REPORT POINTS OUT NECESSITY FOR FARM BILL

Cotton Yield Estimate Emphasizes the Demand for Control

HOUSE APPROVES LOANS FOR CORN

Measure Tentatively Accepted Authorizes Sec. Wallace To Use Own Discretion

Washington, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Congress, still talk-about farm aid, received an Agricultural Department report today that the cotton crop was a half-million bales bigger than the record-breaker it already was expected to be.

Although the report failed to depress the market, it emphasized the demand of those who want cotton acreage curtailed in some manner such as by vote of the growers in the pending farm bills.

The House approved tentatively 86 to 25, a farm bill amendment by Representative Lucas (D-Ill.) to provide for mandatory loans to corn growers.

The measure authorizes Secretary Wallace and the Commodity Credit Corporation to make loans at their discretion to producers of wheat, cotton and corn.

In the other chamber of Congress, Republican Leader McNary of Oregon, sought unsuccessfully to remove from the Senate farm bill a provision giving the Secretary of Agriculture power to require corn and wheat farmers to store up to 20 per cent of their current crops.

"Town Criers" Used in Christmas Seal Sale

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, chairman of the Greenville Seal sale, says that the appearance of the town criers on the streets in costume on the opening day of the Seal sale created so much favorable comment that at the request of the principals the town criers today visited the class rooms of the elementary schools.

It is reported that this novel way of presenting the Seal sale idea made a big hit with the children. The high school boys who took the part of the town criers were Larry James, Jr., Roscoe Cox, Jr., John Payne, Jr., and George Clark.

Court To Pass On Ownership Rights For Photographs

Will Decide Whether Picture Can Be Published Without Consent Of Subject Matter

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Dec. 8.—North Carolina's Supreme Court will next week hear arguments pro and con upon whether or not any "right of privacy" is possessed by the subject of a photograph.

Some time during the remainder of the fall term the court will probably decide whether or not there is such a right; in other words, whether publication of a picture without consent of the subject of the picture gives a right of action against the publisher.

There interesting points will be argued in the case of Nancy Flake, by her next friend, Mrs. W. F. Flake, against the Greensboro News Company, the North Carolina Theatres, Inc., L. Melts and the "Folies de Paree."

Miss Flake, who is a minor, was awarded $6,500 damages by a Guilford jury because her picture was published in the Greensboro News in connection with a "tie-up" advertisement of the Folies de Paree, (a road show), which was to appear at a Greensboro theatre owned by the North Carolina Theatres, with the Melts Bakery.

Miss Flake was not a member of the Folies de Paree and had not consented to publication of her picture, which showed her in abbreviated bathing costume.

She is a Winston-Salem girl who has become a radio singer, and who has been vocalist with several top-notch New York orchestras. She claims she was greatly embarrassed and humiliated by publication of her picture in connection with a burlesque show of the "Folies de Paree" type.

Asks Mediation Board For Maritime Labor

Washington, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the Maritime Commission, asked a Senate committee today to create a mediation labor service for the shipping industry and to liberalize government subsidies under terms of the merchant marine act.

He said eight months of operation under the act, designed to re-establish a powerful American-owned and shipping fleet had revealed "two most serious ailments, the replacement problem and the situation with regard to labor."

In the face of announced opposition by organized maritime labor, Kennedy asked Congress to pattern arbitration of marine labor disputes after that operated under the railway labor act.

Industrial Agent's Office Well Informed On State

Raleigh, Dec. 8.—In the very near future the office of J. T. Anderson, industrial engineer for the Department of Conservation and Development, will have more information about North Carolina than any other anywhere.

This became information about everything under the sun is wanted by industrial concerns thinking of locating in North Carolina and Mr. Anderson must have any desired data right at his fingertips.

For instance, a firm recently began to consider the vicinity of Raleigh as a possible site for its plant—in this case a rayon factory. Here are a few of the general heads under which Mr. Anderson furnished considerable detailed information:

Regarding the section of the state—Climate, labor, wage scales (six types of industries—listed), living costs, state labor laws, state tax laws, building costs, fuel, electric

Filling Station Operator Identifies Picture After Holdup

Shelby, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Sheriff Raymond Cline said today two men—one believed to be Bill Payne, widely hunted desperado, held up a filling station attendant near here last night and robbed him of $120.

The sheriff said Frank Bradley picked up a photograph of Payne from 12 unmarked pictures and said it resembled one of the robbers.

Bradley said the two men drove into his station and ordered gasoline. When the tank was filled, Bradley said, the men thrust guns against his ribs and took his pocketbook and a quantity of cigars. (Continued on Page Six)

CAROLINAS DUE COLD WEATHER

Further Drop in Mercury Predicted for Tomorrow

The official reading of the thermometer in Greenville at 8 o'clock this morning showed the mercury had dropped to 21 degrees during the night. At 8 o'clock it had risen to 35 degrees, however.

(By The Associated Press)

The Carolinas enjoyed a momentary respite today from a persistent cold wave which has gripped the two states three days, but colder weather was predicted again for tomorrow.

Although temperatures generally were several degrees higher than yesterday's lows, the mercury at many points continued far below freezing.

Mount Mitchell, where low of 14 degrees below zero was reported yesterday, warmed up today to a minimum of six above. Asheville, whose weather dropped to four above yesterday, registered a low of 16.

The official forecast said there would be light snow or freezing rain and sleet in the interior of North Carolina tonight, with rain on the North Carolina coast. Colder weather was predicted for both states tomorrow.

Low temperatures today included Charlotte and Raleigh, 26 degrees, Wilmington 28 and Hatteras 33. Snow fell yesterday at Elizabeth City for the first time this year. Much of the western part of the state already was blanketed with snow, as much as two inches in some places.

