

MERRY CHRISTMAS

JAPS TIGHTEN CORDON ABOUT ANOTHER CITY

Americans and Other Foreigners Told to Leave Hangkow

NANKING UNDER OBSCURE CLIQUE

Former Chinese Capital, However, Held by Japanese Army-Sponsored Govt.

Shanghai, Dec. 23.—(AP)—A new "autonomous commission" manned by obscure Chinese, but sponsored by the Japanese army, held sway in conquered Nanking today, while Japanese forces drew a cordon tighter about Hangchow, capital of Chekiang province, 100 miles southwest of Shanghai.

American and other foreigners were warned by Japanese to flee Hangchow before Japanese columns riding toward the city from northwest, north and east completed their conquest. Five Americans and 26 other foreigners were believed to be in Hangchow.

97 Americans fleeing war threats in Central China were among 300 refugees who started by an international "Christmas Express" train from Hankow on the middle Yangtze for Canton and Hsinchong.

Three hundred more Americans were prepared to board American war ships in Tsingtao harbor, 390 miles north of here, if a feared Japanese attack on that Shantung province port materialized.

Japanese officials indicated the new Nanking commission was intended primarily to be an administrative unit for the Nanking district, taking over local functions of the regime of General Chiang Kai-Shek, which fled the former capital of all China a month ago.

Mrs. J. B. Kittrell Winner Of Prize

Mrs. J. B. Kittrell of 809 West Fifth street was awarded first prize in the best decorated home contest, a judging committee from the Woman's club, representing various organizations in the city, decided after an inspection of all residences here tonight.

Second prize was awarded Mrs. J. B. White of 307 Greene street. The judges commented favorably on the day-time effect of the decorations at Mrs. White's home.

Third prize went to Mrs. J. T. Cheatham of 509 West Fourth street. The originality and appeal to children was especially effective at the Cheatham residence.

Although only three prizes were offered, members of the committee declared that honorable mention should be given to the doorways of the homes of Mrs. Jesse Smith and Mrs. J. S. Ficklen.

The winner of first prize, Mrs. Kittrell, was given a cash award of $10; a $5 bill went to Mrs. White for winning second prize and Mrs. Cheatham, winner of third prize, was awarded $2.50.

Vandenberg Halts Talk Of Candidacy

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 23 (AP)—Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R, Mich) was quoted as saying today he was not a candidate for President in 1940 and "I do not intend to be at any time in the future."

The senator arrived from Washington today with Mrs. Vandenberg and sailed immediately on a fishing trip in the Florida Keys.

Christmas Seal

The tuberculosis Christmas seal attached to this issue of The Reflector was provided by the Welfare department of the Woman's club, Mrs. Hortense Moyer, chairman.

The purpose behind the plan was two-fold. To wish subscribers a merry Christmas and also to aid in the campaign against the dread disease.

Ford Held Guilty In NLRB Ruling Of Violating Act.

Firm Declared Openly Hostile to Unionized Labor

COMPANY STATES DECISION BIASED

Pres. Homer Martin of UAWA Declares Ruling Should Serve as Lesson

Washington, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The National Labor Relations Board, deciding today the Ford Motor Company violated the Wagner labor disputes acts, declared that the concern showed unconcealed hostility to unionization.

This antagonism, the board said was brought him to workers "through the employment of hired thugs to terrorize and beat union members" and through other acts of "correction."

The board ordered the company to reinstate 29 employees, who the decision said, were discharged for union activity in violation of the Wagner act. The company was directed to stop discouraging membership in the United Automobile Workers or any other union.

A Ford Motor Company statement, issued at Detroit, said the decision was "vicious and unjust" and that an appeal would be taken to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Homer Martin, UAWA president, said "the decisions should teach Ford the never to be forgotten lesson that the vast industrial empire he so autocratically controlled must be itself to the inevitable development of modern industry, namely the Emergence and Permanence of Labor Unions."

The decision resulted from complaints through UAWA, a CIO union.

From the mass of testimony in proceedings two facts stand out: The unconcealed hostility with which the Ford Motor Company viewed bona fide labor organizations and the utter ruthlessness with which it has fought the organization of its employees," the board said.

The respondent (The Ford Company) not only through public interviews and statements, but through the direct circulation of anti-union literature within its plants has made its antagonism to labor organizations so evident that no employee whose economic life is at its mercy can fail to comprehend it.

West Name Barred From Radio Chain

New York, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Word went out from the National Broadcasting Company today to keep the name of Mae West out of all programs over which it has control.

