NEW SPENDING SUGGESTED AS BUSINESS AID

Support of Move Develops Among Congressmen

SENATOR BAILEY ONE OF AUTHORS

Some Anti-Administration Senators As Well as Supporters Favor Program

Washington, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Strong support has developed in Congress, a survey showed today, for resumption of government spending on a modified scale in an attempt to spur business activity.

Some anti-administration senators, as well as some Roosevelt supporters, said they believed new spending must start in January or February, but there was a difference of opinion as to whether it should be of the "pump priming" type.

Several senators disclosed they had been urged to sign a public statement advocating a 10-point program to stop the business recession.

Senator Bailey (D. N. C.) said today he was one of the authors of the final editor of the statement.

The North Carolina senator, acknowledging participation in drafting the document which was headed "Recommendations to the People of the United States," said several had hoped it would be agreed to by senators and the public generally as a program to restore confidence.

The steps suggested were revision of business taxes, approach toward a balanced budget, "just relations between capital and labor," reliance on profitable investments of private savings, recognition of the profit motive and superiority of the competitive system, assurance of the safety of collateral, reduction in the general tax burden, maintenance of state's rights, economical and non-political distribution of relief and preservation of the American system of private enterprise.

"There was a general feeling in the senate," Bailey said, "that there ought to be an understanding between each other on what should be done about the business recession. Nobody, however has been authorized or detailed to frame a platform."

Rep. Dudley A. White (left), Ohio Republican, last of the necessary 218 to sign, is shown affixing his signature to the petition. Rep. Louis Ludlow (right) of Indiana, a Democrat, is author of the amendment.

SENATE VOTES DOWN SUB FOR LINT PROGRAM

Refuses to Substitute Domestic Allotment Proposal

WALLACE SCORED ON HOUSE FLOOR

Sen. Bailey of North Carolina "Thanks" Secretary of Agriculture for Warning

Washington, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The Senate refused today to substitute a domestic allotment cotton program for the compulsory cotton section of the "ever-normal granary" bill.

It rejected a substitute offered by Lee (D. Okla.) in a roll call vote 56 to 26.

Previously statements credited to Secretary Wallace regarding farm bill proposals drew caustic comment on the senate floor in continued debate on the ever-normal granary bill.

"I was amazed that the Secretary of Agriculture in this morning's paper said a two-priced system on farm crops would lead us into Fascism," said Senator Russell (D. Ga.).

Russell took the floor to support the substitute cotton plan, introduced by Senator Lee. This measure designed to pay the farmer a higher price for domestically consumed cotton than that which moved into world trade, apparently was the bill at which Wallace's remarks were directed.

Senator Bailey read from a news paper statements about the less substitute plan attributed to Wallace and saying its licensing of business would be "a step toward Fascism or autocracy and so forth."

"I thank the Secretary of Agriculture for his warning," Bailey said. "Some time ago there was a protest against the radicalism of the Secretary of agriculture. Now Mr. Wallace is the one who is publicly warning us."

To Probe Reports On Hoover's Crew

Washington, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The Senate joint Maritime committee ordered today an investigation into reports that the crew of the Dollar Line, President Hoover, became drunk and terrorized women and children passengers after the ship ran aground near Formosa last Friday.

Chairman Copeland (D-N.Y.), said the American consul at Manila, where 134 of the rescued passengers landed, would be asked to transmit a report on the incident.

He said the report would be made to the State Department, transmitted to the Maritime commission, and then turned over to the committee for further investigation.

Both the county and city schools have operated the first half of the 1937-38 term without any interruptions on account of bad weather.

Announcement was made today that the court-house offices would close at noon Friday, December 24 for the Christmas holiday. City officials have made no announcement as to what time offices would be closed, but they, too, possibly will be closed Friday at noon.

State Presses Its Fight On Tuckertown Decision

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Dec. 16.—The Federal Power Commission has received petitions from the Carolina Aluminum Company and from the State of North Carolina asking for a rehearing in the now-famous Tuckertown case.

Notice of receipt of the state's petition was sent the Attorney General's office here by the commission, which, under the law has thirty days in which to act before the matter can be taken before a Federal Court.

North Carolina's intervention in the case and its petition for a rehearing are based on the contention that the "arbitrary" findings of the Commission will deter the company from proceeding with the Tuckertown project to the detriment of the state of North Carolina.

The aluminum company's and state's contentions have been frequently stated in brief, North Carolina's objections to the decisions, as set forth in its petition for the rehearing follow:

"1 The commission erred in finding that the interests of interstate or foreign commerce would be affected by the Tuckertown project.

A. The undisputed testimony showed that the Yadkin-Pee Dee River is not navigable in the vicinity of the proposed Tuckertown plant and any finding by the commission that the Tuckertown project is to be located on navigable waters of the United States is arbitrary, in direct contradiction of the testimony and unsupported by any evidence whatsoever.

