U.S. NATIONALS MADE SUBJECT TO JAP RULES

May Be Executed For Crimes Against Armed Forces

NEW REGULATION FOR ALL PERSONS

Japanese Occupation of Tsinan, Capital of Shantung Province, Completed

Shanghai, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Americans were made subject to the death penalty today for crimes against Japan's armed forces under a Japanese decree, establishing rigid law for China's conquered areas.

New rules and regulations for all persons "including the National's or third powers" in Japanese controlled areas apparently raised the question of the treaty rights of other foreign powers in China.

A Japanese spokesman acknowledged that the measure put Americans and other foreigners under Japanese military law, which provided death for acts against Japan's armed forces.

A tugboat carrying Japanese troops was attacked by an unidentified grenade thrower on Soochow creek, a few hours after the rules were promulgated.

One Japanese soldier was wounded in the hand when one of three grenades exploded. The spokesman said the Japanese held their fire, depending on settlement police to arrest the thrower.

The Japanese army announced the complete occupation of Tsinan, capital of Shantung province, and the seventh Chinese provincial capital to fall to Japanese forces.

Tsinan was the objective of one of several Japanese columns that swarmed across the Yellow River over the week-end with the evident purpose of adding all Shantung to Japan's zone of conquest.

Declares Holiday Quietest In Years

No city police court was held this morning, there being only a few cases on the docket and behind this fact lies what may be considered a real story.

Chief of Police George Clark reported the Christmas holidays were the quietest he had experienced during his tenure of office.

"With the exception of fireworks, we have no complaint at all on the behavior of holiday celebrants," declared Chief Clark.

He said there was "very little" public drunkenness and "brawls."

This little knee-high motortruck, shown during a demonstration run at the Fort Benning Infantry School, Ga., constitutes the army's two man gang. Officially known as the Howie machine gun carrier after its designer, Captain Robert G. Howie, it is capable of a speed of 28 miles an hour, offers a minimum target, and lets two machine gunners do the work of eight. Private Tom M. Newberry is at the machine gun, while Corporal Berry W. Russell (right) does the driving.

FISH REBUKES LONDON VIEWS

Endorsement of Roosevelt Foreign Policy Scored

Washington, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Former Governor A. M. Landon's recent endorsement of President Roosevelt's foreign policies brought a sharp rebuke today from Representative Fish (R. N. Y.) ranking minority member of the house Foreign Affairs committee.

Governor Landon, who knows less than nothing about international issues and amply demonstrated that fact in the last campaign," Fish said, "rushed to the defense of the President, slaming members of Congress without the faintest knowledge of the situation."

Although he asserted "all Americans, regardless of party affiliations should applaud the able handling of the Panay incident by Secretary Hull," Fish declared the international "motives and moves" of the President "must be analyzed and tested without regard to partisanship."

YELLOW AND BLACK LEAD LICENSE COLORS

San Francisco.—(AP)—Yellow and black, praised by experts for clear visibility, are the most popular colors for auto license tags in 1938. Ten states have adopted them according to the California State Automobile Association.

Black and white, most popular combination of 1937, are being used by only five states in the new year.

Employees Share Profits Of Local Bottling Firm

A share of the increased profit from operation employed by the Orange Crush Bottling Company, bottlers of Orange Crush and Pepsi-Cola and distributors for other drinks, last year proved both profitable and satisfactory to management and employees alike.

M. O. Minges, head of the firm, declared today that $7,500 was distributed to the 25 employees of the company last Thursday and announced that the plan would be continued. Under the set-up all employees share in the increased profits during the year.

In discussing the plan Mr. Minges declared that the loyalty and hard work of the employees enabled the firm to increase its 1937 profits over those of 1936 and added that it was only right that they should be given a portion of this increase. The $7,500 was pro-rated among the 25 employees on a basis of their salary.

Every person in the employ of the bottling company shared in the excess profits.

Mr. Minges entered business here in 1923. In March, 1936, the company moved into the new and modern plant, one of the most up-to-date bottling establishments in this section of the country. At the present time an addition is under construction to double the floor space. This addition is being built, declared Mr. Minges, to permit the installation of more machinery and enable the plant to take care of its increased business.

The new addition also will be modern in every respect, even to an air-conditioning system.

Employees of the firm expressed enthusiasm over the share of the increased profit plan and, according to the management, are taking an active interest in the business. Mr. Minges declared that he found the system also was proving of benefit to the company. He had high praise for his employees, and for their interest in the business.

To Paint Numbers On City's Streets

Three men previously unemployed this afternoon began painting home and business house numbers on streets of the city under the direction of David Bywater, New York contractor.

Under the plan Mr. Bywater said he would carry out, every place will be numbered and the occupant or owner asked to make a voluntary contribution. The amount usually contributed is 25 cents or more, it was declared.

After the number has been painted on the curb in front of a house, a collector will call by and ask for a contribution. Neither the owner or occupant, however, is obligated in any way. The contractor has no official connection with the city or any organization, but the Board of Aldermen has granted the contractor permission to carry on the work.

Mr. Bywater has been engaged in this work for four years and has marked street numbers in 151 cities and towns in 15 states.

HOOKS SEEKING TO RAISE FUND

Addresses Open Letter to Democrats of Pitt County

An open letter addressed to the men and women Democrats in Pitt county and signed by W. E. Hooks, chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee, made a plea for contributions for the party's national campaign in 1938.

The letter, dated today, follows: "As chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee, I have been designated by our State Chairman, Hon. R. Gregg Cherry, to collect funds for our national campaign in 1938, the year just ahead. Every State in the Union has been given a quota to raise and inasmuch as North Carolina has always done her part, I feel that Pitt county Democrats will do their part in raising this amount, or at least contribute their part in raising Pitt county's quota.

