Air Of Optimism Prevails On Eve Of Mart Opening

All Roads Leading To Greenville Lined With Tobacco

LEAF ON FLOORS OF GOOD QUALITY

'36 Opening Day Average of $22.66 Expected Be Equalled Here Tomorrow.

Happy Days are here again!

With an air of optimism prevailing throughout this section today on the eve of the opening of the 1937 tobacco marketing season, all roads leading into Greenville were virtually lined with farmers bringing the golden weed to the "Best Market in the World."

Warehousemen were busy throughout the day unloading tobacco in preparation for the beginning of auctions on five of the 10 Greenville warehouses at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

A heavy opening break is anticipated here and veteran tobaccoists declare the quality of the offerings on the floor today is above the average. While it is a fact that opening day prices throughout the Eastern belt usually are from three to five cents lower than the season's average, good prices are anticipated here for the first day's sales.

But until the sing-song chatter of the auctioneers is heard, no one can definitely state what the farmers can expect for their year's toil. Prices, however, on the Border and Georgia belts tend to indicate prices here will be satisfactory. Georgia markets averaged approximately 25 cents a pound on opening day, but the season's average to date is about 19 cents.

On the two belts already open poor quality tobacco is selling some higher than last year, while medium and good grades are averaging about the same. It is conceded that the best tobacco to be found any where was grown this year in this immediate section. Even if good tobacco does not sell higher than last year, the average more than likely will be better as the majority of the offerings to be made here probably will be far better than the general run year after year.

The ten warehouses have made extensive improvements since the closing of the 1936 season and operators declare they are ready for what is expected to be one of the most successful seasons in the history of the market.

The warehouses have a combined floor space of 16 acres and are sufficiently equipped to handle sales in an orderly manner. Each warehouse is staffed with a capable corps of workers, all of whom are experienced in their respective duties. A few changes have been made, but most of the faces seen on warehouse floors for the past several seasons again will greet farmers bringing their leaf here.

Last year more than 40,000 farmers, representing at least 35 counties, sold tobacco on the Greenville market. This record is expected to be exceeded this year as Greenville will be out to retain the distinction of being the largest tobacco market in the world.

Raleigh, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Tobacco poured into the warehouses of the New Bright belt today on the eve of tomorrow's opening of the 1937 selling season and warehousemen and farmers voiced optimism that prices would equal, probably exceed, those of the border belt.

First exhibits disclosed a quality on par with that which averaged 25 cents on the Carolinas border.

E. Y. Floyd, of N. C. State college extension service, said the leaf of the eastern counties "is just as good if not better than that being offered on the border belt markets. Compulsory grading of the U. S. Department of Agriculture will be used for the first time this season at Wendell and for the second time at Goldsboro, Farmville and Oxford.

ROADS REFUSE TO BOOST PAY

Strike of Railway Workers Looms After Action

Chicago, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The conference between representatives of 350,000 railroad operating employees and their employers broke up today with refusal by 86 major railroads to accede to demands for a flat 20 per cent wage increase.

A statement of representatives of the "Big Five" operating brotherhoods said the action "leaves no alternative but to set the day and hour for the men to withdraw from service in accordance with authority given in a strike ballot in which 97 per cent of the workers represented by the brotherhoods voted in favor of a strike unless a satisfactory disposition of the request for increases in rates of pay was obtained."

H. A. Enoch, chairman of the carriers' conference committee, which has been conferring with the union delegates three weeks, made public his grounds for a decision that such an increase would be "ruinous" to the carriers and they can not stand even an eight-cent-an-hour boost.

Enochs had contended virtually all railroads would have suffered heavy losses last year if they had been forced to pay wage boosts of five cents an hour already granted the 14 non-cooperating railroad brotherhoods and the 20 per cent boost asked by the union of operating employees—the union of operating conductors and switchmen.

Of the 23 railroads in the south, Enoch said, one incurred a deficit in 1936, five lost money in 1936 and 13 would have had deficits if the wage boost had been in effect last year.

Four Oaks Citizens Request ABC Store

Raleigh, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The liquor commission took under advisement today a request for an ABC store at Four Oaks, Johnston county.

About 15 persons appeared in favor of the store and about an equal number opposed it, Cutler Moore, chairman said.

"We will not take any action until we hear from the Johnston County ABC board, Chairman Moore said, adding "we have not had any request from the Johnston board."

Sir Hubert Again Starts On Search

Fairbanks, Alaska, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Sir Hubert Wilkins, noted Arctic explorer sped toward the polar regions today in a hunt for the six Soviet trans-polar airmen missing 13 days.

His Soviet-owned flying boat left Coppermine Northwest Territory at 9:15 last night (EST) on a second attempt to locate the fliers, who vanished on a 4,000 mile flight from Moscow to Fairbanks and Oakland, Calif.

Doctor Admits Guilt Failing Report Birth

Chicago, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Dr. John Anthony Rose, who attended the birth of Donald Horst, 31 months ago, pleaded guilty today on a charge of failing to report Donald was born to Mrs. Lydia Nelson Lavin.

Chief Justice John Sonstebj fined the doctor $25 and costs.

Very first step in the matter was

Investigation Launched Into Disaster At Badin

SHERIFF TELLS OF CONFESSION

Declares White Man Admitted Killing Aged Negro

Goldsboro, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Sheriff Paul Garrison of Wayne county testified in Superior court here today that Earl Sasser, 41, who with Earl Sasser, 38, is charged with the pistol slaying of Jim Williams, aged Negro, confessed to him he fired the fatal shot.

The sheriff's testimony came just before the state rested its case at 11:41 a. m. Judge Henry Grady of Clinton, then recessed court until 2 p. m.

Deputy Sheriff H. B. Gardner and Lawyer B. Ridley, Johnston county Negro, also testified.

Sheriff Garrison quoted Exum as saying he and Sasser went to Williams' shack near Fremont last April 2 to rob an iron safe which, according to rumor, contained a large sum of money.

Williams made a sudden lunge as if to attack the pair, Garrison said Exum told him. Exum, the sheriff testified, told him he then shot the aged hermit twice.

Defense counsel sought to strike out the sheriff's testimony on the grounds it had been illegally obtained and that the defendants had been denied the right to obtain counsel, but Judge Grady overruled the motion.

Bancroft Moseley On Way Home After Trip

Bancroft Moseley, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Moseley of this city, who is travelling with the Georgia Caravan company from Atlanta, writes interestingly of his trip in Mexico, where he visited Monterey, Mexico City and the western coast, taking a boat ride on the Pacific.