B. The undisputed testimony showed that the Tuckertown project could not, under any system of operation, have any measurable effect upon the navigable capacity of the navigable section of the Yadkin Pee Dee river, and the finding of the commission that the (Continued on page four)

JAPANESE PROMPT IN PUNISHING OFFICER FOR BOMBING VESSEL

Japanese Blue Jack-ets to Honor Victims of Bombing

TO FIRE SALUTE AT ATTACK SITE

Nipponese Sailors Collecting Sum of Money to Turn Over To U. S. Navy

Tokyo, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The Japanese Navy Ministry announced today that a company of Blue Jackets would be detailed to honor the victims of the Panay bombing at the spot on the Yangtze river where they were killed.

The formal naval salute will be an unprecedented gesture which authorities said was the highest possible voluntary tribute of one nation to another.

An American seaman and an Italian newspaperman were killed last Sunday when Japanese aerial bombers rained explosives on the Panay about 20 miles up river from Nanking. The captain of a Standard Oil vessel which was nearby at the time also was killed.

Authoritative sources said the planned salute was not connected with the American protests against the attacks.

The admiralty issued a statement reiterating Japanese regret over the incident. It was announced also that sailors of the Japanese Third fleet were collecting 5,000 yen ($1,400) to be contributed to the United States navy.

Woolworth Stores Employees Strike

New York, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Employees of three Woolworth five-and-ten cent stores went on strike today following a breakdown of negotiations between union representatives and the company for higher wages and shorter hours.

Miss Clarine Michelson, organizer for the department store employees union, said about 160 persons quit work. She said pickets had been placed in front of all other Woolworth stores in New York City.

Union officials had hoped to confer with Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, the former Barbara Hutton, regarding the strike, but she was bound for Europe.

Miss Michelson said a general strike was not contemplated at this time.

The Woolworth employees seek a $21 a week minimum wage, a 40-hour week, preferential shop and no more than eight consecutive hours of labor in one day.

Says 'No Mistake'

Jim Marshall (above), Collier's Magazine's far eastern correspondent, who was severely wounded in the bombing and singing of the United States gunboat Panay, reached Shanghai with a story of the attack in which he discredited the theory Japanese airmen mistook the vessel for a Chinese craft. "They came so low it was impossible for them not to know the Panay was a foreign ship," he said.

Commander Aerial Operations Relieved of Position

WARFARE MOVES INTO INTERIOR

Japanese Officials Announce Embassy Building in Nanking Not Damaged

Shanghai, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Teizo Mitsuami, chief of Japanese naval aerial operations, was relieved of his post today as a result of the bombing of the United States gunboat Panay.

Domei (Japanese) news agency declared the Japanese government was acting swiftly to carry out its pledge to America to punish officers responsible for the attack.

It was explained that Mitsunami was recalled because most bombardments in China had been carried out by naval planes.

The Rear Admiral was ordered to go to Tokyo, but Japanese authorities here did not know what other action he faced.

During the day Japanese army planes carried the warfare into the interior with a series of attacks. Three columns of Japanese shock troops advancing northward from a point between Shanghai and Nanking entered heretofore quiet country side.

One column advancing along the ancient Grand Canal threatened a number of rich populous towns.

Japanese officials announced that the American Embassy building and other Embassy and legation headquarters at Nanking were not damaged in the attacks on the city. All Americans and foreigners who remained there were reported safe.

First American to report on conditions at Nanking was Arthur Menken, Paramount newsreel cameraman who went through the attack. He wirelessly that "Nanking is a Shambles".

"Except for the efforts of three American missionaries the wounded were not cared for," he said.

Appointment By Hoey Is Pleasing to Graham Forces

Selection of J. Benton Stacy as Division of Purchase and Contract Head Comes as Surprise.

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Dec. 16.—Sandy Graham supporters are pleased, though more than mildly surprised, at the appointment of State Senator J. Benton Stacy to be director of the division of purchase and contract.

So many juicy political plums had fallen into the laps, mouths, or whatever portion of anatomy such plums fall into, of "original" Hoey men that the Grahamites had about given up hope of ever receiving even a nod of recognition from Governor Clyde R. Hoey.

Almost to a man they went to bat for Senator Stacy, but right up to the last minute they felt they were wasting their efforts in a lost cause. They pictured the $6,000 job in possession of another who picked the gubernatorial winner even before the first primary last year.

As a matter of fact there are many indications that Governor Hoey had every intention to appoint somebody else until almost the eleventh hour. There is more than a mere modicum of evidence to support the idea that he even went so far as to offer the post to Charlotte's City Manager Marshall.

These gifts were taken from a tree by the hearth, and were much appropriate and mirth provoking.

Good nights were reluctantly said to the hostesses of the most unusual and enjoyable party of recent club history.

REIGELS RUN TOPS BREAKISH GRID PLAYS

Berkeley (AP)—The most freakish play in California football history was the most famous wrong-direction run of Roy Reigel, center in the 1928 Rose Bowl game with Georgia Tech.

