New U. S. Representations Formally Made To Japan; Nanking Defense Falling KEY POSITIONS FALL TO JAPS

More Vigorous American Diplomatic Action Taken Against Any Possible Attempt by Japanese Military at Shanghai To Disturb Maritime Customs in City

Washington, Nov. 29. (AP)—The United States has made new and more vigorous representations to Japan against any attempt by the Japanese military at Shanghai to disturb Chinese maritime customs.

This was disclosed today at the State Department, where it was explained the new American diplomatic move was in the form of formal written presentation to the Japanese foreign office of views submitted earlier in an informal way.

Shanghai, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Japanese reported capture today of three key strongholds in Nanking's defenses, bringing them within striking distance of the last fortifications before China's capital.

Official communiques said the Japanese occupied Kiangyin, on the Yangtze river; Wutsin, about 20 miles north of Wush on the Shanghai Nanking railroad; and Ding, about 85 miles southeast of Nanking.

An army spokesman admitted, however, the Kiangyin forts which have held out for more than a week against Japanese air, land and river bombardments, still flew the Chinese flag.

The spokesman expressed belief the fall of Kiangyin, behind the forts, after desperate street fighting would force the surrender of the strong, but outflanked fortifications.

A Japanese Embassy spokesman, meanwhile, announced Japan had taken over "in principle" Chinese customs, postoffices, censorship bureau, telegraph and radio system.

He said, however, the Japanese were not taking actual physical control or making any administrative changes now.

PRESIDENT OFF FOR VACATION

Embarks for Week Of Fishing Off Florida Keys

Miami, Nov. 29.—(AP)—President Roosevelt embarked today on the yacht Potomac today for a week of fishing around the Florida keys.

A warm sun broke through the mist as he was piped over the side of the 165-foot former Navy patrol boat, its rail manned by sailors, in service whites.

Biscayne Bay fishermen said the coastal water was rough but just about right for sail fishing.

The new destroyer Selfridge, its white uniformed officers and crew also on the rail, moved out into the bay to escort the President and his fishing companions, including Secretary Ickes, Robert Jackson, Assistant Attorney General Harry Hopkins, Relief Administrator, and four others.

Mr. Roosevelt drove in an open car to the dock from his special trail. A crowd lined up in an express shed and around the depot as he came down his special ramp.

On the dock, before he boarded the Potomac, James Cox of Ohio, former presidential candidate of the Democratic party, entered the President's car and chatted briefly.

The Holliness minister, who preached here Saturday afternoon, was killed instantly when a car in which he was riding crashed into another machine.

The other vehicle was driven by David Tolin of Miami Beach Fla., who was exonerated by the coroner jury's verdict.

Wilmington, Nov. 29.—(AP)—"Unavoidable accident" was the verdict returned yesterday by a jury impaneled by Coroner John Catson of Brunswick county to investigate the circumstances surrounding the automobile crash which took the life of the Rev. Jesse Nelson, Holliness minister of Anderson, S. C., killed two miles from Supply early yesterday morning.

Testimony at the inquest, Catson said, tended to show the fatal crash was brought about by poor visibility on the road during a heavy downpour.

FARM CONTROL BILLS DEBATED IN TWO HOUSES

Measure To Carry Out Housing Program Offered

DOUBT ACTION AT THIS SESSION

North Carolina Wine Wholesalers Forced To Suspend Business for 24 Hours

Washington, Nov. 29. (AP)—President Roosevelt in a move to aid business, today asked Congress to make it easier for families to build new homes.

A bill to carry out part of the President's program was introduced immediately in the Senate while both branches of Congress debated farm measures.

Farm legislation, government reorganization—and in the Senate an anti-lynching bill—are ahead of the housing legislation on the congressional schedule, making doubtful its chances of passage during the special session.

Congressional leaders said, however, if the banking committees act speedily, the housing program might be squeezed through.

The President's idea is to make it possible for low income families to build a $5,000 home with only $500 capital and at lower monthly payments than were possible before. Companies building apartments also would have easier terms.

These suggestions brought favorable comment from Republicans and Democrats alike.

On the Senate floor the President's letter to majority leader Barkley (D. Ky.) asking that farm

WEATHER MAN GOES ON SPREE

Winds Accompany Rain; Sharp Drop In Temperature

The weather man evidently went on a spree over the week-end and dished out all kinds of weather for Greenville and community Saturday and Sunday.

