SEC. WALLACE OUTLINES AIM FOR CORN CROP

Favors Establishment Of Ever-Normal Granary

VIEWS REVEALED AT INDIANAPOLIS

Secretary of Agriculture Would Lay By Reserve Crop in Big Production Years

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 8. — (AP)—Establishment of an ever-normal granary, and an adequate reserve of corn to be set aside in years of plenty to be drawn on in periods of scarcity was advocated today by Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, as the answer to corn belt droughts which disturb the nation's economic stability.

Wallace, in a radio address, outlined his corn crop producing and marketing proposals to farmers and their representatives from 13 mid-western states.

The secretary of agriculture emphasized that the problem of corn production and marketing was closely linked to livestock raising, chiefly hogs, and soil conservation in protecting the corn belt in the years to come.

Wallace asserted "anyone who faces the facts with an open mind must come to these conclusions:

First, that as things are today it is unfair to subject farmers alone to unlimited competition; second, that there is no magic way of reopening quickly our big export markets; and third, that corn belt farmers can not afford to rely on chemistry for a quick solution to their problems.

"All of which leads to this fourth conclusion. The best way now open to deal with the corn problem is through cooperation of farmers in a program that will iron out the cycles of glut and scarcity; create an ever normal granary giving farmers and consumers better protection against food and feed shortages due to drought, drop the ruthless destruction of soil which has resulted from cut throat competition among farmers, and safeguard agriculture, business and labor against the disaster of a farm price collapse."

Conducting Clinic For Auto Drivers

John Pedulla of the Harvard Traffic Bureau, cooperating with the North Carolina Division of Highway Safety, is conducting a voluntary driving test clinic in the Armory building here today and tomorrow.

The clinic is for the information of the motorist and has nothing to do with the securing of driver's license.

Lieut. Lester Jones, head of Troop A of the Highway Patrol, declared it was important that as many drivers as possible take the test. He especially urged taxi and other commercial drivers to undergo the examination.

A NEW INDUSTRY: AIRPLANE SALCAGE

Buffalo, N. Y. (AP)—Wrecked airplanes are bread and butter for Don Coe.

Coe, a former flyer, now heads a company whose business is salvage of airplanes which have crashed.

"In two years we have moved 18 cracked-up planes," he says. "A crack-up is worth from $50 to $350 depending on size and condition of the plane."

Coe thinks his company started the airplane salvage business. In 18 months it has bought $12,000 worth of damaged planes and parts.

PER ACRE YIELD ALSO NEW HIGH

N. C. Expected Produce 720,000 Bales This Year Compared with 597,000 in '36

Washington, Nov. 8. — (AP)—The Department of Agriculture reported today this year's cotton crop is 18,243,000 bales of 500 pounds each.

This would be the largest crop in history.

Production last year was 12,399,000 bales. The largest crop previously was 17,978,000 bales in 1926.

This year's crop is being produced on 33,736,000 acres and the acre-yield is 258.8 pounds, a record picking. The previous record yield was 223.1 pounds in 1936. Last year's yield was 197.6 pounds.

Abandonment of acreage this year was much less than average and favorable weather and other conditions combined to boost the production estimate each month after the first official forecast in August. At that time 15,593,000 bales were forecast.

North Carolina's production this year is 320 pounds per acre and 720,000 bales; last year it was 298 pounds an acre and 597,000 bales.

The census bureau reported today that 13,164,096 running bales, counting round as half bales of this year's growth had been ginned prior to November 1.

Critic of Duke's Aid

Joseph P. McCurdy, (above) president of the Baltimore Federation of Labor, was the author of the Federation's resolution criticizing the Duke of Windsor's choice of Charles E. Bedaux as his guide for his American tour. Some one who has "the good will of the American people," he said, should be in charge of the Duke's itinerary.

DUKE MAY VISIT STATES LATER

February Set as Tentative Date for His Postponed Trip

Paris, Nov. 8.—A source close to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor said today the couple had decided tentatively on February as a possible new date for their postponed trip to the United States.

The Duke and Duchess believe by that time the "reticism will have subsided" making the tour possible, one of their associates said.

The Windsor's expected to remain in Paris at least until Armistice day, when the Duke may participate in memorial observances "in a completely unofficial capacity," their associates said.

Circles close to the former king said his plans for the immediate future still are indefinite. "Any departure in the night or any sudden move is out of the question," one of their associates asserted.

It was disclosed by persons close to the Windsor's that the Duke had sent a message to President Roosevelt regretting he would be unable to make his scheduled call at the White House.

Big Potato Acreage Seen For Next Year

Washington, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Prospects are for about the same potato acreage for next year as that which produced this season's bumper crop it was reported today by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Federal economists said that decreased planting in early and intermediate producing states were expected but might be offset by an increase in late producing states.

This season's output of 399,000,000 bushels was attributed to unusually large yields.

Federal economists forecast a slight reduction in watermelon acreage next year.

OIL COMPANIES LOSE APPEALS BEFORE COURT

Had Sought Reconsideration Recent Decision

HAD CONTEDED BLACK UNFITTED

Tribunal, However, Offers No Explanation in Refusing To Reconsider Case

Washington, Nov. 8.— (AP) — Three Florida oil companies lost in the Supreme Court today in their efforts to obtain reconsideration of recent action on the ground that Justice Hugo L. Black was ineligible to sit on the bench.