Scoping up a fumble on the Georgians 25-yard line Reigel became confused and raced 75 yards toward his own goal before he was stopped by one of his own men on California's one-foot line.

A block of Benny Lom's attempted punt from this position gave Georgia Tech a safety and the game, 8-7.

Pensions

What is the meaning of this pension appropriation of one hundred and forty one millions of dollars of the hard earned dollars of the people?

As there are 975,000 pensioners, one family in every 14 in the country is largely supported by a collection of $2 from each member of the other 13 families.

There never was a more gigantic fraud known among American people than this pension business. The very idea of the government now paying pensions a third of a century after war ended to almost as many people as were in the entire Federal Army is a palpable fraud, a disgrace to our nation. There are some pensioners, of course, who are entitled to what they draw from the Government but the great majority of them on the list have no

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—Brian Aherne's theory is that an actor this side of 40 can't contribute much in the way of a performance, because he hasn't learned enough about acting.

Barbara O'Neil (the gracious young mother of "Stella Dallas") offers her own variant on that: "When I'm 30 I'll know enough to be an ingenue."

Twenty-seven now, in "Everybody Was Very Nice" she has Wayne Morris as a 25-year-old son. "Three more years," says she, "and I'll be an ingenue. By that time I'll know enough to play one."

Narrow Escape

Fame has its perils along with its rewards. Sidney Blackmer was driving east recently to appear in a stage play. On an ice-covered highway near Cambridge, Ohio, his car skidded on the frozen road, did whirligigs, and crashed through a guard railing, its rear end balanced precariously over a 150-foot ravine.

A state highway patrolman stopped his motorcycle and offered aid. Blackmer and the officer were using a long pole as a lever to swing the vehicle back on the pavement again. In the midst of the swing the patrolman dropped the pole in surprise. "Aren't you Sidney Blackmer, the actor?"

"Yes," said Blackmer, "but grab this lever quick before I'm killed!" They got the car back and Blackmer gave his autograph in one suspect, a jittery scrawl.

In "Headline Huntress" Gloria Stuart wears a fox fur coat reputedly valued at $1,500—but she is beginning to have some doubts about it. In a number of scenes she appears with Rex, a tiny mongrel dog. Every time she walks into the scene, Rex leaps for the coat and clamps his teeth on hard.

"I've never been able to break Rex of the urge to hunt rabbits," remarked his master Henry East—perhaps relevantly, although Gloria isn't sure.

DARE TO DREAM

The Characters
 Nelda, a beautiful, courageous girl, with dark eyes and hair, is forced to sacrifice her personal ambitions, and run a ranch.
 Bill is a tanned, blue-eyed, lettuce farmer. Sparks fly when he and Nelda meet.
 Reck, blond, gay and dashing, is a wealthy neighbor.
 Mrs. Reckless, Reck's cold and arrogant mother, subtly warns Nelda that Reck is not for her.
 Leila, Nelda's selfish sister-in-law.

Chapter Nine New Friends

NELDA'S land was plowed. The lettuce was planted in long, symmetrical rows. Each time she looked out at the vast level stretch of ground she had a sense of unreality. Was it possible that she was actually running a farm? Involved with soil and seed and an unsmiling young man in blue jeans who came to turn up the damp earth?

Yet there were times when she felt Bill was laughing at her. But he really wasn't. It was just some trick of expression in his deep blue eyes.

Nelda's meeting with Manuel, the 12-year-old son of the Moresi family, occurred one morning when she was returning from town. The boy was in the shade, beating a small white dog. She threw on her brakes.

"Stop that!" she commanded.

"Sez who?" the boy returned impudently.

She was out of the roadster in a flash, her eyes blazing.

"If you don't stop I'll give you a taste of what you're giving that pup!" she threatened.

"You and who else?"

Realizing that anger wouldn't get her anywhere with the lad, Nelda changed her tactics.

"Do you belong to the Boy Scouts?" she inquired sweetly and saw the boy's face light up.

"No; but I'm gonna some day."

"They won't take you in if they find out you are cruel to animals."

Alarm appeared in the boy's black eyes.

"You ain't gonna tell 'em, are you?"

"Not if you promise you won't do it again. You know Boy Scouts are supposed to do good deeds."

The boy's eyes dropped in shame.

"I never thought of that. I won't do it again. Honest." By way of proof he patted the dog. "Nice Rover."

"See," Nelda exclaimed, "you've made him happy. If you keep on being nice to him I'll help you get into the Boy Scouts."

"Gee!" was all he could say, but it carried a wealth of gratitude.

One day when Nelda was having her car serviced at a roadside station near the rancho a gray sedan with a young man and woman in it stopped abreast of her. Her instant reaction was, "I'd like to know those people!"

There was a clean, vital look about them. The woman—she appeared to be about 25 or 26—had a mop of red hair and alert blue-gray eyes. The man was tall and broad-shouldered. They returned Nelda's gaze frankly.