Agriculture Department Predicts 18,746,000 Bales

LARGEST CROP IN HISTORY LIKELY

Heaviest Per Acre Yield on Recrd Responsible for New High in Production

Washington, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department forecast an 18,746,000 bale record cotton crop today in its final 1937 estimate.

A bale is figured by the Department at 500 pounds gross weight.

Last month's estimate was 18,234,000 bales, an increase of 670,000 over October.

The previous record was 17,978,000 bales in 1926. Last year 12,399,000 bales came from the fields and in the five years, 1928 to 1932, an average of 14,667,000 bales was produced.

The heaviest per acre yield on record caused the new production high. The department said it was indicated an average of 264.6 pounds had been grown on 33,930,000 acres. This compared with 34,383,000 acres estimated July 1.

The record-breaking acre yield compared with 187.6 pounds last year. The previous record yield was 223.1 pounds in 1898.

North Carolina's acres yield was forecast at 336 pounds and her total production at 71,000 bales.

MANY VICTIMS IN PLANE RAIDS

Both Insurgents And Loyalists Strike Heavy Blows

Madrid, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Barcelona and other towns of the government held Eastern coast of Spain and Palma Balearic Island, air and naval base of the Insurgents, sifted the debris of shattered buildings today for victims of air raids reported to have taken hundreds of casualties.

While 15 insurgent war planes swept in from the Mediterranean yesterday to bomb Barcelona, capital of the Spanish republic, 24 government air raiders spanned the 150 miles of sea between the eastern coast and Mallorca to strike a devastating blow at the insurgent base at Palma.

A heavy toll of dead and injured was reported from Barcelona and other coastal towns caught in the insurgent air raid. The government airmen reported they dumped thousands of pounds of bombs on military objectives at Palma.

In Madrid, now under insurgent siege for 13 months, several persons were killed by artillery fire in one of the city's principal markets. Women standing in line for vegetable rations were among the injured.

Hait Attempts to Distribute Union Literature

Detroit, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Dearborn City police arrested 25 members of the United Automobile Workers of America this afternoon when they attempted to distribute union literature in a "prohibited area" at the gates of the Ford Motor company. The union members offered no resistance.

A dozen state policemen assigned as "observers" were on duty in the area designated by Mayor John Carey of Dearborn as one of congested traffic and in which union activity is forbidden.

The union immediately said it would defy the order and State Police Commissioner Oscar Olander ordered his detachment of troops to stand by.

The prohibited area was the scene of a riot last May 26 when the union attempted to distribute its literature.

CITIZENS SEEK SAFETY ZONES

Chinese Capital Wakens to Thunder of Artillery as Japanese Draw Closer to City; Authorities Maintain Good Order Despite Imminence of Attack

Nanking, Dec. 8.—(AP)

—Chinese troops leveled village bridges and leveled village walls in Nanking's eastern suburbs today in an effort to destroy all possible cover Japanese attackers could use in an attack.

The capital awakened to the thunder of artillery.

Despite the imminence of attacks, authorities maintained good order. There was a steady stream of civilians to a semi-safety zone, military defense preparations were far advanced to prevent any possible last minute panic.

Two British gunboats moved a mile and a half up the Yangtze to avoid the consequences of expected bombardment of Nanking by the Japanese.

In Shanghai Japanese ministry authorities warned all foreigners and Chinese non-combatants to evacuate Nanking as quickly as possible.

The United States gunboat Guam was ordered to Wuhu because of increasing dangers to American lives and property here. Battle lines of the two warring factions approached closer to Wuhu, Yangtze river port 60 miles south and slightly west of Nanking.

Twenty-four Americans were reported at Wuhu and the staff of the American mission was said to be determined to remain.

The Chinese batteries commanded the main highway to Nanking. Cantonese units had withdrawn from Tangshan's outskirts to fight a rear guard action.

The main Chinese force withdrew in good order.

The act to which he calls attention provides a fine of up to $50 or imprisonment for not more than 30 days of "any person, not being on his lands, or without consent of the owner thereof, who shall, within one hundred yards of any state highway of North Carolina or within a like distance of any other public road or highway, willfully commit any damage, injury or spoliation to or upon any tree, wood, underwood, timber, garden, crops, vegetables, plants, lands, springs, or any other matter or thing growing or being thereon, or who cuts, breaks, injures or removes any tree, plant or flower within such limits, or shall deposit any trash, debris, garbage, or litter within such limits."

The Club Musette.
The Club Musette, a newcomer among clubs on the college campus, had their first of the assembly program at the college yesterday.

This new organization is a music group, with Miss Lois V. Gorrell and Miss Myrty Dormer as advisors.

Features of the program were a Christmas hymn sung by the club and the audience and accompanied by violins; piano solos, and a short talk by Miss Margaret Wilson, the president.

As piano numbers, Miss Gladys Allen played "Romance" by Lauro Schmitt, Miss Betsy Morris, "May Night" by Palmgren; Miss Jean Guion; and J. N. Williams, Greenville, "Riding Donkeys" by George Herold.

The president introduced the club, and spoke of the importance of music in any life because of its power to satisfy all moods, and of its practical value for the teacher.

The numbers on the program were introduced by Miss Joyce Hill.

Violinists were Miss Lois Gorrell and Miss Lucy Nulton, teachers, Misses Jean Corey and Margaret Moore, Gilbert Peel and Carl Allgood. The pianist was Miss Mary Alice Pernell.

Sophomores To Give Play.
The sophomore class of East Carolina Teachers College will present a play "The Arrival of Kitty," on the night of December 10, in the Austin Auditorium.

This is the first time that a sophomore class at E. C. T. C. has attempted such a production for the public, though last year, as freshmen, they gave a short play in assembly.

"The Arrival of Kitty," a hilarious comedy in three acts, is under the direction of Clifton Britton, president of the class.

