REPORTED ALL AMERICANS IN NANKING SAFE

Embassy Also Says 150,000 Chinese In Safety Zone

HEAVY FIGHTING NOW IN PROGRESS

Chinese Rally 140,000 Troops In Desperate Attempt to Check Japanese Advance

Shanghai, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The Japanese Embassy said today 27 foreigners, including 18 Americans, who were within the walls of Nanking when Japanese troops stormed and captured the Chinese capital city were all reported safe, in a message from Nanking.

Besides the Americans there were six Germans, two Russians and a Briton who chose to remain in the city rather than evacuate on a river boat as many other endangered foreigners did.

The Embassy report said there were 150,000 Chinese in the "safety zone."

Reports from the war front indicated hard fighting was in progress beyond Nanking where the Japanese army driving steadily into the interior, was combating Chinese along a new defense line established about five miles northwest of the fallen capital city.

Survivors of the Panay bombing told of the area along the Yangtze being embroiled in large scale battle. The Chinese apparently rallied about 140,000 men on the new line at Puchen in a desperate effort to halt the Japanese advance.

General Iwane Matsu, commander of the troops conquering Nanking, set up field headquarters there and reorganized his forces for speedy continuation of the interior campaign.

The Chinese forces were reported throwing up fortifications across the Yangtze river from Nanking.

Japanese forces still were mopping up in the war-ravaged city, according to advices filtering thru to Shanghai, and casualties of the hand to hand struggle for Nanking apparently were enormous.

Pay For Mattress Destroyed In Jail

Two white men, William and Harvey Bland, lodged in the city jail last night by Corporal L. L. Jackson of the State Highway Patrol, one for driving drunk and the other for drunkenness, were convicted in City court this morning of burning a mattress in the bastille and were ordered to pay the costs of court and also pay for the mattress.

The charges preferred by the patrolman will be aired later.

Charlie Barrett, Negro, was bound over to County court under bond of $300 on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Louis Holland, white man, was ordered held for County court under bond of $100 to face a charge of careless and reckless driving.

Ernest Reaves, Negro, convicted of being drunk and disorderly, was fined $10 and taxed with the costs of court.

H. C. Eskeridge, white man, convicted of drunkenness, was ordered to pay the costs of court.

WHERE GUARD WAS SLAIN IN PRISON MUTINY

Here was the scene in the office of Guard Captain I. Olin Sanders at the South Carolina penitentiary in Columbia shortly after he was stabbed to death there while six rebellious convicts held him captive in their unsuccessful attempt to escape. They were subdued with tear gas but Capt. Sanders was killed just as the choking fumes penetrated the room.

TREE SERVICE WILL BE HELD

Annual Affair To Be Held In Memory of Late Mayor

Next Tuesday and Wednesday Greenville will observe its third annual Community Christmas Tree Service. The Christmas following the death of the late Mayor Roy C. Flanagan the Woman's Club sponsored the first of these services which was held on the lawn of the Flanagan home, as a memorial to memory of Mr. Flanagan and as a mark of the love and esteem in which he was held by his friends and neighbors.

But the idea back of it was more than just a personal tribute—the idea was that this should become a community service, sponsored by all the organizations and individuals of the community, and that it should render to the community a service which would be in keeping both with the spirit of Mr. Flanagan and of the Christmas season.

Accordingly the service has grown into a service in which all groups and individuals are asked to participate in helping meet the needs of some of the less fortunate among our people. From the beginning it was understood that this was to be an annual affair, continued indefinitely. That is the citizens were establishing a tradition in Greenville. With the cooperation of the Water and Light Commission the large and beautiful holly tree on the Flanagan lawn is annually trimmed with electric lights and the proper setting provided for the celebration of a Community Christmas Tree Service.

Next week this Community Service extends its work so that its service to the community's less fortunate will provide gifts to at least two hundred-fifty children, both white and colored. On Tuesday night the service will be held for the white children and one hundred fifty of these will be entertained by the community as Greenville's Christmas guests. Prosperity Is Indicated By Gasoline Consumption

Raleigh, Dec. 15.—Measured by the consumption of gasoline as a "yardstick" North Carolina has enjoyed one of its most prosperous years.

Motorists of the state, together with tourists from outside, have used a record-breaking gallonage of gasoline during the first ten months of 1937, according to figures in the office of Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell.

These figures reflect increased travel as well as better business conditions, in the opinion of Mr. Maxwell. Not only has more gasoline been consumed during the first ten months than ever before in a corresponding period, but the October figures, latest month for which consumption has been accurately calculated, show a higher total, 34,616,543 gallons, than in any other month. In October, 1936, consumption was 33,192,865. For the first ten months, 1937,

BEAUFORT MAN TRIED IN COURT

Given Suspended Sentence In Wreck Case Here

Wade Waters of Washington who was charged with running into an automobile driven by D. H. Conley, superintendent of Pitt County schools and later arrested in Washington, tendered a plea of guilty to driving to the left of the center of the highway and was taxed with the costs in County court yesterday afternoon. The defendant also was ordered to pay $100 for damages to Mr. Conley's car and was given a 60-day suspended sentence.

Henry Peaden entered a plea of guilty to manufacturing liquor, but judgment was continued until December 21. The defendant is held under bond of $400 meanwhile. Della Wilson, Negro charged with possession of whiskey for the purpose of sale, was acquitted. Reynolds Montgomery, Negro, charged with trespass, also was acquitted. Winterville Man May Go On Radio

Ray Oglesby of Winterville, auctioneer on a local warehouse during the tobacco marketing season just closed, probably will be heard on a radio program advertising a popular brand of cigarettes soon.

The following article appeared in a Glasgow, Ky., paper recently: A radio try-out by phone from the Planters Warehouse here to officials of American Tobacco Co. in New York City—that's the story of Ray Oglesby, auctioneer on the Glasgow tobacco market yesterday.

Mr. Oglesby was contacted by long distance phone by promoters of The Lucky Strike program and asked to give the try-out. "You are recommended as top-notch auctioneer, and we want a demonstration," said the official. And then Mr. Oglesby began his musical mumbo-jumbo by wire as some thirty spectators listened in at the Planters House. "You sound good, and we want you to come to New York City for a personal interview," was the answer to his chant. Mr. Oglesby, who came to Glasgow as assistant to Auctioneer George Akers, plans to leave Sunday for New York City to confer with American Tobacco Co officials.

