Italy Partially Accepts Proposal

Agrees Withdraw Part Of Spanish Volunteers

Stipulates Equal Number from Both Sides, However

London, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Count Dino Grandi, Italy's delegate, told the non-intervention sub-committee today that Italy "accepts the proposal for partial withdrawal of a certain number of volunteers from the Spanish civil war."

The nine-power sub-committee adjourned until early next week after hearing statements by the British, Italian, French and German members.

The nine diplomats, meeting in a tense atmosphere created by British foreign secretary Anthony Eden's demands for prompt action, heard the Italian delegate promise his country's loyal and firm desire to cooperate.

The main question before the meeting was that of withdrawing foreign volunteers, especially Italian, from the Spanish civil war to remove the main source of danger that a general European conflict would emanate from Spain.

The adjournment, to consult the governments represented, came after the Earl of Plymouth and Ambassador Charles Corbin had presented the British and French proposal for getting foreign warriors out of Spain.

In offering cooperation Count Grandi, however, specified withdrawals must be "in equal quantities from both sides."

This, he said, was to be regarded as a "substantial beginning of the application" of the British plan for evacuation of foreign volunteers from Spain.

GOAL OF CHEST NOW ASSURED

Total Contributions Now Above $4,100 Figure

Greenville's Community Chest is now assured.

Out of a period of uncertainty as to whether or not the citizens of our community would respond to this, to Greenville, a newer method of handling a part of the social work, the Chest movement has moved to a point of certainty. The work of the participating agencies, Boy Scouts, Salvation Army and Thrift Shop, is now underwritten to the point where they will receive their several allotted apportionments, based on previous records of receipts from their annual "drives."

It is a source of gratification to the directors of the Chest, they declared, that the response to the call for support of this consolidated effort not only assures the satisfactory conclusion of the campaign, but indicates the desire of (Continued on page eight)

RANGER SLAIN AT FORT BRAGG

Alarm Sent Out For Three Men Hunting In Section

Raeford, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Hoke county authorities sent out an alarm for three deer hunters today shortly after the body of Sergeant J. F. Mott, Fort Bragg reservation ranger, was found near the reservation with a load of buckshot in the face.

D. L. Guin, foreman of a farm adjoining the reservation, told Coroner George Brown he met three men carrying a deer toward a car as he went to investigate the sound of shooting and came on Mott's body nearby.

Guin said he got the license number of the car and gave it to Sheriff D. H. Hogin. The three men, he said, told them they live in High Point, Asheboro and Randelman.

The foreman said he heard a shot about 7 a. m., and suspecting poachers were busy on his farm, started to investigate.

A board of inquiry was appointed at Fort Bragg to investigate the slaying. Mott was enlisted from Ellerbe, Ga.

ASSERTS CHINA APPLYING GAS

Japan Stages Demonstration of Alleged Practice

Shanghai, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Japanese authorities today staged a dramatic demonstration of alleged Chinese use of poison gas.

Fifty foreign correspondents were assembled in the office of the Japanese consulate general to receive an announcement which they had been told would be so momentous it had to be made on Japanese territory.

They were shown a shell which emitted evil-smelling fumes, which the Japanese asserted was phosgene smoke. Leut. Colonel Tani of the Japanese chemical corps, declared the shell contained sufficient poisonous gas to kill the entire roomfull.

Chinese reiterated their denial they were using poison gas. They declared a demonstration such as the Japanese gave would be possible in any high school chemical laboratory.

(The Japanese foreign office in Tokyo earlier had declared it had "indisputable proof" the Chinese were using phosgene gas).

An official spokesman in Shanghai declared six shells with unusual red markings were seized October 14 when a Japanese patrol surprised the crew of a Chinese trench mortar on a sector north of Shanghai.

A Chinese spokesman declared renewed attempts by the Japanese army today to smash Chinese lines at Tazang 10 miles north of Changai were repulsed.

Chinese troops, he said machine-gunned a Japanese force trying a flanking movement to cut off Chinese forces in the Chapel sector.

YOUTH ADMITS SLAYING PAIR

Elderly Physician and Wife Found Dead In Automobile

North Arlington, N. J., Oct. 16.—(AP)—The bodies of an elderly physician and his wife, beaten to death with a hammer in Maine days ago and then driven leisurely through the New England states to New Jersey by a young high school boy, Prosecutor John Breslin said, were found today in a parked automobile.

The high school boy, Paul Dwyer, 18, of South Paris, Me., who had stopped the machine with its gruesome cargo to get some sleep, confessed the double slaying, County Prosecutor Breslin announced. "Double murder," he termed the case.

The victims were identified by police as Dr. John Littlefield, 65, and his wife, Lydia, 64, both of South Paris, Maine. The physician's body was stuffed into a trunk on the back of the car. His frail wife's body was crammed under the rear seat.

