AMERICAN EMBASSY STAFF EVACUATES NANKING

League Assembly Refuses Government Spain Seat In Council For Three Years

DENIED RIGHT TO CAST VOTE

Madrid - Valencia Rule Fails by Nine Votes to Obtain Necessary Two-Thirds to Retain Membership in Inner Council of Body

Geneva, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The League of Nations assembly refused today to grant the government of Spain a seat in the League council for the next three years, to the jubilation of member-nations sympathetic with the insurgent regime of General Francisco Franco.

The Madrid-Valencia government failed by nine votes to obtain the two-thirds majority necessary for a new term of the council. Spain's present three-year term expires this year.

However, Spain remained a member of the League and may send a representative to council sessions dealing with matters concerning her, but will lack the right to vote in council.

The major powers hold permanent seats in the council, which in effect the League's executive committee, but Spain has held one of the four seats rotated among minor nations at three year intervals.

The vote came at a session where in British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden declared that "people of the world seem as far as ever from attaining peace."

Two Killed In Air Crash Believed Naval Fliers

SEVERAL HURT IN ACCIDENTS

Earl Barnhill Critically Injured Saturday Night

At least one person was critically injured and several others less seriously hurt in highway wrecks near Greenville during the week end.

Earl Barnhill, who lives about six miles from Greenville on the Pacotus road, is in the hospital at Tarboro and had not regained consciousness early this afternoon. He was injured when the car in which he, his brother, Edwin Barnhill, and Henry West overturned Saturday night on the Scotland Neck-Tarboro highway.

All three were taken to the hospital, but West was released yesterday. Edwin Barnhill remains in the hospital, but his condition is not as serious as that of his brother, who, it is feared, may not survive. All three suffered head injuries and bruises.

Homer Lee Barnes, Negro, was injured Sunday morning when the Earl D. Becker's minster truck overturned at a sharp curve on the Greenville-Farmville highway. Highway patrolmen who investigated the accident said Barnes ran off the pavement and lost control of the machine. Two Negroes, James Anderson and "Spark Plug" Jones, who were riding in the truck also suffered injuries.

James L. Fleming, Jr., To Study In France

Johnnie Lee McDaniel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry McDaniel who live on the Greenville-Washington highway, sued a possibly fractured skull yesterday afternoon when he was said to have run into a truck driven by Forrest Batten, farmer of near Kenley. William James, Negro, was lodged in the Pitt county jail last night on a charge of driving while drunk.

Plenty Greenville People Could Lend Southport Aid

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Sept. 20.—A big sign with one word, "Wanted," has been hung out by the city of Southport down where the Cape Fear meets the Atlantic ocean, according to reports reaching the advertising committee of the Department of Conservation and Development here. It all came about in this manner. Several weeks ago a local expedition sailed out of Southport to the Cape Fear Shoals to check up on rumors that rip-roaring gamblers of the deep were putting on the feed bag where the warm currents of the Gulf Stream serve up tons of small fish as bait. They made one mistake, however, did the members of this expedition. They carried only small calibre tackle made for 35 pound lightweights. The big ones bit all right, no mistake about that, but the only result was a parted line and a prize fish flagging good-bye. Nevertheless, the fishermen came back with a goodly catch of barracudas, amberjack, dolphin, king mackerel and bonito; but they were not as enthusiastic about the fish they caught as they were about those which got away. Tuna, tarpon and sailfish of full girth were hooked, but the 35-pound line just couldn't take it. To prove that it was no fluke a second party sailed out into the briny and came back with the same story of great schools of tropical fish. And so Southport's "Wanted" sign offers to fishermen of the country an opportunity to do some much needed pioneering off the coast at that point. Southport wants to know what kind of tackle is needed, what sort of special rig is required and just what constitutes the technique of landing fish that crack a 35-pound line as if it were made of wrapping twine. To fishermen willing to make some demonstrations for the home-towners Southport offers to take these visitors to its new fishing hole.

REBELS SCORE IN OFFENSIVE EAST OF GIJON

Insurgents Break Through Asturian Defense Lines

MAKE GAINS IN COUNTER DRIVE

New Advance Places General Franco's Troops Step Nearer Oviedo

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Insurgents driving toward the government's last northwest stronghold at Gijon broke through Asturian defense lines today, an insurgent communication reported, and captured the village of Los Callejos after heavy fighting.

Waves of counter attacking Nazarene drove back the Asturian defenders, who started the battle with an infantry drive in the Sella river sector, 30 miles southeast of Gijon. The advance brought Franco's forces a step nearer Oviedo, where insurgent officers predicted the 14-months siege of an insurgent garrison would be lifted within two weeks and that Gijon would fall soon thereafter.

Insurgents reported two surprise attacks marked fighting east of Oviedo yesterday. Dispatches from Madrid indicated that the civil population there, instead of dwindling in obedience to the government's evacuation orders had increased in the past month, putting additional strain on food supplies.

Far southwest of Madrid government gains were reported on the Badajoz front, where government troops reached the neighborhood of Granja de Torrehermosa, pushing from Cordoba province.

The second alarm came in about an hour later, summoning the fire fighters to tobacco town where it was feared a truck would catch fire. No loss was suffered by the truck. George Gardner said, and only about five dollars damage was caused by the automobile fire.

Farm Program For 1938 Explained By E. Y. Floyd

Greatest Opportunity Yet Offered N. C. Farmers

Raleigh, Sept. 20.—The agricultural conservation program for 1938, as it applies to North Carolina growers was announced today by E. Y. Floyd, of State college.

