FARM LEADERS MEET TUESDAY TO LAY PLANS

To Gather In Raleigh To Discuss Proposed Program

PREPARE TO GO WINSTON - SALEM

Farmers Asked To Suggest Representatives to Voice Views Before Committee

Raleigh, Sept. 27.—(AP)—North Carolina agricultural leaders this week will lay plans for a proposed farm program to be suggested to the United States Senate agricultural committee at Winston-Salem October 18.

W. Kerr Scott, agriculture commissioner, announced that farm leaders from all parts of the state would be here tomorrow "to draft preliminary plans for the committee hearing."

Attending will be representatives of the State Farm Bureau, State Grange, Agriculture Department, N. C. State College Extension Service and others.

Wednesday the executive committee of the Farm Bureau will hold a meeting at N. C. State College to set up state committees for various commodities groups and make arrangements for representation at the Winston-Salem meeting.

Scott said persons attending the meeting tomorrow would be asked to suggest names of representatives of farmers to voice their views and views of their sections before the Winston-Salem meeting.

Scott said Senator Elston Smith of South Carolina, chairman of the agriculture committee, had urged him to "schedule" witnesses to testify at the hearing.

When the next session of Congress convenes under an agreement entered into at the closing days of the last session, Senator Smith wrote Scott, "an agricultural bill will be the first business to engage the attention of Congress."

Canadian Politics Practically Same As Those In U. S.

Neighbors Declared To Be Adept In All The Wiles Engaged In By Citizens Of This Country

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Sept. 27.—Canadian politicians are adept in all the wiles and tricks of the political game as practiced in the United States, and in addition can show a few new wrinkles of their own, according to Major A. L. Fletcher, State Commissioner of Labor, who has just returned from the 23rd annual convention of the International Association of Governmental Labor Officials, held in Toronto.

"On Ontario politics are just about as hot right now as we have it here the last two weeks before a run-off Democratic primary," said the Major. "They're all mixed up in a labor battle between the C. I. O. and the A. F. L., just as bitter as in any part of the United States. In fact the labor issue is paramount in their election and oddly enough it has forced the Conservatives into the position of defending the more radical C. I. O., while the so-called Liberals are backing the Federation and calling the CIO's communists, traitors and even harder words."

About ten minutes of every hour's radio program are devoted to political speeches. Major Fletcher said there's an orator on practically every retransmission, and when the Labor Association delegates gathered for a big banquet the assistant Labor Secretary for Ontario couldn't resist the opportunity to give the visitors from 36 states of the United States and from six other Canadian provinces, a rip-roaring political harangue.

The political innovation which impressed Major Fletcher most was the use of huge billboards to show life-sized representations of the leading candidates, engaged in spouting their political nostrums.

"They were extremely well done," said Major Fletcher. "Big, handsome billboards with very attractive layouts including the life-sized figures."

ABDUCTED MAN FEARED SLAIN

Retired Chicago Manufacturer Kidnaped Saturday

Chicago, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Fear that Charles Ross had died in the hands of kidnapers increased today as hours passed without word from the retired manufacturer or his abductors.

Capt. Daniel Gilbert, of the state attorney's police, theorized that the 72 year old victim, suffering from high blood pressure and a heart ailment, might have died from shock since he was carried off Saturday night.

Gilbert's officers and detectives squads were stationed at strategic points awaiting receipts of a ransom note or telephone call on the alternate promise that Ross was still alive.

His wife, distraught and apprehensive, remained near a telephone.

Ross was abducted on a road west of Chicago as he was driving in from Sycamore with Miss Florence Freihage, 45, office secretary of a greeting card company which Ross headed until his retirement two years ago.

The first substantial clue was furnished by employees of the Fargo hotel in Sycamore. Ross and Miss Freihage had dined there Saturday evening.

Teachers Receive Three - Fourths Of All School Money

If Class Room Instructors Are To Get More Pay Increase in Total Appropriations Necessary

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Sept. 27.—If North Carolina's class-room teachers are to get more money it will have to be by increasing total appropriations for schools and not by any readjustment of the pay between classifications now receiving salaries from the school funds, a study of the 1936-37 school audit shows clearly.

According to the audit figures, teachers, excluding principals and counting only those who actually go into the class rooms and instruct students, are now receiving slightly more than $3 out of every $4 spent on the public schools by the state.

While elementary teachers last year received $9,573,759.50 or 44.86 per cent of all school expenditures; colored elementary teachers drew $3,123,328.09 or 14.63 per cent; white high school teachers were paid $3,022,227.08 or 14.16 per cent; colored high school teachers received $486,950.12 or 2.28 per cent.

All this adds up to $16,206,147.97 or 75.93 per cent of the grand total of $21,343,361.02 expended on the schools of North Carolina.

The contention his frequently been made that the state pays the superintendents too much money in comparison with the salaries paid its teachers, but the audit reveals that the practical effect of any possible discrimination in the respect is totally negligible, for if not one superintendent in the entire state drew one penny, and if the entire sum thus saved were paid entirely to the classroom teachers, the average pay of these classroom teachers would be increased a grand total of $16.31 per year or as much as $2 per month of teaching.

This result is arrived at by dividing the total sum paid to superintendents, $379,114.93, by the total number of classroom teachers, 22,639.

Storm Warning Displayed Along Carolina Coast

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 27.—(AP)—The weather bureau today issued a storm warning for the central Atlantic seaboard from Cape Hatteras to Southport, N. C.

Northwest storm warnings were ordered displayed at 10 a. m. (EST) as the weather bureau's hurricane warning system advised a disturbance is developing over the Atlantic about 300 miles off the north Florida coast, attendant at present, by 25 to 35 mile squalls.

The advisory said "the storm will likely increase in intensity to gale force and move rather slowly probably in a norward direction during the next 24 hours."

Meteorologists urged vessels especially small craft, to use caution along the Carolina coast.

N. C. LEADS IN TOBACCO LEVY

Collections Account For $276,455,802 Of Total

Washington, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Tobacco tax collections accounted for $276,455,802 of North Carolina's $311,110,992 federal revenue bill in the 1936-37 fiscal year.

Commissioner Guy Helvering's annual report disclosed today North Carolina was far ahead of other states in tobacco tax collections, paying more than half the total of $552,254,145.

Virginia followed North Carolina with $145,889,303 and in third place was Kentucky with $41,217,256. Of North Carolina's total, $254,288,443 was tax paid on cigarettes and $21,746,371 on chewing and smoking tobacco and snuff. The remainder was miscellaneous collections.

Virginia's cigarette tax was $140,779,584 while in Kentucky the cigarette tax returned $35,222,843 to the government.