"Aren't you Miss Barrie?" the woman blurted out.

Nelda nodded.

"We're the Powells." The woman laughed. That laugh was like a gay banner flung open. "I'm Doris and this hunk of fine-looking masculinity is my husband—Squire Ray Powell."

"With that introduction I suppose we should consider ourselves acquainted," Ray said, smiling.

"We have the same Alma Mater," Doris cut in.

"Stanford!" exclaimed Nelda.

"Class of '36," Doris replied and added, "We live about two miles the other side of your place."

"You're farmers!" Nelda exclaimed incredulously, her glance taking in Doris's creamy skin, her slender, shapely hands, her smart suit.

"And how!" This from Ray. "We love it because we can breathe out here with all this land around us."

Nelda continued to stare at them. Stanford graduates? And they acted as if they were enchanted with living on a farm.

"We raise lettuce and tomatoes!" Again Doris's musical laugh accompanied her words.

Before she drove out of the station Nelda had accepted an invitation to play bridge at the Powell home some night soon.

Home For The Holidays

CHRISTMAS was only a week off. Jack came home for the holidays and Nelda met him at the bus station in Watsonville. The pride she felt in him when he alighted from the stage, tall, dark and striking-looking, gave way to fear when she took a second look. Instinctively, she knew that something was terribly wrong.

His boyish exuberance was gone; there was a dullness in his dark eyes. His greeting was not the happy, "Hi, Relative!" of his former homecomings but a brief, "How are you, Sis?"

When they were riding along the highway she asked, "What's the matter, Jack?"

"I don't see any use in my going on at med school."

"Why not?" She tried to speak lightly, hoping to hide her dismay over his sudden announcement.

"Well, for one thing I hate to have you leaning over backward to give me all the advantages."

"Who says I'm giving you all the advantages?"

"Leila is not exactly reticent as to family affairs. Besides, it's going to take money for me to go on for another four years. His eyes, dark and fine as her own, were clouded.

"We'll manage some way. Buddy." It was her childhood name for him. She loved this serious young brother dearly and wanted the best in life for him.

"I need a microscope. Where are we going to dig up 200 bucks for that?"

"We'll manage," she faltered, with a stricken look. She knew there were other costly instruments that would follow the microscope. Tears rushed to her eyes, but she checked them and added, "When we get to the house we'll talk it over."

He was taking their new life even harder than she was, she thought dismally and resolved not to let him divine her own rebellion.

"We're taking our loss as if it's news!" she said airily.

"You've got to admit it was spectacular," he countered with a wry grin. "Flames against the sky and all that." She made no reply and he went on, "You can't be torn up by the roots as we were and not have some bad reaction."

"Are you telling me?" was what she thought, but she said, "Guess we're seeing life, Jack."

"I know you think I'm dramatizing myself, but I'm not. You know that money and position are the safeguards upon which our lives were started and—"

SANTA WHITE FOX

BY SIGRID ARNE

The story so far: the North Star has promised to help a sailor doll in his search for the den of the white fox where Helga, a doll, is held prisoner. Traveling with the sailor is a squirrel no bigger than a house fly.

Chapter 16 Into The Den!

As the North Star searched for the home of the white fox he was almost as confused as you or I would have been. He looked down from the sky and all he could see was snow and Christmas trees.

When he saw a tree fairy he signaled her by blinking his one eye very brightly, and saying, "Have you seen the white fox around with a doll?"

"Oh, hello," said the fairy. "No, I didn't see him, but I heard he passed here with a doll in his mouth. He was headed west."

So the Star traveled on, waiting around in the sky for the West Wind that came by very soon.

"Say, have you seen the white fox and a doll?" asked the Star.

"Sure, follow me," said the West Wind and he flew across the sky and swooped down around the mountain top where the white fox lived. "In there," said the West Wind.

The North Star looked down and soon he saw one of the little black moles come out wearing a white apron. She brushed off the stoop and went in again. Then he saw the white fox who stepped out, sniffed the air, and went back in.

The Squirrel Creeps

"Ho, ho, I'll rush back and tell sailor," said the Star. He found the sailor playing with the tiny tiny squirrel. "Follow me," he called.

In an hour they had come to the fox's mountain. The sailor didn't see a soul. So he sat down on a pile of fir cones to think.

"How about my creeping in there?" asked the squirrel no bigger than a house fly.

"Have you the courage?" asked the sailor.

"It doesn't take courage," said the squirrel. "I won't see me."

So the sailor set the tiny squirrel in the snow and watched him scamper into the white fox den. He was gone for a long time and then he rushed back to the sailor with his eyes fairly popping.

They're in there, and the doll looks very unhappy," he said.

Quite A Curiosity

"We've got to go in," said the sailor. "Going with me?"

