Three Staff Cars Flying Union Jack Attacked By Japs

None of Occupants Injured by Raiding War Planes

CONSUL IS READY PROBE INCIDENT

Five Nipponese Craft Brought Down During Spectacular Raid on Capital

Shanghai, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Three cars belonging to the British embassy were machine-gunned today by two squadrons of Japanese war planes. None of the occupants was injured.

The staff cars in which S. S. Murray, the assistant air attaché of the British embassy was riding with several other Englishmen were attacked by the raiding Japanese planes near Minghong, 14 miles south of Shanghai about 4 P. M.

Although the three motor cars carried the unionjack, the British officials said, the war planes continued their machine-gunning after the occupants jumped from the machines and sought cover.

The British asserted the cars could have been identified easily and added there was no doubt the attacking planes were Japanese.

Herbert Phillips, British consul general, said an immediate investigation had been ordered, although no details of the assault had yet been received by his office.

The embassy cars were enroute to Shanghai from Nanking on the same highway on which two Japanese planes recently seriously injured the British ambassador to China by bombing and machine-gunning the automobile in which he was making a similar journey.

Nanking, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Five Japanese warplanes were brought down today during spectacular air raids on the Chinese capital and nearby cities, the Chinese announced.

Three of the planes were shot down during dog fights with Chinese aircraft over Nanking. The other two suffered destruction at the hands of enemy pursuit planes at Chinkiang.

Taking part in the raid on Nanking were 24 Japanese aircraft. Two bombers made an ineffectual attack on Soochow and tried to attack Chinkiang. Before they reached there, however, they met Chinese planes and were shot down.

Dr. Long Selected Head Commission Study Med. School

Members of Commission to Gather Data on Question of Necessity of Four-Year State School

Raleigh, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The commission studying the feasibility of a four-year medical school in North Carolina elected Dr. T. W. M. Long of Roanoke Rapids as its chairman as it organized here today.

Dr. Long, secretary of the State Medical Association, and a member of the 1937 State Senate, introduced the resolution authorizing appointment of the commission by Governor Hoey.

Dr. William Copridge of Durham was chosen secretary.

Other members of the commission, all being present, included Dr. C. C. Carpenter of Wake Forest, Dr. W. DeB. Maclender of Chapel Hill.

The commission decided to meet again here December 10. In the meantime the members will gather data on the main question for investigation. Is there a real need for a four-year medical school and how is the best way to approach the desired end if there is a need.

It was voted to ask the committee of the State Medical Society which is studying the same question, to cooperate.

County Court Session For Today Called Off

W. H. a number of Greenville attorneys in Raleigh to appear before the North Carolina Supreme court, which is hearing oral arguments on appeals from the Fifth Judicial District, this week's session of County court was called off by court attaches.

Farm Bureau Federation To Demand Crop Control

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Oct. 12.—When Senator Ellison D. Cotton (R) Smith and his colleagues of the Senate Agricultural Committee convene in Winston-Salem Monday, October 18, they will hear from the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation a demand for compulsory control of crop surpluses, as well as a call for a special session of Congress.

"We advocate the restoration of price levels of agricultural products to parity on all crops through compulsory control of surpluses," said E. F. Arnold, secretary of the Federation.

"In connection with this general policy we advocate the policy of federal loans to farmers to protect parity prices. We favor the Ever-normal Granary, which we believe would protect the consumer as well as the producer," he continued.

The Federation's ease will be presented in a general way by its president, J. E. Winslow of Greenville. Mr. Arnold said, and its special groups—peanut, cotton, tobacco and potato-truck farmers—will be represented in special pleas by committee.

Mr. Arnold made it clear that the Federation does not want a special bill for each of these groups but called for the inclusion of all essential crops in one general control bill.

OFFERINGS ON LOCAL MARKET SET NEW HIGH

More Than 1,800,000 Pound Of Tobacco Sold Monday

BEST AVERAGE OF SEASON PAID

Sales of 1,863,646 Pounds Bring $603,738.41 for Official Average of $32.40

More tobacco was sold on the Greenville tobacco market yesterday than on any day since auctions were first started here.

Another high mark was that of the average price paid for the unusually heavy offerings. Monday's average having been the highest for the past three years. The money paid out also was unofficially declared to have been a record for that number of years, at least.

The $32.40 average price was the highest for the past three years. Money paid out during the day totaled $603,738.41.

The heavy offerings and high prices yesterday brought the official season's average up to $25.20 per hundred pounds.

So far this year 38,197,500 pounds of the golden weed have been sold for $9,625,476.39.

The offerings, average price and money paid out, all are running far ahead of figures for the corresponding dates for the past three years.

Tobacco continued to sell good today and indications were that the day's official average would not be far below that of yesterday.

Observers have estimated that the Greenville market would sell upwards of 65,000,000 pounds during the season. Some, however, have estimated a figure below this mark, while others have guessed up to 70,000,000 pounds would be sold this year.

One Extra Teacher Allotted to Schools

Another teacher has been allotted to the schools of Pitt county, bringing the total for the 1937-38 session to 194, as compared with 191 last year, a gain of three.

The new teacher, announced this week is allotted the Pactolus school. Two new teachers had previously been allotted since school opened, these going to Arthur and Belvoir.

It was announced at the offices of the Pitt County Board of Education that the new teacher for Pactolus was secured largely thru the efforts of T. B. Atmore of Washington, member of the State School commission.

Attorneys Appear Before High Court

A number of Greenville attorneys were in Raleigh today to appear before the North Carolina Supreme court for the first time since the number of justices was increased from five to seven. Among the lawyers from here were Julius Brown, president of the Pitt County Bar Association, S. J. Everett, W. S. Tyson, J. W. H. Roberts, D. M. Williford, Alton Dunn, J. B. James, M. K. Blount, P. C. Harding.

