Chiang Kai-Shek Strips Self Of All Civil Power To Concentrate On Army

TRAINING MEN BEHIND LINES

Drastic Shakeup Giving Generalissimo Freer of Recognized Skill Designed to Strengthen Military Resistance Against Invading Japanese Armies

Shanghai, Jan. 3.—(AP)—China's crack military leader, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek stripped himself of civil administrative responsibilities today and concentrated his efforts on efficiently resisting the Japanese invaders.

It was made known also that China is training behind the lines a new army of 800,000 men to support the approximately 900,000 men trying to hold back the Japanese.

Chiang Kai-Shek became commander in chief of the army and temporarily took charge of the navy, while Finance Minister H. H. Kung, succeeding him as president of the executive Yuan, assumed the nation's highest civil administrative functions.

The drastic shake up, designed to stiffen military resistance and give Chiang Kai-Shek freer play of his recognized skill as an army leader, was reported to have brought conservative elements in the government to greater prominence.

On far flung battle fronts the Japanese were still smashing relentlessly ahead, resisted but not halted, in their campaign to subdue China.

Latest Japanese gains were in rich Szechwan province, where the invaders captured the important city of Taian.

Chinese air activity, resumed after a long lapse, was marked by an attack on Nanking.

With only two cases on the docket, for trial this morning and important witnesses in both of these absent, the regular Monday session of City court was called off and the cases postponed until Wednesday morning.

Chief of Police George Clark commented that law breakers, with the exception of illicit whiskey dealers are unusually inactive at the present time. A number of alleged bootleggers rounded up in a series of raids Saturday afternoon and night will be tried in County court.

Ford Firm Defies Demand of NLRB

Fails To Comply With Order and Reinstates Employees

Detroit, Jan. 3.—(AP)—The Ford Motor company today requested the National Labor Relations Board to set aside its findings that the company had violated the Wagner act and requested a rehearing.

The board on December 22 gave the company 10 days in which to reinstate 29 men discharged allegedly for union activities and to post notices in its plants here that it was desisting from its opposition to organization of its employees by the United Automobile Workers of America.

The 10-day period expired today. The company has not posted the notices or reinstated the 29 men.

In Washington the Labor Relations Board said it would delay court action in the Ford case to consider the company's petition for a new hearing.

WHAT IT MEANS: Anti-Monopoly Strategy

By MORGON M. BEATTY (AP Feature Service Writer) Washington.—The official explanation for the New Deal's anti-monopoly campaign in the face of the business recession is simple: High prices—fixed high by monopoly—forced customers to buy less. Result: the recession. Thus an attack on monopoly at this time is logical.

But veteran politicians, always squinting between lines for hidden motives, can figure out other reasons why it is expedient now to campaign against monopoly. Here are some of the possibilities they will outline, privately—and you can take them or leave them:

1. Monopoly is one sure-fire issue—any political party can raise in a series of raids Saturday afternoon and night will be tried in County court.

ASKS PROBE OF TV AUTHORITY

General Investigation Requested by Senator Norris

Washington, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Senator Norris (Ind-Neb) asked the senate today to conduct a general investigation of the TVA authority. The investigation would be made by the Federal Trade Commission, when would seek to ascertain whether "dissension" among directors of the TVA had interfered with the agency's operation.

The study also would be designed to go into efforts of private utilities to hamper TVA operations. The commission would be instructed to make the investigation as speedily as possible and recommend action to Congress.

In its broad inquiry, the Commission also would study litigation which has been brought by private power companies to procure injunctions against TVA operations.

Raids Carried On Here On Saturday

Several alleged bootleggers were jailed Saturday night in a series of raids carried on by a private detective agency headed by A. S. Batson and ABC and local officers. Nelson Hopkins, operator of Green Wreath park, was one of those caught. Officers said 26 one-half gallons of whiskey was found on the premises. Hopkins was said by Chief of Police George Clark to have been one of those caught in a recent raid, but skipped bond and was never tried.

Of the others caught, several were said to have been old offenders. Besides Hopkins, the following were taken in the raid and are being held in jail or are out on bond awaiting trial in County court: James E. Sharp, Dave Langley, James H. Atkinson, Will Hatterson, Emma Shields, all Negroes and Zeno Bell Allen and Johnnie Moore white men.

ANOTHER TOWN FALLS BEFORE REBEL ARMIES

Government Reinforcements Unable Stop Insurgents

TAKE VILLASTER IN SWIFT ACTION

Despite Varying Reports, Fact Established Teruel Back in Hands of Rebels

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Fighting fiercely in knee-deep snow, insurgent troops today reported taking the strategically important town of Villaster in a swift flank action on the Teruel battle front.

