken When Car Driven by Her Husband, Leaves Highway

An Ayden woman and her young son are in a Kingston hospital suffering with serious injuries they suffered yesterday afternoon in an automobile wreck on the Ayden-Oriflont highway.

Mrs. John Burgess, whose husband was said to have been driving the car when it wrecked, and their small son are in the hospital with broken bones and lacerations. Mrs. Burgess had both her legs and arm broken and suffered lacerations about her face and head. The child suffered a fractured leg and lacerations on the forehead. Mr. Burgess was not seriously hurt.

Patrolman C. R. Williams, who investigated the wreck, said that Burgess told him he drove his car to the left side of the highway when he started to pass a car coming in the same direction and met an oncoming car. The vehicle ran off the highway and into a yard before it came to a halt.

Although other minor mishaps were reported in this vicinity, this was the only accident reported to any of the various officers in which anyone was seriously injured.

Congress Leaves Important Business To Adjourn

Representatives vied with pages to reach the side of Speaker William B. Bankhead (D.-Ala.), (left in white suit), as congress, leaving many important matters until next session, adjourned after eight months in Washington. This overhead picture shows the general confusion which prevailed after the speaker banged his gavel and announced the house in adjournment.

REBELS UNITE TO BREAK RING

Gen. Franco's Forces Hammer at Santander Defenses

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Border, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Hammering at the government's "iron ring" around Santander, five insurgent columns drove forward today to consolidate their control of the Spanish Biscayan coast.

The high command of the insurgents claimed they occupied 20 villages between Veizama and Sana de Mena as General Francisco Franco's troops drove toward Santander from five directions.

One column drove southwest into a valley turned about, and aided by three other columns in their drive to the north.

The Franco coastal brigade operated from Castro-Urdiales.

Villa Carriedo fell into insurgent hands after the capture of prominent neighboring positions and an intensive bombardment. Earlier insurgents captured a place half a mile to the south and sent swarming waves of infantry, machine guns and tanks sweeping across fertile fields and through ripening orchards.

Overcoming thunderous counterattacks, insurgents moved on the town of Ontaneda, six miles to the southwest, but despite terrific bombardments from land and air, government troops continued to hold the town.

Shuff Case First In Superior Term

After having been continued several times, the case of Mrs. Hattie P. Shuff vs. Town of Greenville finally got underway in Superior court here this morning and it was expected the trial would require at least all of this afternoon and tomorrow.

Mrs. Shuff is suing for $15,000 for injuries she allegedly suffered when she stepped in a hole in front of Sheppard Memorial library in February, 1935.

The plaintiff is represented by Judge Albin Dunn, while Harding and Lee, city attorneys, and J. B. James will handle the defense.

The jury was completed this morning as follows: J. B. Congleton, Woodrow Page, J. W. Carroway, C. L. Burroughs, E. B. Parker, W. M. Owens, J. T. Harris, Lyman Nichols, Fred Moore, Scott Dixon, J. W. Moore and Ted Oakley.

The Farmer's warehouse, located in the heart of the tobacco district and one of the oldest warehouses in the city, will be operated this year, as usual, by C. H. McGowan, better known to the farmers as "Hugh."

Mr. McGowan needs no introduction to the growers of this community for he probably has as many friends as any warehouseman in the business anywhere.

This popular warehouse has as its slogan "Have the Best Forc that Money can Hire and Treat Everybody Right so that our Business will Continue to Grow." And speaking of this warehouse slogan, Hugh, certainly lives up to it.

Mr. McGowan, who is a practical farmer, knows tobacco from the plant bed to the manufacturer and knows what every pile should sell for. On any sale day you will find him in the midst of the crowd pushing the price of each pile to the top market price.

Mr. McGowan stated that he was better prepared this season to take care of the interests of growers than ever before. The warehouse has undergone many improvements and is in first-class condition.

Associated with Mr. McGowan this season will be L. C. Powell, auctioneer; P. H. Cannon, Burney Moyer, Lyman Edwards, Guy Lanier and Donald Worthington, book force; Grover Hodges, B. R. Manning, J. J. Carroll and G. A. Justice, floor managers.

Aged White Man Held For Crime

Rocky Mount, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Solicitor Lynwood Elmore announced today a local 60-year-old man had been arrested and charged with attempted rape of a 12-year-old girl, his cousin.

The accused, J. M. Marks, market employe, denied the charge, the solicitor said, and the child identified as Katherine Home, was to be questioned and examined by police and physicians.

Police Chief O. P. Hedgepeth said the time of the alleged assault occurred was Saturday night in Mark's bedroom in a house where both Marks and the Home family lived.

During Saturday and Sunday a total of 22 names were placed on the blotter, nine of these being put on Sunday and 13 Saturday. An unusual quiet has been prevailing around police headquarters recently, but it looked today as if the spell had broken and officers could look for busy days and nights from now on for a while.

Cases tried this morning follow: Willie Oakley, assault, costs; Matilda Bunch, Negro, drunk and disorderly, costs; Robert Dunn, drunk and disorderly, $10 fine and costs; Mrs. Earle Nobles and Jimmie White, driving careless and reckless, bound over to county court under bond of $100 each.

Ernest Jenkins, Negro, assault, costs; Dave Hines, Negro, drunk, costs; Norman Arthur, Negro, drunk, $10 fine and costs; Johnie Short and Sam Sharp, Negroes, assault, costs; John Vines, Negro, drunk, costs; Elijah Neal, Negro, drunk and disorderly, $5 fine and costs.