After climbing up to 75 degrees yesterday and allowing residents to permit their fires to go out, the temperature did an about-face and dropped as low as 48 during the night, forcing many to get up in the early morning hours in search of more blankets. There was a difference of 27 degrees between the high and low of the period.

Heavy rains accompanied strong winds Saturday night and B. T. Clark, in charge of the weather bureau here, reported this morning total 1.21 inches of rain fell Saturday night. An additional .48 of an inch fell yesterday, bringing the total for the week-end to 1.69 inches.

Tree branches were felled by the winds Saturday night and did other damage, although nothing serious was reported. The Christmas decorations on the marquee of Blount-Harvey's store were blown down by the winds.

Meantime, Tar river continues at normal here, although a rise this week is looked for. At 8 o'clock this morning the stream was standing at four feet, nine inches. For the past several days it has been at an almost standstill, varying only about a foot.

SHIP CRASHED WHILE LANDING

No Opinion Given, However, as to What Caused Mishap

Greenwood, S. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)—A coroner's jury this morning decided the deaths of two army fliers in an airplane crash here Friday night were due to "a forced landing of a U. S. army airplane," but expressed no opinion as to the cause of the accident.

The victims were Lieut. T. C. Morgan, whose home was in Alkin and Lieut. L. C. Wood of San Diego Calif. Both were flying from their station at San Antonio, Texas, to Philadelphia with the intention of witnessing the Army-Navy football game Saturday.

A lieutenant of a CCC camp near which the plane fell told the jury he believed the fliers had become lost in a fog, which he described as very heavy. There was apparently nothing wrong with the functioning of their plane, he said.

The wreckage of the plane was taken to Fort Bragg, N. C. where a military board will make an investigation.

SPECIAL TERM COURT OPENED

Called Primarily To Try Liquor and Vice Cases

Judge J. H. Clements of Winston Salem opened a special criminal session of Pitt Superior court here this morning, called primarily for the purpose of trying defendants caught in the recent campaign against illicit liquor and vice.

The round-up of alleged bootleggers and the persons engaged in or aiding and abetting in prostitution was conducted by agents of the National Bureau of Investigation of Wilmington, A. S. Batson, manager. The ABC board contracted with the private agency to run down bootleggers in the county and the county commissioners entered into a contract with the bureau to break up other vice.

During the morning session four defendants were tried on charges of having liquor for sale. In each case the defendant pleaded not guilty, but was convicted as charged. Judge Clements' answer, reserved judgment until later. The five tried and convicted were Buelia Carroll, Annie May O'Neil, Daisy Spats and Annie Green, alias Missus Weaves.

Eisha Worley tendered a plea of not guilty to a charge of having liquor for sale. He was convicted, but Judge Clements also reserved judgment in his case.

Among the first cases tried at the afternoon session was one charging two young white boys, Cecil Lee and Bruce Strickland, with breaking and entering a country store. The boys were given 18 months on the road each.

Other cases heard up to 4 o'clock today were:

Louis Adams, liquor for sale, guilty.

Bill Ann Harris, alias Tyson, liquor for sale, pleads guilty.

John Bailey, embezzlement, not pros.

The auditorium was almost filled when court was opened this morning.

More than 100 cases are on docket, most of them charging illicit trafficking in liquor or prostitution. Albion Dunn has been employed to aid Solicitor D. M. Clark in the prosecution.

EIGHT CHANGES ARE PROPOSED

Special Message Sent to Congress by Chief Executive Asserts Lag in Construction One Of Principal Reasons Why General Business Has Not Forged Ahead

Washington, Nov. 29. (AP)—President Roosevelt asked Congress today to liberate existing laws to encourage billions of dollars worth of new housing construction in the next five years.

In a message to the special session, completed before he left for a Florida rest, the President asserted the "long continuous lag in building is a drag on all industry and trade," and was "one of the principal reasons why general business failed to forge ahead" in recent months.

He proposed eight changes in the National Housing Act of 1934 to make possible, through Federal insurance of low interest mortgages, the private financing of large numbers of housing units.

The amendments he suggested:

1. Raise the present insurable limit from 80 to 90 per cent of a property's appraised value in the case of loans to owner-occupants where the property does not exceed $6,000 in appraised value.

