

Generally fair, not quite so cold in extreme west portion tonight; Wednesday increasing cloudiness, slightly warmer.

FAMILY DENIES STORY OF ABDUCTION

Authorities, However, Push Hunt For Missing Man

ONE OF BROTHERS CALLS FOR NOTE

Follows Instruction of Anonymous Telephone Call and Visits Unnamed Cafe

White Plains, N. Y., Dec. 7.—(AP)—The disappearance of Arthur Fried, New York business man, from his suburban Westchester county home still mystified authorities today as they push investigation into reports he had been kidnaped.

Fried, office manager of the Colonial Sand and Stone Company, vanished Saturday night. A few hours later his car was found abandoned in a lonely section and it was reported he had been abducted and was being held for ransom, the amount varying from $100,000 to $200,000.

His family meanwhile repeated denials they knew anything of a kidnaping, hold to the belief Fried had disappeared voluntarily. Despite the denials of a kidnaping one investigator disclosed that one of Fried's five brothers, Hugo, had followed the instructions of an anonymous telephone call and had gone to an unnamed cafe where he had found a ransom note hidden.

One and One-Half Pound Baby Dies

The one and one-half pound daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tip Adams, of near Ayden, died at the home today at the age of nine days. The infant was believed to have been the smallest ever born in Pitt county and the physician, Dr. J. S. Liverman of Winterville, had hoped the child would live. In fact, arrangements had been made this morning to place the baby in an incubator when word was received here of the death.

Trio Of Escapees Taken In Custody

Raleigh, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Three men who escaped from the Lee county prison camp Sunday night were caught at Kinston and at Windsor today, Oscar Pitts, superintendent of prisons, announced.

Joe Smith, convicted in Lenoir county, and Marvin McLamb, sentenced in Harnett county, were taken at Kinston, and Tom Rhodes, sent up from Bertie county, was caught at Windsor, Pitts said.

Last night Monroe Hendrick, convicted in Mecklenburg, surrendered, leaving five men still free as a result of the break.

BOY LIVES BETWEEN CASTS AND WHEEL CHAIR

Wenatchee, Wash.—(AP)—At 14, Glenn Wade claims a broken bone championship. He's had 63 fractures during his life.

An unusual bone condition affected him soon after birth, when his mother snapped his arm while putting on his jacket and he broke his leg when he tried to put his foot in his mouth.

Unable to walk, he usually gets about in a wheel chair, but recently returned to plaster casts for the 62nd time when his chair turned suddenly, threw him to the pavement and broke both legs and his right arm.

JAIL MUSICIANS KNOW THEIR BARS

Logan, West Va.—(AP)—There string-strumming musicians in the county jail play from inside their cell block while the director stands outside, but they boast it won't be long before they will charm more than just the inmates.

Charney Johnson, Sam Eldridge and Charley Cline twang the strings of their instruments while Moss Steele beats the baton on the bars.

And Jailer C. W. Bias is just as proud as they are. He says: "The old grand opera hasn't got a thing on my boys."

15 SHOPPING DAYS TILL CHRISTMAS

Reported Missing

John R. Nyhoff, 23, (above), of Troy, N. Y., son of a prominent real estate man and son-in-law of a State Supreme court justice, has been missing since December 2, according to his father John J. Nyhoff. The family believe he has met with foul play.

SHARP DROP IN TEMPERATURE

Mercury Falls Far Below Freezing At Some Points

B. T. Clark, in charge of the Greenville weather station, declared an official low of 20 degrees was struck during the 24 hours ending at 8 o'clock this morning.

(By The Associated Press) Winter paid the Carolina's a visit today and sent temperatures tumbling far below freezing at some points. Mount Mitchell recorded the coldest weather of the area with 15 below zero. Sub-normal marks were reported all along the line and some weather observers termed them unusual this early in the season.

Although several inches of snow covered some western areas yesterday and flurries were general in the central and eastern portion, the weather for most part was cold and clear today.

One of the coldest points in the area, besides Mount Mitchell, was Asheville with a low reading of four above zero. Other temperatures ranged from 10 degrees in Hickory to 20 in New Bern and 22 at Wilmington.

The most severe cold wave of the season struck Florida and forecasters said some fruit and vegetable damage was inevitable.

Hopes were high, however, that grower precautions had held losses to a low figure, but fruit men said it would be 10 days before any accurate check could be made.

President Begins Duties At Offices

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—White House officials said today examination of X-ray photographs had disclosed "no bone involvement" in President Roosevelt's unhealed tooth socket.

Secretary Early told reporters this meant it would be unnecessary to scrape the jawbone.

He added that the infection was confined solely to the soft tissue of the gum and that another treatment involving cleansing of the socket from which a tooth recently was extracted, was given this morning.

Shortly afterwards the President returned to his office and arranged his appointments.

Wild Turkeys Plentiful Over State This Season

Raleigh, Dec. 7.—Wild turkeys are more plentiful in North Carolina this season than in years, John D. Chalk, Commissioner of Game and Inland Fish, said today. Increase in the number of the beautiful bronze birds is ascribed by Mr. Chalk to better cooperation of hunters in observing the legal bag limit of one per day, as well as to the closer protection given the turkeys in the last few years.

"From all sections we are getting reports from hunters that turkey hunting this season is the most satisfactory in many years," said Mr. Chalk. "The hunters seem to be giving us excellent cooperation in observing the state's game laws, particularly the turkey a day bag limit. They seem to realize that because the present restrictions were adopted and rigidly enforced, wild

DEFEATS MOVE TO PUT LIMIT ON FARM BILL

Senate Rejects Proposal by G. O. P. Leader McNary

DECISION COMES ON 51 TO 25 VOTE

Oregon Senator Had Sought to Limit Operation of Measure To Three Years

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The Senate rejected today by a vote of 51 to 25 an amendment by Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, to limit operation of the farm bill to three years, 1938 through 1940.

McNary argued that a three-year period "will in some time to try out this measure which is an emergency measure after all."

Senator Pope, democrat and co-author of the measure, answered that McNary's proposal would seriously injure the program.

The house meanwhile resumed debate on compulsory control of cotton through marketing quotas after rejecting a proposal by Rep. Hobbs (D.-Ala.) to make controlled planting effective in 1938. The bill provides for delaying operation of that feature until 1939.

Opponents of compulsory crop control sought other modifications of the pending measure with hopes aroused by tentative house approval of elimination of a section imposing farmer-approved marketing quotas for wheat whenever surpluses might lower prices.

Rep. Coffee (D.-Neb.), who suggested the change, said he would attempt the same procedure when the compulsory corn control section is discussed.

Another amendment, up for action, was deferred. This would modify the control provision for cotton.

FLIERS FEARED LOST IN STORM

Bomb-Laden Plane Missing After Typhoon Hits Island

Manila, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The Philippine army chief of staff, a United States army pilot and three other native army officers, the latter in a bombplane, were missing today as the Philippines' third devastating typhoon in three weeks swept out toward the China sea.

Unreported for more than 24 hours, General Paulino Santos, chief of staff, and the other airmen were feared crashed in mountainous Tayabas province of Luzon island, or driven seaward by the storm.

General Santos and Lieut. William Lee, U. S. A., were in a transport plane equipped with parachutes.