It was only by chance that police stumbled on the trail.

The youth, travel-weary, was asleep in the back of the car, which he had parked in a vacant lot. Two patrolmen noticed him. Becoming suspicious they awakened him and took him to police headquarters for (Continued on Page Seven)

Victims Located Four Miles From Shaft Mouth

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 16.—(AP)—A shattering explosion deep in the shaft of the Mulga coal mine ten miles west of here killed 30 or more—virtually the entire shift at work—early today.

The blast, blamed by fire marshal Sam William on coal gas, tore an elbow in the Woodward iron works about 2 a. m., when a shift of 32 men was on duty in the affected section. Fallen rock debris nattered rescue workers.

A single victim, Ivan Fox, who was working near the elbow crumpled by the explosion, was brought out alive. He was seriously burned and Marshal Williams said he was the only person working near the blast "who did not lose his life."

Fox was in critical condition at a Bessemer, Ala., hospital and could not be questioned about the explosion.

R. M. Marshall, Woodward vice president, said bodies of the victims were located about four miles from the shaft mouth by the rescue crews which sent back word many were buried in fallen rock and coal. The victims were equally divided between negroes and whites, he said.

The mine, he added, normally employs about 500 men. Only one wing was damaged. This was near the shaft's deepest extremity, a fact which kept the death list from mounting to staggering proportions, it was said.

First of the bodies were trundled out of the shaft on coal cars about five hours after the explosion. (Continued on page eight)

Ruth Bryan Owen At College.

Ruth Bryan Owen, scheduled to speak at the college Wednesday night, October 20, had an unusual attitude toward her office during her two terms in Congress.

Believing that she was really answerable to her constituents, she "reported back" to her people at every recess what she had been doing in Congress.

Though her Congressional district was five hundred miles long and had more than half a million population, she made a personal appearance in every town of the district.

"Ninety-nine per cent of the job of a congressman is to humanize government for his constituents," she said, and that means not only taking the problems of communities to Washington, but "bringing Washington back to the people of the communities."

So Mrs. Owen first of all appointed a "resident secretary" to stay in her district and keep her in touch with affairs there.

Then she bought an automobile trailer, and each year made a personal tour of her whole district to tell her people how she had voted on questions of interest to them, and why she had voted as she had.

"Government," she explained, "is really the nation's business and the nation's housekeeping."

Another departure of Mrs. Owen's as Congresswoman was her effort to interest the boys and girls of her district in their government, to make them, as she said, "feel that representative government is exciting and thrilling . . . a challenge to intellect and spirit."

To do this she had brought to Washington for a week's visit at Easter every year during her two terms, a high school boy and girl from each of her eighteen counties. These were young people chosen by their schoolmates on the basis of character and citizenship.

She packed that week full, with visits to national buildings, to the halls of Congress, to Mount Vernon, to the President, so that these boys and girls would get "an idea of what government is all about and what citizenship means."

Though she will not speak here of her work in Congress, she will talk on another topic in which she is deeply interested and on which she has her own ideas—"This Business of Diplomacy."

E. C. T. C. Homecoming.

East Carolina Teachers College Homecoming, scheduled this year for Saturday, October 23, will offer its returning graduates a full day's program, with a general meeting in Austin building at 11 o'clock in the morning, a luncheon at noon, a football game in the afternoon, and a dance at night.

The morning program will be in charge of Mrs. L. L. Stancill, president of the Alumnae Association, who is at present teaching third grade in the college demonstration school in place of Miss Eunice McGee, away on leave of absence.

There will be no long speeches, but an hour's program with short talks and music.

A barbecue luncheon for all visitors will be served at one o'clock on the "back campus."

A football game with Western North Carolina Teachers College will be a feature of the afternoon program.

At night there will be a dance in the Robert H. Wright building sponsored by the Lanier Society. During the intermission a floor show supplied by local talent will be staged.

Many of the former students may prefer visiting quietly with friends, and are urged to do whatever they will enjoy most.

Alumnae who wish to spend the night on the campus and wish arrangements made for them can be cared for if they will write ahead of time to Mrs. L. L. Stancill, Alumnae Association President, E. C. T. C.

Arrangements for the day have been in charge of a faculty committee composed of Dr. Carl Adams, chairman, Miss Marla D. Graham, and Dr. R. J. Slay, with the alumnae president, Mrs. L. L. Stancill, working in cooperation with them.

Entertain Teachers.

Grimesland, Oct. 16.—On Tuesday evening Miss Beatrice Cherry delightfully entertained the faculty of the Grimesland school and a few invited friends at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Spiggle. The entire lower floor was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, jack-o-lanterns, and candles—suggestions of Halloween.