2. Reduce the interest and service charge on insured loans from five and one-half to five per cent.

3. Make mortgage insurance premiums one-half of one per cent on the "diminishing balance" of an insured mortgage instead of on the original face amount, as now required; furthermore, cut the rate to one-quarter of one per cent on properties valued at not more than $5,000 and where the mortgage is insured prior to July 1, 1935.

4. Authorize insurance of mortgages up to $200,000 for construction of apartments and groups of houses, for sale or rent, but limit the mortgage to $1,000 per room.

5. Revise the limited dividend corporation section to encourage construction of large-scale rental properties in the larger communities.

6. Liberalize provisions for chartering national mortgage associations to permit financing of such large building projects by a single mortgage; the R. F. C. to make available $50,000,000 for capital purposes.

7. Make the $2,000,000,000 limitation on the total amount of mortgages insurable apply to the amount of insurance to be outstanding at one time.

8. Revive the provision that expired last April, authorizing insurance of loans up to $10,000 for modernization and repairs, but excluding equipment, such as refrigerators.

CENTRAL BUREAU FOR CHARITIES NEEDED

With the Christmas season near at hand our people will soon be giving consideration to spreading Christmas cheer among the needy families of this community, but it is to be hoped that this year the matter will be handled in a more systematic manner than in previous years. One of the greatest needs in this community in connection with the public charities at Christmas time is a central bureau through which all needy cases might be cleared. During the recent years this paper has carried large numbers of Christmas Opportunities, but at the end of each Christmas season it was found that many needy families had been helped from several sources while others had received nothing. This situation came about by organizations or individuals going about their charity work in their own way without troubling to find out if the families they were helping were also being included in the Christmas Opportunity list.

In order to do a better job of our charity work this Christmas and avoid overlapping of effort we suggest that the county welfare agency or some other agency be authorized to act as the central bureau through which each case is to be cleared. Then every organization can list all its known needy cases with the bureau and likewise inform the bureau just what help has been provided for these families. Individuals can likewise report to the bureau. The bureau would have nothing to do with the distribution of the charities except at the request of the donors, but would have the responsibility of keeping up with what the various organizations and individuals intended doing in order that there might be no overlapping of effort.

We are sure that there are a great many of our people who will want to have a part in helping needy families at Christmas, but we feel that they will do it more readily when they are assured that the matter is being handled in such a manner that everybody will get some help instead of, as in the past, some families receiving as high as five or six baskets while others receive none.

Our civic and charitable organizations would do well to give this matter their prompt attention as the Christmas season is near and the sooner a definite plan for the handling of our Christmas charities is formulated the easier it will be to take care of the needy families of this community.

SHORT SHOTS

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Nov. 29—No capital cases will come up before the State Supreme court for oral argument on appeal this week as causes from the Ninth and Twelfth judicial districts are called.
Only criminal cases on the calendar are State vs. Johnson, in which the defendant contends the law providing that a father must support his illegitimate child is not one which constitutes a "continuing offense." Defendant contends that he was sentenced to, and served, one term under the statute, and that his second arrest and trial constitutes "double jeopardy."

Robert L. (Bob) Thompson, governor's secretary, has returned from a vacation he took immediately after going to Rome, Georgia, as a witness in the Jack White scandal case.

On his return Bob completed rearrangement of the governor's anteroom. He now has what he calls a new "bullpen" in which he claims he restrains visitors too anxious to see the chief executive.

As usual, syphilis led the list of reportable diseases issued by the Division of Epidemiology last week, with 74; but this time measles, with 222, and chickenpox, with 213, were within hailing distance.

Revocation of drivers' licenses last week brought North Carolina's total to 14,044.

"The farmer who keeps his production costs down is the farmer who can make a profit," said Julius Cheek, Negro 4-H club boy. Do tell!

Thanksgiving is just over, but Raleigh merchants have already decorated their stores for the Christmas trade. Incidentally anybody trying to get around on the capital's "main drag" these days will doubt seriously that there is any business recession.

Meeting of the Highway Commission, scheduled for December 17, has been deferred to December 22, a day after next letting of projects.

The school year is now officially on. Judge R. Hunt Parker, presiding in Gates Superior court, has charged the grand jury to investigate the condition of school buses.

Governor Hoy's appointment of a member of the state hospital committee in every county has been received and hailed with general approval.