Britain Moderates Demands On Italy

Neither France Nor Great Britain Inclined to Be Temperamental or Act Hastily in Spanish Civil War Crisis

London, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and foreign secretary Anthony Eden, in joint command of British foreign policy, drafted insistence, but moderate action to change Premier Mussolini's mind about foreign soldiery in Spain.

Diplomatic sources indicated this course, supported by France, would not increase the danger of a general war, but was expected to bring Mussolini into line on non-intervention.

The change of course was plotted in the face of a gathering insurgent offensive in the civil war in Spain.

Neither the French nor British is now inclined to be temperamental or take hasty action to counter Duce's refusal to talk about withdrawal of his troops in a seapower meeting as France and Britain had proposed.

Indications increasingly pointed to use of the London non-intervention committee, representatives of 27 European powers, in an attempt to reach an accord with Italy on Spain.

SEEKS CHANGE LABOR VOTING

Federation of Labor Favors Balloting By Crafts

Denver, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor convention voted unanimously today to support an amendment to the labor-relations act to permit workers to vote by crafts in selecting their collective bargaining agents.

The present law authorizes the National Labor Relations Board to decide in each instance whether elections of bargaining agents shall be by crafts (the form of union organization generally favored by the A. F. of L.), plant units or employer units.

Earlier in the convention delegates charged repeatedly the labor board, in exercising the discretion allowed by the present law, favored John L. Lewis' CIO by ordering elections on industrial lines.

In such elections, they contended, masses of unskilled workers were able to impose their will on smaller groups of skilled craftsmen.

Earlier the American Federation of Labor had extended to its unions which joined John L. Lewis' Committee on Industrial Organization their choice of the olive branch of peaceful return of the club of expansion.

The A. F. of L. executive council will meet at the close of the convention here, probably tomorrow night or Thursday, but there was little indication it would try to wield immediately the power to expel.

SPECIAL TERM CONGRESS SET NOVEMBER 15

Announcement Made At Semi-Weekly Press Parley

TO OUTLINE AIMS IN TALK TONIGHT

Chairman Doughton of Ways and Means Committee Hopes for No New Taxes

Washington, Oct. 12.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today called a special session of congress to meet on November 15th.

At his press conference late today the Chief Executive announced to a large group of newsmen that he had signed a proclamation calling congress into session.

He gave no indication to reporters of subjects to be considered, but the first business of the extra ordinary meeting will be farm legislation with surplus crop control as its main purpose.

The President said he would outline the purposes of his special session in his radio address tonight.

Previously, a secretary, in making public the President's engagement list, advised newsmen to be sure and be present at the regular semi-weekly press conference this afternoon. He indicated Mr. Roosevelt would have an important announcement.

Among the congressional chiefs called to the executive mansion were Chairman Doughton (D-N. C.) of the Ways and Means committee; Representative Vinson (D-Ky.) chairman of the Ways and Means sub-committee on taxation; and Chairman O'Connor (D-N. Y.) of the rules committee.

Chairman Doughton said after the conference no new taxes were discussed, adding he "frantically hoped" there would be none.

Twenty Arrested In Martin County

Williamston, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Sheriff Roebuck of Martin county announced today the arrest of 20 persons on charges of violating the North Carolina liquor laws.

The arrests, he said, resulted from undercover investigation by agents of the ABC Board. Warrants for 20 others have been issued, he said.

A similar roundup in nearby Wilson county recently resulted in arrest of 47 persons on liquor law violation charges.

Pitt Cotton Ginning Behind 1936 Figures

Although the cotton crop this year is estimated as the second largest in the history of the United States, ginnings in Pitt County prior to October 1 indicate the crop is late or else production is below that of last year.

Up to the first of this month 1,496 bales had been ginned in Pitt county, compared with 2,522 bales ginned to October 1, 1936.

Fair Opening Indicates Successful Week Ahead

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Oct. 12.—All signs fail in dry weather, according to an old saying, and all Fairs fall in wet weather, but if the enthusiasm which has marked the opening of North Carolina's State Fair here is any real index, Dr. J. S. Dorton, managing the big event in this revival of state operation, can already mark up a success to his credit.

A preview Monday night brought expressions of delight and even of wonder from hardened newspapermen and from state officials who were invited as special guests; while Tuesday morning's program has far surpassed that ordinarily presented on the opening day of a Fair, in attractiveness and in the size of the crowd it drew.

Raleigh's school children, special guests of the Fair management, are in full possession of the field today and are having the time of their

Armenian Slays Service Officer After Visa is Refused

REVOLVER FIRED AT CLOSE RANGE

Incident Not Likely to Precipitate Diplomatic Breach Between Countries

Beirut, Syria, Oct. 12.—(AP)—James Marriner, 45, one of the best known American service officers, was shot and killed today by an Armenian to whom he had refused a visa to enter the United States.

The assassin's guns felled the tall, scholarly consul general as he stepped from his car before his office for the start of the day's business.

Marriner's chauffeur captured the assassin.

Police, after a preliminary investigation, said the killer's name was Mejaridich Karayan.

They reported he pumped six bullets from a revolver into Marriner at close range. The consul general was struck in the head, abdomen and thigh and died instantly.

An investigating magistrate examined Karayan. The prisoner, police announced, admitted Marriner's refusal to issue a visa for the United States was the motive for the attack.

The authorities said the American official had blocked Karayan's entry on the grounds of insanity in the Armenians' family.

Washington, Oct. 12.—(AP)—State department officials withheld official comment today on the slaying of American consul general Marriner at Beirut, Syria, pending receipt of full details of the assassination.

High sources said, however, the incident was not likely to precipitate a diplomatic breach between the United States and Syria, which functions under a French mandate. This view was voiced on the basis of incomplete information.

(The seat of the Spanish government was moved from Madrid to Valencia for greater safety about a year ago.)