Issued privately to 16 stations in 12 cities, the order was designed to forestall any joking references that might be made to the widely discussed "Adam and Eve" sketch broadcast from Hollywood December 12.

An exception probably would be made in the event Miss West figured in a new broadcast.

The sketch in which the buxom actress made one of her ineffectual appearances aroused a storm of criticism particularly from religious groups and provoked talk in congress of tighter radio regulations.

Tar Heel Farmers To Give Opinions

Raleigh, Dec. 23.—(AP)—North Carolina farmers have been invited to confer with Congressman Harold Cooley in Nashville December 30 on farm legislation. E. F. Arnold, executive secretary of the State Farm Bureau federation announced tonight.

W. F. Woodruff of Nash county federation vice president, arranged the meeting with the House Agriculture committee, Arnold said, for a discussion of possible compromise between the house and the senate versions of the new farm bill.

Singer of Psalms

The nationally-famed Jesse Phillips-Robertson, above, will present a program at a joint service at the Methodist church Sunday night after Christmas. Greenville people will remember Mr. Robertson's visit here two years ago, when an overflow crowd attended the service.

MANY TO HEAR PSALM SINGER

Program To Be Presented at Methodist Church Sunday

It is expected that the largest congregation of the holiday season will tax the seating capacity of the local Methodist church to the fullest Sunday night after Christmas when national-famed Jesse Phillips-Robertson, popularly known as the Singer of Psalms, presents his program entitled The Christmas Story.

Greenville people will remember how two years ago an overflow audience greeted the Singer of Psalms on his first visit here, and are looking forward eagerly to this program as a fitting climax to the celebration of the Nativity of Christ.

The Christmas Story as Mr. Robertson presents it is well balanced with musical numbers. Traditional songs are sung to the accompaniment of musical instruments of the shepherd. Among these are the long-necked lute and shepherd pipes. An informal display of shepherd accessories, personally selected from Bethlehem, will follow The Christmas Story's presentation.

Mr. Robertson's program, 30 minutes in length, will be preceded by congregational singing of "O Come All Ye Faithful" and the reading of the Lukan version of the Christmas Story. The organ prelude will consist of a medley of Christmas carols.

"I went home with a sob in my heart and a thrill in my mind" is one woman's written testimonial after hearing Mr. Robertson give his amazingly beautiful portrayal of the Christmas Story.

The service, under the sponsorship of the six local churches cooperating in the union evening services, will begin at 7:30.

Kittrell Is Named On National Board

J. B. Kittrell, Greenville broker, today was named a member of Rivers and Harbors Congress, which meets once a year to discuss projects for the various states.

Mr. Kittrell tonight said that he had not been officially notified of the appointment, but declared he would be glad to serve on the board and would accept the position when he is formally advised.

He was notified by the press following dispatches received of his appointment.

URGES NATION SERVE NOTICE NO FEARS HELD

Thomas Would Have U. S. Show No Fear of Fight Held

FAVORS BETTER DEFENSE FORCES

Insists Balanced Budget Should Not Interfere with Improved Weapons

Washington, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Demand for a more powerful navy and air force to serve notice on foreign nations that the United States is not afraid of a fight came today from Chairman Taylor (D-Colo.), of the House Appropriations Committee.

He said many Americans, particularly in the west, believe this country should not submit "supinely" to Japan's "insolent treatment."

Even the desire for a balanced budget, Taylor said should not be permitted to "interfere with systematic improvement of national defenses."

Senator Borah (R. Idaho) who commented on the Far Eastern situation before Taylor spoke, declared the nation should be on guard against "war bounds" who seek to build up a belligerent psychology.

Meanwhile hopes were rising in some administration breasts that the Ludlow war referendum test in the house next session would strengthen President Roosevelt's hand in the Far Eastern situation.

These hopes depend on efforts to induce signers of a petition which is forcing the referendum proposed to the House floor to vote against it when the showdown comes. There are hints that off-stage progress in this direction already has been made by House leaders.

BEGIN HOLIDAY SEASON IN CITY

Business Firms To Close Two Days For Christmas

Greenville tonight begins observance of a two-day Christmas holiday, shorter by one day than the general Friday, Saturday, Sunday rest period last year, but one day or day and half more than usually is observed.

A few offices were closed today, but most employees had to wait until tonight to begin their holiday. Stores had anticipated a last minute Christmas rush today and were prepared to take care of the thousands of late shoppers.