The court gave no explanation of its refusal to grant reconsideration.

The announcement was made after Black had read one opinion which he had written, distented to another and voted against the government in a third case.

The Florida companies sought reconsideration of the court refusal on October 18 to interfere with attempts by the Securities Commission to subpoena telegrams sent and received by the companies.

The constitutionality of Black's appointment was challenged and the petition contended the court action on the litigation was "invalid, ineffectual, null and void," because the new justice could not sit in judgment as an unbiased, unprejudiced, fair and impartial judge."

POLICE POWER INVOKED IN N. Y.

LaGuardia Moves To Prevent Additional Election Fraud

New York, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Mayor LaGuardia invoked his police power today in a drastic attempt to prevent additional fraud in New York City's proportional representation election.

He ordered 125 detectives into armories in the five counties, telling them to keep a close watch over the workers who are slowly, but too slowly, tabulating the results from about 2,000,000 long paper ballots cast Tuesday for members of the newly created city council.

Matthew Levy, chairman of the American Labor party law committee, was appointed special Assistant Attorney General by Attorney General John Bennett Jr., to investigate irregularities in the Bronx election.

Even as the police moved into the armories, acting District Attorney Sylvester Ryan of Bronx county asserted he had found more evidence of election fraud in his borough.

Mayor LaGuardia charged the count was being deliberately delayed by sabotage. Tabulation of the returns cost the city about $20,000 a day.

BACKS CHURCH IN CHARLOTTE

No Churches To Be Compelled To Make Changes

Asheboro, Nov. 8.—(AP)—The North Carolina conference of the Methodist Protestant church today voted its full support of the First Methodist Protestant Church of Charlotte, split several months over a unification proposal.

The vote gave assurance that regardless of any change of organizations in the present denominational setup or in the prospective union of Methodism no mandatory changes would be made in any local church. Each church will continue to function as it now stands until it votes to cease operation as a separate congregation.

Leaders said that "the idea that the change of certain forms of government occasioned by the forth coming union will demand the disruption of local congregations is false and without foundation."

A committee was appointed to act in behalf of the conference in 1868.

Schools Observing "Education Week"

"In an effort to be as effective in their work as possible the Greenville City schools are this week emphasizing visitation in the schools," declared Superintendent J. H. Rose this morning.

American Education week, which begins today, is sponsored by the National Education Association and the American Legion.

Every first period teacher in the high school has made contact with the parents of the students in these classes urging them to spend some time in the high school during the week.

Though Friday has been set aside as special visitation day, principals and teachers throughout the city are eager for parents to come to the schools at any time during American Education week.

A special feature of Friday's program in the high school will be an Armistice-day assembly at which time a student director, who will take place, Rev. Thomas McMillan, pastor of the Jarvis Methodist church, will be the guest speaker.

At the same program will be presented several skits from "The Gypsy Rover," the annual high school opera, which will be given on Friday evening.

Foes Engaging In Terrific Fighting In Shanghai Area

EFFORTS MADE ISOLATE JAPS

Chinese Launch Counter Offensive to Cut Off Japanese Force of 25,000 Men From Landing Base on Seacoast; Fighting Continues Both South and West of Shanghai

Shanghai, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Chinese declared tonight they had launched a counter offensive to isolate a Japanese force south of Shanghai, estimated at 25,000 men, from its landing base on the seacoast.

In Chekiang province, to the south, Chinese declared they had repulsed a surprise Japanese thrust toward Shanghai from the Yangchow bay area.

Japanese reported advances south of Soochow creek on the western edge of Shanghai's International Settlement.

Chinese reinforcement rushed to Sungkiang, a vital point in the Chinese defense, against which one of three Japanese columns was striking from the south.

Another Japanese column, Chinese army communications reported, was held on the far side of the Whangpoo river from Shanghai when Chinese defenders forced a vanguard back across the stream.

Chinese asserted that their positions on the north side of the Whangpoo were secure against the Japanese offensive and that the attackers were in danger of being cut off from their shore base by a Chinese flanking operation.

On the front south of Soochow creek and west of Shanghai, French Concession, Japanese asserted that 4,000 Chinese were retreating under intense aerial and artillery bombardments.

The census bureau's report on cotton of this year's growth ginned prior to November included:

North Carolina, 508,435 bales, as compared with 347,900 bales by the same time last year.

Two Wrecks Near City on Week-End

State Highway patrolmen reported two serious wrecks near Greenville over the week-end.

Ebrom Allen and Dupree Taylor both of Pitt county, were taken to Pitt General hospital last night following a wreck in front of Jasper House's filling station on the Cox's Mill road.

Patrolman Williams said Porter was charged with driving drunk, hit and run, and driving careless and reckless. Porter was said to have suffered a fractured rib.

Late Saturday night an automobile driven by Richard Craft and in which Alfred Craft, his brother, and Harvey Vinson, all young Pitt county men, was wrecked, seriously injuring Alfred Craft.

Patrolman Williams declared the boys told him they were forced from the highway by a truck which passed them at Cedar curve on the Farmville highway. Both vehicles were going in the same direction, the patrolman reported. Alfred Craft was taken to the hospital, but the other two young men were not badly hurt.