ACC Homecoming Day Will Be Held Saturday, Oct. 23
Plans Underway for Return of Unusual Large Number of Alumni Annual Conferences

Wilson, Oct. 12.—The alumni of Atlantic Christian College will meet Saturday, October 23, for the annual homecoming day. According to an announcement made by John A. Winfield of Pantego, the president of the alumni association, and Miss Eva Perkins, the alumni secretary, plans are underway for the return of an unusually large number of alumni. This year the classes of '33, '34, '35, '36 and '37 will have special reunions. The fraternities and sororities are also planning special "get-togethers" and entertainments.

As is traditional, the homecoming day exercises will open with a meeting of alumni, students, and faculty in the gymnasium at 10:30. At this time President Howard S. Hilley will give his annual message to the alumni of the college, and the band will give a concert.

'REBEL SCHOOL' IS ANSWER TO TRAFFIC HAZARD
Rutherford, Essex, Eng.—(AP)—Defiant because educational authorities have made it necessary for pupils to walk two miles through dangerous motor traffic to reach school, parents of 212 children have set up a "rebel school" here.

When the old school became overcrowded, authorities built a new one two miles away. Though the new school is very modern, parents became incensed over the dangers they felt the two-mile walk exposed their children to.

The rebel school is held in a corner of a public playground without chairs, desks or blackboards. Pupils squat on the ground and the teacher walks between the lines, shouting questions at them and hearing their recitations.

The word "El Dorado," meaning "the gilded one," was first applied to a South American tribal king or priest, said to cover himself with gold dust at an annual religious festival.

Well-kept nails, neat eyebrows and smoothly arranged hair are three marks of a well-groomed woman.

OCTOBER TIME SELECT BIRDS

Suggests Leg Bands to Mark Distinguished Flock

Raleigh, Oct. 12.—October is a good time for poultrymen to select next year's breeding birds, said T. T. Brown, extension poultry specialist at State College.

Birds that have not yet molted, are still laying well, are vigorous, and have a large body capacity will transmit these desirable characteristics to their offspring, he said.

A colored legband placed on these superior birds will mark them so they can be distinguished later when they are to be used for breeding purposes.

Late-molting birds have a longer laying period and are, therefore, more profitable to the poultryman, Brown explained.

The only way to succeed with poultry is to make every effort to build up a high quality flock in which all hens are good consistent layers.

Poor layers are as expensive to raise, feed, and manage as good layers, but they fail to produce the eggs need to bring a profit.

Brown also advised poultrymen to keep hens separated from pullets, as the pullets need more grain than hens and cannot be fed properly unless kept separated.

When pullets are changed from growing mash to laying mash, the change should be made gradually over a period of 12 to 14 days.

The first three or four days, mix one-fourth laying mash and three-fourths growing mash. Make it half the next three or four days.

Then for another like period mix three-fourths laying mash with one-fourth growing mash. After that, feed straight laying mash.

Another favorite ambush for detectives is the nightclub. Plainclothes men frequent the "lush" late-hour places, aware that fugitives, with a lot of loose "scratch" break out now and then on spending sprees. More than one important capture has been made in the dusky glow of a nightclub.

I remember meeting a detective length of time you will see a cross-section of the world pass in review. Less publicized but equally true is the fact that plainclothes men and detectives keep a watchful eye on these stands. They scrutinize closely anyone purchasing a pipe there, and their logic is simple. Criminals frequently give way to impulse or curiosity to see how much ado the "local" press is making over their activities. A fugitive, say, from Minneapolis is likely to ask for his hometown paper, and when he does a copper usually is ready to slip the irons on him.

Then again, spies are sometimes detected in this way. There is one case on record where a rather harmless looking fellow was in the habit of buying a large number of papers every second Monday at one of these stands. Finally it became noted that he purchased coast papers only—that is, he bought Savannah, Miami, New Orleans, Galveston, San Diego, San Francisco, and Seattle papers. This, in effect, drew a "ring" around the United States.

Before making a move the authorities purchased these papers themselves and, in time, succeeded in breaking down a code in the classified advertisements. The purchaser was a spy and was receiving certain information in this way twice a month. This was shortly after the war, and so the fellow was, as I recall, deported. Had he been captured during the war he would have been shot.

Another favorite ambush for detectives is the nightclub. Plainclothes men frequent the "lush" late-hour places, aware that fugitives, with a lot of loose "scratch" break out now and then on spending sprees. More than one important capture has been made in the dusky glow of a nightclub.

I remember meeting a detective

one night in a pre-repeal place near 52nd street. "I've been here every night for two weeks," he said. "We're after a safe-cracker from Boston. He's a good-time guy and can't keep out of the gay spots for long. He'll come in one of these nights and when he does I'll put the irons on him." They got him two nights later, during a private champagne supper, with one of his sweeties.

Richard Maney, the theatrical representative, is a collector of printed dramas. In his office at 120 West 42nd street are more than 100 copies of plays. "For quick reference work," he says. His apartment is stacked to the ceiling with books, all on the theatre.

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine

By Igo Goldston, M.D.
APPENDICITIS IN CHILDREN
Children may suffer appendicitis. This is contrary to the belief of many who associate it only with adults. Acute appendicitis is comparatively infrequent in children under five, but its frequency increases with each additional year. Furthermore, acute appendicitis is a more hazardous condition in the young than in the adult.

Those in charge of young children can help greatly to reduce the death rate and the length of hospitalization connected to appendicitis in children by bearing in mind the following points:

Whenever a young child has a gastric upset, think of appendicitis. Do not under any circumstances give the child a cathartic until the condition from which the child suffers has been definitely diagnosed, and then only on the physician's orders.

When operation is indicated, do not delay granting consent. The sooner after its onset appendicitis is diagnosed and the sooner it is competently treated, the better are the prospects for the survival of the patient.

The usual symptom associated with the onset of appendicitis in children is sudden severe generalized pain in the abdomen, sometimes localized below the angle of the ribs in the so-called "pit of the stomach."

INFERIOR RYE BEING OFFERED

Cheap Varieties Being Offered Farmers As Abruzzi

Raleigh, Oct. 12.—Inferior varieties of rye are still being sold to farmers as Abruzzi, a leading and adapted variety, warns E. C. Blair, extension agronomist at State College.