Many would-be shoppers were kept home yesterday by the rainy weather and this fact was expected to result in an even bigger shopping day than otherwise would have been experienced.

All county office workers and part of the city employees were to end their week's labors at noon today.

With it apparent that the highways will be crowded, Lieut. Lester Jones, head of Troop A issued a warning to all motorists to drive carefully during the holidays.

Among the places of business to begin the Christmas holiday early (Continued on Page Eight)

Tarboro, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Tom Crisp, 50 of Pinetops, was killed and four persons were injured in an automobile collision near here yesterday.

Holiday Cheer Brought To Needy In Community

Generous Spirit Evidenced Throughout Greenville

Hundreds of persons who had little to look forward to this Christmas will have a much brighter holiday because of the generous spirit of those in better circumstances.

A large number of benevolent programs have been carried out to bring happiness to the needy and destitute in the community. This year the Thrift Shop had charge of the list of Opportunities and a score or so of needy families were provided with food, clothing and (Continued on page eight)

JAPS FRAMING REPLY TO U. S.

Military Officials Confer With American Ambassador

Tokyo, Dec. 23.—(AP)—High officers of the Japanese army and navy tonight conferred with the American Ambassador in a last minute effort to frame a reply that would meet the United States' demands for full amends for the sinking of the gunboat Panay.

It was indicated that the reply, probably in two sections, would be presented tomorrow and Saturday and that it would meet all points of the American representations on the sinking of the warship in the Yangtze river December 2 by Japanese war planes.

The conference with Ambassador Joseph Grew was described authoritatively as most cordial.

Participants were said to believe prospects bright for final settlement of the American-Japanese crisis over the sinking of the vessel.

Chief of Police George Clark declared last night that so far the Christmas holidays had been the quietest in many years.

When called as a check-up on activities of the police department, the chief declared that everything was quiet and added "I wish you could comment on this—it is something unusual."

Chief Clark said that officers were not bothering persons exploding firecrackers on their own premises and declared that there had been very little shooting of fireworks on the streets.

"If we continue to receive the same cooperation, we, in turn, will cooperate," he said.

ANOTHER STILL IS DESTROYED

ABC Officers And Belvoir Constable Cut Down Plant

J. M. Ward and J. L. Taylor, special officers employed by the Pitt County ABC board, working in cooperation with Moses Tyson, Constable of Belvoir township, Thursday afternoon, located a still in operation in the Alpines section and arrested two men.

The two arrested were Paul Whitehurst, 26 year old white man, and Henry Watson, 52 year old Negro. The two were charged with illegally manufacturing whiskey.

The still, a steam plant, had a capacity of 50 gallons. It was in operation when the officers came upon it and 12 gallons of whiskey already had been run. Four hundred gallons of beer was found about the still.

In recent months the two Pitt County ABC officers have been unusually active in locating and destroying stills. On numerous occasions they have worked with Beaufort county ABC officers and have cut down stills just across the Pitt county line.

It was explained that officers of the two counties work together because they are unable to tell whether they are in Beaufort or Pitt county when searching stills along creeks and in dense woods. It also was explained that it is believed that a good quantity of the bootleg whiskey brought into this county comes from Beaufort county and the source will be cut off by destroying stills in that county.

Three persons were known dead and minor damage to buildings and streets was widespread.

Springings of both Seismographs in the National and Central observatories were broken, but the National's director determined the tremor must have been of dangerous intensity at its center.

Though communications in the interior were interrupted by the first shock, reports received said damage was little. At least 10 southern states felt the shock.

One aged woman was killed here when the roof of her house fell in and crushed her. Two men were electrocuted by broken high tension wires.

Known narcotic addicts in the British Isles totaled 616 at the end of 1936, the Home Office reports.

CITADEL STILL IN POSSESSION OF INSURGENTS

Four Hundred Rebels Hold Out Against Loyalists

LITTLE HOPE OF HOLDING GROUND

Buildings Held By Small Band of Insurgents Include Seminary, Barracks

Teruel, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Four hundred insurgents in half a dozen buildings connected by underground passages still held out tonight against the Government captors of Teruel.

They fired continuously with machine guns and rifles from their shell-shattered refuge in what Minister of National Defense Indalecio Prieto called a forlorn hope they would be rescued.

Prieto, speaking in a voice almost drowned out by the rattle of nearby machine guns and other firing, said "There is no hope for them now. There is no possible outlet. The nearest front is now from six to seven and a half miles away."

