BRITISH GROUP FAVORS JOINT NAVAL PATROL

Would Concentrate Combined Fleet In Chinese Waters

COMMONS HEARS PLAN DISCUSSED

Proposal Would Call For Cooperation Of American, British, French Warships

London, Dec. 21.—(AP)—The House of Commons gathered today for foreign affairs debate, with a group of its members advocating a mighty patrol of Chinese waters by combined fleets of American, British and French warships.

At a session of the group on the eve of today's discussion the view was expressed that a lumping of the naval forces of the three nations in the Far East would tend to check "Japan's aim to dominate China to the complete exclusion of foreign interests."

This view was expected to be formally urged during the debate and the House expected a cautious statement from Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Eden on the government's reaction to disturbing developments in the Orient.

The government already had emphasized its grave view of the Far Eastern crisis by naming an ambassador to China to replace Sir Hugh Knatchbull-Hugessen, inactive since he was wounded last August when Japanese aerial machine-guns strafed his automobile.

The foreign office announced Sir Archibald Kerr, ambassador to Baghdad since 1935, would succeed him "as soon as possible."

"Recent events in the Far East," the announcement said had made it necessary Britain be represented in China "by a diplomat of ambassadorial rank and that arrangements to such an end should be made with the least possible delay."

Three More Stills Found In Beaufort

Pitt County ABC Officers J. L. Taylor and J. M. Ward, working with the two Beaufort officers, yesterday afternoon located and destroyed three stills in the neighboring county.

The three stills were located near the county line on the other side of Cranter creek. None was in operation, but the officers declared that two of the stills were hot, leading them to believe they had been operated Sunday night.

One copper of 100-gallon capacity was destroyed along with 1,000 gallons of beer found about the plant. Two steam plants, each of 60 gallon capacity, were found and cut down. About 1,200 gallons of beer was found at one of the steam outfits and 500 gallons at the other.

Officers declared they believed they had destroyed most of the large stills in the two counties, observing that most of the plants being found now are much smaller than those destroyed when the series of raids started several months ago.

Boyd Final Rites Attended By Many

Funeral services for William J. Boyd, prominent Pitt county citizen who died at his home in Ayden Sunday night, were held at the Ayden Episcopal Church this morning.

One of the largest crowds ever to attend a funeral in Pitt county gathered to pay last tribute to the 63-year-old citizen, who had taken an active part in various activities of the county since he moved here from Beaufort county in 1903. Many persons prominent in political, educational and religious circles were among the list of honorary pallbearers.

Mr. Boyd had been connected with the Trydall, Boyd and Stroud wholesale firm for the past 20 years. He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Albion Dunn of Greenville, and Miss Willie Yvonne Boyd, a member of the Durham city schools faculty; one sister, Miss Lizzie Boyd of Ayden; two half-brothers and two half-sisters.

Terror-stricken at the approach of the Japanese invaders, Chinese natives in Nanking are shown hastily boarding a Yangtze River steamer for flight shortly before the capital city fell. OFFICERS NAB BOOTLEG RING

Fifty-Six Indicted By New York Federal Grand Jury

New York, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Fifty-six persons were indicted by the Federal grand jury today on charges of operating a huge bootlegging conspiracy which deprived the government of at least $1,800,000 in taxes in the last three years.

The defendants included three city policemen and a former inspector of the alcohol tax unit.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Hahlon Dickerson said the gang's operation resulted in two killings, one by officers.

Seventeen trucks and cars were seized during a six months investigation, Dickerson said, and stills were uncovered, each with capacities of 200 to 500 gallons.

Two of the stills were maintained in New Jersey, one in Delaware and the other in Clifton. Other stills were operated in four New York state cities.

Dickerson named Frank Giordano as a leader of the alleged conspiracy, which he described as "by far the largest uncovered in the bootlegging line" since prohibition days.

The indictment accused the defendants of producing more than $500,000 bootleg grain alcohol a year. This was blended with water coloring matter and "cooked whiskey," the indictment said, and distributed from 21 outlets in bars, hotels and restaurants.

Sixty checks totalling $852.50 have been received for distribution to dependent children in the county.

The checks were sent out early so the payees could get them before Christmas. The payments came about two weeks ahead of the regular time.

Battle Rages For Insurgent Capital

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier—Dec. 21.—(AP)—The Spanish government today hurled 20,000 more men into the fierce struggle for Teruel, radio advices said and the reinforced army of 50,000 was ordered to take the provincial capital "at all costs."

This tremendous force and the insurgent defenders were locked in a hand-to-hand contest in the city on the seventh day of the government's offensive. Insurgent reports said the Teruel garrison still was holding out.

Thousand of attackers and defenders alike were reported to have fallen. Teruel's radio was silenced and the city's other communications were cut off.