John Smith, Negro, assault with a deadly weapon, bound over to county court under bond of $300; Elmer Simmons, Negro, whiskey for sale, bound over to county court under bond of $100; Tom Little, Negro, whiskey for sale, bound over to county court under bond of $200; Dock Moore, Negro, bound over to county court on a charge of whiskey for sale, bond $100; and Lewis Adams, Negro, drunk, costs.

Lieut. Lester Jones, head of the eastern division of the state highway patrol, and several members of his division will attend funeral services in Carthage tomorrow afternoon for Patrolman George Penn, who was killed while on duty at a weighing station near Asheville last night.

Patrolman C. R. Williams, who is located here, is unofficial trumpet for the patrol and will sound taps at the funeral. Patrolman H. B. Smith, also located here, probably will go to the funeral, as well as several others located in the division.

Patrolman Penn was found unconscious by fellow officers and died en route to a hospital. He had been shot three times and also had been beaten over the head with a blunt instrument.

His assailant or assailants were unknown. It is understood the officer was attacked and killed after he had given chase to a motorist who failed to stop at the weighing station as ordered.

Penn was the second patrolman to suffer such a fate in the past two months. Patrolman I. T. Moore was slain by two Negroes while on duty at a weighing station near Goldsboro.

The old-fashioned grain sprouters to produce fresh green feed for poultry and other livestock during the winter still are being used extensively in the United States.

Fifteen Cases Aired Before Mayor This Morning

One of the largest dockets in several weeks faced Mayor M. K. Blount in city police court this morning as 15 cases were disposed of. The name of several other persons appeared on the police blotter, but they were not tried at the session.

During Saturday and Sunday a total of 22 names were placed on the blotter, nine of these being put on Sunday and 13 Saturday. An unusual quiet has been prevailing around police headquarters recently, but it looked today as if the spell had broken and officers could look for busy days and nights from now on for a while.

Tobacco Mart Opening Anxiously Awaited Here

Sales Begin at Five Warehouses at 9 A. M. Thursday

Farmers, warehousemen and others in Greenville, Pitt county, and all of Eastern North Carolina are completing final preparations for the biggest day of the year—the opening of the tobacco mart.

With opening sales scheduled to begin at 9 o'clock Thursday morning in five of the 10 warehouses here, only two more days remain before the sing-song chatter of the auctioneers will be heard throughout Tobacco Town and farmers will get an idea of what they are to receive for a year's work.

Farmers are encouraged over the prospects. With larger crops than last year, both the Georgia and Border markets, opened at satisfactory prices. With the tobacco in this impure, hopes are high for a good average this fall.

While the Georgia and Border markets usually have their highest average on the first day of sales, this is not true of the Bright belt. Therefore the opening day prices here more than likely will be somewhat below the season's average.

Farmers proclaim to have the best tobacco in years. The quantity also is above the average.

Already loads of tobacco are coming into the city and being placed on the warehouse floors ready for opening sales and by Thursday morning everything will be in readiness for the beginning of what is expected to be one of the most successful seasons on the Greenville market.

The effect of the opening this week already can be realized in the city through the increased business activity and general feeling of optimism.

First sales will be in the Centre Brick, Webb's, Keel's, Dixie and Harris and Rogers warehouses Thursday.

NEW ADVANTAGES AT CENTRE BRICK

"The Brightest Spot of the Bright Belt" is the slogan of the Centre Brick warehouse here, one of the largest located on the Greenville tobacco market. This warehouse during the coming season will be operated by M. Dow Lassiter and Harvey Ward, both of whom have had many years of experience in the tobacco industry and who will see to it that every grower who sells there gets the most for his tobacco.

During the past few months this warehouse has undergone several improvements. The proprietors have recently added 6,000 feet of floor space to give them a total of 62,000 square feet this coming season.

Associated with Ward and Lassiter in the operation of their warehouse this season are men with years of experience in the tobacco industry. O. G. Rucker, who will assist in the sales, needs no introduction to the tobacco growers of eastern North Carolina as he has been closely identified with the tobacco business for many years. Other members of the force are—Ray Oglesby, auctioneer; Bill Morris, floor manager; Dewey Edwards, Frank Whitehurst, Jerry H. Gaylor, assistant floor managers; Robert S. Moyer, the Melton brothers, W. S. Moyer, Jr., Malvin Mills, Elbert Moore, are the book force; J. W. Reddick, Coy Smith, L. L. Clark, solicitors; Fred Broadwell is the leaf man.

2 NEWSPAPER MEN ARE HURT

Other Americans May Have Been Killed or Wounded as Police Are Unable to Make An Accurate Check on Damage Done As Heavy Artillery Again Shells Shanghai.

Shanghai, Aug. 23.—(AP)—An estimated 400 persons were killed and perhaps 1,000 wounded, including three Americans, by a heavy artillery shell that smashed into a crowded department store section of the International Settlement today.

Scores of Americans miraculously escaped death when a second projectile pierced the six-story U. S. Naval warehouse and crashed through to the bottom but failed to explode.

The wounded Americans were Anthony Billingham, New York Times staff correspondent; Hallitt Abend, chief of staff for the New York Times in China; and Blanche Tenney, Shanghai-born American.

Other Americans may have been killed or wounded.

Police said they could not estimate accurately the toll of injured and killed, but an Associated Press reporter counted 200 bodies and said he knew there must have been as many more.

Origin of the department store shell was unknown. Some military experts said it may have been a 120-pound, eight-inch shell which Japanese warships off Woosung were firing to protect landing of reinforcements.

The shell struck Nanking Road at the busiest corner of Shanghai. On one side of the intersection the huge seven-story building of the Sincere Company, Limited, department store, was crowded with shoppers. Across the street a newly-opened 16-story building of the Wing and Company department store was equally jammed. The stores are Chinese owned.