Bridge was played at four tables. High score for the ladies was won by Miss Rosie Worthington; for the gentlemen, Mr. Carl Barefoot; floating prize to Miss Clarine Duke and consolation to Miss M. Murray.

Iced drinks and nuts were served throughout the evening. At the conclusion of the fine progressions molded pumpkins of ice cream with fancy cakes and hot coffee were served.

Additional guests present were Dr. and Mrs. Spiggle, Mrs. Cecil Tucker and Mr. Grady Davis of Conway, N. C.

WOULD ADJUST PROFIT TAXES

Joseph Kennedy Opposed to Wishes of Administration

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 16.—(AP)—One of President Roosevelt's principal financial consultants was on record anew today for adjustment of the federal capital gains in undistributed corporation profits taxes.

Joseph Kennedy, Maritime Commission chairman and former Securities and Exchange Commission head, told newspapermen late yesterday he still disagreed with the administration on these levies and expressed the belief they could be changed so as to produce about the same revenue as now and encourage business to expand.

Supreme Court justices met in the meantime at Washington to decide whether to pass on litigation involving the right of the Securities Commission to subpoena telegrams.

This case produced speculation over whether Justice Black would participate and, if so, whether attorneys would have grounds for challenging the decision.

Other Washington developments: Representative Ramspeck of Georgia, representing Democrat on the House labor committee, proposed to shift some of the opposition from the path of the wage-hour legislation by confining it to "chiselers."

Ramspeck said he was preparing an amendment to accomplish that objective.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has accepted a renewal of his commission in the American Army Air Corps Reserve.

Run-down heels are a mark of carelessness.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The stock market's traders stepped back into the buying arena in today's market and many issues recovered fractions to two or more points of their recent sharp losses before tripping over late selling. Activity picked up substantially, with the ticker tape occasionally speeding its recording machinery. Offerings in volume hit the list in the concluding half hour and extreme gains were reduced or cancelled in numerous cases. Transfers approximated 1,300,000 shares. Bonds inclined to selective improvement.

RESIGNATION OF ROLL CALL

resignation, declaring that the policy of the national organization in not joining in Community Chests was inconsistent with their own and they felt the only conscientious thing for them to do was to retire.

The board, as a whole, was of the opinion it would be better for the Red Cross Roll Call to be included in the chest, but since this was impossible this year, the majority voted to conduct the Roll Call separately. W. A. Darden, vice chairman, took the lead favoring conducting the Roll Call. He explained that he hoped it could be arranged so the Red Cross could be included in the Chest next year, but added he felt the Board had an obligation to those people who wanted to support the Red Cross and also to the organization itself.

A motion was made by Rev. Mr. Ryan that no Roll Call be held this year, but it was defeated and a motion by A. B. Ellington, treasurer, that the Call be held with J. Nat Harrison as chairman, was carried with Rev. Mr. Ryan casting the only dissenting vote. Mr. Brown being presiding officer did not vote. Mr. Harrison announced that he already was working on plans to conduct the Roll Call and revealed that he hoped to complete the membership drive in one day. The election of a new chairman to succeed Mr. Brown was deferred until a later date.

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Oct. 16.—All of you who believe that state employes never have anything to do except park their feet on desks and draw their salaries, harken to this one.

Mrs. Edna J. Almand, chief assistant to Cullay Moore, state liquor board chairman, is now engaged in preparing her detailed—yes, very detailed—report of liquor sales in North Carolina for the month of September.

All she has to do is go over the monthly recapitulated sales reports from 26 counties in which there are liquor stores, take therefrom the number of pints, quarts or what have you of each and every brand of liquor sold in each and every county, list these quantities under the appropriate item on her report, add them all up at the end so that her final report will show exactly the quantity of Old Pop-skull and every other single brand of liquor sold in North Carolina during the month.

Considering that there are 475 items sold in the state, with each county averaging about 250 items, it is easy to see that Mrs. Almand has approximately 6,750 entries to make on her report, not taking into account the fact she has to add up each separately.

Revocation of automobile driver's licenses during the week reached 158, making North Carolina's total to date 13,189.

This bureau still has its ears open for the protests it thought would surely follow publication of the fact that a real "moonshine" still was operated at Tryon for the entertainment and refreshment of the State's travel tour guests.

Reports that Frank Hancock hastened to Shelby immediately after announcement of his senatorial candidacy in order to solicit support of the "Shelby Dynasts" are more than a Shelby rebutted by the fact that none of the Dynasts were at home, and Frank knew it.

At the moment of the Hancock visit, Governor Hoey was in Raleigh, Former Governor Max Gardner was in Washington, and Odus Mull was attending the State Fair here.

Reverting for a moment to stills, spoken of a paragraph or two back, Franklin county ladies exhibited at the Fair here a number of novelties (pin trays, waiters, pans, etc) made from the copper cut-up stills.