Through last night, while the civilian population covered in underground tunnels awaiting word of the city's fate, giant field search lights illuminated battle areas.

The chatter of machine guns and the fire of rifles echoed through the streets.

In the last 48 hours there had been two main battle grounds—west of the city, where General Francisco Franco's crack shock troops tried to smash through the government's siege ring to relieve their comrades, and the other in the city itself and its suburbs.

Another "whereas" clause points to the hurry and bustle of holiday activities, the icy streets, lowered visibility, sleet and snow and fewer hours of daylight as contributory factors in making driving at this time particularly dangerous.

The council urges all citizens to "replace difference with indignation, to temper sentiment with sanity, and to interpret the Christmas spirit of good will in concrete terms of protecting life and limb on the highway."

JAPAN ADMITS PANAY DID NOT FIRE ON CRAFT

Announcement Made Following Further Investigation

DENIED VESSEL MACHINE-GUN'D

Chinese Fear Three Coastal Cities to Suffer Same Fate As Be- fell Nanking

Shanghai, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Major General Harada announced today further investigation showed the sinking U. S. gunboat Panay had not fired its cannon at Japanese troops as his report had stated yesterday.

The military attaché added, however, the additional study had not changed his denial that the Japanese army boats had machine-gunned the vessel, despite American official reports to the contrary.

Investigation by Lieut. Col. Nishi, war ministry staff officer, was the basis for the new statement on the bombing of the Panay and three Standard Oil Company boats on the Yangtze river near Nanking December 12.

Meanwhile Japanese troop and warship movements aroused Chinese fears that three of the nation's great coastal cities would suffer the fate of fallen Nanking.

The Chinese expected Japanese to drive against Hangchow, Chekiang province seaport about 110 miles south and west of Shanghai, Canton China, southern metropolis and Tsingtao, Shantung province seaport to the north.

A party of 300 American and British women and children trying to flee war threats in Central China was turned back toward Hankow, one of China's three temporary capitals.

Winborne Explains Why State Opposes Proposed Boost

Raleigh, Dec. 21.—Through all the complexities and mazes of the current freight rate controversies, North Carolina's official position has remained steadfastly an effort to bring about equality of rates for the state, along with the rest of the South, as compared with the rest of the country, Stanley Winborne, State Utility Commissioner, said today.

Court Halted For W. J. Boyd Funeral

This week's session of County court was recessed shortly after it was convened this morning to permit attorneys and court attaches to attend funeral services for William J. Boyd in Ayden.

Mr. Boyd, who died Sunday night, was active in Pitt county political circles. He is the father-in-law of Albion Dunn, member of the Pitt County Bar Association and for these reasons it was decided to suspend court during the funeral hour.

Not a single case was tried before the recess was taken.

Up-and-Down Year Halts Back-To-Work Movement

By FREDRICK GARDNER
New York (AP)—The back-to-work march in private industry through most of 1937 cut deeply into unemployment before the business downturn interrupted multiplication of jobs in the autumn.

Rapid curtailment of production in steel, textile and other major industries in the final months of the year threw uncounted thousands out of work again. Steel payrolls, particularly, were slashed as output late in the year fell to about one third the peak spring rate.

Mother Love Wins!

Financial advantages offered by the foster parents of 9-year-old Amy Ernie Bourn (above) cannot outweigh the natural "love, affection and care of her mother," the Florida Supreme court ruled in awarding custody of the child to Mrs. Irene Stewart Bourn of Marion County, Miss., daughter of a tenant farmer. Amy had spent most of her life with her mother and Mrs. George W. Hiney of Quincy, Fla., who sought to retain custody of her.

SEARCH ON FOR TWO ESCAPEES

Payne and Turner Be- lieved in South Car- olina Woods

Georgetown, S. C. Dec. 21.—(AP)—A search continued today on Mac camac Neck for two men, officers believed were Bill Payne and Wash Turner, North Carolina desperadoes.

The hunt was concentrated on the narrow strip of land between the Maccamac river and the Atlantic ocean after a highway patrolman lost the trail of the two men at Myrtle Beach Sunday night.

Police Chief J. F. Hamilton of Myrtle Beach said he was virtually positive the men were "bottled up" on the neck, and highways leading to Georgetown, Conway and Little River were closely guarded.

Officers throughout the Carolinas were on the watch for the criminals, object of many men hunts since they and five other long termers escaped from the Calcedonia prison farm in North Carolina last February.

Winston-Salem, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Police last night received a report that a car believed to contain Bill Payne left Durham and was headed that way, but no trace of Payne was found by officers who guarded the surrounding highways.

