Farm Program Sure To Bring Fiery Debate

CONGRESS ENDS ITS FIRST WEEK

Much Talk and Petty Bickerings Feature of Deliberations

Washington, Nov. 20. — (AP) — Wordy manifestations of uneasiness over business conditions exhausted today the first week of the special congressional session during which President Roosevelt's legislative program barely inched ahead.

Much talk and petty bickerings furnished evidence of what President Roosevelt's opened message termed "marked industrial recession" and was for many Congressmen paramount to matters for which they were summoned—crop control legislation and removal of unjust tax burdens, especially modification of undistributed profits taxes.

Revision of some kind was a foregone conclusion after Mr. Roosevelt advocated lightening of inequitable burdens on small business enterprises.

The revision appeared unlikely, however, before the regular session in January.

Meantime the administration's farm program was whipped into shape by committee compromises which assure fiery debate when it comes up for consideration next week.

Its piecemeal progress through the committees, plus comments from other sources, would embrace costs, market quotas, compulsory against voluntary compliance, or whether or not any measure was advisable.

DUCE ASSUMES ANOTHER POST

Shake-Up in Cabinet and Colonial Administration

Rome, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini today announced a shake-up in his cabinet and an important change in colonial administration in which the Duke of Aosta was named Viceroy of Ethiopia and Il Duce, himself, assumed the African portfolio.

The 30-year-old Duke of Aosta, a tall officer of the air corps, who helped conquer Ethiopia, was appointed in the place of the venerable warrior, Marshal Graziani. Aosta is a first cousin, one removed, of King Emanuel.

In taking charge of the ministry for Italian Africa, Mussolini replaced Lessoni. Il Duce honored General Teruzzi, a veteran of the Spanish campaign, by naming him first assistant in the African ministry.

By today's shakeup, Mussolini assumed the fifth of 14 portfolios in the cabinet—besides the premiership. He is now Minister of Interior, War, Navy, Air and Colonies.

Putting his strong hand directly on Italy's new African empire, Il Duce announced important changes would be made toward consolidation in administrative affairs.

O'CONNELL KIDNAPER CAPTURED AFTER JAIL BREAK

Percy Geary, shown in the clutches of half a dozen police officers who weren't taking a single chance with him, was captured in a parking lot shack in Syracuse, in what ended the police hunt for three members of the O'Connell kidnap gang, who made a daring break from the Onondaga county penitentiary. Two days elapsed between the desperadoes' escape and their roundup.

CHINESE ADMIT LOSS KEY CITY

Government Formally Withdraws From Nanking Today

Shanghai, Nov. 20.—(AP) —A Japanese army spokesman said today fifteen Japanese soldiers under a second lieutenant, captured Soochow, keystone of China's "Hindenburg line" without firing a single shot.

The spokesman added the fall of Soochow, 50 miles west of Shanghai, was "one of the most amazing captures of an important city in all the annals of war."

According to this account, there was no real Chinese resistance at Soochow, considered the gate to Nanking, the Chinese capital, from which the government formally withdrew today.

The main Japanese force, expecting to be confronted by at least one Chinese division, was amazed to meet only small, apparently dazed groups of Chinese soldiers looting about Soochow as the Japanese marched in. None of these even questioned the presence of Japanese troops, the spokesman said. He continued:

"Our men went directly to a big pagoda overlooking the city where they hoisted the Japanese flag. Seeing this, the Chinese troops fled."

Three gaps in the Chinese defense system allowed Japan's legions to surge toward Nanking.

While Soochow fell, both ends of the "Hindenburg line" also had been turned by the Japanese today. Kashiington, 25 miles southeast of Soochow, was in Japanese hands. A third Japanese column had skirted Changshu, 25 miles to the north.

Chinese did not deny the fall of Soochow, but said the vital defense center was abandoned after it virtually had been razed by Japanese aerial bombs. They declared their troops, however, still desperately defended Changshu.

DEBT REDUCED BY HUGE SUMS

Almost $50,000,000 In Bonds Retired In Five Years

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Nov. 20.—North Carolina, including its subdivisions, is paying its debts almost $10,000,000 a year faster than it is contracting new ones and has paid off almost $50,000,000 worth of bonded debt during the five years, ending June 30, 1937. Governor Clyde R. Hoey announced today, reaffirming his fiscal policy.

French Ministers Closely Guarded

Officials Broaden Plans To Crush Reported Armed Conspiracy Against State Security

Paris, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Buildings housing France's Ministers were carefully guarded today as Premier Chautemps and Minister of Interior Dormoy broadened plans to crush a reported armed conspiracy against the "security of the state."

An inspector of the Surete Nationale likened two bombs seized in one of the three weeks' series of raids, with a bomb found September 27 in the home of General Pretalat, a member of France's Superior War Council.

Explosives experts at the time declared the bombs was constructed with materials regularly used by the French army.

The Surete inspector said, "I would swear" the two bombs found in a Paris apartment early this week were "the same kind" as that discovered in the General's home. The inspector added they might be similar to bombs used on employers' federation buildings September 11.

LEAF FIGURES

Including sales of Friday, November 19, the Greenville Tobacco market had sold 62,047,062 pounds of the golden-wood for $16,420,667.08, a season's average of $26.46.

At the conclusion of next Wednesday's sale, the market will be closed for Thanksgiving holidays until Monday, November 29th.

ADVANCE SEAL SALE STARTED

Business Firms Offered Stickers For Statements

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, Greenville Chairman of the Christmas Seal Sale, announced today that, in order that they might get Seals in time for use on their December 1st statements, large business concerns will be solicited before the regular Drive begins.

A letter went out yesterday to these firms signed by Mrs. Moore and J. H. Waldrop, president of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association, urgently requesting the firms to place a Seal on each statement to be mailed on December 1st. Mrs. Moore stated that while, heretofore, the business firms have been very good about buying the Seals they have apparently failed to appreciate the advertising value of the Seals, both to the Seal Sale and to themselves, when used in this way.