Hungary Pays Sum On Old War Debt

Washington, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The Hungarian government aid to the United States today a partial remittance on its war debt.

A note handed to Secretary Hull by Minister John Plenyi informed this government a check for $9,828 was being deposited in the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

Hungary thereby became the first of 12 nations to undertake a resumption of payments which were stopped during or after the Hoover moratorium in 1932. By far the greater part of the $1,680,170,000 which fell due today on the semi-annual installment date, however, went by default; again, Great Britain, France, Italy, Poland and Yugoslavia reiterated in advance they were not able to pay. The other six defaulters were expected to follow suit. Of all the war debtors, only Finland has met its installments fully and promptly, and agreed to do so again.

Survivors Aboard Ship Say Gunboat Panay Opened Fire On Attacking Jap Aircraft

Disclosure Made By Correspondent for Colliers'

SAYS JAPS KNEW VESSEL FOREIGN

Declares Planes Flew So Low It Was Impossible For Them Not Identify Ship

Shanghai, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Three American survivors of the Panay bombing, arriving here today, declared the United States gunboat vigorously returned the Japanese aircraft fire and that the Panay was plainly marked with American flags.

The survivors, two of them badly wounded and the third suffering from shock to such an extent he could not tell his experience, were brought here by a Japanese plane from Wuhu.

Their condition caused fears that many of the refugees en route from the scene of the bombing on American and British gunboats might be suffering from shock and exposure.

Jim Marshall, Far Eastern correspondent for Colliers' magazine, asserted the Panay opened fire on the Japanese planes at the beginning of the attack and "kept her guns blazing until the last minute."

Marshall arrived in Shanghai today from Wuhu, Yangtze river port to which he had made his way after the attack which destroyed the Standard Oil Company ships Sunday.

"The Japanese planes dropped 12 bombs around the Panay and the Standard Oil vessels" the writer said. "They came so low it was impossible for them not to know the Panay was a foreign ship. The visibility was excellent. The first bomb hit the forecastle. When the ship began sinking the Captain ordered her abandoned."

"All passengers and crew members jumped overboard. I landed on (Continued on page six)

WAR WIDOWS GET PAYMENTS

Pension Checks Received Here Today For Nineteen

Checks were received here today by Clerk of Court J. Frank Herrington for distribution to widows of Civil war veterans. Only 19 checks were received as compared with 25 at the June 15 payment, a number of the widows having been placed on the Old Age Assistance rolls.

Payments to widows of the veterans are made on June 15 and December 15. There are no living veterans in the county. Class A widows, those entirely dependent, receive $150 semi-annually, while class B widows receive only $50 twice each year.

Checks for $150 were received for the following class A widows: Mrs. Fannie Brooks, widow of H. F. Brooks; Mrs. Vinie Blount Davis, widow of J. B. Davis; Mrs. Millie Harris, widow of Henry F. Harris; Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson, widow of Joe Wilson; Mrs. Janie Carney, widow of R. H. Carney; Mrs. Nannie Little, widow of Francis M. Little; and Mrs. Victoria McGowan who was put on pension list thru a special legislative act.

The following class B widows may get their checks by calling by Mr. Harrington's office: Mrs. Martha L. Baker, widow of A. J. Baker; Mrs. Nancy Briley, widow of James A. Briley; Mrs. Martha A. Cannon, widow of J. W. Cannon; Mrs. Mary Crawford, widow of David L. Crawford; Mrs. Martha E. Davenport, widow of James R. Davenport; Mrs. Lydia C. Gardner, widow of James B. Gardner; Mrs. Ellen Hill, widow of A. D. Hill; Mrs. Bettie Moore, widow of K. T. Lewis; Mrs. Susie Robertson, widow of W. L. Robertson; Mrs. J. A. Stocks, widow of J. A. Stocks and Mrs. Lucy Worthington, put on by special legislative act.

A check also was received for Mrs. Alice E. Galloway, who died several days ago.

Firemen Answer Call, Find It To Be False

Firemen answered an alarm about 8 o'clock last night only to find that it was false. The call came from behind Webb's warehouse.

A large number of firefighters had been called out before it was determined that the alarm was false.

ROOSEVELT PROTESTS TO JAPAN

THE WHITE HOUSE WASHINGTON

Memorandum handed to the Secretary of State at 12:30 P. M., December 13, 1937.

Please tell the Japanese Ambassador when you see him at one o'clock:

- 1. That the President is deeply shocked and concerned by the news of indiscriminate bombing of American and other non-Chinese vessels on the Yangtze, and that he suggests that the Emperor be so advised. 2. That all the facts are being assembled and will shortly be presented to the Japanese Government. 3. That in the meantime it is hoped the Japanese Government will be considering definitely for presentation to this Government: a. Full expressions of regret and proffer of full compensation. b. Methods guaranteeing against a repetition of any similar attack in the future.

Written on a single sheet of White House stationery and signed "F. D. R." the memorandum shown here was sent by President Roosevelt to Secretary of State Hull after the sinking of the United States gunboat Panay by Japanese air bombs. Note the President first wrote "suggests" in one place but crossed it out and substituted "requests".

Choice Business Corner Leased By Rose Stores

Contract Signed For Lot On Corner Of Evans and Fourth

J. B. James, Greenville attorney for the F. G. James heirs today announced that the Rose five, ten and twenty-five cents stores, with headquarters in Henderson, had been given a long term lease on the business property located on the Northeast corner of Evans and Fourth Streets.

The Rose company will take over the property on February 1 and extensive remodeling will be done before the new five-ten and 25-cent store is opened. It probably will be early summer before the store will begin operating.

The site is now occupied by R. E. Harris and company and the Frozen Delight. Both these firms have been notified they would have to vacate and it is understood they are making arrangements to move shortly after the new year.

The lease has just been signed. (Continued on page six)

24 WORDS WERE USED —THEY ALL MEANT 'NO'

Chicago, (AP)—An old Negro stood at a desk of the Chicago relief agency with a letter in his hand and said:

"I been writin' and writin' about getting me some clothes and all I gets is dis letter which doan answer me nothin'."

The letter reads: "Your request for clothing has been noted. Regret to advise that due to paucity of funds it cannot be met at the present time."

When "paucity" was explained as "no money," the applicant left mumbling: "Why doan you jes say 'no'?"