Iowa Mother Kills Two, Wounds Two

Waverly, Iowa, Dec. 21.—(AP)—A 38-year-old mother ran amuck with a shotgun early today, Sheriff Frank Sager said, killing two of her children, wounding two others and firing random shots into two homes.

The sheriff said the woman, Mrs. Bertha Walters, admitted the shooting and told him her children "wouldn't mind her."

State employees here also will receive their December checks early so they will be assured of having some Christmas money.

Washington, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Organized labor's peace conference was on the verge of collapse today.

Before resuming their meetings after a long recess, leaders of both the American Federation of Labor and the CIO let it be known that the big question was whether to meet again.

Neither side had any hope of reaching a settlement soon for neither has yielded an inch since the negotiations started nearly two months ago.

HOUSE TALK OF AD JOURNMENT BRINGS RECESS

Sending Housing Bill To Committee Last Business

COLLECTIONS UP ON INCOME TAXES

Landon Wires Roosevelt Pledging Coop- eration in Regard to Far Eastern Crisis

Washington, Dec. 21.—(AP)—The House recessed for two hours today after Majority Leader Rayburn announced the special session of Congress might adjourn later this afternoon.

Rayburn asked for the recess, explaining Senate leaders hoped to pass the Housing bill at 3 p. m., and in that event, the House would speedily be able to send it to conference and complete the legislative business possible at this session.

A possibility of a hitch in these plans appeared, however, when Representative Rankin (D-Miss.) called attention to the Senate Banking Committee's elimination of provisions for insurance of small rural homes. Rankin said proponents of such insurance would try to instruct the House conferees to hold out for its reinstatement.

Minority Leader Snell (R-N. Y.) then sought assurance that the conference report on the housing measure would not be brought back for House action while most of the members were out of town for the holidays. Rayburn indicated that was not contemplated. That would keep the bill from reaching the White House for Presidential signature before adjournment.

At the start of the Senate session, at which that body took up the Housing bill for the first time, Banking Committee members reported the legislation would create a "mass market" for moderately priced homes and aid in bringing a "sound and lasting recovery."

Other developments: The Treasury said December income tax collections were running about 70 per cent ahead of last year.

Collections to December 20 in all districts except Delaware and New Mexico, where reports are available only through December 16, totalled $67,250,772. A year ago they totalled $275,706,758.18.

Alfred M. Landon gave President Roosevelt a pledge of "cooperation and support in the difficult foreign situation confronting your administration."

In a telegram made public at the State Department, the 1936 Republican standard bearer criticized members of Congress of both parties.

The President in reply said "The generous spirit of your telegram helps me to meet the problems which confront our country in the field of foreign relations during these troublous times."

WITH THE MASONS
An Interesting Meeting Followed By A Banquet

Monday night Greenville Lodge No. 284 A. F. & A. M., had a meeting of unusual interest. There were four candidates to receive the mysteries of the third degree.

Thirty-six members of the Greenville lodge were present and also visiting brethren from lodges in Grimesland, Rountrees, Grifton, Robersonville, Wilson, Henderson, Clifton, S. C., Williamston, etc.

It was exactly midnight when the lodge closed. The members and visitors then passed from labor to refreshment and repaired to Hotel Macon to partake of a banquet.

This banquet was served in proprietor Skinner's best style and the feast consisted of turkey, old ham, oysters stewed and fried, bread, biscuits, pickles, coffee and cigars.

There was no indication of excess in the indulgence of good things but the brethren of the mystic tie proved as capable of dispatching a feast of this kind as they were at introducing the new recruits to the manoeuvrings attendant upon goat riding.

The meeting and banquet marked an epoch in the history of Greenville Lodge that will long be held in pleasant memory. The lodge here is in a healthy condition and is rapidly adding good material to its members.

JOB AS CHRISTUS MODEL GIVEN FACTORY WORKER
Two Rivers, Wis.—(AP)—When Artist Lester Bentley was commissioned to paint 14 canvases for St. Luke's Catholic Church, he had to have a model for The Christus. He found one right in Two Rivers, which hasn't much more than 10,000 population.

The model was Joseph Krey, 29-year-old aluminum plant worker, who came complete with beard. When he broke his leg vacationing, he decided to let his whiskers grow out while he convalesced. The result was a raunt, high-templed face framed in just such a beard that Christ is portrayed as wearing.

DEPRESSION CANNERY LEADS TO PROSPERITY
Ardmore, Okla.—(AP)—When the winds of depression began to eddy across the land, Shelby Priddy was virtually broke, and out of a job.

He hit upon the idea of putting up a small cannery near his home, offered to can his neighbors' vegetables, claiming a small percentage of the vegetables canned as his toll.

Shortly he found a market for his products and today he supplies canned goods for several grocers here and at nearby Healdton, and does right well. He said he sold 5,000 cans last year, and production and sales this year were even better.