This program, he said, "will offer the greatest opportunity of any program yet for soil improvement and conservation through sound farming practices."

To comply with the program, farmers will need to carry out half again as many soil-building practices as in 1937, he said, but these are practices that any farmer interested in conserving his soil will be glad to carry out.

A greater effort will be made to control the production of soil-depleting crops next year by providing for heavier deductions from the payments of growers who exceed their "goals," Floyd added.

The program is announced early enough this time, he continued, for farmers to get the information they need on how they can take greatest advantage of the soil-conserving and crop control features of the program before they start preparing their land for planting.

But if a greater degree of production control is desired by the producers, Floyd said, it will have to be secured through legislation in addition to that of the agricultural conservation program.

Under the 1938 program, "goals" will be set up for optimum acreages of soil-depleting and soil building crops and practices.

The goals for depleting crops are the acreages which would usually be required to meet the national needs for consumption and exports for such crops. The national and state goals will be subdivided into county and individual farm goals.

The soil-building goals will include the crops and practices needed to restore and maintain the soil resources of the state.

In general the classification of crops will be about the same as under the 1937 program, Floyd stated. The program will be administered through state, county, and community committees composed of farmers.

United States Officials Decide to Depart Following Jap Warning Planes Will Lay Waste City Beginning at Noon On Tuesday

Shanghai, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The American embassy staff departed Nanking tonight in the face of a Japanese threat to lay waste to the Chinese capital, emphasized by a morning aerial raid in which 40 civilians were killed and 40 homes destroyed.

United States Ambassador Nelson Johnson, with his assistants, boarded the American patrol boat, Luzon, stationed in the Yangtze river and turned up river.

They planned to withdraw to Wu-hu, 30 miles from Nanking, thereby observing a demand by the Japanese naval force. The Japanese had warned that foreigners would face danger of death from the air beginning at noon Tuesday. Japanese officials declared Japan would not be responsible for loss of foreign life after that hour.

Johnson's decision to withdraw roused bitter disappointment among Nanking officials, some of whom felt that the ambassador should remain as a gesture of loyalty and sympathy with China's cause in the conflict with Japan.

The British, French, German and Italian embassies decided to remain at least for the moment and British and French naval commanders warned Japan that they would be held strictly responsible for any loss of life or damage of property to their nationals.

The American commander in chief of the United States Asiatic fleet, Admiral Harry Yarnell, likewise declared that the Luzon and her sister ship, the Guam, would protect American nationals. Withdrawal of the embassy staff, however, paved the way for withdrawal of the war craft as requested by the Japanese.

British and French naval commanders asserted their warships would be maintained in the Yangtze off Nanking so long as their embassies were open.

The Japanese planes in relays of six to a squadron, subjecting Nanking to terrific bombardment for three hours during the evening, aiming at Nanking government buildings, but striking residences instead.

The American embassy staff will be returned to Nanking when the danger is believed passed. Other Americans likewise were evacuating up river aboard a British steamer.

Two squadrons of Japanese raiders, Japanese here claimed there were 40 planes, roared over the city widely deployed and launched their deadly attack simultaneously on widely distant sectors.

Seven distinct areas were known to have been hit, including the government airbase.

The damage, however, was believed slight. First Chinese fighting planes took to the air and the American-made machines were reported to have brought down three Japanese bombers.

Dr. Deane Hundley, junior on Saturday, September the eighteenth. Nineteen hundred and thirty-seven Greenville, North Carolina

At Home after October the first Beaulville, North Carolina

In the presence of members of the family and relatives, the marriage of Miss Sidney Davenport to Dr. Deane Hundley, junior, was solemnized in a ceremony of charm and beauty on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock at the home of the bride on West Fifth street. Vari-colored fall flowers decorated the home. In the living room asters in the pastel shades were used against a background of fern and palms. The mantel was banked with fern and long leaf pine interspersed with burning candles in silver holders.

Mrs. Paul Davenport, wearing a gown of beige crepe with accessories of brown and a shoulderette of roses, played the wedding music. To the strains of the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin, the bride entered with her brother, James P. Davenport, junior. They were met by the bridegroom and his brother, Frank Hundley, of Dunnsville, Virginia, as best man. The vows were spoken before the Reverend A. W. Frieschmann, pastor of Memorial Baptist Church.

The bride was never prettier than on her wedding day. She wore a most becoming model of Dubonnet velvet made up in princess lines, with puffed sleeves. From Raleigh he went to Beaulville, where he began the general practice of medicine. After a wedding trip to Asheville and other points of interest in Western Carolina, Dr. and Mrs. Hundley will be at home in Beaulville.

Immediately following the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. James Fleming Davenport entertained informally in honor of the bride and bridegroom. The dining room was especially pretty. The table, covered with a cloth of lace, was centered with an antique cut glass bowl of white asters and fern placed on a reflector. Candles in silver holders were placed at either side. Seated at opposite ends of the table, Mrs. Dot Patrick and Miss Sidney Davenport, aunts of the bride, poured tea. Sandwiches and iced nuts were passed by Miss Kathryn Davenport and Miss Mary Lawrence Davenport.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

We, the members of the Order of the Eastern Star of Greenville, N. C., wish to pay loving tribute to our beloved friend and co-worker, Evelyn Cox, wife of Dal Cox, who departed this life August the first. While our beautiful earthly chain is broken and another of its golden links hid from mortal eye, we know this link has gone to help lengthen our chain in the great beyond and that ere long we shall all be united again where there is no "falling away."