Mr. Moseley spent a week at Santa Monica, Calif., and is now returning via Yellowstone National park, Salt Lake City and Reno. He will arrive home September 1.

taken at the 1937 session of the assembly when a resolution was passed authorizing the governor to appoint a commission to study the whole matter of local legislation and directing the commission to report at the 1939 session. To date, however, Governor Hoey has not named the members of this group and there is no indication that he will be in any hurry to do so.

The municipalities are interested in the matter chiefly for the reason that they see a fine chance to get more "Home Rule" in the event local legislation is banned, because the plan they have in mind would provide very broad general powers for every municipality, and would enable them to do almost anything in a government way, subject only to the approval of voters of the town or city involved.

COURT REFORM STILL IN MIND OF PRESIDENT

Further Reorganization Aim of Administration

FIRST STATEMENT SINCE DEFEATED

Chief Lists Omissions In Signing Bill Providing Changes In Lower Courts.

Washington, Aug. 25.—(AP)—President Roosevelt served notice today that some reorganization of the Supreme Court remains an aim of his administration.

He made his first public statement on the court situation since congress shelved his demand to enlarging the high tribunal by one new member for each present justice over 70 who did not retire.

The statement came with a White House announcement Mr. Roosevelt had signed a measure providing for changes in judicial procedure in the lower courts. Out of the long and bitter fight over the court bill these proposals alone were retained and enacted.

The President said the lower court bill "registers a moderate and limited advance into a field which calls for a further and more complete exploration."

He listed as being "on the side of omission" the fact the bill "leaves entirely untouched any method of relieving the burden now imposed on the supreme court."

This he then included as one of the objectives which he said "are of a necessarily a part of any complete and rounded plan for the reform of judicial processes."

Meanwhile Secretary Ickes announced President Roosevelt's approval of 117 FWA projects in 32 states.

The PWA said the grants approved today, totalling $14,247,577, were for projects for which appropriations have been made by state legislatures. Construction to cost $31,681,851, the PWA said, would result from the grants which included the following projects:

Chapel Hill, N. C. University building, $184,905; Elizabeth City, N. C. building, 688,181; Fayetteville, N. C. buildings, $70,110; Greensboro N. C. buildings, $55,636; dormitory, $61,363.

The men were working between two high tension wires when suddenly there was a terrific crash, Book said, and the workers toppled over. The building was not damaged.

Doctors said C. C. Beaker, Harley Eber Everhart, L. W. Ownings and A. W. Love were expected to recover.

Funeral Rites For 17-Year-Old Girl Conducted Today

Miss Gladys Ruth Williams, Student at Robersonville High School, Succumbs to Illness

Funeral services for Miss Gladys Ruth Williams, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augusta R. Williams of the Oak Grove community in Martin county, were conducted at the home this afternoon by Elder W. E. Grimes, assisted by Rev. J. M. Perry, both of Robersonville.

Burial was in the Robersonville cemetery. Miss Williams was a student at the Robersonville high school and pall bearers were chosen from boy members of her class, with girls in the class serving as flower girls.

Miss Williams was a member of one of Martin county's oldest and most prominent families. Besides her parents, she is survived by five sisters, Mrs. R. A. Ro buck of Robersonville, Mrs. Jesse Strickland and Mrs. Allan Hand of Bamberg, S. C., Mrs. Erwin Roberson of the home, and Mrs. Sam Robinson of Dallas, Texas, and five brothers, Ashley Williams of Washington, N. C., T. B., Harvey and James Williams of Robersonville, and Paul Williams of Burlington.

Exploding Chinese Mines Prevent Japanese Troops From Landing In Shanghai

PARENTS VIEW EMPTY CARRIAGE

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lucas, whose three-month-old baby daughter Diane, was reported to police as stolen at Chicago, view the carriage from which the child was allegedly taken. Mrs. Lucas told police the infant was kidnapped from the carriage while she was shopping.

Shanghai, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The explosions of hidden Chinese mines and withering fire from secret machine gun nests riddled Japanese regular army landing parties today and prevented at least temporarily the debarkation of 42,000 Japanese troops for the Shanghai war.

War maps found on a captured Japanese officer disclosed a Japanese plan to land troops along the entire Chinese coast and then advance on Shanghai for the final drive to wipe out Chinese forces.

Apparently furious because of the setback, Japanese demolished Chinese villages along the Yangtze with a naval barrage and scores of aerial bombs.

The villages were death traps. The countryside was as barren as a cemetery.

With the Japanese offensive against Shanghai at least temporarily paralyzed, distant Chinese batteries smashed at Japanese warships in the Whangpoo and Yangtze.

The Chinese artillery fusillade drove the U. S. destroyer Parrott from its post off Gough Island, where it was guarding the Texas oil plant near the confluence of Yangtze and Whangpoo rivers.

Great fires raged meantime in three sections of Shanghai.

Some foreign observers estimated the toll in the two weeks of fighting in and about Shanghai as more than 100,000 killed and wounded.

Shuff Case Nears Close As Lawyers Offer Arguments

City Being Sued for $15,000 in Damages Allegedly Suffered by Mrs. Hattie P. Shuff

Arguments in the $15,000 damage suit brought against the city by Mrs. Hattie P. Shuff for injuries she is alleged to have suffered when she stepped into a hole in front of Sheppard Memorial Library in February of 1935, consumed the entire day in Pitt Superior Court here today.

The plaintiff rested just before the luncheon recess yesterday and the defense put on its evidence during the afternoon. Arguments were begun this morning with J. B. James being the first to argue to the jury. He was followed by F. C. Harding, who also completed before the luncheon recess. Raleigh B. Lee also of the defense staff, did not address the jury.

When court resumed after luncheon today only the argument of Judge Albion Dunn, representing the plaintiff, remained before Judge W. C. Harris of Raleigh, was to charge the jury and give the case to the 12 men for deliberation.

A number of other important cases are scheduled to be heard in this term of civil court, but it is likely only a few will be heard as the Shuff trial took up half of the one week allotted to civil cases.

A week of criminal court is scheduled for next week. Judge Harris also will preside over this.

Heavy Rains Fall In N. C. Mountains

Mt. Airy, N. C., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Heavy rains in the mountains north of here washed out several dams and flood lowlands today.

Lowlands in the western section of the city were flooded and farm lands along three creeks suffered heavy damage.

The Mount Airy-Law Gap highway was blocked by rising water and the city's reservoir was threatened, but officials thought there was little danger to the water supply after walls were reinforced.