Wax candles are probably of Phoenician origin. The composite candle to today is made of stearin and paraffin.

IT'S ODD But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLACKESLEE AP Science Editor

Pittsburgh—One full length garment of rayon for every person in the world could be turned out in three years by the present rayon mills.

That is one illustration of how far science has gone in less than a generation in keeping the "wolf" from the door, cited by Dr. E. R. Weidlein, director of Mellon Institute.

Other wolf poisons—A German factory makes soap from fat derived from coal.

Fruit, treated with diphenyl—an American product, reduces rotting of oranges and keep grapes.

Japan is making an oil for airplane motors out of sharks.

Hungary uses its sunflowers in place of imported fish oils to make soap.

Americans are using sound waves to clear the air of smoke and fumes.

"The chemist," says Dr. Weidlein, "buys atoms in the form of cotton, sugar, soybeans, milk or petroleum. He sells them in the form of rayon, synthetic wool, automobile parts, organic acids, glues, plastics, building materials, paints and varnishes."

CLUB PROGRAM ON CHRISTMAS

Story of Christ's Birth Read By Elizabeth Kittrell

The scripture story of the birth of Christ from the annunciation to the shepherds through the nativity was read by little Miss Elizabeth Kittrell last night as the opening of the Rotary Club's special Christmas program put on by J. B. Kittrell, chairman of the program committee. Then Mrs. J. H. Waldrop, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. G. B. W. Hadley, sang as a solo "O Holy Night." She sang in her usual sweet voice the sweetness ally in the achievement of accuracy in technique. Next, Marjorie Sugg gave a very impressive reading on "Keeping Christmas." The meeting was closed with a prayer by Fordy Harding.

Prior to the Christmas program, Judson Blount, chairman of the Community Service Committee, read a list of Christmas opportunities suggested by K. T. Futrelle and checked by the Thrift Shop to see if anyone else was helping the family. Every family on the list was taken. Each was taken with the understanding that the Rotarian choosing the name would see to a happier Christmas for that family.

Guests of the club were Charles Cobb, Mr. McKenzie, John Proctor, J. Knott Proctor, Alvin VanNortwick and Uran Cox. Special guests were Frances Kittrell and Frances

RATE INCREASE TO BE SOUGHT

Two Telegraph Companies Plan Make Application

New York, Dec. 21—The Telegraph Companies are about to apply to the Federal Communications Commission for a 15 per cent increase in rates.

In making this application, one of the oldest public service institutions is obliged to break a precedent of thirty years' standing. The position of the telegraph industry in the public service field is unique in that it does not assess a stand-by charge, but must rely for its income wholly on what is paid for each item of service performed by progressive methods and a continued series of improvements and new developments in plant and operating processes. It has not only met all the increasing costs arising during the past three decades but has actually decreased the cost of its service to the public.

The only increase in telegraph rates which has been made in the past 30 years was made by the Government when it operated the industry during the World War.

Today, despite drastic operating economies the financial resources and credit of the Companies are being jeopardized by the decline in revenues brought on by the general slackening of the business of the country, on which the industry depends, and the situation is made even more critical by the constantly growing cost of telegraph operation through heavy Social Security and other taxes, wage restorations, and mounting expenses of all kinds.

As indicated by figures published a few days ago, the telegraph companies are operating either at a deficit or on a very slender margin, and it is pointed out, of this condition continues, it will shortly impair their ability to continue rendering the efficient service on which the public depends and which forms such an essential part of the commercial and social fabric of the nation as well as an indispensable arm of national defense.

In recent years the telegraph companies have offered a number of new and additional services at low rates for the purpose of developing new and enlarged uses of their service, in an effort to increase the volume of traffic and thus keep their revenues abreast of the constantly mounting expenses, but in spite of favorable public reception of these innovations they have not been sufficient to offset the general downward trend.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—Ernest Truex came in from a golf game for lunch, and across the table opined that golf was a great game for worriers.

This five feet three inches of dapper stage fame didn't say he was worried, not in so many words. He just brought out the fact that in several cans of celluloid at three different studios his image is awaiting preview. Moreover, with a new movie contract, he has done an unprecedented thing for him—leased a home for two years, meaning he'll stay, come what may, in Hollywood.

He's Better Known On Stage

"The last time," he explained, "I think I didn't stay long enough. Made 'Whistling in the Dark' and 'The Warrior's Husband' and skipped within a week, figuring that was time for someone to speak if there were any great demand that I stay."

So the last time—and several times before that—Ernest Truex went back to the stage. At 47, although he's of the stage and scarcely known in pictures—he's a walking encyclopedia of movie history, knew pictures in their rock-bottom nickelodeon days.