"The campaign closes on January 8, at which time Jackson Day Dinners will be given throughout the state, the proceeds of which will go to help swell North Carolina's quota. Any contribution from $1.00 up will be highly appreciated and I hope our Democrats here in Pitt county will help with liberal contributions sometime between now and January 8."

NEWTON BAKER RITES TUESDAY

Prominent Leaders Eulogize Former War Secretary

Cleveland, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Simple funeral services will be held tomorrow for former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, eulogized by prominent Americans today as one of the nation's great leaders.

Arrangements called for the body to lie in state with a military guard of honor in Trinity Episcopal cathedral tomorrow morning.

Mr. Baker died at his home here Christmas afternoon. He had been confined to his home by heart illness for nearly a month. He was 66 years old.

In Mr. Baker's service as Secretary of War under President Woodrow Wilson in World War days, few were closer linked with General John J. Pershing, General Pershing said today "Mr. Baker was America's greatest Secretary of War."

New York, Dec. 27.—(AP)—A specially-chartered United Airlines plane is scheduled to rush the first newsreel film of the bombing of the U. S. S. Panay from Alameda, California, to New York tomorrow and the first unedited print will be flown to Washington, it was announced today.

Norman Alley, Universal cameraman who shot the dramatic scenes of the bombing standing on the deck of the little American gunboat while it was under fire, will accompany the film on the flight.

Universal officials said the first showing of the pictures would be made within 24 hours after their arrival in New York, probably late Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

Alley, formerly of Laconia, N. H., and Chicago, was described by Universal officials as a "soldier of fortune cameraman," and "one of the top men in the profession."

WHAT IT MEANS: The Anglo-American Trade Treaty

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
Washington—There's more than meets the eye in this prospective British American trade treaty.

For instance, it is an open secret that the two nations never would have announced they were negotiating an agreement if they had not reached a tentative formula in private.

Any other course would have invited failure and a horse laugh from the rest of the world.

Then there's the prospective appointment of the New Deal's No. 1 Business Man as Ambassador to Great Britain. He is Joseph P. Kennedy, the New Dealer who has tamed Wall Street for Roosevelt once or twice, as chairman of the securities and exchange commission.

Doubtless Kenedy could help calm British business men who expect damage to follow a lowering of British tariff walls that now keep out American goods.

MADRID STILL UNDER ATTACK BY INSURGENTS

Capital City Suffers Worst Bombardment in Month

COASTAL CITIES ALSO ASSAULTED

Insurgent Troops and Civilians continue to Hold Flaming Citadel in Teruel

Madrid, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Spanish Insurgent artillery batteries continued today to shell Madrid, still shaken from a Christmas week-end bombardment, the worst and most prolonged the capital had suffered in a month.

Official figures said that in the last 48 hours 400 shells had poured into the city, killing eight persons and wounding 60.

A government dispatch reported four Insurgent warships had bombarded Castellon and Vinaroz, on the Spanish coast Sunday without inflicting much damage.

The shelling of Madrid followed one last night in which two persons were killed and 12 wounded. Meanwhile Insurgent troops and civilians held out in two flaming Citadels against Spanish government attackers in control of the rest of the ancient Aragon city of Teruel.

Government advices said the massive seminary and the bank of Spain, both on fire, still housed a defiant group of Italian officers, German officers and Spanish sympathizers of Insurgent General Francisco Franco.

No Fires In City Week-End Holiday

George Gardner, chief of the Greenville fire department, reported today that firemen were not called to a single fire during the Christmas holidays.

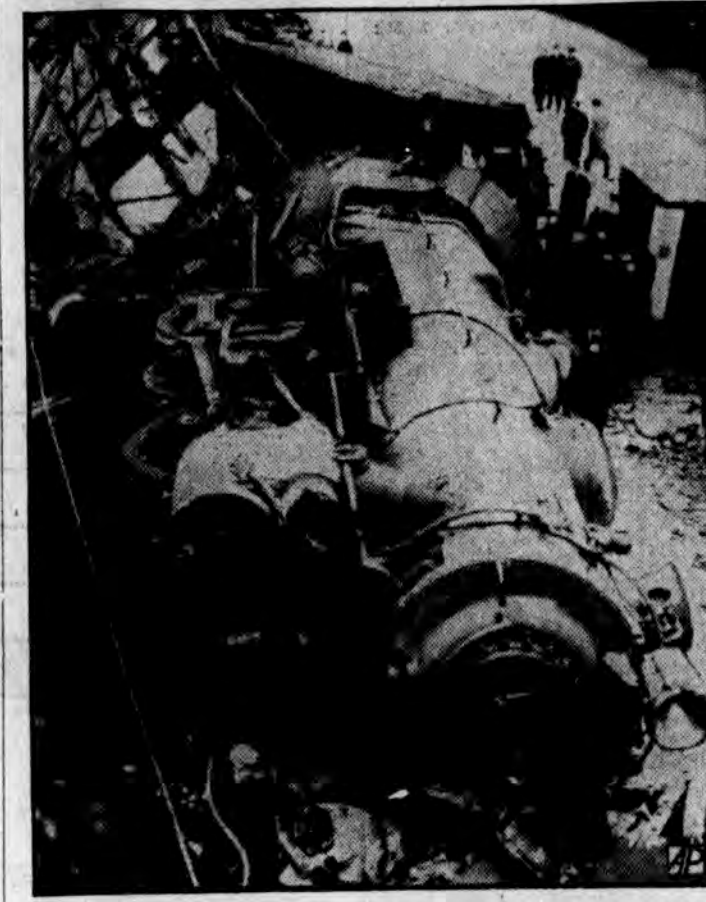

The fire chief regarded this as an unusually good record since so many people had their homes decorated for the holidays and in many instances the wiring for the lights probably was faulty.