Tobacco collections by other states included:

California, $10,121,266; Florida, $1,164,584 mostly cigars; Illinois, $1,842,228; Michigan, $2,090,552; Missouri, $6,261,644; New Jersey, $27,127,019; Ohio, $8,846,598; Pennsylvania, $16,433,848; South Carolina, $547,409; Tennessee, $3,367,992; West Virginia, $1,609,334 and Philippine Islands, $331,245.

Last Week Quiet At State Capital

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Sept. 27.—Last week in Raleigh was about as quiet as a Republican celebration of the 1936 election, with Governor Clyde R. Hoey, as usual, the most active figure in the capital city.

On Monday the chief executive studied and eventually gave his approval to the compromise settlement of the state's controversy with the Norfolk Southern Railroad over cancellation of the lease on the state-owned Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad. This compromise was adopted Tuesday when the A. and N. C. stockholders and directors meeting was held in Goldsboro. It will give the state about $100,000 and relieve it of all claims by the N. S. on account of the lease.

At the Goldsboro meeting H. P. Crowell was named head of the "Mullet" road. Governor Hoey's action in directing the state's support for him assuring the result.

Also on Tuesday, the governor "proclaimed" Air Mail Week, after saying on Monday that he was opposed to gubernatorial "proclamations."

Wednesday, Governor Hoey conferred with several state officials on various matters, with no announcement of any specific action. On Thursday he spoke at the dedication of a farm building in Tyrrell county and again that night at an Institute of Government "educational" meeting at Tarboro. Friday he addressed a similar meeting at Winston-Salem, and on Saturday he sat with Governor Olin D. Johnson of South Carolina, at the "Battle of Carolinas" football game at Chapel Hill. Meeting of the two governors did not reduce the length of time between drinks for the pair as both are abhorbers of anything stronger than bottled soft drinks.

On Monday the Board of Education formally ratified action of the School Commission granting a ten (Continued on Page Two)

RUSSIA WARNS JAPS AGAINST AIR ASSAULTS

Soviet Sharpens Tone Against Nippon In Stern Note

REGARDED REPLY CHINESE REQUEST

Determined Protest, Officially Presented, Defies Japan Bomb Embassy in Nanking

Moscow, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The Soviet government sharpened its tone toward Japan today with a stern warning against "lawless" bombardment of Nanking in what was believed to be a response to a Chinese appeal for aid against Japanese attacks.

The official organ of the Soviet government, Izvestia, published without comment the Chinese note asking Russia "to take measures which would help end quickly barbarous and inhuman activities" as Japanese bombardment.

The Soviet note was considered by responsible circles to be a direct response to China's plea for assistance.

The Soviet government defied Japan to bomb its embassy in Nanking in the "determined protest" which was presented officially to the Japanese foreign minister in Tokyo by the Russian ambassador.

The note declared officials of the Soviet embassy had been instructed to remain at their posts and warned the Japanese government it would be held fully responsible for any damage or injury from bombardment of the embassy in Nanking.

Two Negroes Held On Attack Charge

Two Negro youths, Elbert Sumrell and Snoot Hemby, are being held in jail here on a charge of assault upon Margarette Peyton, crippled Negro girl, with intent to criminally attack the girl.

The alleged attack took place Saturday when the two boys delivered a load of wood at the girl's home. No one else was at home at the time with the exception of small children. The boys were apprehended yesterday after the girl had told her parents of the attack and they had advised police officials.

Chief George Clark declared the pair did not deny the charge.

SAYS FASCISTS WANT TO FIGHT

Spanish Delegate To League Assails Italy, Germany

Geneva, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Julio Alvarez del Vayo, Spanish government delegate to the League of Nations, demanded today that the league "call the bluff" of Germany and Italy, "two headed monsters which appear to want to declare war on all Europe."

The young, former minister of foreign affairs created a tense atmosphere with his impassioned appeal and condemnation of Italian and German intervention in the Spanish civil war "on the side of the insurgents."

Not a seat was vacant at the long table of the committee on political questions. Every inch of press and spectator space was packed throughout his hour-long indictment.

Del Vayo demanded the adoption of five proposals presented by Juan Negrin, Spanish government premier, to the league assembly. They are:

1.—Recognition of Italian and German aggression.

2.—Study of ways to restrain it.

3.—Granting of rights to the Spanish government to buy war materials freely.

4.—Withdrawal of all non-Spanish combatants.

5.—Extensions of the protection of the Nyon anti-piracy patrol to the Valencia regime's shipping on the Mediterranean.

SUB DESTROYS FISHING BOATS

Japan Blamed With Sinking Junks Off China Coast

Hong Kong, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Ten survivors declared today 300 men, women and children were killed when a Japanese submarine sank a fleet of Chinese junks off the south China coast.

Some of the junks were understood to sailing under British registry and authorities of this British naval base started an immediate investigation.

The 10 survivors, themselves all wounded, were brought here aboard a German liner.

They asserted the Japanese submarine rose to the surface suddenly while they were fishing September 22. The underwater craft opened fire and sank junk after junk.

While the wounded and dying, including 100 women and children struggled in the water the submarine steamed away. The survivors said no effort was made to pick up any of the victims.

Only one junk out of the fleet of 12 managed to escape from the submarine.

For some time the 10 survivors drifted until they were picked up by the German ship.

Challenger Yacht Reported Located

The master of the British steamer Cheyenne radioed the London office of the Associated Press today that he was in contact with the Endeavour I, long-missing American's Cup challenger yacht, Saturday at noon (6 a. m. EST).

Captain Alcock, the Cheyenne's master, reported his contact with the Endeavour I to the radio of the yacht Valenta, from which the one-time cup challenger broke her tow line off Nantucket two weeks ago.

The Cheyenne is an Anglo-American oil company tanker en route to Manchester from a Mexican gulf oil port. It was the second time in the past week that the Endeavour has been reported found. The first report, from the Azores far to the south, proved erroneous.

William Manning Freed On Bond In Death Of Jordan

Funeral Services for Shelmerville Resident, Cut to Death Saturday Night, Conducted Today

William Manning is free under bond of $2,000 in the death of George M. ("Buck") Jordan, who was cut to death at Elmer Venters' filling station near Shelmerville Saturday night.

Members of the sheriff's office, who made the investigation and arrest, declared that Manning cut Jordan after the latter had followed him out of the station and attacked him. Jordan was said to have insisted on arguing with Manning over some papers after the latter had told him that he did not have time, but would talk to him about them later.