It was 25 years ago he played the boy lead—at 22—in David Belasco's "Good Little Devil."

"We made another picture," he recalls, "and I thought it was a great idea—but then Jack Pickford came along doing the same type of parts I was doing."

Wants To Stay This Time

"Back on the stage a while, then I got in with George Fitzmaurice, George Seitz and Ouida Bergere on our own film company. We ran out of money after three reels, so we produced a three-reeler—More stage—then Vitagraph—Shirley Mason, Louise Huff, Norma Talmadge—and then no more pictures until "Whistling in the Dark"—I'd always sidestep or just miss accepting offers—Once I went to England, stayed for four years—the stage was always so certain—pictures seemed otherwise.

SHORT SHOTS By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Dec. 21—Entry of the Rev. A. A. Johnston, of Buncombe, into the race for United States Senate is itself the day's biggest "ho, hum."

...no good minister hasn't a child's chance of getting votes enough to make even a respectable statewide showing. He can call on all the brothers to pray till doomsday and it won't get him a foot nearer the Senate.

But there is an angle to his candidacy which puts up a "Stop, Look and Listen" sign. ...ae's from Buncombe, the home county of incumbent Robert R. Reynolds. Whatever vote he does get will more than likely be right there in Buncombe and will be taken straight from the Reynolds strength.

All of which indicates more the fine hand of the Buncombe political machine, known to be bitterly hostile to Reynolds, than the God-like designs of the minister himself.

Similar "smart" tricks from the Reynolds opposition may be looked for at any time between now and the primary.

There are rumors that Santa Claus will not visit North Carolina this year. He's much too likely to be mistaken for Bill Payne by some light fingered highway patrolman or other police officer.

It was Al Smith who said nobody shoots at Santa, but North Carolina officers have taken almost everybody else for Payne and so Mr. Santa Claus had better be careful.

If the list of automobile fatalities in North Carolina doesn't begin to show a decrease, it will not be long before those killed by cars are classed as having died a "natural death."

More than half of North Carolina's funded debt was incurred for construction of the state's highway system. Of a total bonded debt of $159,341,500 (as of December 1) highway bonds amounted to $88,296,000. Bonds for other purposes were: General fund $57,483,500; world War Veterans Loan $2,500,000; and Special School Building bonds $10,960,000.

It's not long now until the first of the year, when Gregg Cherry and other potential senate candidates are expected to say what they will do.

Two good tips are that neighbor Mr. Cherry nor Mrs. Helen Robertson Wohl will ever get into the lists. The Iron Major will likely be sturdily neutral in word, at least. Mrs. Wohl, if she doesn't run, will more than likely be an active and ardent Reynolds supporter, despite her known "dry" views. Incumbent Bob, however, is more to her liking in his attitude toward the President, World peace and general liberalism.

Despite Mayor Tom Cooper's blast at the state Highway Patrol, Captain Charles D. Farmer, head of the eastern division, is going down to Wilmington soon to confer with the dutiful mayor with reference to cooperation of city and patrol in radio broadcasting by the respective law enforcement agencies.

GRANDPA NOW STEPFATHER OF HIS OWN GRANDCHILD

South Bend, Ind.—(AP)—When Mrs. Rosie May Billings Orsborn, 34, married Oscar H. Orsborn, 77, the second husband of her mother who died last year, she married not only her stepfather, but her father-in-law as well, because she previously had married Orsborn's son, who died this spring. She was the mother of a child by the son, thus making her present husband the stepfather of his own grandchild.

February, 1937: The Constitutional Battle Begins

By VOLTA TORREY (News Review Editor Of The AP Feature Service) SECOND IN A SERIES OF 12 Once upon a time, in February, 1937, President Roosevelt proposed to douse the Supreme Court in a fountain of youth. Overnight surrealism, child brides, the stark derby Dr Sarza's dueling, and a string of appalling airplane accidents were forgotten. Parents borrowed children's school books to brush up on U S history for a "constitutional crisis." And "Nine Old Men" became a best seller. Congressmen got so much mail they couldn't bother with Secretary Wallace's ever-normal granary notion, or Senator Wagner's slum-carcare clamor or the White House reorganization hopes. Democrats say "Good Night My Love," and Republicans rejoiced in private. "I'd rather be right than agree with the President," trumpeted Nebraska's Senator Burke, elected as a New Dealer. And—Montana's veteran progressive Democratic Senator Wheeler let it be known he could see nothing sound, progressive or democratic about letting the President name a new judge every time one who had served a decade passed his 70th birthday.