Funeral Services Conducted Sunday For Ayden Youth

Fourteen-Year-Old Douglas Baldree Hangs Self in Shed Behind Home Late Friday Night

Funeral services were conducted yesterday afternoon for Douglas Baldree, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman G. Baldree of Ayden, who hanged himself in a wash shed behind his home early Friday night.

The services were conducted at the home by Rev. W. H. Brunson, assisted by Rev. R. F. Pittman. Members of his class in high school and of the Y.P.F.L. of the Ayden Episcopal church acted as honorary pallbearers. Burial was in Ayden cemetery.

The youth went to his home Friday night after working at a filling station. He showed no despondency and remained at home with the family until he was found. When his parents returned they did not find him and the body was discovered in the shed only after a search. The body was hanging from a rafter in the shed. He had made a noose from a necktie and had hanged himself. No cause was given for the act. Coroner A. A. Elwanger said today an inquest was deemed unnecessary.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Gene and E. D. Baldree.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

It is with deep sorrow that we, the members of the Tobacco Board of Trade, of Greenville, N. C., record the passing of one of our most beloved members, "Shep" Morton, who passed from this earth to the Great Beyond early in the morning of August 19th, 1937, in Metter, Ga., where he was engaged in the tobacco business.

He was laid to rest in Greenwood Cemetery, Greenville, N. C., late in the evening of August 20th, 1937, beneath a huge floral offering which was but a small token of the high esteem which is friends had for him. We shall miss him on our tobacco sales, his cheery smile and kind disposition, for to know "Shep" was to love him. We extend to his loved ones our heartfelt sympathy praying God's richest blessings may rest upon them.

Let a copy of these Resolutions be spread upon our Minutes, a copy sent to the Daily Reflector for publication, and a copy to the family.

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine
By Iago Goldston, M.D.

Girth and Life Span

The larger the girth, the shorter the life span. This is proved by clinical experience and statistics.

Radical overweight, that is, overweight amounting to 20 or more per cent above that which is normal for the age and height of the individual, is definitely detrimental to health and tends to shorten life. Statistical experience also indicates the greater the degree of overweight, the greater is the mortality rate.

One of the large life insurance companies reports that, among its policy holders, men whose obesity amounted to 35 per cent or more above average weight showed a mortality of over one and a half times that of the average group. Those whose overweight was from 15 to 24 per cent had an excess mortality above the normal of 30 per cent. Even a slightly overweight handicap exacts a higher than average mortality. In contrast, once full maturity has been reached, underweight proves a decided advantage.

As judged by mortality rates, the most favorable weight in men is: up to the age of 30, slight overweight; ages 30 to 39, average weight; ages 40 to 49, slight underweight; ages 50 and over, an appreciable degree of underweight.

Not all mortals, however, carry their obesity in like manner. The worst afflicted are those with pot bellies. When the abdominal circumference exceeds that of the chest at full expansion by more than two inches, those so constituted show an extra mortality or approximately 50 per cent over and above the excess mortality associated with overweight. The solidly built, large-boned overweight individual, however, carries his extra weight with less punishment.

The obese are especially prone to certain diseases. High blood pressure is over two and one-half times as common among overweight as among persons of average weight. Diabetes is also much more prevalent among the overweight.

It is interesting also that the suicide rate is greater among overweight than among those of average weight.

The reason for this excess (in suicides among the overweight) is not clear, but possibly psychological maladjustments related either to overweight or to defects associated with overweight play a part, says a statistician.

A CANDID TALK

with Carl E. Bailey

Since he became Governor of Arkansas last January, he has gained considerable attention for his parole reforms. Now he's a candidate for the late Joe Robinson's seat in the Senate.

1. Turn a paroled convict loose in another state with no strings on him, says the 42-year-old strongman of Arkansas Democratic politics, and he probably will soon be back behind bars. To prevent that, Governor Bailey had this year's session of his state legislature adopt the "uniform parole compact law."

2. Under this law, he explains, Arkansas is ready to promise other states to "see that your parolees go straight in Arkansas if you'll supervise ours when they come to your state...."

3. "In the past, a paroled prisoner leaving the state felt somewhat out from under restraint. This led him oftentimes to become a second offender. He knew he wasn't being watched...."

4. "Now he will feel the restraint of supervision in the state where he takes up residence." Arkansas has concluded its first pact with Indiana and is negotiating for others.

Several Changes Expected To Be Made By Pitts

Raleigh, Aug. 23.—Appointment of Oscar Pitts to be superintendent of prisons, effective September 1, forecasts a shakeup in the personnel of the prison department, notably at State's prison here.

No drastic tearing apart need be feared, however, as neither Mr. Pitts nor Robert Grady Johnson, soon to become director of the prison department and Mr. Pitts' immediate superior, is likely to risk throwing operations of a going department into a state of chaos. They are not that kind of men.

Principal victims of personnel changes are likely to be Warden H. H. Honeycutt, at State's prison, and Dr. George S. Coleman, prison physician; though neither Johnson nor Pitts has even vaguely intimated what change, if any, he has in mind.