Britton directed "Tweedles" and "Smilin' Through," two successful plays given on the campus last year. He has also been connected with experienced play groups in his home in Northampton county.

Several graduates of Greenville high school are scheduled to take parts in the play. Among them are Geraldine Harris, Ethel Gaston, Harvey Deal, John David Bridgers and Leo Burks.

If this first attempt at a sophomore play is successful such a production may become an annual event, and take the place of the Senior Normal play which is no longer given.

Athenaeum Club.
The Athenaeum Club met Tuesday afternoon, December 7, with Mrs. W. A. Darden at her home on Jarvis street. After the regular routine of business, Tuberculosis Christmas Seals were distributed. The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Darden who very ably reviewed Dr. Rhine's book "New Frontiers of the Mind."

"This book," the reviewer explained, "deals with extra-sensory perception."

"Dr. Rhine's problem," she continued, "is to find out by scientific research if the mind does perceive facts as incidents without the use of the five senses. The next problem mentioned was if extra sensory perception does exist or does occur. What is it like? How does it work? What is the underlying principle? Clairvoyance is the perception of an objective fact or relation without the aid of the five senses. Telepathy is the perception of the thought or feeling of another without the aid of the five senses."

"Hundreds of thousands of tests were carried on at Duke University by members of the Psychology Department determined to study telepathy and clairvoyance as one of their research problems."

After this interesting review the hostess served a most delicious and attractive salad plate. Before adjournment Mrs. D. M. Clark and Mrs. C. H. Edwards invited the members of the club and their husbands to be their guests at the next meeting of the club—December 21.—Reported.

Editorial.
President McKinley's message to Congress made its appearance in Tuesday's papers. The message may suit some of the Republicans and the advocates of a single gold standard, but people holding a different view can see no good to the country at large in the suggestions he makes. In his reference to the tariff can almost be seen a vein of disappointment at the result so far produced by the Dingley bill.

Neither could the farce played by his commission that went over to England to confer upon international bimetalism, for he recommends the adoption of Secretary Gray's plan that all U. S. notes upon which gold is drawn out of the Treasury be held and not paid out again except for gold.

In reference to the Cuban question, he wants the U. S. to keep hands off and let Spain attend to settling of the war over there. He evidently has more faith in Spain's good intentions toward Cuba than most of our people and in this he is not in harmony with his party platform.

The President shows more concern about Hawaii than he does about Cuba and wants us to go $2,000 miles away from our shores and annex that country which our government has no use in the world for.

The message taken as a whole has no merit except its easy flow of language. As a state paper it will rank far below average.

This statute is not only to damage private property but is an offense against all the people who have a right to enjoy the natural beauties of the roadides.

In other days this law was often and flagrantly violated but the public has at length awakened to the importance of beauty as an asset to all the people and violations have been steadily decreasing for some time the forster said.

One of the most effective weapons in the campaign against spoliation has been a marked increase in the number of people who not only frown upon such practices but who are interested enough to report violations to the proper authorities.

DARE TO DREAM

The Characters
 Nelda, an ambitious, dark-eyed, dark-haired girl, has had to leave college because of finances.
 Reck, bionia, dashing and wealthy, insists on getting a lift from Nelda at a fitting station.
 Bill, tanned, blue-eyed and disapproving, is left high and dry by Reck, after meeting Nelda.

Chapter Two
The Old Estrado Rancho
 THEY drove in silence for a space, going past apple orchards, past fields, plowed and sown, past hovels, past mansions. The day was warm for mid-December, and the ride through the sweet, clean air pleasant.
 "Why does Bill have to drive that old wreck?" Nelda asked suddenly. "Is he poor?"
 "I guess so," said Reck. "I know very little about him."
 Their course now was on a wide, smooth highway through the pine-studded Santa Cruz mountains. They fell into conversation about themselves, about their collegemates and it seemed no time at all before Reck said:
 "That's our shack—on the right." He pointed to a modern Nelda became aware that the woman was studying her.

white structure built on the Spanish hacienda type with red tile roof and potted balconies. Rosebushes climbed gracefully on the walls and hung in festoons over trellises. A gravelled drive between two rose hedges led to the house. A board swinging in the breeze over a pair of scrolloped iron gates at the entrance of the estate carried the name Las Rosas. At the rear was a private golf course.

"Some shack!" Nelda commented after she'd taken in its beauty and agnitude. It was plain to be seen that the place belonged to some one of means. She'd heard that wealthy people were coming to live in Pajaro Valley because of its balmy climate.

"Come in and meet Mother," Reck invited.
 There was no resisting his flashing smile and ease, arm at her elbow. She found herself in a tastefully furnished room bowing to a patrician-looking woman whom Reck gayly addressed as Mater.

Mrs. Reck rang for tea and served it on a table near the fireplace where the rich silver reflected the firelight. Out of the corners of her eyes Nelda was aware that the woman was studying her.

Nevertheless she was gracious to Nelda up to a point. That point was reached when Reck left them alone for a few minutes.
 "We have many plans for Earl," she said and allowed her patrician glance to rest meaningfully upon Nelda. "We want him to travel for a couple of years before he thinks of marriage or even becoming engaged."

Nelda knew she was being told to keep her hands off the Reckless heir. She wanted to shout, "I never saw your son before today. Don't think I'm going to snatch him away from you!" But the rush of emotion that urged the speech died under the older woman's cool scrutiny and outwardly she uttered only a feeble, "Yes?"

"Yes," Mrs. Reckless repeated and seemed visibly to withdraw.
 "I—I must be going," Nelda rose in nervous confusion, hating herself for losing her poise before this woman.