Major General Dasilio Valdes, assistant to Santos, ordered searching planes made ready to take off as soon as weather permits.

A large portion of the central Philippine archipelago was isolated by the storm, which caused two known deaths. A serious epidemic of dysentery was reported claiming many lives in Sorsogon province, hit by the November 11 typhoon.

Weather Bureau officials said the storm was moving slowly toward the China sea, but might strike the leper colony on Culion island.

Dispatches reaching the French border from government sources said the only activity was brief observation flights by both government and insurgent planes and customary exchanges of artillery fire.

An ultimatum, which insurgent sources said demanded unconditional surrender of the government under threat of a new offensive, expired without any apparent change in the civil war situation.

The Land Of Beer

Berlin (AP)—Germany's beer tax netted the government $115,200,000 in the fiscal year 1936-37, reports The Angriff, organ of Dr. Joseph Goebbels, propaganda minister. Germans consumed an average of 15 gallons per person.

VERMONT TOWN REVIVES OLD BLUE LAWS

Francis Clark (left) and Daniel Thompson are shown as they carried muskets to church in Bellows Falls, Vt., in an effort to comply with an old blue law requiring "menfolk" to protect women from prowling redskins. This bit of by-play was their interpretation of the antiquated law under which Windham County, Vt., launched a drive against Sabbath "lawbreakers." Another law which was revived bans on the Sabbath Day "any secular business or employment except works of charity."

PLAN OFFERED TO AID NATION

Lamont DuPont Suggests Way To Put Idle To Work

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—A two to ten year plan to create three million new jobs through investment of $25,000,000,000 by private industry was proposed today by Lamont DuPont, president of E. I. DuPont de Nemours Company, in an address at the National Association of Manufacturers convention.

DuPont pictured bringing about a new era with eventual elimination of poverty and unemployment through this program:

"1. Development and popularization of new products.

"2. Vastly broadening the market for existing products through lowering their costs.

"3. Maintaining a rule of fair return for all efforts, not excepting capital efforts."

Industry can put this plan into effect, he said, if given a "fair opportunity" through a governmental pledge covering these points:

"1. Stabilization of tax rates over a definite period.

"2. Stabilization of fair laboring conditions over a definite period.

"3. Immediate stabilization of the 'legal rules' under which business must operate, subject only to 'unmistakable public demand' for amendments."

He said the actual rate of wages or the actual scale of wages or hours were not as important as stabilization.

DuPont said he was criticizing nobody for past difficulties.

While he suggested no detailed plans for a $25,000,000,000 financing program, he said "it is neither hopeless nor impossible."

Prince In Accord With Franco Plan

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier.—Dec. 7.—(AP)—Prince Xavier of Bourbon-Parma, head of the traditionalist branch of the Spanish royal family, was reported today to have agreed with insurgent General Francisco Franco "on the necessity for uniting all Spaniards worthy of the name on a basis of national and traditional principles."

While intense cold and snow suspended military operations along the entire Aragon front of North-eastern Spain, dispatches from Salamanca, the insurgent capital, told of a conference in which Xavier and Franco discussed the present and future of Spain.

Good Investment

J. H. Waldrop, as cashier of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Co., knows a good investment when he sees one and when he nets such results as he did recently he does not mind telling the world about it.

Mr. Waldrop's son recently had his bicycle stolen and an ad was inserted in the want-ad columns of The Reflector. A few days later a man living in Littlefield, about 16 miles from here, called up Mr. Waldrop and told him he had seen such a bicycle in that vicinity. A deputy sheriff was sent to investigate and the bicycle was located and returned.

A 25 cent investment for the return of a $35 article is not a bad investment even for a banker.

COUNTY COURT RESUMED HERE

County court was resumed here this morning after having been in recess for the past two weeks while terms of Superior court were being held and a number of cases were disposed of before the lunch recess.

A nolle pro was taken in the case charging James Hanrahan with liquor for sale.

Albert Nelson, Negro, tendered a plea of guilty to assault on a female and was given a four-months sentence, suspended upon payment of the cost and $25 to the prosecuting witness.

Tom Gray, Negro, pleaded guilty to assault with a deadly weapon and judgment was suspended upon payment of the costs of court.

James Jones, Negro, was fined $50, costs to be deducted, and given a six-months road sentence after pleading guilty to having liquor for sale.

Thad Godwin, Negro, pleaded guilty to assault with a deadly weapon and was fined $20, costs to be deducted, and given a 90-day suspended sentence.

Floyd Sawyer, Negro, was fined $20, costs to be deducted, and given a 90-day suspended sentence after pleading guilty to assault with a deadly weapon.

Robert Jones, Negro, accused of larceny, was acquitted.

Raymond Wainwright, white man pleaded guilty to driving drunk and was fined $50, taxed with the costs of court, had his driving license revoked for 12 months and given a suspended sentence of six months.

James Redmon, Negro, was given a 90-day sentence after pleading guilty to larceny.

George Williams, Negro, was convicted of larceny and was given a 90-day sentence, suspended upon good behavior. A capias was ordered issued for Ernest Sugg, prosecuting witness.

Announce Additional Workers in Seal Sale

Mrs. J. H. B. More, chairman of the Greenville Christmas Seal sale, today announced the following additional Seal sale workers:

Mrs. Vance Perkins, Mrs. Tyson Bilbro, Mrs. D. H. Conley, Mrs. Royce Hunsucker, Mrs. W. F. Evans, Mrs. C. D. Griggs. These workers have charge of the Christmas Seal sale booths in the bank lobbies.

SEC. WALLACE OUTLINES PLAN

Declares Industrial Production Can Be Increased

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace introduced in business discussions today the prediction that industrial production can be increased "at least 40 per cent" within three years if farmers, workers, businessmen and government cooperate.

He proposed in a radio speech seven "common sense ways of restoring trade:

Home construction, equitable tax law revisions, farm legislation that is fair to producers and consumers alike, enactment of a "well-drawn" wage hour bill, maintenance of a "healthy" securities market, continued government spending until private capital takes up the slack and continuance of reciprocal trade treaties.

Wallace's address was made almost simultaneously with the launching of a two phase program by the Committee for Industrial Organization to cope with the rising wave of unemployment.

Wallace also discussed the labor situation, saying if farmers block the efforts of labor to maintain fair wages they themselves will be the losers when the workers have less money to spend for farm products. If workers carry on strikes against fair prices for food then they will be the losers when farmers have less money to spend for industrial products.

Name Henderson Man Head Theatre Owners

Pinehurst, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina, Inc., elected S. S. Stevenson of Henderson, president today to succeed Charles Picquette of Pinehurst, who declined to continue the office after 14 years.

The election capped a session of the Silver Jubilee convention, at which time the theatre owners adopted a resolution objecting to the appearance of white persons and Negroes in movie scenes on an equal social basis.

Trimms Canaries' Nails

Philadelphia (AP)—Mrs. George Weiland is a bird chiropodist. For more than 20 years she has been trimming the nails of canaries and occasionally amputating feet and legs when they can't be repaired.

She serves 1,500 customers in Philadelphia and its suburbs.