Reports from Elizabeth City are that Superior Court Judge Walter Small, who suffered a paralytic stroke many months ago, hopes to

CAM MORRISON MAY SEEK POST

Sage of Sharon Considers Entering Senate Race

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Oct. 16.—Presented with the first real chance he has had to break prominently into the news since his rather humiliating defeat by Bob Reynolds in 1932, canny Cameron Morrison, the so-called Sage of Sharon, is making real publicity hay, and basking contentedly in the political spotlight.

Cam insists that, despite the announcement of Frank Hancock for the Reynolds senatorial seat, he hasn't yet determined whether or not he will cast his expensive chapeau into the ring, a bit of casting which would make it a triangular campaign.

Official Raleigh was vastly and genuinely surprised by the Hancock announcement, at least by its timing, but that surprise is as nothing compared with the astonishment and amazement which would greet a formal Morrison plunge into the senatorial swimming pool.

His wooing of the senate siren is thought even less serious than the honeyed words poured by the most gifted gigolo into the ears of a paying partner.

To bein with, reports that Mr. Morrison did not "pay off" his workers in the 1932 race persistently bob up even in casual conversation here.

Instances are cited in which supporters in the Mecklenburg man spent large sums out of their own pockets upon specific or broadly implied promise of reimbursement, only to find themselves out just exactly what they spent.

Then, too, Mr. Morrison is looked upon as probably the most deflated, debunked and defunct candidate imaginable.

This correspondent has asked at least a score supposed well-versed political personages about Cam's chance and has learned that all rate them as zero.

TRAMP STEAMSHIPS BRINGING BIG MONEY

London (AP)—Profits of from 50 to more than 200 per cent on original purchase prices are being made through the sale of tramp steamers.

The rise in freight rates caused by developments in the Mediterranean and Far East and the seasonal demand for tonnage to move grain have created a great demand for tramps.

Some owners are selling newly-built steamers at prices far in excess of their original cost. Many owners expect to be able to repurchase tonnage when prices seek a lower level.

Washington.—In forming your help if necessary. The strike ended.

picture of the labor situation in America, it might be well to consider the following developments.

One of the fields of labor John L. Lewis set out to organize was federal employment. Barely had the movement started when the question was put to President Roosevelt as to how far it would go. The President was frank. He said federal employes could organize for collective bargaining, to present jointly their appeal for adjustment of wages and hours, but that's about as far as they could go. Positively they could not strike. A strike against the government was unthinkable.

Kennedy Cracks Down

Mayor LaGuardia of New York has support from several of labor's organizations in his current campaign for re-election. Yet when a dispute arose between employees and the management of a major New York transit system, LaGuardia spoke out a warning that a strike would not be permitted to tie up the city utility system.

Next was the case of the government owned freighter Algic. The ship put into Montevideo, Uruguay, only to discover that dock workers were on strike. Promptly the American crew of the Algic announced it would refuse to handle cargo to be delivered to strike-breaking Uruguay dock workers.

The ship captain cabled to Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the maritime commission, for instructions. Now Kennedy was looked upon as somewhat of a liberal. But for him there was no dilly-dallying with rights of seamen in a strike at sea. He directed the captain to arrest those who refused to work, calling local authorities to

The Two Colonels.

It is time to tell about Col. Irvin Schimmelpennig, born in Utah, and Col. Haig Skekerjian, born in Asiatic Turkey. Where they were born has nothing to do with it, but we thought perhaps you'd like to know.

Together they were driving homeward from a West Pointers' dinner in Washington when their car careened across the sidewalk, sideswiped a lamp post and startled the daylight out of a policeman.

He came bounding over to the car as they stopped to look over the damage. Nothing was hurt but a fender and the policeman's dignity.

Colonel Schimmelpennig was the driver. The policeman pulled out his ticket book and snapped: "What's your name?"

"Schimmelpennig."

"Spell it."

"S-c-h-m-m—"

"Lay off that. This is the law shekerjian. Hey you," pointing to Shekerjian.

"Shekerjian."

"Spell it."

"S-c-h-e-k—"

The utterly indignant policeman slammed shut his note book, jammed it in his pocket.

"Don't you guys try to fool with me. Get out of here before I run you in."