"There's Not Enough Money"
 NELDA had only 10 miles to go before she would reach the Estrado Rancho. As she drove along her thoughts were all on the problem confronting her, racing, doubling, tumbling over each other. Rebellion ran, a piercing thread, through them. Oh, why did she have to leave college? She had always done what she wanted from boyhood when her father spoiled her and gave her everything she desired.

 "Why don't you run away?" one part of her demanded.
 "Coward!" another part of her scoffed.
 There came to her a memory of the detached pity she'd felt when one of her classmates was forced to leave college for financial reasons. At the time Nelda couldn't imagine such a tragedy ever happening to herself. It didn't seem possible that the vivid mental pictures she'd drawn of the studio in which she would live after graduation wouldn't come true. From grammar school days she'd planned to be a commercial artist. A highly paid commercial artist who could command the luxuries of life.
 But now all those plans had stopped like a clock shattered by dynamite. The bad news had come yesterday in a letter from Leila, her brother Stan's wife. It read:

Dear Nelda:
 There is not enough money to send both you and Jack through college. After talking it over Stan and I decided it was best for you instead of smiling and showing all his teeth. He seemed proud of his home.

 "How lovely," said Helga.
 In a few minutes the black moles came back up the stairs in the floor and six other moles followed carrying steaming silver dishes. They spread a table and pulled up two chairs; one dainty chair for Helga and the big walnut one for the fox.
 He uncovered the silver dishes. There were creamed mushrooms no bigger than cranberries for Helga. There were tiny, stuffed tomatoes no bigger than your thumb nail; hot rolls the size of a pearl; and last of all, tiny strawberries, just a doll's size.
 A Very Cruel Fox
 "Now eat, and be happy," said the fox.
 He was strange, wasn't he? Usually foxes like to play with other foxes. But not this one. As Santa said, he had stolen two dolls before he ran off with Helga.
 You see, he was the greatest white fox of the North. He could run faster than any other fox. He had sharper, whiter teeth and bigger, blacker eyes that could see farther than any other fox. So all the other foxes, and even the bears and the reindeers, feared him and walked the other way when they saw him.
 And he was known as such a very cruel fox that he never got any Christmas gifts. But all this Helga didn't know.

Jack to come home. You know Jack couldn't run the ranch if some one held a pistol to his head. Furthermore, he couldn't take care of your mother as you can.
 That Laura Sweeney who is supposed to take care of her is useless and snooty. I think she is making eyes at Uncle Ham.
 Leila.
 P. S. We need the roaster here. Get home with it as soon as you can.
 The Fire
 TO HERSELF Nelda said, "Leila has had a temper like a spanked cat ever since the fire." The Barnes dated everything from the fire that had totally destroyed Stephen Barrie's large hardware store. B. F. and A. F. they called it. Before the fire. After the fire. To all of them it was the dividing line between affluence and chaos. By some ghastly oversight the insurance had lapsed just three days before the conflagration.
 The business had provided a handsome living for the entire family, including Stan who had been general manager. Stephen Barrie didn't have enough money to start over again. Broken in health and spirit, he moved his family to a ranch in the Pajaro Valley that had descended to his wife from her parents. It had been slacked run by tenants for nearly half a century.
 A deep country, peace enveloped the rancho as Nelda approached it. The wind mill turned intermittently in a lazy breeze. There was a brooding air about the old adobe house, a relic of a vanished, picturesque day. It was an oblong two-story building with a red tile roof. To Nelda it looked more crumbling than when she'd last seen it. From the cracked chimney gray plumes of smoke were ascending.
 "You'll never be able to clean the house," Mrs. Barrie had said from her wheel chair to which she was doomed for life because of an automobile accident.
 "I'll have it thoroughly disinfected and overhauled before we move in," Stephen Barrie had promised.
 Stephen Barrie lived only three weeks after he moved to the country.
 (Copyright, 1937, Alice Marie Dodge)

Tomorrow, Nelda finds family discord.

SANTA WHITE FOX

"NOW EAT, AND BE HAPPY," SAID THE FOX

The story so far: Under the very nose of Santa's tin soldiers the white fox steals Helga, the doll of the North, while Santa and his land are asleep.

Chapter Nine
The Fox's Home
 The white fox chuckled as he ran along over the snowy white hills carrying Helga in his teeth.
 She laughed with him. It seemed so wonderful to be out again in the snowy fields.
 They ran up a mountain of snow between fir trees, and at the top the fox ran under a ledge of ice, through an ice gate and into a great, big room. There, on a chair of white satin, he put Helga down.
 "Where are we?" asked Helga.
 "In my home," said the fox. He tapped three times on the floor with his fore paw. A little door opened at his feet and up some steps walked two neat black moles with little white aprons tied about them.

Dainty Dishes
 "Dinner," said the white fox.
 "Yes, sir," said the moles and went back down the steps below the floor. The white fox went over to a carved walnut chair which stood by a tiny, glass bush that grew right up out of the floor. He tweaked the top leaf and suddenly the room was filled with music as the leaves of the bush twirled on their stems.
 "My music box," said the fox.

MAKING PLANS OFFER CHORUS

Performance To Be Given in Farmville December 12

The Festival Symphonic Chorus of the Eastern Carolina Symphonic Choral Association will give four performances of "The Messiah," by G. F. Handel, Lewis Sidney Bullock conducting, in this section as a pre-Christmas musical program.

In Farmville, Sunday, December 12, at 3 o'clock, the first performance will be presented, followed by a presentation in Ayden that evening at 8 o'clock.

The following Sunday, December 19, an afternoon performance is scheduled for the Snow Hill Methodist church and in the evening repeated at a union service of Goldsboro churches at St. Paul Methodist church at 8 o'clock.