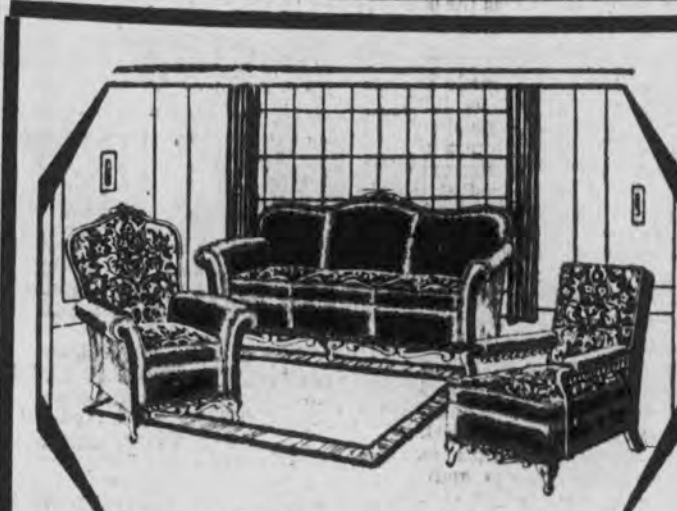

In fact Mr. Johnson has been extremely close-mouthed in the matter, pleasantly parrying all queries with the reply that he isn't even in office and cannot possibly make any statement as long as he is without official status.

As a result there has so far been not even an inkling of the identity of the successors of Warden Honeycutt or of Dr. Coleman, in the event that they are really on the way out.

The prison warden has been connected with the department for nearly a quarter-century and it is not unlikely that some other place will be found for him. Dr. Coleman has been connected with the service for some eight or nine years. Both he and Warden Honeycutt were to their present posts during the George Ross Pou regime.

ETIQUETTE

By JOAN DURHAM (AP Feature Service Writer)

Radio "gags" are directed to the ear—not the eye.

That's why there's so much difference between the rules of conduct for audiences in the radio studio and the legitimate theater.

The audience in a radio studio isn't vital to the program, says Harry von Zell, announcer and master of ceremonies for a major network. It's the stay-at-home population that counts.

Studio audiences are considered part of the show. When signs reading "applause," "laugh" or "laugh loudly" are displayed it's their job to take the cue—just as an actor does.

Many studio visitors don't realize, when they refuse to applaud because they don't think the show is much good, that applause is picked up by microphones planted in the audience. If they did they would understand why it's considered ungracious not to respond when the applause sign is put up, even though the gag isn't funny or the act doesn't.

They don't realize, either, that changing seats during a broadcast may sound, over the air, as though the seats are being left for good—the inference being, of course, that the program is no good. (Such changes, anyway, distract the audience more than they do the cast).

Consequently, if you want to be a perfect guest in a radio studio remember these four things:

(1) Arrive 15 or 20 minutes before the broadcast is scheduled to begin. (Many studios close their doors that long ahead, anyway).

(2) Refrain from asking your favorite radio star for an autograph—until the program is over. The chances are he or she will want to spend a few minutes rehearsing before "going on the air."

(3) Sit quietly throughout the program—except when you're requested to clap or laugh.

(4) Pick up your hat and coat and prepare to go home—AFTER the program has signed off.

A triple mirror will prove helpful in the bathroom which does not have much space.

Keep Coffee Pots Clean.
Coffee pots need scrubbing, airing and sterilizing every week. If you have difficulty in making clear, well-flavored coffee the pot may be at fault.

A Supper Hint.
Cooker cauliflower mixed with cooked peas and a cheese sauce makes a tasty luncheon or supper dish. Serve it over toast or crackers.

Omelet For Lunch.
A little chili sauce added to omelet or placed on top of poached eggs will turn a breakfast dish into one that is suitable for luncheon or dinner. Chili sauce also may be added to mayonnaise to be served with fish or meat cocktails.

Cheese On Tomatoes.
Sprinkle grated cheese over the tops of escalloped tomatoes. It adds flavor and food value.

SYNOPSIS: Neill, a young federal agent, comes to Baltimore to spend a week with Janet. But she won't break a dinner date with Prescott Fanning. From what Janet says, Neill distrusts Fanning and labels him a crook. They quarrel and part. To check on Fanning, Neill finds him at his hotel and gets acquainted at the bar. Fanning gives him, knock-out drops in whiskey and then searches Neill's papers, taking a snapshot of Janet. Next noon Neill awakens to find Janet, Fanning and Prescott's yacht gone. A mysterious phone call tells him Janet is aboard the yacht in Absealom's Harbor and "in bad trouble."

Chapter Seven

Bus To Absealom's

AT 4:45 that afternoon the bus for Absealom's pulled out of the terminal on Redwood street, and headed south. Neill Tryon sat by a window looking out with a wooden face. Now that he had an objective, he had steeled; he could wait. After thinking it over, he had decided to handle this matter by himself—quietly. He wished to avoid subjecting Janet to any ugly publicity. He had dressed himself in a rough surveyor's outfit including khaki breeches and knee boots in order to be ready for anything.

The bus was a small one for local traffic, and the passengers were all residents of the southern counties who had been to town for a day's shopping. Neill as the only "foreigner" aboard received many

"No. Never been there before." "What's your business there, may I ask?" "No business. Thought I'd like a couple of days' fishing." "You ain't brought no tackle." "Well, I wasn't sure what I'd need. I'll get it there." "Ain't often a fellow comes down alone to go fishing." "Oh, reckon I can join on to some party."

"Where you going to stop?" "There's a hotel, isn't there?" "Sure, there's Wickes's hotel, but you'd do better in one of the boarding houses." "Well, I'll go to the hotel tonight and look 'round in the morning." "What's the name, mister?" "Ford Wheatley." "Where from?" "Baltimore." "Who you work for there?" "I represent a New York firm." "And so on. And so on." As they came over the top of a low hill, Joey pointed out their destination far off to the left. Neill saw, on a little promontory almost surrounded by blue water, a village of white houses dazzling in the level rays of the sun. The wide mouth of the river lay beyond, and still farther off, the misty expanse of the Chesapeake. Neill hardened as he looked at the pretty scene. There lay his job.

Four Gigantic Ships

AS they turned the next corner in the road, four gigantic ships loomed before them moored side by side, and making a little forest of masts and funnels. It was a surprising sight to come upon in that simple countryside.