Funeral services for Jordan, who was 25 years old, were conducted at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the home by Rev. W. G. Ennis, Free Will Baptist minister. Burial followed in the Haddock cemetery.

Jordan had lived in the Shelmerville community for the past nine years and was employed by a logging company. He came to Pitt county from Beaufort.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Fannie Jordan, four daughters, Verna Ramona, Mary Evelyn, Edna Earle, and Miner Louis Jordan; and three sisters, Mrs. W. G. Haddock and Mrs. Johnnie Haddock of Shelmerville and Mrs. D. C. Clark of Roanoke Rapids.

Declares Own Custom Houses Set Up In Shanghai

JAPS SEEK HALT CHINESE ATTACK

Japanese Bombing Planes Fire Canton R. R. Station Causing Many Casualties

Shanghai, Sept. 27.—(AP)—American business men declared today Japan had established its own custom houses in the Shanghai area in what appeared to be an attempt to throttle American and other foreign commerce in the international settlement and French concession.

Japanese reinforcements were rushed to the battle front northwest of Shanghai to halt a determined Chinese counter attack. Japanese war planes bombed the crowded cities of the eastern coast.

At Canton, on the south, the crowded terminus of the Canton-Nankow railroad was fired by a bomb of the air raiders and there were heavy civilian casualties.

The environs of Nanking, the capital down the Yangtze river, were bombed, but Chinese pursuit planes turned back to attackers from the city proper.

A series of heavy explosions rocked Shanghai as Japanese war ships and land batteries opened a heavy fire in the north station area. Several shells struck near the British barracks on the north border of the international settlement.

American business men asserted that if the Japanese retain control of the international settlement and Chinese water front territory through establishment of a puppet government after hostilities are over they will be able to divert American goods destined for inland distribution to their own areas.

Such a position, the Americans said, would eventually mean the end of many American and foreign owned businesses in the settlement while it would form the nucleus for the creation of a large Japanese controlled metropolis along the Shanghai waterfront.

Christian Science Church.
"Reality" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, September 26.

The golden text was from Psalms 119:69. "For ever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Thus saith the Lord the King of Israel, and his redeemer the Lord of hosts; I am the first, and I am the last; and beside me there is no God." (Isaiah 44:6)

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. "The Scriptures imply that God is All-in-All. From this it follows that nothing possesses reality nor existence except the divine Mind and His ideas. The Scriptures also declare that God is Spirit. He is all-inclusive, and is reflected by all that is real and eternal and by nothing else."

per cent increase in teachers' salaries. This action brought a brief controversial flurry when a teachers' leader took the exception to news reports that the increase brought salaries to the "pre-depression" level. She pointed out that a further increase of about eight per cent is necessary before salaries are again at the 1929 peak.

In connection with the schools the Commission on Thursday released the 1936-37 audit showing that the state spent $21,343,361 on its schools for that year. Teacher salaries accounted for more than 80 per cent of this tremendous total. The 1937 General Assembly has made about $24,000,000 available for the 1937-38 school year.

In the Highway Commission, a committee charged with studying the question of industries at State's Prison here continued its studies and Robert Grady Johnson, prison head, said action would probably be taken this week, disposing of the matter. Lack of funds has sorely cramped the style of those desiring to set up large-scale industries.

The Supreme Court handed down its first decisions of the Fall term, one of them allowing continuation of the famed Clevenger suit in Buncombe county in which recovery is sought from a hotel as the result of the notorious murder by Martin Moore, negro bell boy. Another decision denied new trials to Pete Bell and Sam Rodman, Beaufort county negroes who must die, unless the governor intervenes, for the gambling-murder of another Negro. In a Surry county case the court held there was insufficient evidence to convict Tom Madden, Negro, on a capital conviction for first degree burglary.

Slot machines (the much talked about "one-armed bandits") broke into print with stories that they were being operated in Wake county, but a vigorous push by the county solicitor sent them back into hiding.

Western Union boys walked out in a brief-lived strike in which they won an increase of salary; although the management said the raise had already been decided on and was not given because of the walkout.

PENS ARTICLE ON PELLAGRA

Pitt County Health Officer Discusses Dread Disease

The following article on pellagra which appeared in the September issue of Southern Medicine and Surgery, was written by Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt county health officer.

Entitled "The Family Physician and Pellagra," the article is considered of sufficient interest to be printed herewith:

"Whether the average physician realizes it or not, pellagra is still a serious public health problem in North Carolina and other southern states.

The U. S. census bureau reports July 1937, that in 1935, the latest figures available in North Carolina there were 383 deaths reported from this disease; in cities 119 and in rural sections 264 deaths. It is estimated that during this year, 1935 there were 3,000 deaths in the south from pellagra. It is also estimated that for every death from pellagra, there are 35 other persons pellagrous and that on this basis, there are around 100,000 pellagrins in the south.

"Dr. William DeKline, medical advisor, American Red Cross, says: 'I know of no disease which can be more easily prevented than pellagra. It requires no medicine, no serum, no medical treatment—only the right kind of food in sufficient amount x x x. If everyone would use a reasonable amount of milk, lean meat, liver, salmon and a variety of greens and vegetables in his diet regularly, pellagra would disappear entirely.'"

"It is our opinion that this control can be brought about only through the efforts of the family physician, the health officer and the farm agent and that the quickest results can be gotten where it is possible to bring the three into a united effort.

"These three agents can explain to the farmer why he should have a garden and cow and the physician and health officer explain to

"This began some years ago—I believe the story has never been told—when Paul came home one evening, enthusiastic after several dis-

He was to play in "Lillom." "What role?" asked Mrs. Muni. "Second lead to Charles Farrell," said Paul.

"No," said Mrs. Muni, with finality. "Second lead to a woman star, yes—but to a man, no."

"But I've signed the papers," protested Paul.

"We'll have to unsign them," she said.

And they did. And Paul Muni went back to the stage, and came back for "Scarface" and the seemingly permanent place he has made in pictures as the screen's leading character star—with Mrs. Muni supervising his taking of pen in hand.

Ra Hould, the Australian lad who has been compared to Freddie Bartholomew in all his pictures, is on the Metro contract list now that Freddie's fighting. Ra's new name is Ronald Sinclair.

Exactly what is a "Lubitsch touch?" From "Angel," some examples: the conversation between Herbert Marshall and Melvyn Douglas revealing subtly that in the war they had something in common, namely close acquaintance with a certain French girl; the sly digs at European diplomacy, especially as reflected in the conversation between those gentlemen's gentlemen, Ernest Cossart and Edward Everett Horton; the picturing of a ticklish luncheon scene of the principals in the triangle—Dietrich, Marshall, Douglas—entirely through the kitchen reactions and conversation of the servants; the race-track arrival of Cossart, the butler and his bride, during which he points out, with elaborate importance, the friends he has among those who serve the famous and well-bred; the general tongue-in-cheek approach to the pretensions of the follies and the elegances of the species.

