King George Gives Pledge Of Government To Support Efforts To Restore Peace

ADDRESS MADE IN PARLIAMENT

Monarch Takes Note of Two World Conflicts in Opening His First Parliament and Closes Speech With Expressed Hope Deliberations May Advance Peace Over World

London, Oct. 26.—(AP)—King George VI, an earnest figure in the splendid trappings of Britain's ancient majesty, pledged his government today to attempt to restore peace to China and Spain.

At the same time the monarch promised air raid protection for all England and forecast more help for England's needy families.

The monarch read slowly and hesitatingly the prepared text of his speech. Frequent pauses, some of them 10 seconds in duration, broke the sentences and some words were lost entirely to the gallery—apparently because of a speech impediment which has troubled the King for a number of years.

George opened his first parliament from the throne this in the somber House of Lords with Queen Elizabeth in a chair of state at his side—and concluded with this unusual benediction: "I pray that under the blessing of Almighty God the outcome of your deliberations may advance the happiness and well being of my people and the peace of the world."

Usually the King merely invokes a divine blessing on parliament's "labors." Otherwise, however, the speech delivered to the assembled members of parliament in the musty grandeur of the House of Lords hewed to the usual formula.

It began with: "My relations with foreign powers continue to be friendly."

It told the legislators the monarch had invited Belgium's King Leopold to visit him in November and Rumania's King Carol next spring.

Then it dealt with the spectacle of war on two continents. "My ministers have toiled with growing concern the continuance of conflict in Spain. It is their aim to do everything which lies in their power to assist toward restoration of peace among the Spanish people. x x x"

The wick was flooded and as the young girl lit the flame spread into adjoining rooms. The fire fighters, however, brought the blaze under control shortly after arriving. Damage was caused by fire, smoke and water. Chief Gardner said no insurance was carried either on the house or furniture.

LEADERS TALK ANOTHER BILL STOCK MARKET IS UNCOVERED

Statement May Be Forthcoming By Douglas

Chicago, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The Securities Commission today announced that the commission "may have" something to say "before long" on the stock market situation.

He made the statement answering a newsman's question soon after the session of President Roosevelt at the latter's family estate here.

Douglas said, however, he did not discuss with the president the matter of the commission issuing such a statement.

Joseph Kennedy, former securities commission chairman, and now maritime commission chairman, was another caller.

Both Douglas and Kennedy said they had discussed general business conditions with Mr. Roosevelt and Douglas added he talked with the President about the stock market situation in a "very general way."

They had separate appointments with the chief executive.

"Nothing, right now," he replied. "We may have something before (Continued on page six)

Residence In City Damaged By Blaze Early Last Night

Home of Mrs. Dave Johnson Suffers Loss Estimated by Chief Gardner at $700 to $800.

Fire which started in the kitchen of the home of Dave Johnson at the corner of Jarvis and Second streets shortly after 6 o'clock last night caused damage estimated by Fire Chief George Gardner at between $700 and $800.

Mr. Johnson is out of the city and Mrs. Johnson was severely knocked down the street visiting when the fire broke out. The blaze, which started from the oil stove, was discovered by one of the Johnson children, who ran down the street to inform Mrs. Johnson. Before firemen could arrive the fire had spread into adjoining rooms. The fire fighters, however, brought the blaze under control shortly after arriving. Damage was caused by fire, smoke and water. Chief Gardner said no insurance was carried either on the house or furniture.

Restaurant Operator Victim Of Accident

Goldensboro, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Ellis Joseph, 27, a Warsaw cafe operator, died today in a hospital here after suffering injuries in an auto accident last Friday night.

Police Chief R. M. Byrd of Faison, where the accident occurred, said Russell Best waived a preliminary hearing before magistrate J. L. Oates and was placed under a $3,000 bond for appearance at the November term of Duplin superior court. Byrd said Best was the driver of the car that collided with Joseph's vehicle at a crossing at Faison.

Uncertain What Machine Will Do In Senate Race

By HENRY AVERILL Raleigh, Oct. 26.—In an speculation over and prognosticating about the coming Reynolds-Hancock senatorial duel no single factor is receiving more attention than the attitude of the so-called state "machine," often termed the Gardner machine.

On all sides the question is being propounded: "What is the administration (meaning the state powers that be) going to do? Is it going to support Hancock to the limit, or is it more or less going to park on the sidelines and take the show without active participation?"

CIO PROPOSES AGREEMENT IN LABOR STRIFE

Three Point Plan Submitted to A. F. of L. Group

WOULD PROHIBIT UNIONS BY CRAFT

Establishment of Autonomous Department Within Federation Ranks Provided

Washington, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The CIO submitted a three-point peace plan today to the American Federation of Labor at their joint peace conference.

The proposal called for establishment of an "autonomous" department with the American Federation of Labor to include industrial unions in the mass production, marine, public utilities service and basic fabricating industries.

Workers in these industries would be organized only on an industrial basis, as opposed to the traditional craft union organization policy of the American Federation of Labor.

The proposal also called for a national convention of all American Federation of Labor and CIO unions to ratify the agreement and to work out "necessary rules and regulations to effectuate" it.

All the national and local unions now affiliated with the CIO would be affiliated with the new American Federation of Labor department under the plan.

These unions would adopt their own departmental constitutions and elect their own officers.

The department, to be known as the CIO, would have complete authority in handling the organization of workers in the industries named.

The CIO submitted its proposal at the start of the third session of the conference after agreeing to deal with the American Federation of Labor's three-man peace committee, headed by George Harrison, president of the railway clerks.

Durham Cops Lead In Legal Whiskey Sales For Month

Dare Trails Behind With Monthly Sales About in Line With Those of One Day in Durham

Raleigh, Oct. 26.—Durham county ABC stores sell approximately 5,000 bottles of liquor each day they are open; while down in Dare the ABC stores dispose of just about the same number of bottles in a month as Durham does in a day.

Durham leads the state; Dare comes up the rear. All comparisons and figures are based, of course, only on data from those counties where liquor is legally sold. There is no known formula by which liquor sales in Mecklenburg county, for instance, can be computed. Even Einstein's theory of relativity proves useless there.

Getting around to the figures, the state Liquor Board's report shows that in September Durham ABC stores missed selling an even hundred thousand bottle of liquor by just 13 bottles, simple arithmetic, therefore, putting the total at 59,987, or an average of slightly less than 3,846 bottles each week day.

In Dare September sales were 3,299, almost exactly the same as Durhams' daily sales.