Graham Backers Scoff At Claim Of Reconciliation

Raleigh, Dec. 7.—Adherents of Sandy Graham are scoffing loudly at the claim, so frequently made, that Governor Clyde R. Hoey is "reconciling" diverse factions of the Democratic party and drawing them close together in one big happy family.

The scoffing has reached a crescendo with the report that Leroy Martin, vice president of the Wachovia Bank and Trust company and one of Sandy's most vigorous supporters, may be named director of the division of purchase and contract to succeed Capus Waynick, recently resigned.

The Grahamites point to all other appointments made since Governor Hoey took office as pretty good indications that no Graham or McDonald supporters are going to get anything in the way of recognition. They contend and cite the record to support the contention, that every single solitary Hoey appointment of even minor consequence has gone to an "original" Hoey man.

This, they declare, is in direct contrast to the attitude taken by Governor Hoey between the first and second primaries last year. Then, they insist, he called in prominent Grahamites and assured them that "bygones are bygones" and that all would be "fed from the same spoon" if the Graham man would but rally to the Hoey standard for the second primary.

Running at random, and from memory, a prominent Graham supporter mentioned the following appointments, all of which he classed as having been given to "original" Hoey henchmen.

BOARD SLICES MELLON TAXES

Decision Seen As Victory For Late Financier

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The United States Board of Tax Appeals today cut a government tax claim against the late Andrew W. Mellon from $3,075,103 to approximately $700,000.

Shortly after the decision was announced Donald Sheppard, executor of the Mellon estate, said "on behalf of Mr. Mellon's family and other executors and trustees of his charitable trusts, I may say that the decision of the Board is a victory for Mr. Mellon."

The treasury department's share of fraud was the important issue. The board in unanimously rejecting this charge affirmed the decision of a Pittsburgh Grand Jury in May 1934, on the same charge first raised by the Attorney General.

Sheppard said some points of the decisions relating to cooperate reorganization were "surprising" and that attorneys have been asked to study it immediately "looking toward an appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia."

Mellon's attorneys won a deduction for the costs of priceless paintings which Mellon gave to his charitable and educational trusts and which have since been donated to the Federal government.

Most of the other issues in the dispute about Mellon's 1931 taxes dealt with security transactions for which Mellon claimed exemptions.

SENTENCED DIE FOR BURGLARY

Jury Recommendation of Mercy Sent To Governor

Goldboro, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Judge Henry A. Grady today sentenced James Marshall, 30 year old Negro, to die in the gas chamber at State's prison at Raleigh February 4 for first degree burglary of the home of Robert Smith of Mount Olive last August.

The Judge ordered transmitted to Governor Hoey the Wayne county's jury recommendation for mercy.

Marshall, alias James Morris, also was indicted for a series of filling station holdups and for abducting Mark Corbett, service station operator, and Corbett's young son and taking them for a wild ride in a stolen automobile.

Defense counsel announced intention to appeal.

Wilson Is Slated To Replace Dodd

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—It was reported today in diplomatic circles that Hugh Wilson, assistant Secretary of State, soon will be appointed Ambassador to Germany to replace William E. Dodd, who is expected to resign.

State Department officials declined to discuss the report, referring all inquiries on the subject to the White House. Wilson also declined to discuss the matter.

Dodd, a native of Clayton, N. C., and a former professor of American history at the University of Chicago, has been envoy to Germany since June, 1933. It was understood in diplomatic circles that he expected to return to the University some time next year.

Postpone Meeting Of Pitt Bar Asso.

The regular bi-monthly meeting of the Pitt County Bar association scheduled to be held tonight has been postponed until Tuesday night of next week.

The dinner meeting was to have been held at Reeser's, but the place has been closed for repairs. It was decided to hold the meeting next week at Reeser's after it is open, and if not the session will be held at some other place.

Julius Brown is president of the association and decision to hold the meeting next Tuesday was made on a vote of lawyers in County court this morning.

Invaders Attempt To Scale Massive Battlements

GENERAL CHIANG QUILTS NANKING

Dispatches Confirming Reports City Bombed By Japs Fail To Report Casualties

Shanghai, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Advance columns of Japanese troops assailed Nanking's walls tonight.

Japanese officers said a spearhead of the invaders was attempting to climb the city's massive battlements with scaling ladders.

Gates of the apparently doomed city were closed. Chinese had started a final stand which seemed destined to fail.

Japanese asserted that their main forces had not yet reached the city but added that they were "progressing satisfactorily and according to schedule."

The spokesman did not say how soon he expected the fall of the city.

General Chiang Kai-Shek, China's leader, has left Nanking, Chinese sources disclosed. He and Madame Chiang were said to have departed by airplane for Nanchang. The government evacuated two weeks ago.

Foreign dispatches from Nanking confirmed Japanese reports that Japan's war planes had pounded the city with bombs. These dispatches, however, did not mention the extent of casualties or damage.

Japanese had asserted that 80 planes raided the city in the most intensive bombardment of the war thus far.

The raids apparently were aimed at military objectives surrounding the city. Japanese claimed their air force had struck at towns and cities of the lower Yangtze valley as far as Nanking, destroying air fields, aircraft and military equipment.

Christian Science Church.
"God the Only Cause and Creator" was the subject of the lesson-lesson in all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, December 5.
The golden text was from Psalms 91: 1, 3. "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handiwork. There is no speech nor language where their voice is not heard."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven or in earth (as there be gods many, and lords many). But to us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him. (I Cor. 8:5-6). The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy. "Is Spirit the source or creator of matter? Science reveals nothing in Spirit out of which to create matter. Divine metaphysics explains away matter. Spirit is the only substance and consciousness recognized by divine Science. The admission that there can be material substance requires another admission—namely, that Spirit is not infinite and that matter is self-creative, self-existent, and eternal. From this it would follow that there are two eternal causes, warring forever with each other; and yet we say that Spirit is supreme and all-presence."

CONGRESS, THE PEOPLE, AND NEUTRALITY

over the present trend of American policy. The introduction of five new war referendum proposals. Senate criticism of Ambassador Bullitt's visit to Warsaw, and the House attack on the Administration for its failure to invoke the neutrality law are warnings to the White House that Congress is opposed to a war policy or collective action to stop Japan in Asia.

Even though the peace-war issue is not on the agenda for the special session, returning members of Congress are showing that they are aware of the intense concern on the part of all sections of the nation for avoiding war. A canvass of the House membership shows that there has been no loss of numbers among those who opposed giving the President a free hand in charting our foreign policy. Indeed, there has been an increase in congressional sentiment against such a policy.

Vigorous support for a strict neutrality policy has come from both farm and veteran groups recently. Meeting in convention at Harrisburg, Pa., the National Grange approved a resolution favoring a stronger neutrality policy to include embargoes on basic war materials and to keep American ships out of the belligerent carrying trade. The Grange also opposed entangling alliances that sooner or later will lead this country to war.

Veteran groups have also been vocal on the question of keeping out of war. The former National Commander of the American Legion, Frank Belgrano, speaking in San Francisco recently, called for a strict neutrality law. The National Legislative Representative of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, speaking in Washington on the opening day of the special session, also denounced policies leading toward a repetition of the 1914-17 policy of the United States. To Speak In New Bern.
Miss Pamela Gwynn of the college art department, will speak in New Bern today before the New Bern teachers and those from Craven county schools, on art problems from the point of view of the public school teacher.