"Angel," after what seemed to me a slow start, picked up considerably and became an engrossing version of the old three-cornered love story. Marshall got the preview audience hand, but Douglass was liked equally and as for Mar-lanah—I thought she was less languid, more intelligent, and less prone to flutter her lashes aimlessly than in the days of her von Sternberg puppetry.

He had made a couple of startling talks for the old Fox company, the second of which was probably the worst film of his career. "Seven Faces." This evening, however, he felt cheered.

He had signed for a picture again

BY HULBERT FOOTNER

SYNOPSIS: Neill, a young federal agent, finds his beloved Janet, a gun and Prescott Fanning's freshly shot body locked in a cabin on Fanning's yacht at Abington's Harbor, Md. Finding her nearby in a disused liner, Neill joins Mark Bonninger local investigator. Neill learns Janet didn't shoot the flashy scoundrel, but has to find out who did to save her. Queer little Eyster, who hated Fanning, Ira Buckless, Fanning's hulking bodyguard, and Kettering, a lawyer down from Baltimore to fish, all have alibis. Neill, suspected himself, is in a tight spot. He turns to Buckless seeking a clue to the murderer.

Chapter 37

The Googly Clue

"NOW think," said Neill. "Go over everything in your mind that happened in Baltimore. Surely you can give me a clue."

For several seconds Buckless kept shaking his head. Then he stopped in the middle of a shake. "Only a voice," he said. "If I heard it again I might recognize it. But how can I run down a voice?"

"Well, what did the voice say? And under what circumstances?"

"It was the same time I told you about when I hear the boss talking over the phone. The boss was in the bathroom when the thought: Probably he doesn't believe a word I say.

"I ran into Googly in his beer joint accidentally on purpose," Bonninger repeated dryly. "Sounds fantastic to me."

"We have often to build up a case on just such scraps of overheard conversation," said Neill. "There is Fanning's saying to put with it. She never tells him anything." She obviously refers to Miss Rayner. I could go to her for further information."

Bonninger was silent.

"If you approve, I'll go back to town and see what I can do."

"Certainly is good of you to take all this trouble!"

Neill made believe not to notice the dryness of his tone. "Oh, that's all right. Will you come, too?"

"You can go," he said at last. "but I've got to stay here."

Neill thought: He is willing to appear to let me off on my own in the hope that I may lead him to something.

"Meanwhile I'll be questioning Eyster," Bonninger said, looking at him hard.

"Meanwhile I'll be questioning Eyster," Bonninger said, looking at him hard.

Neill knew that was hopeless.

"Matingly will drive you," Bonninger went on. "Get something to eat before you start."

Neill thought: He wants time to arrange to have me trailed in town. Well, that's all right.

"And by the way," added Bonninger, "telephone me from the

EMPEROR

SOLDIER

(By the AP Feature Service)

From behind the moated walls of his palace in Tokyo Japan's 36-year-old Emperor Hirohito—the man on the white horse—follows the progress of his armies in China.

Deified by his people as the Son of Heaven, Hirohito is more than a figure-head. He brings his influence to bear on state affairs and tries to break through the barriers of 2,500 years of tradition to know his subjects.

Hirohito acquired first-hand knowledge of western ways when, as Crown Prince, he spent six months in Europe. Today, as Emperor, he keeps in close touch with European and American events by interviewing Japanese and foreign diplomats, and travelers returning from abroad. His daily routine includes reading of foreign as well as Japanese newspapers.

The Emperor keeps fit by playing golf and tennis. He neither smokes nor drinks, and keeps a diary illustrated with pictures made by his own camera.

"Maybe this is just a cop's trick," growled Buckless.

phone rings and I answers it. For a second the fellow thinks he is talking to the boss, then he pulls up and asks for Fanning. So I fetches the boss."

"What did the voice say during that one second that he thought you were Fanning?"

"He says: 'I ran into Googly in his beer joint accidentally on purpose.'"

"Is that all?"

"That's all."

"Sure you have it right?"

"Positive," Buckless repeated it.

"Did you figure anything from this voice?"

"Only that it was an educated guy. He didn't talk like me."

"What did Fanning say to him?"

"The boss just yessed him. This guy was making a report of some kind to the boss. . . . Wait a minute! I hear the boss say one thing that struck me. He says to this guy: 'Oh, that don't matter. She never tells him anything.'"

Neill studied this over silently.

"What do you make of it?"

"Not much. Did you ever hear 'Googly' mentioned again?"

"No."

Neill rose. "Well, I'll follow it up," he said. "It is all I can do."

Buckless was scowling blackly at Neill. "God damn! If you do nab the killer how do I know you will act square by me?"

"Nobody but you knows that I've got the stuff," said Neill. "If you were to split on me I would lose it. I am in your hands."

"Maybe you ain't got it. Maybe this is just a cop's trick to learn something out of me."

"You will have to trust me."

"Trust hell!"

"Well, you can be damn sure that if you give the girl away you'll never see a dollar of it."

"Lookit," growled Buckless. "You are free to go and come as you please. I'll give you 24 hours. If you don't show me that stuff by then I blow the works. See?"

Neill grinned hardily. In the desperate position he was in, 24 hours seemed a lot. "Okay."

"Sounds Fantastic"

UPON landing from the yacht, Neill went direct to Bonninger. "Did you get anything?" asked Bonninger. His face was stern.

Suppressing the first part of his talk with Buckless, Neill described the clue he had obtained.

Bonninger considered it. Neill

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine

By Iago Goldston, M.D.

TAINT SO

To know "what isn't so" is frequently as useful as to know what is, particularly in the realm of health and hygiene. For here the unscrupulous make wild claims, many of them phrased in language closely resembling the jargon of the earnest scientist.

Acid in your system! Certainly, without acids health is impaired and life itself is endangered. But pimples, skin blotches, a greasy complexion, excess fat, falling hair, and the hangover have nothing to do with excess acid. Furthermore, they will not be mended or corrected by the alkaline nostrum offered for 50 or a hundred times the price of the ingredients they contain.

Food for your skin! Yes, the skin can be fed, but only by way of the foods eaten. External skin foods are the salesman's invention, supplying none of the body's needs. Many cosmetic applications are offered to the public with the most preposterous of claims. We need not subscribe to the Spartan idea that soap, water and elbow grease are all the essentials required for good skin hygiene.