Value of the liquor sold in Durham was $33,994.60, in Dare $3,662.00.

In the state total sales in September reached $599,684.36.

The exact quantity of liquor sold at the stores cannot be computed as not all the bottles were the same size and there is no breakdown of the bottle figures into pints, quarts, etc., available.

In the ABC stores, however, none of the bottle are of more than quart capacity and none of less than pint. Assuming the same number of pints as quarts in the Durham figures, it appears that approximately 18,750 gallons were sold in September.

Officials Study Case Of Convicted Killer

Raleigh, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Governor Hoy and Parole Commissioner Edwin Gill today studied the case of Alfred Puckett, who is sentenced to be executed Friday for murder in Richmond county.

Puckett was convicted in July, 1936, of the killing of Roy Rhyme. He has received several reprieves to enable Gill to make a thorough investigation.

The grant is a small wild goose. It exists along the eastern coasts of North America and in many countries in Europe.

CLUB HEARS OF SECURITY ACT

W. B. Rodman, Of Washington, Rotary Club Speaker

"The Social Security registration is so stupendous in its ramifications as to be nearly incomprehensible," said W. B. Rodman of Washington, last night at the regular weekly dinner meeting of the Greenville Rotary Club.

He disclaimed posing as an expert, but admitted to a great deal of study of the Social Security legislation. Mr. Rodman served in the North Carolina legislative special session which passed the North Carolina Unemployment Act.

The speaker defined social security as being generally understood to be the Act of eleven parts passed by the United States Congress on August 14, 1935, which Act included some items for which the Federal government was already making grants and additional pensions covering old-age benefits, grants to the blind, grants for unemployment, etc.

He outlined the amount of payments and who, how and when benefits would be received and how the State Unemployment Compensation laws operate under the advantages of a provision in the Federal law granted to cooperating states which funds otherwise would go into the general fund of the U. S. Government.

The speaker took the child labor laws of North Carolina to task for not being better adapted to all phases in North Carolina and he accounted such lack of comprehension to the fact that the Act was drawn by labor unions of industrial communities.

"The government will have difficulty in keeping proper or satisfactory records. However keeping the records causes neither state nor federal government any financial outlay insofar as Old Age Pensions are concerned, because the money for such a purpose is simply used to buy annuity insurance from insurance companies.

"I can't see why the laws do not govern agricultural and domestic workers. I apprehend a change as to agricultural and domestic labor," he declared in closing.

Bruce Eure of Ayden was a visiting Rotarian. Other guests were Zeno Evans of Washington; J. N. Moore of Washington; D. C. and Frank E. Brooks, Karl Pace, chairman of the Community Service committee presented the program for the evening, T. M. Grant, president of the club, presided.

REICH OFFICIAL RESIGNS POST

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht Quits as Minister Of Economics

Berlin, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The resignation of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German economic minister, was accepted today by Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler.

Dr. Schacht said: "My resignation took effect yesterday. I shall remain as president of the Reichsbank for the time being."

The Reichsbank, Reich chancellor, propaganda minister, all, pro-Prussian state minister, all, pressed to have no knowledge of the acceptance of the resignation.

But Schacht himself, at a farewell party for Douglas Jenkins, American consul general, who is leaving shortly for London, admitted frankly he was out.

Sunday in London virtually starts at 1 p. m. Saturday. Most of the store and offices close then and the city takes on a funeral air.

Uncover Historical Data In Cemeteries Of State

Raleigh, Oct. 26.—Data collected by recorded, and information on from nearly 100,000 tombstones in North Carolina are expected to be of outstanding interest and assistance to genealogists and to seekers after historical information about the state's earlier inhabitants.

The cemetery census, as it may be called, is being pushed by the Work's Progress Administration's Historical Records Survey under Dan Lacy, state director whose office is in Raleigh.

Mr. Lacy reports that this project has received unusual cooperation from local authorities and people everywhere in the state and that it has been the subject of more inquiries for information than any other WPA project within his knowledge.

The records obtained by the census will be an important addition to those vital statistics now available through the State Department of Health. Since 1913 all births and deaths have been required to

Total of 1,894,692 Lbs. Tobacco Sold Here in One Day

Offerings on the Greenville tobacco market established a new high yesterday, the third time the previous record has been broken this season.

Poundage totaling 1,894,692 was offered by farmers, who received $570,859.67 for their day's offerings. The daily average was figured at $30.13 per hundred pounds.

Yesterday's sales brought the general season's average up to $26.56. More than fifty million pounds of the golden weed have been sold during the 43 days the market has been in operation this year. The 50,879,126 pounds sold through yesterday brought farmers $13,511,019.59, an amount in excess of the total paid out during each of the entire season in 1935 and 1936.

New City Directory Being Published Here

Work has been started on the biennial city directory for Greenville by the Southern Directory company of Asheville, with Charles W. Miller directing the publication here.

Mr. Miller declared his company hoped to complete the directory by December 15. He said persons owning their own homes would be so designated as a new feature of the new directory. The Southern company published a Greenville directory two years ago.

JAPANESE EYE PEACE PARLEY

Spanish Insurgents Likewise Making Effort to Smash Government Forces in Quick Order as Foreign Powers Study Means of Bringing End to World Conflicts.

(By Associated Press)

Japanese victories on the Shanghai front and Spanish insurgent gains in the Aragon campaign today overshadowed diplomatic negotiations revolving around the wars in China and Spain.

The Japanese, closely watching preparations for the impending 9-power conference at Brussels, where an amicable settlement of the Chinese-Japanese conflict will be sought, left no doubt of their intentions to obtain their Chinese objectives with the least possible delay.

The Spanish insurgents stimulated by the capture of Gijon and the subsequent shifting of thousands of troops to the Aragon front, likewise were making every effort to smash Spanish government resistance before the neutral non-intervention committee powers arrive at some workable scheme of removing foreign volunteers from the Spanish armies.

After seven days of hard-fighting on the line running northwest of Shanghai, the Japanese army succeeded in taking Tazang, key Chinese position five miles from the city. Tazang was important to Chinese communication lines running to the Chapei in north Shanghai.

A Japanese flying column fought its way to the north side of the Shanghai-Nanking railway and was preparing to cut the tracks and strand Chinese troops defending Chapei.

In Spain the insurgents took some woods in the Sabinigo sector, after concentrating thousands of troops in the Zaragoza area north of Madrid for a drive into Catalonia. Government troops fell back to secondary lines of defense.

Non-intervention committee efforts to find a means of evacuating thousands of foreign fighters from the opposing Spanish armies were still ineffective, but the British were understood to be ready to offer a new compromise plan.

