MASS MEETING HERE TONIGHT AT 8 O'CLOCK

Citizens Urged to Attend Gathering in Court House

STATE ABC HEAD WILL BE HEARD

Meeting Called In Connection with Crusade Against Vice in Pitt County

The first general mass meeting called by the Greenville Law and Order League, since it was established early in 1936, will be held at the court house tonight at 8 o'clock.

The meeting was called at a preliminary session held last week at the call of the mayor after the Ministerial Association had requested that such action be taken.

Citizens of the county as well as of Greenville are urged to attend the meeting, at which conditions which made necessary the current crusade against vice will be discussed with a hope of devising some means to rid the county of such conditions.

One spokesman for the League declared "the people of the county should know the true situation as it exists."

Representatives of the ABC Board local and county peace officers and others have been invited to be present. Cutlar Moore of Raleigh, chairman of the State ABC Board, will be here and make a short talk. No lengthy addresses will be made, however, and any person present will be given an opportunity to speak if he or she desires to be heard regarding existing conditions in the county.

The League is emphasizing that the meeting in no manner is a partisan or personal matter. The campaign against illicit liquor and vice brought to the public attention conditions existing in the county and resulted in the calling of the citizens' mass meeting. Discussions on what is being done and what can be done will be the chief business of the meeting.

Contract Let For Rural Power Line

The contract for constructing the entire Pitt-Greene rural electrification project has been let to the F. G. Hitt company of Culpeper, Va., which submitted a low bid of $55,115.76.

The contract price includes all materials and labor. The total cost of the project, with meters and overhead added, will be $59,337.83. Work should be completed by late in the winter, a bulletin issued by the Rural Electrification administration, set forth, but it was explained that local conditions beyond the control often cause delay. One of the most frequent causes of delay is the difficulty in securing rights-of-way. No REA fund may be used to pay for rights of way.

The project, sponsored by the Pitt-Greene Electric Membership corporation, calls for 56 miles of rural power lines in the two counties. An original allotment of $60,000 was made for the project. REA Administrator Carmody has wired the contractor to begin work at once.

Grimesland Citizen Claimed By Death

W. Bryant Arnold, 57 died at his home near Grimesland this morning at 10:30. Mr. Arnold had been ill only a week.

Funeral services will be conducted from the home at 2:30 Thursday afternoon. Burial will be in the family burial ground near Black Jack.

Surviving are Mrs. Arnold; one son, Willie Arnold, Winterville; one daughter, Mrs. Ella Norville, Fountain, N. C.; two brothers, Jim and Allen Arnold, both of Grimesland; one sister Mrs. Lottie Wayne, Vanceboro, N. C.

Damage Suits Filed Against Two Officers

Two damage suits, asking $2,500 each, have been filed in Pitt County Superior court here by Jesse Heath and wife, against J. S. Batson and J. M. Ward, officers employed by the Pitt County ABC board.

Two separate complaints were filed. Each alleges that the officers fired pistols, the bullets lodging in a window sill near the heads of the two complainants, thereby causing them mental anguish.

CONVICTED KIDNAPERS SEIZE GUARDS, ESCAPE

Executing a bold, carefully-timed delivery plot, three of eight men convicted of kidnaping John J. O'Connell, Jr., of Albany, N. Y., in 1933, tied up the guard staff of six men and escaped from the Onondaga county penitentiary near Syracuse, N. Y. Prison Superintendent H. H. Paddock (top) points to the hole through which Percy Geary, described as the leader, escaped after sawing away cell bars. The fugitives are shown below. Left to right: Geary, and John Oley of Albany and Harold Crowley of New York City.

SEC. WALLACE READS SPEECH

President Unable Personally to Address College Heads

Mount Vernon, Va., Nov. 17.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today George Washington's career made it "almost certain" the first President would have favored present day "government action to aid farmers."

Washington, Mr. Roosevelt said, showed by his own words "that he considered agricultural production, even in his time, to be much more than a local matter."

The President's remarks were delivered to presidents of land grant colleges and universities gathered at Washington's home in connection with the 75th anniversary of the establishment of the Agriculture Department. Because the chief executive was confined to the White House with tooth ailment, his remarks were read by Secretary Wallace.

The President, calling Washington the first "master farmer," declared:

"Knowing what we do of George Washington's belief in a national government strong enough to cope with the problems of his time and his perception of the importance of agriculture as the foundation of our national life, we can be sure that had he lived today he would have acted boldly to keep agriculture from going down to ruin.

"We could be sure he would not have denied to agriculture advantages which government has so freely granted to industry. All his actions indicate that he would have supported farmers in programs of the type they have adopted."

Violent Deaths In State On Increase

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Violent deaths, with 102 fatalities from automobile accidents leading the list, claimed 180 North Carolinians during October, a gain of three over October, 1936.

The Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Board of Health reported today there were 30 suicides and 32 homicides last month, compared with 24 suicides and 30 homicides in October, 1936.

The automobile toll jumped 11 over October of last year and 12 deaths from burns last month showed an increase of two over a year ago. Death from accidental shooting

Vehicle Stolen From Streets Of Greenville

An automobile owned by C. J. Walton, of Greenville, R. F. D. Two, was stolen from where it was parked on Dickinson avenue last night while the driver, William Walton, was in a local theatre.

The automobile was a 1933 Ford V-8 coach.

LITTLE DONE IN EITHER HOUSE UP TO PRESENT

Talk Rather Than Work Consumes Most of Sessions

SEEK BRING UP WAGE-HOUR BILL

Agriculture Committees Still Not Ready to Present Farm Legislation to Floors

Washington, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The House Labor Committee renewed its effort to force consideration of the administration's wage-hour bill today while Congress consumed more of the special session in talk rather than in work.

Chairman Norton (D. N. J.) announced only two of the 21 labor committee members had voted for recalling the bill for revision. She said the committee majority would work on obtaining the necessary number of signatures, 218, to a petition that would bring the measure direct to the house floor.

The wages and hours bill has been tied up in the House Rules Committee since last session.

Across the capitol, the Senate remained in the throes of a southern filibuster against the anti-lynching bill. Senator Connolly (D-Tex) had the floor.

At the Texan's direction, clerks resumed reading where they left off yesterday a 14 page speech by Justice Hugo Black. Black was an opponent of anti-lynching legislation while serving as senator from Alabama.

The house session started discussion of the wage-hour bill.

Representative Taber (R. N. Y.) said the legislation is "one of the most dangerous measures ever presented to the Congress of the United States."

Representative Ramspeck (D-Ga.) replied with a defense of the creation and proposed operation of the wage board that would be set up by the measure.

Senate and house agriculture committees still were not ready with farm legislation. Secretary Wallace advised the senate group to adopt a middle course between extreme compulsory control and voluntary control over farm production.