The speaker further reiterated the importance of having an active vice-chairman in each precinct. In explanation of the reporter plan, Mrs. Murphy said that it was necessary for a group of eleven women to study the President's program, each woman to select a different subject.

Miss Agnes Wadlington presented the Rev. R. C. Grady who addressed the club on "International Peace." Rev. Mr. Grady ably presented to the club the different current questions of the relations of our country to other countries. He stated that our seeming indifference to the question of war is serious. He stressed the fact that our nation has to choose between a violent change and a peaceful change. To choose the peaceful change, we must get away from indifference. We may become articulate through correspondence with our Congressmen and Senators. He emphasized the fact that we should support three important factors:

1. Our neutrality act.
2. A redefinition of national defense.
3. The Ludlow amendment looking toward referendum regarding the participation of the United States in foreign wars.

During the business session, Mrs. Hilton reported that the library committee had completed their quota with the exception of one-half year. The club voted to give $1.00. Peace Action

America First
Not merely in matters material, but in things of the spirit. Not merely in science, inventions, motors, and skyscrapers, but also in ideals, principles, character.

Not merely in the calm assertion of rights, but in the glad assumption of duties.

Not flaunting her strength as a giant, but bending in helplessness over a sick and wounded world like a Good Samaritan.

Not in splendid isolation, but in courageous co-operation.

Not in pride, arrogance, and disdain of other races and peoples, but in sympathy, love, and understanding.

Not in treading again the old, worn bloody pathway which ends inevitably in chaos and disaster, but in blazing a new trail along which, please God, other nations will follow, into the new Jerusalem where wars shall be no more.

Some day some nations must take that path—unless we are to lapse once again into utter barbarism—and that honor I covet for my beloved America.

And so, in that spirit and with these hopes, I say with all my heart and soul, "America First."—From a sermon by Dr. Oldham.

Talks On Children's Books.

Miss Nora Beust, A. A. U. W. speaker at the Woman's Club building Saturday afternoon, opened her talk on books with the statement that there should be in every community a room especially for children, to help them grow "in all the directions in which they can grow—socially, religiously, mentally, in the line of fine arts," and every way possible.

Miss Beust prefaced her discussion of the best of the new children's books, with a comment on the real need of children to have a library of books of their own.

"As in social life," she said, "children should have a wide acquaintance also in the field of books, but should have, in addition, some close white, crepe paper, and took their places on the steps.

Miss Edna Earle Perry, Catherine Cheek, and Gladys Malpass came to the center and sang the beautiful old hymn, "I'll Go Where He Wants Me To Go."

As she refrain softly died away, Miss Elizabeth Copeland, president of the association, and Miss Prue Newby, secretary, slowly ascended the steps.

The president then explained the purpose of the service and commanded the members of the senior cabinet to go out in the audience and "tap" the girls who had been chosen to serve on the junior cabinet for the coming year.

When the senior members returned to their places, Miss Prue Newby read from a scroll the names of the girls who had been chosen. As her name was called, each girl mounted the steps and lighted her candle from the torch of the president.

After all the candles had been lighted, the president led the recessional down the steps and to the fountain, where both the cabinets formed a circle about the fountain.

While they stood there, with their candles flickering in the semi-darkness, taps was blown in the distance. As the sounds of the bugle died away in the night, the girls extinguished their candles, and the service was over.

This service was one of the most beautiful and impressive of the year. The girls, who were thus asked to serve on the junior cabinet, had been chosen because they had already shown a keen interest in the campus activities, a desire to serve, and had proved themselves true and worthy leaders in their class.

These she showed to her audience, giving for each the age and sex suitable for, the type of child who would be interested, and some critical comments as to contents, format, and illustration.

Good illustration, she explained, are those to which the child can return again and again, and find something new.

The books brought by the speaker included volumes of poetry and nursery jingles, stories with backgrounds in many lands, a book on ants, accurate in its facts and interesting in its presentation of them, and other types.

After the talk, the audience had an opportunity to examine the books in detail.

Many were interested also in an exhibit of new books displayed at the building through the cooperation of the public library.

Most of the guests arrived in time for the social hour before the program.

Hostesses were Mrs. D. M. Clark, Mrs. E. R. Browning, Mrs. Luther Herring, Mrs. R. J. Slay, Mrs. Jack Spain, Miss Louise Williams.

Mrs. Ficklen Arthur, A. A. U. W. president, introduced Miss Beust in a cordial little speech.

Some day some nations must take that path—unless we are to lapse once again into utter barbarism—and that honor I covet for my beloved America.

And so, in that spirit and with these hopes, I say with all my heart and soul, "America First."—From a sermon by Dr. Oldham.

Miss Nora Beust, A. A. U. W. speaker at the Woman's Club building Saturday afternoon, opened her talk on books with the statement that there should be in every community a room especially for children, to help them grow "in all the directions in which they can grow—socially, religiously, mentally, in the line of fine arts," and every way possible.

Miss Beust prefaced her discussion of the best of the new children's books, with a comment on the real need of children to have a library of books of their own.

"As in social life," she said, "children should have a wide acquaintance also in the field of books, but should have, in addition, some close white, crepe paper, and took their places on the steps.