Insurance Agents Of District Meet At Local Library

Several Persons Prominent in Field Including State Commissioner Dan C. Boney, Attend

Representatives from the six counties in the Third District of the North Carolina Association of Insurance agents met in regular session here today and heard addresses by several prominent persons in the insurance field.

The session, held in Sheppard Memorial Library, was presided over by W. W. Lee, director in charge of the district. Counties in the district are Sampson, Duplin, Lenoir, Wayne, Greene and Pitt. Representatives here for the meeting numbered about 30.

Dan C. Boney, State Insurance commissioner, was present and made one of the principal talks. Other officials here included T. G. Redding of Greensboro, president of the State Association; Thomas O'Berry of Goldsboro, vice president of the association; S. G. Ostott of Raleigh, executive secretary of the association; and Landon Hill of Raleigh, manager of the North Carolina Inspection and Rating Bureau of the Insurance department.

New Holiness Minister Named for Greenville

Church assignments for the Pentecostal Holiness church, read at the annual conference in Goldsboro yesterday, reveal that Rev. D. J. Little will come to Greenville.

Rev. Mr. Little will succeed Rev. J. W. Berry, who will be transferred to Whiteville. Greenville is located in the New Bern district.

Each card contains the name of the deceased person, the date of birth, and death wherever those records were filed even prior to the WPA survey.

IN EXPLANATION

The WILMINGTON STAR has had several requests for information concerning the meaning of blanks mailed to policy-holders of insurance companies asking for proof of claim.

We are informed by the underwriters that two companies—Manufacturing Lumbermen's and Central Mutual Casualty are in the hands of receivers, and that being mutual companies, the policy-holders may be assessed. The reason for proof of claim is that any policyholder may file immediate claim for fifty per cent of his unexpired premium, such refund to be used in an offset against any assessment that may be levied.

These facts are reported for information only.—Advt.

Ser-pures by Mary Baker Eddy. If the Principle, rule, and demonstration of man's being are not in the least understood before what is termed death overtakes mortals, they will rise no higher spiritually in the scale of existence on account of that single experience, but will remain as material as before the transition still seeking happiness through a material, instead of through a spiritual sense of life, and from selfish and inferior motives. If the change called death destroyed the belief in sin, sickness and death, happiness would be won at the moment of dissolution, and forever permanent; but this is not so. Perfection is gained only by perfection. They who are unrighteous shall be unrighteous still, until in divine Science Christ, Truth, removes all ignorance and sin. (Page 290)

Washington Daybook

By Preston Greer

Washington—It is time to take your autumn trip around Washington before snow comes and messes everything up.

Considered commonplace here, the 500-foot trip up the Washington monument is one of the most impressive excursions in the city. Climb up if you like—900 steps. It is worse climbing down, and you cannot slide down the banisters. We have not climbed up or down, and don't intend to. The elevator does it faster, and is free.

Anybody can see the Titans and Rembrandts in the Smithsonian Institution, but if you want to impress your neighbors with your deeply endowed instinct for art, go out into Rock Creek cemetery in northeast Washington and visit the bronze statue by St. Gaudens at the grave of Henry Adams and his wife.

A Sad Experience.

The statue is almost smothered by pines and shrubbery. It is a bronze statue of a woman, deeply veiled. Local residents have nicknamed it "Grief." Adams ordered it, and tradition has it that it resembles his wife, who ruled over Washington society with a sad face and a quill pen in pre-Spanish war days. Viewed from a few feet away, it is depressingly melancholy.

After viewing it 10 minutes you become so depressed that you would snatch a pick-me-up at the very next tavern, except for a feeling that it would be almost sacrilegious to think of that.

The next stop is at the bronze tablet in a corner of the state department building. It is in such a prominent position that few will brave the conspicuous business of reading it. A policeman guarding a nearby door said weeks had passed without him seeing anybody stop by it.

Ode To A Horse

It says: "This tablet commemorates the services and sufferings of the 243-135 horses and mules employed by the American Expeditionary Forces overseas during the great World war which terminated November 11, 1918, and which resulted in the death of 68,682 of those animals. What they suffered is beyond word to describe.

A fitting tribute to their important services has been given by the commander in chief of the American Expeditionary Forces.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Take advantage of the next windy day to clean your chintz coverings and curtains. Hang them on your clothes line and brush them quickly with a clean whisk broom dipped frequently in warm water.

To protect the surrounding wall when cleaning electric light switch plates, cut a hole the size of the plate in a piece of cardboard or heavy paper and lay it on the wall so that just the plate is exposed.

Inch squares of peeled apples placed on wooden picks are tasty crisp additions for the appetizer tray.

When a liquid diet is called for: clear soups, strained fruit juices, milk, sherbets, plain gelatin mixtures, eg nog. Serve them in small amounts every two hours.

Use a long-handled, moderate-size bottle brush to clean bell springs. Dip the brush in hot water often. Such a brush gets into corners much more easily than the dish mop which ordinarily is used for this purpose.

Bright rough tweeds are very popular for reefer-style coats this year.

General John J. Pershing, who has written:

"The army horses and mules proved of inestimable value in prosecuting the war to a successful conclusion. They were found in all the theatres of preparation and operation, doing their silent but faithful work without faculty of hoping for any reward or compensation.

"This tablet is erected by friends of the horse and mule in the United States under the auspices of the American Red Star Animal Relief, a department of the American Humane Association."

And now to the Supreme Court where it is an easy enough matter to see Justice Hugo Black when the court is in session. During the first few days hundreds waited in the corridors in vain hope of a glimpse at the youngish justice and his black robe. The excitement over his seating has ebbed, at least among the spectators.

And by the way Mr. Landon, Charles Evans Hughes is chief justice of the United States; not, as you said in your speech the other night, chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

FORDHAM NEXT FOR TAR HEELS

Undefeated Elevens To Meet at Chapel Hill Saturday

Chapel Hill, Oct. 26.—Fordham's celebrated "Seven Blocks of Granite", rated one of the finest lines in the entire nation, will lock horns with an improved North Carolina forward wall here Saturday when these undefeated teams clash in an outstanding intersectional football attraction. The contest will be Carolina's hardest, to date, this season.

From end to end Fordham's Stone Wall will average 192 pounds—three more than the Tar Heel contingent.

Alexander "Wojie" Wojciechowicz, All-America center in 1936, is the strongest of the seven blocks of stone. Wojie roams all over the football field, gets more than his share of tackles, is well-nigh impregnable on pass defense, cuts down the interference most effectively, and is a blocker of the first water. Wojciechowicz, a senior, weighs 190 pounds.