She commented on the fact that the liberal support the community gave the recent Red Cross Roll Call augured well for the success of the coming Seal Sale.

Patrolman Injured Probing Accident

C. R. Williams Suffering With Crushed Foot Sustained When Cars Hit Wrecked Truck

Patrolman C. R. Williams is confined to his home with injuries he sustained while he was investigating a wreck early yesterday morning about a mile this side of Ayden.

Patrolman Williams answered a call to investigate a collision between an automobile driven by Will Cannon and a truck operated by E. N. Dawson. The truck was turned over on its side, lying partly across the highway.

While Patrolman Williams was investigating the wreck, another car driven by J. M. Collins crashed all the way through the truck, knocking off one of the doors which fell on the officer's foot. Before the Collins car was brought to a halt it struck Williams, but the impact was not believed to have injured the patrolman seriously. A foot crushed when the heavy door fell on it was his most serious injury.

Patrolman H. B. Smith, who took up the investigation declared that Collins and Cannon would be charged with careless and reckless driving.

MAY CALL OUT GUARD IN OHIO

Service at Goodyear Strike-Bound Plant Possible

Akron, Ohio, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Ohio national guard units prepared today for possible service at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, where a sit-down strike is in progress, making 12,000 workers idle.

Company officials announced the plant would reopen Monday and union officials immediately said picket lines would be placed around the plant, covering hundreds of acres in the heart of this rubber city.

Adjutant General Emil Marx, at Columbus, said while no national guard units had yet been sent here, troops were being prepared for a possible mobilization. Two national guard observers are on the scene here.

Entertains Bridge Club.

Yesterday afternoon at her home on Elizabeth street, Mrs. R. C. Stokes, Jr., entertained at bridge for members of her club and a few out of town guests. The home was tastefully decorated with chrysanthemums and other fall flowers.

Bridge was enjoyed during the afternoon. When the games were over, Mrs. James Ficklen was awarded the high score prize. Mrs. J. F. Jenkins and Mrs. Barnes, out-of-town guests, were remembered with gifts. The hostess then served an excellent salad course.

Junior Philathea Class.

The Junior Philathea Class of the Methodist Church held a most enjoyable meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. J. F. Harrington, with Mrs. Harrington, Mrs. S. V. Morton, Mrs. Ralph Fleming, Mrs. Bill Drumm, Mrs. J. W. H. Roberts and Mrs. D. R. Allen as hostesses.

Mrs. Ralph Fleming and Mrs. Hudson had charge of the devotional.

Several Thanksgiving contests were enjoyed, Mrs. J. H. Hildrup and Mrs. Ernest Brown winning prizes.

Mrs. E. L. Willard and Mrs. H. R. Rogers were appointed visiting committee for the month.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses. About twenty guests were present.—Reported.

The Older Young People's Society will hold its regular monthly supper meeting tomorrow night at the Presbyterian Church at 6:30. The speaker for the occasion will be the Rev. J. Norton Dendy of Tarboro, popular young preacher to young people of college age, speaking on the subject of "The Face of the Master." A full attendance is urged.

Officers of this group which include the 18-25 age group, are Bill Brown, president, and Harvey Deal, secretary-treasurer.

Union Thanksgiving Service.

The annual community Thanksgiving service this year will be held at an hour earlier than in previous years—8 o'clock.

The Ministerial Association in a recent meeting, taking cognizance of the fact that many cities and towns have found the early morning hour on Thanksgiving Day to have had great success and to be of great value, voted the experiment for Greenville for this year.

This year's service will be held in the local Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Clarence Patrick, minister of Immanuel Baptist Church, delivering the sermon. It is in accordance with local custom that a different church be host to this annual service each year, the preaching for the occasion also rotating. Special music by a joint choir has been secured.

Garden Club Meets.

The Garden Club was delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. J. L. Fleming on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 18. The meeting was conducted by the chairman, Mrs. W. E. Hooker. Many items of interest were presented to the club. Mrs. Hooker reported that several thousand tulip bulbs and ten thousand plants of various kinds had been ordered. The members were asked to listen to the Garden broadcasts from Raleigh on December 1, 15, and 29. These talks will be on subjects relating to Christmas. One of the members exhibited charm strings which she had made. These were most attractive.

Mrs. Travis Hooker, program chairman, presented Mrs. Ola Tucker who sang two selections, "Kachimiri," and "Without a Song." She was accompanied by Mrs. H. C. Haynes.

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore gave a splendid report from the Durham meeting on "Finding Health in the Garden Clinic."

The members were invited into the dining room where tempting refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. J. L. Winstead.

Supt. Erwin At College.

Emphasizing the need of the public schools today for teachers who are well prepared, with both knowledge in a special field and a broad general background, and who are also men and women of character that will stand any test, State Superintendent Clyde A. Erwin talked to the E. C. T. C. student body Friday at chapel on the type of teacher North Carolina is calling for.

Mr. Erwin, presented to the students by R. C. Deal, told his audience that he was glad to talk to them, because of his interest in the schools of the state and his knowledge that they, as future teachers will help to condition the efficiency of the schools.

The speaker took up first the importance of better preparation. Listing the fields in which he wants the public schools to train his children—music, health, relations with fellows, community life, national and international problems, and many others—and saying that such a program will challenge "not only the best efforts of the poorest teacher but the best efforts of the best teacher."

To meet the needs of children, teachers must have special knowledge and a broad cultural background. They need to know many things they will never teach.

Perhaps more important, if possible, than much knowledge, is character, declared the speaker.

The teacher needs to incorporate in his philosophy of life the ideas of the Great Teacher who know no classroom but the wilderness, who taught under the canopy of the open sky, and who was at the last lifted up on the cross, a beacon to all that is good.

Mrs. W. I. Wooten Hostess.

Last night at 6:30, Mrs. W. I. Wooten entertained about twenty guests at a buffet supper in honor of Miss Mattie Moye Gaylord whose marriage to Harry Hagerty will take place next week.