Buildings held by the insurgents included a seminary and the civil guard barracks. The besieged 400 were believed to have plenty of food but little ammunition, no water and no light.

Senator Thomas (D. Okla.) asserted today there was widespread dissatisfaction among Southern and Southwestern farmers about cotton provisions of the house and senate farm bills.

Thomas, a member of the senate Agriculture committee, said he had received "many complaints" concerning compulsory crop control features.

The two bills now are in conference.

"The farm bill which the conferees eventually will bring out will bring out will bring out will accomplish no more than the present soil Conservation Act," Thomas predicted. "In addition it will have compulsory control of production, a feature that is objectionable to many farmers."

Senator McGill (D. Kan), member of the conference committee, said he believed house and senate differences on the cotton section of the bills would be "the hardest to work out."

Mrs. Mary R. Teel Claimed By Death

Mrs. Mary R. Teel, 77, died at her home near House Station at 2:15 o'clock Thursday afternoon following a critical illness of three weeks.

Funeral services will be held this (Friday) afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence, with Rev. W. A. Ryan, pastor of Eighth Street Christian church, Greenville, in charge. Burial will be in Cherry Hill cemetery here.

Mrs. Teel is survived by one granddaughter, Miss Mary Rachel Teel of Greenville; one nephew, Noah Wainwright of House Station; and two nieces, Miss Claudie Wainwright of near House Station, and Mrs. Arthur Mayo of Greenville.

Mrs. Teel, the widow of W. A. Teel, was a member of the Mount Pleasant Christian church. She spent practically her entire life in the Mount Pleasant community.

Active pallbearers will be J. E. Smith, Dr. J. E. Nobles, Harvey Briley, Arthur, Roland and Mike Mayo.

Known narcotic addicts in the British Isles totaled 616 at the end of 1936, the Home Office reports.

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

Hollywood—Most trick of film set-tings is gack-stage where the show must go on and on and on.
A picture choosing this setting starts under a handicap it must work hard to overcome. It is to the credit of "You're a Sweetheart" that it entertains and seldom has to work too hard to do it.
The picture, starring Alice Faye with George Murphy, has so much that a musical should have that its total effect is quite pleasant. Hummable tunes, fine settings, good dancing, good "specialties," a share of freshness in "gags" and situations, and general brightness and good humor characterize the piece.
Universal borrowed its headliner (Miss Faye and Director David Butler from 20th Century-Fox, Murthy from Metro), and injected into the proceedings its own and other borrowed talent—Ken Murray and his radio companion Oswald, Andy Devine, Frank Jenks, Frances Hunt and Casper Reardon, who does things to harp.
The final "production number"—a murder trial in swing time—is the smartest of several. Good gag: Andy Devine, proving to Oswald that seven times 13 is 23.

Myrna Loy in Bright Comedy.
Often film titles are changed for no reason. "The Four Marys" has become "Man-Proof" for good cause, as a note from Metro explains—"In the final script there weren't any Marys."
Despite this lack, "Man-Proof" unrolls as a smartly diverting comedy of modern manners and morals, a little on the sophisticated side but with plenty of mass appeal.
Myrna Loy loses Walter Pidgeon to Rosalind Russell, but plans to recapture him after their honeymoon. She will be very above-board about it, and as frank as she is in discussing the situation with Nana Bryant, her wise and modern mother who merely suggests the procedure will be unfortunate. So Myrna gets a job instead, and is convinced she doesn't love Walter any Washington — Switchboards in the capitol's "national" telephone exchange burst into a rash of red lights.

The navy code-room is calling Secretary of State Hull. Hull takes the message, hangs up and puts in two calls; one to the White House and one to the naval observatory. "The White House call is through," "Mr. President," says Hull quietly.

"I have to inform you that our gunboat, the Panay, was sunk in the Yangtze today 25 miles above Nanking."
The President's crisp voice inquires whether anyone was killed. "We can't tell yet, sir. We think not. The survivors are at Hohen."
As soon as he hangs up, Hull's phone rings again. Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, who lives at the naval observatory, is on the wire. Hull repeats his message.

DARE TO DREAM

BY ALICE MARIE DODGE

The Characters

Nelda, a beautiful, courageous girl, is running a lettuce farm to make her personal dreams come true.

Bill, a tanned, young lettuce farmer, clashes frequently with Nelda.

Reck, blond, gay and wealthy, makes a big play for Nelda.

Mrs. Reckless, Reck's cold and arrogant mother, thinks no girl is good enough for Reck.