Wojciechowicz is one of four seniors in this powerful line. The others are Captain Johnny Druze, 190, end; Al Barbarsky, 200, and Ed Franco, 195, tackles. Of this trio, Franco is the standout. When Fordham held Pittsburgh's Rose Bowl winners to a scoreless tie recently, Franco broke through repeatedly to smear the fast Panther backs for losses. He frequently spilled the sturdy Pat interference to make the tackle.

For three years Captain Johnny Druze has wrecked the Pittsburgh short side attack by his alert play. And he plays well in every game. Druze also excels in placekicking. He has seven conversions this season. Barbarsky is rated one of the East's best tackles. He charges and tackles particularly hard.

Juniors Henry Jacuski, 190, end, Mike Koehl, 190, and Jim Hayes, 185, guards, and other capable performers. Jacuski's speciality is pass-snagging. He caught the pass last year that led to St. Mary's defeat. He has scored one touchdown this year.

Koehl and Hayes are excellent guards. Although they are playing varsity ball for the first time, they have already demonstrated they are almost on a par with the more experienced seniors.

Sport Slants

Until Coach Ossie Solem went to Syracuse, and showed Marty Glickman how to use his speed, the baby-faced speedy was something short of sensational as a football player.

He was rated quite a footballer at James Madison high school, Brooklyn, N. Y. But about all he had Syracuse was speed. On those infrequent occasions when he got into the game, Glickman would grab the ball and scamper for the sidelines, usually for no gain.

This season he has been the sparkplug of the Syracuse attack. He played a major part in the stunning upset of the highly-favored Cornell eleven. He scored the two touchdowns that doomed the Big Red team.

The first period dash through the entire Cornell team, after catching a punt on Cornell's 44-yard line, upset the men from Ithaca. They never recovered. In the third period, after Syracuse had smashed through Cornell on a 45-yard drive, Glickman hurdled the line for the final yard and a score.

All that afternoon he was a snappy, shifty ball-carrier. No longer a one-direction runner, he turned on a dime, completely reversing his head and tearing off long gains.

Only an athlete with amazing speed could have completed one of the plays that gained 36 yards for the Orange. Glickman received the ball from center and passed it to his teammate, Wilmer Sidat-Sigh, who faded back to the sideline.

... carried the ball over the right side of the Cornell line. Glickman bobbed up and caught the ball. It was a dazzling play. Spectators wondered how it had even possible for him to get down the field so quickly. The answer, of course, was speed.

Other evidence of the good work performed by Coach Solem occurred in the St. Lawrence game. Glickman led Syracuse to a 40-0 triumph. He scored two touchdowns on long runs. But the impressive thing was that he tossed passes to set up the other scores. Not bad for a boy who had only speed—a year ago.

FORDHAM THINKS LOT OF WILBUR STANTON

Chapel Hill, Oct. 26.—As far as the Fordham football squad is concerned Wilbur Stanton, a junior, holds the spotlight for the time being. Stanton, whose speciality is placekicking, entered the Fordham-T.C.U. game with the score tied 6-6 in the waning moments of play. He stepped back calmly on a mud-soaked field and booted the oval squarely through the uprights for what turned out to be the winning margin of victory. Stanton will be matched against Tom Burnette, Tar Heel placekicking expert when Fordham and Carolina clash at Chapel Hill Saturday.

PACK INVADES EASTERN CAMP

N. C. State To Meet Boston College Saturday

Raleigh, Oct. 26.—The State College Wolfpack invades the East this week to meet Boston College in Boston on Saturday afternoon.

The Pack will go North again on November 13 when it meets Manhattan in New York.

According to Bob Warren, State backfield coach who scouted Boston in its game Saturday with Detroit, Boston has one of the best teams he has seen all year. He thought Boston better than Detroit although the Titans won, 14-0.

Warren said Detroit won on an intercepted pass and two passes it completed. It could not gain thru the powerful Boston line and was outwashed by the Eagles.

Warren was highly impressed with Boston's big backfield of Tony DiNatale, Al Horsfall, Fella Gintoff, and Tom Gurnea. It is a veteran backfield and will average 185 lbs. to the man.

The Boston line will average 185 pounds per player and Warren considers the Eagle center, Leo Logue, one of the best he has seen this year.

Boston was selected early in the season as one of the best teams in the east. Its loss to Detroit was its first. Even Gloomy Gil Dobbie, the team's coach, had words of praise for his club. He had never before seen known to hit an optimistic note.

State is given little chance of winning but the Wolfpack has come along fast and expects to give Boston a battle. Eddie "Little Buzzer" Berlinski and Art Rooney are running nicely and the Pack forwards, led by Big Jim Tatum, 220 pounds end; Battle Louie Mark and dependable George Fry, tackle, are playing fine ball.

TOM BURNETTE MAKES PLACEKICK NUMBER 7

Chapel Hill, Oct. 26.—Tom Burnette, Tar Heel halfback, placekicked his seventh point in the Tulane game Saturday. Burnette broke even in two tries against the Greens. His performance, to date, show seven completion in eleven attempts. He will be matched against Captain Johnny Druze, leading boot artist of the Rams (he also has seven good ones, when Fordham and North Carolina clash at Chapel Hill Saturday.

DON PRINCE ADDS ANOTHER TOUCHDOWN

Chapel Hill, Oct. 26.—Dominic Prince, 180-pound sophomore full back boosted his scoring lead over his Fordham teammates Saturday by scoring the Rams' only touchdown against Texas Christian University. Prince smashed center for two yards culminating a 95-yard advance. He has scored a total of 36 points in four games this season. Prince will be at the starting fullback post when Fordham invades Chapel Hill Saturday to meet Carolina.

COLLEGE GRID PLAYERS TAKE IN WASHING

Toledo, O. (AP)—Four University of Toledo football players are "washermen", but that doesn't mean they are softies.

Art Van Ryzin, Ted Osborne, Don Ferrer and John Petrakis are working their way through the university by doing the laundry for the varsity team and gymnasium.

Their normal week's wash is 1,000 towels and 200 jerseys.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—Tonight this department is going to throw a toothbrush and a pair of socks in a suitcase and meander out to the Pacific Coast for a few days vacation, and so this is to announce that while we are away you will be entertained daily by a lot of very entertaining people whom you all know.