"The Messiah" was chosen for the Christmas programs this year because it is in keeping with the purpose of the association—to raise the appreciation and love for good music in this section of the state, says Conductor Bullock. Numbering more than 100 voices the Festival Symphonic chorus is made up of the members of the Goldsboro, Farmville, Snow Hill and Ayden choruses. These choruses have been rehearsing separately for several weeks and held its only combined rehearsal Sunday in Snow Hill.

Soloists for the four presentations are: Sopranos: Mrs. Margaret Hines Early, Miss Nellie Farfour, Goldsboro; Mrs. Caison Herring, Mrs. Mildred Exum, Snow Hill; Mrs. James Joyner, Farmville; altos: Misses Elizabeth and Jane Smith, Goldsboro; Mrs. J. W. Holmes, Farmville; tenors: Ludy Casey, Jack Fonvelle, Goldsboro; Pearson Hassell, of Farmville.

It is the plan now to make the presentation of "The Messiah" an annual event of the pre-Christmas season. The chorus hopes to give an impressive performance of this oratorio this year, and then to so improve each year as to make the event of great musical importance to Eastern North Carolina.

Director Bullock said Monday that the members of the chorus and officers of the association are gratified to be able to present the four performances to the public with no admission or collection to be made. He said, it is made possible through the generosity and thoughtfulness of a large number of patrons and sponsors of the chorus and the association.

"The Messiah" is a great musical masterpiece, Mr. Bullock said, composed by Handel in 1741, now possessing greater musical appeal than ever before.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Dec. 8.—There is being built up in North Carolina an organization which can very readily become perhaps the most powerful political machine in the state. The organization is the North Carolina Petroleum Industries Committee and the building is being done very largely by S. G. Sparger, a political wizard of no mean proportions. Mr. Sparger, whose home is in Stokes, was a member—in fact still is a member—of the 1937 State Senate.

He is organizing the gasoline oil and allied industries men of North Carolina into a cohesive body. When it is stated that there are between 10,000 and 12,000 filling stations in North Carolina, the octopus-like tentacles of his group can be imagined. Giving each filling station an average of only 4 men (many of them employ 50 or more in the larger cities) that's nearly 50,000 to start with. Add the families of these gangs and it is easy to figure that the organization will include a tremendous percentage of North Carolina's voting population. And they're all men with eyes and ears and they're all ready to pass on the views put into their heads by the high command, too.

Adult education will be considered by superintendents of 15 counties co-operating in the project at a meeting here Monday, according to Mrs. Elizabeth C. Morris, State director of the program. The adult education program is being carried on by the State Department of Education in cooperation with the federal Works Progress Administration.

Odds and ends gathered from all parts of the state by the division of advertising of the Department of Conservation and Development.

Regular equestrian gymkhanas will be held every other Friday at Southern Pines.

An air race tournament for ladies will be held in Southern Pines, December 14.

Moravians of old Salem are molding thousands of hand made candles for use in their traditional Easter candle light love feast.

Down at Rodentia, on the Outer Banks, most of the old people still observe Twelfth Night (January 5) as Christmas Day, although the youngsters celebrate December 25.

While tourists played golf and tennis at Pinehurst one day last week, residents of Banner Elk skied down Grandfather Mountain and skated upon the power dam lake.

Recent news reports told of a case in Louisiana in which a murder indictment was quashed because the word "his" was used instead of "their." North Carolina's Supreme court will next week hear an appeal in which the identical question will be argued.

Indictment of Tom Linney and T. J. Jefferson, Forsyth county Negroes, charged that they killed Herman W. Fogelman, insurance collector, of "his" malice aforethought. They were convicted and are under sentence of death.

Counsel for the doomed men contended that use of "his" instead of "their" makes the indictment invalid. The killing was done, the state contends, in the robbery of Fogelman.

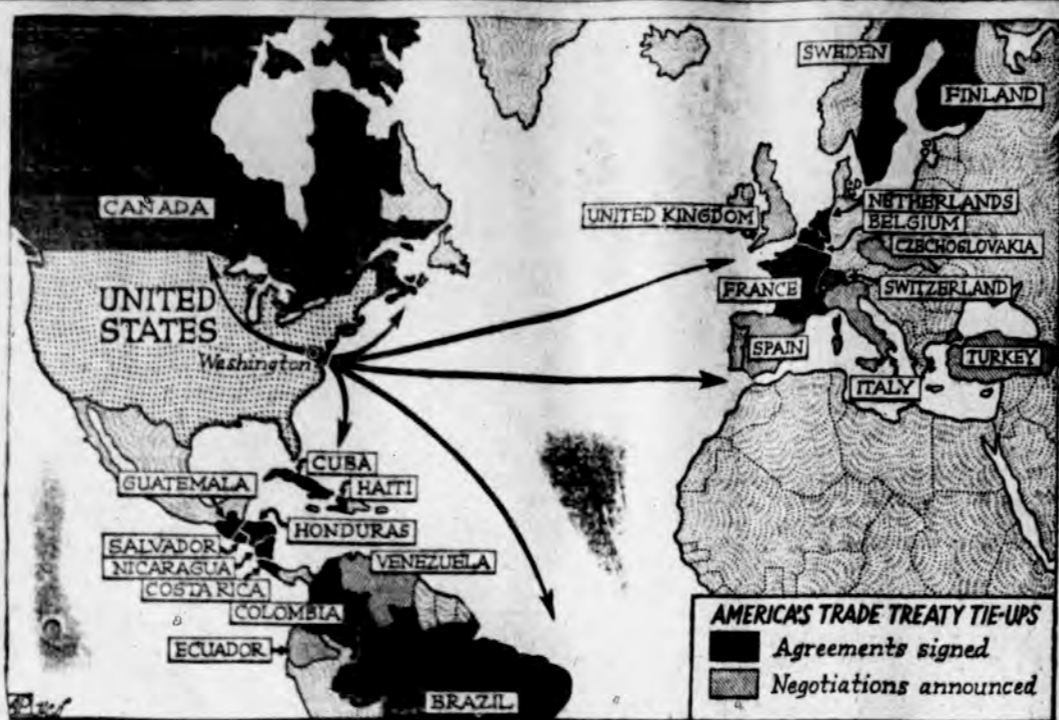

Appeals of Henry Moseley, another Forsyth Negro, sentenced to die for murder of Clarence Black, also Negro, and of Milford Exum, white man convicted of the first degree murder of Jim Williams, a Negro, will also be heard at next week's session of the Supreme Court.