"See them ships?" said Joey. "Them's what we took from Germany after the war. It's the Montpelier, the Montmorenci, the Columbia and the Abraham Lincoln. Looks as if they was moored right in the cornfield, don't it?"

from here. Once they was the biggest and the fastest ships on the ocean. I been aboard 'em. Jehu! What grand saloons and cabins with the walls covered with hand-paintings and all! It's a sight, mister!"

"What are they doing down here?" asked Neill. "The shipping board keeps them down here because there's good shelter and deep water, and it don't cost nothing." "Are they just rusting away?" "No, indeed. Old Captain Bickel and three men lives aboard, and they hires what painters and oilers they want by the day. They're kept in A1 shape all right. Once a month they turn the engines over with compressed air."

"What good are they?" "I don't know," said Joey. "Some say they'll be wanted for transports in the next war. Others say it would save the taxpayers money if they was sold for scrap."

"I dare say," said Neill. A minute or two later they were in the village. The river lay on one side, the inlet that constituted the harbor on the other, the mouth of the river and the bay out in front. The simple frame houses of the fishermen and the lack of trees, the all-surrounding water and the boats at anchor gave the place a sea-going character. There was a tang of salt in the air.

It was about eight o'clock and still light when they pulled up in front of Longcope's general store which faced the harbor. Neill's eyes instantly fastened on the trim little yacht lying there. A crowd had gathered on the porch of the store to greet the bus and he decided to wait a little until dark before going out to the yacht. It would attract less attention.

"Hey, Wickes!" shouted Joey. "Here's a lodger for you." The hotel was next door to the store. It was a staring clapboarded building of several stories out of keeping with the old village. The proprietor, a slack-looking fat man, came forward and Neill submitted to being shown a room, but declined dinner. It was impossible to think of eating until he had done what he had come for.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

By Robin Coom

Hollywood, Aug. 23—(AP)—George Raft is sitting in his dressing room and he's pretty happy. He's sipping a coke and listening to the Yanks and the Braves battling it out back east, and he's hearing the game, all right. But the background music buzzing in the Raftian ears is a sweet chorus of "Ayes" on his performance in "Souls Aat S'a."

You know by now that they mused up his sleek gangster's hair and let him be a nice guy in that one, but maybe you don't know how long and how hard the boy from Hell's Kitchen has been fighting for a chance to be a hero on the screen.

POPULAR GREENVILLE WAREHOUSE

The Farmers warehouse again will be operated this season by C. H. McGowan, better known by his many friends and patrons as "Hugh." Mr. McGowan is a practical farmer and knows tobacco from the plant bed to the manufacturer. On sales days he will be found in midst of the crowd pushing the price of each pile upwards. The warehouse has undergone numerous improvements since last season and is in tip-top shape for the opening of auctions Thursday.

IMPROVEMENTS AT CENTRE BRICK

The Centre Brick warehouse, shown above, will be operated this season by M. Dow Lassiter and Harvey Ward, both of whom are well known in Eastern North Carolina. With a slogan of "The Brightest Spot of the Bright Belt," the warehouse has made many new improvements since the close of the 1936 auctions. A capable corps of workmen will aid in the operation of the warehouse this year.

"You take fellows like Colman and Cooper," he says. "They stick around this racket as long as they do because these fans see 'em die a hero's death and do big, brave things. They never play the scoundrel or the skunk. So now they're talking about putting me in 'Beau Geste' and I say if I'm in 'Beau Geste' I'm gonna be Beau—Beau or nothin' Raft wants that old sympathy." George has been suspended by Paramount five times. Partly his quarrels have been over salary, but mostly over the "sympathy angle." Ex-boxer, ex-ball player, and dancer, George clicked in the film "Scarface" and Paramount put him to work Plenty of work—at $250 a week. He'd be finishing one picture and starting another the same day. He got tired, especially when he'd planned to go north for a football game and the studio called that off. He walked—and came back at double salary. Then there was "The Story of Temple Drake." George was cast as that degenerate heavy, and he walked again. He didn't want to be the man you love to hate. He was probably right. Jack Larue, who played the part, found it thankless. Then they brought George back and signed the peace.

It got so that Raft was making pictures "between suspensions." When they wanted him for "Souls At Sea" he was on one of his periodic winks. He had read the script—and what a louse that character of Powdahl was! Just a salt-water skunk, no less. He wouldn't do it, he said.

When you see the picture you'll realize what a change they made in Powdahl for Raft's "sympathy angle." They called him in, agreed to rewrite the part, and—as final concession—they wrote a check for $24,000, representing Raft's back salary during his latest "suspension." None of his winks, to date, has cost him a penny.

So I must have been right some of the time," he says, "or I wouldn't still be here."

IT'S ODD But It's Science

New York—(AP)—A stack of coins or of poker chips, represents the structure of certain microscopic crystals that have the power to change themselves into living things.

The crystals are the tobacco mosaic virus, which acts like bacteria in causing a tobacco plant disease. They are inanimate matter, which when it gets together in a unit of the right shape, and in the presence of already living matter, become alive themselves. They are able to reproduce.

Their structure is supposed to have something to do with their ability to come to life. This structure has been found with the aid of X-rays by J. D. Bernal and I. Pannofen, Crystallographic Laboratory, Cambridge, England, and is described in the official British science journal, Nature.

The protein molecules get together in thin, flat flakes. They are not round like coins but hexagonal. They stack like coins and the result is a long, thin crystal, which seems to be the missing link between the living and the inanimate world.

The tuberculosis death rate decreased from 200 per 100,000 persons in 1900 to 71 per 100,000 persons in 1930.

