Port Of Shanghai Closed To Private U. S. Vessels By Order Of Authorities

ITALIAN SHIP HIT BY BOMBS

Second Mercy Vessel In Two Days Bombed, Increasing Peril To Civilian Life At Sea in Chinese Waters; Japanese Claim Capture of Woosung

Shanghai, Aug. 31.—(AP)—United States authorities closed the port of Shanghai today to all American ships except naval vessels, while the second air attack on a mercy ship in two days increased the peril to civilian life at sea in Chinese waters.

An air bomber of unknown identity power-dived and bombed the Italian operated steamer Lung Shan thronged with Chinese refugees. It created mad panic, but caused no damage.

The ship was bombed near Woosung north of Shanghai where the Whangpoo and Yangtze rivers flow together for the city's only waterway and only avenue of escape to the sea.

General Chiang Kai-shek, military and political commander of war-time China, in effect demanded immediate foreign intervention to end the hostilities.

Chiang warned at Nanking "Japanese aggression" to establish "a continental empire for herself" is a threat not only to the sovereignty of China, but also to "international safety."

The attack on the Italian ship followed by a day the bombing of the U. S. Dollar liner President Hoover by Chinese planes in the China sea off the Yangtze estuary. Chinese officials have accepted responsibility and have offered redress for the attack in which a seaman was killed, other sailors and passengers hurt and the ship's hull pierced by shrapnel.

On the Shanghai battlefield Japanese commanders declared their forces captured Woosung, 12 miles north of Shanghai at the outset of a "big push" against the city's Chinese troops.

Redress Proposed For Bombing Ship

Washington, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The Chinese government proposed to the United States today full financial and moral redress for the bombing yesterday of the Dollar liner the President Hoover.

Secretary Hull said profound regrets of the Chinese government and its offer to compensate was made through Ambassador Nelson Johnson at Nanking and Dr. C. T. Wang, ambassador from China, who called on Hull this morning.

Asked at his press conference if China's policy and statement were satisfactory to this government,

Hull said he was merely relating what had happened so far. He declined further comment.

Hull added, however, the United States deeply appreciated the promptness with which China accepted responsibility for the shelling of the liner and its accompanying apology.

The head of the Chinese government, Hull said, took special interest in all matters of the incident and promised the pilot of the Chinese air plane which attacked the Hoover would be court martialled and severely punished.

TAX ON SALES BOMB WRECKS NETS BIG SUM WEEKLY PAPER

Revenue Commissioner A. J. Maxwell today

Releigh, Aug. 31.—(AP)—North Carolina's revenue during August dropped $995,095.22 under the same month last year, but sales tax income went up and the decrease was due to a change in the law, said Revenue Commissioner A. J. Maxwell today.

The general fund brought in $2,939,744.53 this month, compared with $4,075,713.53 in August, 1936.

For two months the general fund totalled $6,411,677.96, a drop from the $9,978,321.16 collected in the similar period last year.

The motor vehicle division listed a gain of $140,872.78 for August. Receipts totalled $2,288,965.06 this month and $2,148,092.28 in August, 1936. The total for two months this year was a gain of $311,953.36 over last year.

Total receipts for August were $5,228,709.59, a drop of 15.99 per cent from August, 1936, and for two months the total was $10,939,931.15, down 22.93 per cent from the 1936 period.

Sales tax income in August, even though the new exemptions of basic food were allowed, totalled $844,050.13, compared with $808,094.97 last year.

Johnson Skeptical Over State Prison Industries

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Aug. 31.—It is extremely doubtful that North Carolina's State Prison will be the scene of any considerable number of industries.

Returning from a visit to the Federal penitentiary at Nashville and the Virginia penitentiary at Richmond, Robert Grady Johnson, who tomorrow will officially begin his duties as Director of the Penal Division, said that it costs approximately $1,000 per proposed worked to set up any industry; a fact which he said makes him very dubious of the prospects of establishing anything new at State's Prison here.

"If I had about a million and a half, like they had in Tennessee, to start industries, I could start something that would make money for the state; but I would also start something that would put a stop

COTTON LOANS TO BE MADE BY SEPTEMBER 15

Wallace Gives Starting Signal for 1937 Farm Program

EXPECT ACTION TO PEG PRICES

Commodity Credit Corporation Borrowing $150,000,000 To Finance Plan

Washington Aug. 31.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace today gave the starting signal for the government's 1937 program of cotton loans and notified growers their loans will be ready not later than September 15.

Participation in the loan-subsidy arrangement, designed to bolster prices on this year's large production, will be limited to growers who agree to comply with control measures to be enacted for next year's crop.

Wallace said the government will lend up to nine cents a pound on the 1937 crop, depending on the grades, and will grant subsidies of up to three cents a pound on 65 per cent of the growers' base production.

Cotton brokers generally expressed the opinion the loan program was "conservative" and gave assurance of a practically free market.

They said the fixing of a differential on lower grades was a safeguard against too heavy offerings of them on a basis above their comparative worth.

The Commodity Credit Corporation is borrowing $150,000,000 from the RFC to finance the cotton loans. Since cotton now is selling above the loan limit and the loans are expected to provide a market peg, officials said the government is not expected to be out much if any money on the loans.

LEAF AVERAGE $22.17 SO FAR

Total of 2,812,520 Pounds Sold Here First Three Days

Sales continued brisk and prices appeared about in line with those on previous sales days on the Greenville tobacco market today, the fourth of the 1937 season.

Yesterday the market set an average of $21.99 per hundred pounds. Offerings totalled 893,206 pounds and brought a total of $196,438.89. The average was below the opening day figure but some grades of tobacco were declared to have sold strong.

For the first three days of the present marketing season 2,812,520 pounds were sold, almost an average of one million pounds daily. The season's average was figured at $22.17 per hundredweight at the close of auctions yesterday afternoon.

Farmers selling tobacco on the Greenville market have been paid a total of $623,445.67 for their offerings.

Offerings this year are far above those for the first three days of auctions in 1936. The 2,812,520 pounds sold so far this season compare with 1,499,306 pounds for the same time last year. Estimates on how much of the leaf will be sold on the local market this year range from 60,000,000 to 65,000,000 pounds.

The season's average this year is slightly below that at the same time last year. The $22.17 for the first three days of 1937 compares with $22.27 at the close of the third day's sales last year.

The amount paid out this year, however, is far above that of last year.

Atlanta, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Georgia tobacco growers received $15,570,510.64 from their 1937 crop, or about $2,100,000 less than the record-setting 1936 revenue, the state department of agriculture reported today.

Both the average price and poundage will be below the 1936 figures.

The 79,523,530 pounds of Georgia grown tobacco this year sold at an average of 19.58 cents, compared to the 20.96 average for the 84,299,126 pounds last year.

With 3,718,231 pounds grown in other nearby states, total sales at the 16 marketing centers in Georgia this year were $3,247,761 pounds for $16,298,736.07.