DESKS TREATED ROUGH
BY GIRL STUDENTS

Indianapolis—(AP)—Girls give school desks more severe treatment than boys, while older students do more carving on their desks than those in the primary grades, say National Youth Administration workers, who are repairing furniture in the Indianapolis public schools, and chairs in lecture rooms carry revealing case histories, the workers say. Many persons who have carved their names in the desks are prominent in civic and social affairs.

U. S. SPREADS NET FOR WORLD TRADE

(By The AP Feature Service)
The State Department's announcement that the United States and the United Kingdom, England, Wales and Scotland) soon will begin dickering for a reciprocal trade agreement represents the sledgehammer blow in Secretary Cordell Hull's effort to break what he sees as the shackles on world trade. Sixteen such agreements have been signed, and negotiations for eight others (counting one revision), are pending. But in U. S. exports involved, the prospective agreement with Britain tops them all. As America's best foreign customer, the United Kingdom took 18 per cent ($440,122,000) of all U. S. exports last year. In return, Britain ranked second only to Canada as a source of U. S. imports.

What It Means: Sectionalism In Modern America

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(AP Feature Service Writer)

The 1937 Congress is getting a taste of sectional controversies which smack of the issues that once led America into civil war. Again, a question of dollars and cents is paramount. The north and the south, the east and the west, all want to be sure of their economic places in the sun.

But now, as in antebellum days, there is a moral issue besides. This is slavery. Today's it's lynch law.

Two highly important pieces of legislation before congress can illustrate the main squabble. They are—
First, the wage and hour bill. This plan would guarantee workers a wage of at least 40 cents an hour in a 40-hour week. Northern congressmen, especially those who have a heavy labor vote in their districts, are all for it. Southern congressmen have battled up the scheme in the house rules committee.

Why?
One answer appears in a department of labor survey. This little pamphlet says nearly half the unskilled labor in the south is paid less than 40 cents an hour. If 40-cent pay should become universal, southern employers would have to shell out wage increases to nearly half their workers. On the other hand, the new law wouldn't cut much in the north.

Perhaps that explains why Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., from textile-making New England voted for the wage and hour bill. It's no secret that New England textile mills have been moving south.

The Farm Bill Fight
Second of the sectional controversies rages around the farm bill. This measure has been battered about in congress for weeks.

The trouble is the bill requires farmers to devote less of their land to five basic crops—wheat, corn, cotton, rice and tobacco. Farmers in every section of the country are wondering what is going to happen to the land that will be released in other sections for new purposes.

For instance, a Wisconsin dairy farmer asks his congressman: "Will the land left idle by cotton control go into milk and butter fat production? And if it does, does that flood the milk and butter fat market and demoralize prices?"

The Moral Issue
Then there's the moral side issue just as there was in civil war days. You can trace it in modern form to the anti-lynching bill that soon

It's Odd But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

New York—Here is a question to stump the professors when they ca. a cocktail hour.
How can a canyon be dug by erosion at the bottom of the sea? Scores of ocean bottom canyons have been measured and are as deep as any on earth's surface.

The answer that the canyons were dug by erosion at a long ago period when the ocean bottom was above water is out of date.
A real answer has been figured out over the Leyden, Holland, by Ph. H. Kuenen and at Harvard by Professor Daly. The Harvard geologist said that as rivers discharged into the oceans, carrying mud, this dirt did not always settle straight to the bottom.

When the "edge" of the ocean is steep he said the dirt would combine with the water to form a heavy liquid, that would flow downhill, like a stream, separate from the rest of the ocean water. It would scour out a canyon, perhaps.

In Leyden this was tested in tanks. In clear water, muddy mixtures flowed down hill as Professor Daly predicted. They speeded up until they flowed two or three times faster than when they started. They got six times as heavy, due to mud, as the surrounding, still water.

"CUP OF MAJESTY" GIVEN TO KING GEORGE
London (AP)—King George VI has accepted a golden "cup of majesty" symbolizing "the majesty and dignity of the throne" and illustrating the history of the British crown.

The royal crest surmounts the cover of the cup, and the coat of arms and the garter decorate the body. The position of handles is occupied by the supporting lion and unicorn sculptured in flat relief. On the reverse are the crown and the initials "G. R. and E. R."

The cup stands on a Devon marble plinth carved in nine steps, representing the dynasties of the kings and queens of Britain since Saxon Eobert. The cup itself symbolizes the house of Windsor.

The period in which each dynasty occupied the throne is shown by a small gold plaque.
The cup is the work of Frank Dobson, a British sculptor. It is the gift of the Holyrood Amenity Trust, and will be kept in the Palace of Holyroodhouse in Scotland.

In Scotland the word "clam" is usually applied to the scallop.

CANADA MOVES CATTLE FROM DROUGHT AREAS

Calgary, Alta.—(AP)—Between 12,000 and 15,000 head of cattle have been moved from Alberta drought areas this year under the federal feeder-freight program. It was estimated by livestock men here.

Under the plan the government refunds purchasers 50 per cent of all freight charges on cattle moved from the dry areas to other Alberta districts or outside the province.