The dermatologist knows of the benefits to be derived from the use of certain creams, lotions, etc. useful in dealing with the skin too oily or too dry. He is psychologist enough to appreciate the cosmetic roles of perfumes, powders, and rouges. But all limits of reasonableness are exceeded when creams are offered containing vitamins and endocrine substances, precious metals, and secret rejuvenating compounds.

Regrowing hair! Yes, it can be done (in a measure) provided there remains something of a hair to be regrown. But for the average case of baldness in young adulthood, our present-day knowledge permits us to hope for little more than conservation of what is remaining. Good scalp hygiene (washing and brushing), massage of the scalp, the correction of constitutional defects, since baldness may be due to a variety of systematic diseases, may help conserve one's hair.

But all this is a far cry from the hocus-pocus offered by the self-styled specialist in hair—the trichologist. The person "growing bald" should consult his physician, and, when necessary, a dermatologist. He is thus best likely to save his hair, and most certain to save his money.

LEBRUN'S A TITLE HOLDER; HE'S GODFATHER TO 1,600

Paris (AP)—President Albert Lebrun has little to say about the way France is run, but he has an excellent claim to the title of world's champion godfather. He has more than 1,600 god-children.

Among the duties that keep the French chief of state busy is the job of being godfather to every baby who is the eighth living child of a French couple. He acts, that is, if the parents want him to be godfather. And parents usually do.

Years ago the Society for the Increase of the Population of France persuaded the president to be godfather for the fourteenth child born to a French couple as a tribute to the parents' contribution to the nation.

After that the president received a flood of requests. Some were from parents with more than four children who wondered why they had been left out. Others were from parents with one child, who informed the chief of state that theirs was a very exceptional baby.

So the president compromised on the eighth baby. President Lebrun holds a record average of 329 god-children a year for the last five years of his seven-year term.

Note to parents—he doesn't kiss them all.

The present crisis in China has directed attention again to the life of Charles Soong, once (1881-1892) a student at Trinity College. His daughter is the wife of General Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese leader, and another daughter was the wife of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, first president of China. Soong died in 1918. The above reproduction is a rare old photograph of him taken during his student days in America. It is owned by Mrs. Dred Peacock, of High Point, who was a young girl living in the college community when Soong studied at Trinity.

St. Mary's, Iowa (AP)—No one gets married and settles in this little German-Lith community without treating the whole town to a wedding dance.

A seasonal telephone call on all lines leading out from town summons the neighbors to a dance at the town hall in the evening of the wedding day.

If such an invitation has not been broadcast within two weeks after the marriage, the townspeople gather for a charity—and this always brings the desired results.

A BETTER PLAN

With the Community Chest plan already adopted for this city to provide for the carrying on of the various activities here next year, it is to be hoped that our citizens generally will get behind the movement and give it their wholehearted support when the drive for funds is put on. Heretofore each fall our city has witnessed one drive after another for funds for various activities while this year there will be only the Community Chest drive for funds and from this chest will come the funds for the various organizations carrying on charity work, Boy Scouts, Salvation Army, Red Cross and others.

It is much better to give a good donation at one time and know that the giving is over for a year than to be bothered from week to week by solicitors seeking funds, and it is for this reason that the Community Chest plan has been adopted.

Plans are now going forward for staging the drive here next week. It is to be hoped that there will be no trouble in oversubscribing the budget now being worked out by the Chest committee.

We are sure that once the plan is put into operation our people will find it far better than our old plan of individual action on the part of each organization.

ACT NOW

For the past two weeks the schools throughout Pitt County have been receiving subscription payments for The Reflector and have been receiving a liberal commission on same. During this period the paper has been offering a special price of $3.50 per year to all its subscribers, in addition to paying the commissions to the schools. While the special price to the subscriber will remain in effect for a while beyond this week, the schools will cease to participate in the fund after the last day of this month, so if you wish to help your school be sure that you give them your subscription between now and the last day of this month in order that they might make their final reports this week.

We repeat, we are not withdrawing the special offer yet and you will be able to deal direct with our office even after this week and make the saving of $1.50 on a year's subscription, but you must act now if you want the school in your community to get the benefit of the special commissions.

Nebraska is the only state that does not levy an inheritance tax. Buffalo Bill was said to have killed 4,200 buffaloes in 18 months.

AN APPRECIATION

(Contributed)

In the progress of Christianity there have been from time to time leaders whose influence for good has hardly been sensed by those who have been immediately benefited thereby because their personalities have been so identified with the cause for which they labored that the results of their labor have alone appeared. But, with the perspective of time and distance and impartiality, the magnitude of the personal contribution has appeared in all its beauty. Such, we may confidently hope, has been, and will be, the history of Sister Mary Francis, recently deceased in this city, who, though known to many of us, has achieved a work of serene and idealistic little suspected by most of us. In this day and age of personal exaltation and gratification, there has been written up her a record of sacrifice and generosity that cannot fail to be an inspiration and encouragement to those whose hopes soar beyond the temporalities of this mortal life.

Sister Mary Francis has had the rare distinction of having been instrumental in the founding of a new community of Sisters after having given a beautiful example of Christian virtues in the lives of her daughter, wife and mother.

Sister Mary Francis was the daughter of Andrew Monteiro de Barros and Pocahontas Woodson Monteiro and was married to Colonel Harry Skinner by whom she had one son, Francis Skinner, who died in the flower of his age. Soon afterward, the sorrow of widowhood was partitioned out to her and with the heroism of extraordinary faith and love for God, Ella Monteiro Skinner, with great generosity devoted herself to works of charity towards God's poor, working with her own hands in the making of clothing, cooking and cleaning and in many instances, nursing those forsaken by all because of the loathsomeness of their diseases or because of their utter poverty. Much of her labor was known to God alone or shared only by an intimate friend who was also a near relative.

For fifteen years Ella Monteiro Skinner was the inspiration and support of the Christ Child Society which has made and distributed unnumbered layettes for needy infants. Besides her interests in charitable work among God's poor her civic virtues embraced the formation of the End of the Century Club, generous support of the King's Daughters and other organizations of the town. There was nothing narrow in her views and her varied experience and superior education made her quick to see and zealously co-operate in anything that made for the progress and betterment of her townspeople.

Her generous devotion, loyalty and zeal in the Catholic Faith was the touchstone of the progress of the Catholic Church in Greenville. The warm hospitality of her home was always available to visiting Bishops and priests and struggling missionaries who came to Greenville and neighboring towns, and her purse was open to every worthy appeal that came from no matter what part of the world.