Chapter 16

Nelda Entertains

"NELDA BARRIE, where did you get such grand Italian food away out here?" Claire asked.

"An Italian neighbor cooked it." The young people chatted so gaily at the table and so thoroughly enjoyed the food that Nelda felt the party was going to be a real success.

But after lunch their spirits seemed to drop. Although she tried to be gay and amusing, they all looked as if they were concealing yawns.

"Would you like to go up into the hills?" she asked in desperation. They agreed listlessly.

Reck's attentions to Nelda, as they trudged side by side, were all that could be desired. He was de-before she'd eat a bite that woman cooked.

There was nothing for Nelda to do but use the vegetable salad she'd planned for tomorrow's lunch. Mrs. Jeffers didn't take very kindly to the extra work and her resentment was reflected in the manner in which she served the meal. Nelda trembled in fear that she might leave before the end of the party.

The Powells arrived shortly after eight all set to play bridge. But Nelda's other guests didn't want to play bridge. They wanted to dance to the music from the radio. Nelda didn't care so long as they were entertained. Besides, she found it pleasant dancing in Reck's arms.

"You're a marvelous dancer," she whispered to him during a bewitching waltz.

"Not bad yourself," he answered and kissed her on the ear.

She was glad that all her guests chose to sleep late next morning because she wouldn't have known how to keep them amused until lunch time.

After breakfast she took them into the field to show them the tiny lettuce plants. They were only politely interested. The rest of the morning dragged.

A Violent Intrusion

They were just about to sit down to lunch when a great commotion arose in the kitchen. Running feet, excited voices. Then vision itself. She saw it was making an impression on her guests. She would have been less than human if she hadn't experienced a glow of triumph.

They struck deeper into the woods.

The walk was doing something to her friends. They seemed happy, exploring the mountain trail. The blood came into their cheeks and they laughed and shouted gaily to each other.

They struck deeper into the cool, shadowy gloom of the pines and finally came to a huge, cleared piece that once had been the estate of a cattle baron.

As they stood at the big front window looking upon a rich valley spread out many miles below, Reck spoke at Nelda's shoulder.

"Glad we didn't live in the horse and buggy days, aren't you?" Amusement colored his tone.

She said nothing. Her thoughts were on the old days. In fancy she could see venerable padres on burros traveling over the rugged high-ways of a century ago.

She made a lovely picture, standing there lost in thought. She looked far too young, too slender and delicate to be managing a ranch.

There was something about her whole aspect that was deliciously earnest and sweet. Every masculine eye was upon her.

"Let's get going," Val suggested. Nelda wished that her whole party could be staged outdoors, the guests seemed to enjoy it so much.

Dancing With Reck

WITH Mrs. Jeffers in the kitchen, Nelda expected dinner to go off as smoothly as lunch, but she received a shock upon reaching home. The instant she saw Mrs. Jeffers' face she knew something was wrong. She took her guests into the living room, then hastened to the kitchen without removing her wraps.

"It's not my fault!" Mrs. Jeffers burst out.

"What?"

"That woman kept comin' out here and nibblin' at that salad until there's not enough left to go round."

Instantly Nelda knew that Laura was the culprit.

"An' her supposed to be sick!" Mrs. Jeffers rushed on. "Lazy is what I'd call it."

"I am not!" This from Laura who stood in the doorway. "I've got a sore back and now I'm afraid I'm takin' cold."

She flounced angrily to her room, muttering that she'd starve

Maria Moresi plunged into the dining room, her face chalky white. She was followed by a lanky young man. His sparseness was accentuated by a high checker collar and a double breasted suit. His face was ghastly with fear.

"She keel us!" Maria shouted hysterically.

"What's the trouble, Maria?" Nelda went to the girl who was now weeping wildly.

"We got married yesterday," the young man said, "and her mother's like a maniac."

Mrs. Moresi's voice, raised in anger, penetrated from the kitchen. Maria's bridegroom ungallantly fled through a side door. Maria followed no less precipitously.

They were scarcely outside when Mrs. Moresi appeared in the doorway that led from the kitchen, a rifle in her hands, her black eyes snapping fire.

"He make fool of my girl!" she shouted. "Fake jewelry!"

"Everyone wears that kind of jewelry these days, Mrs. Moresi. Costume jewelry, they call it. Nelda tried to make her voice soothing, but she was crimson with humiliation over this rude interruption.

"He keep my Maria away all night!"

"They're married, Mrs. Moresi."