Of this the Sampson Independent, says:
"We heartily approve the plan, for no community, county or state can better sell itself to visitors than through courtesy and hospitality. A friendly spirit is in a class all by itself when it comes to making lasting impressions. It matters not what the natural beauty may be, nor what a community may have to offer in the way of historical background, the spirit of the people who live there and their attitude toward visitors, will make the most lasting impression on strangers."

Governor Clyde R. Hoy has advised the State Liquor commission that it is not desirable to have state highway patrolmen used to serve warrants on alleged violators of the ABC laws in wet counties.

RALEIGH LAST WEEK

(if any) and to fill the wide open spaces of the columns they are supposed to fill.

Capus Wayne, head of the Division of Purchase and Award, thought he discerned a tendency on the part of people seeking state business to shave their prices a bit. It wasn't much of a tendency and Mr. Wayne didn't really have anything so very important to say about it, but it made one of the "big" stories of the week. Which indicates just how dull things really are.

If the Agriculture Department had anything to do, it didn't say much about it as Louis H. Wilson, its enterprising and usually productive publications expert, prepared for his wedding which is now less than three weeks in the offing.

The Utility Commission wrestled with its usual petitions for right to increase freight, passenger and miscellaneous rates, and with the usual and ordinary run of mine complaints about this, that and the other utility.

Chairman Cutler Moore of the Liquor Commission was kept busy censoring liquor ads, though he says that by now practically all the concerns are living up to the code laid down for them, which bans almost everything except pictures of bottles and a few descriptive legends reciting age, proof and other qualities of the liquor to be sold.

"COULD YOU CALL ME HELGA?" ASKED THE DOLL

Chapter One
THE NEW DOLL

This happened on a cold, white night in the North Land. Snow sizzled thick and fine around Toyland and the North Wind banged with his boney knuckles on the toyshop windows.

Santa dozed by the fire and Mrs. Santa sat near him sewing clean, white fur on his big, red coat.

"Santa," she said suddenly, her brown eyes snapping, "wake up or stop smoking your pipe. You'll burn yourself."

Santa opened his eyes and grinned. "Ho, hum," he said as he rose and stretched. "The North Wind had me half asleep. Guess I'll experiment and make a new sort of doll."

"How?" said Mrs. Santa worried. "For goodness sakes, remember the trouble we had when you made that doll with a whistle in her throat and she kept us awake all night?"

"Ho, ho," chuckled Santa. "No, this is something else. I've been wanting to make a real doll of the North."

Which!

He went to his work bench and tossed aside dolls' shoes and bits of pink silk.

"Ho, Flash," he called to a fairy that was peering curiously at him over her pale blue wings. "Let's see what's in that box of yours. Star gave me last summer."

The fairy flew to a red cupboard and on the highest shelf she lit in a white ivory box. She touched her hand to it, and wished! It flew through the air to Santa's work bench.

He opened it with a silver key and pulled out silken ermine skins and strings of snowflakes that looked like stars and then a shimmering piece of blue silk.

"Well, here goes," said Santa. "This is going to be a stormy, little doll. I'm sure."

So he snipped and modeled. Slowly under his hands a pale doll with an oval face, deep blue eyes, and long yellow hair took form. The flowing sleeves of her dress were caught at the wrists with bands of sparkling snowflakes. On her yellow curls Santa placed a tiny, ermine cap and over her dress he hung an ermine cape. She rose

The Characters

Nina, ex-debutante, impulsive, married David, hoping to end her love for her stepfather. Now she loves David and is disgusted with Richard.

Richard, the suave, handsome stepfather, tries to entice Nina into a secret love affair.

Honey, Nina's gay, childish mother who is wild about Richard, develops a heart ailment.

David, a bright young auto salesman with a small salary, begins to suspect Nina after she has given up all thought of Richard.

Chapter 49 Cold Fury

NINA followed the bellboy to the elevator, and when they alighted, she followed him down a long corridor, that Nina knew from past experience led to the corner suites, overlooking the ocean.

Richard opened the door, and showed her into a flower-filled sitting-room.

One window was open, and a lovely, misty, salty breeze blew through the white net curtains.

They sailed way out into the room, when he opened the door, and then fell back with a little slap, when he shut it.

The chandelier was unlighted, but rose-covered table lamps cast a pleasantly softening light over the regulation hotel furniture.

On a commode at one side of the room stood whisky, glasses, ice and carbonated water.