For the foundation of the Society of Christ Our King, Ella Monteiro Skinner, in the sixty-sixth year of her age, generously gave her home and entered the Society as a humble novice and for three years applied herself with understanding and enthusiasm to every least detail of a novice's training. Her heroism in rising in the early morning, spending her long day in prayer, study, domestic work, reading and recreation with the young Sister's has been an example and incentive to all who have had the happiness of living with her in the convent. Until ill health forced her to her bed of pain and suffering, her ready gift of repartee and fun-making made the convent recreations merry ones.

None who knew her intimately could fail to appreciate and reverence her. And the heritage of her example in her love for her neighbor and the greatness of her love for God, proved by sacrifice so far above the capacity of the ordinary person, is for the Society of Christ Our King not the least of the many noble benefactions she lavished upon it, to the greater glory of God and the happiness of generation after generation of those who shall follow in her footsteps. SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Sept. 27.—The Veterans' Service division of the Department of Labor assisted 365 war veterans during the month of August, according to "Labor and Industry," monthly bulletin of the department. Of this number 66 were new cases and 299 were cases of veterans previously assisted by the division. The division reported it had secured increased compensation of 1937 and back compensation of $4,224.15 for veterans during the month.

Jack P. Lang, who has headquarters in Charlotte, is in charge of the veterans' division as state service officer.

"When the new office building is completed" is becoming almost as wishful a saying with certain department and division heads as is "When Christmas comes" with the kids.

Fervent hopes are expressed that it doesn't take rank with "When the millennium comes."

The Department of Agriculture is mailing out 3,500 copies of the State fair program. According to Louis H. BUDGE'S OWN WORLD

(By The AP Feature Service)

Not since the rosiest days of Bill Tilden—if even then—has a tennis player reached the dizzy heights of superiority attained this summer by Donald Budge the Oakland red-head.

Budge, the silent, phlegmatic youngster of 22 is out there all alone. His three defeats of the Baron Gottfried Von Cramm of Germany, the last in the recent national championships at Forest Hills, have placed him in a class by himself among the amateurs.

There isn't even the prospect of a serious rival for his throne next year. Budge is far too good for the crop coming up, though Bobby Riggs, another California product, may be expected to extend him now and then before Don joins the professional ranks at the close of the 1938 campaign.

Tilden Bracketed with Budge

At Wimbledon, where they know considerable about tennis, they say there has been only one player in the history of tennis who might have trimmed the Oakland slasher. That, of course, was Tilden. The "old master," some of them contend, had a greater variety of strokes and would have out-thought Budge in a tight match where the blue chips were down. Others doubt that. Budge, with his blazing power, doesn't need to do a great deal of thinking.

The opinion around Forest Hills was that the amateur king-pin could jump into the money arena with Ellsworth Vines and Fred Perry right now and nail them to the boards. With another year's amateur play behind him they don't figure it will even be close after a few one-night stands.

That's pretty heady stuff for a youngster Budge's age to absorb. He can't help reading the papers now and then, and even conceding that he's not the literary type, the swarms of autograph hunters those others who cling to a champion's coat-tails are bound to have impressed on him that he is something pretty special. There is a lot of talk that the adulation has had its effect.

Budge Always Taciturn

The simple truth is that nobody can tell for certain. Even in 1934, the year he "arrived" so suddenly and beat oVn Cramm in the Davis Cup inter-zone final at Wimbledon Budge didn't have anything to say, except in monosyllables. He still doesn't do any talking unless pressed, and he never was the type to holler at friends across the street. The truth possibly is that the average person is quick to imagine a slight from a champion, because champions are popularly believed to develop abnormally about the cranium. At least, nobody's has yet accused Budge of talking out of turn.

One of the most popular myths concerning Budge is that, on his first appearance in the famous center court at Wimbledon, he waved his racket at Queen Mary and shouted "hello Queenie." He's never troubled to deny it for print, and it's fast becoming a classic. The only thing is, it didn't happen. On that momentous occasion Budge came smartly to attention as the queen entered the royal box and bowed slightly with his head, the correct thing to do. Still, it's a good yarn if you believe it.

A judge of character might find something a little noble about Budge in the way he has stuck to Gene Mako, his original doubles partner. There are quite a few better doubles players than Mako hanging around, eating their hearts out for a chance to play in the Davis Cup, and the selectors know it. They wanted to make a change the past season, but Budge balked. They want to equip Don with a new partner for next year, so we will be sure of keeping the Davis Cup, yet it is very doubtful they will push it over. They won't try to push Budge too far.

Ambition Brought Don To Top

Although he has received some good coaching since, he won his first important event—the California championship for boys under 15 in 1930—it was Budge's own consuming ambition that brought him to the top of the world this year. He was a very fine player two years ago, but he had an indifferent forehand. That is it was a pretty good forehand but not nearly so good as the Budge backhand.

It would have been easy for the redhead to answer his critics: "Well it's a good enough forehand to beat you." But he didn't. When the playing season ended he went to California, and went to work on it. He made the most radical change possible, from a "western" or "topped" shot, employing wrist movement, to the "eastern" flat drive. Now he has about as good a forehand as there is in the game. His backhand, which came naturally, never has been tampered with. His heaviest artillery is on that side. Rival players, through force of habit, hit too many balls to Don's backhand. He loves that.

An inch and one-half over six feet and of solid construction, Budge can last out a five setter with any of them. He doesn't drink (except, maybe, a little beer), smoke or chew, and he likes plenty of sleep.

A perfect natural backhand, a "made" forehand that's as good as any in the game and all the power a well-conditioned, 180-pound, 6-1/2 foot body can develop guarantee Budge's supremacy for some time.

Don didn't really start to grow until he was nearly 16 but, once started, he made up for lost time. In one year he grew seven inches. Here he is at 5, timid, silent, unaware of tennis.

His parents kept a camera around their Oakland, California home but the champion was 7 before he could face the lens like this. He still treasures a broken toy locomotive.

First real fame came to Budge in 1933, aged 18, when he won the Oakland city championship after only three years of tournament tennis. Then, as now, he was no back-slapper.

The world's No. 1 tennis player was glad to see his mother when he returned from his Eastern tour a year ago. This year the whole town will turn out to welcome him.

"Tender cuts of lamb, a delicacy that is high in food value, are filling a definite place in the family diet," says R. E. Nance, of State college.

Yes, sir, just eat too many of them and you'll find out exactly where that definite place is.

Does anybody in Raleigh eat at home? This correspondent has made no count, but is willing to lay a small wager—say about ten cents—that there are more eating places per capita in this city than anywhere else this side of Suez. And they're always filled, too.