The Wooten home was decorated with beautiful chrysanthemums, autumn leaves, and other flowers of the fall season. Upon arrival, the guests were served tomato juice in the den. They then moved into the dining room where a three-course turkey supper was served buffet style. The dining room table was particularly lovely, covered with an embroidered cloth and centered with a bowl of lovely pink and yellow chrysanthemums. Lighted candles were everywhere. At either end of the table Mrs. L. W. Gaylord and Mrs. Will Hooker served. Mrs. W. I. Wooten and Miss Lillian Wooten also assisted in serving. The individual tables were marked with a Thanksgiving nut cup.

After dinner, Bingo was played. Those winning prizes were Mrs. Lee Hannah, Mrs. Foster Young, Misses Alice Wooten, Edla Taylor and Katherine Ratledge. The hostess presented Miss Gaylord with china in her pattern.

November Fashion Notes
(This Column Is For The Ladies)

Checked velvet is an ideal fabric for the winter shirtwaist.

In velvets and silks there is a revival of the mulberry and mahogany shades. Deep purple velvets are also very popular.

Double faced black satin ribbon is recommended for the belt and sash ends of the modish house gown.

An embroidery of jet spangles with pink satin ribbon is an exquisite garniture on a gown of black satin, and comparatively few of this season's black gowns are made up without a touch of color.

Coats and jackets perceptibly lengthen as the days shorten until we now know definitely that the little bob-tailed jacket of last winter has no part in this season's dress parade. In its place we have the coat of generous length. These are acknowledged to be the garments above all others for winter wear.

Seal Sale Bonds.

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, chairman of the Greenville Christmas Seal Sale, today was not only enthusiastic over the general plan of this year's Christmas Seal Sale campaign, but was especially enthusiastic over the bond idea, a new feature of the Seal sale.

She said that the bonds come in denominations of five, ten, twenty-five, fifty, one hundred, five hundred and one thousand dollars. She stated that, while she did not expect to dispose of any one thousand dollar bonds or even one hundred dollar bonds, yet she felt that there were many business firms who would be quite ready to buy a twenty-five dollar bond, and a number of individuals who would buy either five or ten dollar bonds. A person buying a bond is entitled to as many seals at a penny each as the bonds represent.

When asked if she had sold any bonds, she stated that so far no one had been solicited, but that J. H. Waldrop had voluntarily ordered a ten dollar bond for himself and a twenty-five dollar bond for the Guaranty Bank and Trust Co.

Stunt And Amateur Night

The Belvoir-Falkland high school will put on an Amateur and Stunt Night program Tuesday night, November 23rd, at 7:30 o'clock.

This entertainment is taking the place of the former Fiddlers' Convention held at the school, and will consist of about twenty separate stunts or skits featuring singing, acrobatic, tap dancing, string music buck and wing dancing, acrobatic dancing and impersonations. In addition to these prepared-in-advance stunts an opportunity will be given for amateurs to perform in competition for three grand prizes to be awarded on a basis of audience appreciation.

The proceeds of this entertainment will go for the support of the new Home Economics and Manual Training departments of the school. The public is invited.

Book Week

'GIVE YOURSELF BACKGROUND'

(By F. Fraser Bond)

This book deals with the acquisition of a background with the reward that you will make your days more interesting, your personality richer, and your contribution to life more worthwhile. It shows how you can use your public library, newspaper, radio, movies, theatre, magazines and books not merely to pass the time, but for your own ultimate advantage, and it leaves little sympathy for those who lament their lack of education, and do nothing about it. For all that has ever been thought, felt, seen, discovered and imagined now finds its way between the covers of books.

All read with varying purposes. Some read to obtain information, while a vast majority read to escape from reality. Many people turn to books for inspiration, guidance, and what they term "comfort." Some read for aesthetic enjoyment, and critical appreciation, and others for relaxation. Some of these purposes are intelligent, some admirable, and all quite understandable. However, the true aim of reading, the only creative aim, should be to increase the range and depth of one's imagination and one's human sympathy. With this aim, the act of reading becomes a creative act. The power and the glory of literature will always be that it enlarges and enriches life.

Give yourself background suggests methods by which short cuts, in newspaper reading, are practical in many cases, thus enabling you to obtain the necessary information in limited amount of time. It outlines methods of study based on up-to-date psychology, supplies hints for increasing your power of observation and assimilation, and provides valuable reading lists.

Two Negroes Held On Assault Counts

Of the four cases tried in City police court this morning, two of the defendants were bound over to County court on charges of assault with a deadly weapon.

Rubber Shines, Negro, was ordered held under bond of $300 on the charge and Henrietta Williams, also a Negro, was held under bond of $100, both charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

A charge of engaging in disorderly conduct against Fannie Howard, Negro, was dismissed.

A. W. Parrish, white man, was taxed with the costs of court upon conviction of drunkenness.

Book Week Closed With Polk Speech

An audience small in number but filled with appreciation, gathered in the assembly room of Sheppard Memorial Library Friday evening and heard an address by William T. Polk of Warrenton—the closing feature of the 1937 Book Week observance.

Mrs. Polk came to Greenville with Mr. Polk and while in the city they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Picklen.

The speaker was introduced by Major M. K. Blount. Mr. Polk and Mr. Blount were classmates at the University of North Carolina, graduating in 1916.

Mr. Polk is chairman of the Citizens' Library Movement in North Carolina and his address was a careful study of books, reading and library service.

"A book teaches not its own use," he quoted. The schools do that work. The State of North Carolina with its system of schools is teaching the youth to love and use books. The common schools and the excellent institutions of higher learning are serving well in their field. On leaving the schools these young men and women are sent out to live in sections that have no books, no public libraries where books may be had for the asking, no tools with which to make the life called for by their training. So, they leave the state by the hundreds each year, going to centers where these tools are offered them by a system of library service for all the people. This is North Carolina's immigration problem.

The speaker pointed out the wonderful opportunity now before the few libraries in this state for offering usable, practical information. The mayor should be able to go to the library and read the newest city zoning laws and plans. The building contractor should be invited to spend an hour there studying new plans and specifications for his line of work. Such a service makes the library something more than a collection of recreational reading matter.