In humble submission and with a deep sense of sorrow, we drap our charter in her memory and faintly whisper, "Thy will be done." Evelyn was a faithful, earnest worker in our chapter, a loving wife, daughter, and mother, untiring in her devotion to friends and family. Her memory will be ever cherished and we will always miss her in our midst.

Surely she will hear the words "Well done good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joys of thy Lord." Therefore be it resolved:

First: That Greenville Chapter number 149 Order of the Eastern Star has lost a true and loyal member.

Second: That we extend to the bereaved husband, mother, and three children our sincere sympathy.

Third: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy sent to the local newspaper, and a copy spread upon the minutes of our chapter.

EVEN GERMAN BEES MUST HELP HITLER

Berlin, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Beekeepers and silk cultivators are to have a share in the cultivation of the land bordering Adolf Hitler's auto roads. Every particle of soil is to be lined up in the Four Year Plan for economic independence. Land unsuitable for ordinary agriculture is to be planted with vegetation attractive to bees. It is hoped thus to increase by 50 per cent the value of Germany's annual honey and wax production—today about $20,000,000.

Quantities of mulberry trees also are to be planted to increase the cultivation of silk worms. Silk production is increasing rapidly in Germany.

Other portions of the land bordering the Reich's auto roads are to carry grass crops for goats, sheep and rabbits.

GAMING WHEEL LOSERS GET STUCK TWICE

Grand Haven, Mich., Sept. 18.—(AP)—"Double trouble" was the lot of three Grand Rapids men who complained to Sheriff Frank Van Etsa that they had lost money at a gambling concession at a country fair near Grand Haven.

The sheriff listened sympathetically to their complaint and then charged them with violating the state gambling law by patronizing a gaming device.

The men paid fines of from $2.50 to $5 each. They said they had lost $135 on the gambling wheel.

the dark ships

BY HULBERT FOOTNER

SYNOPSIS: Neill, a young federal agent, finds his beloved Janet, a gun and Prescott Fanning's freshly shot body locked in a cabin on Fanning's yacht at Absalom's Harbor. Neill hides her nearby in a disused locker, then joins Mark Bonnier, local investigator. When Neill learns Janet didn't shoot the flashy scoundrel, he suspects queer little Eyster, who hated Fanning. Also on hand are Kettering, a Baltimore lawyer, and Ira Buckles, a tough who trails Neill. While Bonnier leads a search of the dark ships, Neill breaks away, gets Janet and they elude the searchers. Neill rejoins Bonnier.

Chapter 31

Trouble On The Yacht

THE search of the four ships was completed about midnight, and Bonnier grimly conceded defeat. That he was not satisfied became clear when he left six deputies behind him to co-operate with Bickel's men in watching the decks until morning. The rest of the party started for the skiffs.

Kettering as usual was at hand to put in his oar. "There's always some darn fool who raises an alarm," he said. "The guy was seeing things at night!"

Bonnier disregarded this. So Janet had been saved. But for how long? Neill couldn't afford to relax at all. He suddenly realized he was pretty nearly dead beat.

There was a moment when he and Kettering stood together on the platform at the foot of the ladder waiting to get in a skiff. Kettering said softly:

"Congratulations, Wheatley! I don't know just how you worked it, but it was neat."

Neill said: "You're talking in riddles tonight, Mr. Kettering."

"Don't be afraid," he laughed. "I'm not going to give you away."

Neill was not so sure of that. They got in the skiff.

Back in the village, Bonnier asked Neill into his room to have a drink before turning in.

Bonnier had one of the better rooms on the second floor of the hotel. He threw off his coat and vest and went to the window with a "woof" of satisfaction. Bonnier's stern air Neill had noted, was only to warn off fools and bodes. When you were alone with him, if he liked you, he could become very human.

"Grand air down on this point," he said. "Grand for sleeping!"

"You don't let anything get under your skin," said Neill enviously.

"Life is too short for that," said Bonnier. "I was drafted for this work. I'm doing my best with what poor wit the Lord gave me, and when I meet with a trading sea-buff, I'm not going to let it cast me down. This case is a fascinating problem. I have all the lines in my hand. I shan't fail to land my fish."

The Beer Isn't Drunk
"DO you still think there is somebody on the ships?" asked Neill offhandedly.

"It there is, it's a good place for them to be," said Bonnier with a dry smile. "I can put my hands on them easily."

"This had the effect of a challenge to Neill. Oh, I don't know he thought. He said nothing.

Bonnier looked at him full. "You seem pretty well tickered out," he said. "You shouldn't take all this so hard."

Neill wished that he wouldn't sound the friendly note. He was getting to like the man too much. "Oh, it isn't the case," he said lightly. "That's a welcome distraction. . . I've got private troubles."

Neill offhandedly. "Woman trouble, I reckon. Always is at your age."

"Well . . . yes," said Neill with a wry smile.

"Lord! I have known what that was in my time," said Bonnier smiling. "I'm thankful it's over. Really a man gets the best out of women after he has passed 45. It may not be flattering, but they open their dear little hearts to you. I have three nieces up the county who keep me young. You must come up and meet them when this is over."

"Thanks," said Neill, "but my hands are pretty full in that line."

"Well, anyhow let's order up some beer and drink to them."

"That would be fine."

"However, the beer was not destined to be drunk.

Forsythe had just been sent off to the yacht to relieve Constable Mattingly who had been on guard since six. Suddenly through the window they heard Forsythe's deep voice hailing the shore.