Sitters Ordered Up But Arizona's Ex-Cowboy Ashurst, senate judiciary committee chairman, vaulted to the Roosevelt side of the fence, and Arkansas' 64-year-old Joe Robinson rallied the New Deal's quavering forces for the new attack. Only John L. Lewis had something as news-worthy. A judge gave his Flint, Mich., sitters 24 hours to get up and get out, or be fined $15,000,000. On they sat, beards getting bushier, while Governor Murphy paced the floor between CIO and General Motors confabs. Even before an agreement to negotiate had cleared the auto plants, Lewis was dicker with the coal scenes with "big steel's" bosses on the industry and conferring behind the true that CIO halted as "the greatest story in the history of the American labor movement."

And Lewis promised to have Chrysler and Ford bargaining, too, by Christmas. "War's Horror Reaches Peak in Mad Flight From Malaga," a headline read. Fascists cried, "Malaga today, Madrid tomorrow!" Victory seemed so certain that Germany and Italy, after seven months' hazling, agreed to help quarantine Spain. Besides Mussolini just then had to turn around and shake his fist once more at Ethiopia; natives were tearing pineapples. And Britannia, perking up as the coronation approached, prepared to regain rule of the waves by starting a $7,500,000,000 rearmament program. The London metal exchange had its "maddest day since 1914."

A Premier Pays A black storm swept America's

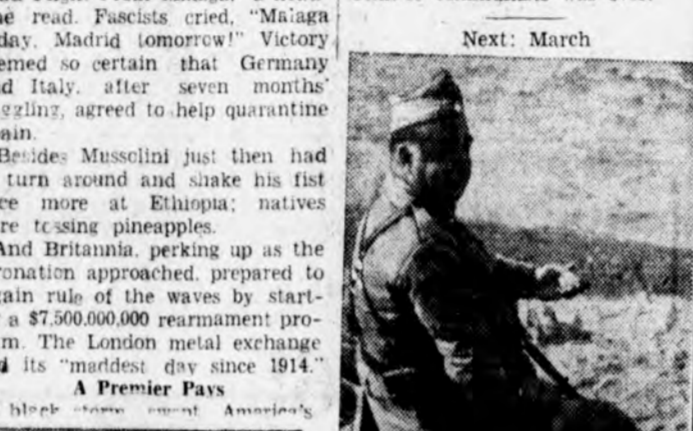

Sit-Downers Rise and Parade

Labor Murder Sitting became stylish. A Detroit boss joined his employees in the sport. New York boys squatted on a night-club floor protesting parental early-to-bed rules. In Japan soaring prices heightened friction between politicians and militarists. A new premier, General Senjuro Hayashi, sought guidance by praying to dead warriors' spirits.

In China, harassed by drought and desperadoes Nankin officials announced their 10-year war with Chinese communists was over.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—To a degree the earlier hue and cry for repeal of the corporate surplus and capital gains taxes have died down, and it is notable that the manifesto of the Vandenberg-Bailey-Byrd group called for revision and not for repeal. One of the factors helping to down the cry for outright repeal is the increasing evidence that control of agricultural production is going to cost real money. Whatever it costs must be raised by taxes if the President's wishes on that subject are to be followed. Whatever fault the taxes may have, they have raised a certain amount of money. If they are abolished, some other shoulder must be found which can bear new ones. The manifesto, a ten-point program advanced by a group of conservative Senators, mostly Democratic, led off with a statement about taxation. The quotations are from a published text: "The capital gains tax and the undistributed profits tax ought to be revised at once without reducing revenue so as to free funds for investment and promote the normal flow of savings into profitable and productive use, not for the sake of capital, but for the consequences in expanding business, larger employment and a more active consumer demand for goods." From two other sources recently has come something of the same idea, and perhaps pointed more in a certain direction. Lamont du Pont, president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company, speaking before the National Association of Manufacturers, repeatedly stressed that uncertainty was perhaps a greater deterrent to business than the actual level of taxes. He agreed, of course, that a reduction also would be acceptable. "At this juncture," he said, "the stabilization of tax rates over a definite period plus a simplification of the tax structure, may be almost more important than the actual level of taxes. The present fear that we face a rapidly ascending tax scale, as well as new taxes, the nature of which nobody can guess, stands like a wall in the path of industrial expansion."

DARE TO DREAM

BY ALICE MARIE DODGE

The Characters
 Nelda, a beautiful, courageous girl, is forced to run a lettuce farm to make her personal dreams come true.
 Bill, a tanned, young lettuce farmer, is a mystery to Nelda.
 Beck, blond, gay and healthy, tells Nelda he has his tag on her.
 Mrs. Reckless, Beck's cold and arrogant mother, dislikes Nelda.
 Jack, Nelda's younger brother, is in medical school.