The public library is the place where the children of men may meet the children of knowledge.

These are a few of the many thoughts which Mr. Polk left with those who heard him.

This means that if conditions during the next ten years remain anywhere near on a par with the past five years, the state and its subdivisions will be able to retire another $100,000,000 worth of bonds, and thus materially reduce the taxes now being levied to retire these bonds, Governor Hoey said.

The State of North Carolina itself levies no property taxes for any purpose whatever, not even debt service, schools or roads. All of the revenue for these purposes is derived from indirect taxes. Counties, cities and towns are the only units which levy taxes on property and from 50 to 75 per cent of these taxes are for debt service. As the debt service requirements become less, the local property taxes will naturally decrease, Governor Hoey believes.

"During the five year period from June 30, 1932 to June 30, 1937, the counties, cities and towns in North Carolina paid off approximately $50,363,936 in bonded debt, not including interest, and the state retired $32,128,000 of its bonds, making a total of $82,491,936," Governor Hoey said. "During this same five years the state issued $18,553,000 in new bonds while the counties, cities and towns issued approximately $15,000,000 worth of bonds, making a total of $33,553,000 in new bonds issued from the total reduction we as compared with the total gross reduction of $82,491,936. By subtracting the total of the new bonds issued from the total reduction we find that the state paid off $48,938,936 more old debt than the amount of new debt contracted during these five years, or almost $10,000,000 a year.

"This means that North Carolina has reduced its crest of debt—that it reached five years ago during the depression—and in spite of the depression has been maintaining a balanced budget and reducing its debt. It means that if conditions remain anywhere near normal for the next ten years that North Carolina can reduce its bonded debt by at least $100,000,000 more, reduce its taxes for debt service, and still have plenty of revenue to provide for necessary replacements and the normal expansion of governmental service.

"Because of the sound manner in which North Carolina's financial affairs have been managed during the last five years and the fact that it has consistently maintained a balanced budget and lived within this budget, it is one of the few states which can now look forward to a steadily decreasing budget for debt service and a corresponding decrease in the tax load for this service. Where many other states are either increasing taxes or are going to have to increase taxes to take care of a steadily increasing bonded debt, North Carolina has already crossed over the mountain and is going down the other side."

In addition to the formal debt payments by towns and counties, the local Government Commission estimates that refunding operations and refinancing plans completed during the past five years have saved the subdivisions alone at least $35,000,000 which when added to the $550,000,000 of debt retired, makes a total of $85,000,000 worth of debt disposed of during the past five years.

Negro Accused Of Reckless Driving

Caesar Green, Greenville Negro, is facing a charge of careless and reckless driving following a wreck on the Falkland highway yesterday afternoon in which the two cars involved were badly damaged but no serious personal injuries were suffered.

Corporal L. L. Jackson of the State Highway Patrol declared that Green, traveling toward Falkland, was attempting to pass another car going in the same direction when he met a small truck driven by William C. Fuquay, salesman for the American Tobacco company.

Corporal Jackson said his investigation showed that Fuquay tried to avoid a collision by pulling his car almost off the road and into a ditch, but failed to get entirely out of the way and was struck by the car driven by the Negro.

Raleigh, Nov. 20—North Carolina motorists, who pay just about one-third the money they spend on gasoline for taxes rather than for motor fuel, may or may not be a little perked up by the knowledge that they aren't taxed at all in comparison with Italians. A news item from Mussolini-land brings word that the gasoline tax over there has been hiked to the equivalent of 66 cents per gallon. Just the same, many of them will sympathize with the North Carolina Petroleum Industries committee in its campaign to reduce the gas tax, if possible, and to prevent diversion of highway funds, anyway.

"Thousands of filling station operators have joined the N. C. P. I. C. because they know that every third sale at their stations constitutes merely a tax payment, the money going to the tax collector," says S. Gilmer Sparger, secretary for North Carolina.

Cutlar Moore, chairman of the State Liquor Board has pulled a new one out of the hat. He is recommending to the various county boards that they require each purchaser of more than a gallon of liquor to sign a statement to the effect that it is for personal consumption.

The idea behind this is that if a fellow buys more than a gallon and signs up for it, then tries to re-sell it "We'll have him" says Mr. Moore.

Why wouldn't "We have him," anyway whether he signed or not? And it's extremely naive, to say the least, to think that any bootlegger would be deterred from practice of his nefarious business simply because he had to sign. Oh, well, boards have to make some sort of regulations.

"Did you find out what Congress is going to do?" This correspondent asked Governor Clyde R. Hoey upon his return from Washington where he addressed the North Carolina Society Thursday night. "No, I didn't," laughed His Excellency. "If I had I could probably make a lot of money out of it, if I could guarantee that I knew what I was talking about."

Incidentally, Governor Hoey caused great surprise among the radio technicians when he appeared before the mike to broadcast his speech in Washington with no sign of any manuscript from which to talk. (Ed Note: Governor Hoey can talk better without manuscript than most orators can with it)

"But how do you know when to stop, if you haven't any copy?" asked one of the announcers. "That's the easiest part of it"

$150,000 TOWN OF GREENVILLE NORTH CAROLINA BONDS

Sealed bids will be received until 11 o'clock A. M., November 30, 1937, by the undersigned at its office in the city of Raleigh, N. C., for the following bonds of the Town of Greenville, N. C., dated December 1, 1937, maturing on December 1 in the years hereinafter stated, without option of prior payment:
$115,000 Water Works Extension Bonds, maturing annually,

$3,000 1939; $3,000 1940; $4,000 1941 to 1944; $5,000 1945 to 1950 and $7,000 1951 to 1959, all inclusive.

$35,000 Sewerage Extension Bonds, maturing annually, $1,000 1939 to 1945 and $2,000 1946 to 1959, all inclusive.