Rocky Mount, Aug. 31.—(AP)—353,906 pounds of tobacco was sold here yesterday for an official average of $23.18. About 355,000 pounds were on the floors today.

Thirty-Five Passengers On Heavily-Loaded Bus Hurt As Vehicles Crash

SEVERAL FACE CAPITAL CASES

True Bills Found In First Degree Burglary Charges

Twenty Injured Taken to Hospitals At Goshen, Ind., Near Scene of Wreck, and at Least 15 Rushed to Other Nearby Cities

Goshen, Ind., Aug. 31.—(AP)—At least seven persons were reported to have been killed five miles north of here today in a crash of a heavily loaded transport (Greyhound) and a sedan.

Twenty injured were brought to hospitals here and at least 15 others reported to have been taken to nearby cities.

Three of the dead were identified as A. G. Carpenter, of Iowa City, Iowa; Mrs. James Kelleher, of Albany, N. Y., and Raymond J. Buskin of St. Louis.

Carpenter and Mrs. Kelleher were passengers and Buskin was a bus attendant.

The accident occurred at the intersection of roads 29 and 15. Witnesses said the sedan drove onto the main highway and crashed into the bus. The vehicle overturned, and came to a stop on its top. The sedan was demolished and the bus was damaged badly.

There were about 40 passengers on the bus.

The occupants of the sedan were unknown. A car was found in it, however, bearing the name "Allison Bishopp Manufacturing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio." It had other license plates.

The driver of the bus was Leo Callahan, 32, of Toledo.

Ambulances from Goshen and Elkhart were rushed to the scene and the dead and injured were hurried to hospitals, making immediate identification difficult.

4-H Member Tyson Wins First Prize In County Contest

Bell Arthur Youth Writes Article Discussing Project Declared "Best Carried Out in Pitt"

Albert French Tyson, member of the Bell Arthur 4-H Club, who was awarded a free trip to the annual Wildlife Conservation conference at Camp Swannanoa last week for having the best project in Pitt county, has prepared an article on his prize-winning work.

Headed "My Survey and Contribution to a Wildlife Conservation Program in Pitt County," the article follows:

"I took as one of my 4-H Club projects this year, Wildlife Conservation. I think the study of trees, shrubs, and flowers one of the most fascinating things I ever did. Heretofore, I knew trees of course, for since I live on the farm I was brought up with them. However, I never considered their names or uses, other than for timber, firewood and shade. Now I know which are beneficial to wildlife and will help to protect them. In studying trees, one also has a good opportunity to observe the ways of the woodfolk, both large and small, what they feed upon, their enemies, their home life, and their methods of protection. Since learning the value of birds and wild life animals I help to tide them over bad weather by scattering food for them and I do not envy them the small part of the crop they eat, as the good they are to farmers far offsets the bad. I also leave them unmolested during nesting seasons and insist that my chums do, too.

"In this project I found an opportunity to transplant native shrubs, root ornamental shrubs and cover unsightly fences with vines and running roses. I have a pretty flower yard and lawn. The lawn is kept mowed by sheep and my pretty Guernsey Club calf.

"Mother and I have an outdoor living room in mind, around this we expect to plant native shrubs and build bird houses and baths. My smaller brother and I, together with Father and Mr. Bennett, our County Agent, are trying to formulate plans for a fish pond and swimming hole in our pasture.

"Altogether, my club activities, helping Father, tending to my calf, taking a course in taxidermy, and working on my Wildlife Conservation Program, I have spent a very busy and happy vacation."

Planes Searching Lost Cadet Flier

Grapeland, Texas, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Fifteen low-flying army planes searched fields and forests over a wide area in central and east Texas today, seeking Cadet Guy Welton Edgerton, 24, missing since a storm last night disrupted a formation flight from Shreveport, La., to San Antonio.

Allen Supporters Claim Victory At YDC Meeting

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Aug. 31.—Arch T. Allen, young Raleigh attorney and one of Wake's representatives in the general assembly, will receive $25 of the approximately 600 votes to be cast for president of the North Carolina Young Democratic club at its Winston-Salem convention next week, it was predicted today by Tom Banks, another Raleigh lawyer who has been active in Mr. Allen's behalf.

"Maybe she will," Mr. Banks smilingly remarked when asked "Will Mae carry Maine and Vermont?" after he had made his sweeping victory claim. The questioner was referring to Miss Mae O'Leary, of Sanford, an active candidate for the post also sought by Mr. Allen.

The Allen forces have been conducting an intensive drive on all sectors of the Young Democratic political front and are unquestionably and cockily confident of vic-

BELVOIR-FALKLAND SCHOOL OPENS THURSDAY, SEPT. 2

The Belvoir-Falkland high school will open Thursday, Sept. 2 with two new departments added since last year. The school through its own efforts, with some aid from the County Board of Education, is adding home economics and manual training courses.

The home economics work is brand new. The teacher is Miss Thelma Whitehead of Elm City, who has been in the community for a few days getting things ready for the opening day. She will also teach some science.

The manual training department is under the direction of C. F. Wildman. The work was begun last year as a project and over two hundred dollars worth of equipment was accumulated. This year it becomes a regular course. A new 24x36 workshop, for which material has already been bought, will be built by the boys themselves as soon as school opens. Two additional power tools have been bought.

Two other new teachers will be at Belvoir this year: Miss Dorothy Brooks, second grade, and Miss Belle Kearney, French and Math in the high school.

For the first few weeks a short day schedule will be operated to enable those students who have to work at home, to attend every day. The first day school will open at 8:30 o'clock.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Film factory: On "Merry-Go-Round of 1938" Irving Cummings is directing Bert Lahr and Louise Fazenda in a comedy proposal scene, while Jimmy Savo looks on from the sidelines. Savo, getting a chance in pictures at last after his first film—the one he'd like to forget—is not working but is watching and studying. He figures he has a lot to learn about pictures.

When Louise accepts Lahr's proposal, she accepts in a big way, with and old-fashioned Theda Barish embrace that throws both of them off the divan to the floor. And the loudest laughter bursts from Irving Cummings.

Asked afterward if she couldn't control her early Mack Sennett training in these "dramatic" scenes, Louise laughs, gestures in Cummings' direction.

"I can," she says, "but the man I work for can't."

Films Speeding Up
William Gargan, who plays the fighter's manager in "Blonde Dynamite" says pictures have speeded up since this picture was first filmed in 1931 as "The Iron Man."

Bill out of curiosity saw the earlier film which was a popular talkie of its day. The players—among them Bob Armstrong, Lew Ayers, and the late Jean Harlow—all had to move slowly, a technical handicap due to the camera speed then prevalent.

What interested him more, however, was the fact that all the players looked and acted surly throughout the film. Those were the days when the microphone was new and movie actors were practically afraid to drop a syllable for fear some delicate valve would be shattered. Or it may have been the depression carrying over from reality into the world of make-believe. In this new version, Bill says, they'll have a lighter approach. Noah Beery, Jr., is the fighter, Dorothea Kent has the Harlow role, and Gargan has the part Armstrong played.