Nina didn't say a word until Richard had tipped the boy, and he had departed.

She didn't loosen her coat, or take off her gloves.

"Which is Honey's room, Richard?" she asked quietly, looking at two closed doors.

He came to her smiling, and lifted his brown hands to relieve her of her fur.

Nina moved away from him. "I wouldn't say," he remarked smiling, "that you were exactly polite . . . after I have adjusted every light, and arranged every rose, to please you . . ."

"Which is Honey's room, Richard?"

Nina was clutching her antelope hand-bag so hard that she never could brush away the fingermarks afterwards.

"Your room is over here, my dear," he answered, and he lifted her suitcase and walked toward one of the doors. "I hope you'll be comfortable."

(Wait, Nina, wait and make sure. You'll feel horribly degraded and embarrassed if you have made a mistake!)

"And Honey's room?"

"Honey?" said Richard slowly. "Honey—is—in—Tuxedo, tonight, Nina."

"I thought so . . ." she whispered, almost to herself.

And the faint sensation she had felt down at the reservation desk seized her anew. . . . Only more violently.

Her knees were no more support to her than a rag doll's . . . and all her insides were sawdust.

She put her two arms over the back of a tall wing chair, and leaned against it, to steady herself.

All That Mattered

IN a minute, when she could, she would walk across the room and go out.

"Nina," Richard was saying to her, "you . . . surely you didn't think I was going to stand this treatment from you—indeed! . . . You didn't—mean me, did you—sweet?"

She only looked at him.

It didn't matter what he said, now, what she said . . . all that mattered was that she should pull herself together enough to get out, to get downstairs, and make arrangements to catch a train back to David.

She wasn't even thinking of this thing that Richard had done to her—her thoughts, numbed, dazed as they were—had leapt ahead to David . . . what he would think of her note—whether there was any way he could check up on her and find that Honey was not here, before she could get back to him and tell the truth.

In her fear and weakness, it was as though Richard didn't exist.

He walked over to the door, and then came around back of her.

"You were just—frightened, my little girl . . . frightened to take the step, so I took it. Don't think I didn't understand," he laughed softly, and now he was so near to her, that she felt his breath on her neck. . . . "And don't think that making me wait hasn't driven me half mad! You sweet funny little devil—you knew it would . . ."

She wheeled about and struck him so sudden, and so violently, that she looked down at her smarting gloved hand—almost as surprised as he.

"You—filthy thing—you . . . You absolute rotter . . ."

She looked up at him from her hand and felt really frightened, for the first time.

There was a light in his eyes that was quite mad.

His arms, when he caught her to him, were cruelly strong.

"Let me go!"

He laughed at her.

"What sort of a fool do you take me for, darling? Why be such a fool yourself?"

He kissed her—hurting her, deliberately.

"You do love me!"

"Richard," she said, "I—loathe you, beyond all describing . . ."

Nina felt really frightened for the first time.

And this time, even he could not fail to get the sincerity in her voice.

Eager To Hurt Him

HE DIDN'T free her, but he lifted back his head a little.

He said, cuttingly: "Aside from being scared, now that you have led me on—aside from wanting to save your skin . . . you—loathe me!"

"Yes, Richard, I do . . ." And it was Nina who laughed now. "That's hard for you to believe, isn't it? . . . Hard for you to take!"

"Frankly—yes. But I don't quite believe it—yet."

"When you speak of my being scared, you seem to forget that I was quite willing to give up everything—facing the world for you—once."

Her brain was working now, and a cold fury had seized her. David—Honey—everything else disappeared into the distance.

All she wanted was to hurt Richard for all he had put her through. . . . And she knew how.

"How about letting me go?" she asked, coldly. "Do you think it's quite in keeping with your role of suave, successful heartbreaker, to be clutching on to a girl who actually feels nauseated at the very sight and touch of you?"

He dropped his arms, then, and backed away with a disconcerted look on his face, that gave Nina one of the most pleasant sensations of her life.

TWO NEW FORD V-8 CARS FOR 1938

THE DE LUXE

THE STANDARD

DE LUXE FORD V-8 . . . 112" wheelbase; 85-hp. engine; Improved Easy-Action Safety Brakes; Mohair or Broadcloth upholstery; Twin horns, tail lights, sun visors; Clock; 6.00" tires, white side-walls are extra; 8 body types; 6 colors.

