BLACK SILENT ON KLAN ISSUE UPON LANDING

Intimates, However, Statement May Be Forthcoming

SAID BE HEADED TO ASSUME POST

Arrives in Norfolk From Europe, Apparently Planning Take Up Position

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Hugo Black arrived from Europe today, apparently planning to begin immediately his duties as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

He maintained the silence which he refused to break during his month-long visit in England and France with regard to charges he once received a life membership in the Ku Klux Klan.

He made two things clear, however. One was that he was going to Washington immediately, presumably to take his place on the court bench, which holds its first meeting of the fall term next Monday. The other was he might yet make some statement, possibly over the radio, about the Klan issue.

That he would take his seat seemed assured when he told newsmen at the conclusion of an interview they could reach him thereafter in Washington, "probably in my office in the Supreme Court building."

Mrs. Black gave a further inkling of the nature of the justice's plans when she said her first job in Washington would be house-hunting. The justice indicated strongly he may yet make some statement on the Klan charges which were first raised in the Senate during an argument over confirming his nomination and later were given new impetus by newspaper stories asserting not only he once joined the hooded organization, but also said he had been given a life membership.

Questioned by reporters who sought to get a statement from him immediately, the Alabama finally said: "When I have any statement you can expect it is definite and final, and I will make it in a way that can not be misqu岸ted and so the nation can hear it."

He was asked whether this meant he possibly would make a radio speech or statement. He said he "might" but advised the reporters to "draw your own conclusion."

Judgment Against Railroad Granted In Superior Court

H. L. Tetterton Awarded $1,185; Case of V. A. Jackson Against Lumber Company Started

The $1,500 damage suit against the Atlantic Coast Line railway brought by H. L. Tetterton, who alleges that his crops were drowned because of negligence on the part of the railroad in providing drainage facilities, was completed in Pitt Superior court yesterday afternoon with the plaintiff being given a judgment for $1,185.

The case was started Monday morning and consumed two full days. Mr. Tetterton contended that his crops were destroyed by drowning for three years.

The case of V. A. Jackson vs. Coppersmith and Company of Currituck county was started this morning. The case came to the court here when the plaintiff appealed from a referee's report.

The plaintiff, represented by Albion Dunn and Ham Henshaw, contends that it suffered $15,000 loss through breach on contract on the part of the defendant. The lumber company is represented by Percy McMullen of Elizabeth City and Dink James of Greenville.

CHINESE BOMB VICTIMS BLOWN INTO TREETOPS

So terrific was the explosion of bombs dropped by Japanese aviators on hundreds of Chinese refugees at the Sungkiang railway station near Shanghai that some bodies of the victims were blown into treetops. A few can be seen high up in branches of the tree at the right. More than 300 were killed and 450 wounded. This picture was rushed to the United States aboard the Philippine Clipper.

GUNMAN SLAIN BY VIGILANTE

Another Wounded In Futile Attempt to Rob Bank

Midland, Mich., Sept. 29.—(AP)—One gunman was killed by a business man vigilante and another was wounded and captured today after a futile attempt by the two to rob the Chemical State Savings Bank.

The robber who was killed carried an automobile operator's license issued to Jack Gracey of Hamtrick, Mich. The wounded man was identified through a driver's license as Tony Chebatoris, 37, of Detroit. A dentist firing from the window of his office killed the man believed to be Gracey. He said he thought another shot from his rifle wounded the other man.

Paul Bywater, bank cashier, was shot in the hip; Clarence Macomber, bank president, was wounded in the chest; and a Bay City truck driver passing the institution was shot and wounded by the robbers who used a sub-machine gun.

Dr. F. L. Hardy fired with a rifle from his office window as the gunman fled from the bank. The charge struck one of them in the head.

Dr. Hardy, whose offices are above the bank, said he heard a noise and looked out of a window.

Alfred Tyree Allen, Bethel, Shem Lanier Lewis, Bethel. Two of this number will act as alternates.

The recruiting office is open daily for applications and examinations.

State Contracts For Gas Despite Boost In Prices

Raleigh, Sept. 29.—The State will continue to buy gasoline for 36 counties from the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, despite an increase in price of one-half cent per gallon, because the Board of Awards believes that to cancel the contract would result in having to pay even higher prices as the result of new lettings, according to Capus Wayne, director of the division of purchase and contract.