Miss Gwynn will demonstrate methods of securing creative art, and will have in the high school auditorium, where she is to speak, an exhibition of art work from E. C. T. C. classes and from various grades at the college training school with which to illustrate her points. She will spend the day visiting schools in New Bern.

To Speak In Goldsboro.
President L. R. Meadows of the college, will speak in Goldsboro this evening at 8:30. He will be the guest of the Rotary Club of that city, and will speak to them on the Far Eastern situation.

Service of Consecration.
A pre-Christmas service of consecration and dedication will be held in the Eighth Street Christian Church tomorrow night at 7:30. At this service the members of the congregation will make their Christmas gifts to the church. Following an impressive service of consecration, led by the members of the officiating of the congregation, the congregation will go to the altar, each member placing a lighted candle around the Cross and a gift at the foot of the Cross. A lighted Cross will be placed in the center of the altar and places for the candles arranged in banks radiating from the Cross.

This service follows a somewhat similar service held in the early fall when the leadership of the congregation dedicated themselves anew to their tasks in an impressive candle service. The watchword of the congregation for the church year 1937-38 is "Christianizing Our Ideals" and the emphasis for November and December has been on "Christianizing Our Sharing." Emphasis in sermons, programs and the general work of the church has been centered around this note and the call made to Christianizing the sharing of our time, energy, ability and possessions. The service tomorrow night brings this emphasis to a climax in the sharing of possessions. Since the note of Christmas centers in giving the members are asked to make their first gifts to the work of the Lord whose birthday is celebrated at this season. Every member of the congregation is reminded of this service and asked to give it right of way in planning for tomorrow's activities. The members of the official board are requested to take their places in the front pews from which they will lead the congregation in the service of consecration and dedication.

DARE TO DREAM

BY ALICE MARIE DODGE

Chapter One

'Name And Telephone Number, Please'

WHEN Nelda Barrie noticed that the gas indicator was flirting with the zero mark, she turned her green roadster toward a service station a few yards ahead.

"Here goes my last dollar," she said to herself. "Well, everything's shot to pieces for me, so what's the difference?"

The attendant had just put the nozzle of the gasoline hose into the tank when a car chugged noisily into the station behind him. The brakes screeched as if in pain, but they didn't hold. Nelda was jolted hard as the car hit her back bumper.

"Hey!" yelled the attendant. "You made me spill gas all over!"

Nelda saw in old sedan that had a fit-for-the-junk-heap air about it. Two young men were in the front seat. Instantly she was struck by the great contrast of their clothes. The man behind the wheel was shabbily dressed while the other's attire bore the sheen that money and position give. Both leaped out and hurried to the side of her roadster.

"I'm terribly sorry!" the well-dressed one explained. "Did it frighten you?"

"No; I'm used to jolts," she returned, noting that his hair was blood and curly.

"You see Bill's brakes—it's his car—are on the loose."

smile. He used it now. "I quit by invitation."

"You don't mean—expelled?"

"How'd you guess?"

"Oh... I'm sorry!"

"Don't be. I think it's a grand break."

There was no mistaking the delight in his tone. Nelda thought fleetingly about the irony of life. Here was she agonizing because a college education was snatched away from her, and this young man was gloating over the fact that he was put out of school.

After a few remarks back and forth they found that they had a number of acquaintances in common.

tion about a year ago. I've met him only a couple of times. Queer bird."

"He didn't like it because you ditched him."

"I merely thumbed a ride from him. You see my car was smashed up."

"Speeding?" she cut in.

"Exactly." He laughed as they would at a huge joke. "That's why I was invited to leave college."

"Aren't you going to some other college?"

"He made a sound of contempt. "I should say not! Dad has enough money to sink a ship, so—"

'I Take No Man's Dust'

"Oh! A rich man and doesn't care who knows it!" she flashed, her glance taking in his expertly tailored dark suit, his smart white shirt and blue tie, his light felt hat. At that moment she hated money as much as she longed for it.

"I wasn't bragging," he returned easily. "Really." He took out a gold cigarette case. "Smoke?"

"I don't."

"Somebody fan me! What's the reason? Too young?"

"I just don't go in for it—that's all."

"Now don't tell me you haven't any vices!" he cried in mock horror, turning his head to examine her critically.

"I've been too busy concentrating on a career to acquire any."

Nelda's heart was racing. This was adventure, excitement... perhaps romance.

The young man referred to as Bill got in his word then.

"I want to apologize," he said, his face full of contrition and embarrassment.

"That's all right," she hastened to assure him.

Strangely, his whole appearance became etched clearly on her mind. His face and hands were stamped with the brown tint that comes from days spent in the outdoors. It was a sensitive face with high cheekbones. His blue eyes had in them an expression that suggested he'd been hurt by life in some way. His cheap gray suit failed to conceal the youthful, rippling strength of his limbs. There was force in this man, Nelda thought.

He seemed to be cataloging her, too. Most men looked lingeringly at Nelda Barrie. Her mouth was red and full. When she spoke, or smiled, it was as though a vivid flower had come to life. A trace of Spanish blood in her ancestry had given her a mop of silken black hair that was confined in two knots at the nape of her neck, a pair of dark eyes that now gazed out from under an innocent-looking, but devastating, off-the-face black felt hat. Her slim young body was clad in a wine-colored jersey suit that clung to every perfect outline.

Her eyes met Bill's. Evidently becoming aware that he was staring at her, he looked away sharply. She saw color sweep up into his cheeks under the tan and realized there was a shyness about him that was different from the boys of her acquaintance.

"I don't need any oil," she said to the attendant who was lifting the hood of her car. In her voice was that husky sweetness which was also her heritage from her Castilian forebears. Bill's gaze shot back to her as if motivated by some uncontrollable electric current.

The other young man leaned on the door of the roadster. Somehow he gave the impression of pushing Bill out of the picture.

"Haven't I seen you at Stanford?" he asked Nelda, his brown eyes lighting.

A Kindred Soul

"POSSIBLY." She smiled. Meeting some one from college was like meeting a kindred soul on a desert island.

"Playing hooky?" He put his foot upon the running board.

"No. I've quit school."

"So have I." He had a sunny

"Where do you live?" he asked.

"Near Watsonville. On the old Estrado Rancho."

"Move over! I'm going with you!" he announced blithely.

"But—"

The protest came from Bill. Before he could finish the blond young man interrupted:

"I'll ride with you some other time, Bill." He waved his hand in careless dismissal.

"But—" began Nelda.

"You go right by my home," he broke in. "The old Warren ranch."

"I'm not familiar with that part of the country," she said slowly, deliberating whether or not to let this brazen, though utterly engaging, chap ride with her. But her heart was racing. This was adventure... excitement... perhaps romance.

It made her forget for the moment the problems that awaited her at home.

"I'll be delighted to show you around the country," he said and climbed in beside her.

She glanced at the man called Bill. Again their eyes met. In his so blue, so electric, she read disapproval. Disapproval for what, she asked herself. For picking up with a strange man? He wasn't strange. Hadn't he said he had been at Stanford, too?