The chief warned, however, the holiday season was not over and reiterated his warning that caution should be taken to prevent disastrous fires.

Unusual accidents occurred about three miles from Greenville on the Washington highway, when two cars said to be owned by J. T. Par-

ENGINE PLUNGE FATAL TO TWO

An engineer and a fireman were killed when a giant locomotive of a Pennsylvania Railroad express left the tracks and plunged 60 feet down a retaining wall into a Pittsburgh street. Bystanders are shown examining the wreckage after the crash. Six coaches were saved from the plunge by the snapping of a coupling.

Several Minor Wrecks Reported Over Holiday

Highway Patrolmen Kept Busy Making Investigations

Highway patrolmen located in Greenville had little time to enjoy the Christmas holidays as they were kept on the run investigating wrecks.

Most of the accidents were minor, but several persons were injured slightly and some more serious. The total property damage amounted to hundreds of dollars.

Yesterday morning, cars driven by Walter Jones, Oak City Negro, and John R. Godwin, white man of Beulahville, collided at Rose filling station on the Bethel highway in front of the prison camp entrance.

Lieut. Lester Jones, who investigated the wreck, declared that Jones would be charged with reckless driving. He said the Negro made a left hand turn without giving any signal and the Walters car crashed into the rear of the Negro's vehicle, resulting in a fractured collar bone to Jones' wife.

A car driven by Howard Allen of Greenville, and one operated by Henry Small, Cox Mill Negro, collided near Cox Mill Thursday night, badly damaging the cars, but resulting in no personal injuries.

Patrolman C. R. Williams, who investigated the accident, declared that Small entered the highway without stopping and would be charged with the traffic law violation.

Friday afternoon a car driven by Thad J. Moore, white man of Washington, route three, and another operated by Thurston Little, Negro of Robersonville, route two, were involved in a wreck near Stokes.

Patrolman Williams said Little would be charged with hit-and-run and also with reckless driving. No one was seriously injured, but the cars were badly damaged.

Homer McLawhorn, white man, is facing a charge of reckless driving as a result of a wreck between a car driven by him and another operated by John Willis. The wreck occurred on the Vanceboro highway Saturday night. Both cars were damaged and a Negro riding with Willis was treated for cuts about the face.

Unusual accidents occurred about three miles from Greenville on the Washington highway, when two cars said to be owned by J. T. Par-

SIXTEEN DEAD OF ACCIDENTS

State Suffers Heavy Toll; Five Hundred Dead in Nation

Sixteen persons died violently in North Carolina over the Christmas holidays, eight of them when an automobile plunged through a bridge guard 14 miles south of Wallace.

Eight Negroes, all Duplin county farm tenants, drowned when the car dropped 30 feet to a northeast river shoal and overturned.

His gun accidentally discharged and W. G. Nixon, 10 year old, son of Ben Dixon, hunting guide at New Holland, near Washington, N. C., was killed instantly.

Jake Horton, Negro, was killed when he fell or jumped from a passenger train near Bonsal, in Wake county.

Ashley Hawkins Crisp died of injuries suffered in a automobile accident near Pinetops. His uncle, Thomas Crisp, was killed in the accident.

Gwendolyn Avert, 23 was found dead in the kitchen of her home in North Rocky Mount last night and Police Chief O. P. Hedgepeth said it was a "plain case of suicide" by gas.

Violent deaths claimed at least 500 lives as the nation's price for one of its most extensive Christmas celebrations in years.

The double holiday, crowding highways with an unusual burden of homeward bound travelers, swelled the toll above normal years. Train accidents caused many times as many deaths as any other cause.

But week-end merry-making was also cut short by gunfire, hanging, drowning, plane crash and fatal household accidents.

John Guthrie, 44, a barber, was fatally slashed in an altercation near his shop at Hickory. Officers said Marshall Johnson, also of Hickory, would be given a hearing January 5 on a charge of murder.

Virgil Bentley was fatally injured

FORMER RULER IS ILL IN NEW YORK

Cuban President For Eight Years Now At Liberty to Return to Native Country

New York, Dec. 27.—(AP)—The Cuban government today withdrew all charges against former President Gerardo Machado of Cuba, who had been held by United States authorities in temporary custody on an extradition warrant.

Machado, now seriously ill in a hospital here, was accused in Cuba of misapplication of funds and mass murder.

The liberation of Machado, once "Iron Man of Cuba," was formalized in the office of United States Commissioner Garrett Otter before whom extradition proceedings were first brought several weeks ago.

In the meantime, the Cuban Congress, with the approval of the President, passed a general amnesty for all political prisoners, an act which included Machado and all members of his government.

Machado, who was President of Cuba eight years until overthrown by a revolution, now is at liberty to return to his own country after more than four years of exile.

COLLEGE LIFE GOES ON ABOARD A TRAILER

Baton Rouge, La.—(AP)—L. M. Quin is taking in boarders at his campus trailer quarters to ease the housing problem at Louisiana State University.

It all started a year ago, when crowded dormitory facilities resulted in a trailer colony springing up near the university. Even co-eds took to the idea.

University authorities cooperated by providing facilities for running water, gas, lights and other conveniences.