Labor Commissioner Says Unionization Inevitable

Charlotte, Dec. 15.—Unionization of labor is inevitable and wise employers will do all they can to encourage it along safe and sane lines, Major A. L. Fletcher, State Commissioner of Labor, told the Associated General Contractors at their convention here this morning.

In view of all the facts of the situation, he said, there is now no longer room to argue the principles of unionization. "For many years their principles have been recognized and adopted by every important industrial nation except our own and the Wagner Labor Relations Act now brings these things to the workers of the United States," he said. "Two courses are open to employ-

MAN BELIEVED TO BE TURNER

Picture of Escapee Identified By Wilmington Girl

Wilmington, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Police Chief Joseph Rouk said today two persons had identified an unmarked picture of Wash Turner, alias Jack Borden, escapee, as that of a man who had been in this section two or three weeks, lending credence to the belief that it was Turner who escaped Monday night from a police trap in which his companion, J. B. Byrd, of Durham, was shot and captured.

Rouk said he showed the picture to Inez Bumgarner, girl said to have had a date with Borden which led him into the trap, and that she told him it was the picture of a man with whom she had been associating for three weeks. She knew him as Ralph Miller, she said. This is one of the aliases used by Turner.

The chief said he also showed the picture to a cafe attendant here who immediately recognized it as the picture of a man who had been eating at the cafe for two weeks.

Mayor Thomas Cooper suggested that Governor Hooper investigate what he termed "flagrant examples of inefficiency" in the State Highway patrol as patrolmen pressed the search for the companion of Byrd.

SENATE AGAIN REFUSES LIMIT FARM AID FUND

Adopts Provision For Spending Such Sum As Necessary

WAGE-HOUR BILL BEING DELAYED

Leaders Confident of Strength Enough To Keep Measure On Floor of House

Washington, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The Senate refused again today to fix a definite limit on expenditures under the "ever-normal granary" bill.

It approved, 48 to 38, in a roll call vote asked by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) a provision which called for spending "such sums as are necessary."

Supporters of the bill contended this provision would hold cost to $500,000,000, or whatever funds are made available. But Senator McNary (R-Ore.) said the bill would cost at least $600,000,000 and Senator King (D-Utah) estimated its cost at more than $1,000,000,000.

An appropriation of $500,000,000 to pay farm benefits is authorized under the present soil conservation act.

Late yesterday the senate turned down an amendment which would have placed a $500,000,000 limit on cost.

Earlier today the senate voted down an amendment which would have ordered full "parity payments" on cotton, wheat and corn.

House leaders expressed confidence today they could defeat an impending move to send the wage and hour bill back to committee for re-vamping.

Speaker Bankhead said he was sure the leadership would prevail, and announced his intention to hold night sessions if necessary to complete action on the measure this week.

Dallying tactics, however, kept the House from considering amendments to the bill. A quorum call was demanded and ordered when only a (Continued on page six)

Conciliator Visits Union Convention

Pittsburgh, Dec. 15.—(AP)—James Dewel, Federal Labor Conciliator, came to the Steel Workers' convention today in the wake of reports that the branch between CIO and the American Federation of Labor was widening.

"I merely came in the course of events," said Dewel, who has been a close observer of negotiations between the warring factions representing John I. Lewis and William Green.

The convention's 925 delegates meanwhile began passing resolutions endorsing the recommendation of its officials headed by Phillip Murray, Lieutenant of Lewis.

Resolutions were approved calling for a six hour day and 30 hour week, a federal survey of technological unemployment, firm adherence to labor contracts and condemning as "a disgrace to any community" the action of Chicago police during the steel riot there last summer.

The delegates leaped to their feet and cheered John Philips when he suggested that every union man in the country should quit work for a day every time a man or woman was slain on a picket line.

Two More Women Reported Missing

Paris, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Two women who had answered help wanted advertisements inserted in newspapers by Eugene Weidmann, confessed executioner for a murder-for-profit ring, were reported missing today.

Investigating police said they feared the two women may have met the same fate as Madam Jeanne Keller, sixth of Weidmann's known victims, whose body was found in a grave yesterday. Weidmann's confession that he killed Jean DeKoven, Brooklyn, N. Y. dancer, started the investigation.

Detectives found want ad clippings in Weidmann's villa and started a search for persons they said had answered his offers of employment. The investigators said they found all but two of the women who were reported to have disappeared.

The Round Table.
Mrs. E. L. Henderson, assisted by Mrs. J. E. Lewis, received the Round Table on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Carl L. Adams.

The club voted to send the usual gift of five dollars to Oteen, through the American Legion Auxiliary, and also to give five dollars to the Thrift Shop for the needy in this community.

Mrs. E. L. Henderson very effectively told a story of "The Lost Star" by Burrow. This story was appropriate of the Christmas spirit.

The club enjoyed several piano numbers by Mrs. H. C. Haynes, "Les Sylphes," by Cecile Charn, variations to "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," and "Silent Night."

In concluding the program, Miss Neale Denny read an interesting item on "The Influence of Music on Mankind."

A beautiful salad plate with coffee was served by Mrs. E. L. Henderson, Mrs. J. E. Lewis, Mrs. R. J. Slay and Miss Dorothy Nell Henderson.—Reported.

Club Open House.
The Christmas program to be given at the Woman's Club on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock will consist of songs and duets in addition to group singing of age-old Christmas carols, led by H. A. McDougal Mrs. J. H. Rose will read a charming Christmas story. Detailed announcement of the program, which is in charge of Mrs. C. C. Hinton, sponsor for the Juniors, will be published later in the week.

This Sunday meeting is a new idea of the club president. It promises to be something different from anything heretofore attempted and wholly in keeping with the true spirit of Christmas.

Both Senior and Junior club members are expected to be present with husbands, or sweethearts, who are to be special guests at this time.

Chatham Book Club.
The Chatham Book Club met at the home of Mrs. E. R. Conway, with Mrs. R. S. Neal assisting hostess, on Tuesday afternoon, December 14. The spacious home was decorated throughout with greens and Christmas candles making a beautiful setting for the afternoon's program.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. N. S. Beard, the meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Mrs. Harvey Clayton. Books were distributed and the meeting was turned over to the hostess. A delightful Christmas program was presented, including a group of Christmas carols given by a quartet from Robersonville.