"It is! Green gold!" Nelda flung over her shoulder as she darted out with Candy at her heels.
 In the field Nelda stooped down eagerly to examine the tender shoots that were breaking through the soil. Each little ridge looked as if it had been touched by an invisible and miraculous hand. As far as she could see the rows were sprouting tiny, green leaves Green gold! It made her feel vitally, joyously alive.
 "What a crop!" she exclaimed.
 "Will you have a lotta money when you sell it, Aunt Nelda?" Candy wanted to know.
 "More than $3,000, perhaps."
 "Then will you gimme a nickel?"
 "I'll buy you a pony!" Nelda lifted the child and swung her around in a gay little dance.
 "A mama pony?" the child asked breathlessly.
 "Maybe," Nelda set Candy down.
 "You are a precious little nut!" She gave a soft laugh and kissed her niece.
 They saw the postman's car beside the neat row of rural mail boxes at the roadside. He was putting something into the Barrie box. They walked to the road. Presently Candy ran ahead.
 "Look!" she cried, taking two letters out of the mail box.
 "We'll be seeing you!"

Chapter 13
Happy New Year!
 AS NELDA scrambled the eggs she thought briefly of Reck's party at Rio Del Mar that she missed. How unpredictable life was. Here she was in a green wool dress with one of Doris Powell's aprons tied around her instead of sitting at a table in the white tulle gown with a solicitous waiter hovering near to anticipate her every want.
 "You know your kitchen mechanics," Bill said.
 "Not so bad yourself," she retorted.
 "Case of necessity with me."
 "I've just learned to cook in the past few weeks—I mean everyday meals. The only thing I knew before that was chafing-dish stunts."
 "Guess you've found that life means more than chafing-dish stunts."
 "And how!"

"Happy New Year!" cried Bill, and kissed her.

It must have been the atmosphere of the Powell home that was the cause of what happened at midnight. When the hands of the clock on the kitchen stove reached twelve Bill and Nelda were at the table putting sandwiches together.
 "Happy New Year!" she cried.
 "Happy New Year!" A sudden, reckless look crossed his face. He kissed her full upon the lips.
 After it was over he seemed as surprised as she was, but not repentant. "You asked for it," he said.
 "Why—I did not!" A hot vividness like flame was touching her nerves. Her heart was hurrying.
 "If your hair didn't curl in that adorable way perhaps I could have resisted you."
 "Oh, a flatterer, eh?" Soft notes of laughter sprinkled the words. Her creamy skin was smooth and fragrant, her lips red and sweet, so it was no wonder he kissed her again.
 She drew away from him rather sharply this time.
 "Am I on somebody else's preserves?" he asked.
 "Well—" she began after an uncomfortable pause.
 "I was afraid of that. Anyway, tonight's been perfect up to now." He picked up the plate of sandwiches. "Let's join our hosts."
 She might have known it would end like this. It always did. She could see that he was pale and the smile on his mouth sardonic. Well, she couldn't help it if he was like that.
 Doris and Ray tumbled into the kitchen at that moment.
 "Happy New Year! Happy New Year!" they cried.
 A new year! What did it hold for her, Nelda wondered, and passed through the swing door Bill held open for her.

Green Gold
 I SAW a lettuce! I saw a lettuce!" Candy's voice almost reached high C as she ran into the house to break the news of her discovery.
 "Is it really coming up?" Nelda asked, a tingle of excitement coursing through her.
 "Hones, Aunt Nelda! C'mon, an' I'll show you!"
 "Okay!" Nelda was getting into a sweater and experiencing difficulty because of her haste.
 "You act like it's gold," Laura scoffed good-naturedly.

N. C.'S FIGHT ON WRIGHT RATES
 If they can show that the need exists, North Carolina is not asking rate discriminations in favor of its shippers; North Carolina's energies are being directed solely to securing fair and equitable rates, on a par with those applying to all sections of the country.
 So Mr. Winborne summarized the situation.
 At the present, however, North Carolina and the other Southeastern states, asking for removal class rate differentials against the South, have deferred action on their complaint before the Interstate Commerce Commission, he said.
 This is an action brought by the Southeastern Governors Conference and prosecution of which is in the hands of North Carolina, Tennessee and Florida. It is directed to a revision of class rates.

SANTA WHITE FOX

The story so far: The sailor and helga in the sailor's ice boat have escaped the white fox in a race in which the boat went much faster than the fox could run. Now the two dolls must rescue the tiny squirrel which is still with the fox.