MODES of the MOMENT

By ADELAIDE KERR

How's Your Health?

Carbuncle Caution
The term carbuncle describes the condition it names. For carbunculus, meaning in Latin a small coal, was formerly applied to various stones of a red or fiery color (a small glowing coal) such as sapphires, rubies or garnets.

Medically the term carbuncle describes a local inflammation affecting the skin and underlying tissue. The process is usually circumscribed. It appears like a bunched group of boils.

The immediate cause of carbuncle is some pus-producing organism, usually of the staphylococcus variety, which has gained entrance into the deeper layers of the skin and has there taken a foothold. Important too, are the predisposing causes, including general debility, foci of infection, diabetes, disease of the kidneys.

Every individual who suffers from a carbuncle therefore requires not only expert treatment for this painful and dangerous condition, but also a thorough medical examination to discover what predisposing constitutional factors may exist.

Men are more liable to carbuncles than women; those in the later years of life are more susceptible than the young.

The most common sites for carbuncles are the neck, back, shoulders, buttocks, face and abdominal walls. The most dangerous carbuncles are those developed on the scalp and face, particularly those on the upper lip and cheek.

The most valuable counsel to give the lay person on carbuncles is to let them strictly alone. Don't handle them, puncture them, squeeze them or treat them roughly in any manner whatsoever.

As an emergency treatment, remove all pressure—by clothes—from the carbuncle and the surrounding skin. Keep the parts involved at absolute rest, even if that implies putting the patient to bed. Call a doctor promptly, especially if there are signs of fever, chills or prostration (great weakness).

The carbuncle is not a condition that may be safely treated by "home remedies."

Winterville Boys Set Up Good Record at White Lake

Winterville, Aug. 25.—A large number of the Winterville high school students spent last week at the Y. T. H. F. camp at White Lake. The Young Tar Heel Farmers' camp is owned and operated by the agricultural boys of North Carolina. It consists of twelve cottages, each of which accommodates about thirty boys, one guest cottage, one large dining hall and a large athletic field.

A recreational program under the supervision of two specially trained athletic directors and the agricultural teachers provide ample exercise and keen competition for the boys each day during the week.

The boys may take food or pay a fee to take care of their board for the week. The food is prepared by hired cooks under the supervision of a dietitian.

The camp is open from June 1 to August 31. One hundred and forty-nine schools have attended camp this summer, with an enrollment of over two thousand boys.

The schools represented are rated on ten events, each having a possible score of 25 points. Twelve schools were present last week, with an enrollment of 250.

Winterville's score for the week was as follows:
Baseball 25; soft ball 25; volleyball 15; horseshoe pitching 5; swimming 9; clean cottage 25; roll call 25; stunts 20; attendance 20; conduct 25.

This totals 194 points which is the third highest score made by any school attending camp this summer.

Those attending camp from Winterville were: Donald Bowling, Brooks Cox, V. T. Corey, Ola Forrest, Herbert Forrest, Howard Hazleton, Paul Hunsucker, Graydon Jackson, H. J. Jolly, Thomas Langston, Charlie Little, A. D. McLawhorn, R. H. McLawhorn, Jack McLawhorn, James Moxingo, James Moye, Manning Nobles, H. W. Nobles, Norman Peede, G. W. Peede, Jesse L. Rollins, Powell Speight, Lloyd Stox, David Taylor, Belvin Tucker, Kermit Tyson, Dow Waters, Dallas Whitford, D. L. Williams, Jarvis Worthington, Marvin Worth-

STUBBORN HANOVER MARE PERFORMS FOR ALMA, JUST 11

ALMA AND NIMBLE HANOVER

By LEO W. SHERIDAN Hanover, Pa.—(AP)—Little Alma Sheppard can't understand why so much fuss is being made just because she drove Nimble Hanover, 4-year-old mare, to a remarkable 2:09 1/2 for a mile. "Why, I didn't do anything; the horse did it," the 11-year-old girl protests.

was hitting a 2-minute clip in the stretch. The inevitable happened—the trotter broke, changed her gait to a gallop. Alma brought her gait in hand sharply, but the mare, finally back in stride, slowed up and the mile was timed in 2:10 1/2.

A week later she drove the mare to a 2:09 1/2. Everybody cheered and applauded. Alma drove on to the stable. Admiring friends and camera men found her there—rubbing down the mare.

Little Miss Sheppard had her first ride behind a trotter when she was 4 years old. Tom Berry, noted rider, used to hold her on his lap as he jogged around the track. Alma was driving her own sulky, a year later.

The federal, state, county and local governments have sunk that much money in materials since WPA started, says Aubrey Williams, Harry Hopkins' deputy. But, he adds, the federal government shouldered most of the burden, or about 69 per cent.

THE BIG DAY

Tomorrow is the big day in Greenville and other Eastern North Carolina cities where the season's first tobacco sales take place. The opening of the bright leaf tobacco markets is a day looked forward to with great interest and varied emotions by the people of this section. Depending as it does upon the sale of tobacco this section each year awaits eagerly the opening of the tobacco markets for upon the trend of this market the hopes of this section rise or fall.

The crop in this immediate section this year is above the usual from the standpoint of quality and yield, and based upon prices paid on the Georgia, South Carolina and Border markets, opening prices here should be satisfactory. The residents are eagerly awaiting the cry of the auctioneers tomorrow. If the price is good there will be jubilation, for it will mean good business for all lines during the fall and winter months, but if the price is low it will be a far different story, for already the growers have let it be known that if prices are below what is considered a fair return for their labors they will call for a market holiday until such time as they can be assured of fair prices.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Aug. 25.—North Carolina does not suffer so much from rail rates differentials as do sister states of the "Deep South," in the opinion of Stanley Winborne, utilities commissioner, because the haul into the state from other rate areas is not so long.
"All the states of the far south suffer worse than we do," he said. "Except Florida which has the advantage of water rates."
"That what we would like to have in North Carolina, but we never have been able to get shippers to use our ports," he added.
Asked why North Carolina's ports were not used more than they are, Mr. Winborne said he believes that they are so far from the interior of the state that shippers of the north might just as well ship direct to Piedmont and western North Carolina by rail, thereby saving time and transportation at the North Carolina port.