Boom In Shark Meat.
Melbourne, Australia. (AP)—Shopkeepers reported they could sell all available shark meat at 12 cents a pound. They said housewives had been won over to the new food-stuff, which tastes much like cod, and has few bones.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—All is not quiet on the Potomac since 1,000 employees of the Home Owners Loan Corporation formed a group medical association, hired five doctors to treat them and their families, and got a chunk of federal money to help out. The association provides fairly complete medical and surgical services for its members and families, together with 21 days annual hospitalization, for a top cost of $3.30 a month, $39.60 a year. The idea is, of course, to get more doctoring for less money.

The members say they will get more doctoring. Even frowning medical leaders here concede they will let it for less—and that is the source of much conflict as the association passes through its first month of existence.

First off, local physicians protested that the $40,000 contribution by the HOLC was an unauthorized federal contribution to "socialized medicine." HOLC officials replied that sickness cost the Washington office $100,000 a year in lost time; if increased medical attention would reduce the loss, the cost would be offset.

Doctors See Threat.
Second protest was that group medical practice would remove the beautiful competition among physicians and allow medicine to go stale, would attract only second rate physicians, would reduce physicians income to a minimum and, in the end would leave few but the poor and jobless to be treated by doctors in private practice.

Physicians were particularly worried by a section of the group charter permitting extension of membership to all federal employes in Washington. (At present membership is limited to the 2,000 HOLC employes). The idea of 115,000 federal employes and their families—most of Washington—being swept into group medicine would make Washington a medical desert for private practitioners instead of the hush oasis that it is.

A Financial Squeeze.

The association declines to say how much it is paying its five physicians, most of whom work full time in the group clinic. It can't be anything staggering.

The income from membership fees is about $2,800 a month. That would allow an average of $400 a month each for the five physicians, $100 a month for the seven nurses and technicians and a bare scratching of $100 a month for support of the clinic and rental of beds and surgicals in local hospitals.

The salaries must be smaller or the clinic and hospital expenses puny or the association is eating into the $40,000 capital advanced by the HOLC to get it started.

BUSINESS ACTIVITY

November Decline Is One of Greatest In History

NEW YORK (AP)—November industrial activity chalked up one of the largest monthly declines on record. The Associated Press index dropping from 95.6 per cent of the 1929-30 average to 85.1. Although steel operations were hardest hit, seasonally adjusted automobile production, residential building, freight carloadings, cotton manufacture and electric power production also made new lows for the year during the period.

Sidewalk Notice!

The town of Greenville has had recently approved by the Works Progress Administration a project for the construction of sidewalks. Recently the Town of Greenville has notified a number of property owners to construct sidewalks on their property. These property owners may avail themselves of aid from the Works Progress Administration in the construction of the sidewalks. It is estimated that with the free unskilled labor on the part of the WPA that there will be a saving in cost of about one-third. It is necessary, however, that in order for the property owners to avail themselves of this opportunity to get in touch with the City Clerk. The Board of Aldermen is desirous of constructing sidewalks on our main thoroughfares and improved streets. In many instances these sidewalks have been neglected and pedestrians have to walk in the Street. It is hoped that the citizens will cooperate with the Town in the construction of these sidewalks and thereby make it an inducement to our people to walk on the sidewalk rather than in the street. This may be the cause of saving a life or preventing serious injury to citizens and children of our City.

By order of the Board.

PIRATES SHOW BETTER FORM

Cage Five Undergoes Hard Session Of Practicing

Last night found the E. C. T. C. basketball team showing symptoms of improvement. Outstanding in the strenuous practice session was the backboard work and screening of by Kegily Martin, Pirate center and former footballer. Martin was working the board like a veteran and despite lack of scoring opportunity he passed the ball like a professional and took the ball off the board defensively. Felix Cecot is coming through in fine shape. Last night's scoring in scrimmage was led by Clark Guthrie, a newcomer. If last night's performance was any indication of the shooting ability of the slim blonde Freshman somebody will have to hustle to keep a berth on the team marked as starters. Guthrie is a natural ball hawk and judging by last night's performance his shooting ability would cause Kit Carson or Bill Hitchok to die of jealousy. The entire squad is improving and are in fine condition for the initial tussle with the famous Unique Furniture Makers team here Friday night, at seven o'clock. A recent announcement from the Furniture Makers states that Carlos Holloman has been replaced in their line-up by Donald Brock. Outstanding for the Winston-Salem team is Herb MacCraw, former All-Conference selection from North Carolina State College, and one of the cleverest basketball players in the entire South.

'YOU GET A THORN WITH EVERY ROSE—'

QUARTERBACK HUGHES, CAPTAIN MONSKY
Hal Hughes, Bama signal-caller, gulps as Captain Leroy Monsky, All-America guard, holds the hose. Southerners look for Monsky to open holes and lead interference against the California Bears in the Rose Bowl. Hughes does most of Alabama's kicking.

(By The AP Feature Service)
NEW YORK — Whispers from the south say Alabama's fine Rose Bowl record may be in danger next New Year's Day.
Dixie football fans are blowing hot air into high hopes but, actually, they're somewhat skeptical of the Crimson Tide's ability to cope with powerful California at Pasadena. And bookmakers rate California a 2-1 favorite.
No visiting team to the Rose Bowl has been able to approximate Alabama's mark of three victories and a tie. Down south, where they take their football so seriously, grid enthusiasts like to brag—modestly, of course—of the strong teams built at Alabama by Wallace Wade and, later, by Frank Thomas.
They're worried. But they take hope in the fact that football is a strange game wherein anything can happen and where past performance often counts for nothing. Stanford's scoreless duel November 27th with Columbia, previously kicked about by most of the major eastern outfits, also buoyed the southerners.
The chief cause for alarm came in Alabama's last three games, which the southerners won very, very narrowly. The field goal, a weapon not generally associated with Alabama's powerhouses of the stretching the length of the stage, pitted and scolded by the art of Sonja and her ballet. It is Eddie's job to see that all these miniature carvers are filled and smoothed by the time Sonja returns from lunch. Moving himself slowly in a crouching position, Eddie carefully measures out a tiny stream of water into the first hole. His manner is that of an analytical chemist pouring drops of precious chemical into a test tube. He knows just the right amount to pour. Because water expands in volume as it freezes, he does not fill to the top, nor does he put in too little. In half an hour his work is done. Then he sits on the sidelines, looking raptly at the rink as though he can actually hear the water freeze into ice.