Abruzzi rye is winter hardy in North Carolina and grows upright, making good pasture and a strong growth for green manure, he continued.

Many of the varieties mislabeled as Abruzzi are winter hardy, but do not grow upright. Rosen rye is winter hardy, but has a prostrate habit of growth and is not so desirable.

The seed of different rye varieties are similar in appearance, and this makes it hard for growers to distinguish one from another. Careful growers try when possible to get seed from an area where Abruzzi is commonly grown, as this lessens the possibility of getting seed of another and inferior variety.

On seed purchased outside the State, complete labeling is an additional safeguard, as the federal bureau of plant industry has been active in enforcing the truthful labeling provisions of the federal seed law which applies to all interstate shipments.

When misbranding of local seed is suspected it should be called to the attention of the State Department of Agriculture, which is endeavoring to enforce the State seed law, Blair continued.

The Characters

Nina, a nice girl with flaxen hair.

Honey, Nina's gay, plump, youthful mother, has brought home a new husband.

Richard, Nina's stepfather, charming, poised, dark-haired, well-tailored and Honey's junior by 10 years.

David, a young auto salesman, met Nina at a party he crashed. He has copper hair and an engaging manner.

Cordelia is Nina's closest friend.

Chapter Eight

Nina's Plan To Move

ON the morning of the day the honeymooners were to return Nina woke with a little-girl feeling of excitement, that was all out of proportion for even such an exciting day. She was down for breakfast at 7:30, and Bridget looked actually shocked at such an unusual happening.

Just as when they had gone away, the house was a mass of flowers, lots of them from Nina.

Mrs. Carrie Van Alstyne—Aunt Carrie, as Nina called her—had sent a hideously expensive, and equally hideously looking "piece," on a wire stand. There were red and yellow roses in hard masses, and a red satin ribbon with "welcome" on it in gold letters.

Aunt Carrie was about as close to Honey, as Cordelia was to Nina. A grand person, with a great sense of humor, Cordelia called her "Horseface," and it was appropriate.

When the newlyweds got off the train, Nina thought she had never seen her mother looking better. And when Richard stepped from the platform, Nina felt a distinct shock at being so glad to see him... not critical, not curious... just glad to see him.

She kissed his cheek and it felt hard and smooth, and it smelt faintly of some expensive shaving soap. Nice.

In the taxi, he sat in the middle, and drew Nina's arm through his. It felt lean and muscular.

At home in the hall Honey cried: "Heaven! Look what Carrie has sent!"

And Richard showed immediately that he was one of them, by not taking the monstrosity seriously, for a moment.

Glimpses of the new Honey showed up in flashes of a seriousness that was very sweet; but she had lost none of her youth and gaiety, because of it. Nina felt so happy that it hurt, almost.

She was not surprised at Honey's radiance, for Richard was probably the most perfect lover Nina had ever seen or imagined. It was his—restraint, she thought, more than anything else, that was so frightfully touching. Little things... little, accomplished caresses.

Nina was amused and rather shocked to find herself thinking of two things: that he could have reached this finished state of artistry only through long experience; and that if he were this good in front of her... what must he be like, alone?

They got quite high, that first night at dinner, on several bottles of the Pol Roget, dix neuf cent one, from the cellar; and all the questions about the future that Nina had had in her mind to ask, were forgotten.

Two Vetoes

IN the past two weeks, she had wondered a good deal where Honey and Richard were going to live; where she would. She couldn't imagine that a new husband would just quietly slip into her life, and settle down there, and certainly want to start a new life in a new home... a place to fuss over, and arrange her things in differently. Nina had even thought of a friend's tiny three-room apartment, which she knew was for rent, for herself. Honey would probably take the three servants, but a part-time maid would be enough for her.

But as the days slipped by, no mention was made of anybody moving, any changes of any sort being made. As far as she could make out, Richard had been living about in his various clubs; and beyond personal articles—like his silver toilet set, guns, golf clubs and an enormous wardrobe—he had no belongings at all, apparently. He just moved in. It was as simple as that.

Nina thought: "Well then, I'm simply going to move out." Because, in spite of the fact that she adored them both (she found herself using Honey's phrase), she thought it was a very funny arrangement, and no place for a grown-up daughter to be barging in. She told her mother.

"You know, darling, I think I'll get a tiny place of my own, somewhere nearby, because we'll want to see each other all the time... but I do feel sort of three-a-crowd-ish, with you newlyweds."

"But baby!" Honey's little round pink face puckered up pitifully. "I won't allow it, that's all. How old are you? Can I still exert parental authority?... Why I'm not even going to let you get married and leave me—ever. That's how much I want you with me. You can't go."

It was impossible to argue with her. After a day or two had gone by, Nina spoke to her stepfather about it.

Now it was Richard with whom she had breakfast every morning; and she supposed it was so particularly nice, because she had been eating alone these last two years.

Nina was not one of the people who are grumpy in the mornings—neither was he; and it was fun to be taking special care over the spun sugar halo of your hair again, and the selection of your pajamas, because you knew you were going to be seen and appreciated. For Richard did appreciate her... and told her so.

On the morning that she had decided to speak to him about moving away, he told her again, emphatically.

"It's marvellous, you know, having breakfast every morning with someone who is so entirely—decorative. Get the day off to such a splendid start... Have I told you before?"

"You did, when I wore my new American Beauty..."

She stopped, blushing to think that she had remembered the very day and everything.

"That was Sunday."

And she blushed again—with pleasure this time, to think that he had remembered.

She said, quickly: "There's something I've been wanting to speak to you about. I talked with Honey, but she only said: 'No' as if I rather expected she would. I'd like a tiny apartment of my own, Richard." She fibbed a little. "I've wanted one—to fuss over, you know—for ages, but naturally I couldn't leave Honey alone. Now, though, I can... Would you speak to her?"