"How you know?"

"They wouldn't have come back together if they weren't."

Mrs. Moresi grew quieter as she digested this.

"Yeah—mebbe." A sudden embarrassment overwhelmed her as she evidently became conscious of the violence of her intrusion.

"Scuse me, please." She left, carrying the gun under her arm.

Nelda didn't miss the fact that her guests exchanged significant looks, with the exception of Claire who came to Nelda and silently slipped a hand through her arm.

"I didn't dream that you lived in such an environment, Nelda," Harvey drawled.

Nelda saw Claire give him a sharp look. Claire might be care-free, unconsciously selfish, but her loyalty was precious.

Reck was very quiet, Nelda noted, and divined that he was mortified because the girl he'd singled out for his attentions was subject to such neighbors.

Oh, what an end to her party, she thought miserably!

Nelda's party drags to an end, tomorrow.

It's Odd But It's Science

New York — Virginia hospitality strikes down what may be the last barrier between science and the newspapers.

Newspaper reporters have had a hard time to gain entree into the scientific precincts everywhere. This has been almost as hard on the news writers as on the scientists.

Recently came a time when science agreed that a science news writer was persona grata. But science in some quarters even today maintains doubts about an "ordinary reporter" telling its story, and tries not to think about "sob sisters."

Now Virginia is preparing for the great American derby of science—the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science during Christmas week of 1938. It takes place in Richmond.

In preparation, it is announced, the Richmond scientists have planned for the science writers not only a press room, not only a retiring room in connection, but also a private bar.

SANTA WHITE FOX
 BY SIGRID ARNE

THE STORY SO FAR:—Two of Santa's dolls, Helga and a sailor, are returning to Toyland with the Fairy Queen after exciting adventures in which the sailor rescued Helga from a cruel white fox.
 Chapter 23
THE FAIRY QUEEN'S SECRET
 Santa was so pleased when he saw the sailor's ice-boat swing up to his door he dumped two bags of dolls he was carrying and rushed to the boat shouting:
 "So you escaped the fox! I told Mrs. Santa you would. Come in."
 He picked up the sailor and Helga in one hand, and the Fairy Queen in his other, and rushed into the toyshop. Mrs. Santa came running from the kitchen wiping her hands.
 "Look, Santa, what the sailor has brought you," said Helga. The sailor pulled that pretty silver acorn and the silver chain from his pocket, and said, "Santa, this is a present from the squirrel village that lies west of here in the woods."
 "My gracious! For me?" said Santa. He was so pleased he snapped the chain right onto his big watch and went to look at himself in the mirror.
 New Fairies
 When he turned around the Fairy Queen said, "Santa, I have a plan for Helga and the sailor. I guess you know they don't want to go down to the world as gifts," she said.
 Santa chuckled. "Indeed I do. I don't know how I came to make such dolls."
 "You also know they both like the sea," said the Fairy Queen. "Even Helga has become a sailor."
 "You don't say," chuckled Santa, and he gently tugged one of her curls. "This little thing?"
 Helga looked so excited. She could hardly wait to hear the Fairy Queen's plan.
 "This is my plan," said the Fairy Queen. "You know that on stormy nights I send people from my kingdom to ride the ships of good men and bring them safely through to port."
 "Yes, and it's a fine, kind work," said Santa.
 "Well, I should like to take Helga and the sailor into my kingdom to do just that," said the Queen.
 "We'd love it," chorused Helga and the sailor. "Santa, may we

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine
By Iago Galdston, M.D.

Nervous Exhaustion—1

As many of us are potential victims of nervous exhaustion, it is good to note closely those personality and behavior patterns which help to develop the exhaustion state.

To begin with, what may cause condition is some organic disease nervous exhaustion? One evident watch slowly or acutely saps the patient's vitality, and which may also interfere with his energy-regeneration mechanism.

Another possible cause is the excessive (functional) drain of energy, the unreasonable and unbalanced expenditure of energy during everyday life and activity. In a word, "spending beyond income."

Frequently, of course, both of these conditions operate together so that the patient suffering from nervous exhaustion may be found, upon examination, to suffer from a variety of physical ailments, as we, as a multitude of unwise behavior practices which dissipate his nervous energy.

It is no small task to determine to what extent nervous exhaustion is to be charged to each of these two causes. However, as Dr. Charles L. Hartscock observes in a recent paper in the Cleveland Clinical Quarterly, many of the symptoms that point, indefinitely, to organic disease, are a result, rather than a cause, of the exhausted state.