"Hot Sergeant Wilson!"

Wilson answered from the store next door. "Hello?"

"Come out here, sir, and bring Mr. Bonnier."

"All right."

The Yacht Guard Gone
INSTANTLY Bonnier was the stern public officer again. He snatched up his coat and he and Neill ran downstairs. They met Wilson coming from the store. Some of the villagers had been snatched by the constable's hail, and heads were sticking out of the bedroom windows here and there. As they went out on the wharf, Virgil Longcope came running down the hill behind the store, slipping his suspenders over his shoulders. He called to them to wait for him.

Virgil's clerk, young Trueman, was on the wharf. "Gosh! I hope there ain't nothing wrong out there," he said. "If there is, reckon it's my fault."

"What do you mean?" asked Bonnier. "Come along with us."

Trueman explained while Wilson piled the oars. "About nine o'clock fellow called up and asked for Sergeant Wilson. I said he wouldn't be back until late. So the fellow he said he was Constable Pennorth, stationed at King's Green, 20 miles up the road."

"Was it Pennorth's voice?"

"I don't know the man."

"Go ahead."

"Well, this fellow said he was Pennorth, he said a man driving up the county from Cove Point had stopped by to say that as he come around a turn in the Cove Point road he seen a couple jump out of the road into the bushes. And the girl had a pink dress and a black wrap on. Pennorth he said that Wilson had ordered him not on any account to leave the King's Green section, and he wanted to know what to do. Well, I tried a dozen times to get Wilson on the phone."

"The phone is in Captain Bickel's cabin and we were searching the ships," put in Wilson.

"So I think I'll go out to the yacht and tell Mattingly, Mattingly and me, we talked it over and he said he'd better lock up the yacht and go up to the Cove road on his motor-bike. He was all excited at the thought of nabbing that pair singlehanded."

"I dare say!" said Wilson dryly. "So I came ashore and at 10 o'clock I shut up the store and went home." Trueman went on. "I called up the ships every little while to tell you, but there was no answer, and then . . . well, I reckon I fell asleep."

As they drew near the yacht, Forsythe said from the deck: "Mattingly is gone."

"We know it," answered Wilson. "What then?"

"The yacht has been ransacked from stem to stern, sir."

"Ha!" said Bonnier. "You seem to be pleased about it," said Wilson sorely.

"I suspected our man was not far away, and now I know it."

ED. BORN WITHOUT ARMS, SCARCELY MISSES 'EM!

(By the AP Feature Service)

Pueblo, Colo.—Born without arms, Edward Higgins, 10, wins penmanship awards by using his toes, and he can draw and paint with more success than many boys and girls with arms and hands.

He has a set of carpenter's tools he can use, and he threads needles, sews buttons on his clothes and plays games with his friends.

He lives on a farm with his parents and two sisters. At the grade school he attends his teachers say he is above average in spelling, arithmetic, penmanship and drawing.

THIS LAWYER'S DORTON MAKES EARS BURNING GOOD MANAGER

Governor Learns Of Unethical Tactics Engaged In

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Sept. 20.—Somewhere in Raleigh there's a lawyer whose ears should be burning, if there's anything to the old saying about that sort of thing.

For the Governor of North Carolina knows that this so-called attorney has been chiseling a large percentage of the few dollars a hard-working Negro woman has been making by the sweat of her brow.

The Governor knows because she went to the executive mansion and told him so. She didn't go there for that particular purpose, in fact she didn't then realize she was being prayed upon by an unscrupulous member of an honored profession. But Rebecca (that's her name) wanted to see him.

Rebecca, it seems, has a husband who some time ago ran afoul of the law by killing another of his race. Trial resulted in a sentence of twenty to twenty-five years. That was two years ago.

Rebecca wanted him out. She needed her spouse, and so she went to see the lawyer, who she told the Governor, assured her that if she would pay him a fee to be paid in small installments—he could get her man paroled almost at once. She paid, and paid, and paid, but nothing happened. She didn't know that nothing could happen because her husband wasn't within several years of being eligible for parole.

At length she decided the thing to do was to see the Governor herself. She didn't know enough to go to the office in the capitol. She went to the Governor's house, just like she would have gone to any other person's. As luck would have it she arrived just about the same time that the Governor reached the mansion after his day at the office.

Some of the servants told him the woman was there, and with his usual democracy the Governor immediately had her brought in to see him. (Telling her "white folks" about it later, Rebecca expressed surprise they didn't search her. "Like I reads they do when you sees de President")

She told the Governor her story. He set her straight on the impossibility of her husband's release just now.

But he also got the lawyer's name, will doubtless do a bit of investigating on his own account. And that's why a pair of ears are, or ought to be, burning.

Doing Fine Job As Head of North Carolina State Fair

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Sept. 20.—Seasoned veterans of the outdoor entertainment business admitted today that Dr. J. S. Dorton, manager of the North Carolina State Fair, "has something on the ball."

The energetic Shelbyite, an old hand at operating smaller exhibitions, has perfected arrangements for one of the finest State Fairs North Carolina has ever enjoyed. He has added to the exhibit lists, increased total prize money to $14,000, an increase of over 10 per cent, and secured internationally renowned talent for the entertainment features of the State exposition.