She tossed her head under its wisps of a hat and her dark eyes defiantly challenged Bill's blue ones for a brief second. Then she turned to the attendant.

"How much?" she asked, speaking briskly and reaching for her purse.

"Wait a minute! I'm going to take care of that!" her self-invited passenger exclaimed, thrusting a $10 bill at the man.

"No!" she protested.

"It's my fare for the buggy ride."

"I prefer to pay for it myself," Nelda asserted with a great show of pride and took from her purse the silver dollar which was all that remained after she'd settled her bill at her sorority house.

"Well—" Her passenger shrugged and put the currency back into his wallet.

The green roadster left the station, scattering bits of gravel in its wake. Nelda glanced back, despite a strong resolve not to, and saw Bill standing beside his old car, looking after them, tense and bitter-looking.

"Who was that man?" burst from her.

"What man—oh, you mean Bill Langdon," her passenger answered. "He moved into our section about a year ago. I've met him only a couple of times. Queer bird."

"He didn't like it because you ditched him."

"I merely thumbed a ride from him. You see my car was smashed up."

"Speeding?" she cut in.

"Exactly." He laughed as they would at a huge joke. "That's why I was invited to leave college."

"Aren't you going to some other college?"

Two's Company

Chapter 56

The Old Combination
NINA suspected... She hoped... She dreaded the awful let-down if she should be wrong... But...

Suddenly Button gave a howl of joy and bounded into the hall... and now, Nina knew.

A low "Button... ol' fella..." confirmed it.

David had come.

She began to tremble all over.

"Mr. Day is in the hall, Miss Nina..." whispered Bridget, wide-eyed.

And Nina could only nod.

"You'll see him, dearie?"

And Nina nodded again.

In another minute he was in the room with her.

It couldn't be. All this simply couldn't have happened to them... Every inch of him belonged to her.

Was it possible that she didn't have the right to fly into his arms? He stood in the doorway, one hand holding the dog's two front, upstretched paws. His hair gleamed under the hall light, and Nina saw that he was very sunburned.

"I don't."

"Somebody fan me! What's the reason? Too young?"

"I just don't go in for it—that's all."

"Now don't tell me you haven't any vices!" he cried in mock horror, turning his head to examine her critically.

"I've been too busy concentrating on a career to acquire any."

She said it, quickly. Blurted it out.

"I was—tricked into that Atlantic City trip, David." And she held her breath.

"Tricked... Nina?"

"Yes. Richard lied about Honey, to get me there. Oh, I had thought I loved him once, I admitted it, but then I got over it, completely. Weeks ago, David... right after he came back from Europe; but he kept on pursuing me. He couldn't believe it. I wanted, so terribly, to tell you everything, but... but... Oh, let me tell you now, darling..."

And she did, with absolute truthfulness, from the beginning. She laid everything bare about herself and Richard.

David sat listening, quietly. At first he still looked away from her; but as she went on—her voice all husky with emotion—he watched her more and more, until at last his brown eyes never left her face. And Nina could see them changing; see something that had been in them go away... and something that had not been there, come back...

He was believing her.

"Richard has gone away now," she concluded. "Sailed for Europe. He asked me to marry him, but I said—no." Nina hesitated. "That ought to prove that I'm over it, oughtn't it, David? She couldn't say, as she wanted to: 'That ought to prove that I love you...'"

"It should," he answered slowly. "It should."

And Nina repeated: "Yes," sitting, like an anxious little girl, on the very edge of her cushion.

'I—Love—You, David'
SUDDENLY David smiled. It was very nearly his old grin.

He said: "So—what, Nina?" and though the question wasn't very much to go on, his smile, and the way he said it, gave her the courage to answer him.

"I—love—you, David. I have, underneath, all along; only lately—these last weeks—I began to realize it. I fell in love, just as you were falling out of love, with me."

"I never—fell out!"

"Oh, God, what was he saying?"

"I'm loving you so very much this minute, that... that..." but he preferred to show her.

He was across the four feet of carpet that separated them, and had her in his hands, before she could grasp the wonderful meaning of his words.

But she didn't have to. All the poor substitutes for heaven that she had thought she had experienced before paled into nothingness beside the radiance of this moment when he kissed her.

"I could have saved us—you—so much," he muttered, after an interval in which words had no part, "if I hadn't left you like a head-strong fool, my darling; if I'd given you a chance to explain..."

"But, angel... how tiny that is, compared with what I could have saved us!... And, David, it isn't just that I've gotten over this thing and found something new, I've really learnt a lesson... about values in life. I suppose you'd call it. What's worth while and what isn't. It may sound foolish to say, but I can be much happier with you, now, than if all this had never happened... why, think of it!... I might have gone on and on, just adoring you for your grin, and your copper hair, and the darling absurd things you do! I might never have appreciated..."

But he wouldn't let her go on.

"And what about me? Don't you think there was any room for improvement there? How about if I'd been a little less headstrong and made you get over Richard, myself, instead of letting him do it? How about if I hadn't stuck to my ideas so bull-headedly, so that you would have been happier as my wife? How about..."

And now it was Nina who stopped him.

"How about if you stop trying to find faults in me that simply aren't there," she suggested softly, "and kissed me instead?"

And this time, when they started talking again, it was about the future; about the raise that had come with his new job on Long Island; about the little Queen Anne house, near Carl and Cordelia, at Harmony, that they could rent...

They talked crazily, hurriedly, between kisses... asked and answered questions, as though they had only so many minutes to be together... But now they had all their lives.

They clung together, as though two great giants were trying to pull them apart... but there was only Button, tugging at David's coat. Nothing could separate them, now.

The past had ceased to exist. David had swept it away with one magnificent gesture of his arm, and one magnificent kick.

"There it goes!" he said, and it was over. "Oh, darling... Oh, Nina..."

And she murmured: "Oh, David!" as though she had never said it before.

She hadn't, quite that way. This was different.

SANTA WHITE FOX

by SIGRID ARNE

THERE SAT THE WHITE FOX ON THE WINDOW SILL

THE STORY SO FAR: Santa suspects that Helga, a doll, has been slipping out at midnight to ski with a white fox. So he asks the tin soldiers to stand guard around her at night.

Chapter Eight
THE GUARD
Helga pulled her blue silk comfort up over her yellow curls when she saw the tin soldier set a guard around her bed.

"My gracious," she said to herself, "how will I ever get out to ski with the white fox? Santa must know." She shivered but she found enough courage to put her head out and ask the soldier captain:

"Please, may I go out with the fox tonight? You know how much the shining fields of snow and the cold, wild wind and the dark night sky mean to me. I must go."

The captain looked embarrassed and said: "Please don't think I told Santa. And please don't be angry, but I am here to keep the fox away tonight."

"Dear, dear," said Helga. The clock struck 10. Then it struck 11.

"Just an hour," whispered Helga. When the clock struck midnight, there sat the white fox on the window sill his pointed ears out-mine cape. The captain shouted to his company: "Men, open the door." Out rushed Helga to the side of the white fox. He smiled, showing all his big, sharp, white teeth, and said, "Thank you." In a flash he sprang to his feet, caught Helga's cape in his teeth and started running like the wind across the snowy hills. The soldier captain saw too late what had happened. The white fox had fooled them all. The captain ordered his men to follow, but they ran so slowly that the white fox and Helga were soon out of sight. "Oh, dear, what will Santa say?" said the poor, little captain.