TREATING ST. VITUS' DANCE
 Since the symptoms of St. Vitus' dance, as witnessed in the jerky, irregular and involuntary movements of the sufferer indicate that his nervous system is being subjected to irritation, it is logical for treatment to consist mainly in physical and mental rest, fortified by good nutrition and sedatives.
 For many years, therefore, the child suffering from St. Vitus' dance has been treated by "absolute rest," has been shielded against irritations and stimulations and has been medicated with sedatives.
 This treatment has yielded good results in a large percentage of cases. But as must be apparent, it is rather trying. It is no easy matter to keep a child in bed for weeks or months at a stretch and to minister to its numerous wants.
 Many scientists have therefore sought other treatments.
 Fever therapy having yielded such excellent results in other infectious conditions was tried on St. Vitus' dance for the first time in 1923. A that time fever was induced principally through the injection of foreign proteins (milk or typhoid fever vaccine) into the body of the sufferer. Later on when the Kettering fever inducing machine was developed, this was substituted for the earlier methods.
 From reports recently issued it appears that the fever treatment yields encouraging results. The Fever Therapy Department of the University of California Psychopathic Hospital presents the history of 45 cases of St. Vitus' dance treated during the past two years with the Kettering machine. Of these 45 patients 37 recovered and eight were marked improved. The average duration of treatment was a little more than 22 days, severe cases taking 39 days and mild cases eight days. Among these 45 patients 14 were suffering from severe forms of St. Vitus' dance, 29

Churches To Hold "Childhood Week"

Aim Of This Year's Program To Focus Attention Upon Relation Of Church To Youths

Next week will be observed in this city as "Childhood and Youth Week" as a part of the national observance. The annual observance of the week is set for the third week in October and this year the observance will emphasize "The Church in the Life of the Child."

The observance of Childhood and Youth Week is a time when parents and all other adults in the church have an opportunity to consider anew their responsibility to growing life in the home, in the church, and in the community.

The emphasis for this year's observance is intended to focus attention upon the place the church has or can have in the life of children and young people.

THE CHARACTERS
 Nina—a nice girl with flaxen hair, has fallen in love with her stepfather.
 Richard—the charming, well-tailored stepfather, pays considerable attention to Nina.
 Honey—Nina's gay, plump, youthful mother, is crazy about her new husband.
 David—a young auto salesman, crashed a party, met Nina and lost his heart.
 Cordelia—is Nina's closest friend.

Chapter 11 "YOU'RE BAD FOR ME"

Richard made cocktails, as a chemist mixes a formula... slowly, and with deliberation. They might not have been so very much better than an expertly thrown together drink, but it created an atmosphere.
 "There," he said at last, lifting his glass of amber fluid to the light. "A votre santé... ma belle."
 He looked at her steadily as he drank.
 "You know, Nina," he came and sat beside her on one of the love-seats, "you shouldn't send young men out into the night with heaven in their eyes... unless..."
 "Unless what?"
 "Unless you mean what you say. Why is that chap good for you, Nina? You don't want him."
 She flushed.
 "So! You were listening."
 "I... overheard. Why," he persisted, "is he good for you?"
 "Why," she countered, "don't you think I want him?"
 He smiled slowly. "Well, I don't think I'll tell you why, just yet, but I'm—quite—certain, my dear. Now, will you answer my question?"
 Nina put down her glass, because it was shaking.
 "He's sort of... oh, I don't know, natural and wholesome. I suppose you'd call it... and just mad enough to be entertaining."
 Richard was still smiling as he said: "You know, Nina—I think I could be—most awfully—good for you, too."
 She said, quickly, softly: "You're bad for me," and could have bitten her tongue.
 He took her hand, and traced with his finger, a little blue vein at her wrist, to where it disappeared up under the lace cuff.
 He didn't say anything... which was much worse than if he'd said a lot. He chose to leave her little, impulsive remark, sizzling in the air, between them. The longer they kept silent, the larger it grew.
 "I'll have another," said Nina at last, just to say—something. But when he brought her a fresh drink she couldn't touch it.
 He began to talk then, pointedly of other things... the way people do, when there is something to be covered up. It didn't occur to her, that he might be doing it on purpose... only that he was trying to help her out.
 The room was full of it. Even the old English clock in the corner ticked it out relentlessly: "You're bad for me. You're bad for me." Nina felt that it might just as well have spilled the whole works: "You're bad for me because I love you, and I shouldn't."
 Where were her wits? She felt that if she couldn't think of some way to un-say it, she would go mad.
 When Honey came in, a few minutes later, she had an idea.
 "Hello, angel. You look divine... I was just telling your husband here that he's bad for me. I'd already had my share of cocktails, and he comes along and forces more on me."
 But when she glanced at Richard, she remembered the old adage about letting well enough alone. He was looking frightfully amused.
 He said: "Well, now, that rather takes the wind out of my sails! You see, I was holding her hand, Honey, and I thought she meant that."
 He went out to finish dressing.

"Button My Shirt?"