White Man Taken At Still In Belvoir

Pitt county ABC officers, J. M. Ward and J. L. Taylor, this morning added another still to the long list of the illicit plants located and destroyed in the past several weeks.

Mack Lewis, white man found at the plant, was arrested, but was later released under bond of $200. Officers said a Negro at the still escaped.

The still was located in Belvoir township. The ABC officers found the still yesterday, but waited until this morning to raid it. It was not in operation yesterday and the officers waited until today to make the raid in hopes of catching the owner.

About 1,200 gallons of beer found at the still was destroyed. The plant, of the steam type, had a capacity of 100 gallons.

Only One Defendant In City Police Court

Only one case was heard in City police court this morning and in this the defendant was bound over to County court.

Larry Early, Negro, was ordered to appear in the higher court to face a charge of careless and reckless driving.

Search Intensified For Three Escaped Convicts

Syracuse Man Claims He Was Held Up By Kidnapers

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 17.—(AP)—State Police, local officers and Federal agents today concentrated their grand man hunt for three prisoners, convicted of the 1933 John O'Connell, Jr. kidnaping here after a local detective reported a man claimed he was held up by the armed trio.

Detective Sergeant Arthur Holden of the Syracuse Police reported identified three men who held him up last night as Percy Geary, 34, John Oley, 36, and Harold Crowley, 35 the convicts who staged a daring escape from the Onondaga county jail at nearby Jamesville, N. Y. early yesterday.

King said, according to Holden, the three men entered his car and forced him at gun point to drive toward Manlius. When he saw troopers stopping cars ahead, King was quoted as saying, he was ordered to take a side road and circle back to Syracuse.

There, King was reported as saying, the men made him drive to his home and force his mother to prepare a meal. After eating, King said according to Holden, the men fled from the house.

The report sent State Troopers and police into Syracuse rooming houses and buildings, scouring every known criminal hideout, in the hope of tracking down the prisoners who trussed up six guards in fleeing from the Jamesville jail where they were held pending appeals from Federal prison sentences for the kidnaping.

Destructive Typhoon Again Hits Philippines

Manila, Nov. 17.—(AP)—A typhoon swept over the islands of Cebu and Panay in the central Philippines today, disabling radio stations and the Cebu power plant. It was the second typhoon to strike the Philippines in three days.

Fragmentary reports from Cebu, 350 miles south from Manila, said the city's power plant had been disabled and all control lines torn down. The city of Capiz also was hard hit.

May Hold Proctor In South Carolina

Columbia, S. C. Nov. 17.—(AP)—Police Chief W. H. Rawlinson said today authorities had not decided whether two escaped North Carolina convicts apprehended here would be returned to North Carolina immediately.

He and Lieutenant Leo Jenkins, State Highway Patrol identification officer, said warrants were out for four men, including the two captured, charging participation in a series of recent South Carolina robberies.

Rawlinson said the men arrested in a hotel here Monday night were Worth (Dick) Proctor and Sam Thompson. He named the other two as William (Bill) Payne and Jack Borden, also escaped convicts and North Carolina's most sought criminals.

Rawlinson said he believed Payne and Borden were the men who escaped during a police chase at the same time Proctor and Thompson were arrested.

Payne and Borden shared with murder in the slaying of Geo. Penn, a State Highway Patrolman near Asheville several months ago.

FRESH TROOPS SENT TO FRONT

Commanders Assert Counter Attack Permits Formation Of New Lines; Declare China Will Not Capitulate or Compromise With Invading Japanese

Shanghai, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Heavily reinforced Chinese armies struck back at Japanese invaders today in a counter-attack along the "Hindenburg line" defending Nanking, some 125 miles away.

Thousands of fresh troops from the interior marched eastward to bolster Chinese forces southeast of the capital. At the same time civilians fled from Nanking to the west and the evacuation of government offices was underway.

Chinese commanders said the counter attack had permitted them to form new lines and declared: "We will not capitulate or compromise with Japan. We will fight to the last ditch."

General Chiang Kai-shek had several hundred thousand trained troops at his disposal. A force of 150,000 warriors arrived Nanking from the upper reaches of the mighty Yangtze.

In North China the famous Communist Eighth army harassed communication lines and garrisons of the Japanese. Commanders here disclosed the same tactics would be used if Japanese succeeded in crossing the Yellow river and taking Tsinanfu province capital.

Japanese forces pushed southward in Shansi province. Civil departments of the Chinese government were divided into three groups for evacuation of Nanking.

Evacuation of 70 American, 38 British and 100 German subjects was being arranged by American and foreign Embassies.

Government Will Purchase Peanuts

The Peanut Stabilization Corporation will begin purchases tomorrow and farmers will be paid a minimum of three and one-quarter cents per pound for standard quality peanuts.

County Agent R. R. Bennett announced that the Commercial Credit Corporation had finally granted approval for the Greenville Oil and Fertilizer warehouse to be used for storing peanuts purchased by the Stabilization Corporation. He added the approval was granted only after much persuasion on the part of his office and J. I. Morgan of Farmville in behalf of the warehouse owners.

Peanuts purchased under the plan will be diverted into oil or meal and directed away from the regular channels.

The Stabilization Corporation purchasing peanuts, County Agent Bennett advised farmers against rushing their products to the markets. The corporation will purchase U. S. No. 3, class A at $45 per ton, class B at $41, and class C at $37 per ton.

To Argue Appeal For Smoak Before Court

Raleigh, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The Supreme Court next week will hear oral argument in the case of E. L. Smoak, sentenced to death after his conviction in New Hanover county of the poisoning of his daughter, Annie Thelma Smoak.

Also before the court next week will be the appeal of George Stevenson, sentenced in Columbus county to die after conviction of first degree burglary.

Athenum Club Takes A Trip. The Athenum Club went to the Orient Tuesday afternoon—the last members felt that they were there, as they listened to Mrs. J. S. Ficklen tell of her last trip to Honolulu, Japan, and China. So graphically did she describe the amazing beauties of Honolulu that we could see in our mind's eye the mountains in the distance as they towered above the masses of fragrant, colored flowers and crowds of picturesque natives. With her we also traversed the roads of old Japan in the cherry blossom time and visited with the solemn Japanese the various shrines of Buddha. We sailed on the inland sea to Shanghai and partook of a Chinese "informal" dinner, consisting of sixteen courses. We did all this in our imagination, and at the close of her story, we deplored with her the terrible devastation which has taken place in China in the past few months. It was a most enjoyable journey and we are quite sure that no one, other than Mrs. Ficklen, could have packed so much entertainment and information in one small half-hour.

The Round Table. Colorful foliage in glowing fall tints was used as decorations on Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. C. T. Munford when she was hostess to the ladies of the Round Table.

In addition to the members present Mrs. Munford had as her guests Mrs. Smith of Milwaukee, Mrs. Julius Etheridge and Mrs. Wyatt Brown.