Denomination $1,000; principal and interest (J and D 1) payable in New York City in legal tender; general obligations; unlimited tax; coupon bonds registerable as to principal alone and as to both principal and interest; delivery on or about December 17, 1937 at place of purchaser's choice. There will be no auction. The bonds were authorized at an election, 394 votes for the Water Works Extension Bonds and 88 votes against; 394 votes for the Sewerage Extension Bonds and 88 votes against.

A separate bid for each issue (not less than par and accrued interest) is required. Bidders are requested to name the interest rate or rates, not exceeding 6 per cent in multiples of 1/4 of 1 per cent; each bid may name one rate for part of the bonds of any issue (having the earliest maturities) and another rate for the balance, but no bid may name more than two rates for any issue, and each bidder must specify in his bid the amount of the bonds of each rate. The bonds will be awarded to the bidder offering to purchase the bonds at the lowest interest cost to the Town, such cost to be determined by deducting the total amount of the premium bid from the aggregate amount of interest upon all of the bonds until their respective maturities.

Bids must be on a form to be furnished with additional information by the undersigned, enclosed in a sealed envelope marked "Proposal for Bonds," and must be accompanied by a certified check upon an incorporated bank or trust company, payable unconditionally to the order of the State Treasurer for $3,000. The approving opinion of Mass-lich and Mitchell, New York City, will be furnished the purchaser.

The right to reject all bids is reserved.

FAMOUS UNIVERSITY STARTED WITHOUT A STUDENT

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA, FIRST STATE INSTITUTION TO OPEN ITS DOORS, BEGAN OPERATION JAN. 15, 1795, BUT IT WAS NOT UNTIL FEB. 12, THAT THE FIRST STUDENT ARRIVED. FOR TWO WEEKS HE WAS THE ENTIRE STUDENT BODY.

CANNOT BE BURIED ALIVE IN WET SAND!
 THERE IS ALWAYS ENOUGH OXYGEN TO SUSTAIN LIFE IN THE FIDDLER CRAB!

It was almost a month after the opening of the UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA that the first student, Hinton James of Wilmington, arrived. Although there was not a single student on the opening date, 41 were enrolled by the end of the term which number was increased to one hundred during the second term. At first there was no president, the chief officer, David Kerr, having the title of presiding professor. For an entire year there were but two professors. Although the university had an inauspicious beginning, the decade before the War between the States saw the institution flourish and young men from all over the South come to Chapel Hill. While it was the first State University to open its doors, it was not the first to be chartered, the University of Georgia enjoying this distinction.

strike last spring, sent troops to plants where strikes were occurring to "protect the right of men to work."
 Nearly all of the 300 to 600 sit-down strikers left the plant this morning. John House, president of Goodyear Local No. 2 of the United Rubber Workers of America, announced.
 House said he and other officers of the union ordered the plant evacuated, and all but a few, who refused to leave, came out of the plant with those remaining expecting to come out later in the day.
 Last night Goodyear officials barred workers who plan to relieve sit-down strikers and also closed the company cafeteria. No work had been scheduled for today.
 House announced a union meeting would be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow, when members would decide what to do.

THE CHARACTERS

NINA, Junior Leaguer and exuberant, impulsive, married Laura, hoping to end her intense love for her separator, but is ready now to break up her marriage.

RICHARD, the charming, well-adjusted separator, passionately declares his love and devotion to Nina.

HONEY, Nina's gay, chafed mother, is wild about Richard and does not suspect the love between him and Nina.

DAVID, a bright young auto salesman on a small salary, agrees with Nina but they've quarreled over money matters.

Chapter 41

'The Cheap Thing I Am'

Richard took away the hand that was underneath, and reached in his pocket for his cigarette case. Then he took the top hand away, patting hers first, and reached for his lighter.

They were both quiet until he puffed out the first puff.

"Suppose you tell me," she suggested, "what you had in mind."

"Well, only that I wanted to be aboveboard about whatever we decide to do, Richard, darling. Whatever you want me to do. Our love has been a hidden, secret thing long enough, hasn't it?" She blushed furiously, but she said bravely: "We had better—go away, hadn't we, dear?" and added: "Courageously—like Rian and Hester."

He put down his cigarette, and took her hand again in both of his.

"When you speak of going away together, Nina . . . I become quite incapable of constructive thought."

But Nina had the feeling he was evading something, stalling for time. A prickling sensation crept up her spine, in little waves.

Now was the time for Richard to tell her that they must each break away from their old life and start a new one together.

Now was the time to plan about telling her husband and his wife.

Now . . . but he wasn't doing either of these. Something was wrong. He was stalling for time.

He said: "Our biggest thought, Nina, bigger even than our love . . . has been not to hurt people."

What did he mean? She waited.

But as he talked on, choosing words with care, the little waves that had been creeping up and down Nina's spine turned into a heavy undertow that seemed to be drawing the very blood right out of her.

Not to hurt people. You speak of telling Honey and David, darling . . . but wouldn't that hurt them, quite beyond any healing?"

He looked at her very gravely, and, to her horror, Nina realized that he was not sincere. She didn't know just yet, what she was going to say, but she was certain that it was going to be awful.

It came:

"Nina—precious—I want you with everything that's in me. I want you to be mine—utterly—you must; and, lovely, have we the right to break up two homes by . . . by going together away, as you said just now? Couldn't we be—happy without doing that?"

She sat so still, looking down into her lap, that he had no suspicion of all the things that were passing through her.

He thought that she was agreeing, and drew her over close to him. She allowed herself to be drawn.

His lips were against her hair, now, and he could not see her face.

"Eat Our Cake And . . ."

"My way," he said, "nobody need be hurt."

She remarked quietly: "You mean, Richard, that . . . that we can eat our cake and have it too . . ."

"Why not, darling?" He laughed softly . . . and then, remembering his pious role: "Wouldn't that be—sunder?"

She said, still in the same quiet voice: ". . . to have me for your mistress, to sneak off to hotels . . . or were you planning on using this house? . . . To deceive Honey and David, but go right on living, in their homes, accepting their love . . . their . . . money . . . was that your good—kind—plan?"

"Nina!"

He started to turn her around, but she jerked away. Stood up and faced him.