The board had a six-month cancellation option, which it could have exercised this week, but it has voted to continue the contract in force. The original contract was let to Standard despite the fact that it contained a provision allowing the company to boost its price under a clause not included in the regulation bid form of the board.

"The state has lost some money by reason of the change permitting the Standard Oil company to boost its price," said Mr. Wayne. "The board voted to allow this provision because the bid of the Standard was about one-tenth of a cent lower than the next low bidder and board members thought it worth-

Roosevelts Rest With Boettigers

Seattle, Sept. 29.—(AP)—President Roosevelt was just "grandpa" to Sistine and Buzzie Dall today.

The President and wife set aside the entire day for resting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger, son-in-law and daughter, and the latter's two children. Boettiger is publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

To this home the city's distinguished guests motored from their train last night through streets jammed with greeters.

The parade to the home was the climax of the trans-continental tour on which the President made 19 speeches and rear platform talks recapitulating the aims of the administration.

Gov. Clarence Martin and Major John Dore rode with the President and his wife in an open car filled with flowers during the parade.

BAR TO OPPOSE COURT REFORM

Special 7-Man Committee Set Up To Wage Fight

Kansas City, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Without debate the American Bar association today set up a special seven man committee to carry on a battle against any attempt to "remake" the Supreme court.

The report of a special committee which had warned the association that new efforts probably would be made to change the Supreme court, was adopted by a record-breaking attendance of the bar group. No opposition was expressed in the general meeting.

No discussions followed the lengthy report of Sylvester Smith, Jr. of Phillipsburg, N. J., chairman of the special committee which had called in readiness to meet (supreme court proposals) issues as they may recur rather to rely on impromptu organizations for the purpose.

The seven-man commission, empowered by today's vote, will report to the association on any proposed changes in the country's judicial system. If court alterations are brought up in the next congress, today's vote authorized a referendum of the bar association, the result of which would serve as instructions to the commission.

State Contracts For Gas Despite Boost In Prices

while to take a chance that the saving of the tenth cent would more than balance and subsequent increase by the company," stated Mr. Wayne.

"It didn't work out quite that way. The state used approximately 350,000 gallons per month, on which for about three months it had about $1,050 by reason of the low price. Then came the increase and for the next three months the state lost, or will lose, about $1,400 per month or approximately $4,200 for three months. All of which will make a net loss to the state of around $4,000 because of the clause permitting the Standard to raise its price. The Board of Awards used its best judgment in accepting the Standard's bid."

Wayne pointed then pointed out that if the Standard contract were now cancelled and bids called for, the prices would in his opinion be considerably higher than the average of 15.19 cents per gallon to be paid the Standard even with its half-cent boost.

"So it was my judgment not to cancel," he said.

PLANS MAPPED FOR CAMPAIGN

Community Chest Financial Drive Will Start Monday

The financial campaign for the support of the Community Chest will open on Monday morning, October 4th, with a breakfast for those who will serve as canvassers. All persons who will serve in this capacity are requested to call 654-J and advise Miss Jane Hall, stating whether they will attend the breakfast meeting.

The chairman of the campaign committee earnestly requests that those who are asked to serve do so if it is at all possible. This is a community project and should receive the fullest cooperation of our citizens, in service as well as in financial support, he points out. The larger the number of workers the more quickly and efficiently the work of canvassing can be completed. (Continued on page two)

Control Of Fires Being Emphasized By Pulp Industry

Much More Interest Being Shown In Protection Of Forests Since New Industry Started In N. C.

Raleigh, Sept. 29.—Much more interest is being taken in the protection of privately owned timber lands against forest fires than ever before, largely as a result of the steadily increasing demand for pine pulp plants in North Carolina from pulp mills both in this and other states, according to W. C. McCormick, chief of the forest fire prevention section of the forestry division of the Department of Conservation and Development.