They are actors and actresses and playwrights and composers, and they all aver that they would like nothing better than to lay hands on this somewhat battered typewriter and knock out some very personal billets doux for your inspection.

So we are clearing our desk, dusting off the typewriter, and piling up a stack of clean white paper. They asked for it and we said yes before they had a chance to reconsider.

On our trip we aim to do a little fishing in the north west. Not much, but we'll wet a hook or two. We'll go first to Seattle, tarry a couple of days, hop down the coast to San Francisco and Los Angeles, then cut over via Albuquerque to Dallas and to New Orleans. From there it'll probably be Washington and then New York.

Of course, all this depends on whether the scratch holds out and whether we can stand that pure western air after so long a stay in this peculiar climate we have around New York.

Among these who will sing a song for this department is Burgess Meredith, whom critics refer to as "The Hamlet of 1940". Mr. Meredith is the fair-haired boy of the Broadway stage right now and he is currently occupied with the lead in Mr. Maxwell Anderson's new play, "The Star Wagon." Bur-

Recent scientific tests have disclosed that three ounces of whiskey render any person an unsafe driver. While this small amount of whiskey might not make a person drunk, so far as outward appearances are concerned, the tests have proved that it so slows up the individual's reaction time that the muscles do not respond quickly enough in an emergency. Persons in such a condition are a menace on the public highways.

A day or two ago on one of Greenville's principal streets a trailer being towed by an automobile broke loose from the car and rolled across a street intersection, striking another car. Fortunately the accident happened at a time when neither of the automobiles were traveling at a rapid rate of speed and the damage was negligible but this minor accident should be a warning to all those who, particularly at this time of year, are using trailers for the hauling of tobacco and other products to market. In many cases these trailers are home-made and the fastening devices to attach them to the cars are far from adequate to take care of the heavy loads placed on the trailers. We repeat that it was fortunate that the accident caused by the trailer on the street here was but a minor one but we shudder to think what might have been the result had this same trailer broken from the car while speeding along the highway and rolled into the path of another car approaching at high speed along the highway. Every person who uses a trailer should make sure that the fastening device for towing the trailer is adequate.

IT'S ODD But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(AP Science Editor)
Cambridge, Mass. (AP)—In the heavens above the south pole a Harvard telescope photographed and counted 36,000 galaxies—separate star systems, each like the Milky Way.
This means that if man had telescopic eyes and turned his face upwards at night from the South pole, the sky would not be black but one nearly solid sheet of light.
This particular sheet cover seven per cent of the sky.
It would have some dark places. But they would be due to dust far out in space, hiding still another galaxies not included in the 36,000.
The eye doesn't see these star systems because they are too far away.
This host of celestial objects is only the beginning of what modern telescopes are beginning to discover in the space far out behind the visible stars. Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard observatory, estimates that the Harvard instruments alone will eventually photograph at least half a million of these distant galaxies.
Each is a collection of billions of stars. Each occupies a niche in space like that held by the Milky Way.

What It Means: The Present Stock Market Trend

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER
(AP Financial Editor)

New York—When as much as $100,000,000 is cut from the total quote value of stocks and bonds in Wall Street, there must be a plain reason for it—at least that seems simple common sense to the layman.

But the typical Wall Street expert, when the question of "why" is bluntly put to him, is likely to stammer, gulp, then launch into a long-winded dissertation on economics, international affairs, taxes and government regulation. Those who have the readiest answers are inclined to lay it all, or most of it, on the doorstep of Washington, which to some Wall Streeters, seems fair enough inasmuch as Washington, for the most part, laid the 1929-32 slump at Wall Street's door.

The favorite theme in Wall Street has been that regulations of the SEC, restricting the trading activities of the oldtime professional market operators, as well as putting strings on executives of corporations, has made the market "thin," meaning that the volume of steady day-by-day trading has been curtailed; so that a selling order, which in the old days might have depressed a stock a point, would depress it three or four points.

Production Slipped

As against this, defenders of the SEC point out the market had quite a slump in 1929, without any such regulations, and go on to say that regardless of "thin" markets, once stocks are cheap enough to attract wealthy investors as bargains, investors no doubt will hurry to buy them.

Business analysts say that the slump in the market can scarcely be said to have come out of a clear sky. Production in several lines such as steel, textiles, shoes, and activity in building, had been slipping, and finally went below where it was a year previously. This, they say, at least could be interpreted as showing a pause in the recovery trend.

But why such an abrupt and drastic slump, in the space of a couple of months? The talk of a pause in business seemed to the anguished investor far too tame. Had not the volume of railway freight just reached a seven-year record? Why cancel all of the gain of the past two years in the stock market?
Sinister plots were suspected. One congressman charged a "Wall Street conspiracy". Bear raids were mentioned. (Bears are operators who sell stocks they do not have in the expectation of later buying them, for delivery at a lower price.) Despite efforts to keep tabs on bear selling, had not the bears found way to cover their tracks, perhaps through operations by way of London and Amsterdam? The effects of "war scares" and foreign money in Wall Street also have received their share of conjecture.

Economists' Opinion

The SEC and the Stock Exchange have undertaken investigations to show whether any sinister influences have been at work. Wall Street generally expresses confidence that the answer in the long run will be found to be "no."

Wall Street economists say there is some pretty important background to the recent market.

They point out that prices rose with scarcely a notable interruption from March 1935 to March '37—about the longest sustained rise in Wall Street history. During early months of 1937, there was a good deal of the boom-time state of mind developing.

Financial and credit authorities, both in Washington and Wall St., warned against letting an excessive boom develop. Toward spring, heavy speculative purchases in London in connection with news of the British armament program developed with repercussions here. Copper touched 17 cents a pound, nearly doubling in price in a year. New warnings of excessive price increases came from Washington.

Price Trend Changes

Soon prices began to slip here and there. As summer came amount bumper crops were indicated, sending prices of many farm staples lower, and before long the commodity price trend was sharply downward.

Now it is well known that business men and manufacturers hurry to lay in inventories of goods and materials when prices are rising, and stand back and wait for prices to hit bottom once they start to decline. So buyers' held off during the summer.

The steel mills began to finish up a big accumulation of orders as summer drew to a close, and their production schedules slackened abruptly. Cotton mills had similar experience as the price of the raw staples fell from around 15 cents a pound early in the year to close to 8 cents this fall.

Business began to hesitate at a time when the war scares emanated from the Mediterranean and the Far East and caused a good deal of uneasiness. Observers also point out a new session of congress loomed, involving the possibility of wage and hour legislation and new taxes, injecting new problems for business.