STANDARD FORD V-8 . . . 112" wheelbase; 85 or 60 hp. engine; Improved Easy-Action Safety Brakes; Broadcloth or Mohair upholstery, Mohair extra in "60"; One tail light, one sun visor; Twin horns; 3 body types; 3 colors.

FORD offers two new cars for 1938—the Standard Ford V-8 and the De Luxe Ford V-8. They are different in appearance—but built to the same high standard of mechanical excellence—on the same chassis.

Because people liked our 1937 car so well, they bought more than of any other make. They liked its looks, its smooth, economical performance, and the way it handled. We have improved on that car in the newly styled Standard Ford V-8.

But some folks wanted still more size and style, with the same Ford advantages. For them, we designed a new De Luxe line.

The De Luxe Ford V-8 Sedans are longer with more room, larger luggage space, and finer appointments. De Luxe cars are equipped with the 85-horsepower engine only.

The Standard is even lower priced than the De Luxe. It has graceful new lines and well-tailored interiors. It gives you again a choice of V-8 engine sizes—85 horsepower or 60 horsepower.

Before Ford made V-type 8-cylinder engines available to every one, they were used only in expensive cars. Since then, four million Ford owners have learned the genuine enjoyment of driving an eight-cylinder car with all-around economy. The thrifty "60" engine, especially, makes possible in Standard models a very low first cost and equally low operating cost.

Both lines low priced. With two distinct designs, two engine sizes and two price ranges, you'll find a 1938 Ford car to fit your needs exactly. Whichever one you choose you get the same proved Ford features.

STERILIZATION OF UNFIT PROPOSED IN BARBADOS

Bridgetown, Barbados.—(AP)—Sterilization of the unfit "as in Germany" was recommended by Dr. W. Hawkins of Bridgetown during a discussion of birth control in the house of assembly here. "I am of the opinion birth control is putting the cart before the horse," Dr. Hawkins declared, "there are people in Barbados who are not fit to propagate their kind. Barbados should follow the lead of Germany and sterilize the unfit."

Considered Possible Formidable Senate Candidate

By HENRY AVERILL
 Raleigh, Nov. 29.—Among all the names mentioned as possible entries on the ballot for United States Senate next year, it is doubtful if any is giving more concern to Robert R. Reynolds, the incumbent, and Frank Hancock, his only announced opponent, than that of Major L. P. McLeod, Greensboro attorney.

Reasons for this dread—if the feeling can really be said to be that serious—of the doughty major are not too hard to find.

In the first place the Greensboro attorney is well known throughout the state. His long service as chairman of the State Board of Elections has kept his name in the public prints, and his obvious fairness in that position has won friends for him in all factions of the Democratic party.

He is a successful lawyer who represents a number of well-to-do clients. His leanings are not obnoxious to the conservatives of the party. In fact, it is reported that the so-called administration forces would much prefer him to either of the men now in the race.

On the other hand he has never been among those who have looked upon every liberal movement as subversive of the constitution and as undermining the very foundations of our civilization.