"Oh, Nina darling!"
 "Coming, Honey..."
 Honey began giving her directions before Nina was half-way down the stairs from her room on the third floor.
 "Fasten these back garters, will you, like a lamb? I can hardly breathe, let alone bend, in this new girdle... Marie has disappeared, as usual, just when I need her."
 Honey was standing, a plump, pink cherub, in the middle of her ornate room.
 "And, darling, open the wall safe, will you? I never can think of the combination when I'm in a hurry

... ah, and that reminds me, hand me my combination, will you, Nina? that white one. Richard will be out of his dressing room in a minute. He has no idea how fat I really am, and I don't want him to."
 "Darling, you're adorable. Just right."
 "And be an angel and powder my back..."
 "Surely. What dress are you wearing?"
 Richard called out from his dressing room.
 "That you, Nina?"
 Instinctively, she drew her negligee closer about her.
 "Uh-hmm. Want something?"
 "Yes. Button this stiff shirt up the back for me, will you? ... I say, Honey, let's sack Marie and hire Nina. That Frenchwoman's fingers are always cold."
 Nina knocked on his door and went in... leaving it open.
 "How do you know? Does she dress you every evening too?"
 He was stading before a long mirror, chin up, tying his white tie; but when she came in, in her trailing chiffon, he looked at her the glass, and let his hands drop.
 Somehow, with saking fingers, she managed to fasten the two buttons at the back.
 He smelled of freshly laundered linen, and an expensive soap, and eau-de-Cologne or powder or something he had patted on to his cheeks.
 When she had finished, he swung around and took her two hands in his.
 "Than you... sweet thing," he said softly, and pressed her palms against his face, for a moment. Over his shoulder, in the mirror, Nina could see her mother putting things into her evening bag.
 "My powder, my lipstick, my hankie... there!"
 "To Be Alone With You"
 "Going, Nina? Hold on a second, will you, while I get my coat? Honey, dear, I want to leave that Francoise .12 gauge of mine down at Abercrombie's. The forearm needs repairing... Nina can drop me off."
 "I'm only going to Bergdorf's on 57th street..."
 "Then I'll drop you... By sweet-heart."
 Richard stepped over to Honey and whispered a little endearing something that brought the quick color to her cheeks.
 Outside, in the taxi, he drew Nina's arm through his.
 "Well, now perhaps you'll explain why you've been avoiding me lately. Things have come to a pretty pass, when I have to invent an errand to be alone with you!"
 That was right... where was the gun he was going to have repaired?
 Nina felt first hot and then cold.
 "You know, Honey, Nina's slacking up in her duties as a daughter. She hasn't shown up for breakfast for the last two mornings. I'm being neglected."
 "Nina, darling, haven't you felt well?"
 "Just lazy, I guess."
 "Well, I warn you, child, if you don't show up tomorrow, I'll bring my coffee up to your room. Honey sleeps like a lazy rabbit and I refuse to eat alone."
 "Richard!"
 "I warned you, didn't I? Move your feet over. Do you object if people sit on the foot of your bed?"
 David said: You look tired, beautiful Nina. Why?"
 "I don't know."
 "I do. You don't know enough poor young men, who can't afford to keep you out late of nights."
 "Is that it?"
 "Um-m-m. You'd better let me take charge."
 They were in the comfortable loge chairs at the Capitol theater, and he would have her know it was a very—large—evening.
 It was fun doing simple, slightly prosaic things with David. He never let them seem too simple... or at all prosaic, really. They walked in the park, once or twice with the bounding Button, in the late afternoons; and once he took her back for what he called, a Blue Blazer, in his "apartment" just off Park.
 The "apartment" was a poorly disguised bed-sitting room, and "just off Park" meant Lexington. Nina supposed, vaguely, that she shouldn't have gone, and she was quite sure that she would again, if he asked her.
 She clung, rather feverishly, these days to his friendship; and the fact that it wasn't friendship at all on his part any longer, failed to trouble her. She had too much else on her mind.

 When she was with David, she was in a different world. Cordelia had just met him the night of her Montmartre party. Richard had just seen him going out the door. No-body else knew that he existed. She was glad. She wanted to keep him separate—not connected in the faintest way with a world that had her stepfather in it.

THIMBLE THEATRE "FILIAL PERSUASION" By SEGAR

HIGHS LOSE TO HALIFAX TEAM

Defeated by Roanoke Rapids, 6-0, For First Loss

Roanoke Rapids high school's Yellow Jackets stung Greenville High School's Phantoms at Roanoke Rapids yesterday afternoon, 6-0, to hand the locals their first defeat of the season.

The Yellow Jackets scored the only touchdown of the game in the final play of the first half. Burton, quarterback, passed to Benne for 15 yards on the 15 yard line. Burton tossed another pass to Byrd who was downed on the 3-yard line. Mills then scored the touchdown on a spinner through the center of the line.

Roanoke Rapids kept the Phantoms in hot water for the first three quarters, threatening often, but the Phantoms managed to hold them off. It was not until the final quarter that the Greens came to life and with Parrish passing to Roberts and Hodges, the Phantoms got as far as the 28-yard line.