Analysis has been made of more than one hundred brands of liquor without a single sample being found wrongfully labeled, according to Cutler Moore, state liquor board chairman.
"All of them have been right up to standard," he said, "but we expect to keep a close watch, particularly on the cheaper brands. There is much more danger of their being mis-labeled than in the case of the higher priced liquors."
Analyses are made at the department of agriculture and the State college laboratories without charge, Mr. Moore said, but often county boards have their own analyses made locally because it is cheaper to do so than it would be to send the samples to Raleigh.

"To control pine beetles, clear away pine debris within a diameter of two inches or larger," says R. H. Page, Jr., assistant extension forester at State college. "Smaller limbs

PERSON-GARRETT TOBACCO COMPANY

This company was organized here in 1915, taking over the business of T. A. Person and Company. Mr. Person resigned from the active management of the company in 1921 and at that time R. M. Garrett was elected president and J. R. Hodges vice-president, a position which they still hold with the company.

During the past season the company enlarged its plant by approximately 2,000 feet of floor space, giving them approximately 160,000 square feet of floor space and a redrying capacity of 165 to 175 hogsheads per day.

The plant is well equipped with modern machinery for redrying, cleaning and packing tobacco for the domestic and foreign trade. In addition to their factory they have large storage houses.

The buyers who will represent this company on the local market this season are: E. J. Garrett, head buyer; W. S. Bost, Robert Arthur, Ray Walters and P. E. Wells.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Crooner

Washington, Aug. 25.—That old relief headache has bobbed up again on capitol hill and seems to be digging in to welcome the Congress back in January.

Congress and the relief problem are a little like the cranky mountaineer who peered out his cabin door at the mob of youngsters in the yard and shouted:

"Those o' you belong t' me, get in the house. And those o' you don't, git on home."

Congress is just that confused a father to the unemployed, although it has shoveled billions down the chute to them in the last four years.

Actually, the "unemployed" have never been defined. They were such a hungry lot in 1933 there was no time to do it, and it hasn't been done yet.

Is a widow who makes $4 a week embroidering dollies at home unemployed if she can't feed her brood on that $4? Is a youngster who was graduated in 1935 and never found a job unemployed? How unemployed is a man who gets $200 a year from a canning factory but can't make it stretch the whole 12 months, and can't find another job?

It's Nothing New
In the year ending June 30, WPA spent $1,899,000,166 on jobs for 1,656,573 people. More millions poured through the social security sieve to poverty-stricken blind aged and children. Still more millions are keeping the CCC boys off the ratifiers.

Yet every congressman's mail has pleas from people who can't find any government cash-register open to them, and can't find a job.

To make matters more complicated Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia keeps loudly demanding a balanced budget.

There's a faint hope on the hill that maybe relief bills could be cut if the relief problem could be reduced to a simple system. In the last few weeks several efforts in that direction have bobbed up to remind Congress that "the poor, ye have always with you."

Census Proposed.
Just a few weeks ago the newly named Associate Justice Hugo L. Black pushed through the Senate a bill to take a census of the unemployed. He wants it "on or before" April 1, 1938. It is estimated the census would cost $5,000,000.

Immediately General Hugh S. Johnson, who engineered the war draft, denounced the plan as clumsy and needlessly expensive. He wants all relief cases to register on a given day.

Then Johnson's argument was popped by trained relief workers. They say some people would register at four or five different places just to be sure they got relief.

There have been other congressional eruptions of the problem. In the House, Rep. Maury Maverick of Texas rounded up 28 others to sponsor a bill asking for an unemployment commission to investigate the whole subject of destitution and to report back when Congress meets again.

In the Senate an unemployment investigating committee is planning hearings in the fall. They will report when Congress convenes again.

As a result the congressional bill-of-fare for 1938 bids fair to dish up relief. And with the 1938 elections around the corner that may look to congressmen like a sensible diet.

Carolina Sales Wins Sixth Game To Cop Championship

TAKE SERIES IN 8 TO 2 GAME

First Half Winners Cop Series, Four Games to Two

The Carolina Sales softball team yesterday afternoon clinched the championship, four games to two in a scheduled seven game play-off series between the Sales and Tadlock Mutual Insurance agency.

Yesterday's contest was won, 8-2 when the winners scored all of their runs in the fifth. With the exception of this fatal frame, the battle was another pitchers' duel between D. N. E. Ward of Tadlock's and R. Try Burnette of the Carolina Sales. The losers scored their two runs in the sixth.

In Tadlock's fifth Roebuck and Hatem singled and Burnette stepped up and douted a homer. Not satisfied with this for a lead the Sales team proceeded to add five more as the Tadlock players went wild momentarily.

In the sixth Tadlock's men started off as if they, too, meant business, but the rally was cut short at two runs and no more scoring was allowed during the game. The losers scored their two runs on a walk, error and singles by Dr. Barrett and Brock Burnette, hurling for Carolina Sales, then shut down and got the third man out to cut the rally short.

Throughout the series practically every game has been a duel between Ward and Burnette. Besides pitching a fine brand of ball, each has done some fancy hitting which had much to do with the outcome of the several games.

The series brought a good brand of ball from all members of the two teams and especially outstanding play was exhibited. Besides Dr. Ward, Rainolds May at short stop, Dout West at third base and Doug West serving as general utility man, showed up, especially good for the losing team.

Burnette also received good support from his entire team, but Roebuck, first baseman, has looked good both at bat and in field. Also Howard Waldrop, third baseman, Joe Gattin, short stop, L. O. Hamilton, catcher, and Joe Hatem, second fielder, have played an unusual good brand of ball to aid in winning the city championship.

As a reward for winning the title, Carolina Sales players will be entertained at a barbecue feast at a date and place to be selected later. The Tadlock team will provide the feast.

Bo Farley and Jo Proctor served as umpires throughout the entire series and kept the players well under control. The two officials provided a big factor in the orderly and peaceful manner in which the six games were played.

Martins and Bears In Tie Game Yesterday

Williamston, Aug. 24.—The New Bern Bears rallied for two runs in the ninth inning to gain a 7-7 tie with the Martins in a game halted by darkness after nine innings.

Although the "no-decision" cut a half-game from the Bears' lead over Ayden Aces, who stopped the Snow Hill Billies, the result put the Bears into position to clinch the fourth berth in the post-season playoff by a victory in one of the three games on their schedule before the close of play on Friday.

The Bears margin over the Aces is now three games.

Bull Hamons, usually a mystery to the Martins, started on the hill against Ray Strunk today as Doc Smith and the Bears opened their effort to land in the title series.

But though Bull buffaloeed them for awhile, and his mates gave him a 5-2 lead in four innings, he couldn't keep the secret, and the Martins tied things up in the sixth, and added a pair off Stuart Flythe in the seventh, apparently clinching the game.