The director of the present effort, Milton Carruth, was cutter of the one Tod Browning directed...

Just Once More
On another stage Sylvan Simon, former test director and talent scout, is making his first feature picture, "Mightier Than the Sword." This is a light comedy drama about an heiress who wins a libel suit against a newspaper and finds it in her lap when the publisher is unable to pay. Wendy Barrie plays the heiress, Walter Pidgeon the publisher, and Kent Taylor the reporter who wrote the story that caused the suit.

Simon is a young director, who goes about his business and gets what he wants from his players as if entirely unconscious of the fact it is his first picture. After a "take" he says, "That's perfect, just fine—let's do it once more, and this time..."

REV. H.F. JONES CLUB SPEAKER

Former Greenville Pastor Addresses Rotary Meeting

"We need bigger men who will think in larger terms," Rev. H. Frederick Jones of Baltimore, Md., in addressing the Greenville Rotary club last night the "greatest vice we have in the world today—nationalism."

Rev. Jones told of the growth of monarchy following the temporary ascendancy of democracy in the world immediately succeeding the World War. He told how nations have wars and then lightly report them as "skirmishes." As the cure for such the speaker cited the "greatest internationalist of all times—Jesus Christ."

"We must develop a spirit of internationalism and to look upon the races as fellow human beings instead of giving way to narrow prejudices," he said. His remarks further exhorted the Rotarians to follow out their international idealism as set forth in their code.

Visiting Rotarians were Adrian E. Brown of Manteo; J. J. Sigwald of Wilson; guests of the club were Bruce Stuart of Norfolk, Va.; George Thomason, Greenville district B.S.A. new assistant Scout executive, Carl and Charles Pace, Rufus Keel won the attendance prize given by Wyatt Brown. The program was presented by the International Service committee.

PUBLIC DEBTS STILL ON RISE

Total of $3,021,641,000 Owed by 48 States in Union

Durham, Aug. 31.—An article by Dr. B. U. Ratchford of Duke University which appeared in The Analyst of August 28 finds that gross funded debts of the 48 states in 1936 amounted to $3,021,641,000, on which annual service charges were $247,698,000.

This represented an increase of approximately $428,000,000, or about 17 per cent, in the gross debt since 1932. Ten states, led by New York and Louisiana, were responsible for most of the increase. They borrowed chiefly for unemployment relief and highways. Six states, headed by Michigan and North Dakota, and including North and South Carolina, reduced their debts during this period. North Carolina, whose net debt of $164,543,000 was the third largest in the nation in 1932, ranked sixth in 1936 with a net debt of $143,183,000. New York, Illinois, California, Arkansas and Louisiana now have larger debts.

A consideration of debt burdens is one of the most significant parts of the study. Dr. Ratchford attempts to measure debt burdens by comparing per capita debts and debt service charges, with per capita retail sales for 1935. Using this method he finds that Arkansas and Louisiana have the heaviest debt burdens in the country. The seven states with heaviest burdens are all in the south with the exception of South Dakota. North Carolina ranks fourth in this respect.

The article also considers the purposes of state borrowing, kinds of bonds issued, their maturities, and short term loans. A little over 45 per cent of the debts outstanding in 1936 were incurred for highways, while unemployment relief and general state purposes were each responsible for slightly over 10 per cent. Dr. Ratchford points out that large amounts of state highway funds are being used to care for local highway bonds and for bonds issued by states for purposes other than highways. He also declares that the states are paying from 25 to 30 million dollars a year in interest which could have been saved by the use of callable bonds. Such bonds could have been called and refunded during the past few years at interest rates much below those now in effect. Another significant trend in state borrowing is the growing use of independent state agencies or commissions to issue bonds, which are not general obligations of the states. These are used largely to avoid constitutional restrictions. They are likely to lead to serious abuses and should be brought under control.

Dr. Ratchford is engaged in an exhaustive study of state debts preparatory to writing a comprehensive historical and analytical treatise on the subject.

Amusing

Baltimore, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Expressing amusement at reports he would not return to his post, Robert W. Bingham, ambassador to England, said today he would sail for London after conferring with

Secretary Hull and visiting relatives. "That report has been circulated about me each time I have come home," he said. "There is no truth in it."
"I have an appointment at 11:30 o'clock today to see Secretary Cordell Hull at his office in Washington."
"After that I shall see my grandchildren who are at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. I shall probably spend a day or two in Louisville, Ky and shall sail for London in two weeks."
The ambassador declined to comment on international affairs. He was a weekend guest of Dr. Hugo H. Young.

New Bern Defeats Snow Hill; Tarboroians Whip Martins

SNAKES NEED ANOTHER WIN

Single Victory Will Put Henry's Boys In Finals

Snow Hill, Aug. 31.—Bill Averette got the best of Cecil Longest in a hot mound argument yesterday afternoon, and the New Bern Bears scored a 3-1 victory to even the count with the Billies in their post-season series, at one game apiece.

Both pitchers were fairly stingy with base hits—Averette gave eight to seven off Longest—but they were free with passes. Averette walked seven and Longest passed half a dozen. But they could tighten with men on the bases—New Bern had nine runners left, and Snow Hill 10. Joyce pitched the last inning for Snow Hill and set the Bears down without a hit.

Douglass' homer in the opening frame put the Bears out in front at the start, and they added two more scores in the sixth, before the Billies could tally—to put the tilt "in the bag". In the sixth, Worley Knowles drew a walk, Bobby Stith singled, and both moved up on Thornton's sacrifice. Melchor's single scored Knowles, and after Osley went down, Averette came through with a single that brought in Stith.

The Billies lone run came in the seventh. Hyder singled, but was forced at second by Wall. Robinson and Bistoff singled in succession, and Wall came in.

The box score:

New Bern	Ab. R. H. O. A. E.

TARBORO WINS AGAIN

Williamston, Aug. 31.—Big Bob Cassell hurled Tarboro's Serpents to their second victory in the post-season semi-finals by turning back the Martins, 6-3. Jim Rollins did a good job for the Martins on the mound, but costly miscues wrecked his chances.

The Snakes need one more victory to move in the post-season finals. Henry with three safeties, led the Snakes' attack. Top men for the Martins were Stanley and Villipique, each with two.

The Martins are in Tarboro this afternoon, and unless the can turn back the Snakes in this game, they will be through for the season.

Handies

Sign Language Helps Mexican Tourists Get Service

(By The AP Feature Service)
Mexico City, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Remember the "handies"?

Down here they were old stuff before ever the game swept the United States. Mexican tourists who speak no Spanish long have used handies as a sign language for communication with native merchants and waiters.

In these pictures Jose P. Rojas, ambidextrous and ambi-lingual Mexican newspaperman, demonstrates for prospective American visitors three of the words they will need most:

"I WANT A DRINK"—Thumb and little finger extended as hand is jerked toward the mouth. Any barkeeper in Mexico City at least, will understand you.