Mrs. J. H. Rose read a very appropriate Christmas story entitled "Dust of the Road," which was greatly enjoyed by all. At the conclusion of the program, Martha and Paul Conway and Bobbie Neal, Jr., sang a group of Christmas songs. The hostesses then served a delightful turkey dinner with coffee and individual mince meat pies carrying out the Christmas idea.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. J. M. Little, Mrs. Perry, Mrs. J. H. Rose, Mrs. Irving Smith, Mrs. Vance Roberson and Mrs. Abram Roberson of Robersonville.

The meeting adjourned to meet January 11th with Mrs. Carl Adams.—Reported.

MODES of the MOMENT

By ADELAIDE KERR

PLUS-FOUR SNOW CHIC—Paris makes for St. Moritz a snow suit with brown gabardine plus fours. It is topped by a yellow waistcoat jacket which is piped in brown. White gaiters and knitted gloves and a figured brown scarf are worn with it.

"Twas the Night Before Christmas," Mrs. White next read a short portion of Van Dyke's "Keeping Christmas," after which she introduced Miss Zoe Anna Davis, Methodist student worker at East Carolina Teachers College.

The club enjoyed the following guests: Miss Zoe Anna Davis, M. S. James T. M. Grant, H. F. Moye, James B. Hawes and J. G. Waldrop of Hendersonville, N. C.

Hardee-McGowan.
At the residence of the bride's father, Mr. W. C. McGowan near Greenville, on Wednesday afternoon, December 15th, Mr. D. W. Hardee was married to Miss Henrietta McGowan, J. M. Cox, Esq., officiating. Immediately after the marriage the bridal party drove to the home of the groom where a reception was held. The Reflector extends best wishes.

Sans Souci Book Club Meets.
Tuesday afternoon Mrs. S. T. White entertained members of the Sans Souci Book Club together with a number of invited guests, at her spacious home on Seventh street. This was the Christmas meeting and, as always, is pleasantly anticipated by each club member.

In her usual gracious manner Mrs. White, assisted by her charming daughter, Mrs. James B. Hawes, cordially met each guest and welcomed them into a Christmas setting made beautiful by the use of a profusion of holly, poinsettias, red roses and soft Christmas lights.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. W. L. Hall presided over the short but important business session. The club voted to bring Christmas cheer to some needy family. The books were passed and the program turned over to our hostess.

She introduced her program with a few fitting and appropriate thoughts on the joyous season, and then presented Mrs. W. L. Hall, who gave as a piano monologue

Carol Service.
The women's chorus of the college presented their annual Christmas Carol Service last night in the Austin auditorium before an appreciative audience that seemed to enter fully into the spirit of the program.

Under the direction of Mrs. Gussie Kuykendall, the chorus of forty girls did some remarkable capella work, the nice blending of the tones coming out especially well in the absence of the usual accompanying instruments.

In "A Joyous Christmas Song" by Gevert, in which rejoicing voices echo and re-echo the word "Noel," the sound of chiming bells was suggested.

The director's strong sense of contrapuntal values made the selection "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming" especially attractive in its soft accompaniment of one group of voices by another.

Much liked by the audience, also, was "Angels O'er the Fields Were Flying," with its repetition of the majestic "Gloria in excelsis Deo." Other favorites were a Russian composition called "Carol of the Russian Children," a Sicilian hymn tune called "A Song for Christmas Eve," marked by its delicate and sustained humming; and the tender "Virgin's Lullaby" by Peery.

For "Silent Night," which closed the service, only candles were left burning. The folds of the curtain to the left and slightly to the rear of the singers were drawn aside to show Mary looking down into the cradle, a soft light falling on her quiet face and her folded hands.

The women's chorus is made up for the most part of girls without any special previous training, a fact which makes their a capella singing all the more remarkable.

Among the singers in the group are three Greenville girls, Misses Julia and Helen Foley and Miss Belva Dare Harris.

The director, Miss Gussie Kuykendall, of the public school music department of the college, is known for her excellent work with women's voices.

Club Book Club.
The Club Book Club was delightfully entertained on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. N. E. Ward.

The members extended a cordial welcome to Mrs. T. H. Boykin, who is to represent Mrs. G. B. Starling, Jr., in the club during the latter's extended absence from the city.

After the regular business meeting, and the decision by the club to help provide Christmas for a needy family, a beautiful Christmas program was given by Mrs. J. H. Harrell on the life and works of Henry Van Dyke. A valuable quality of Van Dyke's style is clearness, and simplicity is characteristic of all his works. Mrs. Harrell explained that "The Other Wise Man" was written the sleepless night when the author was bowed in grief over the sudden death of his father. She gave a brief review of that story, and of several of his other works, closing her program with one of his Christmas prayers.

Mrs. Harrell told us of a life-sized manger scene at Roanoke Rapids, which she says is unique and very beautiful, and suggested that any of us who are near there during the Christmas season should go and see it.

After the current events round table, a delicious course of refreshments was served.—Reported.

DARE TO DREAM

BY ALICE MARIE DODGE

The Characters

Nelda, a beautiful, courageous girl, with dark eyes and hair, is forced to sacrifice her personal ambitions, and run a ranch.

Bill is a tanned, blue-eyed, lettuce farmer. Sparks fly when he and Nelda meet.

Reck, blond, gay and dashing, is a wealthy neighbor.

Mrs. Reckless, Reck's cold and arrogant mother, subtly warns Nelda that Reck is not for her.

Lella, Nelda's selfish sister-in-law.

Chapter Eight Visitors

"How much—" Again Nelda was reduced to blushing confusion. It was embarrassing to ask Bill how much he would charge to plough.

"I estimate my prices by the time it takes for the work," he said quickly.

"Yes—oh, yes!" She hated herself for letting this man see so clearly into her mind.

"Did you walk down here?" he asked.

She nodded.

"Want me to run you home?"

"I prefer to walk."

The way she said it left the impression that she wanted none of him or his old wreck of a car, but she was really taking out her annoyance at herself upon him. The hurt look she'd noticed the first time she saw him appeared in his eyes. She wanted to apologize, but words wouldn't come. Then she saw his lips harden and he said curtly:

"Tomorrow morning then."

He had returned to some place within himself where she could not follow. She was being dismissed. Whirling, she walked swiftly out of the yard.

"Who does he think he is?" she asked herself pettishly.