Mrs. Vincent extended a special invitation to the Round Table to attend a lecture to be given by Wm. G. Hoke on Friday evening at eight o'clock, as special feature of Book Week being observed by the library.

Mrs. Vincent also invited inspection of a collection of old books recently given the library by Mrs. Jessie Joyner McArthur.

At the close of the business session Mrs. H. L. Carr presented a paper entitled, "Four Women's Columnists." She briefly reviewed the life of Nell Battle Lewis, whose column "Incidentally," is always read with interest. She chose as her second writer Mrs. Blanch Manor, familiar to the readers of the society section of the News and Observer through her column "Chatter." The third writer of whom she spoke was Dorothy Dix, first known as the best of "sob sister writers," but in later years as the counsellor and ally to the love-lorn and socially ill-adjusted. For her fourth columnist, Mrs. Carr chose the brilliant Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, better known as Dorothy

Christian Science Church. "Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, November 14.

The golden text was from Gal. 4:6, 7. "Because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the spirit of his son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father. Wherefore thou art no more servant, but a son, and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson sermon was the following from the Bible: "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth. For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ, who is our life, shall appear then shall ye also appear with him in glory." (Col. 3:1-4).

The lesson sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus gave the true idea of being which results in infinite blessings to mortals. In Colossians (III:4) Paul writes: 'When Christ, who is our life, shall appear (be manifested), then shall ye also appear (be manifested) with him in glory.' When spiritual being is understood in all its perfection, continuity, and might then shall man be found in God's image. The absolute meaning of the apostolic words is this: Then shall man be found, in His likeness, perfect as the Father, indestructible

Chatham Book Club. The Chatham Book Club held its regular Tuesday meeting at the home of Mrs. W. P. Moore on Fourth street. Plans for aiding in the observance of National Book Week and in the sale of Red Cross Seals were made and approved. The meeting was then turned over to the chairman of the program committee, Mrs. W. P. Moore, who introduced Mrs. Con Lanier as speaker for the afternoon.

Mrs. Lanier's subject "Three Outstanding Men of North Carolina," was most interesting from first to last. She chose Andrew Jackson, Andrew Johnston and Josephus Daniels as the three most outstanding native sons contributors to the political growth of the nation. She sketched their lives from their beginnings in the old North State, giving many interesting details and left us with an added appreciation of Jackson and Johnston and warm pride in our own Josephus Daniels.

Monthly Supper Club. The Monthly Supper Club of the Eighth Street Christian Church met last night at 6:30. After a delightful supper carrying out the Thanksgiving idea, a brief business meeting was held.

"Popularity" by Regina Wastcott Wieman, was the subject of the instructive talk by Mrs. Wm. A. Ryan. She discussed "Ordinary Popularity" with which you could fit any group—"Worthy Popularity" which would place you in a group with strong leadership—and "Popularity as a Business Proposition" in which you had to be choosy.—Reported.

William L. Folk To Speak Here. Mr. William L. Folk of Warrenton, will speak to friends of the library in the auditorium of Shepard Memorial Library Friday, November 19th. Mr. Folk is chairman of the Citizens Library Movement in the state, a movement organized a few years ago by Dr. Frank Graham of the University.

Mr. Folk's remarks upon his favorite subject make one consciously appreciate books for ones self and others, housed in a beautiful building, and maintained by a generous citizenship. This talk will deal with public libraries in the state and point to a greater usefulness for our own. All the book clubs and civic clubs of the city are sponsoring this closing feature of Book Week, and all other friends and patrons are invited to attend.

Chatham Book Club. The Chatham Book Club held its regular Tuesday meeting at the home of Mrs. W. P. Moore on Fourth street. End of the Century Club. An unusually interesting meeting of the End of the Century Club was held Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. L. R. Meadows.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. James Ficklen, Mrs. R. C. Stokes presided over a short business session.

Mrs. Little reported that she and Mrs. Batchelor were hostesses at the library Monday afternoon representing the End of the Century Club.

Mrs. Stokes made a plea for the Thrift Shop, urging us to send our old clothes.

Mrs. Meadows called our attention to the lecture, which is to be given Friday evening at eight o'clock in Shepard Memorial Library by Mr. William Polk of Warrenton, chairman of the Citizens Library Movement of North Carolina.

After the business, Mrs. White, chairman of the program committee, presented Mrs. Frank, who had charge of the program for the afternoon.

Mrs. Frank gave a very vivid sketch of the life of Maxwell Anderson, making us feel as if we were personally acquainted with him, thereby preparing us for his play "High Tor" which was most interestingly given by Miss Hooper of E. C. T. C.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Kate Beckwith, former dean of women of E. C. T. C., Mrs. Robert Everett of Palmyra, and Miss Hooper.

A delicious salad course was served by Mrs. Meadows and her daughter, Elizabeth. The club adjourned to meet November 29 with Mrs. E. P. Ficklen.—Reported.

After the business, Mrs. White, chairman of the program committee, presented Mrs. Frank, who had charge of the program for the afternoon.

Mrs. Frank gave a very vivid sketch of the life of Maxwell Anderson, making us feel as if we were personally acquainted with him, thereby preparing us for his play "High Tor" which was most interestingly given by Miss Hooper of E. C. T. C.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Kate Beckwith, former dean of women of E. C. T. C., Mrs. Robert Everett of Palmyra, and Miss Hooper.

A delicious salad course was served by Mrs. Meadows and her daughter, Elizabeth. The club adjourned to meet November 29 with Mrs. E. P. Ficklen.—Reported.

Thompson, the best of our women political and social commentators. Speak of Miss Thompson, she characterized her as a dispassionate observer who writes with an intensity of feeling which grips and absorbs the reader. Something of her charming personality and forceful writing is portrayed in a characterization by John Gunther who draws a full length portrait of this talented woman in the words "She is an amiable, blue-eyed tornado."

At the conclusion of Mrs. Carr's paper, the hostess served delicious refreshments with unique and charming decorations.—Reported.

Fire Alarm
Smoke coming from the roof of Dr. C. J. O'Hagan's residence caused a fire alarm to be turned in this morning. The fire department responded promptly and a large number of citizens hurried that way, but we were glad to state they found no fire. An examination showed a large crack in the chimney and the high wind had driven smoke back down the chimney forcing it through the crack under the roof, the smoke escaping through the shingles.

Will Wynne, A Wonder on a Wheel!
Will Wynne is a wonder! This is the declaration of all our people who saw him ride a bicycle. For people expected much of him and this expectation was fully realized. The first feature of Tuesday's exhibition was the bicycle parade at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. At this hour thirty-six riders met at the Planter's Warehouse and from there paraded the principal streets of the town. Mayor Perkins kindly granted a request to allow the parade to pass along the sidewalk on the south side of Dickinson avenue which was very much appreciated by the riders. The parade passed down the avenue to Five Points, then up Evans street and around several others, returning twice more through Evans street and the avenue before the parade closed. Crowds of people were out on the streets to witness the parade and so many riders in line made a handsome appearance. Mr. L. H. Pender led the parade with his tandem and at intervals Mr. Wynne executed fancy tricks as the procession moved along.