But the Bears got warm again in the ninth. Larry Wade, who had relieved Strunk in the fourth, disposed of Flythe and Tex Thompson and got the count at 2-all on Dougless. But the little firstsacker poked a single into left, and Glenn Mullinax came through with a triple. A moment later Mullinax brought in the tying run on a wild throw by Steve Lakotas at second.

The Martins threatened in their half of the ninth. Flythe, pitching in his third game in three days, gave Don Victoria a single, and he reached second on a passed ball. Ace Villepique fled out but Catcher Melchor dropped the ball on a third strike on Lakotas, and Lakotas took first, and Victoria second. Wade laid down a bunt but Flythe tossed Victoria out at the plate, then fanned Howard Earp to end the game.

Despite frequent errors, the game offered numerous sparkling bits of defensive play. Mullinax once backed up to the school building in center to rob Bruce McCay of an apparent safety, and Lakotas started a double play that squelched a strong New Bern threat.

Opium Users Get Tourist Licenses

Shanghai, China, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Tourist licenses will be issued for traveling opium smokers in Greater Shanghai. They are being put out to help officials keep track of addicts.

The city government has a plan that calls for the extermination of the narcotic evil by 1940. Smokers have been required to register and pay a fee. Each year the license must be renewed and the addict's allotment of drugs diminished.

SECOND TO NONE

Spot & Slants

By PAP

When players get together usually they talk about one thing—baseball. At a recent fanning bee, Eddie Collins was asked how present day ball players compared with the old timers.

The greatest second-baseman of them all did not hesitate. It was his opinion there were plenty of players in the major leagues today who could hold their own with yesterday's stars.

Collins singled out Charlie Gehringer, the Detroit Tigers' second-baseman.

"Gehringer is as good a ball player as any of the old timers," he said. "There isn't any department of the game he falls short in. He is a dependable fielder, even a great fielder I might say. Certainly his batting record over a long stretch stamps him a standout on offense. What ancient had more to offer?"

It was a striking tribute from the "champion" of all second sackers. No one will deny Gehringer deserves the kind words. Only once in the last 11 seasons has he fallen below the 300 mark. In 1932 he hit .298. His big league lifetime batting average is .325. Several times in recent years he has battled the leaders for the individual swat crown right down to the wire.

In the blue ribbon events such as the World Series and the all-star games Gehringer has hit extremely well. His World Series average, covering 13 contests, is .377.

About the only thing one might say against Gehringer is that he lacks color. He does his job so well and with so little apparent effort that the fans in the stands take him for granted. They expect him to make great plays with no apparent effort. Chances are they will continue to accept his outstanding playing in the same spirit until he starts to slip. Then they'll wonder what happened to him. Gehringer is 34. But at the rate he is moving there are several good seasons still in his system.

Snakes Bite Eagles; Ayden Wins Battle Hits Total 23 Bases Of Homers, 12 To 9

Kinston, Aug. 24.—Snake Henry's Tarboro Serpents went to town against the Eagles here today. They collected two homers, two triples, one double and 10 singles for an 8-6 victory.

It was Sidney Stringfellow Day at the local park, and the star Eagle utility man played a different position each inning. He started on the mound, and wound up in right field. He gave one hit, handled four chances perfectly, and failed to get a hit in total.

Krim Bess took over the mound for the Eagles at the start of the second inning, and the Snakes gave him a mighty bad time. They pushed over five runs and all but clinched the game. Bill Sekeres, who relieved Bess in the next frame was touched for the deciding blow, a home run by Frankie Ware. Jim Tatum put on the clincher by reaching Sekeres for a homer in the fifth that wound up the scoring.

Claude Wright poled a homer in the second inning that gave the Eagles a temporary lead of 2-1, but then came the third—and five runs for the Serpents. The Eagles spurred for three runs in the fourth but it was too late.

A six-run blast in the seventh brought the Aces from behind and clinched victory. The big blow of this drive was a triple by Jirak with the bases loaded.

Manager Monk Joyner of the Aces and Bistoff offered the game's fielding features.

Eight home runs were blasted during the game, with the Billies' Hyder, and the Aces' McCormick leading the way with a pair apiece. The blows were McCormick's 22nd and 23rd of the season.

In the second inning Pitcher Hruska of the Billies homered with the bases loaded, and Hyder got his first, to feature a five-run rally, that gave the Billies a 5-2 lead. Latham homered for the visitors in the fourth; Hyder connected again in the seventh, and in the same frame, Joe Bistoff poled his 23rd of the campaign.

For the Aces, Corrado hit for the circuit in the second, with one on, and McCormick homered in the second and sixth.

A six-run blast in the seventh brought the Aces from behind and clinched victory. The big blow of this drive was a triple by Jirak with the bases loaded.

Goldboro, Aug. 24.—Dutch Moser set the Goldbugs down with five hits this afternoon as the Greenville Greenies scored a 7-1 victory that wrecked the Bugs' hopes of a place in the post-season series. Moser fanned 10.

The Greenies got to Charlie Davis, rookie from Liberty, making his debut in pro ball, and Pete Kunis or only six hits, but a five-run rally in the second—featured by Buck Jarvis' homer—was far more than enough for the Greenies to win.

Jarvis' homer followed a single by Rudisill, and it meant the end for Davis, Kunis came in and the Greenies put together a hit batsman ticket, an error by Roper, a double by Swamp Norwood and an infield out for three runs. Norwood's blow came very close to being a homer—the ball hit the top of the fence and rolled back into the park.

From then on, the Greenies got to the hard-worked Kunis for only two hits—doubles by Andy Johns and Rudisill—that brought in the Greenies' last run in the eighth.

The Bugs' lone marker came in the eighth: singles by Ignasiak, Gadd and Daniels and a walk to Maisano.

Norwood and Rudisill, each with a pair of hits, were the only players to connect safely more than once.

Friday will be Clarence Roper Day at the local park, in honor of the Goldbug's manager.

BY HULBERT FOOTNER

SYNOPSIS: Neill, a young federal agent, comes to Baltimore to spend a week with Janet. She won't break a dinner date with Prescott Fanning. So they quarrel and part. Neill, distrustful Fanning, decides to check on him. He gets acquainted with him at the hotel bar. Fanning gives him knock-out drops, searches his papers and keeps a snapshot of Janet. Next day Neill awakens and Janet, Fanning and Fanning's yacht gone. A mysterious phone call tells him Janet is aboard the yacht in Absalom's Harbor and in trouble. Neill hurries to Absalom's by bus.