Tomorrow: The Fox's Den.

COMMUNITY SING PROGRAM AT UNIVERSITY TOMORROW
Chapel Hill, Dec. 7.—The Christmas spirit will prevail here tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock when the students of the University and village residents will join in a program of carols at a Community sing to be held in Hill Music Hall.

The entertainment will be under the direction of Professor John S. Toms, of the University Music Department, and Pete Ivey, director of the Student Union. A special feature will be the appearance of the Chapel Hill Madrigal Club, a group of professors and their wives. All members of the club, which sang last year at Professor F. H. Koch's "Christmas Carol" reading, are from the faculty except Professor McLarty, who is from the Duke Philosophy Department.

DR. M.C.S. NOBLE, JR. TO DIRECT SCHOOL BUS SURVEY, NATION
Chapel Hill, Dec. 7.—Dr. M. C. S. Noble, Jr., stopped off here this week, while on his way to New York from Greenville, S. C., for a short visit with his father, Dr. M. C. S. Noble, and sister, Miss Alice Noble. Dr. Noble is going to Teachers College, Columbia University, where he will direct a survey of school bus transportation in the United States. The survey is being sponsored by the General Education Board. North Carolina has made more extensive use of school buses than most other states, and Dr. Noble's familiarity with the transportation system in this state has qualified him for the assignment. He is a graduate of the University and took his Ph.D. at Harvard. Recently he has been doing educational research at Furman University. Before he went there last year he was deputy commissioner in the North Carolina Department of Revenue.

Editor's Note—The medical and political worlds have been deeply stirred by proposals from nationally known physicians to put the government into the doctoring business.

The American Medical Association bitterly opposes any such inroads. Meanwhile, the United States government continues to experiment on the side with "state medicine" in various forms.

A new experiment has started almost under the eyes of the capitol and the government is sharing in it. Already a controversy is rumbling. Preston Grover tells you about it in two meaty articles. This is the first.

Man "Too Old To Sell Varnish," Keeps World In Christmas Holly

Gig Harbor, Wash. (AP)—Holly for the Christmas windows of the world moves from this Puget Sound fishing village in boxes and box cars, the shipments representing fulfillment of an old man's dream.

Whether the age-old custom of displaying lustrous, prickly holly leaves during the holidays is followed—in Patagonia, Honolulu or New York—Gig Harbor holly finds its place.

More than 4,000 pounds of it comes this year from the grove of P. H. Peyran—who dreamed his holly dream 22 years ago and sees it realize today. Before the World War Peyran was a varnish salesman who already foresaw the day when he would be too old to sell varnish.

Spurred by a nurseryman's casual remarks, he discovered holly was about to disappear from American homes. The wild holly growing mostly in Delaware marshes was nearly exhausted, and the U. S. contained not a single commercial holly grove.

HOLLY KING
P. H. Peyran, who lost his job as a varnish salesman 20 years ago, has become a leader in the Gig Harbor, Wash., industry that supplies the world with Christmas holly.

Business Developed
Peyran planted 600 self-pollinated French holly trees on the shores of Puget Sound as old-age insurance.

Two years later, he lost his job. Since that time, holly has supported him, the 600 trees multiplying until today he heads the largest commercial holly business in the country, with 1,000 producing, and about 7,000 young trees, a "factory" making wreaths and preserving decorations, and an autumn payroll of about 35 persons. He figures his gross annual income from holly alone at $6,000. A dozen other northwesterners now make their livelihood from the industry.

Holly trees today are carefully selected from three of the 175 known varieties, planted 80 to the acre, and tended carefully for 10 years before they produce a single leaf of commercial holly. At that age a good tree produces 10 pounds annually and gradually increases its output.

Not Much Waste
The holly itself is pruned from the smallest branches, graded for the number of berries, the size, lustre and prickliness of leaves. The berries and sprigs are used for decorations; berryless branches become wreaths and loose leaves are wired together for boutonnières. Average price is about 50¢ a pound.

At 72, the man who was too old to sell varnish 20 years ago works 16 hours daily in the grove and factory and plans new expansions for next year.

SHORT SHOTS
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Dec. 7—Raleigh had its first National Labor Relations Board hearing Monday, when L. Lacy McBryde, member of the 1937 General Assembly from Cumberland county, in the role of examiner for the board.

He heard evidence on the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen's complaint that the Atlantic Greyhound bus line discharged J. B. Lee, dispatcher at the Raleigh terminal, because of his union activities.

Counsel for the bus line privately commended Examiner McBryde for the fairness of his rulings regarding the admission of evidence.

Lee claims he was fired for activity in connection with the BRT. The bus company contended Lee was discharged because he failed to pay personal bills after being warned and because, as dispatcher, he sent out drivers without allowing them eight hours rest between trips.

A number of interested spectators heard the case. Utility Commissioner Stanley Wintborne was among them. He said frankly he came to see how the NLRB people conducted hearings.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds still in a Baltimore hospital for treatment of an ear infection, continues to call for "compromise" on controversial legislation. Says he in his weekly letter to weekly newspapers:

"Speaking of the legislative situation as a whole, the deadlocks, disagreements and delays in Congress are in themselves evidence that sentiment from 'back home' is having an influence on Congressional procedure. It is in such times that compromise is essential, despite the fact that compromise is slow. But it assures the country more efficient law machinery."

The Organization
Here is the setup:
If the employee wants medical and hospital care for himself alone he pays $2.20 a month. An employee wanting care for himself and members of his family pays $3.30.

In return they get necessary hospitalization up to 21 days a year and medical attention from five physicians, including all varieties of surgery and medicine except treatment for certain prolonged diseases such as cancer and advanced tuberculosis, where extensive confinement in an institution is required. Dental service is not included.

The federal part in the program came when the HOLC advanced $20,000 to finance establishment of a clinic and pledged $20,000 more for next year.

Now Lt Works
A sample of the liberal operation of the HOLC employees' plan is the treatment now extended to the wife of an employee. She was well along the way toward motherhood when the plan was started but she received the benefits. It will require two or three years of payments by her husband under the group plan to equal the usual medical bill involved. And yet he is not bound, except perhaps by common decency, to continue the payment a single month after his wife's case is disposed of.

A middle aged employee with chronic diabetes is receiving regular treatment, as is an employee son who was found to have incipient tuberculosis. Complete X-ray pictures of his lungs were included without extra charge.

All members are urged to do at once to the clinic for a comprehensive physical examination since disease prevention is emphasized as a major purpose of the association.

But with 1,000 salaried potential degree of federal assistance, it is perhaps not especially remarkable that the physicians in the district were disturbed.

The clash between the association and private physicians will be taken up tomorrow.

IF YOU'RE SANTA—HERE'S A GUIDEBOOK

A good toy, such as a tricycle, provides exercise.