The Yellow Jackets made eight first down and completed seven out of 15 passes. The Phantoms collected six first downs and completed six out of 10 passes.

The brilliant all-around play of Hubert Roberts, end, was the highlight of the Greens. He was a power on defense and snagged several aerials. Parrish showed some fine running to lead the offensive.

For Roanoke Rapids Pope and Brown were the defensive stars, while Burton, Shell and Mills were outstanding among the backs.

The lineup:
Greenville—ends, Roberts and Hodges; tackles, Vincent and Kittrell; guards, Moyer and Tucker; center, Williams; backs, Parrish, Clark, Henderson and Harris. Subs, Nobles, Tyndall and Hardy.

Roanoke Rapids—ends, Byrd and Wright; tackles, Pope and Dickens; guards, Batts and Vincent; center, Brown; backs, Burton, Mills, Shell and Bennett.

THIRTY DIE IN MINE EXPLOSION

More than 500 persons, friends and relatives and sightseers, looked on. The work of bringing the bodies from the mine was handicapped by presence of coal gas and lack of oxygen. A crew from the U. S. Bureau of Mines, equipped with masks, led the rescue workers to the scene of the tragedy.

GOAL OF CHEST NOW ASSURED

our people for an intelligent substitute for the unsatisfactory method of individual solicitation by these social agencies.

The directors of the Greenville Community Chest declared they feel that they have offered to the people of Greenville a social service which, among other values, has made possible at least two values of unquestioned worth:

"The method and means by which our straggling and independent efforts may be coordinated in one supreme effort; and the means by which our citizens may be protected from numerous, and at times, unworthy appeals for support. Whether or not these values are to be conserved will now depend upon the people of Greenville. This better way has been provided and the results have demonstrated that such coordination of social work is both possible and profitable. Whether this initial effort shall continue as an expanding social service rests now with the people of our community. If they insist upon its continuance it will grow both in service and efficiency. If they allow a continuance of the older methods the Community Chest will die. The answer is with us."

BAD COURT DAY ON WITNESSES

Plaintiff Ends Up Under $200 Bond Each in Two Cases

Wilbur Dixon, Negro, got himself in right much trouble when he swore out a warrant charging Otis Watson, also a negro, forced him to hand back $15 he claimed he won from Watson in a "skin game". Brought to trial in City court this morning, Watson admitted he got his $15 back, but he and other witnesses declared that Dixon was operating a gambling and liquor-selling house and Mayor M. K. Blount ordered warrants containing these charges be sworn out against the original plaintiff. Dixon was bound over to County court under bonds of $200 each on the two charges. Watson was ordered held under bond of $200 for his appearance on charges of gambling.

Another prosecuting witness also met with similar fate, but not quite so harsh. Luella Faircloth, who swore out a warrant charging Robert Jones with larceny, was taxed with the costs of court.

Several defendants were convicted of public drunkenness. Roney Jones was convicted of the charge and sent to the roads for 30 days; Adrian Smith convicted on a similar count, was given a term of the same length; W. R. Robbins also was given a 30-day sentence upon conviction of the charge and Robert Cannon was taxed with the costs on a similar count, as was J. A. Blanford. John Mitchell, Negro, was fined $5 and taxed with the costs for public drunkenness.

Robert Coggins paid the cost on a charge of driving to the left of the center of the road and Joe Moore was bound over to County court, under bond of $100 on a charge of driving careless and reckless.

MUCH SEAFOOD THREE KILLED AT SOUTHPORT NEAR DURHAM

Brunswick Gets Lead Over Other Coastal Counties

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, October 16.—Brunswick county is producing more seafood at the present time than any other North Carolina county, consisting principally of spots and shrimp. W. B. Keziah, executive secretary of the Southport Civil Club, has told the Department of Conservation and Development after checking the seafood production there during recent weeks.

One fishery there last week reported a catch of 35,000 pounds of spots in one day while other fisheries reported large catches of shrimp, while there were at least 15 shore fisheries in the county which were not included in the survey.

The shipping ships on file in eight packing houses included in the survey showed that 129,100 lbs. of dressed and iced shrimp from three days take and that 28,400 lbs. of dressed and iced fish were shipped from Southport to Baltimore, New York and Philadelphia last week, an average of 52,500 pounds per day for the period covered, Mr. Keziah said. He estimates that 300 tons of seafoods were shipped from Southport into other states during the week the survey was made.

Southport is conceded to be the seat of the shrimp trawling business on the North Carolina coast and about 130 shrimp trawlers are active there now. Last week all of these boats but about 20 a day were active. These boats were held in either by breakdowns, need for repairing nets or by bad weather. Of the boats which went out to fish for shrimp, about five a day had to be towed in by the Oak Island Coast Guard station, due to breakdowns and engine failures.