Quin, an agriculture student from Oxyta, Miss., organized himself and nine other students into the "Tiger Economy Club." With their help, he turned what was a trailer into a master bedroom and a classroom addition into a combination reception room, dining room, study, library and kitchen.

Friday night from 10:30 until 2:30, at the high school auditorium the Towne Club entertained the younger social set with its annual Christmas dance. The auditorium was superbly lovely in its Yuletide decorations. The edge of the balcony was banded in red paper; strung across the balcony were clusters of holly with red balloons for the berries. The orchestra performed from a stage built out onto the dance floor. Directly back of the orchestra a towering holly tree decorated with Christmas ornaments was posed against a background of wine-red velvet. Lights were shaded with green paper. Jack Wardlaw and his band furnished music for the occasion. This dance, successfully conceived and executed by the Towne Club, will long be remembered as one of the outstanding social events of the 1937 Christmas season.

Fruit Cake Hint Apply decorations to the fruit cake twenty minutes or so before the cake is done. Dip the nuts and fruits in slightly beaten egg whites. Then quickly apply them, in the selected design, to the top of the cake. Frostings are not advisable for this type of cake, since they crack easily and do not remain fresh.

Use Few Condiments Foods that are highly spiced or filled with condiments are not good for children. For spices and condiments destroy the natural food flavor. A small amount of salt, however, is necessary.

Mr. Twyeffort Runs Through Your Pockets

By JOAN DURHAM AP Feature Service Writer Gentlemen, your pockets. For one thing, you probably couldn't tell of hand, how many pockets you have. Then, you'll find men everywhere loaded with pockets and odds and ends, but never giving a thought to what goes into which pocket. Well, thanks to Raymond G. Twyeffort, you now can take steps to prevent this. Mr. Twyeffort is chairman of the Fashion Committee of the American Merchant Tailors' Association and has gone through your pockets pretty thoroughly. He thinks you should have fewer of them. He wants to streamline the male figure. But, good heavens, you can't slick up a silhouette if loaded pockets push out bulges all over the anatomy. Mr. Twyeffort will let you keep all your pockets for the nonce but he pleads for planned distribution. Your sack suit (business suit) has thirteen pockets, placed, he points out, thus: Coat—One breast pocket "usually on the left" one inside (usually on the right) and two side pockets. Vest—Two breast, two waist, one inside (usually on the right). Trousers—Two side and two hip. Optional, but usually added, says Mr. Twyeffort, are a change pocket inside the right side coat pocket, and a fob pocket at the belt line. Here are Mr. Twyeffort's recommendations for efficient and esthetic clothing: Show handkerchief—Coat breast pocket; handkerchief for use, hip or side trousers pocket. Pencils, cigars and pens—Left top vest or inside coat. Glasses—Top vest or side coat. Comb—Top vest or coat breast. Notebook, address book, letters etc.—Inside coat preferred, side coat second choice. Checkbook and wallet—Either hip all right; those pockets usually have buttons (it may be interpolated that police authorities disagree with Mr. Twyeffort; safety pocket for a wallet, they hold, is the inside vest). Watch—Upper or lower right vest or the fob pocket. Keys—Left or right side trousers. Side coat may be used. Matches—Usually side trousers, general accumulation pocket, incidently. Change—Change or side trousers. Pipe—Side coat, tobacco with it, for convenience. Cigarettes—Mr. Twyeffort gives you great latitude—any of your four vest pockets are acceptable. Well, that's the list. If you find it difficult to remember, you probably will get along if you continue to use the pockets you always have used for your gentlemanly perquisites.

1937 HEADLINE ROSTER TAKES LOT NEW FACES

Post Depression Era Has Big Share New Personalities

By SMITH REAVIS
New York—(AP)—The spring warring of 1937—a sort of business feast and fall famine in finance and industry—swung new personalities into public view. And it carried many figures of the depression era into new kinds of headlines.

Here are a few of the bewildering business year's big names:

Robert R. Young—Little known, 38 year old broker and art connoisseur. He suddenly popped into the commanding position in the 26,000 mile former Van Swearingen railroad system. With Allen P. Kirby, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., philanthropist, he purchased control of Allegheny Corp., top holding company of the empire.

The prematurely gray haired ex-an, a University of Virginia graduate, planned to weld four great lines—the Chesapeake and Ohio, Nickel Plate, Erie and Pere Marquette—into one huge transportation system. A senate committee investigated his purchase; the Interstate Commerce Commission looked everything over, and it gave provisional approval to the merger.

William O. Douglas—He told the New York Stock Exchange to reorganize itself—"or else."

Son of a Nova Scotian missionary, he lived in a tent during his undergraduate days at Whitman College in Walla Walla. He went to the chairmanship of the securities and exchange commission after holding a professional chair in the Yale law school. Slender studious and 39, he thinks the stock market exists for the public not for the professional speculators, and he was a protagonist in an autumn long controversy with exchange officials over regulation.

John W. Hanes—The stock exchange's contribution to the SEC. A liberal-minded broker, he thinks the exchange should be a "goldfish bowl" that the public that risks its savings in the market should be able to see all its workings.

"I heartily subscribe," he said, upon his appointment to the SEC by President Roosevelt, "to Chairman Douglas's statement on the need for reorganization."

A North Carolinian, son of three generations of tobacco men, he entered the brokerage house of Charles D. Barney and Co. in 1929 and three years later was a partner.

William Martin Jeffers—The one time call boy who took the helm of the Union Pacific railroad. Born in North Platte, Neb., in 1876, his first job was with the railroad he now commands, and he never worked for another. Railroaders say he knows 10,000 employees by their first name. He succeeded Cary Gray in October.