Miss Edna Earle Perry, Catherine Cheek, and Gladys Malpass came to the center and sang the beautiful old hymn, "I'll Go Where He Wants Me To Go."

As she refrain softly died away, Miss Elizabeth Copeland, president of the association, and Miss Prue Newby, secretary, slowly ascended the steps.

The president then explained the purpose of the service and commanded the members of the senior cabinet to go out in the audience and "tap" the girls who had been chosen to serve on the junior cabinet for the coming year.

When the senior members returned to their places, Miss Prue Newby read from a scroll the names of the girls who had been chosen. As her name was called, each girl mounted the steps and lighted her candle from the torch of the president.

After all the candles had been lighted, the president led the recessional down the steps and to the fountain, where both the cabinets formed a circle about the fountain.

While they stood there, with their candles flickering in the semi-darkness, taps was blown in the distance. As the sounds of the bugle died away in the night, the girls extinguished their candles, and the service was over.

This service was one of the most beautiful and impressive of the year. The girls, who were thus asked to serve on the junior cabinet, had been chosen because they had already shown a keen interest in the campus activities, a desire to serve, and had proved themselves true and worthy leaders in their class.

These she showed to her audience, giving for each the age and sex suitable for, the type of child who would be interested, and some critical comments as to contents, format, and illustration.

Good illustration, she explained, are those to which the child can return again and again, and find something new.

The books brought by the speaker included volumes of poetry and nursery jingles, stories with backgrounds in many lands, a book on ants, accurate in its facts and interesting in its presentation of them, and other types.

After the talk, the audience had an opportunity to examine the books in detail.

Many were interested also in an exhibit of new books displayed at the building through the cooperation of the public library.

Most of the guests arrived in time for the social hour before the program.

Hostesses were Mrs. D. M. Clark, Mrs. E. R. Browning, Mrs. Luther Herring, Mrs. R. J. Slay, Mrs. Jack Spain, Miss Louise Williams.

Two's Company

The Characters
 Nina impulsively married David, hoping to forget her intense love for her stepfather. Richard, the charming, well-tailored stepfather, shamelessly talks of love to Nina. Honey, Nina's gay, plump, youthful mother, is wild about Richard, her newly acquired husband. David, a bright young auto salesman, adores Nina and strives to make her happy on his small salary.

Chapter 31
A Little Tight Budgeting
 NINA was thinking the same old thoughts, all over again. Her terrible, insatiable longing to have Richard for her own... No effort, no reasoning, had been able to curb it. Now perhaps separation might. Though she knew deep down inside of her that it was the right thing, the hot tears welled up into her brown eyes at the thought of not seeing Richard for five long months. She put on Button's harness and took him out with her while she did the marketing. She had spent this last day with her mother, and had not got to the stores in the morning. And after she had done the marketing, she started the dinner. And after she had started the dinner, she brushed her hair, and refreshed herself for David. The thought of the dishes she must wash made her feel angry and rebellious. She decided to ask David to take her to the theater. Dress up, and everything. If ever there was a time when she needed a little diversion, it was now. But when David came dashing in, with that engaging eagerness of his, it was apparent that he had already made plans. "You know what we're going to do tonight, sweetheart? ... Book-keeping. We're going to do a little tight budgeting, if you can stand it. ... We've sort of been meandering along gaily, without any definite plan... but, as the walrus said, 'The time has come.'"

Nina repressed a shudder. Dishes—greasy dishes—and a budget... and Richard sailing farther away with every minute that ticked by!

Thirty-Seven Fifty A Week
 "DID Honey get off all right, darling? Feeling a touch blue? ... Come here, then. David'll fix that..."

But David couldn't fix it; and the whole evening was one long, hideous effort not to cry. ... Into the soup; into the dishpan; into the strong box, with the separate compartments, where David put different allotments of his pitiful week's salary... It was awful. The budget went like this: They figured it on a $50-a-week basis—when he made more, they agreed to save the surplus. Now then—$12.50 a week for rent. The long compartment at the back of the strong box was the rent compartment. Into it went two fives, two ones—new—and a battered 50-cent piece. David licked his pencil. "That leaves thirty-seven fifty a week left over."

Nina said, making a tremendous effort to act interested: "I can put seven days into $35, but I can't into $7... let alone that extra 50 cents!" "I can't either. What do you say we put the two-fifty aside... for emergencies?"

Nina had to smile at the thought of what a very tiny emergency it would have to be. "Good idea. Print 'emergency' on

Oil Men Launch Drive In Behalf Of Motorists

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Nov. 8.—State Senator S. Gilmer Sparger, now North Carolina secretary of the American Petroleum Industries Committee, today launched a campaign of his organization designed to foster justice and equality for motorist taxpayers.

Chief issue of the campaign, Senator Sparger said, will be to arouse anti-diversion sentiment to the point where adoption of a constitutional amendment will prevent diversion of gasoline tax funds to any purpose other than highway construction and maintenance. Other issues will be stressed in the four-point program he will present, and when the campaign is completed late in January, the Petroleum Industries Committee will have a functioning organization in every county of the state, Mr. Sparger hopes.

The A. P. I. secretary will go into these counties which are now organized together with others, one of his purposes being to set up a working organization in each of them.