More than two hundred were present at the exhibition at the warehouse and all were charmed with Mr. Wynne's riding.

Mr. Wynne's riding was truly marvelous. He would ride in every position imaginable and execute all manner of contortions while his wheel flew swiftly around the floor. Mr. Wynne's mount in this exhibition was the Raycycle, a strong, handsome wheel. It was a good bicycle or it could never have stood the severe tests he gave it.

The Forbes orchestra furnished delightful music for the occasion.

The ladies of the Baptist Church sold refreshments and a nice sum was made from this feature as well as from admissions to the exhibitions.

Book Week
Displaying Book Exhibits.
In celebration of National Book Week the Greenville branch of the A. A. U. W. is displaying book exhibits this week in a number of windows down town through the courtesy of the firms whose windows were used.

The nature window at Blount-Harvey's, with its books on plants and insects and its fall leaves, is the work of Dr. Lucile Turner and Miss Louise Williams of the college.

The travel window at Heber Forbes' with its invitation to the passer-by to visit far-off places, also was arranged by Dr. Turner, with the help of Miss Emma Hooper and Miss Frances Wahl.

A poetry window in Quinn-Miller's features numerous attractive books of poems, famous definitions of poetry, and comments of famous people on the relation of poetry to life. This was arranged for the A. A. U. W. by Miss Lois Grigsby of the College English department, with contributions from Miss Turner, Miss Williams and Miss Mamie E. Jenkins.

DO YOU KNOW?
Here are twenty questions designed to test your general knowledge of books. How well do you read? Do incidents, characters and facts stand out in your memory to help you relieve again and again the high adventures encountered in books? Isn't an unusual incident made more meaningful in reminiscence if we can tie it up satisfactorily with the characters? Do you ever try vainly to recall the author of your most appreciated quotation? How well do you read? How well do you remember? Try yourself on these questions. Count 5 per cent for each correct answer. A score of 60 per cent is fair, 70 per cent is good, 80 per cent very good, 90 per cent is exceptional, and 100 percent is perfect. (The answers will be found in tomorrow's column).

1. What is the derivation of the modern word "book" and what imperishable word is now associated with it?

2. When and by whom was the first almanac, literally a calendar, published in the United States?

3. Who has been the subject of more books than anyone (except Christ) since the very beginning of book making?

4. What is the name of a blind girl who wrote a story of her life?

5. What is the name of the Indian character who is the "last of the Mohicans"?

6. Who won a skating race in Holland?

7. Who was Scrooge?

8. Who ate 169 pancakes?

9. Who retold Shakespeare's plays in story form?

10. Where did the words "open sesame" originate?

11. "What man slept for twenty years?"

12. Who said, "The world is so full of a number of things."

13. What English author who once lived in India died in 1936?

14. Smoky is the name of a—?

15. In what book did Uncle Tom appear?

16. What are the names of the "Three Musketeers"?

17. What is the name of the book in which Mr. Micaber appears?

18. What was Mr. Micaber's favorite saying?

19. What is the name of the novel without a hero?

20. What are the names of five living North Carolina authors? (Watch tomorrow's column for answers).

The Characters

Nina, Junior League and co-educante, impulsively married David, hoping to end her love for her stepfather.

Richard, the charming well-tailored stepfather, returns from a cruise with his wife and races to Nina's side.

Honey, Nina's gay, youthful mother, is wild about Richard and does not suspect the strong attraction between him and Nina.

David, a bright young auto salesman on a small salary, adores Nina but they argue over money matters.

Chapter 39

In Richard's Kennel

NINA woke up with the feeling that it was her birthday, or Christmas, or something wonderful.

She felt a little the way Hester must have, on the evening of that eventful Hunt ball: that she had been wandering round in a mist, trying to find her way, trying to make the best of it . . . but that, now, suddenly, everything was clear. Sunshine was burning through the murkiness, and she knew where she wanted to go.

Nina stretched deliciously, without opening her eyes. She felt alive and young, and excited, and calm, all at the same time. And presently—when her stretching limbs encountered no obstacle—she knew that she was alone.

A quick peek affirmed it. David had gone.

It didn't trouble her that he was still angry enough to have left without a word. It simplified everything.

She relaxed and shut her eyes again, and thought of Richard, and Richard, and nothing else.

She went over everything he had said the night before: "God! How I've waited for this!" "I've been half mad with wanting you . . . and I'm back, lovely. I'll make you happy . . ." Of course, he would!

She pondered on the queer, deadening effect of heat and dishwashing, and poverty that had actually made her think she had got over him.

She wished that last night could happen all over again, when she wasn't quite so hysterical, so that she could appreciate, to the full, the wonder of his return . . . still loving her, still wanting her, to the exclusion of everything else.

And, although Nina didn't dwell on the practical side of things, she couldn't help realizing how well the details were working out; they had to give up the apartment, anyway; and Gracie would be just around the corner, waiting to comfort David, to assure him that Nina had never been the right girl for him . . . to cook and clean and be merry about it, and, some day, make him a marvelous wife, herself.

When Nina came to the thought of Honey, she could think of no justification for what she was planning to do, but just then the telephone rang, and it was Richard. All thoughts of her mother were driven from Nina's mind.

A Date For Tea

"GOOD morning . . . angel."

Oh, how had she ever lived without the sound of his voice! What was he wearing . . . his black dressing-gown with the silver dragons? Or had he—oh, surely, he must have bought himself some new, marvelous things at Charvet, in Paris.

Richard was talking in a low voice . . . probably from the telephone closet in the hall . . . well, soon now, all that would be over. There would be nothing to hide. Everyone would know.

He was saying: "I got a Renault, abroad. It'll be off the boat by noon . . . We'll motor out of town this afternoon for tea. I shan't be here, this morning, when you come, darling . . . pick you up about 3:30 at your place . . ."

"Yes . . . 3:30, then."

They said goodbye, directly after that. He couldn't talk, evidently; but Nina dressed for the ordeal of her visit to Honey, with her heart thumping wildly. She sang little snatches of songs, and raced Button around the block, so that he came in panting, and regarded Nina, from the coolness of the tiled floor in the bathroom, with surprised and loving eyes.

It had been nearly five months since Nina had been to the house on 74th street.

She hadn't thought of anything except how happy she was, on the way over; but now, as she stood on the familiar stoop, as Bridget welcomed her—red and freckled from her summer vacation—as she heard Honey's voice calling from above, Nina had a sinking feeling in her insides at the thought of the bomb she was going to fling into this tranquil house.