Case of Nerves

Talk by the President, and others of balancing the budget—something conservative Wall Street has been insisting on for a long time—did not inspire confidence. Many could only see a cut in expenditures or higher taxes, or both, tending to reduce purchasing power. Conservative Wall Street still wants the budget balanced, saying it is essential to sound national

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Oct. 26.—Republicans and anti-administration (state) Democrats haven't yet charged that the "cemetery census" being taken by the WPA Historical Records Survey is designed for use in getting out the absentee voters next year.

They probably will, however, when they learn that the project has listed the names of 100,000 North Carolina tombstones.

The advertising division of the Department of Conservation and Development lists the following as outstanding North Carolina events to come in November:

- 4 to 6: Cotton and Peanut Festival, Enfield.
- 12 and 13: Southeastern District N. C. Educational meeting at Lumberton.
- 16 to 19: 7th Annual MidSouth Golf Tournament, Pinehurst.
- 19 to 20: Southern Historical Association Convention, Duke.
- 19 to 20: Northeastern District, N. C. Educational Association meeting at Greenville.
- 20: Quail, rabbit, wild turkey, ruffed grouse seasons open.
- 23 to 26: 22nd Annual Carolina golf tournament, Pinehurst.
- 27: Season opens for ducks, coot, geese and jacksnipes.
- 30: 17th Annual Golf Tournament for Women, Pinehurst.

Major A. L. Fletcher, commissioner of labor, is in Washington, conferring with Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins and other state labor commissioners regarding federal labor legislation.

A North Carolina newspaper reporter who has written a book will get recognition from the governor tonight when the state's chief executive will introduce Legget Blythe, of the Charlotte Observer, to Mrs. J. A. Hartness' Woman's Club. The Charlotte news man wrote about the much discussed question whether Marshall Ney escaped a French firing squad and came to North Carolina to finish out his life.

Convicts at the Caledonia prison farm are getting a bit of rest after their strenuous labors in saving approximately 100,000 bushels of corn from flood waters of the Roanoke River. Day and night work was the order of the day when the rising waters threatened to sweep away the dam above the prison farm.

The Department of Conservation and Development reports that 4,500 inquiries have been received in response to advertising inserted in national publications.

A few more days of football victories like those of Duke over Colgate and University of North Carolina over Tulane will make expenditure of $250,000 in an advertising campaign somewhat superfluous. Tar Heels will be well enough known without it.

Things were gladdened of: That we were not one of the players in last Saturday's State-Wake Forest game. It seems nothing was barred except perhaps broadswords and machine guns.

Governor Hoyt will make a short talk at a meeting of Democratic women here Thursday night.

economy, but there is worry as to how it will be done.

Out of it all, Wall Street developed a bad case of nerves. How long it will take business to resume its recovery, whether the market decline has been excessive, and whether sinister influences have been at work, all are questions to be answered in the future.

Strong gleams of hope are seen in the fact that the bumper crops and active business over most of the year have brought public purchasing power in years, which may provide a good springboard for the next recovery move.

The Characters

Nina marries David, trying to escape from her intense love for her stepfather.

Richard, the charming, well-tailored stepfather, tried to prevent her marriage.

Honey, Nina's gay, plump, youthful mother, is crazy about Richard, her recently acquired husband.

David, a young auto salesman who worships Nina, elopes with her—at Nina's suggestion.

Chapter 20

Apartment Bargain

BEFORE they started apartment hunting, David sat her down in front of him, and talked at her.

"Now listen, baby, a lot of things are bound to come up that are going to need adjusting. What do you say we look ahead a little, right now... and forestall them?"

"Fine. What things, darling... money things?"

"Um-m, mostly."

"Well, right here I want to say that although Daddy left all his money to Honey she's always given me an allowance from it, and I know she'll want to go on. We can use that towards a nice apartment..."

Here her husband interrupted.

"That's one of the things, sweetheart. You can use your money for all the personal pretties you want, that's none of my business; but food, rent, living expenses... that's little David's affair. Definitely... Okay?"

"Of course, okay, darling," quickly. She had known he would feel that way really... but it did seem—silly.

"And it won't include eclair for breakfast... or at any time, for that matter. We're poor, Nina. Fifty bucks a week means $50 a month for an apartment. It will seem like being a pauper to you. But you knew it beforehand, didn't you?... Didn't you?"

His brown eyes were pleading.

"Oh, David..." She got up and went over to him. Into his arms.

"Oh, David..."

But David's attitude was not one of humble self-abasement. He wasn't making such a row—but he was young, and would do better. Nina had cast in her lot with him, and there was nothing for either of them to feel sorry or ashamed about.

A Friend in McDuff

THEY took the first apartment they saw, partly because it was a good bargain, and partly because the superintendent was such an engaging fellow.

When he pushed open the door into the tiny, dark cubicle of a hall, and paused, dramatically, David said, from the rear: "Lead on, MacDuff!"

But the superintendent held his ground.

"Madam," he said, grandly, with a hand flourish, "you are now in the foyer!"

Well, that was right. Nina was being in the middle. But David was still half out in the outer vestibule, and their guide was bulging over into the parlor.

The elegantly named "foyer" was all of three by three.

"Very nice," said Nina, graciously, and the man led on.

There was a living-room—not a bad size really, and a smaller bedroom, and a still even smaller kitchen, and a tinier than that bath.

Certain features that practically brought the tears to the superintendent's eyes, were the incinerator in the kitchen and a chandelier of many loops and coils, in the center of the living-room.

"Noo-veau art," he said, impressively, and made them stand and look at it.

The apartment was in a new elevator building, between Lexington and Third, on 48th St.

McDuff, the superintendent—his name really was McDuff—explained to them that these extremely spacious rooms, with their fine view of the court and the delivery entrance, so that there was a cross ventilation, usually rented for $90 a month; but since they absolutely refused to pay a cent more than $50 he was sure the owners would be willing to let it out, at that ridiculously low figure, on a month to month basis, just to have someone in it.

That was to say, that the apartment would have to be open for inspection at all times, and that they would have to move out within the month, should tenants be found, willing to sign a lease at the higher figure.

Nina and David assimilated these facts, and decided it was worth the gamble.

"Confidentially speaking," said McDuff, in a stage whisper, "there's another apartment like this on the floor above. I'd do anything in my power to rent that first... though it's $25 a month higher, on account of seeing over them there roofs in back."

It was evident that in McDuff they had found a friend. They decided to take it. They remained at the hotel for a few days, and moved in at the end of the week.