He was eating grapes in the most marvellously efficient and fastidious manner.

He paused with his brown hand in mid-air, and looked at her steadily. There was amusement, and a terrifying piercing quality in his dark eyes.

"Nina's heart was doing a tap dance against her ribs.

"I will not," he said, calmly. "I didn't intend to get you involved in a family argument, if that's what you're afraid of."

And he said: "It isn't I'm afraid that she might say: 'All right. Go ahead.'"

The tap dance turned into an elaborate routine. She realized with sudden conviction, that she hadn't ever really wanted to go, at all; and she supposed the relief of not having to was what was affecting her so strangely.

She said: "Explain your grape technique, will you, Richard? I am confounded and envious."

He showed her how he removed the seeds of the preceding grape neatly hidden in the skin of the current one.

They talked, very gravely for some minutes, about grapes.

Incident On The Avenue

AUNT Carrie (Horseface) Van Alstyne was holding forth in front of the living-room fireplace. She was telling stories on Honey, and the eight or ten people gathered about her were convulsed with laughter.

It was Thanksgiving afternoon and Nina was feeling a little sick from her enormous midday meal. Mushroom soup, and turkey, of course, with rich chestnut dressing, cranberry sauce, and old Margaret's famous candied sweet potatoes, that were really more candied than potato; then more turkey again... Nina sighed.

She signaled her stepfather. "I think I'll walk up Fifth avenue a ways, Richard, or I shall never be able to face food tonight. I'm far from well."

She got on her things and went out into the stimulating November air. Lord, it felt good! She struck out briskly and sniffed great invigorating sniffs.

At 86th street, on the park side of the avenue, she ran into Betty Halliday and her brother.

"Don't tell us. We're out doing the same thing. Are you going to the Fenwicks tonight, Nina?"

"If I recover sufficiently."

A small group ofurchins dressed in bedragged grown-up clothes, their faces painted grotesquely, gathered round a taxi that had drawn up to the curb.

"How about a dime, mister...?" Richard Challoner stepped out, laughing.

"Hi, Nina! I thought I'd catch you..."

He stopped to pay the driver and then threw a coin high up into the air. The urchins leapt for it.

Betty Halliday's brother whistled, softly.

"So they even follow you through the streets, eh, Nina? Who's the new heart throb?"

And Nina felt the hot blood rushing to her cheeks as she said: "Hush, you idiot. That's my stepfather."

"Oh—of Sorry."

reality as Miss George delineates the step-by-step fall of a lady. Shifting scenes lend color, and the lady's progress toward haggishness is excellently portrayed. The courtroom scene, with John Beal at his best as the son defending his own mother unbeknownst to him, reaches a frenzy of emotional appeal that should leave the women patrons howling in the aisles. Warren William, Reginald Owen, Henry Daniell, and Luis Alberni have read with surprising success by Miss Francis, not surprisingly by Verree Teasdale, Walter Connolly, Preston Foster and Louise Fazenda. It's about backstage Washington, and (personal confession) it's the first "managing" female. They conflict when Myrn's sister, Florine Rice, is about to be married off to John Beal, by arrangement of Myrna. Powell struggles with a role that is explained and motivated only in the final reel of two, and Miss Loy is as ingratiating as usual. In spite of because of a riotous slapstick ending, it isn't very funny, except for "moments."

Hollywood—One thing about pre-viewing is that it takes hours to get moments. These new films had many moments.

Beautiful color production with a sea and island setting. It has splendid characterizations by Barry Fitzgerald and Oscar Homolka. It has Francis Farmer, Ray Milland and Lloyd Nolan, all competent, and because its plot has the bends right in the middle—it is a double feature, two distinct stories in one film. Beginning as a psychological study of a disgraced sea captain (Homolka) whose weakness is drink and who cannot bear to admit that a beloved daughter is really dead, the film becomes a strictly adventure piece—and pretty hokey—in its latter stages.

The typhoon sequence, really the climax, comes in the middle—but for that, and for Fitzgerald especially, the picture is decidedly worth seeing. Homolka, whose mobile face makes him a master of pantomime, suffers with the film for its double-feature aspects. The color, incidentally, is of a quality to invite diving from your seat into the breakers on the screen.

Beal At His Best

There is a splendid climax, too, but properly placed, in our old friend "Madame X," played with distinction by our new friend, Gladys George. Ponderous and stiff at first, the film takes on somber

While the response of the citizens generally to the Community Chest drive has been generous only about 75 per cent of the necessary fund has been raised and there are still a number of citizens who have not responded to the call. Greenville must not fall down on this first attempt of raising the funds for its various organizations through the Community Chest plan and we are sure that our people will see to it that the goal set for the drive is reached. The drive has been going on for more than a week, however, and the sooner it is completed the better. To those who have not already responded we make an urgent appeal that they do so at once.

The second annual Pitt County Fair under the sponsorship of the Farmville and Pitt County Posts of the American Legion will be held at the new fair grounds near this city all next week. It is the desire of the Legion posts to make the Pitt County Fair a real agricultural fair, but of course this is impossible without the help of the people of this county. The more farmers that place exhibits at the fair the better the fair will be and the more worthwhile it will prove to the entire community. There is probably not a farm in Pitt County on which there is not something worth exhibiting at this year's fair. We urge the farmers, the schools and the organizations of the various communities of the county to take advantage of this opportunity to have a real fair here by placing exhibits at the fair.

Raleigh, Oct. 12.—The probation officers and women supervisors who are receiving a week's instruction in their duties are H. Vincent Leary, Camden, N. J.; J. Wayland Sledge, Rocky Mount; Kirkwood L. Hanrahan, Kinston; J. D. Beatty, Wilmington; K. Bruce White, Jr., Wake Forest; Thomas D. Stokes, Lexington; E. S. Whitaker, Gastonia; P. T. McNeill, West Jefferson; A. Y. Howell, Boone; I. C. "The farmers of North Carolina are already back to 1932 as far as the purchasing power of their crops is concerned," said E. F. Arnold, secretary of the N. C. Farm Bureau Federation, except for the tobacco farmers who are enjoying fairly good prices. "As for the others, they can't buy any more now with what they got from a bale of cotton or from their other crops than they could back in 1932 with the same amount of their products."