Eddie At Play
Later three men with scrapers appear and add the final smoothing touches. But by now Eddie Hoffman has gone—as though watching such crude labor were beneath him. What happens to Eddie the rest of the day is not reported. But just before 6 o'clock when the company is ready to leave for the day, he can be seen loitering around the rink. He waits until everyone has gone, and then, skates on his feet and cut in hand, he again demonstrates his art.
Deanna Durbin is being directed by Norman Taurog, instead of Henry Kostler, in "Mad About Music." Kostler made her first two films, and was sought for the third. But he wants to demonstrate what he can do in a picture minus the child wonder.
Because of the scarcity of vegetables early American settlers used a great deal of meat in their cooking and the abundance of meat is still the first characteristic of American cookery.

Commission Wants Public's View On Justice Dept'm't

Chairman L. P. McLendon Anxious for Hearing to Turn Out Inquiry Meet

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Dec. 5—Major L. P. McLendon, chairman of the commission investigating the possibilities for a state "Department of Justice" wants the public hearing before his group Saturday to be a real meeting for "inquiry and discussion," not a routine session at which cut-and-dry speeches are made.
The Greensboro lawyer emphasized the fact that the commission is not charged with the duty of getting only facts favorable to the proposed new division of the state government, but is charged with gathering all possible data and presenting them to the public.
Saturday's session will be held in the Hall of the House in the Capitol at 11 o'clock, Major McLendon said.

TURN WALNUTS INTO PROFITS

Kernels in Demand in High-Class Grocery Stores

Raleigh, Dec. 6—Black walnut kernels are in demand at high class grocery stores, confectionery stores and bakeries, and cracking the walnuts to obtain kernels for sale may be developed as a profitable home industry, believes R. W. Graeber, extension forester at State College.
"There is a big crop of black walnuts this season," Graeber says. "All of these should be saved. If the nuts are gathered and hulled soon after falling, the surplus may be stored for market next year without loss of color or flavor. The kernels are delicious and much in demand."
Graeber pointed out the present decided lack of good walnut timber in the State and says that every landowner would do well to plant a few nuts about in odd corners on the farm. The walnut likes a rich, loamy soil such as may be found in fence corners, along the edges of the field, and about the barn yard or home grounds. The tree makes a welcome shade in summer and adds to the attractiveness of the farmstead.
"We have accumulated quite a bit of information about methods of harvesting and storing black walnuts," the forester said. "We also have much information on the cracking and preparation of the walnut kernels for market. A list of markets available for the kernels also has been compiled and the ignorant who have too exalted an opinion of their own worth."
It is about another pianist, an arrogant ham, who, by more luck than he deserved, was hired to entertain guests in a chop house in the West Forties. His voice was simply awful, which he could not help. But his manners were worse, and in this he was wholly to blame.
Finally a guest could stand it no longer. He jotted down this note on a piece of paper: "I can sing better than you." Whereupon the waiter delivered it to the pianist, who exploded: "If that's so, why doesn't he get up here and try!"
"He can't," explained the waiter. "He is deaf and dumb!"
Paul Mosher relays this one. He got it from Phil Baker. Baker had it straight from the chef but there is no telling where the chef got it. Anyway, there was a rascally named Lapidus who persisted in overdrawn his checking account. Finally an executive of the bank decided to call him to account for his misdeeds. "You are overdrawn $26," he thundered into the telephone. After a pause Lapidus said: "Look, how much did I have in the bank a month ago?"
The trust official told him: "You had $100."
"Well," roared Lapidus, "did I call you up then?"—and hung up!

Hollywood — When Sonja Henie has gone to lunch, when the ice ballet and the crew have deserted the sound stage and rink, Eddie Hoffman steps from the sidelines into purposeful art.
You wouldn't pick Eddie from the laboring crowd as an unique fellow, but he is. He's this town's one and only ice-hole filler.
In the temporarily deserted stage Eddie puts on skates, takes a tall cup full of water in his hand, and steps on the rink, master of all he surveys. For his own satisfaction and as a non-utilitarian flourish any man might give to his job, he executes a few turns and whirls around the rink. Then, perhaps realizing that (unlike Miss Henie) he is a one skater whirling in the wilderness, he starts to work.
He skims over the ice, bending low and scanning the skate-scared surface. Here is an immense rink

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—It was a major achievement for Alec Templeton when he went into the Rainbow Room. He is blind. His contribution to the gaiety of New York is playing a piano and singing a song. He plays the piano well. And he knows how to mime famous orchestras and to burlesque their various modes of delivery. Well, that was just what he was doing. He was burlesquing a rumba band. You know—all the high strung shouts and grunts and fantastic wiggles that go with rumba music. And right in the middle of the first chorus a woman (we almost said a lady) hissed him!
There was a near riot. I mean, you never saw such rage and disbelief on the faces of well-bred people before. And something more would have come of it if the offender hadn't been persuaded to gather up her skirts and get out of there... but quickly.
Meanwhile Templeton, as if unaware that anything had happened, kept right on playing and singing. And burlesquing his rumba number. Until he came to the place where the lady hissed him. And then he showed that he could take it—by hissing himself, in exactly the same manner she had done. They say the Rainbow Room hasn't heard such applause in years!