Last week the forestry division just completed a cooperative agreement with the Riegel Paper corporation, now building a pulp mill at Acme, in Columbus county, to protect an area of 130,000 acres covering almost 200 square miles, recently purchased by this company. The cost of the fire protection work will be paid almost entirely by this company, although it will be done under the supervision of the state forestry division. This company has purchased or is going to purchase some $15,000 worth of firefighting equipment and will build a series of forest fire observation towers with intercommunicating telephone lines.

During the past week, the forest fire prevention section has received another request from a concern owning a 40,000 acre tract of pulp wood and timber land, asking if it will inspect this tract and take over the supervision of the fire protection work in it, the owners to pay its share of the cost of the work. This tract will be surveyed just as, soon as possible. McCormick said. But with the many requests for additional protection and for new surveys, it is becoming difficult to do all this work with the limited personnel in the division.

Owners of these lands who sign cooperative agreements with the forestry division of the Conservation Department really get double protection, since they get the regular state-county-federal protection and the addition protection from their own privately maintained fire protection forces, McCormick pointed out.

THREE POWERS AGREE ON PLAN TO PATROL SEA

French, British And Italian Experts Reach Solution

TO BRING ITALY TO COOPERATION

Plan to Stamp Out Piracy in Mediterranean Must Be Signed By Three Govts.

Paris, Sept. 29.—(AP)—French, British and Italian naval experts agreed today on a plan to bring Italy into full cooperation with the Nyon patrol to stamp piracy from the Mediterranean.

The plan will be signed by the technical delegates this evening and rushed immediately to the three governments for final approval. The conference has been working since Monday on a plan to grant Italian demands for complete parity with Great Britain and France, as "the most mediterranean of nations."

In the western Mediterranean, Italy was allotted the Tyrrhenian sea around Sardinia, as well as her own extensive coast line and France was given the Marseille-Algiers set lane that connects France with her north African possessions.

In the eastern Mediterranean the Italian zone covered her Libyan colonies, while Britain was assigned the three nations separate zones to protect in which they are most interested individually.

The patrol scheme gave fleets of patrol of the Aegean sea, and France the coast of Syria. All three zones were marked out to extend east to the Suez canal since all three powers are interested in keeping open that gateway to the east.

If ratified by the three participating powers, the agreement would end Mediterranean tension that arose when repeated acts of piracy menaced international shipping in the Mediterranean.

Any one of the trio, however, could refuse to sanction the plan if it had changed its mind since the conference was agreed on.

Probation Service Integral Part Of Criminal Justice

Instructions Sent Out To Various Officers Throughout The State Covering Whole Idea

Raleigh, Sept. 29.—The probation service in the courts of North Carolina is an integral part of our whole plan of state criminal justice.

At its best it is a well-balanced process of salvaging human materials, into good-citizen assets," says "A General Outline of the North Carolina Probation Law and System," 22-page pamphlet now in the hands of the state's newly named probation officers.

The mimeographed book of instructions has been sent out by J. Harry Sample, director of probation, as a forerunner of a school of instruction to be established here soon for training the men and women who will direct the new system in the field.

It covers the subject very thoroughly, outlining the original and history of probation, discussing at length the duties and responsibilities of the probation officers, setting out the aims and objectives, and quoting in full the probation law unanimously adopted by the 1937 general assembly.

"Legally sanctioned probation originated in Massachusetts where, in 1878, the first probation officer was provided for a Boston court. Some authorities, however, trace probation to 1841 when John Augustus, cobbler, began to work extralegally on a voluntary, non-salaried basis as probation officer in fact for a Boston court," says the pamphlet.

The treatise sees no soft snap for the new officers.

"In the beginning of the work in our state probation officers will have to do both the investigation and the supervision," it declares. "And their probationers will probably be scattered over a wide area. Because of the element of time and distance in the travel from headquarters to the homes and communities of the probationers, the probation officer is faced with a hard task."

Whale Sharpen: Briton's Wit

London.—(AP)—The British Board of Trade recently issued a regulation that "all blue whales measuring 70 feet in a straight line between the tip of the upper jaw and the notch between the flukes of the tail shall be considered immature."

Quick as a flash a young man wrote in: "Forgive me for being a sickening old nose, but who holds the whales while the skipper measures them?"