"Bob" Thompson, private secretary to the Governor, is an inveterate football fan. Any time you want, you can go into the gubernatorial anteroom and get a long dissertation from Bob upon the probable outcome of the coming Saturday's battles.

Just now he's looking for someone who will give him "Georgia Tech and 14 points" against Duke. In return he'll give you "Wake Forest and 13 points" against North Carolina.

Revocation of 164 drivers' licenses last week brought the total of such revocations in North Carolina to 13,073.

When Governor Clyde R. Hoey commuted the death sentence of Melvin Coggins, Nash county man convicted for the murder of a substantial Nash farmer, it made three lives he saved within the week. Previously he had commuted gas chamber convictions for Pete Bell and Sam Rodman, Jr., Beaufort county negroes who killed another in a gambling game row.

Eight states now use the gas chamber method of executing their capital felons, California being the latest to adopt it.

Cost of gassing a person to death has decreased to the point where it now costs less than half a dollar per man in North Carolina. In Nevada, which pioneered lethal gas as a means of execution, it cost approximately $1,000 to put to death death Gee Joh, Chinese, the first gashouse victim.

The same kind of gas was used then as now—hydrocyanide—but it then came in liquid form whereas it is now in the form of small solid tablets. It was manufactured commercially only by a Southern California firm for use in gassing insects in the citrus fields. The company sold it in 10-gallon containers, but the prison was required to transport it at its own risk.

Busiest man in Raleigh this week is probably Louis H. Wilson, Department of Agriculture chief publications specialist, who is fronting for the Fair in the matter of press passes and general information about the State Fair.

THE HOLDING-OUT COMPANY

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington.—Before leaving for his western tour, President Roosevelt included a brief paragraph or two about foreign affairs into a speech he made about the constitution. He said: "Fear spreads throughout the world—fear of aggression, fear of mind, and you know your government's mind."

Then he made the western trip. He talked to a lot of people and they talked to him. On his return trip he made the Chicago speech, talking of the desirability of taking "positive" action to "quarantine" that 10 per cent of the world's population which wouldn't keep its hands off its guns.

That speech surprised a substantial part of official and unofficial Washington. Maybe, after all, Washington merely thought it knew what was in the government's mind. Or maybe the government, after its tour west, had discovered something in the country's mind that it hadn't suspected was there in such force. At any rate, the talk was so much more aggressive in tone than in stand taken by the state department in its several proclamations about the peace-mindedness of the United States that some surmised the President had become a bit impatient.

Neutrality Act's First Test.

Another surmise: That the President had discovered a rising swell of American sentiment against sitting on the international fence.

What actually has happened, in the view of many here, is that the neutrality act has been put to its first test before the public. It wasn't put to a test in the Ethiopian affair, which occurred before the present act was passed.

Spain was not much of a test. Both sides seemed to be fairly well matched, and civil wars among Spanish-speaking peoples have been rather frequent affairs on this continent for centuries.

But the current oriental war—if one may yet call it that—is different. It brings out American sympathies which it is difficult to prevent being translated into action.

The Two Views

But congress debated that question a long time before passing the neutrality act. Senators Nye, Clark, Vandenberg and others insisted that isolation was the best means of keeping out foreign war and that any effort to cooperate with other nations in suppressing outbreaks was simply inviting a repetition of 1917. The vote in the senate was 62 to 6 in favor of the neutrality act which incorporates that view.

But former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson says a boycott by the United States and Great Britain of Japanese silk and other exports will leave that country no money to fight China. And, he says, such a boycott wouldn't bring war.

Those are the two views, and the President's speech appears to favor the Stimson view of doing something—now.

THAT GALLIC WIT MAKES FRIENDS OF LEGLESS PAIR

Paris.—(AP)—A legless plaintiff and a legless defendant left the Paris police courts as good friends. One, a war veteran, had been piloting his new tricycle when he stopped at a cafe and had the waiter carry him in for a drink. When the waiter carried him out again, his tricycle was gone. Police found the tricycle being operated by another legless man. In court the second man told this story: "I was propelling myself down the street on a wheeled sled when I saw the empty car. "What would you have done? You know what it means to have no legs. I was tired and nobody was using your car. I borrowed it." The plaintiff withdrew his charges and the two left court in the arms of two policemen after the owner of the tricycle had agreed to lend his car to the other when he was not using it.

UNC-WFC GAME SET SATURDAY

Contest to be Played On Gore Field At Wake Forest

Wake Forest, Oct. 12.—Next Saturday afternoon, here on Gore Field, the gridiron clubs of Wake Forest and North Carolina University will go together in a contest that bids fair to provide many thrills for the large homecoming crowd that is expected to be on hand for this football attraction.

While the Tar Heels, already victors over N. C. State and N. Y. U., will be top heavy favorites to bowl over the Deacons this week, those who remember the 1936 contest between the two clubs which was played in Charlotte before an audience of twelve thousand gasping fans, will recall how Carolina trailed 0-17 in a tilt it was supposed to win easily, according to the dopsters, for over three periods and was virtually out of the stadium during those minutes of play by the underdogs.

And it was only after the Heel's two-team system finally wore down the scrappy Deacon eleven, that two desperate touchdowns were pushed across for the 14-7 victory, in the waning moments of play. One of these touchdowns came as a result of a circus catch over the goal line by Captain Dick Buck, who was probably the greatest pass receiver ever seen in the south, or a pass thrown by this year's Carolina Co-Captain, Crowell Little.

The final Heel tally in that thrill packed contest resulted from a sustained drive that ended with a 12 yard dash over the weary and exhausted Deacons by this same Little.