"AND FOOD"—Fingers bunched as hand is moved toward the mouth. The waiter will bring you something to eat, but you'll have to take your chances on what it may be.

"THAT'S ENOUGH"—Forefinger raised and waved in front of the face. This comes in handy (not handie, you punster) when your Mexican friends urge "just one more." If they don't understand readily, put on your hat and turn to go—as Senor Rojas has done.

LOUIS BARELY DEFEATS FARR

Welshman Gives Detroit Bomber Scare of Fistic Life

By ALAN GOULD
Yankee Stadium, New York, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Tonypandy Tommy Farr—the Welshman who wasn't supposed to have a chance—took everything but the decision last night from Joe Louis in a heavyweight championship fight that upset expectations by going the full distance of 15 rounds.

Louis had no real difficulty piling up a margin on points that gave him the unanimous decision of Referee Arthur Donovan and two judges, but the Brown Bomber's first defense of the crown he won just two months ago from Irish Jimmy Braddock found him up against much tougher opposition than had been anticipated.

Farr not only stunned the experts, who had unanimously picked him to become a quick knockout victim, but thrilled a comparatively small crowd, estimated at not more than 37,000 in paid attendance, by the game and determined fashion in which he repeatedly carried the fight to the hard-hitting champion.

Louis, finding Farr troublesome as well as durable throughout the 15 rounds failed to score even a single knockdown; and was actually in retreat as the final bell found the blond challenger charging the champion and swinging hard with both fists.

Louis fired his biggest punching guns without being able to do anything more than stop the challenger's rushes, jar him occasionally, and inflict a series of nasty gashes about Tommy's eyes and nose.

The challenger suffered a gash under his right eye as early as the third round. By the fifth, blood was streaming from cuts under both optics. Near the close, one of Joe's short left hooks started a stream of crimson from Farr's nose, but these appeared only to be minor mishaps in the fighting life of the 23-year-old Welshman, who has never been flattened in his career.

Louis came closest to scoring a knockdown in the seventh round. Here the champion, who had spent most of the first six rounds spearing Tommy with left-hands, really got down to business. He blasted Farr's head with both hands. Tommy gave ground, while the blood dripped from his face, but his knees refused to buckle, and his spirit refused to be broken by the punishment he was absorbing.

As a matter of fact, between the seventh and eighth rounds, when it seemed the fight could not last much longer, Farr turned to some friends at the ringside, grinning, as much as to say: "Don't let that stuff worry you; I'm still in there and able to stay on my feet."

That's just exactly what Tonypandy Tommy did, and quite usefully, too, for the remainder of the fight. Farr actually came out in the eighth with a rally that had Louis baffled and in frequent retreat. The challenger blasted away with both hands, scoring repeatedly with hard shots to the head. He forced Joe back into a defensive shell from which the champion did not emerge until the closing few rounds.

Round Up

Beaufort, Aug. 31.—A round-up of banker ponies will be made at Cape Lookout Tuesday for the purpose of branding colts which have been born during the summer.

Approximately 100 ponies which roam Shackleford and Core banks, all that remain of a herd which once numbered several hundred, will be cralled. The remaining ponies are owned by several persons, so it is necessary at least twice a year to round up the herd and mark the new colts.

The herd is on the decrease as at each penning a number of head are sold and taken to the mainland where they are broken to saddle or farm work. The summer penning usually attracts many vacationists on the coast, who go to the cape on special boats, usually leaving from Marshberg, Beaufort or Harker's island.

MARTIN COUNTY MAN COMMITS SUICIDE

Washington, Aug. 31.—Funeral services for W. W. Gardner, 45-year-old farmer of Route One, Williamston, were held at Fairview church in Martin county, Monday afternoon by the Rev. Dennis Warren Davis, pastor of the Old Ford Christian church. Burial was in the family cemetery.

Mr. Gardner died at the Tayloe hospital early Sunday morning. He had shot himself through his right lung with a shotgun late Saturday afternoon. Despondency over financial troubles was the cause of the act.

Surviving are his wife and three children.

NAZI SHIRTTAILS MAY BE BOBBED TO SAVE CLOTH

Berlin.—(AP)—The cry S-O-S—save our shirts—may be heard in Germany ere long.

The average German man's shirt is 37.4 inches long in front, 39.4 inches behind. Will it make much difference if a shirt is cut 2 inches shorter both ways?

A small matter, but since the Reich's shirt production is 30,000,000 a year, a saving of four inches of material on each shirt would mean 120,000,000 inches, or 3,333,333 yards or 1,894 miles, almost two-thirds of the width of the United States.

So why not try it, the "Textil Zeitung" suggests.

The first natural gas discovered in this country was probably a "burning spring" mentioned by George Washington on his visit to Kanawha Valley, West Virginia.

Morning and afternoon drills will be held daily for the rest of the week, with only afternoon sessions scheduled beginning next week.

Letter men likely to see action again this year are Thomas Parrish, quarterback; Tom Swain guard Baxter Clark, halfback; Kenneth Henderson, fullback; Claude Hardee, lineman, and John Lutares, halfback.

Letter men who are expected to show up later are DuBose Simpson, Wayland Tucker, Jimmie Wells and Robert Clark.

Lost to the team through graduation are George Lutares, Carl Pierce, Jack Forbes, Harold Forbes, Edward Conway, and J. A. Joyner.

HE BECAME A HOME RUN SLUGGER THE MOMENT THEY PUT HIM TO WORK BEHIND THE PLATE

SPORT SLANTS

YORK MAY NOT OUTGALLOP JOE DI MAGGIO IN THE RACE FOR HOME RUN HONORS. But the Detroit Tiger's Indian slugger has been traveling at a mighty hot pace since he was told to don the catcher's pads and mask and go to work.

York came up to the Tigers as a first baseman, by way of Milwaukee from Beaumont of the Texas League. He had quite a reputation as a slugger. His powerful stick work enabled him to win the 1935 most valuable player award in the Texas circuit and the 1936 American Association prize.

He was recalled by the Tigers this spring mainly to fill in at first for Hank Greenberg (in case Greenberg's bad left wrist had not completely mended). When Hank reported ready to take over his old post Rudy became one of Manager Mickey Cochrane's problem children. It was hard to keep York, who hit .334 with Milwaukee in '36, and who drove in 149 runs, on the bench.

The only spot where the Tigers could use York was at third. So the big fellow was sent to the hot corner. He was no sensation.

His chance to play regularly came when George (Birdie) Tebbetts, the youngster who took over the catching burden when Cochrane was injured, faded from regular duty.

Recalling that York had started out as a catcher, the Tiger manager decided to try him behind the plate. York balked at the suggestion, saying he was getting tired of "filling in" in odd positions. He was a first baseman. He wanted to play first base. When it was impressed upon him that catching offered him an opportunity to get in the game daily, York decided to have a fling at the job.