It grew worse as she entered her mother's room and saw her, in a sea of tissue paper, surrounded by new finery . . . laughing . . . holding out her arms . . .

"Nina . . . Baby!"

Nina's "Honey!" was almost a sob.

But she mustn't think about it—yet.

It was just as it had always been, after Honey's yearly returns from Europe.

Presents for Nina. Showing off of new clothes. Anecdotes . . . Honey looked marvelously well . . . tanned and plump as ever, but asking, as she did every year, if Nina didn't think she looked thinner.

Marie, raving over the new undies Honey was showing into the library with still more little animal figures for that crowded room . . . flowers arriving, in s'acks of white boxes . . .

All Honey's favorite dishes for lunch, sent up by old Margaret in the kitchen, tickled quite nicely with her bag and scarf and lame blouse from Paris.

Incessant telephone calls . . . Sometimes in the past, Nina had felt a little hurt that Honey was always so full of her own trips, so eager to show off her new things, that she didn't have much time to ask what Nina had been doing. On she would ask all right, but usually with her eye on her trunks . . . or her mind on something else . . . and then she would say, reproachfully, the next day "Now, baby, you haven't told me a thing about yourself!" . . . just as though it had been Nina's fault.

But, today, she was glad of it. When Honey asked about herself and David, Nina said: "Now, this is your day, darling . . . let's talk about you." And that was what Honey really wanted. The rest would come later, when the first excitement of homecoming had worn off.

About 2:30, Nina managed to get away. She had to take a taxi, her arms were so full of presents, underwear, and perfume, and things for the house, that made her feel badly, like Italian linen, and some marvelous old decanters . . . and a dressing-gown for David, too . . .

A little of her early-morning thrill had worn off. It was not easy to be carrying back presents from a mother you were planning to supplant . . . to an apartment and a husband you were planning to leave . . .

'Anything You Want'

BUT an hour later, Richard at her door brought the thrill all back again.

When he kissed her, it was as though he poured a burning, life-giving wine into her tired body.

He followed her into the bedroom while she put on her hat and found a fresh pair of gloves; and though he devoured her with his eyes, she could not help noticing that he did not mess up again—as David would have done—once she was fixed.

The afternoon was fresh—it had rained in the morning, and then it had stopped.

The Renault was maroon, with pigskin upholstery . . . quite a nice-looking. Richard drove with an ease that was not exactly David's careless abandon, but was expert and casual, just the same. The extremely long wheel base was no more trouble to him than if it had been a shorter car; and he looked as though he belonged in its foreign smartness . . . So did Nina.

She felt as if she had been away on a long journey, and was home again.

He said: "Look around you, notice and remember everything. This is a big day for us . . . my sweet Nina."

"I was . . . I'll never forget today."

She never did.

"We feel better about it, now that we have both really tried and failed . . . don't we, Nina?"

She had wanted him to say that. "Yes, Richard . . . I wanted you to say that."

He reached over and took her hand. Placed it, under his, on the thin, black steering wheel.

"We've both said lots of very wise, solemn things about this love of ours, haven't we, angel? But now, we're just going to be—happy."

"Yes, Richard. Happy."

He said: "Are you going to make me—really happy, little Nina? More than just talking about it?"

The little pulse at her wrist beat to beat, frantically, as she answered: "Anything, darling . . . anything you want . . ."

"You know what I want, Nina . . . what I've wanted for so long that it seems like a dream of heaven to hear you say it will come true . . ."

"You'd better give me back my hand, Richard, and just—drive for a while, or we shall have an accident . . . I can't stand having you say things like that, without being kissed . . ."

"I think I could arrange that," smiling.

But she said: "No, no. Go on. Later . . . Where are we going, by the way?"

"Oh, up toward Tarrytown," vaguely.

It was a plan. It was so exciting that it couldn't be true . . .

BRUIN, ON BREAD LINE, SKIPS HIS WINTER SNOOZE

(By the AP Feature Service)

Yosemite, Calif. — Free lunch is changing the age-old hibernating habits of bears in Yosemite National park.

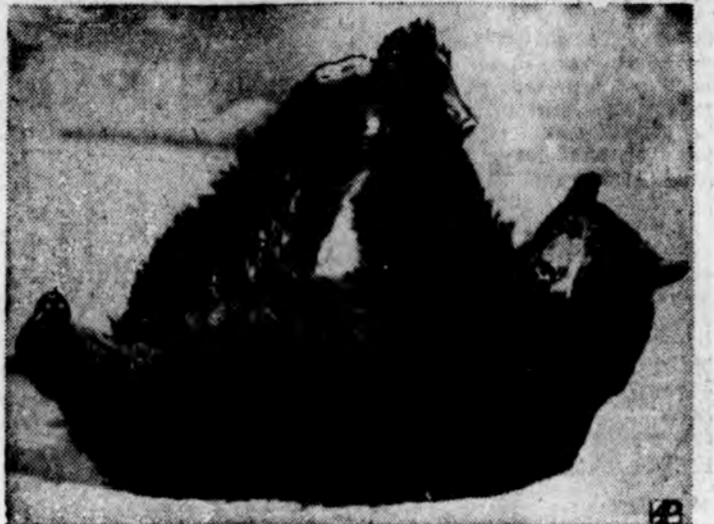

For centuries it has been Bruin's habit to climb into a cave or a hollow tree about the first of December and sleep until March.

Now that national park visitors and the parks administration have taken to feeding the animals they show less disposition to hibernate.

C. A. Harwell, Yosemite naturalist, observes the bears hanging around camps after their usual "bedtime." As long as there is food the bears are on hand. At El Portal one old fellow is treated so generously that he has given up his winter sleep altogether. The Yosemite and Sequoia park bruins, which have been under observation, are black bears.

BOTTLED GOODS

WHO SAYS HIBERNATE? Black bears, like this fellow, in Yosemite and Sequoia parks, discovering their food around all winter, are passing up their long winter naps.

SURVEY SHOWS PEANUTS POUT

Raleigh, Nov. 16—Peanuts "pout" when infested with leafhoppers, Dr. Z. P. Metcalf, of the N. C. Agricultural Experiment Station, revealed in an article published in a recent issue of Science magazine.

He said farmers had called his attention to a condition of peanut plants they called pout and which resembled closely the condition in potatoes known as tipburn.

The disease first appears as a distinct blackish discoloration at the tip of the leaflet, then spreads gradually until the whole leaf is affected.

In severe cases, the leaf turns blackish, shrivels up, and dies. Usually in the field, however, the plants recover about blooming time and there is no further evidence of the disease, Dr. Metcalf stated. Since an insect commonly known as potato or bean leafhopper had been found on the plants during the period when "pout" was evident, Dr. Metcalf started experiments to determine whether they were the cause of the trouble.

Plants protected from this insect did not "pout," while those exposed to leafhoppers developed the diseased condition.