Holds Judicial Report Supports Aims Of FDR

Cummings Declares Recommendations Very Interesting

Washington, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Attorney General Cummings said today the judicial conference report which recommended appointment of 16 new federal judges, was "a complete capitulation" to a major part of President Roosevelt's court reorganization program.

"Thumbing a printed copy of the report prepared by Chief Justice Hughes, Cummings said at his press conference:

"The report is intensely interesting to me and extraordinarily gratifying. It represents concurrence on the part of the judicial conference on nearly all the (President's) suggestions. Therefore, I am naturally well pleased with it."

"The major matter which I stressed which the conference approved, was the necessity of speeding up the process of our courts, providing additional judges for the purpose of relieving the congestion of our courts."

The last objective, he said, was "one of the major points in the President's court reform program."

Cummings said the recommendation for four more circuit court judges was the "most drastic" recommendation made by the conference.

He said he would ask Congress to enact legislation to provide for them.

"These additional judges are needed," Cummings commented.

"Why? Because the courts are behind in their work. On that issue it is complete capitulation to the proposition that additional federal judges were needed and a welcome one."

Commission Opens Study Of Tax Classifications

Raleigh, Sept. 29.—A commission appointed under authority of the 1937 general assembly has begun its study of the programs of classification of property for taxation and exemptions of homesteads from taxation.

Appointment of the commission was authorized after the legislature had defeated efforts to put into effect immediately the so-called "mandate" of the people given by their adoption of constitutional amendments authorizing classification and homestead tax exemption.

The commission plans to investigate at least three major possibilities: (1) homestead exemption, (2) classification of intangible property and (3) classification of forest lands.

It will attempt to secure as much information as possible bearing upon the present fiscal status of local governments.

One of the most important phases of the homestead exemption study will be an attempt to ascertain on a state-wide basis, the extent to

FALL SHORT IN PLACING MINE

As Explosion Sprays Vessel With Shrapnel and Rocks U. S. S. Augusta, Northwest Section Shanghai Crashes Into Inferno of War

—(AP)—A daring suicide Shanghai, Sept. 29.—(AP) sacrificed their lives at dawn today in a desperate attempt that just failed to destroy the Japanese flagship, Idzumo.

As the mine they had propelled through the waters of the Whangpoo river blasted a 150-foot geyser of water and sprayed the flagship with shrapnel, the entire waterfront and the battle line northwest of the city crashed into an inferno of war.

Chinese declared the long awaited Japanese "big push" on the Shanghai front had started and that the guns and the troops manning the defense lines stretching 25 miles northwest of here had hurled back wave after wave of attacking Japanese infantry with terrific slaughter.

The blast of the Chinese mine, a few hundred yards to the starboard of the Idzumo rocked the cruiser August, flagship of the U. S. Asiatic fleet, and hurried America officers and seamen from their boats.

During the night the Chinese suicide squad gradually floated the mine from the shore across the river from Shanghai through the line of Japanese patrol boats.

Attached to the mine was a cable anchored to the British-owned Shanghai new engineering dock of the Pootung shore. After moving stealthily for several hours, the soldiers reached the steel net which surrounds the Japanese flagship to protect it from torpedoes and mines.

They had just started to snip the net and slip the mine through when the first rays of dawn began to light up the mist rising on the river.

Throughout the day and into the night the battle for Shanghai had raged around the great metropolis while the foreign residents panned the roof tops to watch the spectacle.

PEACE ACTION

By THORNTON RYAN

Out-numbered two to one and fighting for life, the supposedly invincible Japanese army in Shanghai has little to show for itself. Shanghai's defenders, who have carried the fight to them, hold every military advantage and the moral support of the entire world, which is in the long run invaluable. It seems that the strategic retreat to well fortified lines gives them the advantage of being better prepared for the Japanese "big push" than the Nipponese themselves. After mustering all available strength for the first day of their long postponed offensive, the Japs were faced with the cold facts that they had gained little and had lost 1,000 men to China's 500. More horrible and of little or no military value are the cowardly attacks the Japanese are making on defenseless hordes of China's citizens.

Capable of still grimmer international complications are the repeated Japanese aerial bombardments of foreign possessions, notably missions, despite prominently displayed national emblems.