The four-point program is stated as:

1. To insist that all gasoline and motor vehicle taxes be used for highway purposes only and to

SEEK UNIFORM HIGHWAY ACTS

Would Work Out Regulations for Truck Owners

Raleigh, Nov. 8.—A conference of motor truck regulatory officials of all Southeastern states, to work out some plan for uniform state regulations regarding commercial highway transportation is being worked up by P. D. McLean, Southern representative of the National Highway Users Conference.

Mr. McLean, a former Raleigh newspaper man and parole commission official, has been here for several days conferring with state officials regarding plans for the conference, which he proposes to hold either in Birmingham or Atlanta sometime next spring.

He said that R. R. McLaughlin, head of the Motor Vehicle division of the Department of Transportation, expressed great interest in the plan.

Mr. McLean hopes to have attendance at the conference the motor vehicle commissioner and a representative of the regulatory body from each of the states of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Complete reciprocity with reference to operation of trucks in interstate commerce is of particular importance in the southeast, Mr. McLean says, because of the great volume of agricultural produce hauled from its point of production to interstate markets.

There is at present a wide difference in rules and regulations. In North Carolina, for instance, the only requisite for operation of commercial motor vehicles is payment of the license tag fee. In Georgia, on the contrary, three fees must be paid—the $3.60 registration fee, a maintenance tag for trucks and a $25 service fee. Even if North Carolina and Georgia highway officials should agree to reciprocity at present, there would still be the matter of the service fee unsettled, as this phase is not under motor vehicle commission control in Georgia.

LITERARY UNIT TO AIR LEGEND
Marshal Ney to be Discussed at Historical Asso. Meeting

Raleigh, Nov. 6.—The much legend that Marshal Ney, of France, escaped a firing squad and ended his days as a drab North Carolina school master will be exhumed from moth balls and aired before the State Literary and Historical Association.

Dr. C. C. Crittenden, executive secretary of the N. C. Historical Commission, has announced that Legette Blythe, literary editor of the Charlotte Observer and author of Marshal Ney: A duel Personality will speak at the association's opening convention session, December 2.

Mr. Blythe will tell his audience of his findings on Peter Stuart Ney, North Carolina school teacher of a century ago, whom many believe to have been none other than the famous French commander.

One of Mr. Blythe's ancestors was a pupil under Peter Stuart Ney and for a number of years the Charlotte writer has been working on a biography of this interesting instructor.

He has uncovered much interesting and new material on the subject and his book has been the object of several favorable reviews. Rights in Great Britain have been sold to a London publishing house, and a British edition will be brought out in the spring.

A native North Carolinian, Blythe is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, where he was a fellow student and close associate of both Paul Green and Thomas Wolfe. He was one of the original Playmakers.

Of his accomplishments as an author he says: "I regard myself as quite an amateur."

Noah and Wallace Beery are reunited in the film "Bad Man of Brimstone" for the first time in 10 years.

It's Odd But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (AP Science Editor)

New York. — Next time you are looking for an original remark to express your feelings when breakfast eggs are not done to taste, say:

"These must be some of those 10 to the 72d power eggs."

This will display knowledge of an amazing chemical discovery which has not yet drifted far outside the laboratories. The discovery is the high speed of "denaturation" of proteins. The turning white of an egg in cooking is an example.

It appears this sort of change occurs at a speed requiring astronomical figures to describe. Ten to the 72d power is such a figure, written out it is 10 followed by 71 ciphers.

This means the change to white occurs at the rate of that many molecules a cubic centimeter a second. Eggs have not been tested but they fall in the same class as other proteins with this phenomenal speed of change.

It comes when temperature or other conditions are just right. Housewives have always known that eggs could do this quick turn trick. The mechanism of it, which chemists have now worked out, does not give any clue on when to turn off the fire.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

By HELEN MENKEN (Understudying George Tucker) New York. — Well, George, whether or not you're scampering away on a holiday, the show must go on! Although, frankly, I never could see just why! Suppose you had no column today? Suppose I made no broadcast tonight? So what? But, anyway, that show-must-go-on tradition is one held in common by you of the Fourth Estate and us of the theatre. I know you'd pinch-hit for me on the air. And I'm pretty sure, too, that you'd feel fluttering butterfly wings in your tummy when you turn actor, just as I do not in facing this Sahara of white paper which I must fill with words, for you.

I don't see why we have to fib to each other, George. You know very well that you told me column-writing was easy. You said: All you do is put one little word after another until the space is filled. But you didn't tell me what words! However, I'm afraid that if it were my turn for a vacation, and I was persuading you to get up before the microphone and substitute for me as "Brenda" in "Her Second Husband," I'd tell you there was nothing to it except to speak one little word after another! So that makes us even.

Really, though, I don't feel so full of songs, dances and witty sayings today. You see the other evening I somehow lost a pretty valuable pin which also possesses great sentimental value for me.

George, I've been wondering how in the world you ever became a columnist. And why. Won't you write a story about it one day? I became an actress "strictly from hunger." We were pretty poor. So I went to work when I was four. Believe it or not, I was a Shakespearean actress at four. I was "Mustard Seed" in "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

But you know that way it is with us Shakespearean actors. We have to eat. So season or so later I was in a commercial theatre. I was a wave in the Hippodrome show. I was a sea spectacle, and I was one of the "actors" who ran up and down under the canvas waters to make witching waves. They most certainly have been very sad sea waves! By the way, George, do you know that Eugene O'Neill also started his career as a wave? It was in "The Count of Monte Cristo," which his father owned and played for years.