"Certainly," said the squirrel. They walked up to the fox's door, and the sailor shouted, "Aho, there. Anyone home?" They heard "clump, clump" coming toward them. Then they saw two red eyes and the white fox stood before them saying, "What do you want?"

"To meet you," grinned the sailor. "We've heard you're the finest white fox in the North."

The white fox grinned very pleased and said, "Who do you mean by we?"

"Me and the squirrel," said the sailor, and he held out the tiny squirrel no bigger than a house fly.

"I declare," said the fox. "That's quite a curiosity. Come in."

So the two went in. Think how brave they were!

Tomorrow: Poor Helga.

All 4-H Club presidents are asked to meet in the Negro County agents office Saturday, December 12, at 10 o'clock to talk over plans for the new year. The meeting will last one hour.

As we cut holly and Christmas trees the agents is asking that we remember to not cut those growing by the side of the road. Be careful how you do any way some things can be done during the Christmas season that we will regret ever after. Watch where you throw your fire works, they will set fire to straw fields and destroy valuable timber. In all that is done remember the unfortunate.

The Christmas season offers an opportunity for mankind to express to those who live with him a love that is alive in his heart. Christ came at Christmas time to give, He gave his life for us. Follow His path.

Let each club boy and girl, each farmer and wife help the ones next to you, and it will be gratifying to know the good that can be done.

More apples were raised this year than we have had in several years. The markets are still laden with them the agent is asking the farm wives who did not have time to can during summer, to fill their jars now. The prices are still low on apples.

This property will be sold subject to 1937 taxes.

The purchaser at this sale will be required to make a cash deposit of 5 per cent of the purchase price to show good faith.

Will you help some needy family for Christmas? A list of Christmas Opportunities appears elsewhere in this paper and if you can and will help one of these families, call the Thrift Shop, phone 1009-J, at once. If you feel that you cannot take care of the entire needs of one of these families you can give a part of the articles needed or make a cash donation to help take care of same. The entire matter will be handled through the Thrift Shop and any donations made will be spent to the best advantage. We are sure that our people will see to it that these and other needy families of this community will have much to make them happier at Christmas.

According to reports from authoritative sources, several thousand dollars are leaving this county every day for purchases from mail order houses. This is business that should to a great extent remain in Greenville and it is up to our merchants to get busy and keep this business at home. Greenville is the logical shopping center of this section and we believe our merchants by consistent advertising, backed up by service to the public, can do a lot to have this money spent in Greenville instead of with the mail order houses. We likewise urge our citizens who are patronize the mail order houses, to look over the stocks of the local stores and compare values before sending their money to the mail order houses. The great part of the money spent with the local stores remains here to develop local business and our city and county in general.

 Christmas shopping is daily growing more difficult both for the clerk and the shopper. I haven't a perfect solution for the difficulty but here is a suggestion which, if adopted, will minimize the difficulty.
 All shoppers can be divided into two classes—one whose time is her own the other, whose time is "the boss's". The first can shop when she wants to; the second, only at the lunch hour or after office hours. I wonder if the shopper whose time is her own i. e. the girl of leisure and the housewife, wouldn't be shopping during office hours, give us poor working girls a break!
 It is the congestion at the shopping counter, everybody impatient to be waited on at once, that frays the nerves of both the clerk and the shopper.
 "Stagger shopping" or shopping in relays as here suggested would give more time to all shoppers to make selections and, in addition, materially lighten the burden of the weary clerk. Shopper of leisure Have a heart!

Merry Christmas!
 A WORKING GIRL.

SHORT SHOTS

Raleigh, Dec. 16—All health officials of North Carolina "no could get away from their local jobs are gathered here today for an all-day session at which talks are scheduled to be made on almost every angle of health work in the state.
 Dr. Carl V. Reynolds, state health officer, called the session to order, and started it off on the long grind.

Governor Clyde R. Hoey has been placed on the mailing list of Aimee Sample McPherson's "Four-square Crusader."
 "Bob" Thompson, the Governor's secretary, once was a member of a group of reporters who greeted Aimee as she returned from a voyage abroad. He says the Angelus temple head as more "T" than Clara Bow. Bob probably had the Governor placed on the list.

Major Arthur Fuik was out of his office Wednesday, victim of a very heavy cold. Fuik corresponded wanted to ask him to comment on the broadside loosed against the Highway Patrol by Wilmington's Mayor Tom Cooper.

Don't expect any more news out of the Department of Agriculture before the first of the new year. Louis H. Wilson, popular publications chief, leaped head first into the sea of matrimony last night and will be on his honeymoon for the next two weeks.

J. M. Grainger, engineer for the State Rural Electrification Authority, is leaving Friday for a trip on which he will visit all municipalities in the east which operate power plants. He wants data for an annual report.

The elevator in the Agriculture Building emulated the merry go round of musical fame Wednesday. It broke down.

In doing so it scared the Negro woman who operates it so bad she can now pass as Caucasian. She "conducted" if that's what one does the elevator down to the basement and was about to get out when all of a sudden the hinge took matters into its own hands and without any aid or suggestion on the part of the operator proceeded rapidly to the fifth floor, stopping only because there was no higher levels.