Japan has the choice of winning China by friendship or war. She chose the latter course and no matter what the outcome of the present Sino-Japanese conflict, Japan has lost the respect of the world. No amount of effort put forth by emissaries of Japan to build good will can offset the slaughter of defenseless refugees.

Or, as E. Stanley Jones in an open letter to the Japanese people states:

"You missed the turning of the road. You should have taken the road of friendship and cooperation with China to your mutual advantage. You could have had almost anything from China if you had decided to be friends. Now you have chosen to live alongside of the hell out of which I have just come—the hell of war, and it will be a perpetual war, overt or covert, down through the years."—(From "Green Lights"—Greenville High School—by permission).

The danger to the onlooking nations is their sympathy for hordes of slaughtered Chinese civilians may lead them into some sort of rash action.

War, even if brought on by sympathy for the oppressed and a yearning to punish outrages, does not become any less war. It will destroy ancient liberties, dislocate business, unleash profiteers and wreck normal life, just as much under one guise as another. Anthony Eden, speaking the other day for the British government, said that it had been learned that modern war is only a degree less costly to the victors than to the vanquished. He might have gone further and said that the next world war is likely to carry winners and losers down into the same abyss.—(From News & Observer—by permission).

Bullets Fly

IT WAS now about 8:30 and since Maryland does not use daylight saving time, perfectly dark.

The blond young man was not visible in the street outside. There were no taxicabs cruising in this part of town, and Neill regretted that he had not told his driver to wait. However, he saw a taxicab standing at the curb across the street about a hundred yards towards town. Probably the taxi used by the blond young man. Neill crossed over. The back of the cab was empty.

"Will you take me into town?" he asked the driver. "Sorry, mister. I've got a fare." "Where is he?" "Can't tell you that. He paid me to wait."

"I'll pay double fare." "Can't do it, after taking his money. He's got my name and number." "He won't say anything," Neill laughed. "He can't afford to."

"So you say. But I ain't gonna risk my job."

Neill returned across the street. There was a alley line, but no car was in sight. He walked slowly back and forth as if waiting for a car, but in reality trying to spy out where his trailer was hidden.

It was a quiet neighborhood. Across the road where the taxi waited, there was a high bank not yet built upon. On Neill's side the little houses and occasional stores were lighted up, but there was nobody moving on the sidewalk.

Neill found his man partly hidden behind a syringa bush at the side of a house on the corner. "Good evening," he said pleasantly.

"Evening," mumbled the man huskily. He was trying to disguise his voice. Neill had a sense that he had heard it before. Perhaps the blond hair, the ruby cheeks, the spectacles, also constituted a disguise. Impossible to tell in the darkness.

"Nice night," said Neill. "No answer."

"How often do these blame trolley cars run?" "Don't know. I'm a stranger in the neighborhood."

The young man's voice was shaky. He was evidently laboring under a powerful excitement. However, Neill apprehended no special danger to himself. The taxicab was almost directly across the street, and Heinrich's with its beer drinkers not a hundred yards away. Neill aimed to quiet him by adopting a friendly air.

"You Know Too Much" HAVE a cigarette?" he asked. "Don't use them."

"Gosh! I didn't think that there was a fellow of your age in the country didn't smoke 'em."

No answer. "Maybe you prefer a pipe?" No answer.

"I thought from the way you were standing here that you belonged in the neighborhood."

The young man's voice began to break. "Is it any business of yours?"

Neill looked at him steadily. "Well, yes, since you ask me. You've been following me around ever since I arrived in town this afternoon. Also this morning. Naturally I'm curious. What's the idea?"

The young man made an effort to get a grip on himself. "You're mistaken, fellow. I never saw you before until this minute."

"Come off," said Neill good-naturedly. "That's your taxi waiting across the street."

"Wrong again, fellow."

"What's the use of stalling?" said Neill. "I've had my eye on you for five hours past. In the Belvedere I heard you sending the plain-clothes men off on a wild-goose chase. Good comedy."

The young man's voice broke completely. "Damn you! . . . you know too much!" He whipped out a gun and fired at Neill point-blank.