 Raleigh, Aug. 23.—Revocation of 110 licenses last week brought to 12,113 the number of motorists who have been deprived of the right to operate motor vehicles.
 Raleigh finally got two more liquor stores open Saturday. Wake County Liquor Board Chairman Harry Litchford answers criticism of the long delay with the statement that he would rather have the stores opened late than without thorough preparation.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover
 Washington—Nobody could accuse President Roosevelt of buying a pig-in-a-poke when he named Hugo L. Black to the Supreme court.
 Black's opinions as a senator have been recorded on miles of white paper. And they've all been on the Rooseveltian side.
 His maiden speech in the senate was a battle for Muscle Shoals. He wanted cheaper nitrate rates for farmers. That was in the Republican era when a young Democrat from Alabama was nothing but a voice crying in the wilderness. But Black stayed to see TVA become a fact in 1933.
 His last battle in the senate was his own bill which he says would put a bottom in American living standards; the wages and hours bill.
 So what can be expected of him in the oak-lined room where the nine justices finally sit down to iron out a decision?
 First it's expected that Black will go right to work. He'll face that little court nicety that says a polite justice should eliminate himself when a controversy comes up in which he is personally interested.
 But Black's been a senator ten years. He's had his finger in hundreds of laws. If he were to become dainty about the laws he should or should not pass upon he would truly become the phantom justice, appearing on the bench only now and then.
 Besides he's roasted lip-service artists dozens of times. Half his pleas for the wages and hours bill have been pleas to act, and act now.
 As judge he'll have several New Deal laws on which to act.
 The holding company bill is on the way up through the lower courts. And when that bill was dying of anemia in congress Black was the hypodermic that shoved it through to enactment. Just as the fight over the act was on Black opened his lobby investigation. In a handful of days he had proved that hundreds of telegrams flooding congress opposing the bill, had been paid for by the power companies.

In a fever of self-righteousness congress passed the bill.
 Through dozens of senate sessions Black has beat the drum for the rights of people against the rights of property. He's bristled with figures of people working long hours while others were out of work. He's inveighed against fortunes built from shoe-strings when he was investigating the ocean and air-mail contracts. He has insisted that big business has jumped state lines, and must be controlled by national laws.
 He'll probably be sitting on the bench when the Securities and Exchange commission comes up for review. He'll be there when the right of WPA to lend money to cities for power plants comes up. He'll be there when his old pet, TVA arrives in the court again.
 He's lent such measures a helping hand for ten years in the senate, and it's an extremely safe bet he'll go lending the same helping hand.
 And fortunately for a generation of student lawyers still in their cradles, who will grow up to study supreme court decisions, the new Associate Justice Black has a delicately cut sense of humor.

May Set Up New Industry At N. C. Prison In Raleigh

Reflector Bureau.
 Raleigh, Aug. 23.—North Carolina's prison will likely have one or more new industries as the result of a study now being made by a special committee appointed by the State Highway Commission, but there is no possibility that prison industries will be set up in any such scale as to compete with private enterprises.
 Named at Thursday's highway commission meeting the committee immediately began general consideration of the matter, but nothing definite was decided, according to Robert Grady Johnson, who will become director of the penal division in September and who is a member of the committee.
 It was indicated, however, that nothing will be done which will seriously put prison-made goods in competition with those produced by private concerns.
 Mr. Johnson said that there is only a question of putting idle prisoners to work at something and of making or repairing equipment or wearing apparel which can be used by the prison division. It would be uneconomic, as well as unfair competition, to try to produce socks (for example) for the 9,000 prisoners, he said. The cost of production would far exceed that of purchase.
 A real shoe repair plant was suggested by Mr. Johnson as a possible industry. At present, he said, shoes are purchased for the prisoners and when they are worn out, they are thrown away. It would be real economy to repair them, he said.
 Work on additional cell blocks at the prison has been held up pending decision on whether or not there will be industrial activity there, Mr. Johnson said. There are approximately 700 prisoners at the central plant, with about 300 now employed. The others are unable to work or are employed in making license tags for the state's automobiles or in the prison printing plant. There is a pipe making plant but it is not in use at the present time.

COUNTY ALLOTMENTS LISTED CORRECTLY
 Raleigh, Aug. 21.—Due to an error in announcement from the Highway department the allotments to counties of the $2,000,000 road betterment fund, allocations for four counties were listed incorrectly yesterday.
 The counties and correct amounts are Vance, $14,320; Wake, $53,500; Wayne, $30,120; and Wilson, $22,820.