Chapter 20
Ring the Silver Bells
 As soon as the sun set over the snowy fields the sailor took charge of the boat and headed it back to the white fox's mountain. Helga's cheeks were so bright, both from the excitement of the race and the sun's afterglow that she looked quite pretty again.
 The sailor noticed that, and grinned.
 Helga, almost as if she had read his thoughts laughed and said, "Didn't the white fox look silly? He didn't look brave at all. Just mad." Then she added shyly, "You look much braver."
 The sailor seemed pleased but he said nothing. Then Helga began to feel hungry. And that's dreadful way up North where there seems to be nothing but snow. Finally she could keep still no longer.
 She said, "Sailor, could we have something to eat?"
 "Calling the Queen"
 The sailor slowed down his boat and said, "Well, we can't have as fine fare as the white fox serves, but we'll find something."
 Helga protested, "Oh, but when I eat with you I won't have to worry that you'd get angry, as the fox did."
 "Why, I might get very angry," said the sailor, but he laughed as he said it.
 "Now then how do we get food?" he continued. As the boat clipped along over the snow he took out the silver bells he had stolen from the fox, and shook them.
 "Why, those are the bells I gave the fox," said Helga. "What are you doing?"
 "I'm calling the Queen of Fairies," said the sailor.
 Suddenly right on top of the mast there was a little "Pop" and a bright flash of light, as though a tiny firecracker had exploded. And there stood the Queen of Fairies. She flew down to the sailor's shoulder.
Tea For Three
 "You've had an exciting trip. I've brought tea for you." As she spoke she pulled a tiny handkerchief from her pocket, and spread it on the deck. As she spread tiny cups and plates appeared which grew bigger and bigger until they were just the right size for Helga and the sailor. There were hot biscuits, steaming tea and a wee pot of strawberry jam.
 "Oh—lovely," said Helga. "Please have tea with us."
 "Thank you," said the Queen of Fairies. When they had finished the Queen rolled up the handkerchief again, and it grew smaller and smaller. Then she was gone.
 Helga looked at the sailor admiringly. "You have such nice friends," she said. "You know the white fox never had callers. He is a great, white fox, but no one comes to see him."
 "Yes, I know," said the sailor. "But I think it's better to have good friends than to be the greatest anything in the world."
 "That's what I think, too," said Helga.

Bonds and commodities pushed higher.

Pipe-Changer

Cincinnati (AP)—Bill McKeehnle, new Cincinnati baseball manager, has explained why he switches to a curve-stemmed pipe while hunting. He says it enables him to shoulder his gun without removing his pipe from his mouth.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—Parties of four who plan to spend New Year's eve in any of the major hotels or night-clubs should count on shucking out anything from $50 to $100. There are a few places advertised at $5 to $7.50 a plate, but a majority are $10 and $15 a plate. One that I know of has announced its tariff as $25.

This seems an exceptional fee for dancing several hours on a postage stamp floor while having one's ribs caved in. True, you get dinner, a 15 cent paper hat, a lot of confetti, and music, plus the tumult of a noisy, carefree crowd, but you can get this any other night for less than a third the holiday fee.

THE ROSE BOWL TEAMS HAVE BEEN THREE OFTEN

Drinks are always extra, and at 60 cents to $1 a throw it doesn't take 4 people long to run through a $20 bill. Wines and champagne will come from $5 to $15 a bottle. Add transportation—taxi fares, plus hotel accommodations, and Pasadena, Calif. (AP)—Rose Bowl competition is an old story to Alabama and California, rivals here January 1, 1938. Alabama has played in four of the classics and California in three. Here are their Bowl records:

your weekly salary sails right out the window. Incidentally, the dancing space in the New York clubs is seldom larger than your living room. About 14 by 16 feet. For this there are from 500 to 1,000 dancers. Don't forget your shoulderpads.

It's getting so now a body doesn't know which way to turn. For instance, Mr. Walter Winchell, the Broadway columnist, had this to say the other day: "Freddie Bartholomew, whose soprano voice hasn't changed yet, sounds like a grown woman via the networks."

Then along comes Miss Louella Parsons, the Hollywood columnist, with this announcement: "Freddie Bartholomew's voice is changing and they are in a panic at Metro—Goldwyn—Mayer, for 'Boystown' is set to go into production next month... Personally, I think it would be charming to let Freddie play his part even if the crack in his voice becomes discernible."

Whither, Freddie, high C or bass?

Many of the bars, clam stubes, and restaurants use sawdust on the floor. We often wondered where all the sawdust came from, sawmills being a rarity on the island, until Ganzl, whose Palm restaurant on 2nd avenue is a sawduster, explained: "There's a fellow in New York who makes a business of delivering sawdust in New York. He has a regular trade route and retails it at 50 cents a potato sack. He calls with the milkman twice a week and dumps the order on the sidewalk."

However, he doesn't have to import it or sweep up a sawmill to obtain his product. He gets all the sawdust he wants from the liners that dock in East River. These big freighters line their holds with sawdust because it makes good insulation for the shipment of fruit and produce. He started out with a pushcart and now has half a dozen trucks.