Dr. Dorton admittedly has a tough job. After several years of private operation, the State Fair was turned over to Dr. Dorton with the command to make a success of the exposition, which will be held October 12-16. Dr. Dorton jumped into the larger task with vim and vigor. Letting bygones be bygones, he contacted George A. Hamid, world's largest producer of outdoor entertainment, and secured top-notch hippodrom acts that have never been presented on masses at a state fair in the South. Mr. Hamid incidentally was one of the operators of the North Carolina exposition before the state took charge again.

In addition, Dr. Dorton secured Max Linderman's World Mirth, a midway attraction known from Canada to the Gulf for its entertainment excellence. Added to this he booked Lucky Teter and his Hell drivers, the nation's outstanding thrill show, daring professional auto racers competing under the official banner of the American Automobile Association, and some of America's outstanding horse racing stables.

On top of all this, Dr. Dorton secured from the Hamid offices a sparkling musical revue that invades the south for the first time with performances at the North Carolina Fair. This revue, a nightly feature, bids fair to be one of the main attractions at the annual exposition.

SILENCE PERIOD GOVERNS CAROLINA FRATERNITY MEN

Chapel Hill, Sept. 20.—A preliminary to rushing, the regular "period of silence" between fraternity men and freshman freshmen at the University of North Carolina began with the arrival of the new men and will extend to October 3. Rushing will extend from October 3 to October 14 when a period of silence begins.

The interfraternity council defines rushing as "entertaining, engaging in social conversation, in written correspondence, or in any form of communication—direct or indirect (except formal salutations on the part of any member of a fraternity, or any agent thereof)."

GRISSETTE ADDRESSES ANNUAL HOSPITAL SAVINGS ASSOCIATION

Chapel Hill, Sept. 20.—Felix A. Grissette, executive director of the North Carolina Hospital Savings Association, is in Atlantic City attending the annual convention of the American Hospital Association. There he will deliver a paper on "Dependent Coverage." Mr. Grissette is also a member of the advisory committee of the group hospitalization section of the association.

Raleigh, Sept. 20.—North Carolina farmers were getting an average of one egg from each hen ovid on September 1, according to the figures of the Cooperative Crop Reporting Service of state and federal Departments of Agriculture, which placed the production of eggs as 34 per day from one hundred hens.

Democratic and Republican chairmen will meet next week in pleasant conferences designed to "lay the foundation for a program of non-partisan governmental education," according to announcement of the Institute of Government,
the sponsor.

Sort of lion laying down with the hamb affairs, no doubt, and there's no trouble telling which animal is which in North Carolina—or anywhere else except Maine and Vermont, for that matter.

It would seem that anyone employed to write a big advertisement should at least be qualified in grammar to a limited extent. Yet one such large ad. in the Raleigh morning sheet, informs the public
"Up goes prices"

"You can't help wondering if some man don't think more of their wives dead than alive," said Miss Pauline Gordon of the State College extension service. "For my part I'd rather be buried in a pine box and have a water system. I won't have to tote water after I'm dead, yet many a man who would be willing to spend $200 or more on his wife's funeral wouldn't think of spending that much on a home water system to prolong her life."

Hunting will be permitted in the Hoffman forest and game preserve, formerly known as the White Oak poosin, in Onslow and Jones counties each Saturday in October, November and December, it has been announced.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday
of Thanksgiving and Christmas week-ends will be open days, added Dr. J. V. Hoffman, director of the forestry school at State College.

"It is too bad that we cannot eat lean meats a day and stop overnight in twice as many places as we have scheduled, since we are being literally overwhelmed by the interest and hospitality being shown by every community in the state
through which the tour will pass and many through which it will not be able to pass," said C. W.
Roberts, a member of the state advertising committee arranging for the state-wide travel tour of travel bureau executives, counselors and travel editors, October 10 to 20.

"I am tired of treating diphtheria, not that I mind the work but because I hate to see little children suffer and die from the effects of a disease that is 100 per cent preventable," writes a prominent child specialist in Eastern North Carolina to Dr. J. C. Knox, state epidemiologist.
"I agree with him absolutely,"
commented Dr. Knox.

Political prophets are practically unanimous in their belief that Thomas E. Cooper, mayor of Wilmington, has his head set on running for Governor in 1940. They do not belittle the vote getting ability of the New Hanover man who has had such a tempestuous
and astounding career; but they do wonder who will back him financially. They know it costs money to run for Governor and they likewise know that Tom hasn't enough to make the political mare go.

What It Means: Labor's Family Fight

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(AP Feature Service Writer)
WASHINGTON — If you're interested in every-day economics
you can disregard most of the pretentious Labor Day messages and orations, and concentrate on this fact:
Just as long as John L. Lewis' CIO and William Green's A. F. of L. continue their struggle for supremacy,
there will exist pressure for the federal government to step in and regulate the new-found strength
of organized labor.

Proof of that is already in the record.
Last spring congress made gestures toward passing a law to penalize reckless labor acts after the sit-down strike had stretched public patience almost to the breaking point. The senate went so far as to denounce the sit-down technique. It was even suggested that labor organizations be incorporated
—an idea detestable to every true
union man. Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, proposed to punish irresponsible labor groups by prohibiting their collection of union dues.

Nobody Does Anything
The laws proposed last spring are merely sleeping until public opinion
again presses them into the legislative hopper. Next time they may not die, particularly if labor's private war puts both employers and the public "in the middle."
And nobody in organized labor is doing much, publicly at least, to stop the flames of dissension spreading through organized labor's private estates.

On the contrary, leaders in labor's rival households seem to be pouring fuel on the fire with all the enthusiasm of a small boy trying to burn down the schoolhouse. The Labor Day Speeches of John L.
Lewis and William Green certainly didn't go very far toward stopping the conflagration.