- By LYDIA GRAY SHAW (AP Feature Service Writer)
- New York.—Miniature dogs with wagging tails fascinate parents on a toy-buying spree. But they won't fascinate children—at least not for long.
- Large blocks, tool chests or hand-manipulated derricks would make much better Christmas gifts, according to Miss Elizabeth Irwin who has very definite ideas on suitable toys for children. Miss Irwin is principal of the Little Red School House, a progressive school in downtown New York.
- Parents usually please themselves when they're shopping for toys she says. They don't consider the child's taste or age, or durability of the objects.
- So she's set up some rules for the toy shoppers.
1. Choose toys which stimulate the child's imagination, rather than mechanical toys. Trains that run by hand are better than electric trains. Blocks fall into the same category. But the second rule also applies to them.
 2. Choose toys which help children exercise their large muscles. Large blocks, trapezes, boards to fit over saw horses and the like offer a child an excellent change for exercises. Athlete equipment, roller skates, sleds and bicycles make good gifts.
 3. Select toys that don't break easily. Tools should be well-made, last hammer heads fly off and do damage. Cheap, miniature automobiles are likely to lose their wheels after a few trips around the carpet.
 4. Buy games of skill rather than chance. That doesn't mean total annihilation of the "chance" type of game. Quite suitable for an occasional rainy afternoon. But games involving counting and building are far more instructive, she says.
- Soldiers and guns don't fall into any of these classes, but Miss Irwin puts her foot down on them because of their militaristic import. She flatly says no educator would favor them.

NOW-LOOK AT LA SALLE!

Performance THAT REACHES THE TOP WITH ECONOMY THAT'S CLOSE TO THE BOTTOM

LaSalle V-8 performance is new V-8 performance! Whether the need be power, acceleration, or sustained speed—LaSalle's 125-horsepower, Cadillac-built V-8 engine responds instantly, smoothly, quietly, brilliantly! Of course it's amazing that performance like this should spring from an engine as economical as is LaSalle's engine. But the fact that its performance is so brilliant—and its economy so great—is a major reason why LaSalle was the favorite fine-car of nearly 35,000 people in 1937! If you want performance that reaches the top with economy that's close to the bottom—get the new LaSalle V-8... the world's most economical fine car!

What To Do—If You Want to Shave Without Torture

1. Wash your face thoroughly for half a minute with soap and hot water, then rinse. If you use latherless cream, apply it on top of the soap.
 2. If you use shaving soap, work into the skin with brush and finger tips a liberal portion of a brand that lathers freely.
 3. Let the lather stand for at least two minutes to soften the hairs.
 4. Wet your razor and keep it wet.
 5. Shave the easiest parts first—the upper part of the face has fewer hairs to the square inch.
 6. Stretch the skin but not too tight or you'll scrape off surplus flesh.
 7. Always shave with the grain or direction in which the hairs lie naturally. Don't dig, jab or press the razor.
 8. Keep the blade at an angle of 20 to 25 degrees if your skin's tender; 28 to 32 if it's average.
 9. When finished, rinse your face pat on lotion and talcum powder.
- Association Journal after a four-year study made by the Mellon Institute at the University of Pittsburgh.
- Thirty-one men — 20 blonds and 11 brunets—were the "guinea pigs." Some shaved daily, others irregularly; some used dull razors or softened their stubble with plain hot water instead of soap.
- They found an extra aid for the hypersensitive skin is a cold water lathering after the hot water wash. Menthol in the shaving soap or cream helps, too.

Peanuts Now Sold By Federal Grade In North Carolina

For First Time in History Large Quantities Being Marketed Under Experts

Raleigh, Dec. 7—For the first time in the history of the peanut industry peanuts are being bought and sold in large quantities on the basis of Federal grades under the direction of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, A. B. Harless, senior marketing specialist of the department's marketing division, announced today.

"Twenty-three state inspectors at 17 receiving points in Eastern North Carolina are working night and day in an effort to educate and help the peanut growers whose products are now being purchased by the Peanut Stabilization Corporation under whose program the Federal government is seeking to protect the growers from ruinous prices," Harless said, warning farmers to "keep all damp peanuts at home."

The State Department of Agriculture marketing authorities explained that prices paid by the Corporation are based on U. S. Grades with 85¢ per ton being paid for nuts that "shell out" 65 per cent or more "meat" 66¢ per ton for nuts containing 60 to 65 per cent "meat" and 57¢ per ton for nuts containing 55 to 60 per cent "meat."

"Ninety per cent or more of the peanuts purchased so far are falling in the top class with growers receiving 85¢ per ton," Harless said following a survey of the buying points at Wilmington, Windsor, Tarboro, Scotland Neck, Edenton, Williamston, Plymouth, Greenville, Woodland, Ahoskie, Seaboard, Robersonville, Aulander and Weldon.

"The purchase of surplus peanuts for diversion by the federal government has been the salvation of the peanut growers in North Carolina this year," Randal B. Eberidge, chief of the State Department of Agriculture's markets division, said.

IRISH 'BEHEAD' STATUE OF KING GEORGE II

Dublin, Ireland (AP)—Ireland has lost its last statue of a British king.

A bronze effigy of King George II, the lone survivor, has been removed from its place over the entrance of the weavers' hall in the Coombe district.

To avoid damage to the building the statue was "beheaded," its legs and arms hacked off, and the body carted away in pieces.

NEW ATHLETIC SETUP FOR N. C.

Present System For High Schools To Be Discarded

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Dec. 7.—North Carolina high schools will have an entirely new athletic set up after January 1.

The present system, under which so-called "State Championships" are decided by playoffs at Chapel Hill after "A" and "B" conferences have played their schedules, will be discarded.

In its place there will be set up a constructive play for systematic physical education, beginning with the first grade of primary schools and extending all the way through the senior year of high school.

All interscholastic contests will be under the direction and authority of this physical education division, which will be a part of the present "Division of Instructional Service," which is headed by Dr. J. Henry Highsmith. At the head of the physical education unit will be an expert not yet selected.

Officials of the State Department of Public Instruction would not allow themselves to be quoted on the subject, declaring officially that their plans are "nebulous," but it was easily learned "off the record" that the new setup will be along the lines already indicated.

Reason for the drastic change is a growing conviction that the present plan under which interscholastic athletics is conducted tends to restrict competition to a very small select group. The department's officials feel that a balanced program of physical education in which all school children participate would be a far better system.

At present only some 35 high schools out of the more than 700 in North Carolina belong to either the "A" or "B" conferences which annually play regular schedules. These conferences are under the wing of the University of North Carolina's Extension Department.

This fall, witnessed what many considered the farce of Charlotte high school meeting Rocky Mount high school for the so-called "state championship," when Charlotte had been defeated in the west by Asheville (not a Conference member) and Rocky Mount had not even played Goldsboro High in the east. The Rocky Mount team had a tie with Fayetteville on its slate while Goldsboro was victor in ten straight battles.

Under the new plan any contests for state supremacy which are sanctioned will be really representative, and the winner of any such title will be clearly entitled to it, for every school in the state will have a chance.

It is true that there is little likelihood that the new setup would be particularly keen on the settling of "state championship." That wouldn't be its primary object. As a matter of fact Dr. Highsmith, under whose supervision the new program would come, is known to feel that football is over-emphasized. In particular he feels that youngsters are exploited "with a view to big gate receipts."

But the new organization will have complete charge of such contests as it chooses to sanction, and state titles will no longer be attainable only by a negligible percentage of North Carolina's schools.