Who won the war? Raleigh's Western Union messenger boys went on a strike last week; came back after a few hours; gained an increase in salary. Seems plain enough, but the management counters with the assertion that it had decided on the increase before ever the boys walked out, and that it was not the result of the strike.

"Smut-control in small grains is secured best by planning only treatment seed," says Dr. Luther Shaw, extension plant pathologist at State college.

All very well, but how about smut-control in small boys. Soap and water is recommended by many.

There is no rest for the weary—nor for a senator and his office force, according to Robert R. Reynolds, North Carolina's junior member of the upper house. "Fact is, we are just as busy when Congress is not in session as when it is," writes Our Bob. "The number of daily callers very rarely ever decreases. We are open every day in the year."

A special Cherokee Indian story, with cuts, prepared for the state's advertising program by John C. Baskerville, formerly this bureau's correspondent, has received national play in several leading newspapers such as the Washington Herald and New York Herald-Tribune. It is a splendidly-done bit of writing and has undoubtedly brought North Carolina to the attention of thousands who never before thought anything about this state.

Washington Daybook

Washington, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The Resettlement Administration contemplates that when it finishes examining an applicant for a home in one of its utopian suburban settlements he doesn't feel poor and down-trodden. But one thing is certain, he will feel thoroughly, thoroughly searched. These suburban settlements, of which there are three, were the dream child of Rex Tugwell, who launched the dream and then quit resettlement to become a so-called sugar baron. Their names are dale (at Milwaukee) and Green Hill (at Cincinnati).

The thin-pursed tenants of Milwaukee and Cincinnati will have to wait a few months before they become proteges of the government, since the houses are only 70 per cent complete. But those suffering from the punishing rents of the national capital can begin moving to Greenbelt as soon as they can shake off the clutches of private landlords. The place is ready and examination of applicants has begun.

Anybody can apply for one of the places but if wealth and prosperity is smiling upon you the management marks you off as ineligible. The casual inquirer is told that the salary range of tenants is to be from $900 to $2,100 a year. That is to include the earnings of all members of the family, minors excepted.

Secret Examination

But that is a very limited explanation. Not by any means can a young couple with no children but with a combined income of $2,000 a year get into the villages. They are earning too much. To be eligible, a family of two—man and wife—must fall within a salary range of $900 to $1,800 a year.

If they are earning less than the minimum of $900 they are considered poor risks and likely to become charity cases; or, if not charity cases, they would be spending more for rent than they should, and thus have to skimp on food or recreational essentials. And Greenbelt and the other "Greens" want nothing of that nature to contaminate the pleasant populace they expect to inhabit the dream villages.

Greenbelt and the other Greens are to provide wholesome housing for the downtrodden—but not too downtrodden. And the inquiries the administration makes to be sure it gets what it wants leaves nothing to the imagination.

A preliminary questionnaire gets out of you how much you earn, how many children you have, how much you spend for gas and light, whether you drive a car, and the name of your employer. If your salary indicates you are a prospect, a home examiner calls on you and there you get a going over, the nature of which is kept secret even from the prospective tenants.

Dr. Wendell Lund, blond and rounded chief of the family selection service, allowed us to examine the report the home examiner makes but wouldn't let us take it out of the office.
"If some family got hold of it," he explained, "they would know all the right answers to give."
Prospects 'Uplifted'
But we remembered the bulk of it and can tell prospective inhabitants of Greenbelt that when the home examiner leaves your present dwelling she will know whether your home smells, whether your children wipe their noses and if there is an inside toilet.
If you leave magazines and newspapers strewn about the place and quarrel with the neighbors and the landlord that will count against you. If you pay your bills promptly and have a little nest egg, that will help. But if you have several thousand dollars laid away you probably could build your own home and not expect the government to take care of you at Greenbelt.
Dr. Lund said most applicants felt "uplifted" after the examination. He thought it came from a feeling that somebody was about to give them a lift. That may be, but whether or not they feel uplifted, they had better convince the home examiner that they are well washed and tidy—but financially strained.

DUKE TO MEET OLD-TIME FOE

Clash With Davidson In 16th Annual Tilt Saturday

Durham, Sept. 27.—One of the more recent of Big Five rivalries but one of the most thrilling of the annual state engagements, Duke and Davidson will be clashing for the 16th time when they come together at Davidson Saturday afternoon.

The two teams started meeting in 1922 and while at times both teams have won by wide margins, the games have a record of always offering much of the unexpected. For instance, the Blue Devils were slated to win just about as they pleased last year but they were hard pressed to come through with a 13-0 win as the Wildcats put forth one of their typical battles to the last ditch.

Of the 15 games the two teams played, Duke has taken 10, Davidson four and one ended in a scoreless deadlock. The widest margin to separate the two teams was Duke's 48-7 win in 1927 while the closest was the 13-12 win by Davidson in 1929 which made Ripley's Believe It or Not when Davidson's player ran 102 yards without scoring.

For the Blue Devils it will be the opening of two weeks of play against the Tennessee system. Gene McEver, coach of the Wildcats, uses that style of attack at Davidson where the Blue Devils will get their first taste of it this season. The following week, Major Bob Neyland himself, originator of that method, will bring his Volunteers to Duke stadium for the "1937 Battle of the South," Duke's Homecoming Day feature.

Past Duke-Davidson scores:

- 1922—Duke 12; Davidson 0.
- 1923—Duke 18; Davidson 6.
- 1924—Duke 13; Davidson 20.
- 1925—Duke 0; Davidson 26.
- 1926—Duke 0; Davidson 20.
- 1927—Duke 48; Davidson 7.
- 1928—Duke 33; Davidson 0.
- 1929—Duke 12; Davidson 13.
- 1930—Duke 12; Davidson 0.
- 1931—Duke 0; Davidson 0.
- 1932—Duke 13; Davidson 0.
- 1933—Duke 19; Davidson 7.
- 1934—Duke 20; Davidson 0.
- 1935—Duke 26; Davidson 7.
- 1936—Duke 13; Davidson 0.

Man About Manhattan

New York.—The effect of Osgood Perkins' death on New York was comparable to the paralysis which came over Hollywood several months ago when Jean Harlow died. Broadway couldn't believe it. Yet, it was true. One moment he was starring in a new play, and before the day had ended he was dead.

We never knew him personally but he was our favorite actor. We used to see him quite frequently at Frankie and Johnnies, in West 45th street, having supper usually about midnight. About him invariably were a group of "name" players, and invariably the talk was shop. I remember one winter's night when for two hours I sat at an adjoining table and listened to an avid conversation on the ins and outs of acting.