If catches of fish and shrimp continue to hold up during the next few weeks as they have so far this season, Southport should have no difficulty in maintaining its claim to being the shrimp and seafood capital of the state. Mr. Keziah believes.

Of 4,631 persons lynched in the United States from 1882 to 1935, inclusive, the Tuskegee Institute reports, 1,311 were white and 3,320 negro.

Two Highway Accidents Exact Three Lives in County

Harvey Moore, 15, of Timberlake and Brodie Duke, 38, of near Rougemont, both Person county residents, were fatally injured when a crowded truck from the state fair at Raleigh collided with a coal truck near Bahama in northern Durham county.

Fred Day, 15, another member of the party, was critically injured. His condition was described by Watts hospital attendants here this morning as very poor. A number of others were shaken up and required minor injuries.

Eugene Knott, driver of the outgoing truck, and B. C. Vaughan, of Rougemont, driver of the coal truck are at liberty under bond of $1,000 each pending official investigation.

Spartanburg Journal Praises 'Lost Horizon'

The following editorial was clipped from Spartanburg (S. C.) Journal: "James Hilton, a young Englishman, in 'The Lost Horizon' gives the reading public one of the best examples of fiction in an age in which modern novels are murky with sex and its action and reaction—authors seeming to take it for granted that sex stuff must be dished out to sell a book, however much merit and excellence otherwise its pages contain. In this very brief, but finished product—a rare study in adventure and mysticism, Author Hilton pitches his narrative in a land of idealignoble strife—the land of the blue moon mountain where can be found men, women and children whose ruling passion is not to exploit, despoil or take advantage of their fellows. There the people are immersed and absorbed with life itself, taking time to really live, and keeping far and apart from the selfishness, avarice and cupidity that breed envy and jealousy and result in strife and dissension, as well as untold suffering of the under-privileged. The filming of Hilton's 'Lost Horizon' is a triumph of the screen."

Warning that democracy may die in America "in our generation," Dr. Glenn Frank recently denounced before the nation's bankers concentration of power in Washington. "Men who wear the robes of liberalism plan more and more to seek to set class against class," he said.

Back to the stage will go Mrs. Jack Dempsey, the former Hannah Williams, who has not stepped out before floodlights since she sang "Cheerful Little Earful." Her current vehicle will be a musical comedy entitled, "Hooray for What!" Her last appearance was before "Marriage."

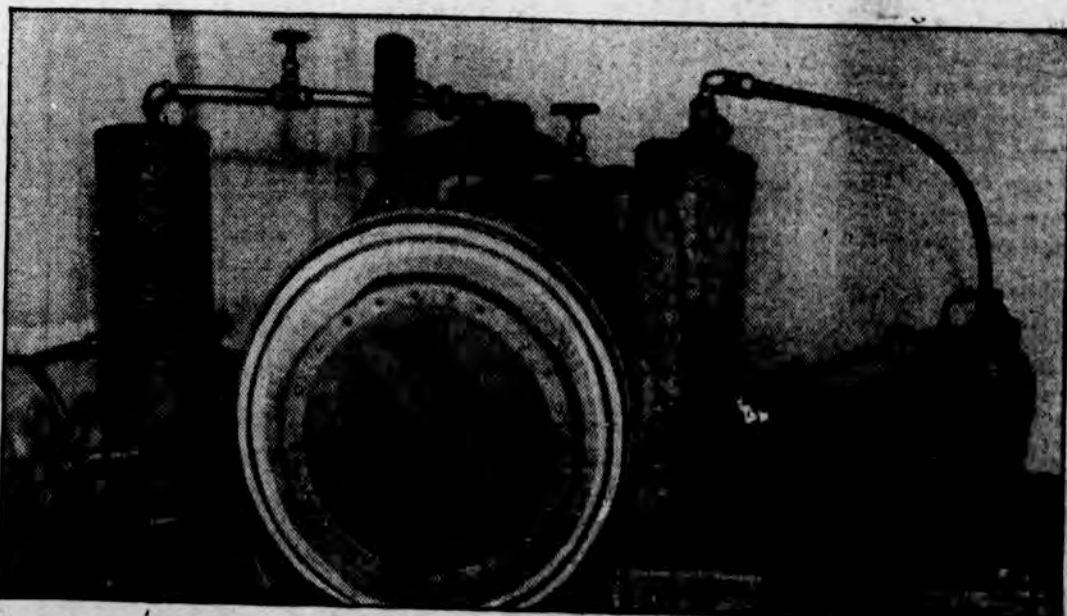

TROY'S GREATEST WARHORSE in many years in the opinion of experts is Ambrose Schindler, triple threat quarterback of U. S. C. Responsible in large measure for Southern California's victory over Ohio State, he will meet his greatest test against mighty California on October 23.