Government reinforcements which were rushed to Villaster, five miles west of Teruel, were powerless to halt the insurgent attack, a Salamanca communication said.

It was extremely difficult to learn the exact situation around Teruel because of sharply conflicting reports issued by opposing forces. The government flatly contradicted insurgent claims saying all attacks launched by General Francisco Franco's insurgent forces were repulsed.

Despite this variance of reports however, it was known that all or part of Teruel had been recaptured by the insurgents in their counter offensive launched after the city was taken by government forces in a surprise attack two weeks ago.

In Zaragoza Edward J. Neil Jr., Associated Press War correspondent with the Spanish Insurgents' armies died yesterday of wounds he suffered Friday while reporting the insurgent's counter offensive on the Teruel front. He was the third newspaperman to die of wounds caused when a shell struck an automobile in which four correspondents were seated at the village Caude, five miles from Teruel.

Funeral Held For Prominent Editor In Martin County

W. C. Manning Succumbs To Illness of Nearly Three Years; Rites Attended by Local People

William Christian Manning, 67-year-old editor of the Williamston Enterprise who is well known to many Greenville and Pitt county citizens, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Elbert S. Peel, of Williamston, Sunday morning following an illness which extended over a period of nearly three years.

Arrangements called for the body to lie in state at the Williamston Christian church from 12:30 to 2:30 today, after which the funeral services were to be conducted and burial made in the family plot at the cemetery there.

Although Mr. Manning had been in ill health for the past three years, he was able to continue with some of his duties up until three weeks ago.

In addition to his newspaper work, he was the president of the North Carolina Christian Missionary Convention for 15 years. As head of the Christian church in his state, he also was president of the State Board of the Christian church. He was president of the Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Association of North Carolina at the time of his death.

He was a member of the Board of Trustees of Atlantic Christian College; had served on the Executive committee of the N. C. Press association; held the office of Registrar of Deeds of Martin county (Continued on Page Two)

MANY PERSONS FILING CLAIMS

Applications Made For Unemployment Compensation

The local office of the North Carolina Employment service started accepting claims for benefits due under the Unemployment Compensation act here this morning and would-be recipients of payments swamped officials from the moment the office was opened.

The offices are located in the White building, just behind the post office, on Third street. The Compensation Claims and Employment Service are combined under the management of W. G. Cherry, who is aided by a corps of several workers. Although closely linked together, the Compensation and Employment branches have their own separate activities and personnel.

W. L. Vaughan, Washington, N. C., attorney and former judge of Beaufort county Recorder's court is claims interviewer and S. T. Cherry, formerly in the employment division, is claims investigator. In addition two women have been employed to aid with the work. They are Miss Verdesa Dilday and Mrs. Frances Renfrew Burns. Another interviewer will be sent here from Edenton in the near future it was announced.

Constitutionality Had Been Challenged By Duke

Washington, Jan. 3.—(AP)—The Supreme Court ruled today the government could make loans and grants for publicly-owned electric plants.

Secretary Ickes, the public works administrator, said the decision would affect construction of 52 power projects costing over $84,000,000 for which his agency had allotted over $30,000,000 as loans to be repaid and over $21,000,000 as federal grants.

Constitutionality of the government's activity was challenged by the Alabama power company and the Duke power company.

Justice Sutherland, who delivered the opinion, announced no dissent and said Justice Black concurred in the result.

The court also consented to pass litigation filed by the Electric Bond and Share company and 26 subsidiaries challenging constitutionality of the 1935 act regulating public utility holding companies.

The two companies sought to enjoin federal financing of projects in four Alabama municipalities and at Buzzard Roost in Greenwood County, South Carolina.

LOCAL PASTOR RESIGNS POST

Rev. A. W. Fleischmann Retained As Honorary Pastor

Rev. A. W. Fleischmann, for nearly nine years pastor of Memorial Baptist Church, yesterday morning advised his congregation that his declining health forced him to give up his activities with the church, and that he had tendered his resignation to the Board of Deacons with a request that through the Board it be presented to the church. Reluctant to give him up entirely, even though his physical condition made it impossible for him to continue his duties as pastor, the church in conference last night retired him from all activities as pastor of the church and unanimously elected him honorary pastor.

Rev. Mr. Fleischmann accepted the call to the church in March, 1929, coming here from Louisville. For the past year he has been in declining health and spent the first half of 1937 in California in an effort to regain his health. After returning to this city from California during the summer his physical condition was such that he could (Continued on Page Six)

RALEIGH LAST WEEK

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Jan. 3.—Last week started with a half-holiday, last of the Christmas days off, and ended with the New Year's Day vacation for state employees. In between departments, bureaus and commissions functioned in more or less lackadaisical fashion—the boys and girls hadn't recovered from one holiday and were too busy expecting another.