She had scarcely reached home when Reck drove into the yard and stopped with a flourish.

"You've simply got to install a telephone here," he said without preface as he got out of the car.

"I told you I can't afford one."

She felt heat running through her veins. Was her reduced circumstances going to hit her in the face at every turn?

"I'll pay for it each month if you'll have one put in," he offered impulsively, and tacked on when he saw the horrified look on her face. "Don't throw me out! I didn't mean—"

"Don't ever say anything like that again," she ordered. "Why, I hardly know you."

"That's the trouble! I want to know you better. I'd like to call you up about 10 times a day."

"I'm going to be too busy running this ranch to spend much time at the telephone."

He laughed heartily.

"Running this ranch!" He went off into another gale of mirth.

"What's so funny?" she demanded angrily.

"You. Hi, Farmer!"

Farmer! That was the way she thought of Bill Langdon. But was Bill a farmer? There were many things about him that suggested he'd been different once.

Reck patted her arm with a conciliatory gesture.

"You're nice people, no matter what you are."

"Are you trying to sweep me off my feet with compliments?" she asked tartly, still burning under his ridicule.

"I'd like to sweep you off your feet all right." His engaging grin melted her anger.

One by one Nelda met the members of the Moresi family, Maria, the daughter, slim and graceful as a young pine tree, called and displayed with pride a bracelet and a ring, each set with rubies. Blushing, she told that an admirer had given them to her. At a glance Nelda saw that they were only cheap costume jewelry.

After Maria's visit Mrs. Moresi called at the Barries. Only Nelda and her mother were at home.

"What you think 'bout Maria's jewelry?" the Italian woman asked in an odd manner.

"Very nice," Nelda replied, aware that Mrs. Moresi's black eyes were trying to probe into her mind.

"I think that man is a no good bum," the woman brought out angrily.

It was as if she'd said a man like that wasn't capable of giving good presents, and Nelda knew she hadn't heard the last of the subject.

A very different visitor was Mrs. Reckless. Nelda sensed there was something more than neighborliness behind the call because the day was stormy. Mrs. Reckless was sitting up very straight in her handsome dark blue sedan which was driven by a plain, little woman whom she introduced as Miss Blaine, her secretary, and addressed merely as Blaine.

As Nelda ushered the woman into the warmth of the dining room her thoughts darted ahead. She'd ask Uncle Ham to make a fire in the living room and she'd serve tea in there. What would the pantry yield that she could serve with tea? Thank heaven for the lovely old set that had come around the Horn. That ought to make Mrs. Reckless's eyes pop out. Then there was the mahogany tea cart and the dainty doilies from the San Francisco home. She could serve thin slices of bread and butter with some of that delicious orange marmalade Lella had made.

If you couldn't say anything else for Lella you had to admit she was a good cook. If she were only here now she'd make up some of those tiny flaky biscuits for which she was famous. But she was down at the new house consulting with the contractor.

Strange Behavior

"MY MOTHER—Mrs. Reckless," Nelda introduced and noted the surprise that crossed Mrs. Reckless's face at sight of Mrs. Barrie in the wheel chair. "May I present my uncle's wife and my uncle—Mr. and Mrs. Wright."

"His bride," Laura corrected with a simper and started a detailed account of their elopement.

"I saw Reck yesterday," Nelda blurted out, hoping to divert Laura's story.

Mrs. Reckless raised her carefully defined eyebrows.

"You mean Earl?"

Nelda didn't know there was anything so finished and cold in the world as the way Mrs. Reckless snubbed her with those three words.

"He came to tell me about meeting some of my friends at the game," she rushed on.

"Miss Blaine told me she saw his car turning in here," Mrs. Reckless said.

By this time Uncle Ham had a fire roaring in the fireplace, and Nelda invited her guests into the living room. Mrs. Reckless accepted the invitation with a smile, but there was something wrong with that smile. It was a smile of the lips only.

Nelda found some cookies in the pantry to serve along with the bread and marmalade. The old tea-set looked quite impressive on the tea wagon. The pot, made on classic lines, was cream-colored and decorated with delicate pink roses.

It was when Nelda was wheeling the tea wagon toward Mrs. Reckless that the woman frankly divulged the real purpose of her visit.

"I hope you are not taking Earl's attentions seriously, Miss Barrie," she said and gave a laugh that held a faint note of ridicule.

"Of course not!" There was a touch of spirit in Nelda's tone.

"Earl is a boy who never remains interested in one girl for any length of time," Mrs. Reckless smiled as if at her own thoughts. "He's not ready to settle down yet. He's merely having a good time with whatever girl catches his fancy for the moment."

Nelda really didn't mean to do it, but she ran the tea cart over Mrs. Reckless's beautifully shod foot.

"Ouch!" that patrician-looking woman said indignantly.

Afterward Laura said, "I bet she had a corn."

But Nelda did not join in the laughter that followed Laura's facetious remark. She was thinking of Earl Reckless and his mother's strange behavior.

SANTA THE WHITE FOX

BY SIGRID ARNE

UP THE SKY CAME THE NORTH STAR

THE STORY SO FAR: A sailor or doll, who is attempting to rescue Helga, one of Santa's dolls, from a white fox held in a squirrel village because the squirrels want his help for a son that was bewitched.

Chapter 15
A USEFUL COMPANION

By this time it is easy to see that the sailor had some problems on his hands.

He was supposed to be hunting for Helga who had been stolen by the white fox. He had angered an earthworm and the Woods Fairy by playing a trick on them to get the magic acorn.

He had wanted the acorn to help the squirrel that had swollen to the size of an elephant. Then what happened? The squirrel shrank to the size of a house-fly.

"Well, well, a pretty kettle of fish," thought the sailor. He left the squirrel village and walked over to his boat to run up the sails. Of course, all the while he did he was watching the squirrels to see if they would stop him, as they had before.

They followed him to his boat, but they only watched him sail by. The old gentleman squirrel spoke:

"Sailor, you know you couldn't help it that our boy grew too small. Don't be afraid of us any more."

"Thank you," said the sailor, still thinking he'd better not talk too much.

Better Than A Key
"What's more," said the mother squirrel, "if you don't be gone too long, take our son along. He's so little now he won't see much of the world unless he travels with someone."

Rehearsals For Parties May Help Timid Child

SOCIAL EVENT

There aren't any parents I wouldn't want at this party. It's plain to be seen these young ladies have the "social" in 'em. The odds are great that proper training is responsible.