Benjamin F. Fairless—At 22, he was a surveyor for a small steel company; at 46, the management of the largest steel company in the world was placed in his hands. To concentrate the management of operations, the United States Steel Corp., incorporated in New Jersey, organized a Delaware company of the same name. It will have offices in Pittsburgh and will supervise operations in all subsidiaries of U. S. Steel. Fairless, who was "hired away" from Republic Steel in October, 1935, was made president of both the New Jersey and Delaware corporations. His will be the supreme word in operations.

To Select Turkeys
Choose the turkey which has few pin feathers and no blemishes. A young turkey has well-rounded contours, clear color and a flexible breast bone. A "blue" tint indicates insufficient fat layers under the skin.

MORE THAN THEY COULD BEAR was the theft of a peanut from almost under their paws by "Wee Willie," a squirrel. The bears are Hybrids at Washington, D. C., zoo.

(By the AP Feature Service)
If you can identify the 38 sports figures in this cartoon without looking at the list of names, you are pretty good.

Even Milton Morris, the artist who prides himself on such lifelike caricatures, will admit that.

But the real test is this: Can you tell why each holder of a place at the banquet table received sports headlines in 1937?

If you answer correctly for 35 or more, you have made "A" on the exam. Your knowledge of 1937 sports is "excellent."

If you get 30 right you are pretty good; 25 correct is fair. Below 25 is bad. How bad depends on how far below 25.

Your answers should have been something like these:

1. The horse of the year unbeaten, he was winner of the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont.
2. He is Colorado's All-America halfback, the country's leading football scorer.
3. He was heavyweight boxing champion until he ran into Joe Louis.
4. He is coach of Washington's powerfully rowing crew.

5. Britain's fistie hope, the Welchman, stayed 15 rounds with Joe Louis.
6. Coach of California's Rose Bowl team, he had an unbeaten season.
7. The Alabama coach directed the Crimson Tide to an untied, unbeaten season.
8. The southern girl won the women's national golf championship. He broke four world's swimming records.
9. He was the jockey who skippered War Admiral.
10. He paced Old Westbury team to the world's polo championship.
11. Still the boy wonder of baseball, he didn't pitch as well as Cleveland hoped he would.
12. The rookie star of professional football, his passing brought Washington's Redskins the National league championship.
13. This petite lass from Chile surprised by winning the U. S. Women's tennis singles championship.
14. If you take Dodge Budge cut, Von Gramm is about the best singles payer among the world's amateurs.
15. Larruping Lou carried his iron-man stunt through another season, grabbed a fair share of baseball's slugging honors, helped the Yankees win the World Series and struck the decisive blow that brought the American league victory in the all-star baseball game.

17. He skipped Ranger to four straight wins over Endeavour II in the America's cup yachting races.
18. He successfully defended his world lightweight championship.
19. He drew a good salary from Brooklyn for loafing, then became pilot of the Boston Bees.
20. The Colonel managed the Giants to a National league pennant.
21. He was professional football's leading ground-gainer and spearhead of the Washington running attack.
22. He garnered virtually all the clouting honors in the National league.
23. She was the leading mermaid of the year.
24. Detroit infielder who won the American league's batting championship, he also received the most valuable player award.
25. The four doctor coached Pittsburgh to an unbeaten football season and saw the Panthers ranked first in a country-wide poll of sports writers.

26. He was one of the legends for Sutherland's success, an All-America halfback.
27. He won more golf tournaments than any other player.
28. Meadows soared to new pole-vaulting heights.
29. He kept up with his teammate, Meadows.
30. He whipped Harry Thomas at the start of his training efforts for a heavyweight championship meeting with Joe Louis next summer.
31. He won two World Series games, starred as an all-star game pitcher and was one of the leading hurlers of the American league.
32. He managed the Yankees to another world championship.
33. He won the National open golf championship.
34. He was Yale's All-America halfback.
35. He is the world's No. 1 tennis star.
36. He was the home run leader of the American league.
37. World heavyweight champion, he whipped Farr in his first defense two months after kayoing Braddock.
38. The national amateur golf champion, he won after many tries.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—'I'm tired of being a gypsy... I'm tired of drafty railroad stations and bad food... I'm tired of sitting in hotel rooms talking to shadows... That's why I'm back on Broadway... with a fistful of $1000 bills, and I'm laying them on the line. They're mine, too, every nickel... I've got a six year lease on this place and I couldn't leave if I wanted to, which I don't."

There has been a lot of blah about Broadway being dead... All the news boys are fighting it out in their columns now. Into this scene I arrive, leading with my chin. WHY?

"Because I believe in Broadway, that's why. I don't think Hollywood will ever own it. I don't think there is any substitute for flesh and blood acting—American style. What is this dead Broadway they are talking about? It's too Frenchy—everything about it is based on the Folies Bergeres that out-moded can-can stuff. You hear of Europe's invasion of Broadway. What has the European showgirl got? I'll tell you—a mustache and piano legs. Did you ever see a Moulin Rouge chorus that could compare with a Ziegfeld chorus?"

"No, Brother, and you never will. Well, I've got the French Casino, and in it New York has an American show—American girls, American actors—an all-American show. Why, you could bankrupt the halls of Europe and not find a chorus as fresh, as sweet, and beautiful as these kids of mine. I'm taking out Hollywood insurance if Lloyd's will sell it to keep the movies from raiding my ranks. That's how pret-by they are."