Now, with the Carolina-Wake Forest game only a few days away, the situation is largely the same as it was in 1936. Carolina is heavily favored to win, to the extent that many Deacon followers are hoping that the highly touted Carolina club can be held to three touchdowns.

Coach Peahead Walker, of Wake Forest is making his debut into Southern Conference and Big Five Coaching circles with the Carolina tilt. He was elected head coach here during the past summer and the first three games on the Deac slate were played against non-conference opponents.

Word from the Tar Heel grid camp has that Coach Wolf will have his All-American Andy Bershak, Crowell Little, Art Ditt, Tom Watson, George Sternweis and the other Carolina stars ready for action against Wake Forest. However, Coach Walker's team will be without the services of Wheeler Dale, who has played so brilliantly at center during the absence of Captain Mumford. Dale suffered a sprained ankle in the Erskine game.

YES, IT'S REALLY TRUE, ESTELLE

Almost in tears with joy and excitement, Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page exclaimed "can you believe it all" when the trophy cup was bestowed upon her for winning the National Women's Amateur golf championship at Memphis at the expense of her final opponent, Patty Berg. Still in an attitude of wondering how it all happened, perhaps, Estelle packed the pretty prize in her baggage and set out for home in North Carolina.

If Captain Mumford is still unable to play this week, Howard Stogner, a soph, will be at center. He replaced Dale in the Seceder fray. Other No. 1 Deacs are: Weaver-Evans, ends; Beaver-Powers, tackles; Pato-Bryan, guards; Fuller, QB; Eastler and Anderson or Wirtz, halves, and McCarthy at fullback.

BANKER AND PAYN' GOOD AT TULANE

Chapel Hill, Oct. 12.—Buddy Banker and Billy Payne last Saturday took up at Tulane just where their famed brothers left off. They accounted for seven touchdowns in Tulane's 84 to 0 victory over Mississippi College. Buddy is a brother of Billy, All-Southern back in 1929, and Bill is a brother of "Fanny," who played in the 1931 Rose Bowl game. Tulane and North Carolina will meet at Chapel Hill in the Tar Heel's Homecoming Day game October 23.

STAR PUNTERS MEET IN UNC-WF CONTEST

Chapel Hill, Oct. 12.—Two outstanding punters will oppose each other Saturday afternoon when Carolina and Wake Forest meet in the Baptists Homecoming Day game. They are Tom Burnette of the Tar Heels and Roy Evans of the Demon Deacons. Burnette, who averaged 43 yards from the line of scrimmage last season, has this year better than 40 average per boot. Evans, new kicking "find" at the Baptist Institution, average 43 yards in the Erskine game Friday.

Vultures are welcomed as scavengers in many regions.

STATE TO PLAY VPI SATURDAY

Fastest Fleet In Two States to Take to Gridiron

Raleigh, Oct. 12.—The "fastest feet" in Virginia and North Carolina will scamper in State College's Riddick Stadium on Saturday night when State's Wolfpack meets V. P. I's Techs in a "State Fair Special."

The fleet-footed boys are Mel Henry and Kinky Darnell of Tech and Eddie "Little Buzzer" Berlinski and Art Rooney of State. They can run, pass, and punt and North Carolina's annual State Fair will have nothing on them in showmanship, color, and thrills. They are "threats" from the opening gun until the last.

Henry and Darnell have been big guns in Tech's offense and three weeks ago gave Duke's powerful Blue Devils much to think about in a game at Greensboro. Henry is one of Virginia's best backs and was a constant source of worry to State here last year.

Darnell is a sophomore and ranks with Paul Shu, V.M.I. back as one of the outstanding sophomores in the Old Dominion. Darnell is a former Winston-Salem high school star and the Twin City is expected to send a large delegation here to see the "home town boy" in action.

State never had a better back-field combination than Edgie Berlinski and Art Rooney. Those who have seen Berlinski in action—sports writers, coaches and fans—declare there is not a better back in the South this fall. He rose to great heights as a running back against Carolina two weeks ago, gaining 14 yards, 50 more than made by any other back on the field.

Last Saturday night against Furman, State's running attack was centered around Rooney while Berlinski did the blocking and tackling for the backfield. Berlinski also intercepted a pass, covered a State fumble and one of Furman's, tallied State's touchdown, and started one of the wierdest plays of the season when he had E. V. Helms, tackle, run for the extra point after Helms' attempted placement had been knocked back into his hands. Berlinski scored State's touchdown after he had put the ball on the one yard line with a 25-yard sprint.

Rooney was a ball of fire as a ball carrier against Furman. He gained 114 yards from scrimmage, making repeated gains of 10 and 15 yards. He also did a good job of punting, averaging 40 yards with a wet ball. Rooney is one of the Nation's top ranking sophomores. The State-V.P.I. football series is one of the oldest between teams of the two states and their games of past years have in most every instant been close, exciting, and keenly contested battles. Just such a game is expected here this week end, and, coming as the closing feature of North Carolina's annual State Fair, is expected to draw a large crowd.

LITTLE TOPS SCORING ON TAR HEEL ELEVEN

Chapel Hill, Oct. 12.—Crowell Little, triple threat quarter, is the leading scorer on the University of North Carolina eleven which faces Wake Forest at Wake Forest Sunday. The contest is the feature of the Baptists' Homecoming Day program. Little tallied all three touchdowns in the Tar Heel's 19-6 victory over NYU Saturday to run his total to 30 points in three tilts. He scored one touchdown each in the South Carolina and N. C. State games.

When in doubt buy black clothes. Black is easy to match and never goes out of style. "Stylish" colors die with the seasons.

GREENIES IN HIGH GEAR AGAINST MISSISSIPPIANS

Chapel Hill, Oct. 12.—After floundering around in low gear against Clemson and Auburn, Tulane's Green Wave stepped past medium clear into high gear last Saturday by swamping Mississippi College 84 to 0. The powerful Green Wave will match skill and speed with Colgate at Hamilton, N. Y., next Saturday and will stop over at Chapel Hill on return trip to meet North Carolina in the Tar Heel's Homecoming Day attraction October 23.