They made arrangements with "Blue," the janitor's tiny, black son at David's old rooming house, to go on caring for Button, the beagle, until they were installed in their new place.

In an excited, long distance conversation, Honey had insisted that Nina take her own bedroom furniture, so that that room, at least, was furnished... but they went a, the rest of the apartment slowly and cautiously David had $500 saved, and out of that they could buy things for the living-room.

Richard did go on his hunting trip, so that Nina saw only the servants when she went to the house on 74th St. with David. She was thankful for that.

Cordelia was the only other person they saw, that first week, and, although she certainly must have been astounded and chock-full of questions... she was dear about it; just surprised enough and excited, and terribly naïve, since Nina was. She couldn't have been nicer.

There was an announcement in the papers, and sundry remarks from the society columnists; but though the Challoner house was full of letters and flowers and lists of telephoned inquiries every time the days went there, they did not see people. They were honeymooning.

The Blue and White Room

ABOUT the furnishing of the living-room, Nina had ideas.

"David, darling, the bedroom is lovely, isn't it?"

"I'll say it is! We'll never be able to live up to it... I mean, the living-room is going to look silly."

"Well, that's what I wanted to speak about, David. We can't afford very expensive stuff, or antiques, or anything, so why do we spend money on a lot of Grand Rapids furniture that we aren't going to like, after a while, anyway?"

"Are you suggesting that we go Japanese, my love, and sit about on the floor?"

"No... but listen..." And thus was evolved the quite lovely room that caused so much, and such widely diversified comment.

The walls were a deep, bright blue. (The reduced month to month rate did not include redecorating, but by licking the pencil a bit, they decided to spend the $25 and have that one room painted.)

The walls, then, were a deep, bright blue. The woodwork, pure white. An inexpensive couch—a day-bed, really—and two simple-no-period, over-stuffed chairs were covered with slip covers of a matching rough, blue material.

Along the side of the day-bed, up against the wall, were three fat, white cushions and with Bridget's help, Nina made heavy, white satin curtains that joined at the top of the windows, draped back, and fell in luscious folds to the floor.

On the mantle were two cheap white pottery vases, with synthetic dogwood blooming beautifully against the blue walls; and a blue rug, two small, walnut tables and as many straight-back chairs of simple design completed the setting.

David thought that Nina was nothing less than a genius, and hovered about with boyish awe and enthusiasm as production got under way.

It was a life saver for Nina that she had so much to do, and, of course, such a dear person to do it with. During the day, she refused to allow herself to think, and at night it was David who wouldn't allow her to.

If she thought anything, it was: "I am doing the right thing..." over and over, "I am doing the right thing," and that in itself was comforting.

The first night in their apartment, they talked further about the things they could, and could not, do. With unusual foresight, David brought up an important point.

"Your friends, Nina, are presumably going to want to throw a lot of parties for you... because they like you, and are probably dying with curiosity about the strange fellow you chose to marry... well, here's the thing: We simply can't get started going with a crowd like that, baby, because we'll have no possible way of returning invitations, and I'm no... what's that five-dollar word?... sycophant. We've got to take kind of a stand at the beginning..."

"That okay, too?"

"Surely, it's okay. In fact, it's only common sense, David." Lord, that was what she wanted—to get away from her old ties, associations. And he was right.

"Let's choose a few of our best friends—like Cordelia Thorpe, and one or two of mine—and spend what money we have for amusements with them."

"Gosh, you're sensible, David."

"Gosh, you're—sweet!"

It was going to be awfully simple, getting along together.

from its traditional position.

"The lawyer has to provide for people in their most egoistic and aggressive moments, the church tries to keep them to their most hopeful moments, while the doctor has to relieve them of the consequences—on the one hand of their anxieties and guilt due to egoism and aggression, and on the other hand of their disappointment to the failure of their hopes," says the Lancet.

Legislation for the sexual impulse is not easy. In no field of human activity are our most experienced counsellors so ill informed, and in no other do "practical" men fall back so quickly on theory.

The causes of sexual maladjustment are numerous. Even the condition of sexual maturity is complex, and, if the mental as well as the physical aspects are taken into account, it is found to be of

PAYMENTS DUE MANY IN AREA

Thousands Fail File Social Security Claims

Rocky Mount, Oct. 26.—Thousands of workers—among them many in this area—to whom money apparently is due now under the old-age insurance provisions of the Social Security Act have failed to file claims for the sums due them. George N. Adams, Manager of the Rocky Mount Field Office of the Social Security Board, which serves this area, said today.

Because payments can only be made to those qualified workers who file claims for the sums due them, the Social Security Board has set up administrative machinery designed to make it easy for the worker himself, or for the estate or relatives of an eligible worker who has died, to file claim Mr. Adams said.

"It is possible many persons do not know a lump-payment is due them under the old-age insurance provisions of the law. This may be due, in part, to the wide notice given the fact that the law provides payment of monthly old-age benefits will not begin until January, 1942. Another kind of payment which is due now is lump-sum payments.

"Lump-sum payments are not due to everyone. They are due, first, to the worker who has been paid wages for work done as an employee since December 31, 1936, and before he reached 65, in any employment which is not specifically excepted under the old-age benefit provisions of the Act; and, second, to the estate or relatives of a worker who has died since December 31, 1936; provided the deceased worker had been paid wages for work done as an employee, after December 31, 1936, and before he reached 65, in employment which is not specifically excepted under the old-age benefit provisions of the Social Security Act.

"Established to serve the people of this section, the Rocky Mount N. C. Field office will give every assistance to the eligible worker, or the estate or relatives of a deceased eligible worker, who wishes to file a claim for a lump-sum payment, or to anyone who wishes to find out whether such a payment may now be due them."

CALIFORNIA WATER SYSTEM 65 PER CENT COMPLETED

Los Angeles (AP)—The great metropolitan water district's Colorado river aqueduct, 392 miles in length, including its distribution system, and costing approximately $220,000,000, will be 65 per cent complete this month, (October).

Stretching across California from the Arizona boundary, the aqueduct will bring water to 13 southern California cities in the water district.

Ninety-five miles of the aqueduct tunnels have been finished and 104 miles of tunnels excavated.

UNCOVER HISTORICAL DATA IN CEMETERIES OF STATE

(Continued from page one) facts were found on the tombstones, the name of location of the cemetery in which the person was buried.

There is being filed, too, a list of cemeteries, with detailed information how each is to be reached and a roster of graves in each.