Chapter Eight

Murder On The Nadji

RETURNING to the porch of the sprawling store, Neill sat down at the end of the line of men taking their ease and enjoying their after-supper pipes. Sun-burned fishermen mostly, in gumboots and faded drill shirts. Neill learned that fishing was good and that pound nets were being set out in the bay. The trout had come earlier than was customary.

None of this was to his purpose, and he studied the yacht. Very smart and modern with her high sides and stubby funnel. Something under a hundred feet over all. She carried two boats on davits amidships, and he noted that one of them was gone. As darkness gathered it seemed odd to him that no lights showed in the cabins. The riding lights were up.

The man next to Neill was a tall fisherman with white hair and a complexion the color of beet juice. "That's a tidy little yacht yonder," Neill remarked to him. "So you might say. She's the latest caper all right. But ugly as hell, if you're asking me."

"Is she owned hereabouts?"

"Nah! We got no toys like that down here. We're working people. New York man." He told Neill of the accident to the yacht's engine.

"Is the owner aboard?"

"Sure, he's aboard."

"I see their dinghy is ashore."

"The crew just come in to go to the movies."

Neill grinned in hard satisfaction. Owner aboard; crew ashore. The situation was working out to his advantage.

Another man hearing them talking about the yacht, took up the tale. "The owner was in the store telephoning awhile ago. Fine-looking, big slicker; fresh-complected. But surly. Didn't have a word to throw to a dog."

Neill took heart from this. If things were going badly with Fanning, so much the better.

"You're right he's a surly brute," said another. This was a lanky fellow with an innocent blue eye. Neill noticed that the others were inclined to make a bit of him.

"I rowed out there with a mess of trout, thinking they'd be glad to buy some fresh fish," he said. "But when I came alongside the owner, he ordered me off. 'Get the hell away from here,' he says. 'I don't want any damned fish!'"

"That was manners," said another. "What did you say, Jake?"

"I says, 'Go to hell yourself if you long-legged so-and-so! I'm as good a man as you, if you do own a yacht. And if you'll come ashore, I'll prove it!'"

There was a general laugh.

"All right," the speaker went on. "I told you before and I tell you again there is some funny business aboard that yacht, and we ought to investigate it!"

More laughter.

"As if She Wanted Help"

"WHAT do you mean, funny business?" asked Neill.

"I'll tell you, stranger. When I come alongside the yacht I was standing up in my skiff and I could look right into one of the port-holes. All closed they was, warm as it is. And on the other side of the glass I seen a beautiful young girl with bare arms and neck. Only seen her a second, but she nodded her head, and beckoned pitiful as if she wanted help real bad."

Neill's breast was suddenly lightened. Janet was aboard the yacht, then; he had come to the right place. And she was not a willing passenger, either. That relieved his worst fear. He felt a gush of friendliness towards the speaker.

But he, it seemed, enjoyed no reputation for veracity among his mates. They laughed him down. "You're seeing things, Jake. You're wasted fishing. You ought to be one of these here, now, story-writers in the papers."

"All right! All right!" said Jake. "Some day you men will learn that I'm not as big a fool as you like to make out!"

When it became really dark and the vessels in the harbor were no longer sharply silhouetted against the water, Neill got up and strolled away. Each house along the harbor front had its little pier sticking out from the shore with one or more small boats moored to it, and he had it in mind to borrow one of these without asking.

He turned to the right because in that direction the shore road rose somewhat. Here the little piers were under the bank, and screened from observation. Climbing down the bank, he walked out on a pier and found a skiff with oars in her. He got in and, untying the rope, rowed quietly toward the yacht.

The water was as smooth as a mirror, and voices came from the shore with startling distinctness. On the porch of Longcope's they were still talking about fish. Every star in heaven was shining. No moon. This moon was near its end, Neill remembered. Wouldn't rise until near dawn.

When he drew alongside the yacht, he hailed her, not loud. There was no answer. Tying his skiff to the ladder, he climbed on deck and spoke again. No answer. There was something about the stillness of the little craft that chilled his blood. Where was Janet? He walked forward along the deck and aft again, sticking his head in the different doors and speaking. There was no movement, no sound in reply. Everything aboard was neat and shipshape. The silence was not absolute, for somewhere below he could hear the hum of a generator.

There were two decks above the yacht. The forward house contained a luxurious little dining saloon, while the after house was merely the entrance to a companionway leading to the quarters below. Having satisfied himself that there was nobody forward, Neill switched on lights in the after house and went down the stairs with his heart rising in his throat.

His instinct told him there was something very wrong aboard. He found himself in a miniature saloon with doors forward and aft. The forward door admitted him to a comfortable sleeping cabin, empty. A man's belongings were scattered about. Fanning's? The after door was locked. It was a light door and, putting his shoulder against it, he burst it in.

A Dark Wet Stain

SWITCHING on lights, he saw Prescott Fanning lying on the floor at his feet, dead. There was a bullet hole in his forehead and a dark wet stain was slowly spreading through the rug under his head. Janet in her pretty evening dress was lying limply in an easy chair nearby. There was a crude smear of blood across her cheek. A gun lay on the floor beneath her hand, and a stale smell of gunpowder hung on the air.

Neill's heart stood still. He ran to the girl and flung his arms around her. Her body was warm; she breathed; there was no wound on her. Upon wiping her face, he saw that the blood was not hers. He crushed her to his breast, trembling in the reaction from his first terrible fear.

Leaving her for a moment, he dropped to his knees beside the body on the floor. Fanning was dead all right, but to Neill's astonishment there was still warmth in his body. If only he had come a few minutes sooner! He saw that the hole in his forehead was a wound of egress. He had been shot in the back of his head and the gun had been held so close that his hair was singed.

Neill glanced towards the door that he had burst in. Its key was on the inside. All the portholes were closed and fastened. To his mind there was only one possible explanation. Fanning had attacked Janet and she had shot him. Neill had no thought of blame for her; he approved her courage. Lucky that she had the gun. Where had she got it?

He carried her out into the saloon and laid her on a couch. There was a vacuum jug on a stand. He sprinkled water in her face and bathed her temples.

Meanwhile he had to make the greatest decision of his life. The trained sleuth in him said: She shot this man and we'll have to face it out together. She'll be acquitted of course. But the man in him thought of how she would be dragged through the mud—Janet whom he had always laughed at and loved for her delicate ways! And how after acquittal, fingers would forever point her out as a murderess. I don't care what the evidence is, the man in him said, she couldn't have done it. And I'm going to keep her under cover until I can prove it!