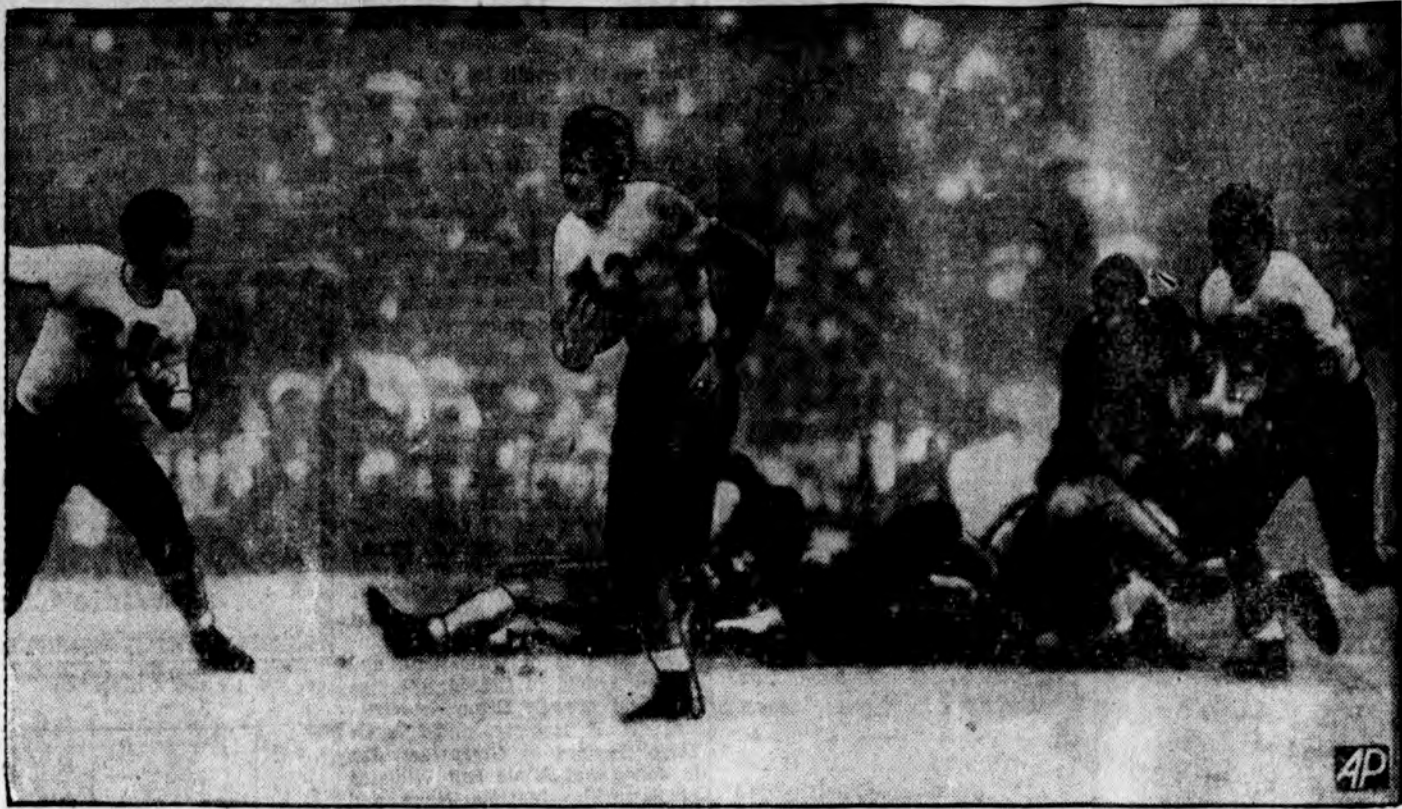

His stand, though he was thoroughly beaten by the Democratic state committee for radical revision of the state's absentee ballot law should make him much more popular with those who have fought against abuses of the election law for years.

All in all the Major would be a man to reckon with.

The Duke 'Shiners'
 Durham (AP)—Black eyes seem to have been the vogue among football players at Duke university this year. At one time or another, every regular lineman was decorated with a shiner.

PANTHER RUNS FOR TOUCHDOWN AGAINST DUKE

Sweeping wide off his right end, Dick Cassiano (center), is shown as he weaved for 14 yards to score the only touchdown for Pittsburgh in the Panthers' clash with Duke at Durham, N. C. The halfback's run, which clinched a 10-0 victory for the Panther; followed by a few minutes Captain Frank Souhak's 23-yard placement field goal which gave Pitt a 3-0 lead. Hope ran high in the undefeated Panthers' lair for another Rose Bowl bid.

Sport Slants

Any doubt as to whether John Montague had captured the public imagination was dispelled when the mystery golfer attempted to take part in a charity match with Babe Ruth, Babe Didrikson and Sylvia Annenberg.

In their mad desire to get a glimpse of Montague, some 12,000 spectators stormed the Fresh Meadow (N. Y.) course and made play impossible. The crowd hemmed in the golfers and overran the fairways.

Even when a contestant did manage a shot there was little likelihood of finding the ball before some spectator picked it up for a souvenir. When Montague was bringing a club back to start his swing a spectator stole it from his hands and made off.

No wonder, then, that Referee

Scotty Clishelm picked up the balls on the ninth green and called off the match. As for Montague's giving a demonstration of his wizardry, there was no opportunity. To the public he remains the mystery golfer.

The manner in which Montague has captured the imagination of the man in the street is amazing. Only a few persons have seen him play golf. Yet stories of his prodigious feats have aroused a keen desire on the part of the public to see Montague perform.