Neill saw the movement coming, and dropped in time. Bent almost double, he ran down the steep side street into the enveloping darkness. The man fired again, and a third time, but his aim was wild. He came charging after Neill. As in a dream, Neill heard a shout from the taxi driver and the sounds of other people roused by the shots. Then silence. They were afraid to follow.

The street was only half a block long. It ran out on a kind of waste land where the earth from excavations had been dumped, making irregular hummocks all around. Rubbish was heaped everywhere and it was impossible to see. Neill swerved sharply to the left and dropped behind a hummock hoping that the man would run by.

But when his pursuer came to the broken ground, he stopped, gun in hand, looking around and listening. He was only half a dozen paces away and Neill could see him perfectly well against the starry sky. Neill softly drew out his own gun, but he was resolved not to shoot the man if it could be avoided. He could hear the murmur of the crowd gathering at the top of the street.

Neill tried to edge a little further away under cover of the dark. The man heard him and fired again. Neill ran for some yards in a zig-zag course and dropped again. The man had him pretty well placed now, and came creeping towards him, close to the ground. Neill figured that he would have either two or four shots left in his magazine.

"Here I am," Neill said, to draw his fire again. But he only kept creeping closer. From far away Neill heard the sound of a clanging gong, rapidly drawing near. Somebody had phoned for the police. A new anxiety attacked him, for he couldn't afford to face an investigation, even though he was the innocent victim.

The police car stopped at the head of the street. The crowd began to move down slowly. Neill arose and ran again. The man followed without attempting to shoot. Neill could hear his hoarse breathing. Neill collided with an invisible wire fence, and was flung back on the ground. The man was almost on him. There was no help for it now. Rolling over, Neill took aim at his legs and fired. The man stumbled forward and, falling almost within Neill's reach, lay there groaning. The gun had flown out of his hand.

Barbed Wire Helps NEILL ran on as fast as he could down the hill, parallel with the fence. The police were now spreading over the hummocky ground. They had flashlights. They were moving cautiously. A wild anxiety lent Neill speed and sureness. If he were taken, everything would be wrecked. Just as he was beginning to see light ahead.

The police heard him running and began to spread down hill to cut him off. Neill put his hands on a fence post and, vaulting clear of the wire, ran straight away.

His pursuers were less nimble in getting over the fence. He heard them cursing as their uniforms caught on the bars, and he gained on them. He then had the notion of doubling and creeping back towards the fence, lower down. He warned his way down hill close to the fence until he was stopped by a stream at the bottom. Meanwhile the police were searching the open ground above.

He climbed the fence again and, making his way upstream for a short distance, came to a group of dark buildings, a mill of some sort. There was a dam over the stream with a footway. He crossed it, and struck into a road that climbed the hill on the other side. Soon he was among the streets of another poor quarter of the town. Absolutely quiet over here. Across the little valley he could see the flashlight beams moving back and forth like fireflies.

He kept straight on until he had risen out of the slums into a better quarter. Upon coming to a wide suburban road, he turned into it, heading towards town. Presently a taxicab came bowling along, having delivered a fare in the suburbs. Neill hailed it and, sinking back in the seat, thanked God for his luck.

He changed taxis once on the way into town to baffle possible pursuers. He was still in some anxiety because he could not tell what the wounded man might say to the police. Not the truth, anyhow. To be on the safe side, he kept away from his usual haunts and made no attempt to communicate with Mattingly who was still waiting for him at the midtown garage.

In a drugstore on North avenue, Neill took possession of a booth, and started phoning. From the yellow pages of the phone book it was easy to establish that the only banana importer in Baltimore who ran his own ships was one A. Lanassa. Neill called him up at his home, and an Italian-American voice answered. It was Mr. Lanassa himself.

After giving him an agreeable spiel, Neill asked him who his lawyer was.

"The voice turned wary. 'What! I got all kinds of lawyers.' 'Well, who are they?' 'No information given over the phone. Come and see me in the morning.' He hung up."

This was a setback, but not a fatal one. Neill had other leads to follow. He did more telephoning and a satisfied grin began to spread over his face. The last number he called was that given him by Johnny Tingstrom, the taxi-driver who had once shown himself his friend. He was obliged to wait beside the booth until Johnny came in from a trip and called him.