She opened her eyes and looked around so wildly and senselessly that Neill feared for her reason. "Janet!" he murmured. "This is Neill. Don't you know me, dear?"

Recognition came into her eyes, and like a frightened child she flung her arms around his neck. "Neill! Neill!"

"It's me, all right."

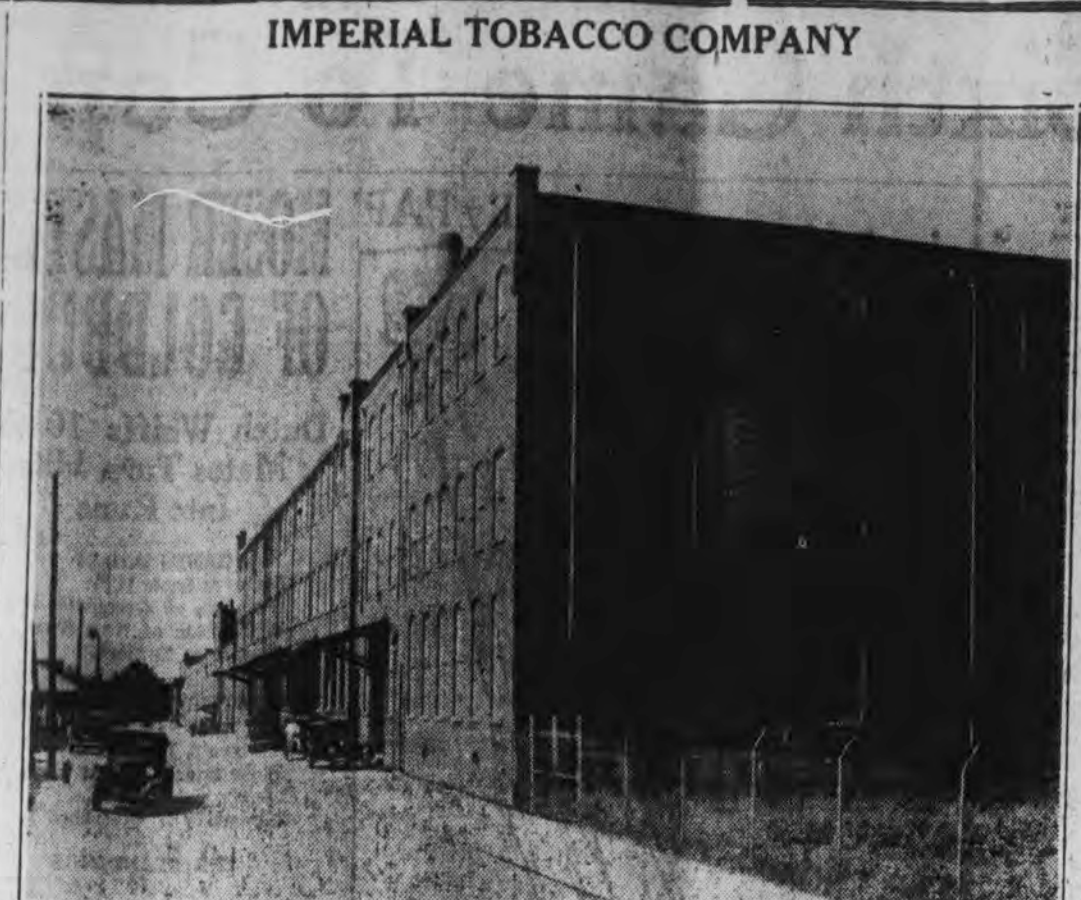

"You've come!" she murmured in a passion of relief. "I knew you'd come!"

He soothed her silently. "What happened?" she asked. "Let's not talk about it now, dear. I have you safe!"

"Oh, take me away from this horrible place!" she moaned. "Take me away! Take me away!"

One of the largest buying companies in the Greenville tobacco market is the Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain and Ireland, Ltd. This company has one of the most modern and largest plants in Eastern North Carolina for redrying and stemming tobaccos. The Imperial is one of the largest buyers of the Greenville tobacco market and buys exclusively for the export trade. Their mammoth plant which covers two city blocks and is three stories high, gives them a capacity almost unlimited. The Greenville branch is under the management of C. W. Shuff, who is ably assisted by a large number of buyers and factory managers. Among the buyers who will represent this company during the coming season are Bob Neal, W. D. ## HOEY TO SPEAK AT TEST FARM

Annual Field Day Is Planned at Willard September 9

Raleigh, Aug. 25.—Governor Clyde R. Hoey will be the principal speaker at the annual field day of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture's Coastal Plain Test farm at Willard, Thursday, September 9, Fred E. Miller, director of the department's test farms, announced today.

The field day will be the last of a series of summer meetings held at the department's test farms featuring agricultural research. The governor will be introduced by Charles M. Johnson state treasurer. Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott will deliver the address of welcome. Other speakers will include Dean I. O. Schaub, director of the agricultural extension service, State College; James M. Gray, associate regional director, Resettlement administration, on "Problems in Land Utilization"; D. S. Collins, assistant to Commissioner Scott, on the "New N. C. Seed Law"; Dr. J. S. Dorton, manager of the State Fair.

Charles P. Cates of Mebane member of the North Carolina Board of Agriculture, will be chairman of the occasion. Music will be furnished by the Goldsboro Municipal band under the supervision of J. R. Moore. A public address system will be used.

Contests, both educational and athletic will be a feature of the day. Valuable prizes will be offered in all contests.

A program for the women will be conducted in the afternoon, featuring an address by Miss Ruth Current, state home demonstration agent.

Field trips, demonstrations and exhibits will be conducted by the State Department of Agriculture and State College Extension service authorities.

FOOD COSTS UP 43.5 PER CENT SINCE '33

Washington—(AP)—Tip to housewives: If hubby wants to know what's happening to the food allowance, write to the National Industrial Conference board for the dope on changes in the cost of living for wage earners.

For one thing, the board will tell you that food costs in July of this year were 43.5 per cent higher than they were in that dark spring of '33.

most noiseless military airplane that Germany has developed an. Fifteen such machines flew over the Tyrol late in July, reportedly on the way for shipment to Spain.

Flares as big as these usually can be heard, even when 12,000 feet up, by persons on the ground, but a detection apparatus, rushed from Vienna, could pick up only a faint whisper.