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW
(AP Feature Service Writer)

LANGHORNE, Pa. — You're a gregarious soul, and you prefer a group to a individual. So you thank your daughter, Barbara, tonight to feel the same way.

You can understand why she cringes when you bring her into a room filled with company. You don't understand her timidity for her playmate Betsy—there's insupportable—so you insist on inviting all the neighborhood children around to parties which leave Barbara tongue-tied. You want Barbara to be popular as you were social occasions on her, and leave her to get along as best she can in them.

Friendships Intense

All this is disastrous for Barbara's social future, says Dr. Charlotte Graves, psychologist at the Woods schools in Langhorne. Dr. Graves has met many mothers like Barbara's. And the Woods schools are filled with socially-handicapped children like Barbara.

Here's how Dr. Graves would advise Barbara's mother: Encourage her friendship for Betsy by inviting the youngster around to the house. Children's friendships mean a great deal to them. They may not be lasting but they are intense.

If Barbara must attend social functions—like birthday parties or dancing class—prepare her for these mass affairs by a kind of dress rehearsal.

Don't tell Barbara not to worry, and let it go at that. Tell her exactly what goes on at dancing class, how many children will be there, what they will wear, what they will do. Make a game out of the rehearsal, and pre-entend you're the dancing teacher greeting Barbara.

Keep Your Promise

And warns Dr. Graves if your husband is one of those bluff, hearty individuals who speak before they think, restrain him from telling Barbara that she's going to be a well-flower. He's only teasing, but his remark may throw Barbara into a panic.

Worse still, says Dr. Graves, is the mother who promises her child she won't leave her all evening and then forgets her immediately the party is reached.

It's Odd But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (AP Science Editor)

Philadelphia — As we walk, talk, breathe, think and feel, there courses over the fine nerve fibers that inter-connect the various parts of our bodies bursts of activity whose passage is signaled by small electrical changes. These electrical signals can be amplified and made audible in a loud speaker just as radio signals are made audible on your radio.

The nerve signals vary from occasional "pops" to the rapid firing of a machine gun. Ordinarily they are triggered by touching, stretching or pinching the sensory receptors distributed in and on our bodies.

Now a nerve started for calcium becomes an automatic Tommy-gun with rapid fire timing. This activity is not continuous but rhythmic, like the intermittent busy signals of your telephone.

This automatic rhythmicity, discovered by F. Brink, D. W. Bronk, and M. G. Larrabee, of the Johns Hopkins Foundation, University of Pennsylvania, can be regulating the calcium in the fluid bathing the nerve. Deprive the nerve of calcium and it fires with a persistent rhythm.

A burst of activity, silence, another burst, without end — until the calcium is restored.

METAL SPINNING DEFIES MASS PRODUCTION Dayton, Ohio (AP)—Metal spinning, more an art than an industry, is practiced in this city by a small group of skilled craftsmen.

The "spinning" process, which has not been adapted to mass production, consists of bending a twisting disc of metal over a wooden form. Various types of conical and spherical pieces are turned out.

Joseph Nagel, a metal spinner for the production of the aluminum alloy noses used for the dirigibles Akron and Macon. He uses a tool resembling a screw driver, with which he shapes the whirling disc to conform to the outline of the wooden form.

Among other products are coffee urns, kitchen utensils, ashtrays, airplane engine cowls and purely decorative pieces.

What It Means: NEW DEAL TRUST BUSTING

By MORGAN M. BEATTY (AP Feature Service Writer) Washington — Take all these anti-trust suits that keep cropping up in the federal courts, add them together, and you have the Roosevelt version of the old-time game of trust-busting.

And what a game that was back in 1900 and again in 1910. The object was to have Uncle Sam catch a big, pot-bellied trust in the political arena. Then our bewhiskered uncle was supposed to land a haymaker flush to the jaw, in full view of millions of frenzied voters.

The trust soon revived behind the scenes and resumed business at the same old stand under a new name. But what the public wanted was "the kill." And, from time to time, it got one.

Today, it's different. The economic structure of the nation is obviously too complex, too delicately balanced, to stand such pummeling.

So the Roosevelt version is not a knock-down, drag out scrap but a refined contest played something like a contract bridge tournament. It's a game replete with finesse and squeeze plays hardly a tussle fit for big audiences.

But even though the spectators can't follow the plays now as well as they could the old one-big-punch game, the stakes are actually higher; and there's a good chance that the outcome may mold the nation's economic patterns for the future.

The government has taken on four whipping big adversaries at once, and some of the small fry on the side. Here are the "big four": ALUMINUM: The government insists this industry is dominated by a single company—Aluminum Company of America—which ran a $20,000,000 investment up to a huge financial monopoly by killing off competition along the way.

OIL: The government says all the big midwestern oil companies have been getting together in gasoline price-fixing pools and setting the price of gasoline in 10 states.

TELEGRAPHS: The government expects to prove that two big telegraph companies in the field have divided up the choice spots for telegraph offices and, thereby, split the telegraph business just about the way they want to.

CEMENT: The government suspects the Cement Institute and its 75 manufacturing members of agreeing to increase the price of cement.

Three of the government's cases are lawsuits, and the fourth is a federal trade commission complaint against the Cement Institute. The general theme is to prove that the suspected industries arranged to kill competition and then kite prices.

The Argument The reason the government is going into action just now is that high prices in basic industries are being blamed for scaring investors out, and the building industry has failed to take its rightful place at the head of the recovery parade. All the companies deny, of course, that they are violating the laws that have been passed to assure competition in American business. The companies insist they are interested first in giving more and better quality and service to the public. They believe they cannot do this unless they get together and prescribe fair trade practices or arrange to avoid the vast waste of cut-throat competition.

The government's chief trust-buster is hard-hitting Robert H. Jackson, erstwhile small-town lawyer from Jamestown, N. Y. His boss is Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

Both argue, however, that the federal rules of the business game are obsolete, a patchwork, a push-over for fast-thinking corporation lawyers. These rules are: 1. The Sherman anti-trust law of 1890. 2. The Clayton anti-trust law of 1914. 3. The Federal Trade Commission act of 1914. 4. The Robinson-Patman law of 1936 to protect small business men from chain competition.