Decision By Grady Ends Johnston's R. E. A. Row

Reflector Bureau.
 Raleigh, Aug. 23.—Acting Judge Henry A. Grady in dismissing both the plea for an injunction and the action of three Johnston county farmers, backed by Federal Rural Electrification officials, against the Carolina Power and Light Company and directors of the Johnston County Electrical Cooperative probably brings this interesting litigation to a final stop.
 The defeated plaintiffs can, of course, appeal to the North Carolina Supreme Court, but without an injunction restraining the power company from proceeding with its construction of electric lines a victory in the higher tribunal would be meaningless.
 But though the action may have ended, the bitterness of the struggle will linger on for a long time, with opponents of the so-called power "trust" still of the opinion that the farmers of Johnston were given a raw deal, and with friends of the power companies still maintaining that Johnston county will get better electric service at less cost than if the lines were to be built by the co-op.
 Briefs of the contending parties showed the wide divergence in views. Plaintiffs contended that the directors who affected the so-called "compromise" whereby the co-op agree never to build any lines competing with the company exceeded their powers and that they entered into an agreement in unlawful restraint of competition. They declared that the power company had many years in which to electrify Johnston county but made no move to do so until the co-op was in position to go forward with the work and until the power company had lost its fight to restrain the co-op by resort to the courts. The plaintiff's brief said in one place: "Even if he defendant power company did not need a certificate of convenience and necessity the question would remain whether it could stay out of the community for a long time and then, when authority is granted to a public agency, proceed to flaunt its authority."
 On the other hand the defendant directors and the power company contended that the bargain was a good one for Johnston county and that the 1,535 persons who signed up the co-op as electricity subscribers will get better and cheaper service as a result of the deal.
 They contended, too, that intervention of federal authorities in the case was unwarranted and caused solely by jealousy of the success of the people of Johnston county in getting service without assistance of the governmental agency.
 A preliminary statement in the defendants' brief well explained their contentions. It said: "This case is notable in several respects. It is probably the first time on record in which it affirmatively appears that a federal official, the Rural Electrification Administrator, has used his position and influenced as well as the taxpayers' money, to promote and finance litigation by private parties."
 "In the second place, it clearly appears from the affidavit of Mr. Horne and other evidence that jealousy on the part of this official at the success of a state agency, charged by the Act of 1935, Chapter 288, with the duty of advancing rural electrification, is the prime cause of this interference."
 "In the third place, your Honor, sitting as a Chancellor in Equity, is asked to enjoin rural electrification in Johnston county because it is being performed by a public utility, subject to the state's power of regulation and taxation and in harmony with the state's policy and program, as outlined in our answer and supporting affidavits, which are not denied, and, lastly, to grant this injunction in the name of nominal parties who will receive no benefit if it is granted and sustain no damage if it is refused."

Snow Hill, Aug. 23.—Greenville's seventh-place Greenville Greenies soundly whipped Snow Hill's league leaders here yesterday afternoon behind the effective hurling of Freddie Caliguri.

Snow Hill outthrew the Greenies 7-9, but they took advantage of a spell of weakness on the part of Joyce in the fourth, and before "the merry-go-round broke down" the Greenville nine had tallied four times. Rudisill and Jarvis drew walks, moved up a base on Roy's sacrifice, and Caliguri walked to fill the bases. Willie Powell poled a triple to clear the backs, and tallied a moment later on Swamp Norwood's fly to center.

In the first frame the Greenies counted twice on Norwood's single, an error and Andy Johnson's two-base hit. Snow Hill scored two in the second and one in the third, and then Caliguri settled down to hold them scoreless until the seventh when they tallied their final time for the afternoon.

In the sixth, with Snow Hill at bat and the bases loaded, John Rudisill caught Hyder's drive against the fence to end what would have been a serious blow to the Greenies.

Swamp Norwood and Willie Powell each with a pair of safeties set the pace for the Greenies. Top hitter for the Billies was Walter Rabb with three safeties, one a two-bagger.

The Greenies are playing the Billies in Greenville at Third St. Park this afternoon. Lefty King is slated to take the mound for the Greenies, while the Billie Ace, Emil Zak will oppose him.

In a game at Greenville Saturday, the Greenies lost to Peahced Walker's boys, 6-2.

GOING STRONG

HE HAS STAGED A GREAT COMEBACK SINCE HIS ARM WENT "DEAD" IN 1934

Sport Slants

By PAP

Lefty Grove, at 37, keeps on adding victories. He has passed the 250 mark in this respect, stands head and shoulders above other active league hurlers. Waite Hoyt, taking part in his 20th big league campaign, has more than 230 wins but there is little likelihood he will add many to that total. The same is true of old Jesse Haines. Jesse has 210 major league victories, but he is 44. At that age wins in the big show are few and far between. Earl Whitehill has gone over the 200 mark, but the rest of the field isn't even close.

Grove has had a remarkable career. A colorful figure with his once blinding speed, he has had his ups and downs. There have been several occasions when his steel-spring arm seemed to have lost its strength. It appeared that Connie Mack had sold the Red Sox a pitcher without an arm when Lefty reported to Boston in 1934.

The Red Sox had paid something like $125,000 in cash and a couple of ball players for Grove, Rube Walberg and Max Bishop. Grove of course, was the main reason for the deal. After having won 24 games for the Philadelphia Athletics in 1933 the best he could do in '34 for the Red Sox was to break even with eight wins and eight lost. He bounced back in '35 to win 20 games and to lead the American league with an earned run average of 2.70. Seventeen victories fell to his credit in '36 and he again led the league in the earned run column.

Lefty is doing better than fair this season with 11 wins by mid-August. For a pitcher who depended so much on speed in the early part of his career, Grove is bearing up remarkably well.

The United States is the world's largest consumer of radium. During the last 15 years, this country has imported about $10,000,000 worth of the valuable mineral element.

Aces and Bugs Split Snakes Bite Bears To Sunday's Twin Bill Hang On to 3rd Rung

Ayden, Aug. 23.—Ayden's Earl Webb and Goldsboro's Pete Kunis shared pitching decisions as the Aces and Goldsboro divided a twin-bill here yesterday.

Webb got a 4-1 decision in the opener, in which each hurler gave only five hits. In the seven inning nightcap, Kunis let the Aces down with four hits to take a 9-1 verdict. A homer by Faust Johnson in the fifth broke a 1-all tie and clinched victory for the Aces in the opener. The blow, over the left-field fence, came after Jirak drew a walk. Monk Joyner added the Aces' final tally, with a homer in the eighth over the left-center barrier.

The Bugs opened their scoring with a run in the first, on Balla's single, Roper's sacrifice, a walk to Malsano, and Daniels' forceout, but the Aces got the run back in their half, on walks to Schuerholz and Corrado, Jirak's sacrifice, and Joyner's single.