I imagine that after your first few hundred columns you sort of got the hang of it. But after an actor's first part, it grows increasingly difficult. For that is the time when memory is likely to play you a dirty trick and completely erase all recollection of your lines.

I feel somewhat that way right now, George. So what say we call it a day, or a column, or something, and write "30" — "three-oh" — "through!"

By BILLIE ROSE (Broadway's Little Napoleon does a stint for George Tucker) New York.—So you are off on a vacation, are you, George, and you want me to write a column for you?

Do you remember the morning we were going fishing and you let me stand on the dock and freeze from 3 to 7 a.m.?

Do you remember that show I put on at the Old Hip and the nasty things you said about it?

Do you remember the time you said, "but we won't bring that up. After all, this is just good clean fun. Nevertheless, I think I ought to make it a little tough for you, because you Broadway reporters are supposed to get around and know what goes on."

And I think you've been asleep on the job. At least, I've noticed a few things in the five days I've been in New York this time, and not a word have I read in the newspapers.

You guys are supposed to have a nose for news. Well, a former picture star is running a butterfly

Reports for the week ended October 30 to the Division of Epidemiology, State Board of Health, show syphilis leading in number of cases reported for the period, with 209 cases, a decline from the previous week's 333 total, but well ahead of the corresponding period in 1936, when 137 cases were reported from over the state.

Chicken pox, with 135 cases; diphtheria, with 114; measles, with 101; and whooping cough, with 104, were other cases showing numerous cases.

Total cases reported for the week "all diseases" reached 345, almost twice as many as the preceding weeks 735, and about three times as many as the 483 reported for the week ended October 31, 1936.

Outside business is becoming interested in North Carolina's many opportunities, according to J. T. Anderson, industrial engineer of the Department of Conservation and Development who has been on his job now for about two months.

"Our job is to convince industries that North Carolina is the best state in the South for them to locate in," said Mr. Anderson. "There is no doubt that North Carolina has a great advantage over most of the other states from the standpoint of distance to markets."

One of the loveliest dancers in New York was once hopelessly crippled. There is a guy on Broadway whose heart is as tough as a Sixth Avenue steak. That's what everybody thinks. But he is really a sentimentalist, and this summer he picked up 25 kids off the street and sent them to summer camp, at his own expense. You never heard about that, did you? Yet, he is a well-known guy.

You see, George, you would really need a vacation if you dug out all the stories that are being around and crying to be written.

But don't ask me to write them. I've got troubles of my own. I'm too busy trying to find somebody to pinch hit for me while I go off on a vacation.

What It Means: THE LABOR VOTE

(By Morgan M. Beatty) Washington.—The November elections prove one thing—duces will be wild in America's political poker game next year, and again in 1940.

And labor will hold the duces against the old-line Republican and Democratic parties.

While local issues cluttered up the results this year in such cities as New York, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Canton and Akron, O., the labor vote played a conspicuous part in these and other municipal elections.

Through them all, however, four important facts stick out to plague the regular political party organizations.

1 Labor groups can organize big blocs of votes in eastern industrial areas without the help of any outside forces.

This most important fact was demonstrated in New York City. There the American Labor party entered the political ring for the first time a year ago to vote for President Roosevelt and Governor Herbert H. Lehman, the Democratic candidates. The labor party surprised everybody by polling well over 200,000 votes.

The Vote in Detroit This year, the New-York labor organization gave its support to a Republican-Fusion mayor and a Republican candidate for district attorney, and mustered another sharp surprise. Its vote stood well over 400,000—almost double the number cast in 1936. This time, mind you, Republican and not Democratic candidates were supported.

Likewise in Detroit, where labor took a sound beating the CIO nevertheless rolled up more than 150,000 votes in its first election. That's a big chunk of votes in anybody's language.

2 Labor groups, especially if they should unite, are in a position to hold a balance of power between the old-line Democratic and Republican parties in thickly populated eastern cities.

That's why labor can hold the duces in the political poker game that will run through the congressional elections next year and the presidential race of 1940. Both old-line parties necessarily will be on needles and pins. They can't afford to show off their traditional conservative supporters, and yet their easiest chance to win may rest with the labor vote.

An Item For 1940 The balance of power principle was demonstrated more or less clearly in New York and Pittsburgh the other day. Labor in New York threw 400,000 votes to Republican-Fusion LeGuardia for mayor. That's almost exactly his margin of victory. In Pittsburgh the labor group, again identified loosely with the CIO helped put the city in the Democratic fold.

Conceivably, the American Labor party, the label used in New York, could pile up enough votes to swing the whole balance of power in New York state in 1940 and New York has 40-odd electoral votes.

3 Labor's direct political action is too young a movement to stand shoulder to shoulder with the old parties and hope to carry an important election.

Detroit, where non-partisan municipal elections have been the rule for many years, didn't like the idea of a frankly labeled CIO labor candidate. The Michigan auto city, where the CIO is highly organized, decisively swamped the CIO mayoral candidate, Patrick H. O'Brien.