Three Rural Electrification officials, Dudley Bagley, director, J. M. Grainger, engineer, and David Weaver, secretary, are planning to make a series of predictions on the progress of rural electrification during the next two years.

They plan to put their forecasts away and not open them until expiration of the two year period. Then they'll compare predictions with progress, worst guesser to buy three fine dinners.

State Senator John D. Larkins, of Jones County, was in Raleigh Wednesday seeking a parole for one of his clients.

The senator was a staunch Sandy Graham supporter in the 1936 gubernatorial primary and had a friend, John Harmon, now of Durham, working in Sandy's headquarters here. Mr. Harmon talked so much about Senator Larkins and Jones county that he got everybody in the place all mixed up to the point where they couldn't figure out whether it was Senator Jones of Larkin county, or Senator Larkins of Jones County.

Prominent advertisements of North Carolina appear in current issues of the Manufacturers Record and the National Golf Review. The Record ad is so placed opposite a Southeastern Governors ad that it looks like a two-page layout for the state.

Interests of interstate or foreign commerce would be affected by the Tuckertown project is, therefore, arbitrary, in direct contradiction of the testimony and unsupported by any evidence whatsoever.

C. The undisputed testimony showed that the present dams and hydro-electric plants upon the river would eliminate any possible theoretical effect that the Tuckertown project could have upon the stage of the water at any point in the course of the river. The finding of the commission was, therefore, arbitrary, in direct contradiction of the testimony and unsupported by any evidence whatsoever.

D. The undisputed testimony showed that in recent years the use of the Yadkin Pee Dee river for commercial purposes was negligible. There was no testimony that such commerce, negligible in amount, was interstate or foreign, or of any but a purely local nature. The finding of the commission is, therefore, speculative, conjectural and unsubstantiated by any evidence.

2. The Tuckertown project planned to be constructed on the Yadkin river, which has been held by the highest court of the State of North Carolina to be non-navigable (State vs. Tyre Glen, 52 N. C. 248; Cornelius vs. Tyre Glen, 50 N. C. 384). The control of non-navigable streams within a state is expressly reserved by the Constitution of the United States to the state, and the State of North Carolina, hereafter, has exclusive jurisdiction over the Yadkin river. The action of the federal Power Commission in assuming jurisdiction over the Tuckertown project, constitutes an invasion of the sovereign and proprietary rights of the State

CHORAL GROUP HEARD AT ETC

Rocky Mount School Students Put On Program Here

The choral speaking group of Rocky Mount High School, under the direction of C. M. Edson, teacher in the Rocky Mount High school, gave an interesting program at the college assembly Tuesday.
 This group of student interpreters of poems and prose passages, sometimes in unison, sometimes in solo and part work, greatly interested their college audience.
 They divided their program into three groups, a serious group, a group of lighter numbers, and a group of Christmas selections especially prepared for the occasion.
 Among the lighter pieces, the burlesque of psychology in "Lullaby in the Modern Manner" and the humor of "Whistle, Whistle, Old Wife" called out a great deal of laughter. However, the audience liked some of the more serious poems equally as well.
 The contrast between the excitement of the very rapid parts of Vachel Lindsay's "The Congo" and the slow and sonorous roll of his "Boonday, boonday, boonday boom" caught the fancy of the listeners.
 A poem showing the grinning skeleton beneath the glittering surface of war also was liked.
 One of the best numbers, to many listeners, at least was "Death and General Putnam," in which Death and the General each speak alone and a chorus supplies the necessary tissue of explanation.
 The Christmas group was a welcome reminder of the season.

of North Carolina in violation of the Constitution of the United States, particularly the Tenth Amendment thereto.
 3. The requirements of section 23 of the Federal Power Act are not applicable to head water developments of non-navigable streams, but apply only to locations where the stream is navigable in fact and in law. The Commission was, therefore, without jurisdiction to pass upon any questions involving the control of the Yadkin Pee Dee river in the non-navigable section in the vicinity of the Tuckertown project.

The State's petition is signed by Attorney General A. A. F. Seawell and Assistant Attorneys General Harry McMullan and W. Burton.

The director, C. M. Edson, and his well-trained choir are in demand throughout this section for programs of many types.

WAKE TO MAKE TOUR OF WEST

To Open Three-Game Series in Gastonia This Evening

Wake Forest, Dec. 16.—Wake Forest's basketball club, still smarting under the 52-38 defeat handed it by Roanoke College Monday night, will invade Western North Carolina Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, playing three strong semi-pro clubs.

The Deacons will open this three-game trip against the Grove Street Mill in Gastonia tonight. On Friday night, they move over to Winston-Salem to battle the strong Unique Furniture outfit, and they wind up their trip by meeting McCrory Mills in Asheboro Saturday night.