Perhaps the oldest grave in North Carolina is one listed by the Records survey in St. Paul's Episcopal Cemetery in Edenton. It is that of Henderson Walker, whose stone shows he was born in 1680 and died in 1704. Several other graves in this same cemetery date back into the early 1700's.

Another interesting item of the survey is the indexing of the biographies of deceased members of the Moravian church at Winston-Salem.

Beginning with the coming of the Moravians to the Forsyth section late in the eighteenth century, it has been their custom to read a brief biography at the funeral of each church member. These biographies have been kept with great care, but they have been filed in chronological order, and it has been quite a job for the survey workers to make an alphabetical index of the biographies. In all there are about 2,500.

According to Mr. Lacy many of these little life histories are in fact biographies, written in advance of death by numbers of the Moravians.

The earlier ones were almost all written in German, Mr. Lacy said, but since 1832 practically every one was written in English.

slow development. Not a few suffering mortals only partially or temporarily achieve a semblance of maturity, and some of these, made bold by hope, attempt marriage, through quite unfitly.

In legislative debate it seems to be assumed, too, that the sexual life is fully known and fully conscious, that its manifestations can be defined as clearly as the clauses of contract and that the easiest and clearest of all contracts is the promise to love, honor and obey. The sanctity of marriage, however, depends not on a promise, but on the maintenance of an attitude of mind.

Psychopathologists tell us that even when a marriage is unhappy there is by no means always an immediate impulse to run to divorce. They tell us that, deep in his mind, man is more moral than he himself realizes, and that the strongest restrictions upon sexual desires arise within and act unseen.

NEW FACES OF 1937 are appearing behind the scenes to remind you, if you've forgotten, that it's time to disconnect the doorbell and prepare for the worst. Little Barbara Messick of Colusa, Calif., is ready for Halloween.

Treat Colds Proved Way

Doubly proved—in world's largest colds-clinic, and by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind. No "dosing." Just massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. Relief begins almost at once. And long after sleep comes, VapoRub keeps right on working. Its positive and -vapor action loosens phlegm, relieves irritation and coughing, helps break local congestion. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

ON SEX AND MARRIAGE

The British parliament has been stirred by a marriage bill lately. The English medical journal, the Lancet, in an editorial, makes some wise observations on "the last few weeks' deliberations on the Marriage Bill, which show the interplay of the forces—both of reason and prejudice—that mould the structure of our social life."

The law, the church and medicine formally participated in the debate. Each viewed and argued the problems of

"We are speaking," he said, "in terms of economics and the general financial situation." In the meantime in Washington, the agricultural conservation program, formally approved by Secretary Wallace, set a goal of from 1,587,800 to 1,673,000 acres for the 1938 tobacco plantings. Acreage goals for the various types of leaf and soil conservation payments remain the same as tentatively announced in September. Goals and payments on tobacco types in 1938 included: Flue cured tobacco, 850,000 to 900,000 acres and payments of one cent a pound.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A wild-eyed stock market today ran the gamut of declines and rallies with such feverish frequency as to bewilder even the most experienced traders. In a buying rush that put the ticker tape four minutes behind the list converted an early setback of one to five points into gains of as much within the space of a few minutes. Rail stocks were narrow and carrier bonds pointed downward.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coom

Hollywood—There has been no official census, but it seems to me more movie people would like to meet Clark Gable than any other star. Gable isn't a recluse, nor hard to meet, but that's the way Hollywood is—a little pond where the big fish can swim around for years and not bump into each other socially or professionally. "Think that's exaggeration? Well, Joan Crawford and Spencer Tracy started work on "Mannequin" the other day, and Frank Borzage, directing had to ask, "Why so reserved?" "We've never been formally introduced," said Spencer. "No, we haven't," smiled Joan, "and by the way, Mr. Tracy, would you mind introducing me to Mr. Borzage? We've never met either!"

Joan Would Meet Garbo. You'd be surprised how many Hollywood names are on the rolls of the I've-never-met-Snirley club.

Lovers Were Introduced. It's more understandable when such things happen to a screen newcomer. I remember, for instance, Dick Powell had to be presented to Doris Weston before they started their first love scene in "The Singing Marine," and it happens that way every day.

Among the I-want-to-meet-Gable club members is Beverly Roberts, who also wants to meet Rosalind Russell, whom she considers the most intelligent actress she has seen on the screen. Beverly wants to meet Gable mainly because she saw him one day, during filming of "Cain and Mabel," playing leapfrog with several unimportant players near the studio commissary. She also wants to meet Tyrone Power—but then what actress doesn't? Wendy Barrie, too, for one, and—write your own list.

Others in the aforementioned Gable club are Ann Sheridan and Wayne Morris. Ann works on the same lot with Errol Flynn, but hasn't met him. Wayne wants a chance to shine that grin on Loretta Young and Carole Lombard, but among the men he wants most to meet Gable and Ronald Colman. If Wayne meets Lombard, doubtless it can be arranged for him to meet Gable, or vice versa.

Glenda Farrell, with a boy of her own, is counting on him to help strike her name off the list. Billy and Bobby Mauch, who've met Freddie Bartholomew, have offered their services where Freddie is concerned but Glenda's still looking for a "Temple opening." Another with the same idea is Frank McLaugh. He wants to meet Shirley and he wants his own youngsters—Peter, Susan and Michael—to meet her too.

Probably because Garbo is considered on another plane, and social contact out of the question, players seldom mention her when asked whom they'd like most to meet. But Joan Blondell does. Joan knows practically everybody—except Garbo. She passed Greta one night in Santa Monica—yes in the rain, but she figured it was not the time nor place to introduce herself.

Bogus Collectors Of Security Fund Face Prosecution

Department of Justice Asked to Intervene by Manager of Rocky Mount Field Office of Board

Rocky Mount, Oct. 25.—Criminal prosecution by the Department of Justice of bogus collectors of funds in connection with the Social Security Act's old-age insurance program has been requested by the Social Security Board, Mr. George N. Adams, Manager of the Rocky Mount Field Office of the Social Security Board, announced today.

The Board, Mr. Adams said, has advised the Department of Justice that it has received information of several instances where money has been collected through such misrepresentation, and requested the Department to investigate them and institute criminal proceedings.

In a statement sent Mr. Adams, announcing its action, the Board said: "The Social Security Board has no 'old-age benefits collectors,' 'old age insurance collectors,' or any kind of collectors or financial agents. It has authorized no one to collect any fees from participants in the old-age insurance program. We wish to caution everyone against making any payments whatever to persons representing themselves as agents of the Board and who guarantee the payment of old-age insurance."