Perhaps the opportunity to get a closeup of American league pitching had something to do with the return of his batting eye. Perhaps it was merely the result of being in there day in and day out. At any rate, York started out by busting fences. He has been going great ever since.

More than 300 bottles, some of them rare, have been discovered in the old moat at Fort Pulaski, Ga. Medicinal, pickle, soda, water and beer bottles were flung there by troops stationed in the fort before and during the Civil war.

Motor car safety experts say that bridges often are much more slippery than the roads connecting them. The cause is the light-weight paving on bridges.

SPEED—THE GREAT KILLER

During recent years a number of states have adopted the "basic rule" speed law—a measure whereby no fixed maximum speed is prescribed, but drivers are required to operate their vehicles with due care. Today in many of those states motor vehicle officials are coming to the view that the basic rule has failed, and that a fixed speed law, rigidly enforced, is necessary to the prevention of accidents. The national organization which studied highway legislation and first advocated the basic rule, has now changed its position, and urges fixed speed limits.

So the motorist has failed in his responsibility under a law which gave the individual wide leeway in his driving habits. Speed is still the great highway killer, breeding more violent deaths than any other driving error. It is a harsh commentary on drivers that the bulk of fatal automobile accidents occur on first class, straight high-ways, under good weather visibility conditions, and involve cars in passable mechanical condition. Speed—the insane instinct to "open her up"—is the answer.

It is apparent that the automobile death and injury rate will continue to climb until all states cooperate to modernize their traffic codes in the light of modern conditions. Appeals to the motorist's instincts of self-preservation and public responsibility, have produced some results—but much more must be done. Speeds must be reduced. And the offending driver must be punished under laws enforced without fear or favoritism.—(Industrial News Review).

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Aug. 31.—Governor Hoey back in Raleigh after a short vacation trip toward the western section of the state, has received a beautifully engraved invitation to the "Distinguished Guests" dinner to be held in connection with the American Legion's National convention in New York, September 29. He said he will not be able to attend, however.

The Governor has not given any thought to selection of a commission to study a possible constitutional amendment putting much tighter restrictions on enactment of local legislation, he said today. When he does he is likely to have more than ordinary trouble getting members to serve; reason being that the act authorizing appointment of such a commission provides that its members shall serve without pay.

"It looks like two or three people want to get out of jail, quoth Governor's Secretary Bob Thompson as he looked somewhat gloomily at a pile of letters and petitions for executive clemency of one sort or another.

BY HULBERT FOOTNER

SYNOPSIS: Neil, a young federal agent, loves Janet, a Baltimore girl. She keeps a date with wealthy, flashy Prescott Fanning who kidnaps her aboard his yacht. Next day a mysterious phone call tells Neil Janet's in trouble on the yacht at Absalom's Harbor. Rushing there, he finds, in a locked cabin Fanning shot dead and Janet in a faint, a gun beside her. Neil rouses her to the dazed liners kept up the river and hides her in the best suite. Returning to the village hotel, he resumes his role of visiting fisherman to watch developments. Horace Kettering, a Baltimore lawyer, and his son arrive to fish.

Chapter 14 Absalom's Agog

KETTERING threw up his head and sniffed the fresh morning air. "This is great, gentlemen. A man works himself near to death in the city, and what does he get out of it? A couple of day's fishing a year!"

"Work's a damn bad habit," said Longcope.

Kettering turned to Neil. "And you?" he asked.

"Ford Wheatley."

"Pleased to meet you, Mr. Wheatley. You're a stranger in the village, I take it?"

Yes. Down for the fishing like yourself."

"Fine! You must come out with my son and me as our guests . . . Well, I'll be seeing you, gentlemen." He saluted them and limped back in the car. The son had not opened his mouth.

There was something about his busy tongue and darting eyes that made Neil uneasy. This was not a man that he could trust.

"A talkative cuss!" he remarked.

"Yeah," said Virgil turning the cigar. "Looks like a case of the fox fathering the bull pup."

At that moment Neil saw a whitecoated figure appear on the Nadj's deck, run wildly forward and disappear through a door. He forgot the Ketterings. The man reappeared on deck with his two mates. They ran into the after-house. Presently they came on deck again, flung themselves any- how into the dinghy and started pulling crazily for the shore. Neil steered himself.

Virgil, who had not noticed anything amiss, was talking amiably about the city slickers he had known. The men in the dinghy tied their little boat to the wharf in front of the store and came running across the road, white-faced and staring with horror. Virgil broke off suddenly.

"What the heck is the matter with these three fellows?"

"Police," they gasped out. "We want the police! Where can we find the police?" All three were young men without experience, and they had completely lost their heads. There was a steward in his white coat and two sailors.

Their hysterical excitement made Virgil sore. "What's the matter with you?" he demanded. "We ain't got no police here. What do you want police for?"

All tried to explain at once.

"Murder, mister! . . . There's been a murder aboard the yacht."

"The corner is murdered! . . . A bullet right through his head! . . . Must have been shot last night when we was ashore. . . . We slept on board all night without knowing it. . . ."

Virgil stood up suddenly. "Murder!" he gasped. "My God!"

Neil's nerves quivered at the sound of the ugly word. "Murder!" he echoed. "How terrible!"

"And the girl is gone!" cried the steward.

"What girl?" demanded Virgil.

All three explained together.

"We had a girl on board. . . . The boss' girl. . . . And she's gone! . . . How could she get off? The other boat's on the davits. . . ."

"One at a time!" shouted Virgil waving his hands. "You, Jake, run and fetch the doctor. You men come in the store!"

Too Much For Virgil

NEILL followed them inside. As a stranger, he was disregarded. Virgil, being the leading citizen, felt that it was up to him to take command of the situation, but it was a bit too much for him. He flung his derby on the counter and ran his hands through his hair as if he would tear it out. "Keep cool! Keep cool!" he shouted.

Every time he asked a question he got three answers. The crew it seemed, could not agree on the simplest statement of fact. Out of the confusion Neil could only pick a phrase here and there.

"Found him when I took his morning coffee down. . . . In the girl's cabin. . . . The door was busted in. . . . There was a hell of a fight while we were ashore. . . . You're crazy! It was the boss himself busted the door in! . . . Nothing else was disturbed. . . . We don't know who the girl was. . . . Real nice quiet girl. . . . We were aboard last night before 10:30. . . ."

It was no part of Neil's game to try to bring order out of the confusion. He listened, nerves taut.

Virgil looked at him in a distracted fashion, forgetting he was a stranger. "Reckon I better call up the county constable."

"It's the obvious thing to do."

"But he's a farmer. He don't know nothing."

"Call him anyway."

Virgil sent his clerk running to make the call.

"And Mr. Button Billings, the J. P.," he went on pulling his hair, "he'll have to be in on this. He's an old grandmother, that's what he is. Oh, my God! He'll ball everything up, and the newspapers will call us Hicks, and moss-backs and stick-in-the-muds!"