President's Warning
President Roosevelt himself has warned federal employes they have no right to strike.
No federal employe has made the slightest move to strike. Then why did the President warn them? Because the rival labor camps are organizing unions among federal workers.

The President has gone out of his way to express his apprehension. He has attempted to choke off the growth of a power that one day could challenge the dignity of the government itself.

That can reflect nothing less than a Presidential temper to head off and prevent excesses in labor activity—a disposition to regulate,
if that should be necessary.

A Case In Court
Simultaneously, a clear-cut test
case before the Green federation and the Lewis CIO is heading toward the Supreme Court from Ambridge, Pa., home of the National Electric Products corporation.

That corporation sided up with the A. F. of L. unions, only to come face to face with a CIO contest before the national labor relations board. The CIO electrical union charged the company with coercing employes to join the A. F.
of L. rival.
Green's faction promptly appealed to a federal district court, which just as promptly wrote its okay on the federation contract. But the labor relations board ordered the employes to the ballot box to determine whether CIO or A. F. of L.
had a majority. Another federal court has declined to interfere with the board.

Regulations Begin
Now where does that leave the warring groups within labor's ranks?

Just here:
One faction of labor (CIO) is testing in the courts a closed shop contract under the national labor federation's law, for such was the contract signed by the electrical corporation and A. F. of L. In other words, CIO has brought into question the principle of the closed shop—the principle for which it long has fought—in order to protect its rights in Ambridge, Pa.

The courts may not have to pass directly on the point, but one side will win the case somewhere along the court line, and the public will form its own opinions accordingly.

Thus the regulation of labor
through interpretation of its own magna charta—the national labor relations act—has already begun.
All these things reflect a mounting pressure to impose unwelcome responsibilities on organized labor;
and as long as labor's infernal war continues, that pressure will remain to plague labor's hard won advances.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington, Sept. 17.—(AP)—
These sob-stories of self-sacrificing federal officials who stay on the job while high-priced positions await them on the outside will bear looking into.

There is no doubt that some are offered better positions, and when they stay on to "work for the President" through the election period or a session of congress, they lose money. But the losses are well balanced by personal benefits gained from their service for the government.

James Landis, chairman of the securities exchange commission, and Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, are the latest pair to quit the government to contest for bacon and eggs in the outside world.
The government will miss them,
and it has been stated that the hole left by Mr. McGrady in the labor department will be particularly hard to fill.

It should be written at once that both Landis and McGrady are the grandest sort of individuals. They are the kind you would like to have for friends for life. But Landis and McGrady cannot write in the honest privacy of their diaries that they served the federal government at a sacrifice to their welfare.

The Rise of Mr. McGrady.
Several months before McGrady's proposed departure became public knowledge, he had offers from outside concerns that easily topped his $9,000 salary as assistant secretary of labor. He stayed on at the President's request, so information here goes, because the President wanted him during the election and the troublesome labor period that followed. To that extent there was sacrifice on the part of McGrady.

But look at the whole McGrady
picture, instead of just a part.
He is 65. During 60 of those years not one man in a thousand could have told who McGrady was. For 15 years before his appointment as assistant secretary, he was an organizer and lobbyist in Washington for the American Federation of Labor. It was an important job, but not such a job as to cause private enterprise to rush to his side with fat offers. Those offers developed after he became assistant secretary and made a name for himself as a strike mediator.

Don't undercut this man Mc-Grady. He is a bargain at whatever figure the Radio Corporation
of America had to pay to get him as its labor relations man. But the offer came after his government service, not before.

The Rise of Mr. Landis Much the same can be said of Landis. He never had an extensive private practice; so he didn't give up a $100,000 a year law business to help the government out of a hole.
He was so bright as a Harvard law student that Justice Brandeis chose him as his law clerk, a distinction that means something even in these court sitting days. But justices are allowed only $5,000 for office assistance, and that sum usually must include pay for a stenographer.
From that job Landis went back to Harvard as assistant professor of law. He made a rapid climb and was professor of legislation when in 1933, the government invited him to help write the securities act. The government paid him $10,000 a year.

That is more than teaching usually pays.

Chances are his successful trick in government service put him in line of dean of the law school away abed of the time he could have expected it if he had stayed in the class room.

Landis and McGrady are not the only ones who often have been pictured as sacrificing time and lucre for dear old government. But, with few exceptions, the government got them because it paid more than they were getting before.

About NEW YORK

New York—When winter arrives
in Manhattan, these things take place:
Chili parlers replace orange juice stands. Ferry boats are crowded but the decks remain dimly empty. Unemployed actors desert the sidewalks and take refuge in hotel lobbies. Everyone insists that you try his recipe for a new hot toddy.

Corner news boys warm themselves over fires built in garbage pails. Restaurant owners erect signs: "Keep your eye on your overcoat—not responsible in case of theft." Everybody pours alcohol in their radiators, giving the town a pre-repeal odor. Chefs depart for hunting lodges and big game camps in the Canadian woods.
Fifth avenue cops adorn themselves with black ear-muffs. Helen Mencken hurries across town in an enormous mink coat. Department stores formally open their
"tropic" departments, offering linens and pith helmets to those hurrying south for the winter.