"Tell me! Was it?"

"Nina, my darling, don't make it sound—ugly."

Her brown eyes were blazing.

"Your . . . stained-glass expression of sanctity amuses me no end, Richard. It is ugly. As foul as it can be, and you know it. Do you know what I am willing to do? . . . Face them, and our friends, everyone. Face their condemnation, and live together, quite openly. Let ourselves be divorced . . . anything, but be honest about it. Do . . ."

Richard had risen, too. A dull red had crept under his heavy tan. "Nina," he put in, "you don't understand. It isn't a question of 'willfulness' on my part. It's a question of—"

"Please don't say 'kindness' again."

"Of common sense."

"Ch-h-h!"

"Don't be . . . bitter, angel, just because you're hurt. Don't be hurt either . . . Even when one is terribly in love, one must keep one's head . . . Aside from everything else, Nina, darling, how would I look after you? My income is," he smiled, "well, limited, to say the least! As far as money goes, you'd be worse off with me than you are with David . . ."

He was trying to reach her, to get her in his arms again, as though once there, he could cast his spell over her . . . make her feel as he felt, see as he saw . . .

But Nina had walked away, to the other end of the veranda.

She looked out over the calm river, and she thought how clean it looked from a little distance and yet how full of orange peels and peanut shells, and rubbish it really was, when you got close by.

"Dirty," she thought. And she thought: "Like you, Nina, Dirty, inside."

Richard had followed her.

He said: "Nina . . . Nina, why should this make any difference? We've suffered—we deserve to be happy . . . We can be . . ."

She wheeled around toward him, just as he was reaching out for her.

"I suppose you want to know what I was thinking, Richard—don't you? Well, I'll tell you I might have been thinking about your nasty scheme, and what a fool I was to have ever imagined I loved . . . but I wasn't thinking of that. I was just realizing, that of all the people who might have suspected, it was you who really saw me as the . . . cheap thing that I am . . ."

Nina's New Resolve

It seemed to Nina that she was always coming in and plunking herself down on one of the little straight-backed chairs, and thinking, for hours on end, about the complicated tangle that was her life.

This evening, she did it again . . . that is, she plunked herself down on one of the little straight-backed walnut chairs, but there was nothing complicated about what he told herself.

There were bowls of white chrysanthemums on the two coffee tables. Honey had given them to Nina, because the 74th street house was so full of flowers.

Honey's presents—the undies—the linen, the perfume—lay in their pretty boxes on the day-bed.

Betty played innocently with his ball.

To all outward appearances it was a snug, charming little home; and yet . . . Nina thought of the Hudson river . . . so lovely from across the lawn . . . so full of dirt, really.

On the ghastly ride home from Tarrytown, she had said to Richard: "Please—don't let's talk . . . No, strangely enough, I don't seem to feel angry toward you, Frankly, of course, I don't think very much of you now, Richard, but it's myself—that I'm distrustful with . . ." and she wouldn't talk.

And all the long, strained, silent drive, she had reviled herself. Now, she summed it up:

"In the first place, Nina, after all that Daddy had said to you, before his death, about looking after Honey, you allow yourself to fall in love with the man who is really making your mother happy."

"Then, as an outlet, you drag David—the neest, finest person you know—into it, to protect yourself from your weakness.

"And then, having done this to David . . . and to Honey, first of all . . . you haven't got the guts to go through with it—but turn around and actually offer to destroy both of them, by going away with Richard."

"And the very last straw: that you should have picked such a man, Nina, who held you so cheaply . . ."

Oh, she was cheap, she knew it . . . but not as cheap as all that! Not enough to give herself to Richard, skulkingly, sneakingly, and accept all that David had to give, besides, No.

She thought: "And this morning I pondered on the deadening effect of housekeeping, living simply . . . just being a wife! I thought it had made me forget all the worthwhile things in life—Richard and excitement . . . why, it made me normal, and wholesome, for the first time!"

And she thought: "Oh, David, David! I do so admire all you stand for I do so want to be like you—worthy of you. I will!"

She felt sick and debased—and yet, in a strange way, happier than she had felt in months; because now she had reached the end, the very bottom, the lowest to which she could sink. She could begin working up now.

"Oh, David . . ."

She made her beginning then.

HIGHS TO PLAY ON WEDNESDAY

Big Game Of Season To Be With Washington Here

The big game of the season, for the football team of Greenville High School, will be played next Wednesday when the Phantoms meet the Washington High school team. For the past few years the game has been played in Washington, but will be played in Greenville this year at the Third Street Stadium.

Greenville and Washington are natural rivals and are always at their best when playing each other. The game this year should prove no exception, with both teams pointing for the other. In the game last year Washington won 6 to 0, only after they had withstood several goal line threats of the Greenies.

Because of an extra stiff schedule Washington lost several of her early season games but has recently turned in several good performances. In their last two games Washington held the strong Wilson eleven to a 18 to 0 score and defeated Ayden 14 to 0.

The main problem in the "Flying Pigeon" camp at the present time lies in the backfield, because of numerous injuries. Greenville backfield men that will not see action because of injuries are Tom Parrish, Charles Futral, Bill Moore, and John Lautares. In order to brace up the backfield, Coach Herman Dally will probably shift one of his linemen to the back field. During last week's practices Coach Dally was using both Wayland Tucker, a guard, and Robert Earle Clark, a tackle, in the backfield. By game time Wednesday the backfield situation should be ironed out. If Tucker is used in the backfield he probably will do most of the passing and kicking, while if Clark is used he will probably carry the ball on most line plays.

TEACHERS MEET IS CONCLUDED

The Association adopted a resolution, suggested by the Resolutions committee, that the "Five-Point Program" of the past year be continued. Also, it voted to go on record as favoring the immediate adoption of amendments being urged in nomination and election of general officers in both state and district units of the N. C. E. A.

In closing, the Association voted to extend thanks to the president, Supt. J. H. Rose, of the Greenville City schools, for the planning and execution of an excellent program, to East Carolina Teachers College for the use of its plant for the convention, to the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, the Tobacco Board of Trade, and the city teachers for the reception and dance in their honor, and to the City of Greenville for entertaining the Association.