Eastern Vote Heaviest That's further evidence that labor leaders will probably play their cards with the old parties, and force concessions from them, rather than risk suffocation in the 1938 and 1940 elections.

4 Labor's voting strength counts heaviest in the biggest cities east of the Mississippi river. There has been no proof yet that new political action is effective in the western states among organized workers, or in smaller cities of the west.

Labor's defeat in Akron and Canton, O., city elections the other day hastens labor's weakness so far in those medium-sized industrial cities. There the traditional Republican candidates swept into office despite the helping hand that CIO gave the Democrats.

That's why labor can hold the duces in the political poker game that will run through the congressional elections next year and Washington.—One of the most solemn spots in America is the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Behind the scene not all is solemn.

Many a soldier marching patiently up and down, before that historic granite block has preserved his monastic calm while his feet tortured him unmercifully and flies and mosquitoes pestered him.

The job of keeping guard over that tomb is a sacred job in the army, but it is no Sunday school picnic.

Here is how it is done. Nine men and three non-commissioned officers, a sergeant and two corporals, take over the job for 15-day tricks. In a quiet, cathedral atmosphere they march hundreds of miles back and forth in those 15 days.

One man at a time marches over a 30-yard course. He marches two hours and is off four hours. That parading goes on from sunrise until Arlington cemetery closes at night.

During his two hours on guard the soldier may speak to no one. He avoids meeting the eyes of anyone. He learns to look right through people. He never smiles.

Girls Bother Guards The annoying part of it is that spectators try to get the soldiers to smile.

"Girls are the worst," said one soldier who had finished one 15-day stint and was glad to be through with it.

"Girls," he said, "stand right before the path and try to catch your eye. The corporal is right over there watching you. Sometimes so is the officer of the day. If they catch a guy smiling they burn him up."

The watch is maintained on a 24-hour basis, but after the crowds leave the soldiers don't march back and forth. They sit around the tomb and smoke.

For the first few years the soldiers marched along the bare granite. Then a rubber carpet was laid for them to walk on it wouldn't be can change the gun from one shoulder to the other, but he can't carry it alone in his hand.

TEACHERS WIN FIRST OF YEAR

Local College Team Defeats High Point "Panthers"

By BERT MOYE
Coach Joe Alexander's Pirates won their first football game of the season here Saturday afternoon, defeating the Panthers of High Point College, 19-7. The game was the final home game of the season for the Pirates and the victory was a most deserving one.

The Teachers scored on the opening kickoff of Secret, when Bill Shelton, half-back caught the ball on his own five-yard line and raced 95 yards for a touchdown. The game at this time was less than a minute old. Cecot then placekicked the extra point.

This sensational run by Bill Shelton was one of the most spectacular ever seen on the local college gridiron and taking the words of Coach Alexander, "he is one of the finest, broken field runners I have seen in many a day," he certainly lived up to the coaches' reputation Saturday afternoon.

During this first quarter, the Teachers played very defensive ball against the High Pointers and did not let them make a single first down, and during the entire first half made only two first downs, while the Teachers piled up a total of eight first downs.

The second score of the game came early in the second quarter on an 80-yard march down the field featuring the fine backfield running of Ferebee and Shelton, with both backs getting off for some nice long gains, eight, ten and twelve yards on a single play. Then after successive downs, Shelton hurled a pass to Joe Hatem, right end of the Teachers, which was good for 3 yards and first down.

With the ball resting on the two yard line, Shelton carried the ball over for the second touchdown, but failed to make the extra point.

As the half ended the ball resting on the Panthers 48 yard line, after a beautiful 20 yard run by Shelton through the line.

The third quarter of the game seemed to be all for High Point, because it was in this period that they made their lone touchdown. Taking the ball on their own 20 yard line the Panthers marched straight down the field on six successive first downs. It was during this period that Secret and Standing really showed what players they were for they really did carry that ball. Two passes figured in this touchdown, the first from Secret to Standing which netted approximately six yards, and a later pass from Secret to McKeithan which was good for 20 yards. With the ball resting on the five-yard stripe, Secret scored the lone touchdown, then placekicked the extra point.

The Teachers got back into the scoring column again in the final quarter, when Francis Ferebee recovered Murreget's fumble on the Panthers thirty yard line. Shelton then heaved a pass to Hatem which netted a 12-yard gain, and with the ball resting on the eight yard line, Shelton carried the ball over for the final touchdown of the game.

Each team made eleven first downs as follows: High Point made none in first period, two in second period, six in third period and three in final quarter. The Teachers made four first downs in first quarter, four in second, none in third and three in fourth quarter.

The Teachers attempted three completing two for a gain of 24 yards, while High Point attempted 13 passes, completed four for approximately 51 yards and had one High Point received only one penalty during the game a five yard penalty for an offside play, while the Teachers were penalized a total of 35 yards.

Outstanding for Panthers was the work of Secret and Standing in the backfield and Moran and Brinkley on the line. For the Teachers Ferebee, Forney and Shelton in the backfield and Hatem, Cecot, Johnson and Smith in the line. In fact the entire Teacher's team clicked to a perfection in the game and it might be added that each member of the club did their part to help the Teachers in their first win of the season.