DUKE TO FACE HARD BATTLES

Davidson Saturday Is Last Conference Foe In Three Weeks

Durham, Sept. 28.—When Duke's Blue Devils go against Davidson at Davidson Saturday, they will be meeting their final conference foe in three weeks.

In the mid-October section of the schedule, Duke will meet Tennessee's powerful Volunteers in Duke stadium October 9, the Blue Devils' first home game and the feature of the Homecoming day program at the institution, Georgia Tech in Atlanta on October 16 and Colgate at Hamilton, N. Y., on October 23.

This series is one of the two hard stretches on Duke's 1937 card, the other being the final three with North Carolina, N. C. State and Wake Forest. Duke is anxious to turn back the Wildcats in order that they can go against their non-conference rivals out in front in the race for the loop title they have won for two years in a row.

But over at Davidson, the Wildcats are planning to give the Wademen the opposite send-off for their non-conference rivals. The Wildcats are cooking up plenty of poison—and lots of it to mite all—to use on the Blue Devils, and they have been mighty successful in previous games.

Davidson's football team demands respect from any foe. Their everlasting fight has brought many a game out of the fire in the late minutes and given the Wildcats victory. While the Blue Devils will be heavily favored to win, it will be generally agreed by all the experts that they will get one of their toughest battles of the year from the boys of Coach Gene McEver.

The Tennessee keeps entering into the Davidson game. While the Blue Devils are certainly not overlooking the Wildcats the Homecoming day "Battle of the South" with Tennessee set itself up last year as one of the most-wanted games among the Duke players. Davidson employs the same system as Tennessee and the game Saturday should furnish a good line on how the Wademen will take to the Volunteer style in Duke stadium October 9.

PIRATES OPEN WITH QUAKERS

To Meet Guilford On Quaker Soil Saturday Afternoon

When East Carolina Teachers College's football team meets Guilford at the Quaker school Saturday, each of the teams will be playing initial contests and, in addition, will represent the tutelage of new coaches. Charles (Block) Smith, former Guilford athlete, has taken over his athletic reign with the Quaker team and Joe Alexander has assumed similar responsibilities at E. C. T. C. Neither will know what to expect of his eleven on account of the brevity of his regime.

Last year the Quaker presented a stronger team but were held, at that, to a single touchdown, which was sufficient to defeat the Pirates. Guilford, however, has lost many varsity lettermen, this favor may go to East Carolina in this occasion.

Each Smith has emphasized blocking and tackling throughout the first two weeks of practice. Without these fundamentals, he says, no method of playing will produce a winning team. A loose huddle system will be used with the quarterback standing apart until he decides the play. Then he will run into the center of the huddle, give the signals before there is time for refutation, and the team will line up and execute the play.

200-POUND FULLBACKS CLASH STATE-UNC GAME

Chapel Hill, Sept. 29.—A part of the spotlight on the North Carolina-N. C. State football game at Raleigh Saturday afternoon will center on a couple of 200-pound fullbacks. They are Art Ditt of the Tar Heels and Fred Gardner of the Wolfpack. Rated among the best fullbacks in the Southern conference last season, Ditt was North Carolina's leading ground gainer with a 5-yard average per try. He gives a tremendous gallop with his vicious line smashes. Gardner was one of the leading performers on State's freshman eleven last season which tied with Duke for the state yearling title.

THE COMMUNITY CHEST
 Plans are going forward for staging the Community Chest drive in this city next week. Upon the success of this drive depends the Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Salvation Army and Thrift Shop movements in this city for the next year. It is much better to give through the Community Chest plan than to be bothered throughout the fall season by the various organizations staging individual drives and it is to be hoped that when called upon to support the Community Chest our citizens will see to it that the goal needed is oversubscribed.

SHORT SHOTS
 By HEAVY AVERILL

Raleigh, Sept. 29.—Nobody has yet made an attempt to cast any very serious insinuations, but if revenues from the beverage tax do not show a sharp increase there is likely to be a suspicion, at least, that there is something not so fresh about 3,800 miles this side of Denmark.

With the state's sales tax on hard liquor upped from 3 per cent to seven, with new gallonage taxes on wines, and with nearly twice as many liquor stores in operation, there was good reason to suppose that receipts from beverage taxes would at least double last year's figures; but to date the increase has been less than fifty per cent.