All indications point to the set-

DEACONS OPEN WITH ROANOKE

Eighteen Cage Contests Appear on the WFC Schedule

Wake Forest, Dec. 7.—Announcement of an eighteen game schedule for the Wake Forest basketball club this season, has been made by Coach Murray Gresson.

The Deacons will open their slate next week with a contest here against Roanoke College, Monday night. Groves Thread Mill will be played there, Saturday night. With exception of a possible game for Friday to round out a three-game trip, this will complete the pre-holiday schedule.

After the Christmas holidays and the Deacon cagers will return to action January 7, meeting Duke in Durham in the first Southern Conference tilt of the season. Other Southern Conference teams to be played by Wake Forest are, Richmond, North Carolina, N. C. State, Clemson, Citadel, South Carolina, and Davidson.

The only newcomers to the Deacons' regular schedule are Richmond and South Carolina. Although Richmond and Wake Forest met in the Conference tournament last season, they did not play during the pre-tournament campaign.

Nine games are scheduled for the home court.

LOCAL CAGERS DOWN TO WORK

College Quint to Play Winston - Salem Team Friday

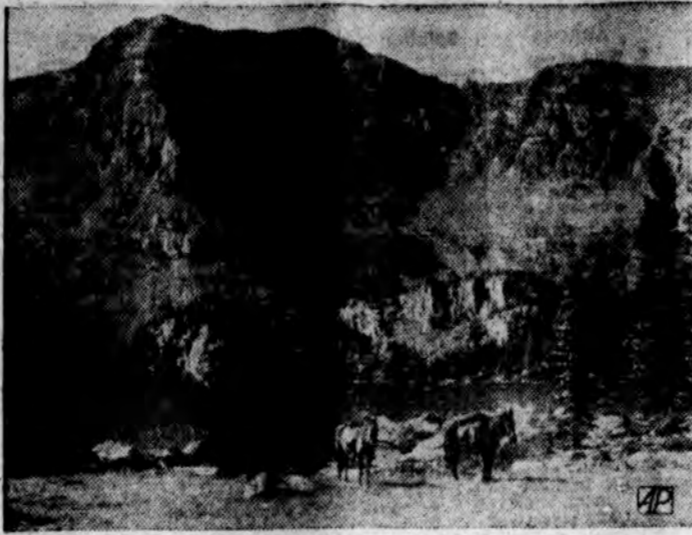

The basketball team of East Carolina Teachers College is getting down to business. Fast drills in passing fundamentals; signal practice, brief scrimmage sessions and prolonged shooting drills mark each practice session. Several of the boys are showing evidences of improvement and the team is rounding into fine shape for their opener with the Unique Furniture Makers of Winston-Salem here Friday night at seven o'clock.

The Furniture Makers have won all six of their starts and defeated the famous McCreay Mills team which in turn handed Dr. Sermon's State College boys a 50 to 38 defeat last Saturday night, so it is very much in evidence that Coach Alexander's scantly cads will have their hands full in their opener.

The Furniture Makers have Herb McCracken, former State Star as the main cog of their polished machine. The Dunn twins play the forwards berths and are scorers par excellence.

Coach Alexander will depend upon speed and ball handling to over come the superior height and experience of the Semi-pro boys. Shelton and Smith will probably start at forward for the Pirates, with either Martin or Calfee at center and Johnson and Cecot or Dudash at guards. Joe Hatem sustained an ankle injury in yesterday's practice that will probably lay him up until after the holidays. Others who will see service in the game are Ayers and Guthrie, forwards, Burton, Scarborough, and Roper, guards and Hodges, center.

FISHERMAN'S HEAVEN
Seymour Lake and Fish Peak in the heart of the government's recently designated "primitive area" in Montana.

Unlike most national parks and forests, the "primitive" area will be unscarred by highways and inns.

To enjoy the scenery and the fishing visitors must be hardy outdoors persons with good hiking feet. The only roads or buildings will be those necessary for administration and fire control. Pack trails will be permitted.

This year, however, Smith got back at his friendly rival. His Villanova team stood sixth in the Associated Press national writers' poll, while Santa Clara got only a tie with Notre Dame for ninth place.

THIS PASSING GAME PAID DETROIT TEAM

Omaha, Neb. (AP)—Gus Dorais' University of Detroit football team can claim some kind of a forward pass record for its work against Creighton university, in a game here.

In the first half, Detroit's Paumbo, Slovicki and Hayes tossed six passes before one went astray. The six completed passes were good for 111 yards and three touchdowns, giving Detroit a 21-7 lead at half-time.

In the second period Detroit scored two touchdowns on passes for a total of five and added two more on lone runs from scrimmage, winning 48-7.

Detroit threw 27 passes and completed 14 for 228 yards during the contest.

21 Couples Given Licenses To Wed During Past Week

Most Saturday First in Memory of Register of Deeds No Permit Sought

J. C. Gaskins, veteran Register of Deeds for Pitt county, declared that last Saturday was the first in his memory that not a single couple applied for a marriage license here.

He added, however, he was unable to get by for the full week-end, a couple getting him to give them a license Sunday.

Twenty-one licenses were issued last week, 11 going to white couples and 10 to colored pairs.

White couples issued licenses follow: Henry E. Windham of Greenville and Cornelia Carlisle of Plymouth; Bud C. Anderson and Ann Marie Pruden of Beaver Dam; George Norville of Fountain and Ora Mae Whitley of Walstonburg; Eugene Sexton and Kathleen Helen Cox of Ayden; Oscar Buck and Esther Taylor of Chocod; Lonnie Brown of Greenville and Pearlie Mae Haddock of Pactolus; Curtis Sutton and Mary Louise Allen of Greenville; J. L. Cannon of Greenville and Emily Clyde Hooker of Bethel; Ira Garris of Falkland and Annis Laurie Joyner of Farmville.

Colored couples: James R. Worsley and Ethel Knight of Bethel; Charlie Matthews and Emma Best of Bethel; Namaan Green and Fannie Jones of Bethel; Abram Joyner and Mary Baker of Farmville; John Williams of Swift Creek and Emma Coward of Chocod; James Wilson and Ruth Corbett of Greenville; Herman Barrett of Beaver Dam and Willie May Braxton of Farmville; Simon Watson and Beatrice Heath of Bethel; Thad Rogers and Mattie Anson of Carolina; John Bynum, Jr., and Novella Holmes of Farmville.

Football Forecasts
Iowa City (AP)—The finish of the gridiron season for football coaches means the beginning of one night stands—at banquet tables.

These dinners and compulsory speeches don't appeal to coaches but it's too good an opportunity to miss to lay the foundation for next year's freshman candidates. Iowa university football coaches have 13 dinners in less than three weeks.

Marry Kipke, Fortune Teller
Ann Arbor, Mich.—(AP)—Harry Kipke, Michigan football coach, is something of a prognosticator.

Before the season opened he announced his team would win four games and named them.

He guessed right. The Wolverines topped Iowa, Illinois, Chicago and Pennsylvania in succession, as he had predicted.

Upcoming of the new system before January 1. Officials are on the lookout for a man to head the physical education division and as soon as he is chosen, things will begin to pop.