BAPTISTS IMPRESSIVE IN BEATING ERSKINE

Chapel Hill, Oct. 12.—Wake Forest's eleven, which meets Carolina at Wake Forest Saturday afternoon—showed vast improvement in beating Erskine 19 to 0 Friday night. He Demon Deacons controlled the situation all the way and flashed a fine running attack which netted 184 yards. Although they attempted only six passes, they hit the target thrice, scored two touchdowns, and advanced a total of 70 yards. The contest with Carolina is the feature of the Baptists' Homecoming Day festivities.

London Smokes Cost Money. London (AP)—Smoking is an expensive habit here. American cigarettes cost 37 cents a package. Most Americans, as a result, smoke English brands but don't save much since most of those cost 25 cents for 20. And they don't give matches away—you have to buy 'em or carry a lighter. Many persons do the latter—say its cheaper, although the matches only cost a cent a pack.

English cigarettes come in heavy cardboard packages and usually have souvenir pictures inside. Popular brands come not only in packs of 20 but of 10 and even 5 cigarettes as well.

Mothers! Treat Children's Colds This Proved Way

More mothers use VapoRub than any other medication of its kind—they have proved it by use in their own homes. It was further proved in the world's largest cold-clinic. No "dosing"—just massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. Almost at once, its poultice-and-vapor action starts to loosen phlegm, relieve irritation and coughing, help break local congestion. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

What It Means:

BALANCING THE BUDGET

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer

Washington—A year or seven years ago the federal government was spending more money than it has taken in, without going broke.

Then why all the pressure from so many sources for a balanced budget right now? Wall street, the treasury, the President—everybody seems to be raising the cry.

Actually, it all boils down to this: The budget should be balanced now simply because most of the people who are used to handling big money think this is the time to balance the budget.

And that's not as silly as it sounds. Financial Morality

People who use big money in the private business and banking world are familiar with two kinds of corporations—successful and unsuccessful ones.

The successful ones always balance their income against their outgo, and put away something for dividends and a rainy day.

The unsuccessful one drift into spending more than they take in. Finally they run out of money and go broke.

Thus have the centuries built up a code of financial morals. In private finance, it is good financial morals to balance your books with profits left over, and bad to let your spending get away from you.

The people who succeed or fail by that code think it is a good rule for government as well as private business.

Priming The Pump But there is one vital difference between financial security in private business and in government.

A "moral" private corporation lays aside savings for a rainy day, but a good government under ordinary circumstances would be foolish to lay aside savings. They would accumulate and force the government to invest its savings in competition with private business.

This means that a government savings account is not a thing that piles up in a bank. It is nothing more or less than a government's power to tax its citizens.

That power continues to exist through most emergency conditions whereas, hard-put private enterprises in the emergencies have to trim all financial sails, and even then, many go under.

Emergency conditions, therefore, leave the government with the only extensive reservoir of savings. Some governments, such as our own, have drawn on their savings (tax) accounts, or their borrowing power against those taxes, to prime the financial pump for private business.

That's how the Roosevelt administration operated in the last depression, a technique that kited the national debt up to the $37,000,000,000 mark.

Now Is The Time Naturally there was some excitement, but the financial community by and large accepted emergency tactics for emergency conditions.

But times are changing. By all standard measurements, the depression is over, or at least the worst has passed. The stock market even took one jump toward a boom last spring, although it has tapered off and is uncertain now.

So financiers generally, including the treasury's advisers, have decided that now is the psychological time to level off spending, and piling up a surplus each year that can be used to pay off some of the national debt. The President has publicly agreed within a week he stressed in talks within a week he stressed in talks the necessity for a balanced budget.

Congress Will Decide

The presidential advisers argue that the debt should be reduced so the government will be in good financial trim to meet any spending emergency that might arise, such as another depression, a war, plague, disaster or what have you.

And how will this be done? The treasury starts the ball rolling in a week or so by sending the President a revised estimate of the budget for the current governmental year, ending next June 30.

Then about the first of next month the treasury will complete a survey of the national tax structure with recommendations for revision or increase in taxes.

And one fine day soon these things will be dumped into the lap of a one-too-eager congress which will have to decide whether to: (1) let things ride as they are; (2) raise taxes; (3) cut governmental spending expenses.

And that's a hard decision to make, with election just around the corner.

Governor Defends Reform Practices For State Prison

Definitely Commits Self to Work of Human Reclamation in Comprehensive Restate of System

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Oct. 12.—North Carolina's governor stands squarely for the theory that imprisonment for crime should have as its object the reform and rehabilitation of the prisoner, rather than punishment and repression only.

Governor Clyde R. Hoey so declared himself in unmistakable terms Monday in the foreword to a comprehensive resume of North Carolina's parole system made by Parole Commissioner Edwin Gill to the National Parole convention in Philadelphia.

Mr. Gill's report covered the origin, history and development of North Carolina's parole system. It was submitted to the convention by Mr. Gill, who took with him copies of the report which he placed in the hands of parole officials of every State in the Union.

Governor Hoey's statement of his position follows: "I am definitely committed to the work of human reclamation. Because of some sensational crime, the public mind occasionally gives away to emotion and resolves to cease all attempts to reconstruct the lives of persons in prison.

"While in thorough sympathy with recurrent demands for rigid law enforcement, I cannot join in this hue and cry that places the entire blame upon rehabilitating agencies. I challenge the wisdom of these forces of reaction.

"It will be my policy to lend full weight of my office to the further expansion of parole, probation and penitentiary reform. It is not enough to be concerned with arrest, conviction and imprisonment. To ignore the economic and social consequences of punishment is to invite dire results and to increase rather than diminish this scourge of crime."

Never wear too much costume jewelry. It is better to leave most of it off rather than run the risk of appearing cheaply dressed.

"I said—have you heard about BIGELOW'S NEW Tailor-made Rug Service"