Perkins at the time was playing with the Lunts in "Point Valaine," the Noel Coward piece which I considered one of his best plays but which somehow never became a hit. He and Alfred Lunt, together with three or four others, were having steak sandwiches and a pot of tea.

Perkins obviously believed in self-will. He would do things. For I remember his saying, "To become a good actor requires only one thing—brains, just as becoming good at anything else requires brains."

He didn't hold much for "breaks" or "opportunities," for, as he pointed out, "if a man has it he usually makes his own breaks."

Just then some lady of his acquaintance came in and Perkins got up and bowed with a certain mocking grace which he sometimes gave to his roles in the theatre. To me his forte was delivering dry, cutting lines, and in real life he was just as adept at this as he was on the stage.

He was what the directors call an "instinctive" actor, and while he adhered to an author's script, he was no empty voice mouthing written lines. I think it was the author of "Good-Bye Again," one of his best hits, who called him the best "reader" of lines on the stage. He meant by this that Perkins communicated to an audience everything that the author intended, which is something which all actors do not achieve.

Perkins was one of those slight individuals whose clothes sometimes fit rather loosely. He could look disheveled and still play the part of a small society doctor to perfection. In plays and in pictures a dozen vivid scenes suggest themselves, but I think I always remember him best sitting in Frankie and Johnnies in 45th street, telling Alfred Lunt that brains were the only thing that mattered. Health, the breaks, etc. were important but not really vital. If you just had a head on your shoulders you could do all right.

LINE COACH AT N. C. STATE

Fighting Spirit Aroused By Line Coach At State

Raleigh, Sept. 24.—Herman Hickman's 250 pounds of dynamic energy, leavened off with wit and rare good humor, and coupled with an uncanny knack for inspiring a spirit of do-or-die, give him just what N. C. State college needs in a good line coach.

More than this, the genial Hickman, former All-American guard at Tennessee, and member of the Brooklyn Dodgers professional football team for three years, is well versed in football lore.

A stickler for detail, he spends endless hours drilling the State linemen in fundamentals and the execution of Head Coach Williams (Doc) Newton's tomadic plays. Hickman came to State last winter from Wake Forest where he established a reputation as one of the best line coaches in the country. Hickman has been an outstanding sport figure since his college days at the University of Tennessee. He is considered one of the greatest linemen ever developed in the south and is the only southerner on Grantland Rice's "The Decade's Greatest Eleven."

The State mentor entered Tennessee in 1928 and in 1931 made every All-American team. He played guard and was referred to as a "one man line." He was graduated in the spring of 1932.

He also was a star member of the track team and held the Tennessee record in the 16 pound shotput with a heave of 46 1/2 inches, a good distance in Hickman's school days.

After finishing college, Hickman joined the Brooklyn Dodgers and played professional football for three years, 1932-34. He was selected on the all-professional National league team his last two years and in 1934 also coached the line for the Dodgers.

Hickman is quite apt as a wrestler and will have charge of State's wrestling team this winter. He has participated in more than 550 professional matches and on three occasions met Jim Leonard for the World title. He never defeated Leonard but staid an hour and 15 minutes with him in one occasion.

His hobbies are reading and fishing and he can quote poetry from one end of town to the other. He also plays golf, but says he is none too well pleased with his scores. Hickman was born in Johnson

When Ripper Collins cracked his right ankle there was considerable speculation on just how much the loss of their first sacker would affect the Chicago Cubs in their drive toward the pennant. At the time (August 10) the Chicago team enjoyed a 6 1/2-game lead over the then second-place Giants.

Even the most pessimistic could hardly have figured that the Cubs would dissipate their lead inside a month. But they did. The loss of Ripper Collins, undoubtedly, was largely responsible.

It took that injury to show how valuable Collins really was. His batting average, a mere .250 certainly was no indication. That figure hardly showed the great number of runs the Ripper's bat had driven in. Yet he was one of the Cub leaders in that most important department.

His work around first enhanced his value to the team. A fast, dependable fielder despite his lack of height, Collins inspired confidence in the hearts of the other infielders. They knew well that all they had to do was to toss the ball in the general direction of first. Collins would take care of it.

Shortly before the Ripper was injured, Manager Charlie Grimm said that Collins could help the Cubs if he wasn't hitting .300. His spirit kept the Cubs moving on an even keel.

The angle at which Collins cocked his hat, his ready smile and his sunny disposition made him a great favorite with the players as well as with the fans. He appeared to be easy going. Actually, he was not too much so. In his heart, he was, and is, a fighter.

Grimm was forced to call Phil Cavarretta in from centerfield to cover first when Collins was forced out. Cavarretta came up as a first baseman and then made the switch to the outfield, where he was making considerable progress. He was less at home around first when he returned. That was reflected in the work of the other infielders.

Collins returned to action in the role of pinchhitter against the Boston Bees. It may be he returned too late.

COASTAL LOOP HOLDS MEETING

Extended Schedule Decided on for '38 Season

Directors of the Coastal Plain Baseball league, in called meeting at Ayden Saturday night, decided to have an extended schedule—of probably 110 or 112 games; sanctioned night baseball for those towns which desire it, and re-elected all officials again for the 1938 season. Each of the eight clubs of the loop was represented at the meeting.

Date for the opening of the next season was not set, but it is planned to add one week to each end of the schedule to be adopted later. This in all likelihood would put the opening date around May 1st in order that the scheduled might be finished by the time for opening of tobacco markets.

The league will operate again as Class B professional.

J. B. Eure of Ayden was re-elected president and secretary and treasurer; and J. C. Exum of Snow Hill, vice-president.

A good part of the meeting was given over to a discussion of night baseball. Several club representatives expressed a desire to investigate the matter, and the by-laws of the league were amended to allow and clubs so desiring to have night schedules.

A committee was appointed to investigate lighting for each park in the league. If night play is adopted, games can be scheduled for every night in the week except Sunday.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 27.—(AP)—A break in U. S. Steel today unsettled the stock market after a buying rush at the opening had boosted leaders one to four points.

Trading forces that climbed aboard for the early upswing apparently were impatient to seize quick profit and it was not long before prices began to slip. Activity dried up for a while. Near noon, however, "big steel" was offered in large blocs at sizable concession. This leader, up around three at the start, was soon down as much. The pace quickened and ticker tape fell behind. Some support arrived near the final hour and extreme losses were shaded in many cases.

Demand at the start, brokers said was based partly on belief that speculative forces and the recent backslide had been overdone.

In addition actions of the federal reserve board in further easing credit facilities for member banks was believed to have provided mild rallying stimulation although the board rooms were not of one mind on this.