Dictator's Flying Foster Daughter Carries Her Powder Puff To War

NEVER AFRAID IN THE AIR

MY BELOVED FATHER

flying instructors offer confirmation. In the air, they say, she never reveals the slightest emotion or weariness. Her powers of endurance are in fact, regarded as almost superhuman.

"In my opinion," says the French flying instructor at the Turkish air force school, "Sabiha Guekhen is the most gifted woman acrobatic pilot of the world."

Daughter of a captain in the Turkish army who, in 1921, lost his life fighting the Greeks in Asia Minor, Sabiha was adopted by Ataturk while still an infant. Her mother died shortly after her father was killed. She is well educated, and early revealed an inclination for physics and natural sciences. When she became interested in aviation she was sent to Russia for a course in flying and gliding. Her ambition then became that of a "flying soldier" and she was eventually admitted as a cadet in the army air force school of Eski Chehir where she underwent the regular course of training.

She now handles all types of planes; during the recent punitive expedition in the Dersim area she risked her life repeatedly in flying through storms and on raiding expeditions through the mountains. She bombed with the rest of the pilots.

Off duty she has all the normal interests of any girl her age. She is well versed in the ideas and principles of her foster-father. Questions about her views on modern women bring a gay little laugh and her words flow freely.

"My conception of modern womanhood is that of my beloved father, President Kemal Ataturk. The women of today must be free. They must have access to all careers once reserved exclusively to men. They must enjoy equal rights with men, become deputies and stateswomen, but remain good wives and mothers."

And Turkey's Flying Amazon powders her nose in emphasis.

EQUAL RIGHTS

Sabiha, as feminine as any girl could be and shay to boot, demands that women be on same footing as men.

A MILLION Bargains

WILL BE SOLD BY EFIRD'S

You Are Always Welcome At Greenville and Efird's

When the Efird boys left the farm to enter the mercantile business—they had but one idea in mind, and that was to buy merchandise in such large quantities that it could be sold for cash at lower prices . . . thereby saving their customers thousands of dollars each year. And that idea exists today . . . Efird's were the pioneers in the cash and carry business . . . reducing overhead to the minimum and giving the extra dividend to the customer . . . that's why we say, a million bargains will be sold at Efird's. The reason for such sales is, of course, due to the fact that people have learned years ago that they can buy quality merchandise for less money at Efird's. Be sure and get your share of these bargains. Visit us regularly and save.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The stock market trod a narrow path today. Steels climbed for a time, but lost energy toward the fourth hour. Specialties were in mild favor. The rest of the list wandered aimlessly.

The indifferent attitude of traders was shown by the fact 14 of the 20 most active issues were unchanged after an hour of trading.

Bonds were lower. Transfers approximated 550,000 shares.

Man About Manhattan

New York—Word that Fougita, the Japanese painter of cats, is living quietly on his estates near Tokyo and has no intention of returning to New York is sad news. It is indeed to be hoped that this lanky Oriental with "bobbed" hair, tortoise shell glasses, and Charlie Chaplin mustache changes his mind and comes back to us.

It was Fougita, with his French wife and his canvasses of nudes and animals, who enjoyed startling vogues in Paris and in New York. In Montparnasse he became best known of the foreigners and Japan's chief contributor to the bizarre and Bohemian element in the French capital. His pictures and his eccentric mannerisms created such a demand for his work that the Fougita dolls, caricaturing his bespectacled, owlish countenance, became the rage. New York knew him through his pictures of cats, exhibited at the Reinhardt Galleries, but it was his book on the feline species that introduced him to America at large.

One of the high points of Fougita's page-one career was his successful campaign to win a divorce from his French wife. He had, he said, been deeply insulted by her. "In what manner?" the French magistrate inquired. "Well, said Fougita, "she called me a Chinaman."

Another episode which plucked him from his oils and deposited him in the headlines was the rejection of a poster which he had been commissioned to paint for the artist's ball. This was to hang in Gare du Nord, but the critics denounced it as too daringly nude. According to the newspaper, Paris and Fougita were both shocked by this decision—Paris by the painting, Fougita by Paris!

Later, surrounded by reporters, Fougita said: "There would be nothing astonishing if this had happened in America or England—but France!" He let it go with a wave of his expressive hands.

But, much as he loved fame and the bright lights, Fougita was sincere in his devotion to cats. There was a time in New York when he linked arms with a friend and took him down to a tavern in the Village. "Come on and walk with me," he begged. "I have something wonderful to show you." The "wonderful" thing Fougita had in mind was a trio of plain little alley cats which had been born that week in the tavern.

But, there was no happy romp with the kittens. When they got there the inn-keeper said something to Fougita in French. Fougita sat down, an expression of bewilderment and sadness coming over him. Suddenly he buried his face in his hands. They were all dead.

Moscow—(AP)—The dramatization of Sinclair Lewis' novel, "It Can't Happen Here," has been picked by the newspaper, "Soviet Art," as worthy of production in Russia, with changes to make it form with Soviet political philosophy.

"One fault," the newspaper said, "is that the hero of the play does not realize the only real force able to guarantee victory in the anti-fascist struggle is the workers' class and the communist party."

FIELD EVENTS SET THURSDAY

Special Contests To Be Held Before the Game Tomorrow

Field Day will be observed at Third street stadium tomorrow afternoon immediately before the game between Greenville and Tarboro, the last home contest before the season closes Friday with the Greens playing in Tarboro.

Several events have been planned and they will be run off immediately prior to the game.

Prizes will be given by merchants of Greenville to the players who win the various contests. Among contests scheduled are: 100-yard dash, baseball throw, distance; baseball throw, accuracy; circling bases; fungo hitting, distance; and 100-yard race.

John Clark, J. D. Simpson and H. W. Duncan, all directors of the local club, will be in charge of the events. Judges will be Ty Wagner, Reynolds May and Bo Farley, all former members of the Greenville Club.

With the local players preparing to leave for their homes, a list of the players and their home towns will prove of interest to fans. The list follows:

Durward L. Stowe, manager, Greenville; Uriah S. Norwood, Norwood, N. C.; W. Andrew Johnson, Conyers, Ga.; Albert Pignataro, Salt Lake City, Utah; William C. Powell, Danville, Va.; Frank Thompson, Kenosha, Wis.; Don King, Atlantic, Iowa; John G. Rudisill, Lincoln, N. C.; John H. Delaney, Jr., Richmond, Va.; Homer R. Moser, Bally, Pa.; J.