Jim Waller, Wake Forest's all-Southern forward last year, who was kept out of Monday's game with an injured ankle, will still be off the starting five, in this week's games, but it is hoped that he will be able to see part-time duty. His injury is coming along fine and Dr. George Mackie, team physician, reports Waller should be ready to see some action this week.

In Waller's absence, Coach Murray Greason is using Virgil Payne, a junior, at forward. The other forward post is occupied by Rex Carter, junior letterman, who was a regular last season.

Captain Stan Apple and Bill Sewell played the role against Roanoke at the guard positions, and their performance was entirely satisfactory. They will be in the starting roles again in the semi-pro games.

The contest against McCrory Saturday night will wind up the pre-holiday activities of the Deacon eagers. They will be dismissed from practice until December 29, when they return to begin work for their opening conference tilt against Duke January 7.

GRIFTON HIGH TO HOLD EVENT

Basketball Game To Feature Homecoming Affair

The second annual homecoming of the Grifton High School will be held Friday night at the Community building when the Grifton basketball team will meet the Pocatulus teams in a twin bill.

Starting time of the opening game, between the girls' teams, is 7:30.

Members of all classes since 1916, the first class to graduate in the present building, have been invited to the ceremony, which will be simple.

The roll call by classes and responses will take place between games. Honor classes will be 1917, 1927 and 1937.

Jimmie Carr, coach for the boys' team, and Principal H. C. Orjely are making plans for an interesting program, also an informal reception to be held following the games.

The public is cordially invited.

ervation and Development, among the visitors is Seth Gordon, executive director of the Pennsylvania Game Commission, and W. A. Shaffer, director of the bureau of protection.

Mr. Gordon is generally regarded as one of the outstanding authorities on game, wildlife and conservation in the United States and is credited with having made Pennsylvania more conservation minded and more interested in preserving and propagating its fish and game than almost any other state.

For several years he has cooperated with North Carolina in every possible way. He became interested several years ago in this state's program of conservation and propagation. Many North Carolina game laws and regulations have been patterned after those of Pennsylvania, either written or advocated by Mr. Gordon.

On arrival in the state Wednesday the Pennsylvania party went to Lake Mattamuskeet for shooting Thursday and Friday morning.

Friday afternoon and Saturday they will try their luck at bagging North Carolina quail.

For the quail shooting the Pennsylvanians will be joined by Corey Ford and Alesair MacBain, nationally known authors and writers of conservation and hunting stories.

Commissioner John D. Chalk, of the game and inland fish division is acting as host to the party during its stay in the state.

State Plays Host To Meet in Guilford

Greensboro, Dec. 15.—A second state-wide Girl Scout conference has been scheduled at Woman's College February 18-19, under the auspices of Woman's College and the Greensboro Girl Scout Council. Held last year for the first time, the conference was such a success that it had been requested again this year.

Approximately 200 Girl Scout leaders from all over the state are expected to attend. Miss Helen Oppenlander, Regional Scout Director of Atlanta, Ga., will be one of the principal speakers.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 16. (AP)—With steels well in front, leading stocks plodded into much higher territory in today's market.

While extreme gains running to three or more points were shaded near the fourth hour, selected issues gave ground grudgingly. Dealings were relatively slow after a fast opening.

Tax selling continued as an important market factor, but switching operations, purchasing of other stocks after establishing losses for income returns, served to prevent unsettlement in most cases.

Both bonds and commodities displayed rising tendencies after a hesitant start.

Industries Group Believed Proving Of Great Benefit

Recently Established Division Believed By Director to be Making Noticeable Headway

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Dec. 15.—The recently setup division of Industries of the Department of Conservation is making noticeable headway, in the opinion of J. T. Anderson, chief of the division.

"Of course we never know just how effective our efforts have been until some industry actually sets up its plant and begins to do business in North Carolina," said Mr. Anderson. "But many inquiries are being received daily and some industries have already been favorably enough impressed to send officials down to inspect sites and go over the situation."

He pointed out that when specific projects fail to materialize the work expended on them is often repaid months later.

"A particular industry may decide, for perfectly good reasons, to locate in some other state, but we often find that the data furnished this industry will later be turned over by it to another which may end up by locating in North Carolina," he said.

Approximately 500 letters of inquiry were received in November according to Mr. Anderson, and this number is expected to increase rapidly as the result of the new industrial advertisements being run by the State Advertising committee.

The recent statement by Governor Clyde R. Hoey, calling attention to the fact that for the past five years North Carolina and subdivisions have been paying their debts at a rate of almost $10,000,000 a year and that the prospect is for lower rather than higher taxes in the future, has done a great deal to get business and industry interested in North Carolina as a possible new location, Mr. Anderson said. The state's abundant natural resources, favorable weather, large power supply, abundance of native born labor and its freedom from labor troubles are also proving important factors.

Army Of Santas Needn't Puzzle Inquiring Tots

Chicago — If the young ones ask embarrassing questions about all these Santa Clauses on street corners and in stores, take a tip from the psychologists.