But then, nervous exhaustion is a non too well defined complex of symptoms.

A person in the early stages of nervous exhaustion is likely to feel markedly fatigued and to show increasing irritability, as well as a distinct change in disposition. Toward the end of the day, he frequently feels an urgent need for a stimulant to help him keep up his usual pace.

Noting that he is slipping somewhat, he tends to drive himself harder. In consequence, he soon becomes even more irritable. He finds it difficult to fall asleep. He notices a marked inability to concentrate and to make decisions with his customary promptness.

Later, he may develop digestive disturbances, and if he is foolish enough to experiment with his diet, he is likely to lose weight.

SMITH OIL-BURNING TOBACCO CURERS

The Importance of Saving Our Forest to Our Tobacco Farmers
Wake Up to Your Tobacco Curing Needs!

- Who should I call for information?

Answers

- Absolutely not! We are pleased to contact you for demonstration free
- Yes! Our experienced men install burners and instruct you thoroughly how to operate.

SPECIAL 5% DISCOUNT

ON OIL BURNERS BOUGHT AND PAID FOR BY JANUARY 1ST.

Gentlemen:
With reference to the use of your Oil Burning Tobacco Curers, I wish to advise that we are very well pleased with every unit we operate. The performance of the burners are excellent. The operation of same is very simple, the fire hazard is almost nil. Our barns were loaded pretty full this year. We experienced no discolored or swelled stems on any tobacco cured with your burner.
I am grateful to your District Manager, Mr. J. A. Mills, for selling us Smith Burners.

can kill out much quicker than with wood.
W. K. STOKES,
Greenville, N. C.

Gentlemen:
I am pleased to forward you this letter in appreciation of the splendid service I have had from your system used in my tobacco curing barns.
I feel that I am qualified to speak, both from a farmer's and warehouse man's point of view, and I have had years of experience at both the production and the selling of tobacco.
My curing since using your system have been much more satisfactory in every respect. It is not only possible, but much easier to run a uniform heat, which naturally produces a more uniform color. I have observed this throughout the present selling season not only in the tobacco's which were placed on sale by the writer but in the tobacco's offered by friends who use your system. There seems to be in these tobacco's a finer texture than in the tobacco cured with the old system.

Another feature which is especially attractive to me and should be to all farmers is the fact that in using your system we are conserving our forest. In the writer's opinion this feature has not been given the thought by the tobacco growing farmers that it should have had. Those of us who have given this any thought realize that we need forest protection for our tobacco friends, in that it gives us wind and other storm protection.
Yours very truly,
B. L. BRANCH,
Greenville, N. C.

Dear Sirs:
I bought one set of your Oil Burning Tobacco Curers this year through your dealer, Mr. J. A. Mills, Greenville, N. C. The operation was so perfect, the color and texture of tobacco so much better and finer because of the even heat which is only obtainable with your Oil System, that I have decided to install them in my twelve other barns.

I am glad to add my endorsement of your Tobacco Curers for the benefit of any farmer who is interested in better methods of curing.
OSCAR HARDEE,
Greenville, N. C.

Gentlemen:
This year I bought from your dealer, Mr. J. A. Mills, Greenville, N. C., five of your Oil Burning Tobacco Curers. I found them to be all that they were represented to be and even more so. The quality of tobacco was much better and so satisfactory in every way, I shall equip the remainder of my barns with them.
I gladly recommend them to any farmer for curing better grades of tobacco.
LEON T. HARDEE,
Greenville, N. C.

Dear Mr. Mills:
Two years ago I bought one of your oil burners to cure tobacco. We had a very poor crop but we could cure our tobacco better with the oil than the old wood way. This year we had a better crop and I find the Oil burner so much better, that I expect to install them in all my barns.
My curer says if I will put oil burners in the other seven barns (making 8 barns), I need not give him anyone to relieve him, which will be a great saving.
Wishing you every success, I am,
Yours very truly,
W. H. DAIL, Jr.,
Greenville, N. C.

Dear Sirs:
I bought several sets of your Oil Burning Curers this year through your agent, J. A. Mills, and am glad to say they gave perfect satisfaction. It is a real pleasure to cure tobacco with them; the grade is much better, more weight and better texture. Any farmer interested will do well to investigate the Smith's Curers.