In the first 26 days of September 1936 the beverage tax yielded $92,122.71, while in the same period this year the figure was $130,967.71. So far during the first quarter of the fiscal year a total of $396,458.48 has been collected, while for the corresponding period of 1936, returns were $271,922.24.

undertaking new projects. The Duke Power company is battling tooth and nail to keep the city of High Point from erecting a municipal power plant on the Yadkin, while the federal power commission seems bent on making it tough for the Aluminum Corporation of America to establish a plant at Tuckertown.

Judging from "Letters to the Editor" in various and sundry newspapers (and it's a pretty fair criterion) Senator Josiah W. Bailey and his reputed opposition to the New Deal are far more interesting political questions in the opinion of North Carolina's voters than are Robert R. Reynolds and the possibility that he will have opposition in next year's senatorial primary.

SWEDEN WORKING FOR A BIG NAVY
 Stockholm—(AP)—Plans for a bigger navy, which will be suggested to parliament next year include three cruisers four torpedo boats, three coast defense ships, 12 motor boats and one convoy for submarines.

This program is expected to increase naval expenditures by $9,000,000 for each of the next five years. Two separate fleets are contemplated, one for the Baltic and the other for the west coast. Recognition that Sweden is within reach of modern air fleets has led, meanwhile to extensive air raids exercises.

Torpedoes are discharged from submarines by air pressure, either from the control room by the commander or at the tubes by his orders.

VERSATILE TRAPEZE ARTIST

"Ovah the center ring, ladies and gentlemen," spins Jeanette May, Europe's darling of the air. No circus coming here this season will offer as many thrilling aerial displays as Hagenbeck-Wallace coming to Greenville on Monday, October 5, for two exhibitions.

Miss May does the different single trapeze routines, then finishes with sensational arm swings that very few aerialists number among their repertoires. Miss May has been a star of big continental circuses and recently during a Crisco engagement newspaper critics pronounced her the successor to the late Lillian Leitzel.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Recent rallying power faded from today's stock market and leading issues were kicked back for losses of one to four or more points. Volume was comparatively small, however, considering size and breadth of the recessions and feeble support efforts were in evidence occasionally. Near the final hours extreme declines were reduced in the majority of cases.

Bonds were inclined to slip along with wheat, corn and cotton futures.

Two Convicted Of Slayings Seeking To Delay Appeals

North Carolina Supreme Court Asked To Put Off Hearings Until Later On in Fall Term

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Sept. 29.—Two convicted murderers, one a Negro sentenced to die for the killing of a white woman the other a white man doomed to the gas chamber for slaying a Negro man, today asked the Supreme court to delay hearing their appeals until later in the fall term.

The two who sought to put off arguments are William Perry, Chatham's eighteen-year-old Negro slayer of Mrs. W. T. Hamlet and Milford Exum, Wayne county white man convicted of killing Jim Williams, 60-year-old Negro, during the robbery.

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, down three to seven points on lower Liverpool cables and active southern selling.

Shortly after the first half hour December was selling at 8.25 and the general list was four to 10 net lower.

December was selling at 8.25 by midday when prices generally were four to nine points net lower.

Two Convicted Of Slayings Seeking To Delay Appeals

Application for delay was made in both instances because of insufficient time since conviction to prepare the necessary records and briefs on appeal. Both pleas were granted almost as a matter of course, such action being customary in cases of this kind.

Perry almost lost his chance to have his case reviewed by the high tribunal through failure of his counsel to docket the appeal within the time prescribed by law. The condemned man's lawyer gave proper notice of appeal but failed to see that it was docketed in the Supreme court. However, a conference with Attorney General A. A. F. Seawell and Assistant Attorney General Harry McMullen resulted in straightening out the matter. Had the state's counsel insisted on their technical rights, they could have ascend the high court to docket and dismiss the appeal.

The Exum case has drawn statewide interest by reason of the fact that it was the first in which the death sentence has been imposed upon a white man for killing a Negro in North Carolina. With a companion, Exum was charged with first robbing, then slaying the elderly Negro.