Neill said nothing. If things got balled up it would be fine.

"If I only knew where to lay my hands on the proper man to handle the case!" said Virgil. After taking an agitated turn back and forth, his face cleared. "I know what I'll do. I'll get Mark Bonniger. He's a man-of-the-world. And he's one of us. We don't want no foreigners hornin' in. Mark will tell us how to do everything right."

When the clerk returned, he was sent back to call up Mark Bonniger and also the justice of the peace.

"Tell Mr. Button Billings to come straight to the yacht. He lives across the harbor."

Virgil ran out of the store, accompanied by the crew. At the door they met the doctor coming in and carried him with them. All five of them piled into the yacht's dinghy, loading her almost to the gunwale. "No more room," they cried, when Neil started to follow them, and rowed away. Neil was left on the wharf. He looked around for another skiff, but there were too many watching their now.

Pawing For Evidence

LIKE a wireless flash, word of the murder had spread from one end of the village to the other. Men, women and children stopped everything and came running to the harbor. Nothing like this had ever happened in Absalom's House work was suspended, the stores shut up and fish left without ice. The excitement in every face made Neil sore. What is it to them? he thought.

At first they contented themselves with lining up along the harbor road, staring out at the yacht and passing the same bits of information back and forth. Then one man jumped in his skiff. Immediately there was a stampede for the skiffs and a whole flotilla set out rowing swiftly to the yacht. Women and children were left ashore.

Neill was unable to obtain a place in a skiff until Jake the fisherman got the idea of starting a ferry at two bits a head. Thus some minutes passed before he got aboard the yacht.

The saloon below was packed to suffocation. The men had pulled off their hats out of respect to a dead, and were pushing and shoving to get a glimpse through the door of the after cabin. Neil worked his way through them. Everything that happened here was of vital importance to him. He was tall enough to look over a good many heads and he saw Virgil and the doctor, helped by the two sailors, examining the body, searching his pockets and so on. The young steward sat on the starboard locker holding his head between his hands.

Everything in the room—including the gun—was being well pawed over in the search for "evidence," and Neil smiled grimly to himself. Lucky he had only these hicks to deal with! He saw Virgil pick up the bullet on the floor beside the port seat locker, and hold it up for all to see.

Virgil was continually issuing orders without taking any steps to see if they were carried out.

"Quit your shoving, men! Ain't you got no sense of what is fitting?"

"The girl must have swum ashore. She couldn't have got far. You, Tom Bolling, organize a posse among the men and search the woods across the harbor. Send a car up the road, somebody, to stop at every house and ask if she appeared for shelter!"

A voice from the crowd said: "Somebody stole my skiff last night."

"Well then, maybe she tried to escape in that," said Virgil. "A woman could row far. All you men that have motor-boats organize, a search up both shores of the river and into the creeks. What like girl was she?"

The two sailors attempted to describe Janet. Very little could be gathered from their efforts, except the pink dress and the black velvet cape.

"She musta had a guy helping her," said a voice.

"What guy?" asked Virgil.

"How the heck should I know? Who was it busted in the door?"

"The dead guy."

"Maybe he was already inside and the door was locked."

Neill stifled. This was getting too close to the truth.

Griffin, Miss Anita Ayres and Arch Allen were among those present. Less than three guesses confirmed the suspicion they were talking about the Winston-Salem convention next week.

This correspondent and two other fellows seem about the only North Carolinians who haven't yet visited the Roanoke Island celebration; and we've still a week left to get down that way.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—Shock troops of the court opposition do not take seriously Postmaster General Farley's assurance of "no reprisals" against defaulting Democrats.

They expect the administration to try to take the political breeches off those Democratic senators—and house members—who had a part in defeating the court bill. They believe that when wheelhorse Senator Guffey of Pennsylvania singled out Senators Wheeler of Montana, Burke of Nebraska, O'Mahoney of Wyoming and Holt of West Virginia as possible subjects of a "purge" he was speaking with administration knowledge, if not in endorsement. Farley flatly denied such was the case, telling a press conference that Guffey was speaking only for himself.

These anti-court shock troops, including progressive Republicans among their number, expect to come to the rescue of any beleaguered Democratic members under administration fire. But there is a hitch.

The principal opportunity of administration forces to damage Democratic senators or representatives comes during the primary or convention. Then is when charges of disloyalty to the President can be used against them. The anti-court Democratic members cannot look for support from independents and progressive Republicans then. These will be voting in other primaries, if at all, or sharing in conventions of other parties.

And in this most trying hour, the support of progressive Republicans for instance, might be well nigh fatal. Nothing can hurt a candidate more than to have support of a rival political party.

For instance, if Republican progressives, who opposed the court bill should announce that they were going to work for the nomination of Senator Van Nuys of Indiana, a Democrat, it could just about be the end of all things political for Van Nuys, a court bill opponent. And already the wolves are after Van Nuys. Governor Townsend came from a conference with the President a few days back and said the people of Indiana would not support the senator.

The result is that these Republican progressives who might like to support such men as Van Nuys must lie low during the toughest battle. Of course, after the nominating primaries and conventions, they might offer help where needed.

When former President Hoover said public support should be given to Democratic as well as Republican members of congress who had opposed the court bill, it sent shivers of dismay down the backs of Democratic court-foes. It was an "experiment noble in purpose" which promised to do them no good at all. Fervently they hoped Hoover would continue silently fishing in the Pacific northwest, or silently doing something else.

Of course at this point it must be recorded that Postmaster General Farley said the administration would take no part in the Democratic primaries. Yes, indeed, he said that.

Man About Manhattan

New York—Breaking a straw with those who bemoan the dearth of fine entertainment in the cabarets of New York, this observers would like to point out a few items which are par if not superior to anything of their kind that can be found anywhere.

These are essentially high grade acts and are, in our opinion, the high points in the nocturnal side of New York's cafe life. They form the All-America for Broadway this season:

Most rhythmic—Meymo Holt. . . . She is the diminutive 85-pound dancer in the Hawaiian Room at the Lexington, and her interpretation of the folk lore of the islands is more graceful than the fronds of a palm tree swaying in a gentle breeze.

Best comedy dance—the Apache number at the French Casino. Here is something neat from the Rue de Sucko. After M. Apache tosses his gal around, she turns and pounds him "like the dirty linen of the washboard."

Most exciting act—the Russian skaters at the Paradise. Two thoroughly aroused Muscovites and a lovely girl pull off a thriller that congeals the blood.

Most graceful floor show—the ice carnival at the New Yorker. Lovely girls, European champions, all on ice skates and showing you what the poetry of motion really means.

Prettiest dancer—Mona Montes. Maybe we've told you about her before. She is so exciting we'll probably tell you about her lots of times. This is the little Spanish dancer at El Chico who epitomizes the heart beat that editors like to see in their magazine covers.