Jackson says the rub is that all of these laws tell business vaguely what it cannot do and that courts have a tough time interpreting them.

Hence the complaint of Myron H. Taylor, until recently the head of United States Steel, that business can't figure out what the government will prohibit next: that business wants to know what it CAN do in the way of planning for the future.

The answer? Business has not found an acceptable recipe. The President wants congress to study the problem, but meanwhile he has told the Federal Trade Commission to find out what's keeping basic prices up in the heavy industries.

Both Jackson and Cummings have dropped broad hints in recent public addresses for exploring the idea of issuing federal licenses or incorporation papers to big corporations whose business goes across state lines. That all-time trust-buster, Senator William E. Borah, and a younger, aggressive Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney have already proposed to license "big business" and put all the rules of the game in the license paper.

"Never doubt," says O'Mahoney, "it's the only way to solve this problem. It was the only way back in 1900, and it's the only way now. It will give us an economic constitution. We need such a document now as badly as we needed a political constitution at the end of the Revolutionary war."

Maybe that's the answer. Maybe it isn't.

Some of the many applications for loans filed with it by North Carolina co-ops or by private power companies.

Best marks on the recent nurses' examination were made by Margaret Lois Peale and Virginia Bennett McDavid, both from Duke University hospital, Durham.

Grades above 90 were made by 30 of the applicants out of a total of 285 who took the examination.

More than 200 newspapers in other states, from Maine to California printed a picture of a North Carolina waterfall sent out by the news bureau of the Division of State Advertising, according to Bill Sharpe, manager of the bureau.

More than 50 papers, in 22 states the District of Columbia and Canada printed pictures of fawns or deer in the Pisgah National forest sent out in connection with the Pisgah Forest deer hunt, while some 40 additional papers carried stories about the hunt.

Extension Division Proving Popular In State

Raleigh, Dec. 15.—A research study made by E. W. Ruggles, director of the College Extension Division of State College, revealed that, over a period of 13 1/2 years the extension division has been in operation, a total of 32,227 students have enrolled in the extension classes, short courses, and correspondence courses offered.

The best year for the extension classes was 1935 to 1937, when 2,585 students enrolled. 1927-28 was the best year for the correspondence class, with an enrollment of 2,798. Maximum enrollment for the short course class was 489, during 1925-26. Enrollment at the end of the fall term, from July 1 to the present date came to a total of 1,495 for the three divisions. Of this number 801 are enrolled in the extension classes, 134 in the short courses, and 560 in the correspondence courses.

Extension classes are conducted in English, history, science, economics, and engineering subjects, among others. Located in 20 Eastern North Carolina counties, the classes are composed mostly of school teachers desirous of furthering their training.

Students enrolled in correspondence courses represent over 24 different states and at least four foreign countries. This year, however, the foreign enrollment is considerably lower. Ceramic courses by correspondence proved the most popular, attracting students mainly from the British Empire—and representing almost every section of Great Britain. In 1932, there were students taking ceramic correspondence courses in Scotland, England, Irish Free State, Canada, South Africa, Australia and India. That same year students in 28 different states in the United States were taking the ceramic courses, corresponding from California, Florida, Maine, Pennsylvania, Georgia, among the group.

CONVICTS OVERCOME AFTER ATTEMPTED BREAK

Completely overcome by tear gas, these convicts are shown piled in the center of a circle of officers after they failed in an attempted prison break from the South Carolina State Penitentiary at Columbia. The prisoners barricaded themselves inside an office and turned a deaf ear to Gov. Olin D. Johnston who pleaded with them for over two hours to give themselves up. Finally the governor ordered National Guardsmen to release the tear gas bombs. The prisoners were subdued, but not until after they had killed their hostage, Captain Olin Sanders, by stabbing him to death.

Baugh Trails Passing Parade!

By DILLON GRAHAM
(AP Feature Service Writer)
New York — This is guaranteed to surprise you: Several college forward passers have better averages this season than Sammy Baugh, the Washington Redskins ace pitcher.

The professional rookie star of the year, Baugh established a new National league record for completions. He threw 171 and connected with 81 for a 47.3 average. His tosses gained 1,127 yards. Bob Monnett of the Green Bay Packers had the best pro average with 37 of 73 for 50.5, while Ed Danowski of the New York Giants was just behind with 66 of 134 for 49.2. But the college ranks can offer better batting averages than these. Joe Coyle of Oregon State, just about tops among the undergraduates, set a 54.1 mark. He completed 39 of 72 for 42.8 yards. His biggest day was against Southern California when he made good 16 of 22. Columbia's Sid Luckman flung 184 and hit his target with 84 for a 51.2 figure. Sid likely had few rivals in aerial yardage, for his tosses covered 1,069 yards. If there's anyone who threw more passes than Dave O'Brien he hasn't been identified yet. The Texas Christian sharpshooter, Baugh's successor, pegged more than 220 and completed about a third of them. The Southwest conference produced several crack passers—Lewis Gray of Texas, Ernie Lain of Rice, Bob Patterson of Baylor, and Jack Robbins and Dwight Sloan of Arkansas. Gray and Lain had averages of around 50, while Patterson's tosses gained more than 1,000 yards. The Arkansas pair collected more than 1,600 yards between them. Pro football adherents have long argued that their game—in which passes may be thrown from any spot—has it all over the college brand, where tossers must remain five yards back of scrimmage. It's been part of their thesis that this brought a more open game, spread the secondary defense for more pass completions and accelerated running attacks. All this is quite true. But—top college throwers, despite their 5-yard barrier handicap, turned in better averages.

PRO PASSER
Sammy Baugh of Washington (N. 33, left) tosses a pass against New York. The throw gained 12 yards. Other players shown include Ray Hanken, Giants (37); and Cliff Battles, Redskins (28). Surprisingly, Baugh's average was below that of some other stars, but his heaves were good for a total gain of 1,127 yards during the season.

AMATEUR PASSER
Sidney Luckman of Columbia (extreme left) tosses a pass against Army. The play gained 6 yards. Oscar Benom (lower right) is about to catch the ball. Army men rushed Luckman too late on the play. Bunt Army won the game, at West Point, 21-18. Luckman's average was 39 percentage points better than Baugh's. And Luckman's aerials gained 1,069 yards over the season.