Felix Cecot, star center of the Teachers was painfully injured during the game and will probably not see any more action with the Teachers this season. At the time of the accident Coach Alexander said he feared that Cecot had a broken or fractured rib.

The final game on the Teacher's schedule is set for next Saturday afternoon when they go to Lewisburg College to play the Trojans there.

AT NEW HAVEN, CONN. Bill Platt of the Yale eleven was caught with a textbook. Old Yalermen were cheered, however, when other pictures showed Yale gridders reading the comics, showed one athlete asleep over his schoolwork.

AT NOTRE DAME, IND. Len Skoglund, end, was seen, studying Skoglund, John Murphy and Joe Kuharich of the Irish team are honor students. Troubled fans wondered how this had affected Notre Dame in the Carnegie Tech and Illinois games.

AT CHAPEL HILL, N. C. Co-Captain Andy Bershak, end, and all-America prospect of the North Carolina team, posed with a "textbook." Alarmed alumni calmed, however, when the volume, upon close examination, seemed to be an innocuous college yearbook.

HIGHS TO MEET WAYNE ELEVEN

By Papp
Play At Third Street Stadium Thursday Afternoon

On Thursday afternoon of this week the football team of Greenville High School will play the toughest team on their schedule, the team representing Goldsboro High School. The game will be played at the Third Street park and will start at 2 o'clock.

According to fans who have been following the high school teams this season, Goldsboro has the best team in the state. Goldsboro's Earthquakes have played seven of the strongest teams in Eastern Carolina, and have won all seven games. An example of their strength is their 14-0 victory over Wilson, which at the present time is leading the "A" conference of the state. Among other Goldsboro has also beaten Morehead City 32-0 and Fayetteville 26-0.

Outstanding for the Earthquakes are Thigpen, a tackle, and Daughtry, a halfback. Both players are tall, heavy and fast.

Coach Herman Dally, of Greenville High School, today stated that he felt that his Flying Phantoms are in good condition and have a good chance to break the Goldsboro winning streak. The main problem in the Greenville camp is to locate a successor to quarterback Tom Parrish, who was injured in last week's game with Tarboro. Possibly Coach Dally will start Charles Putrell, who showed up rather well last week after Parrish was removed from the game. Putrell's passing and kicking was a large factor in Greenville's victory over Tarboro.

Week in and week out, Bruiser Kinard, the University of Mississippi's captain and tackle, plays a brand of football that promises to earn him serious consideration when all-American honors are handed out.

Saturday, October 23 happened to be Kinard's 23rd birthday. So he put on a special show at the expenses of Ouchita.

The Ole Miss captain kicked off to Ouchita, then followed his boot down the field and over the Tiger goal line, where he fell on the free ball for a touchdown. To make it complete he kicked the extra point, thus accounting for seven points and making one of the rarest and most spectacular plays in the annals of football.

With every game Kinard is adding lustre to a name already listed among southern immortals. After the Temple game, in which the Owls and Ole Miss battled to a scoreless tie, Pop Warner said: "I don't see how the big boy managed to break through and throw my backs for losses the way he did. We had three men on him, yet he was the stoutest player on the field. If he is not an all-America tackle, then I have never seen one."

Bernie Moore, the Louisiana State mentor, was equally lavish in his praise of Kinard. "I don't think there is a greater tackle than Kinard in the country today. And I've seen the best. It's a treat to watch him work. He's in your backfield most of the afternoon giving you a scare."

His own coach, Ed Walker, a star under Warner at Stanford, finds Kinard "the ideal football player."

The Rebel captain has everything it takes to make a great tackle. He weighs 215 pounds yet is fast enough to run the "100" in 10.4 seconds. He kicks off, place kicks for the extra point, and is a 60-minute player in every game.

In addition to his great defensive play, Kinard is the team's best blocker; is down under punts to nail the receivers in their tracks, and is a likeable chap and a great leader.

Colored Scouts Go To Camporee. Nearly every colored Scout troop in Pitt county was represented at a colored camporee held at Rocky Mount, Nov. 5-6-7. Eighty-four boys from all over the East Carolina Council were present. This made twelve full patrols.

The Negro county agent is again on duty after spending a very profitable week in Raleigh.

All 4-H club members are asked to bring their record books to the agent's office, that he might be able to send them to specialist, R. E. Jones, Greensboro, by Nov. 15.

In addition to saving expenses in other ways, a good plan will be for each farmer to gather in all farming tools, look them over, repair, grease and store in a dry place. This done, one will find in the spring when he is ready for work, that he has saved time.

The season for harvesting is in full blast. While being careful of your own lives, watch where you throw your cigarette stumps. One stump may cause the lives of hundreds of baby trees, aside from doing other damage.

C. R. Hudson will be with the agent Nov. 9 to measure the corn demonstration. Each 4-H club boy is asked to be in place, in order to save time.

Now that we are making steps towards the end of a perfect year, let us shape some plans that will help us live long and better in the coming year.

Among some of the suggestions, the agent advises good health, peace of mind, well planned work, at least one hour of rest and leisure each day by stimulating an interest in the unfortunate, by promoting friendliness, neighborliness, which reach out into the community.

Let's make this our work.