Most unpredictable m.c.—Eddie Davis at Leon's and Eddie's. He used to wait on tables and drive a hack. Now he is the Wandering Minstrel of 52nd street, interpreting Somerset Maugham's South Sea Island romances through the medium of hatched huts and slightly (well sometimes more than that) risque songs.

If you don't know Eddie Davis you don't know 52nd street. And if you don't know Meymo Holt, Mona Montes, the Apaches, the Russians, and the New Yorker's ice skaters you should get acquainted at once. Until you do, the best of New York's after dark entertainment will remain a closed book.

What To Do— If You Get A Severe Sunburn

(By The AP Feature Service)

1. Call a doctor.

2. While you're waiting for him to come bathe the burned area with bicarbonate of soda and water—or a tannic acid solution (eight table-spoons of tannic acid powder to a quart of water).

3. If a fever develops, apply an ice pack.

It is essential to call a doctor, says Dr. Charles F. Bojduan, director of New York City's Bureau of Health Education, because sunburn can be dangerous. A severe burn seals the pores, cutting off the perspiration which ordinarily carries off waste matter. A case may prove fatal if even one-third of the skin is seared badly.

Since the burned sections are very susceptible to infection, special care must be taken to avoid contact with anything infectious.

Mayo, will hereby take notice that a civil action entitled as above has been instituted in the Superior Court of Pitt County by the plaintiff, Elizabeth East Mayo, for the purpose of obtaining an absolute divorce from the said defendant upon the ground of two years' separation as set forth in the complaint; and said defendant will further take notice that he is required to appear before the Clerk of the Superior Court of Pitt County and either answer or demur to the complaint this day filed by the plaintiff, within thirty days after the service of summons, or the relief therein demanded will be granted. LEARNING TO BE A BIG SHOT is part of the training of West Point cadets. Here is group of future officers putting class room theory into practice in a forceful manner with 155 mm. guns on their annual visit to the range at Fort Monroe, Va.

BOOTY FOR BEAUTY is sought by Miss Jane McClure, pirate queen of Long Beach, Calif., shown leading the way for her band of buccaneers who will vie for the title, "Queen of Queens." More than 25 contest winners will participate, representing fiestas and rodeos in all sections of the state.

INNOCENCE ABROAD, youthful faces reflecting fear of war, filled Shanghai's streets as thousands fled from death and fire as bitter warfare raged between China and Japan. Chaos was everywhere as airplanes rained cargoes of death into streets clogged with fleeing humanity. Even the International Settlement provided no haven as bombs exploded in its thoroughfares, killing hundreds, wounding hundreds more.

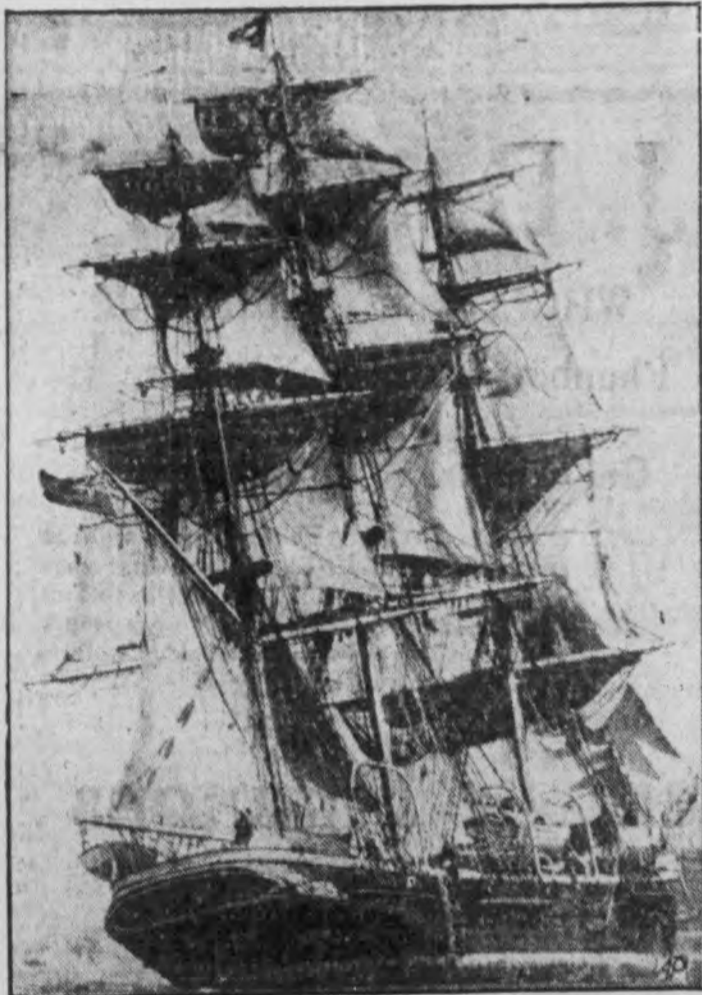

SAYING IT WITH FLOWERS is not his policy, the President's youngest son, John, declared in effect, denying he tossed champagne and a bouquet into the face of Cannes' mayor. The Harvard youth is shown with friends at a seaside resort in Europe.