Bobby Jones, Babe Ruth, Red Grange, Joe Louis and a few other athletes won the fancy of the crowds. But they did it by deeds on the field of battle. It's different with Montague. Most stories one hears about him are hearsay. Yet the interest of the public is equally as keen. Montague is truly a great athlete in the public mind.

Only time and competition with top-notch golfers will establish Montague's right to the place he holds in the minds of sport enthusiasts. The public expects amazing feats of him and is not likely to be satisfied with anything

It's Odd But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (AP Science Editor)

New York.—First there was the Morse wire, then wireless, third short of superhuman performances. Montague eventually may prove his right to the aura of greatness, but he will have to do it the hard way. The pressure will be on at every turn.

"wired wireless" and now a new idea is appearing for communication channels in the form of electrical air pipes.

This is a hollow pipe, with the air inside highly electrified. For short distances, in the Bell Telephone Laboratories, these hollow pipes conduct ultra-short radio waves.

The radio waves follow the pipe. While a pipe is more expensive than a wire, the electrified air in a small pipe gives promise of transmitting as many simultaneous messages as hundreds of wires.

The laboratories already have built a co-axial cable, a single wire within a hollow pipe, which is equal to scores of ordinary wires.

But the scientists are looking forward to more spectacular achievements by using the piped air itself. The experiments are told by G. C. Southworth in the Journal of Applied Physics.

New York, Nov. 29—(AP)—The buying fever cooled in today's stock market as speculative forces cashed out profits resulting from a brisk week-end rally.

Moderate offerings following the opening shock down some leaders two or more points. A little support appeared later and extreme losses were shaded here and there near the fourth hour. Dealings were slow throughout.

Warns Merchants To Be On Lookout For "Racketeers"

Persons Said To Be Going Over State Representing Themselves As Department Inspectors

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Nov. 29—Merchants of North Carolina were again warned today to "look out for racketeers" representing themselves as inspectors of the State Department of Agriculture's weights and measures division, collecting fees and making inspections "in violation of the law."

The warning was issued by C. D. Baucum, head of the weights and measures division, who is now seeking alleged impersonators operating in Currituck and other Eastern North Carolina counties.

"It was hoped that as a result of a recent conviction of a man operating in Graham county and the severe penalty imposed by the court that 'racketeers' would be sufficiently impressed, but the fraudulent operations have moved eastward," Baucum said.

The weights and measures division chief explained that the would-be inspectors reportedly called upon merchants, informed them that they represented the Department of Agriculture, made inspection of scales and weighing devices and charged fees ranging from 25 cents to five dollars, "all in violation of the law."

All weights and measures inspectors for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture carry identification cards bearing the name of the inspector, a photograph of the inspector and the signature of Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott.

"Merchants of the state should demand that any person representing himself as a weights and measures inspector produce his identification card, and if he makes any charges for services rendered the police should be called for such person is an impostor," Baucum said, adding that "no inspector is allowed to collect inspection fees."

"The Department of Agriculture is seeking to locate all parties reported operating as inspectors in violation of the law, but it is essential that the merchants co-operate."

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

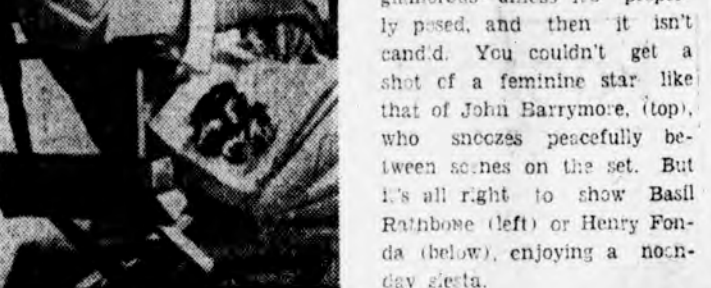

John Barrymore

By ROBBIN COONS

If you've ever wondered how you look when you're asleep, you should come to Hollywood where the candid cameras delight in telling you—if you're an actor.

The candid lenses would like to let the actresses know how they look, too, but it isn't glamorous—unless it's properly posed, and then it isn't candid. You couldn't get a shot of a feminine star like that of John Barrymore, (top), who snoozes peacefully between scenes on the set. But it's all right to show Basil Rathbone (left) or Henry Fonda (below), enjoying a non-day zetta.