"Well," we ventured, "you've got a mighty big place here."
"Say, let me tell you about that," he exclaimed. "Years ago, when this place was first built, they brought me in to show it to me, and they said, 'Isn't it big, isn't it marvelous?' And I said, 'Why it's better than that. Thank you for fixing it up for me.' And they said, 'Eh, what do you mean by that?' And I said, 'I'll end up owning this place, see if I don't.'... Boy didn't they laugh... But, I'm asking you, who's laughing now?"

Cook Cheese Slowly

Cheese dishes require slow cooking. Otherwise the cheese will become ropey and difficult to digest. Macaroni and cheese, cheese fondue and omelets all require a moderate oven. Toasted sandwiches should be cooked only until the cheese softens.

DARE TO DREAM

The Characters
Nelda, a beautiful, courageous girl, is running a lettuce farm to make her personal dreams come true.

Chapter 18
April Shower

NELDA saw Bill Langdon only at a distance, now. It was obvious that he'd made his last gesture, so far as she was concerned.

Reck called several times a week. Sometimes he would take Nelda to either Santa Cruz or Monterey for swimming and dinner.

She decided he was afraid to ask her to marry him because of his mother. Naturally she felt a hot resentment. But when he came, smiling and bantering, she forgot it.

By this time she'd discovered he was many persons in one. There was the Reck who swept her off her feet with his dashing charm.

In late February spring verdure began to appear on the hills and in the valley. Hardly a day passed that Nelda didn't go to look at the lettuce.

Jack came home for Easter. A glum unhappy Jack. Nelda sensed a different quality to his discontent from that of a few months ago.

IT WAS two days later when she returned from town that Uncle Ham met her at the roadster with a message which had been left during his absence.

"The Powells want you to come over and play bridge tonight," the old man said.

"I won't go!" she announced stormily. Bill Langdon would be there, she thought. She never wanted to see him again. Why should she? They clashed every time they met.

But upon second thought she decided she couldn't vent her feeling against Bill upon the Powells. Ray and Doris were two swell people she never wanted to let down.

"I'll go if it kills me," she said, climbing out of the car.

"Guess you'll live through it all right," Uncle Ham observed dryly.

The fourth at bridge that night was not Bill but a middle-aged man named Dyer. In the course of the evening, Nelda learned that he was connected with a large wholesale grocery concern in Sacramento.

"Had to come way down here to look up the kind of beans we want," he remarked. Then facetiously, "If you people would raise 'em and haul 'em up to me you'd save me a lot of trouble and make a lot of money for yourselves."

Nelda didn't know why she became so interested in beans. What did she care about beans? Perhaps it was because Bill had told her they put nitrogen into the soil. She found herself drawing a sheet of white paper.

"Why, Nelda Barrie, you're an artist!" Doris exclaimed, looking over Nelda's shoulder.

"That's what I'm going to be," the girl replied stoutly. Then to Ray, "Are beans hard to raise?"

"About as sure as anything, I guess. You know we farmers are always gambling with the weather."

"Why did you draw trucks?" Doris wanted to know.

"Because—" Nelda paused, a shadow of confusion in her face. They would think her crazy if she told them that she'd been visualizing a caravan of beans bound for wholesale dealers in other sections of the state.

She'd been toying lately with a vision of herself as Mrs. Earl Reckless. But she vowed to herself, she'd never marry him until his mother's objection to her was removed.

THAT afternoon Mrs. Moresi called, shamefaced and humble, to apologize for her violent entrance upon the party. She brought out her words clumsily, but there was no mistaking their sincerity.

"I understand, Mrs. Moresi. You were terribly excited," she said and patted the woman's arm.

The way Mrs. Moresi's face brightened remained with Nelda all day. She felt as if she had lighted a candle where all was dark.

She fully expected Bill to come with an apology for his abrupt departure, but he didn't, and she felt a sense of disappointment.

She dressed early next evening for the dinner she was to attend with Reck at the Rio Del Mar. She was a vision of girlish eagerness in her white tulle dress. Her dark hair lay in smooth, shining waves and her cheeks were delicately flushed.

It was no wonder she smiled into the mirror at her lovely reflection. She was as tremulous with excitement as she was when she had her first date. It was thrilling to be going out to dine and dance again. It was living!

"Do you look swanky? Or don't you?" Reck exclaimed when she admitted him.

"You look grand yourself, Reck." Her admiring gaze was taking in his perfectly tailored suit.

"Grand piece we're going, lady." At the Rio Del Mar the music, the soft lights, the beautifully dressed women, the well-groomed men, the delicious food—all touched senses hungry for them. Her eyes, meeting Reck's sparkled.

THE COACH GETS A 'POUNDING'
Wallace Wade, the Duke University football coach, and his wife were surprised at the beginning of the Christmas season with an old-fashioned "pounding" in their home at Durham. Members of the Durham-Duke club suddenly swarmed into the house with heavy bundles of potatoes, carrots, cabbage, cigarettes, candy and the like. Wade seems to be getting a particularly big kick out of the giant stick of candy.

THE individuals of these three groups, when they have reached a state of exhaustion, all suffer a loss of self-confidence and have great need for a "sympathetic ear." Correction of whatever physical defects they may have is essential, but their need for good psychotherapy is even greater.