In the laboratory, it was shown definitely that the condition is the result of toxins injected into the plants by the leafhoppers.

ATTEND TONIGHT'S MASS MEETING

Again we call attention to the citizens' mass meeting at the court house tonight and urge all citizens interested in the welfare of the community to show their interest by being present at the meeting. The meeting is for the purpose of discussing the present conditions in this county from the standpoint of bootlegging, vice and crime, and endeavor to take steps to work out a program to rid our county of these evils. Naturally all good citizens of our county should be greatly interested in this movement and the best way to bring about better conditions is for these citizens to attend the meeting, inform themselves as to what is going on and then give their support to a movement to break these things up. Tonight's meeting is not a preachers' meeting, as has been suggested by some, nor is it a political meeting; but it is a citizens' meeting called by the Law and Order League that the citizens might be informed as to conditions in this community. If you are willing for conditions in this community to continue as they are, naturally you will not be interested in tonight's meeting, otherwise you will be there.

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine
By Iago Goldston, M.D.

ATHLETICS AND HEART STRAIN

Can the heart be strained by violent exercise?
Most authorities say no. The idea that following strenuous efforts the heart may become permanently enlarged—that is, dilated or "stretched"—is not upheld by careful functional and X-ray studies of athletes' hearts. On the contrary, it has been found that following strenuous efforts, the hearts of well trained athletes are actually a little smaller than they were previously.

The popular idea that hard physical exercise injures the heart originated near the end of the last century. It was based on certain measurements of athletes' hearts, now known to have been erroneous. Recent studies employing more precise "measuring methods," have led to the unsuspected revelation that while there may be slight enlargement during the progress of exercise itself, the normal heart becomes smaller after exercise than at rest.

Sir Thomas Lewis has summarized the matter by pointing out that "when the call is excessive (the effort put forth is too great) it is the supply of blood to the muscles that will fail, not the heart."

Of course, all of this is valid only on the premise that the heart is normal, the rest of the constitution good, and the person is trained for hard effort. If and when these conditions do not prevail, strenuous exercise may indeed injure not only the heart, but numerous other parts and organs.

Possibly the reason why the belief prevails that hard physical effort "injures the heart" is because many persons witness the untoward effects of strenuous exercise in those not physically fit and, not well trained.

Much revolves about the type of hard exercise indulged in. If by hard is meant long, lasting, but even paced, it is one matter. It is still another when hard means sudden spurts of effort. The latter is more hazardous.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Nov. 17.—Gus Leazar, for several years prior to 1930 manager of Raleigh's municipal airport, has been here for several days on vacation from his Atlanta, Ga., job of managing a big airport there and of giving his advice to WPA officials on airport projects in the Cracker state.

Mr. Leazar owns a farm near here and says he intends to come back and live on it someday. He was originally from Mooresville and is quite wellknown throughout the state. He has been flying since 1915.

The state Electrification Authority board will meet Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. It has been announced by the state administrator, Dudley Bagley.

So far as seems likely, nothing but routine business will be up for consideration. Mr. Bagley said.

Automobile clubs, the oil business and others interested seem to be conducting an intensive campaign against diversion of highway funds.

From Coleman W. Roberts, president of the Carolina Motor Club comes this blast:

"The twin evils of diversion and dispersion must be eliminated if we hope to make any real progress toward building our highways up to the point where they are adequate to handle modern traffic with efficiency and dispatch."

Meanwhile S. Gilmer Sparger, state secretary of the North Carolina Petroleum Industries Committee is carrying the war to the country, speaking this week at meetings in Alexander, Avery, Watauga and Alleghany counties.

A delegation from Sampson county will confer Friday with Dudley Bagley, state Rural Electrification Authority head, regarding the proposed to secure construction of lines in the northwest corner of the county.

The project has been receiving consideration for some months, Mr. Bagley said, negotiations having been started with the Carolina Power and Light Company regarding service.

C. L. Shuping, Greensboro, has sent up another trial balloon to find out which way the senatorial winds are blowing. The arch anti-New Dealer of the state apparently isn't going to overlook any chance he may have of being hit by political lightning.

And now they've discovered that even peanuts can be bad-tempered.

"Peanuts pout when infested with leafhoppers," says Dr. Z. P. Metcalf of the North Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station.

"Well, you'd probably pout, too, if so infested."

"No health department, state or local, can effectively prevent or control diseases without knowledge of when, where and under what conditions cases are occurring," is a note at the bottom of the weekly report of "Reportable Diseases" issued by the Division of Epidemiology.

This being true, the department might try to get the 17 counties which did not report a single case for the week ended November 6, to do a bit of cooperating. And 17 is a small number compared with the number usually making no reports at all.

GREAT DEMAND FOR SOYBEANS

Being Used More and More in Various Food Products

Raleigh, Nov. 16.—The growing demand for soybeans and soybean oil is opening up a vast market for North Carolina farmers.

Besides feed for livestock, soybeans are being used more and more in the manufacture of food products and in industry, said C. B. Williams, head of the agronomy department at State College.

About 60 per cent of the crop produced in the United States last year were crushed for oil and meal. From this amount was secured 170,000,000 pounds of oil and 490,000 tons of meal, he added.

About four-fifths of the total factory consumption of soybean oil was for food products.

Relatively low land supplies at present indicate an increased use of soybean and other vegetable oils in the manufacture of lard substitutes, Williams pointed out.

Imports of soybean oil and meal into this country have been relatively small, and no material increase in imports is expected any time soon.

Cherry Not Marked With Brand Of Administration

By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Nov. 17.—Political commentators who are affixing the "brand" of the state administration to R. Gregg Cherry, Gastonia's gift to North Carolina politics, appear to be jumping to unwarranted conclusions, as well as stretching the facts of Mr. Cherry's career a bit.

For the "Iron Major" has never been, and probably will never be, the sort of chappie who jumps through anybody's hoop at command. Every act of his political life has shown that he possesses a mind of his own, which he feels free to use on his own account and not at the dictate of the administration or of any other group.

This estimate of Mr. Cherry, your correspondent believes, will be endorsed by friend and foe alike.

It is not meant to imply that the Democratic state chairman is a rampant radical, fighting the administration nor even that he is slightly on the liberal side. As a matter of fact, Mr. Cherry can rightly be listed as a conservative, but his conservatism is not of the hide-bound, stand-pat, any-change-is-worst-of-all sort.

While he presided over the 1937 House in a manner which suited Governor Clyde R. Hoey and other administration stalwarts to perfection, Cherry's political views and actions have usually been made in accord with those of the Sandy Graham group. Nobody has ever accused Sandy of being anything but conservative, but neither he nor Cherry has even had much truck with the so-called "Shelby Dynasty."