Department Meetings

Fifteen or more departmental meetings of the Association opened the day Saturday on the College campus, with many of the College faculty participating in the various programs.

In the Department of English, Miss Frances Ledbetter, head of English work in the Rocky Mount High school, told of a number of experiments through which her school is attempting to adapt its work to the needs of the pupils.

Dr. Lucile Turner, of the College English Department, then spoke on some paradoxes that must be considered by the English teacher who wishes to use the best methods in her work. Miss Turner began by saying that no one method or approach will solve all problems. She suggested that the young teacher continually check herself to see that she is not running into a blind alley by following some idea just because it is new.

A very interesting feature of the program was the presentation of a number of poems by a class in choric, speaking under the direction of C. M. Edson, of the Rocky Mount High school.

Heads Teachers

In the Department of Elementary Principals, Mrs. A. R. Wilson, Lakewood School, Durham, talked on the principal-pupil relationship. Miss Frances Wahl, of the College, led a stimulating discussion of the handling of physical education in the elementary schools.

Lee A. Wolfard, Marshall College, Huntington, West Virginia, talked in the Commercial group on "The Next Step Forward for the Commercial Teacher," which he defined as a broader cultural background. Miss Laura Bell, Greenville High school, led a round table discussion after Mr. Wolfard's talk.

Friday Afternoon Session

The Friday afternoon session of the Association's convention opened with the teachers of the district filling the auditorium of the Audin building to hear greetings by Dr. W. C. Jackson of Greensboro, president of the North Carolina Education Association, and a thought-provoking answer to the question, "What is a Good Teacher?" The question was asked and answered by Dr. W. A. Brownell, Professor of Psychology, Duke University, chief speaker of the afternoon, in developing his topic, "Better Class-Room Teaching."

Dr. Brownell gave as of first importance in a good teacher the sort of personal qualities that would make one a person worth knowing and having close contact with—alertness, many-sidedness, attractiveness, and power to stimulate. In illustration of this the speaker drew on his own experience. When he was asked to name the courses that most influenced him in college, he said that no one course stood out as a direct influence, but that Latin had had a great influence on him indirectly because it had brought him in contact with two people who had helped to shape his life.

"To be that sort of person," he said, "a teacher must not be over-professionalized, but must have the time and demand the right, to lead a normal life in the community."

He described a schedule obtained from a teacher in service as typical, which showed a teacher's every waking hour filled with some professional duty. Teachers must have leisure enough to live and be a person as well as a teacher, he said.

"In the second place, a good teacher knows the real purpose of her work. She does not teach just Latin or the third grade, for she remembers that if education is the production of changes in human beings," Latin, history, chemistry are only means of producing these changes. Thus the teacher's philosophy, or view of her work, has a great deal to do with whether or not she will make a good teacher.

A good teacher, also attains her purpose through selection and arrangement of experiences of the child.

"Since the only way a child can be educated is by engaging in experiences, a real teacher translates her objectives into terms of experiences and activities of the children. She emphasizes learning more than she does teaching, and is not primarily concerned with making use of the activity method, or the textbook method, or any other method. The fundamental question in her mind is, 'How best can I enable the pupil to attain the purposes I want him to attain?'

Thus, said Dr. Brownell in closing, a good teacher is a person who is alert, many-sided, attractive, and stimulating, who knows her real purpose and realizes it in the selection and arrangement of the pupil's experiences.

Dr. W. C. Jackson, president of the State Education Association, in his word of greeting to the organization, said that since the whole is greater than the part, he felt that he was shaking hands with himself in bringing greetings to the district meeting.

He urged that the Five-Point Program of the Association be continued: adequate state appropriation for an eight months term for every child, encouragement of supplements by cities, counties, and districts; enactment of tenure laws and adoption of a retirement system; strengthening certification regulations; and unification of administrative control of the schools.

The afternoon program was opened with music by the glee club of the Greenville High School.

The general night session was preceded by a number of dinner meetings.

At the dinner of the superintendents and principals, in the college dining hall, Elbert K. Fretwell gave a sparkling after-dinner speech in which he expressed the idea that teachers should participate in the administration, and children should be led to work with teachers and administration in such a way as to break down barriers and make for democracy.

The chief charm of his talk came from his use of his own rich store of experiences in his humorous way.

At the dinner of the classroom teachers, the state president, Miss Louise Berry, presided.

Superintendent J. H. Rose of the Greenville city schools, was the speaker.

The A. C. E. dinner was held in the Rotary Club building, with Miss Dora Coates, state president, presiding.

The dinner of the vocational groups was held in the parish house of the Episcopal Church.

At the close of the meeting a nominating committee and a resolutions committee were appointed.

Speaking before the department of superintendents at the district educational meeting, Roben J. Maaske, professor of education at the University of North Carolina, defined "good teaching" as "that process whereby the teacher, through various methods and ways characteristic of him, interests and stimulates pupils to develop their individual potentialities to the maximum."

vidual potentialities to the maximum."

In stressing the responsibilities of superintendents in promoting good teaching, Prof. Maaske indicated that good teaching depends upon the teacher keeping alive professionally, alert physically, upon proper recognition and stimulation of each teacher's capacities and potentialities, and upon promoting a satisfactory working relationship between administrators and teachers and between pupils and teachers.

"The best type of superintendent is in reality a democratic teacher of teachers, in somewhat the same way as the good teacher is a stimulating leader of pupils."

Dr. Fretwell Address

"The good teaching of today will not be good enough for tomorrow." This was the heart of the address by Dr. Elbert K. Fretwell, Teachers College, Columbia University, at the general session last night.

With 7,000,000 children in the public schools—the largest number on record—as a result of increased population, higher compulsory age limits for attendance, fewer jobs, and a more suitable curriculum, teachers have on their hands an ever increasing responsibility.

Since most of the children will never go to college, the work of the lower schools must be more and more planned for the benefit of the non-academic majority and be less and less just a preparation for college.