"Ten dozen Santas need not befuddle a child," says Mrs. Evelyn Duval, psychologist for the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education.

"Make it a game in which the child himself can play the part of Santa Claus.

"One of the chief reasons parents keep Santa Claus alive is because it gives them opportunity to exercise their ego and, in many instances use the benevolent old character as a threat to keep Willie's and Mary's deportment in line for a few weeks."

Prof. J. P. Morgan, Northwestern university psychologist, would let the child believe in Santa Claus if he wants to because "after all it is fun and won't hurt him."

Mrs. Miriam Rooney, author and psychologist, would explain the army of Santa Clauses as "helpers" of the original St. Nicholas.

"Keep the legend alive," she advises. Tell the child that just before the real St. Nicholas died he called in all his friends and said, 'carry on for me so no little boy or girl will be sad on Christmas day.' That will satisfy the child's wonderment over so many Santa Clauses."

FEEDING CARE IS IMPORTANT SUGGESTS USE OF LESPEDEZA

Farmers Advised On Methods Of Feeding Cattle

Raleigh, Dec. 16.—Success or failure in cattle feeding should not be measured in terms of direct returns on the feeding operation alone but in terms of the related soil fertility improvement also. L. I. Case, extension beef cattle specialist, declared today.

"The utilization of waste products from cattle is often the deciding factor in whether a farmer's balance sheet comes out in the red or in the black."

Case points out as example one farmer who said, "I very seldom make money feeding cattle, but I never made any money farming until I started feeding cattle as a part of my regular farming program."

Careful feeding practices are highly important in the fitting of cattle for market, the specialist declared. The diet of the animals should be watched as closely as that of a child.

Cattle purchased in the fall for winter feeding may be turned on corn stalks, soybean stalks, pasture or meadow upon their arrival on the farm. Case pointed out. This will not only utilize feed that might otherwise be wasted but also gives the cattle a chance to recover from their trip to the farm.

They may well be carried under such conditions from one to three weeks but should be put up into the feed lot before they stop making satisfactory gains.

In a new circular just issued by the Extension Service, Case gives complete directions for feeding market cattle, as well as approved shipping practices. The circular, No. 217, "Feeding Cattle for Market," may be obtained free from the Agricultural Editor at State College.

Co-op In Caldwell To Compete With Large Power Firm

Mutual Corporation to Attempt Novel Experiment in Competing With Private Utility

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Dec. 15.—Over in Caldwell county where lines of the Duke Power Company and lines built through Federal Rural Electrification Administration funds run parallel in many instances, the Caldwell Mutual corporation, co-op owner of the REA lines, is going to attempt the novel experiment of competing with the private utility company by charging a higher rate than its rival.

The Duke rate for 100 kilowatts to Caldwell's residential power users amounts to $3.75. According to news dispatches from Lenoir, the Mutual's rate for the first 100 kilowatts will reach $4.75.

The Caldwell Mutual set its rates at a meeting of the board of directors with two representatives of the Federal REA, George D. Munger, director of utilization, and H. Zinder, chief of the rate section.

The Mutual rates are divided as follows: First 25 kilowatts or less, 8 cents; for next 25 kw, 5 cents; for next 50, 3 cents; for next 100 kw, 2 cents; and for over 200 kw one and one half cents.

The Duke rates are divided as follows: First 10 kw, 80 cents; next 20 kw 5 cents per kw; next 20 kw 3 1/2 cents per kw; above 50 kw 2 1/2 cents per kw.

The Mutual will not generate its own power, but will buy wholesale from the Duke Power Company under a contract, approved by the Federal REA to pay 1.41 cents per kilowatt.

It is estimated that practically all users of residential power in Caldwell county will fall within the 100 kilowatt per month class. The average rural consumer took an average of something like 60 kilowatts per month in 1935. This figure has increased considerably since then, but not enough to put the average user above the 100 kw class.

SUGGESTS USE OF LESPEDEZA

Demonstration Project Proves Value in Erosion Control

Raleigh, Dec. 16.—Lespedeza grew last summer on more than one-third of all the cultivated land on cooperating farms in the Brown Creek erosion control demonstration area near Wadesboro, Project Manager J. E. Michael reports.

The Brown Creek area, where farmers are cooperating with the Soil Conservation Service and the State College Extension Service in putting into effect a complete program of erosion control on their farms, has 17,086 acres of cultivated land on farms under agreement.

Of this amount, 6,200 acres, or 36 per cent, was in lespedeza last summer, Michael said. This is four times the amount of lespedeza grown before the area was established, which indicates how ready the farmers have been to cooperate in carrying out recommended erosion control practices.

The value of lespedeza in controlling erosion was well demonstrated during heavy rains when water was running nearly clear from land in lespedeza, while water from adjoining fields in clean-tilled crops was distinctly muddy, Michael said.