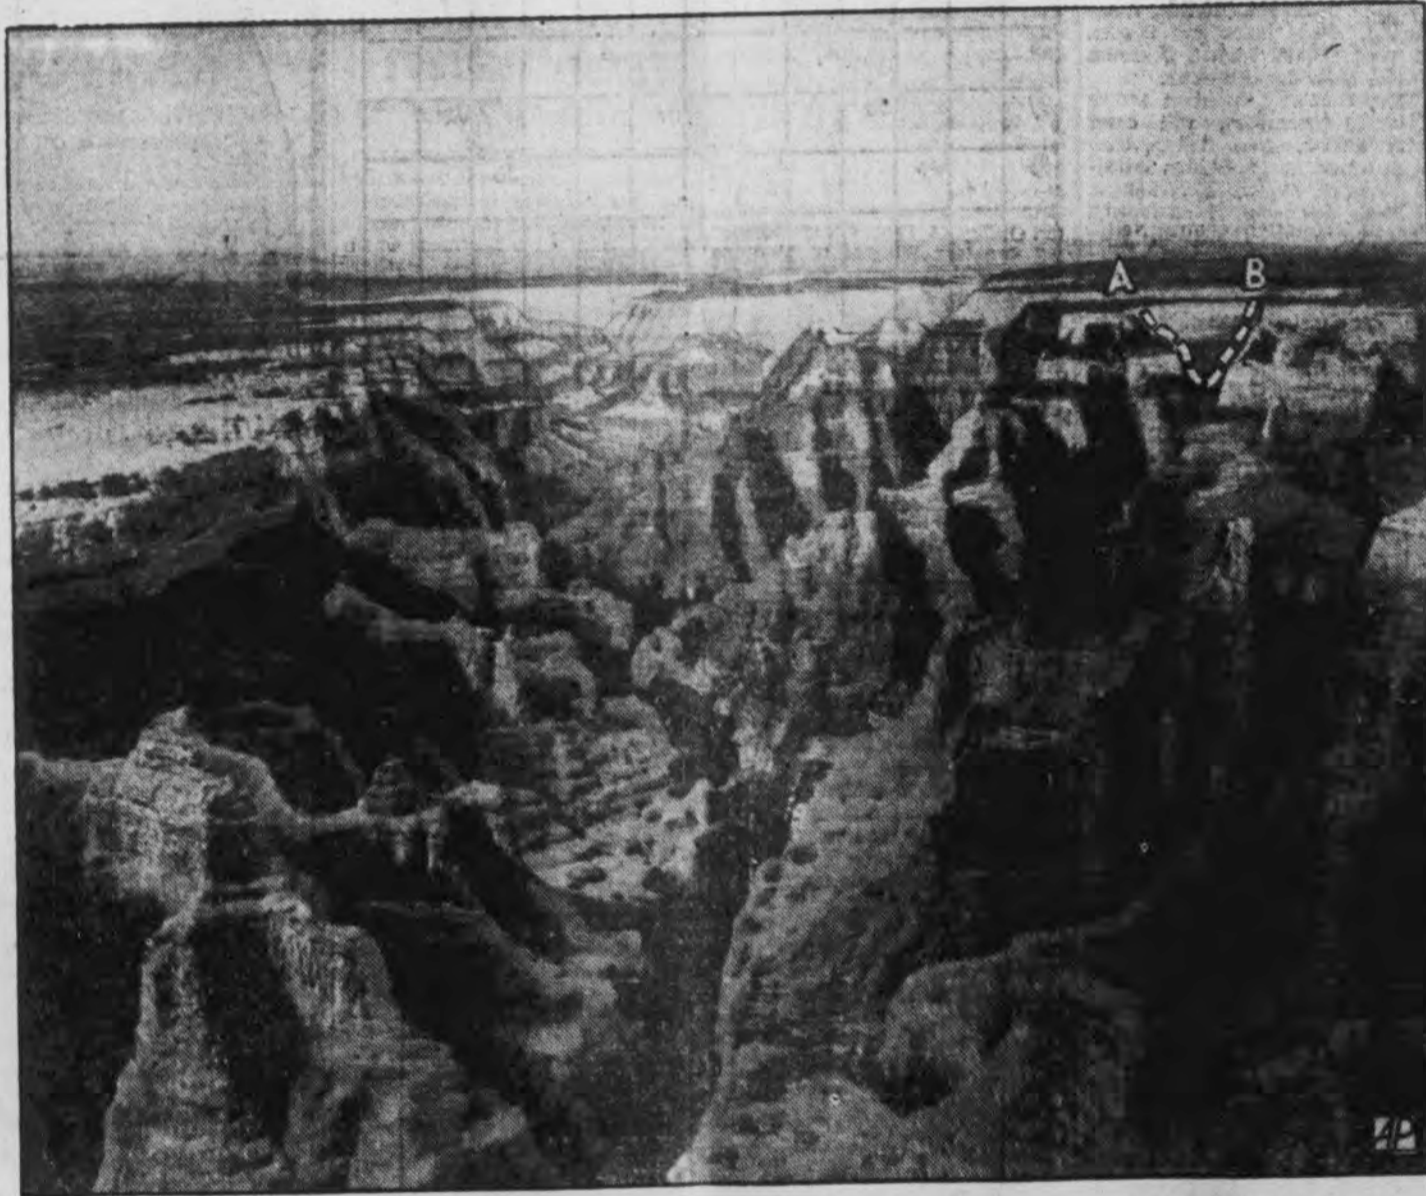

WRONG NUMBER, insisted John Roosevelt when asked if it was he who smacked Mayor Pierre Nouveau (above) in the face with a bouquet of flowers.

THE DUCE STEPS OUT to the end of the platform at Maddalena beach as his chief aides stage a swimming race. Smiling Mussolini marks the fourth arrival, Guido Buffarini, undersecretary of interior.

SAILS IN THE SUNLIGHT were like a vision from the past as the Joseph Conrad (above), a square rigged ship of another era, and another sailing vessel, the Seven Seas, raced from Newport, R. I., to Bermuda. Not in the memory of modern generations had such a contest been staged.

A LOST WORLD, isolated perhaps for thousands of years, will be explored by the Paterson Grand Canyon expedition, seeking any animal life that may be present atop Shiva Temple near the north rim of the vast gorge. On this photograph of a model of the canyon in the American Museum of Natural History, the sky-island goal of the expedition is indicated by A, and the base camp to be established on the north rim by B. The trail will follow a narrow strip of land that leads to the plateau. The canyon is a mile deep.

'APPROPRIATE ACTION' toward the Japanese government was promised by British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden after a Nipponese aviator had shot down Britain's ambassador to China as he motored from Nanking to Shanghai. A threatened naval blockade further heightened the crisis.

THIS IS THE GLORY OF WAR, but the drums are silenced, the flags are furled forever for these children found lying close together in a Shanghai gutter, struck down by an aerial bomb. For those who survived there lay ahead bitter fighting, suffering, starvation, disease, and after that untold years of reconstruction. But fate spared these two from that, giving them instead horrible death and unmarked graves at journey's end.

... AND SUDDEN DEATH claimed this driver as he sat at the wheel of his automobile in a busy street of the famed International Settlement. In the rear seat are the mangled remains of his passengers, a few of the hundreds killed in an air raid. They paid a ghastly price for peace.

THEY ALSO SERVE who live to clear the streets of carnage. This was the scene in Shanghai after bombs plunged into crowded Nanking road in front of the Palace hotel. Hundreds died and hundreds more lived to suffer the agony of wounds. Those who escaped removed the dead and injured, as depicted in this copyrighted Associated Press photo flown to America by Clipper. Aerial destruction was carried out on a scale seldom if ever equalled in the history of war.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Although buying vigor was lacking, leading stocks today showed further market improvement. Steels and rails led the opening advance for fractions to a point or more. They fell back later and near the fourth hour top marks had been lowered considerable in many instances. Dealings were almost as sleepy as in the preceding session. Japanese loans improved in the bond department, no other bonds were without definite trends. Transfers approximated 500,000 shares.

AMERICAN LINER HIT, NINE WOUNDED

Nine persons—seven members of the crew and two passengers—were seriously wounded when four airplanes, apparently Chinese, dumped bombs on the United States liner, President Hoover (above) off the China coast near Shanghai. It was the second American ship to be struck since the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese conflict.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, four to seven lower with a bearish interpretation of the eolian terms, partly offset by covering and trade buying. During the first half hour fairly active liquidation and southern selling carried the market to net losses of about eight to 13 points with December easing from 9.29 to 9.24. December which had eased from 9.18 was quieted at 9.17 at midday, when the list was at or within a few points of the low. Futures closed steady, 14 to 21 lower, spot quiet, middling 9.38.