POINSETTAS MAY BE KEPT FREELY DURING HOLIDAYS

Raleigh, Dec. 14 — Poinsettias, lovely Christmas plants of green and red, can be preserved during the winter by following a few simple rules, according to Dr. Jane S. McKimmon of State College.

Being of a semi-tropical nature the poinsettia requires warmth and humidity, therefore, when taken into the average dwelling, the plant should not be left where the temperature goes below 60 degrees at night.

"Place the plant in a sunny window, and put the pot in a saucer of damp moss," Dr. McKimmon said. "Water regularly, twice a day if necessary; and if the air is dry sprinkle the top daily. A pinch of balanced plant food should be applied every two weeks."

If cared for properly, a poinsettia will remain presentable all through January. After that the plant enters the dormant stage, and the leaves begin to fall.

Dr. McKimmon declared that at this period the soil should be allowed to dry off gradually. Then, she said, place the plant, pot and all, on its side on the basement floor. To all appearances it will seem dead after drying up.

In late April or early May, the poinsettia should be repotted, using rich soil to which has been added one half teaspoon of plant food per quart of soil. Dr. McKimmon advised a piece of charcoal placed in the bottom of the pot will keep the soil sweet.

All old dirt should be washed from the roots of the plant and the stems cut back to a height of 4 to 8 inches one or two joints above the soil. After danger of frost is over, the plant can be removed from the house and sunk in a semi-shaded spot in the garden, pot and all.

4-H MEMBERS SEEK LEARNING

Survey Finds 53 Per Cent Of Members Enter College

Smithfield, Dec. 14 — Johnston County 4-H club members believe in higher education. S. C. Winchester, assistant county agent of the State College extension service, revealed today.

In a survey, he found that 53.5 per cent of all 4-H club boys and girls in the county graduating from high school have entered college.

Whereas only 20 per cent of all high school graduates in the county enter college, according to information gathered from school superintendents.

Winchester said the increased desire of 4-H club members to go to college is due in part to the various club contests over the state in which college scholarships are awarded the winners.

He also said that in club work the aim is not only to teach boys and girls things they need to know on the farm, but also to awaken in them an interest in getting a well rounded education.

"The mark of an educated man is not one who has merely stored a certain amount of knowledge in his head, but rather a person who has developed an inquiring mind with a desire to learn more about the important things in life," Winchester added.

"In this respect, we feel that club work is eminently worth while, and this means even more than the fact that a boy in his club project may grow more corn per acre than his father does."

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York — The man with the strangest job in New York is the snowman who lives across the street from Madison Square Garden. He is "Joe the Snowman" and his job is to create tons of bright glistening snow every day for the ski jumps and snowshoe mushers in the Garden. Joe accomplishes his task with a weird contraption that seems a cross "between a cocktail shaker and a concrete mixer. Every hour huge blocks of ice are ground into powdery white snow. A special telephone leads to his rooms, and at a moment's notice he ducks across the street and refurnishes the Alpine effect under the canopy of the Garden.

The chic and capable young woman smiling for Europe tonight is Katharine Cornell. She is going to spend the next several weeks on the continent with her husband, Guthrie McClintic, in an effort to determine whether a contemplated world tour is advisable at this time. Miss Cornell is the actress whose emissary, Ray Henderson, was killed in Greece a short while ago.

The most unpredictable persons are book dealers. Walter Hart Blumenthal is such a person and he has prepared a list of books for a dealer's catalogue with the oddest subtitles (coined by himself). Here are a few of them: Van Loen's "Story of Mankind"—Half Sheep... Edith Wharton's "Age of Innocence"—Half Cat... James Whitcomb Riley's "Old Swimming Hole"—Undressed Kid... Browne's "Every Woman"—Curious... Canfield's "The Bent Twig"—Several Leaves Missing... Stokes' "Married Love"—Rare in this state... Weyl's "Tired Radicals"—Imitation Russia. J. M. Josephberg points out that a rainbow division of Manhattan orchestras could easily be worked out if color in names meant anything. For instance: Glen Gray, Johnny Green, Frank Black, Blue Barron, Paul Whiteman and Don Redman.

The gags this week aren't any better than last week's, but here they are:

Ernie Holst: "The less principle a girl has the more interest she draws."

Oswald Bradley: "Did you hear about the producer who put a girl in a full length picture because she looked good in shorts?"

Buddy Clark: "I know a young lady who makes money every time she lifts a finger—she's a manicurist."

Billy Rose has taken up quarters in the St. Moritz after his decision to take over the French Casino. His next door neighbor is Jacques Charles, the French producer who fashioned that big revue at the International Casino. An ironic note is that this latter show is credited with being the straw that broke the Casino's back.

Real-Life Santa Again Do Their Bit To Keep Christmas Fairy Tale Alive

(By The AP Feature Service)

In a sophisticated world where children learn all too soon that Santa Claus is only Dad with a pillow under his belt, real-life Santas here and there sustain faith in the jolly old man with the long white beard.

One is Policeman Jesse Stribling of Atlanta who recovered from a serious illness just in time to carry on his annual custom of selling candy to buy gifts for unfortunates of his city.

He is shown at right with his helper, 9-year-old Bernard Blackwell, mascot of the Atlanta police force. Bernard, who regularly answers roll call and patrols a beat with Stribling, recently received an official five-year service chevron from the department.

Two other real-life Santas are shown below.

The House Judiciary Committee meanwhile called off hearings on a measure requiring a national referendum before any war could be declared.

Chairman Summers (D-Tex.) pointed out that by signing a petition members had ordered direct House action on that resolution. He said the committee "decided under all the circumstances it would not at this time proceed with hearings."

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Rallying tendencies pushed leaders ahead fractions to a point or more in today's stock market.

Buying was not in any great quantity, but was sufficiently sustained to cover offerings easily. Tax switching provided the main selling sources.

nesday one hundred colored children will receive the same courtesies. This is a service which should continue to grow until it reaches the place where it serves as a Christmas clearing point for this sort of community work.

That there may be the greatest possible service rendered to those in need, it is suggested that all organizations planning to help provide Christmas cheer for these children who otherwise might be neglected cooperate in this community project by sending in the names of the children whom they would like helped to Mrs. J. H. B. Moore or to the Thrift Shop, sending also their contributions for this work. This will serve to eliminate duplication and insure the largest possible number of people being reached. The cooperation already being received from civic clubs, women's clubs, churches, Community Chest and individuals insures a fine service to the com-