A red flag flies over the lake in Central park, notifying skaters that the ice is thick enough for skating.
People who never wear hats become really conspicuous. Hot chestnut vendors parch their wares over corner charcoal burners. Ski dancers on Saturday afternoons
at the hotels are crowded with college girls.
Doormen in front of apartments,
hotels and theatres outfit themselves with boots and capes, also umbrellas. Pipe smokers begin to puff with greater frequency and enthusiasm. Everyone buttonholes you and asks if you can get him two tickets to the Notre Dame game.

The poor suffer in their unheated tenements, and the rich suffer from hang-overs and too little sleep. Theatrical crowds are sprinkled with "white ties" and top hats bob along above the crowd
like gusty lanterns on Halloween.
All the bright colored awnings
and the sidewalk cafes disappear.
The tie salesmen come out, valises
filled with gaudy neckwear.
Hacks with "Heated Taxi" signs yawn invitingly, but they are seldom warm. The star baseball players depart for exhibition and vaudeville tours.
Broadway at eight o'clock at night is alive with young couples carrying skates. The autograph hunters hanging around stage doors have icicles on their noses. The icicles look like transparent rooster spurs. Hack drivers keep sacks of hot peanuts in each pocket to keep their hands warm. Ski trains advertise "specials" leaving for the Adirondacks.

Of course, some of this is a little premature, but, come snow, this is what happens.

Two dependents of deceased veterans of the War of 1812 were still receiving pensions in 1936.

What To Do— If Someone Drinks Poison

1. Call a doctor.
2. Try to get the victim to vomit.
3. Feed him a "bland" mixture of milk, eggs, et cetera.
4. Look at the bottle—if you're sure which one it was—to see if any antidote was listed.
5. Use artificial respiration if necessary after treatment.

This is what Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, president of the New York City Childrens Welfare Federation would do in such an emergency.
When you call the doctor, he says, tell him what the victim has taken if you can so he'll know what kind of an antidote to bring. Starch solutions may be used against iodine; soap solutions or baking soda in water for most acids.

Stick your finger down the victim's throat, if you have to, to get him to vomit. And it's a good idea to roll him in a blanket while you are working over him to keep his arms and legs from striking you.
An added precaution: always keep poisonous substances in clearly marked bottles stored as far back on the medicine closet shelf as possible.

DUKE'S DEVILS PUTTING IT ON

Hold Initial Drills for First Three Grid Games

Durham, Sept. 20.—That pre-game period has arrived for the Blue Devils of Duke and this afternoon they were to start "putting it on" for the opener with V.P.I. at Greensboro Saturday night and the two following engagements with Davidson and Tennessee.

Although they would like to take V.P.I. and Davidson in that "stride" so many teams talk about and put forth all efforts to getting ready for the big Homecoming day clash with Tennessee, there is far too much danger of getting upset by the Gobblers and the Wildcats to do that.

Both V.P.I. and Davidson call for the greatest of respect. While it is the first gridiron engagement in history with the Gobblers, history has told Duke many times that they must get ready for those clawing Wildcats. In man-power the Gobblers are about on an even basis with Duke. They have a big and experienced line, filled from end to end with veterans of last year and they have a quartet of promising backs. At Miller, the veteran Gobbler triple-threat halfback, has been bringing plenty of smies from V.P.I. followers with his showing in early scrimmages and is reported to be set for his best season. And Knky Darnell, former protegee of Bill Murray at the Winston-Salem Children's home, is cutting some capers as the Gobblers sophomore fullback. The two first games are labelled "musts" for the Blue Devils. The Wademen are defending their two-year-old reign in the Southern conference and want to get started off right in defense of their double title. And, too, they want to come up to the big game with Tennessee in Duke stadium on October 9 with a perfect record so the game will fully justify its pre-season rating as "The Battle of the South."

Every football season has its quota of thrills—long runs, long kicks, long passes and unusual plays. The current gridiron parade should prove no exception. Before long the thud of the kicker's toe against the pigskin will be resounding on the nation's gridirons. Odd and unusual plays will most likely play a part in deciding important contests.

Who knows but what another Larry Kelly may spring up to match the Yale star's flair for the unexpected. Kelly's skill as a pass catcher, to say nothing of his famous "soccer kick" of a loose ball which led to Yale's victory over Navy and aroused so much discussion, earned him a place among the game's immortals.

Perhaps the football enthusiasts have in store for them a stunt to match Ace Parker's return of kick-off from five yards behind his own goal line. Duke was playing North Carolina when Parker returned the ball 105 yards to a touch down. Milton Popovich of Montana did the same thing against Oregon state.

Lou Drone of St. Louis, in attempting to make the point after touchdown against Washington university of St. Louis, kicked the ball low and it struck the chest of an opposing tackle and bounded high into the air and over the cross-bar for the point.

When Michigan played Minnesota Wilbur Moore, Minnesota sub, intercepted a Michigan pass and ran for a touchdown, the first time in history an intercepted Wolverine aerial produced a touchdown. Inasmuch the embarrassment of Kenneth Goodson, of Southern Methodist, when attempting a pass in the Nat ional, lost control of the ball and allowed it to sail backwards five yards where Bobby Martin of Arkansas, rushing in to smear the play, caught the ball and ran 27 yards to a touchdown.

Late comers to the Stanford-Columbia game at the Polo Grounds missed the one big thrill of the game if they were not in their seats when George Furey of Columbia took the Stanford kickoff on his own twenty yard line and ran it back for the only touchdown of the afternoon. Then there was Bert Johnson's 66-yard pass to his Kentucky teammate, Bob Davis. And Larke Super's 85-yard punt.

The proportion of persons over 70 in the total United States population more than doubled between 1860 and 1930.