And so while Cherry can rightly be regarded as anathema to wild-eyed liberals and generally acceptable to solid business men of the state, he cannot legitimately be classed as a pawn of the state administration.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington — Anyone who believes that the plan to shift the recovery job from the government to private industry will be completed without much jarring and grating might be advised to take a closer look at some of the means by which it is to be shifted.

Take the case of roads. Secretary Morgenthau, in outlining plans for budget balancing before the Academy of Political Sciences, suggested road building as one of the first outlays to be curtailed.

And practically nobody doubted that Morgenthau was delivering a message straight from headquarters.

He explained that in pre-depression times the annual federal contribution to road building was under $100,000,000 a year. This year estimated expenditures are $253,000,000. This item has been even higher in recent years.

Morgenthau says it should be cut to its old level, which means knocking off $150,000,000 or more.

What Would Happen?

Offhand it would seem that this involved only the comment: "Well, we have enough good roads for a while, anyway." But it must be remembered that building roads requires contractors, and contractors build up large organizations and buy lots of machinery. They employ many men.

Now they are told that the administration may reduce, perhaps by half, the federal spending on the highways. That would mean fewer contract jobs.

Would these contractors be idle? Would their foremen, engineers, straw-bosses, machinery, gravel-truckers, and other operators and unskilled shoveler men be idle also? If the transition from government recovery spending to private recovery spending should work out perfectly, these people would not be idle. But the period of transition may be weeks, months, a year.

Both President Roosevelt and Chairman Douglas of the securities-and-exchange commission have urged public utilities to cut loose their long-overdue expansion and improvement programs. Douglas estimated the utilities could spend a billion dollars a year for the next five years in modernization and expansion.

The Transition Period

Even if the spending of that billion a year should begin at once—which is doubtful—for many reasons—it would not at once give jobs to all the road men and machinery. Road-scrappers can not be converted suddenly into hole-diggers for telephone poles.

Moreover, men out in the field with an interest in federal spending already are beginning to put the heat on congressmen. The pinch-out of PWA spending for dams, sewers and school houses has started the cry.

Won't it be fun to be a congressman during the next few months trying on the one hand to keep expenditures down so the budget will balance, and at the same time try to pacify the Bill Phippses, the Steve Yardleys and other dam builders and road builders—not to mention the farmers, storekeepers, dentists and plumbers who would feel the pinch of the transition from the federal feed bag to the private feed bag?

Scrub Elastic Garments

Use lukewarm water and mild soap suds applied on a brush in laundering elastic garments. Do not pull or stretch the garment. Rinse it thoroughly in warm water and lay it on a towel on a flat surface until it is dry. Never put it too close to direct heat.

PLANTS' WINTER BEDDING MADE OF GLASS "WOOL"

A flower bed gets a glass "wool" blanket.

(By the AP Feature Service)
Delicate plants now can take their winter naps under a warm blanket of glass "wool," free from the danger of frost and hard freezes. "The wool" is made of fibers of glass finer than human hair. It is snow white, as soft as cotton fluff, and so light a four-year-old could muscle up a hogshead of it. It's properties as a "mulch," or winter covering for plants, were discovered by R. C. Allen, of Cornell university. It is sterile, lets in a little air and light, keeps out rodents, insects, weeds. It comes in rolls, like cotton; is easily spread, as demonstrated in the picture; and may be rolled up and stored for use year after year. The glass "wool" is made by several companies. At the Corning Glass Works, Corning, N. Y., the output in one day, if stretched out in a single fiber, would reach from earth to the sun.

That's why mere "fast-flowing" oils get beat by WINTER OIL-PLATING

How hard is it for any known oil to squirm in amongst scores of close-fitting engine parts? It's hard. Hence all Winter oil ads rightly tell you that even a worn, loosened-up engine needs extra fast oil-flow this season.

Free-flowing Conoco Germ Processed oil holds records for speedy flow in any cold. And yet Conoco asks you earnestly: WHY BE SATISFIED WITH ANY FREE-FLOW ALONE, WHEN YOU CAN JUST AS EASILY HAVE THE RE-DOUBLED INSURANCE OF AN OIL-PLATED ENGINE?

Only an OIL-PLATED engine is lubricated for every cold start in advance—whole hours and days before any mere free-flowing oil can do one single wiggle!

Germ Process action on every working part creates OIL-PLATING. It becomes a part of all surfaces. It cannot drain down. It stays up without interruption, forever ready to speed your starter and preserve your engine every inch of the way this Winter.

Oil level stays up, too, once your Conoco Mileage Merchant puts in your correct Winter grade of Germ Processed oil.

FARMERS TOLD TO SAVE TREES

Weeding and Thinning Required Same As Cotton Patch

Raleigh, Nov. 15.—When a farmer "clear-cuts" a tract of timber for pulpwood, he is throwing money away, said R. H. Page, Jr., assistant Extension Forester at State College.

Yet the offer of pulp mills to buy timber may induce the farmer to cut off big and little trees for pulp in order to make a sale at once. Page continued.

A stand of trees requires weeding and thinning just the same as a cotton patch, he said, and normally the wood obtained through these thinning operations may be sold for pulpwood.

But the larger trees will usually bring from two to four times as much when sold for saw logs as they will when sold for pulp, he pointed out.

And while the pulp mills will take wood as small as four inches in diameter at the little end of a four to five foot stick, Page added, it is unwise to clear out stands or cut the small trees when they are growing at their fastest rate.

When cutting trees for pulpwood it is a good practice to leave about 200 trees per acre for a later crop.

When pulpwood is cut from dense young stands, the stands are improved and the remaining trees will grow better and faster, Page commented.

Cuttings at intervals of five to ten years will usually yield more wood from a given area in the long run than can be obtained by "clear-cutting" and then waiting for an entirely new crop to grow.

Abandon Plan For Relocating Route In Wayne County

Expense of Re-Routing Highway No. 40 South of Goldsboro Causes Plan To Be Dropped

Raleigh, Nov. 15.—Expense of the project has caused the Highway Commission to abandon any idea of relocating State Highway 40 just south of Goldsboro, W. Vance Baise, commission engineer, said today.

Instead it is now planned to widen the existing road for about that same distance, he added.

Some time ago the commission discussed the matter of the highway running south out of Goldsboro. The present road is only 16 feet wide and it was deemed imperative to provide a better route.

It was tentatively decided to relocate the highway and a survey was made to determine the approximate cost.

At the completion of the survey, Mr. Baise said, it was found that Joe Kilgrow, Alabama's one-man backfield has taken on a few additional chores this fall.

In 1936 Kilgrow did a lot of the running, about half of the passing, kicked points after touchdowns, was handy on blocking assignments, backed up the line on defense and punted when there was no one else on hand to do that job.

Joe this year has been directing the "Bama attack with considerable success. Shifted from right to left halfback, he has been doing more ball carrying.