Dr. Fretwell discussed in his informal and entertaining way a number of the fields in which he is confident that great change must come.

He believes that there must be much more widespread reading which the high schools must encourage by such things as having home room libraries and keeping school libraries open and in use for twelve months of the year.

Teachers, too, should read. For example, they must read lyric poetry to keep their souls from drying up.

There must be increased attention to health, partly through better control of athletics to make them contribute to, instead of undermine health.

Safety education also will have to be stressed, safety in handling modern machinery and appliances and safety in the home.

Home economics will help create beautiful homes and develop taste in them.

But, with all these changes of practical nature, the teacher must still remember to keep happy.

If you do not feel happy at the beginning of your day, Dr. Fretwell said, at least go through the motions of being and happiness thus stimulated will come.

"Teaching" repeated Dr. Fretwell, "that is good teaching today will not be good enough for tomorrow."

GUY PHILLIPS PLEASED WITH CLUB SPEAKER NEW BUSINESS

Problem of Human Engineering Discussed at Meet

Guy B. Phillips of the Education department of the University of North Carolina, addressed the regular meeting of the Greenville Kiwanis club last night on the subject of "Human Engineering."

Mr. Phillips declared that we had made much progress in other lines of engineering, but asked what progress we had made in our youth.

He declared that the problems facing youth today are great in number and in seriousness. "We are facing one of our greatest problems in human engineering," declared the University staff member.

Declaring that he had been at the University only a short while, Mr. Phillips said he was impressed with the college's desire to "get next to the boys."

He compared the problems facing youth today and a generation ago. In round figures, he said, there are between 21 and 22 million youths in the country. He listed boys between the ages of 16 and 24 as youths. Of the total number, he declared, about 4,000,000 are in school, 8,000,000 employed, 4,000,000 unemployed, 250,000 in jail and reform schools, 2,500,000 on various kinds of relief, with 250,000 in CCC camps, and 250,000 wandering about over the country.

Mr. Phillips opined that the 250,000 roving about from place to place with no objective presented one of the most serious problems. He declared that many in this number were capable of doing some thing if provided the opportunity.

The speaker was in Greenville attending the Northeastern District convention of the North Carolina Teachers Association.

Dr. S. M. Crisp, who had charge of the program, introduced the speaker.

E. O. Parkinson, Jr., sang two numbers, accompanied by Miss Mary D. Dormer, of the music department of the college.

Guests, other than those appearing on the program were H. M. Blount, Frank Wilson and J. A. Collins.

Attendance last night was one of the best in several weeks, despite the inclement weather.

Oscar Brown of Asheville Visits Local Nash Agency

Oscar Brown, of Asheville, owner of the Oscar Brown Motors, spent the week in Greenville and declared he was very favorable impressed with the way his new business in Greenville is progressing and also stated that business conditions in Greenville from his observation was the best of any section in North Carolina. Mr. Brown has just recently returned from the Nash factory and states that the Nash automobile and the Nash factory policies for 1938 will put Nash in an enviable position for this year.

The Oscar Brown Motors has all different models on display in their show room. One special feature is the bed constr the bed conversion that can be made up in all models of the Nash automobile. Another feature is the conditioned air system.

The Oscar Brown Motors is successor to the Sugg Motor Company.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Shaky stocks of yesterday displayed more backbone in today's market and many leaders recovered two or more points. Selling at the start put the ticker-tape behind for a brief period and toppled averages to new lows for more than two years before buyers began to raise their bids.

Prominent on the comeback trail were rails, steels, motors, coppers and special issues. Transfers approximated 1,100,000 shares.

Bonds and commodities were better.

Bishop Bern Honored By M. E. Conference

Raleigh, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Bishop Paul Kern, for four years president of the North Carolina Methodist Conference, today received from the conference a gift of silver. Selling at the start put the tickerpresident of Duke University, during a final conference business meeting this morning.

It was announced that Bishop John Moore of Houston, Texas, would be unable to deliver his address on the program commemorating the anniversary of the fourth conference sermon tomorrow. His place was filled by W. D. Gleason of Sumter, S. C. Bishop Kern said. Dr. Gleason will ordain the following ministers elected elders from the fourth year class:

Rev. J. D. Young of Pittsboro; C. W. Goldston of Rocky Mount, and A. C. Thompson of Moncure. Elected to the fourth year class were: Rev. M. C. Dunn of Bahama; C. B. Long of Swansboro; J. W. Early of Hillsboro, and E. N. Pitts of Robersonville. Admission on trial and a traveling connection were granted Rev. H. T. Coley of Hillsboro, and others. Alternate delegates to the General Conference were named as follows: Rev. J. M. Cuthbert, Rocky Mount; Rev. H. B. Porter and M. T. Plyler, editor of the Christian Advocate; Miss Sally Louise McKimmon, C. C. Cobb, C. A. Dillon of Raleigh, and Judge Paul Frazzelle of Snow Hill.

One Killed, Two Hurt In Car-Truck Wreck

Dunn, Nov. 20.—(AP)—One man was killed and two others critically injured in an automobile accident today near Micro, in Johnston county. Kenneth Lee Bain, 25, Erwin cotton mills employe, was instantly killed when he was hurled through the windshield of his car when it was in collision with a large truck. H. Harvey Willis and Carson Johnson, also Erwin mill employes, were taken to a Smithfield hospital. They were not expected to live. Colin Surles, the fourth member of the party, escaped with minor injuries. Bain leaves a widow and daughter. Sheriff R. U. Barber of Johnston county, said no arrests had been made. Coroner R. N. Booker set an inquest for 2 p. m., today.

FRENCH MINISTERS CLOSELY GUARDED

(Continued from page one) were reported to have surrounded four men inside the Ministry of War Wednesday. The group escaped through a garden and scaled a wall. The armed mobile guard posted around the government building allowed only officials or persons with passes, to enter after 9 o'clock at night. Surete Nationale operatives pressed inquiries in several sections of Paris and provinces.