GOOD HUNTING IN STORE HERE

To Remove Bans in Hoffman Forest and Game Area

Raleigh, Sept. 20.—Hunting will be permitted in the Hoffman forest and game preserve, formerly known as the White Oak pocomin, in Onslow and Jones counties each Saturday in October, November and December, it was announced here today.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday of the Thanksgiving and Christmas weekends will be open days, added Dr. J. V. Hofmann, director of the forestry school at State college.

He pointed out that there is twice as much game in this area now as there was when the pocomin was first set aside in 1935 as a demonstration forest for the State college school of forestry. And since CCC boys have constructed fire breaks and truck trails into the pocomin, it is easier for hunters to gain entrance to important deer stands, both on foot and by automobile, Dr. Hofmann stated.

The preserve is well stocked with deer, bear, squirrel, turkey, and quail.

All persons desiring to hunt in the area must secure permits, which may be obtained from G. E. Jackson, forest ranger for the Onslow-Jones county district.

Others from whom permits may be secured are: Trenton Drug company, Trenton; Lonnie Griffin, Comfort; Jim Lichens, Richlands; P. Marshall, Gum Branch section; G. E. Eubanks, Belgrade; C. R. Parker, Pollockville; and Miss Zebie Collins, in the upper White Oak river section, Dr. Hofmann said.

GLAMOUR? MISS LOMBARD JUST LAUGHS AND LAUGHS

By ROBBIN COONS
(AP Feature Service Writer)
HOLLYWOOD—Nominated for Queen of the Candid: Carole Lombard.

The little cameras that go snap-snap in a star's unguarded moments are a movie queen's enemy. They don't give her time to strike up a pose that will favor her best camera side, to look glamorous.

They don't, in short, give her time for anything but to look herself at that precise moment, however unflatteringly that may be.

But the Lombard girl—she doesn't care. They got some beauties of her during the making of "Nothing Sacred" and she looked them over and laughed.

These pictures, had they been of Marlene Dietrich, say, or Joan Crawford, or Greta Garbo, would have been swept up into a wastebasket, transferred to a studio incinerator, and sent up in smoke along with the "kills" from the dressing-rooms of movie queens who rate glamour among their assets.

1. "Well—of all things!" or words to that effect, says Carole Lombard—you knew it was Carole Lombard, didn't you? As a matter of fact, had it been any other movie queen you wouldn't be seeing this "still." But Carole only laughed.

2. Carole—still the same girl—has glamour in plenty, but she doesn't mind when a movie still of her turns out like this. It was shot just as she got ready to plant a haymaker on Frederic March's jaw during the filming of "Nothing Sacred."

3. At this point Carole spotted the still man as he raised his camera again. "I may be all wet," she seems to be saying (she was all wet—Director William Wellman was sprinkling her with water) "but you lay off." He didn't.

N. Y. Stock Market

N. Y. Stock, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Stock market leaders hit the downturn today, many crashing into new lows for the past 18 months or longer.

Losses of one to four points were numerous. There were a few setbacks of six to eight.

Volume was heavy at the opening, with blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares changing hands. Activity dwindled on mild recovery moves and extreme declines were shaded in some instances near the final hour.

Depressing copper issues had a sharp fall, sending futures of the red metal to under 12 cents a pound, compared with the current domestic spot price of 14 cents. The export rate also dipped and there was further talk of a possible cut in the American quotation as production increased and consumption continued to lag.

Rails did better relatively than other categories as predictions were advanced by financial observers that the granting of higher basic commodity freight rates is probably a scheme of getting the loss of emergency rates at the end of last year.

Losses were substantially reduced or cancelled in many instances in the final hour as some "bargain hunting" buying and short covering made its appearance.

Transfers were around 1,600,000 shares.

Education is compulsory in Soviet Russia.

TARBORO MEET FOR OFFICIALS

State and Local Officers to Gather on Saturday

Tarboro, Sept. 20.—With Governor Hoey, Lieutenant-Governor Horton, and the state Democratic and Republican chairmen, Gregg Cherry and W. C. Meekins, for the principal speakers, state legislators, county commissioners, city aldermen and other local officials from eastern North Carolina will hold an important district conference at the court house here Thursday afternoon, opening at 2 o'clock, under the auspices of the Institute of Government.

The meeting has been called to take up ways and means of state-local cooperation with respect to classifying property for taxes including the possible exemption of homesteads, reducing local relief loads through Social Security, establishing a state Department of Justice, and other matters of immediate, practical importance to counties.

N. H. Yelton, State Director of Public Assistance, and other representatives of new state commissions will be present to outline the problems of their agencies and lead discussion. Members of the state's congressional delegation have also been invited to attend and outline the legislation of the last congress affecting cities and counties, headed by the Relief, WPA and PWA bills.

The meeting in Tarboro will be one in a series of four district conferences the Institute is holding throughout the state this week. The discussions will be primarily for legislators and for city and county commissioners, attorneys, accountants, clerks, and tax officials, but will be open to any interested official or citizen. The Institute's new series of district schools for law enforcing officers will be held at the same places and on the same days, but starting at 10 o'clock each morning.

CHICKEN HAWKS FOLLOW HOPPERS INTO WEST

Colorado Springs, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The grasshopper invasion in eastern Colorado has attracted thousands of chicken hawks.

Several ranchers reported recently the skies were black with hawks circling over regions where the hoppers were thick.

The hawks settled down at various places and feasted until the supply of grasshoppers was exhausted, then moved on to other hopper infested regions.