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION—II
Three types of individuals are most frequently met among the nervous exhaustion patients, says Dr. C. L. Hartsock of Cleveland.
(1) The race horses. They are unusually attractive and capable of speed, but attempt both to maintain the speed of the race horse and the stamina of the work horse. Insufficient rest to compensate for excessive use of energy is the downfall of these patients.
This is the largest group, made up of young and middle-aged adults (females predominating). Its members are often above average mentally, attractive physically and talented artistically. Many of them are emotionally unstable, being easily elated or depressed. They are restless, can't relax easily and worry too much over trivia.
(2) The marathon runners. Their goal should be life span, but because they set their pace too rapidly they must fall by the wayside and watch the slower but better paced runner reach the goal.
They are highly capable, unusually ambitious and have robust constitutions. Most of them are men. Because of the competitive struggle to attain a place in the world, because of their excessive ambition and often because of their unusual capabilities, they carry an evergrowing burden of work and obligations.
When their burdens exceed their performance capacity, they are likely to suffer such serious exhaustion as to interfere with their normal physiological functions.
(3) The individuals who confine their ceaseless, plodding activity in a too-narrow groove with an actual wearing-out process which accounts for a more permanent type of trouble than a mere exhaustion of an

WHAT IT MEANS (Continued From Page One) seems likely Great Britain would never have disturbed her smooth-running empire trade pact if she had not been convinced that any agreement between democratic nations these days was worth its weight in gold.

In other words, the Britishers have been convinced that a trade agreement between the two great democratic powers will promote economic peace. That's important because the world struggle today centers on economic supremacy, and not political rivalry. The dictatorship "have-not" nations would like to stimulate their economy with the raw materials readily available to Great Britain, the United States, France and Russia. But the dictatorship don't want to buy these things subversively. They want to own some of the land these materials are on.

Hull's Argument Great Britain must have argued to herself that stimulated trade might spread economic prosperity generally. If it should spread to the dictatorship group, maybe they would not be so warlike since it is axiomatic that prosperous people want peace.

Then, too, you have to throw in the persuasive logic of America's secretary of state, Cordell Hull, the author of the trade agreement program, as one big reason why Great Britain is negotiating a trade agreement with the United States. Hull is recognized as a world authority on trade and there's simply no getting around the Hull trade theory, even if you think it won't work.

Here's the Hull idea: The United States and other nations should get together and knock a few bricks off each other's tariff walls, so business men can see over and make profitable international deals.

Moreover, the countries should agree to share any lowering of their tariff walls with all the other nations of the world, save those insisting on making secret trade deals on the side.

Deals Restrict Trade This is very important, since the world is gradually restricting its trade within the limits of secret deals between nations. Such deals inevitably restrict trade because it's always a dollar's worth of this for a dollar's worth of that, and there's no further channel of trade.

Hull argues trade breeds trade, and it should not be restricted by the secret side deals that now cover Europe. These deals are known publicly as "preferential treatment," "exchange control," "bilateral agreements," and whatnot, not.

The American trade preacher insists that every nation should have an equal crack at the markets of every other nation. He argues that any other game in international commerce leads inevitably to distrust, and eventually to war.

It isn't that the practical Hull wants to knock down all tariff walls, but just to lower them a little, and above all else, to see that tariff walls of one nation are not lowered more for one neighbor than another. The only way you can assure this equal treatment, says Hull is to get the nations on the dotted line of a treaty to give equal treatment to others.

Pro And Con Here are two big points in favor of the Hull program: 1 Sixteen nations have signed trade agreements with the United States, under a law which permits the president to lower or raise our tariff walls 50 per cent when he sees fit.

2 These treaties affect one-third of our exports and have helped to increase American trade, not only with these nations, but with all others, except those that insist on the preferential system.

Here are two big points against the Hull idea: 1 Even though our trade has increased since agreements have been signed, we have made bad bargains, and are spending more money in world markets than we are taking in from other nations.

2 When the United States starts lowering tariff walls to induce nations to sign trade agreements, business protected by those walls may suffer if they suffer too much. American workers might be discharged in the interest of world trade.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Stock market leaders took a turn for the worst today with recently strong armament issues such as steels and aircrafts developing weakness. In relatively slow dealings losses running to three or more points were in evidence near the fourth hour.

Aside from more year-end tax selling, speculative forces apparently found little to cheer about in the address of Assistant Attorney General Robert Jackson blaming "big business" itself for the economic recession and indicating "profit-taking" by monopoly would come in for government attack in the near future.

Warnings of Washington authorities that the budget will be difficult to balance because of falling revenue due to the business setback also chilled hopes of financial quarters for desired tax revision.

IT'S ODD But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE AP Science Editor
New York—Jupiter, biggest of planets, is thought to be composed of a rocky core, surrounded by a thick layer of ice, with an atmosphere mostly of methane, or coal gas.

The most recent puzzle of astronomers is the depth of this coal gas "air." It has been estimated at nearly four thousand miles.

But B. M. Peek, English astronomer, has been making some mathematical models of Jupiter's atmosphere, figuring what the giant planet's gravitation would do to the atmosphere.

Jupiter is enveloped in pure methane it cannot be more than about 21 miles. Thicker than that, methane would become solid in its lower layers and cease to be atmosphere.

If Jupiter's atmosphere is pure hydrogen, on the same basis, the depth is limited to about miles.

The conclusion at present favors a mixture much deeper than either of these limits but one whose lower levels are very dense. A wind on Jupiter might be almost equal to a blowing liquid.

MAY, 1937 Hindenburg Meets Disaster; The British Crown A King!

By VOLTA TORREY (News Review Editor, The AP Feature Service)

Trailing a May shower in New Jersey, a great, gray, man-made cloud of hydrogen burst. Its navigating officer standing on a burning deck, heroically refrained from letting ballast water out. He thereby kept the Hindenburg falling faster than if the water had been freed in the fire. And although three dozen persons died, the dirigible descended so swiftly 63 more tumbled out alive.

Even before official quizzing began, the hydrogen was found guilty. Helium, a safer gas, had not been used because only America had it and German zeppelin builders had considered it too costly.