This appears to be a lot of work for one man to do. Joe does not mind the multiplicity of his activities provided he gets his full quota of sleep. The Bama "Jack of all football trades" likes to sleep from 12 hours on up.

Recently, the lefty voted Kilgrow the coolest player and the keenest student of football on the squad. His coolness has kept the Crimson Tide attack clicking all season. The slender, dark-haired lad has always been a stetting factor.

It's Odd But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (AP Science Editor)

Nashville — One signal from Mars than can be explained is reported by Latimer J. Wilson, an amateur astronomer here.

Last May while watching Mars in a 12-inch telescope mirror he saw a series of bright flashes from the red planet's surface. They were close to Mars' south pole.

They were tiny white spots. They passed in a patch from left to right across the "chin" of the planet's face. Some of the spots seemed to coalesce. Mr. Wilson reported in Popular Astronomy, to swell into a brilliant white spot, then became yellow, then yellow-red.

... explanation, he thinks, can be understood by everyone who has watched a row of distant windows flash into bright light, then pale to yellow in reflected sunlight.

The place where these Martian flashes appeared is covered with ice. This at least is the belief of astronomers. It looks like snow in telescopes. It changes with the seasons. The sun on May 30, when he saw the flashes, Mr. Wilson says, was at the right angle to make window flashes from Mars.

the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds. He is quiet and unassuming. He likes to relax with a good detective story.

the cost of relocation of the road for about three and one half miles would approximate $275,000, a sum which the commission decided was too high in view of the benefits to be derived.

Widening of the present highway will cost in the neighborhood of $50,000, the exact amount depending upon the width to which the road is broadened.

The engineer's staff is now engaged in making estimates of the cost and drawing specifications for the widening of the road. This, it is believed, will be not much, if any more than $50,000, or about one-fifth the cost of a re-location project.

State-Duke Game Heads Schedule For Saturday

Teams to Present Veteran and Powerful Lines

Raleigh, Nov. 17.—Veteran and powerful lines will make the State-Duke game here Saturday afternoon in State's Riddick Stadium a mighty one.

Let's take a look at the linemen of the two clubs and compare them.

Duke's starting left end is Herbert Hudrins. He weighs 180 lbs. stands five feet eleven inches, and is a senior. Carroll Conrad will start for State. Conrad weighs 189 pounds, is six feet three, and a senior.

The rival left tackles are perfectly matched. They are Joe Brunansky of Duke and E. V. Helms of State. Each weighs 210 pounds, stands six feet one, and is a senior. A perfect rival combination.

Brunansky has been one of the main cogs in the Duke line since his sophomore days. The same thing can be said of Helms. Helms has also proven valuable to the Wolfpack as an extra point kicker.

There is not much difference in the left guards. Duke's Clarence Badgett weighs 185, is six feet, and a senior. State's Cecil Brownie also weighs 185, is a senior, but one inch taller than Badgett.

There should be plenty of action from the rival centers—Dodie Mark of State and Dan Hill of Duke. Mark is a senior and Hill a junior. Hill outweighs Max, 193 pounds to 178. They are both five feet eleven inches tall. Mark has been one of the outstanding members of the State line the entire season.

A couple of firebrands at right guard. They are Captains Woodrow Lipscomb of Duke and Dan Plooseno of State. Lipscomb weighs 200 pounds and is five feet nine inches tall. He is the second heaviest man on the Duke club. Plooseno weighs 187 and is five feet eleven. Both Lipscomb and Plooseno are fast, hard chargers, good blockers and hard tacklers.

State appears to have a slight advantage at right tackle. Its Geo. Fry is one of the outstanding tackles of the year. Fry is the only junior on the State line. He weighs 180 pounds and is six feet one inch tall. Fred York of Duke is also a junior. He weighs 180 pounds and is the same height as Fry.

The right ends are Jess Tatum of State and Jim Edwards of Duke.

Tatum weighs 210 pounds, is six feet one inch and is a senior. He is one of the best ends in the State. Bob Warren, State's backfield coach, says Tatum is the best in the South and many are ready to agree that he is. Tatum also is recognized as one of the best blockers in the State and he is extremely fast for a big man. Edwards tips the scales at 195 pounds, stands six feet one, and is a senior.

Totalling the weight figures it is found that the lines will average the same—191 pounds per player. Six of the State linemen are seniors and one a junior. Duke has five seniors and two juniors. State has a three inch advantage in height. Its linemen will average six feet even as compared to the Duke average of five feet nine inches.

Red Shield Clubs Sponsored in City By Salvation Army

Various Athletic Contests Engaged In By Youths; Appeal Made For Books and Magazines

Red Shield clubs, organized by the Salvation Army for the announced purpose of providing a means whereby boys and girls could spend their leisure time in constructive play is attracting a large number of the city's youth.

The clubs, located on Dickinson avenue at the intersection of the Farmville and Ayden highways, had a membership of 58 boys and 14 girls at the end of its first month. The average attendance for boys during the month was 67 per cent and for girls 100 per cent. The clubs are open to boys and girls between the ages of four and 18 years. Visitors are welcomed at all times.

Various athletic events are engaged in by members as a means of keeping them from undesirable places and at the same time building character. The clubs now offer volleyball, basketball, baseball, horseshoes, ring toss, carrom, bingo, checkers, ping-pong, bannino and numerous other games. Also courses in drawing, first aid and lettering are offered. Beginning tomorrow night a band will start practicing.

"The one thing that the clubs needs now," declared officials, "is a library where the boys and girls may go to read." It is planned to provide a library and any person having books or magazines he wishes to donate is asked to call the Salvation Army and someone will call for them.

the parade. He will be introduced by Adjutant-General J. Van B. Metts, of Raleigh. Rev. Worth Wicker will preside over the ceremonies.

A dinner will be served in the Army building that evening for members of the National Guard and local visiting dignitaries. A script dance will follow, with visitors and officials as special guests. The music for the dance will be provided by Joe Haynes' orchestra.

Besides the governor and adjutant general, a number of other dignitaries, including Col. Gordon Smith of Raleigh, Col. Godfrey Cheshire, commander of the 113th Field Artillery; Major Wesley C. Thompson of Charlotte, and State WPA Administrator, will be present for the ceremonies.

The Army has just been completed and workers now are cleaning in the building and putting it in shape for the formal opening.

Autos rank second only to food in family budgets in 24 towns of the western states, the department of agriculture reports.

RYAN RENOUNCES BRIDE

Leaving his bed in a hospital at Hickory, N. C., where he had been confined since a few hours after his marriage, Basil Ryan (left), New York socialite and sportsman, disclaimed and recollection of his wedding with Martha Barkley, 21, of nearby Morganton. He said he told her over the telephone: "You don't love me and I don't love you. And we might as well be open and above board about the whole affair." Ryan is shown with his friend, Albert Spurlock, Hickory football coach.