A five-run blast in the third inning night-cap, during which Webb was sent to the showers, assured Kunis of victory. After the Bugs broke a 1-all deadlock and had the bases filled, Webb gave way to Coates. The new hurler, walked Ed Pitzer, forcing in a run, and Dynamite Ignasiak rounded out the rally with a triple.

The Bugs' first run came in the second, on a homer by Daniels. Baker's single and Fary's triple matched the tally in Ayden's half of the same frame.

Schuerholz accounted for the Aces' two other hits in the finale. He got a single in the first frame, and another in the third.

Baker, Ayden shortstop handled 15 chances perfectly to take fielding honors. Gadd and Balla led the Bugs on defense.

PLAYOFF GAME SET FOR TODAY

Softball Series To Be Resumed With Teams at 2-All

The Carolina Sales and Tadlock Mutual Insurance agency softball teams resume play this afternoon at 6 o'clock in the fifth of a seven game play-off series.

Each of the two teams have won two games, and both are being primed by their managers to "shoot the works" to gain the advantage this afternoon.

The series was evened Friday afternoon when Hamilton and Waldrop came through with hits in the pinches to lead the attack of the Carolina Sales, giving a hard earned victory that enabled them to start play this week on even terms with the insurance men.

The Friday game saw a duel of pitchers and the rival managers today expect their pitching to remain on the same plane and each contends their heavy artillery will swing into action at bat.

United States Engineers Take Pictures Of Inlet

Raleigh, Aug. 21.—United States engineers have this week been taking aerial pictures of Oregon and New Inlets in connection with beach erosion studies by the federal government and the state. It was learned from the office of T. S. Johnson chief engineer of the Department of Conservation and Development.

In addition, the federal men have been gauging the flow of tides at the entrance of these inlets, while workers from the state department of conservation and development have been conducting off-shore soundings to a depth of 30 feet, along the northern section of the North Carolina coast.

Study of the pictures made from the air will be used in determining just where the coast line is being eroded and just where the action of the tides is adding to the beaches.

The entire coast has been divided into cross-sections during progress of these erosion studies, stakes have been set so that it can be readily determined where erosion is getting in its deadly work.

Activity this week does not indicate any immediate remedial action it was stressed, but was a part of the long-time program of the federal and state department.

Various phases of the work have been carried on from time to time at Carolina beach, Wrightsville beach, Morehead City and Nag's Head, among other places.

Double Defeat Is Lot Of the Lowly Eagles

Williamston, Aug. 23.—The Martins turned back the Kinston Eagles in both ends of a double header yesterday, 5-2 and 2-1. Jim Rollins received credit for both wins, although he had to call on Larry Wade for assistance in the nightcap.

In the opener, Rollins struck out 11 men and gave only five hits in getting the verdict over Cooper. The Eagles' lone tally came in the 4th, on a walk to Morris and Patton's double.

The Martins sewed things up in the third with a trio of runs. With two away, Earp and Deim singled. Stanley's double brought in Earp, and a walk to Bruce McCay filled the bases. Morris' error on Stevens grounder let in a pair of runs.

In the nightcap, the Martins opened the scoring with a singleton in the second. Ace Villepique rapped a triple, and came in on Rollins' bunt. The fifth brought the winning run. Deim doubled, advanced on Stanley's sacrifice and scored on McCay's grounder.

Wade relieved Rollins at the start of the fifth and gave only a pair of hits during the last three innings. Both came in the seventh and produced a run. Patton singled and scored on Stoner's double.

Artie Deim was the day's leading hitter. He collected four blows in five tries. Howard Earp featured afield by handling 10 chances perfectly.

Painting Presented President Roosevelt By Governor

Edward Warren Hearne of this city, who designed a card of the Roanoke Island celebration, sent two of the pictures to Governor Clyde R. Hoey before he left for Nags Head where he has been spending the past ten days. The painting was the North Carolina coat—"Here's to the land of the long leaf pine"—in the center—underneath is a view of the water-side theatre at Port Raleigh—in the background, above the right of the stage, across the sound are the sand dunes with the Wright Memorial in the distance—in the left foreground, in silhouette, a group of Indians and in the right foreground a silhouette of a lone tree bearing the word "Crotatan"—Mr. Hearne received the following letter from the governor:

Governor's Office Raleigh, August 16, 1937.

Mr. Edward Warren Hearne, Greenville N. C., Dear Sir: I received the two cards which you designed of Fort Raleigh. I thank you very much for these and I shall take pleasure in giving one of them to the President—I think the design is most attractive. Yours very truly, (Signed) Clyde R. Hoey.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Efforts to give the stock market another rallying shove today were only partially successful. A few favored issues retained modest gains, but early improvement of fractions to a point or more was lost in many instances. Secondary rail loans showed rising tendencies in the bonds market, and United States government securities pointed moderately upward. Transfers were in the neighborhood of 550,000 shares.

BARDEN WORKS FOR HOSPITAL

Representative Hopes To Locate Institution in Goldsboro

Washington, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Representative Graham Barden of New Bern, N. C., said today he would do "everything I can" to have a proposed veterans' hospital for Eastern North Carolina located at Goldsboro.

Barden said he understood the veterans' hospitalization board had recommended to President Roosevelt and the Budget Bureau the establishment of such a facility. "So far, the North Carolina delegation has devoted its attention to the allocation of a hospital for Eastern North Carolina," he said. "As soon as this goal is accomplished, the question of location will be up for consideration and I shall do everything I can to get it located at Goldsboro, in line with a bill introduced by me some time ago."

Barden's bill would authorize an expenditure of $2,000,000 for a 300-bed hospital.

He planned to leave today for his home.