A. M. MOSELEY,
Greenville, N. C.

Dear Sirs:
I am glad to add my best indorsement of your Smith's Oil Burning Tobacco Curers. I bought eight sets this year through your agent, J. A. Mills, and am well satisfied with them.
I have used other makes of Curers, but will surely buy Smith's Curers next time, which I expect to do before another season.
R. S. ELKS,
Greenville, N. C.

Gentlemen:
I have been using your Smith's Oil Burning Tobacco Curers for the past three years and find that they are superior to any other method of curing I have ever heard about. They cure tobacco faster and better in every way; the tobacco cured by your oil-burners has a better texture and more weight than the same tobacco taken from the same field and cured by the same man at the same time than any other method I know of.

A. B. MOYE,
Kinston, N. C.

Dear Sirs:
I bought this year through your dealer, Mr. J. A. Mills, Greenville, N. C., one set of Smith's Oil Burning Tobacco Curers. They gave perfect satisfaction in every way, curing much better grades than with the old flue curing method. In fact, I was so well pleased with their operation that I have decided to buy TEN MORE SETS for next season. I gladly recommend them to my farmer friends.
CLAUD HADDOCK,

TIDE TOSSERS MAY WIN TILT

Alabama May Gamble With Rose Bowl Contest

By DILLON GRAHAM
AP Feature Service Writer

New York—Alabama, although lacking another Dixie Howell-Don Hutson combination, is still likely to gamble its Rose Bowl chances on an aerial attack.

Although the pass hasn't been a feature of the Crimson offensive, Alabama has used it to good advantage to score eight of its 33 touchdowns.

This southern team hasn't the weight nor the power of Alabama's former bowl contenders and, some critics feel, it may be unable to cope with California on the ground and may have to go into the air.

Howell's passing to Hutson highlighted Alabama's victory over Stanford three years ago.

California this year has used the pass comparatively little.

"Football teams are passing too much," observed Stubby Allison, California coach, at the start of the season. "The trend seems to be to play to fancy. We're going back to fundamentals."

Repertoire Of 14 Plays
And Allison stuck to that theme, even in California's toughest con-effective enough to win. The Bears won nine games and tied one while using just 14 plays, fairly simple but beautifully executed. Whether Allison may spring anything new in the Rose Bowl—especially in the way of a wide open game—is not known, but his aides think not.

In seven conference games, California gained 1,666 yards from scrimmage to opponents' 701. But in passing, California had only 347 yards to 334 for its rivals.

Touchdowns came chiefly from sustained drives. Only one forward pass figured in the two touchdown marches of 65 and 76 yards against Stanford.

California's best plays have been half spinners, that look simple but open holes for substantial gains.

Whatever passing California may do will be done by Vic Botari, with All-America Halfback Sam Chapman and Perry Schwartz, an end, as receivers.

The Statistics

California threw 62 passes, completed 18 and had six intercepted. Rivals tossed 104, completed 28 and had 19 intercepted.

Alabama threw 86, completed 34 for 517 yards. Its opponents threw 120, completed 39 for 453 yards.

Joe Kilgore, the Crimson's all-round ace, has done most of the pitching, completing 20 out of 57.

But there's a sophomore, Herky Mosley, whom they are touting at Tuscaloosa as another Howell in the making. He had a 500 batting average in his 26 passes this season.

It's quite possible that Alabama may employ both in the backfield giving more deception to its air raids, for Kilgore also is an excellent receiver.

1937 HOURLY WAGE WAS ABOVE 1929

New York, (AP)—The man on the street—the average American worker in the manufacturing industries—made more money per hour in 1937 than he did in 1929, but, because of shortened hours of labor, he earned less per week.

As computed by the National Industrial Conference Board, a research organization supported by large corporations, the average hourly wage, for the ten months ended October 31, was 61.7 cents. In 1929 it was 59 cents.

By the week, the 1937 average was $27.52 in 1929 it was $23.55. The 1937 depression figures were 49.8 cents an hour and $17.05 a week.

Bishop Of Raleigh

In ceremonies at Philadelphia, the Most Reverend Eugene Joseph McGuinness (above) was consecrated as Bishop of Raleigh in North Carolina. He has been general secretary of the Catholic Church Extension Society.

Auto Output Near 1929

New York, (AP)—Assembly lines pushed automobile output in 1937 to the second highest figure in history, turning out an estimated 3,000,000 cars and trucks. Ward's Automotive Reports, Inc., gives the 1936 production at 4,616,000, 1932 at 4,831,000 and 1929 at 5,622,000.

In 1930 there were 138,834 Japanese and 74,954 Chinese in the United States.