Within a few hours, photos showed all America how trans-Atlantic airship service ended.

Within a few days, however, Russian scientists made possible another sky link between the old and new world: Pitching camp only 13 miles from the North Pole, the Reds began talking about the weather for Arctic aviation's sake.

Stage And Literature Amelia Earhart kissed her husband goodby. And Auguste Piccard's Belgian stratosphere explorations went up in smoke that same month, along with his balloon full of hot air.

"Gone With the Wind" won a Pulitzer prize. "Idiot's Delight" played in Omaha while the mayor decried and a bishop defended a little "damns" in the drama. "An American art," the strip-tease, was run off Broadway.

Hollywood studio workers struck. "A Star is Born" boomed clock photography. Jean Harlow, making it nominated Joe Robinson for the job.

A duke met his bride-to-be in France and folks were saying Mrs. Simpson, 41, was "gone with the Wind-sor." The duke, 43, read "Happiness In The Forties."

Italian newspaper critics boycotted May's big show. Rain spoiled the coronation circus parade, but London quaffed $10,000,000 worth of drinks, and early risers over here listened to radio announcers' whispers from Westminster.

Rockefeller Dies Crooked London-town's clogged, crooked streets a car sped "Mrs. Charles" to a hospital, and two weeks later Americans heard about another little Lindbergh boy.

John D. Rockefeller died at 98, leaving, besides billions, a poem that went: "I was early taught to work as well as play. . . . And God was good to me every day."

General Charles G. Dawes predicted that, barring wars or inflation, "a high degree of prosperity" would last until 1939—then stocks would crash.

A Cardinal Speaks The Supreme Court upheld the social security system which workers recall every pay-day. Justice Van Devanter announced his retirement, and the senate practical-

Cardinal Mundelein, meanwhile, had said the Reich's rampage against religion made wartime atrocity tales sound "like bed-time stories." And the Pope backed him up.

Herr Hitler was opening a Munich fair, that last week-end of May. Then the vest-pocket cruiser Deutschland was bombed. Speeding back to Berlin, he ordered a cruel crescendo:

Five German warships puffed up, opened fire on non-combatants, hit nearly every house in the little town of Almeria, and stole away behind a curtain of smoke.

DIXIE HIGHLIGHTS

"GAS DEFENSE" ORIGINATED BY INSECT! PURSUED, THE BOMBARDIER BEETLE DISCHARGES A GAS BOMB.

SUBTERRANEAN PHENOMENON SOUND IS AMPLIFIED A THOUSAND TIMES ON FAMOUS ECHO RIVER, WHICH TRAVERSES KENTUCKY'S MAMMOTH CAVE.

One of the most remarkable features of Kentucky's famous Mammoth Cave is ECHO RIVER. After going by boat for a certain distance, one enters upon a section that is, in fact, one vast resonator! So well does its branching avenues, side crevices and lofty roof of limestone rock act as reflectors of all sounds that, regardless of how slight, they are sent back intensified a thousand times! No one can enter this phase of the cave and hear this unusual phenomenon without being tremendously impressed with the wonders of Echo River.

Poisonous gases used as weapons in the World War caused widespread apprehension at the possibilities of their future use. Strange to relate, it is a fact that poisonous gases and acids have long been in vogue among insects. The BOMBARDIER BEETLE is a typical example. When pursued or disturbed by some enemy, they discharge a generous amount of ill smelling, reddish acid fluid from special organs at the hind end of the body, accompanied by a sound similar to that of a small popgun. The bluish gas barrage that hovers for a moment over them, covers their retreat. Even their reddish bodies and heads and blue wings covers suggest military uniforms.

SEVERAL MINOR WRECKS REPORTED OVER HOLIDAY

(Continued from page one) ker of Washington, and E. F. Simons, operator of the Log Cabin, New York, Washington, turned over an embankment in the same spot within an hour's time. Patrolman Williams said both accidents were caused by speeding.

A car driven by W. C. Odom, white man of Clinton, and one operated by Joshua Warner of Red Bank, N. J., were involved in a wreck five miles from Greenville on the Farmville highway Sunday afternoon. The Odom car is alleged to have been struck in the rear by the Warner machine when the former started to turn into a church yard without giving a hand signal. Only minor damage resulted from the wreck. Odom is facing a charge of making a turn without giving a signal.

Walter Love, Negro of Greenville, route one, was arrested on a charge of operating a car without proper equipment. He was arrested Sunday afternoon.

George Pierce, 63-year-old Negro of Grifton, is reported in a serious condition in a Kinston hospital after allegedly having been knocked down by one car and run over by another. Patrolman Williams reported that a car driven by W. H. Gowar of Grifton, knocked the aged Negro down on the Grifton bridge fill, and another operated by J. L. Patrick ran over him. Officers were still investigating the wreck today.

Two men, T. M. Bullock of Greenville, and Rugus Berrington of Pacolus, are facing charges of driving drunk and also careless driving following a collision just across the Tar river bridge from Greenville Saturday afternoon. The Berrington car is said to have been knocked down the embankment. Women were in both cars and several were said to have been injured, none believed serious, however. Patrolman H. B. Smith investigated the accident.

A Negro by the name of Boyd was said to have been seriously injured when his car turned over near Pacolus Saturday night.

John A. Clark, white man of Black Jack, was arrested by Patrolman Smith on a charge of careless and reckless driving. No wreck resulted from the reckless driving, however. Clark was coming toward Greenville on the Washington highway when he was arrested.

There were other minor wrecks in this section in which one was seriously injured nor any arrests made.