There were, however, a few developments of more than passing interest, though purely local matters such as the police raid on the Ideal Social Club and the shooting of Detective Joe Lowe were far more common subjects of conversation than were any events of statewide interest or importance.

The police really started something when they swooped down on the Ideal Club, located in the heart of the business section, and confiscated a quantity of liquor which had been purchased at the Wake

ABC stores and which was found in lockers marked with the names of individuals purportedly members of the club.

If the purported members had all rallied round with rousing announcements that the liquor was in fact their own private and individual stock, the club's operators might be in much better shape than they now are, but many of the P. M.'s promptly disavowed any and all connection with the Ideal organization.

Which puts the club officials on the K. K. spot. Trial hasn't been held, but defense attorneys have fulminated against taking of photos in the club rooms and have threatened suit against the Raleigh Times for printing them.

Detective Lowe was drilled through the forearm by a negro who ran amuck, stole her employer's money and pistol and generally cut up like a regular "two-gun Annie." Joe is (Continued on page four)

OUTLINES AIM FOR CONGRESS

Message Delivered by Roosevelt at Joint Session at Opening of Regular Term Also Covers Administration's Business Policies and International Affairs

Washington, Jan. 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt told Congress today that "misuse of the powers of capital" must be ended "or the capitalistic system will destroy itself through its own abuses."

At the same time he called upon both capital and labor to cooperate with the government in working out the welfare of the nation. Both groups, he said, should realize that "power and responsibility go hand-in-hand."

"Chiefly because of the need of national unity in ending mistakes of the past and meeting the necessities of today we must carry on," Mr. Roosevelt said. "I do not propose to let the people down. I am sure the Congress of the United States will not let the people down."

In the message, which he delivered personally to a joint session of the house and senate, the President disclosed that a business budget is out of the picture for the next fiscal year. He said, however, that his budget estimates would show a "further decrease in the deficit."

For international affairs, the President projected a policy of peace "in a world where stable civilization is actually threatened." But he declared that in this day of un-dependable treaty obligations "on the part of others" this nation must be "adequately strong in self defense."

"World peace through international agreements," Mr. Roosevelt said, "is most safe in the hands of Democratic representative governments or in other words peace is most greatly jeopardized in and by those nations where democracy has been discarded or has never developed."

The message, one of the longest of the administration, totaling about 4,000 words, covered the whole field of major legislation for this session as well as business policies and international affairs.

Principally, Mr. Roosevelt asked for revival of the wage and hour bill, which was shelved by the house during the special session; enactment of the government reorganization bill; final action of the "all weather" farm bill now pending before a joint house-senate committee; continuation of the "none shall starve" relief policy; maintenance of necessary government functions unimpaired; expansion of purchasing power to a point at which taxes will produce adequate government revenue; modification of taxes without reduction of income.

Radio chains spread the message over the nation and transcripts and translations were made for rebroadcast over the world.

While he urged the adoption of many business reforms Mr. Roosevelt said there were specific limits to the extent government could go in effecting them. He stressed the necessity for cooperation between capital, labor and government.

"A government can punish specific acts of spoliation," he said, "but no government can conscript co-operation." (Continued on page six) wars in which we would attack on foreign soil.

QUESTION: Why should the people be given this right?

ANSWER: There are two main reasons. First, the people are the ones who will have to suffer through a war, pay the taxes for it for years later, and suffer during a great post-war depression. Second, Congress is no longer a check on the President. Almost every informed writer and historian agrees that now the President can take the nation to war without any effective check from Congress.

It was not the intention of the founding fathers to leave the President any such freedom. They were trying to do the contrary; to check the President's power to make war. The check they devised—a declaration of war by Congress—has worn thin. Something more is needed now.

THE WAR REFERENDUM

Last week in this column reference was made to the fact that Administration opposition is being felt by Congressional proponents of the War Referendum. For the benefit of our readers, the following—an endorsement of the principle of the war referendum—is culled from the 1924 national platform of the Democratic party:

"Our Government should secure a joint agreement with all nations for world disarmament and also for a referendum of war, except in case of actual or threatened attack.

"Those who must furnish the blood and bear the burdens imposed by war should, whenever possible be consulted before this supreme sacrifice is required of them."

Because PEACE ACTION believes that the people of our community should be better informed in reference to this referendum proposal—and thereby be in a position to ask their Congressman to give his support when it comes up for Congressional debate and vote January 10—for this and three subsequent days. Questions and Answers will be given relative to the proposal:

QUESTION: Why is action on the War Referendum urgent?

ANSWER: Because Congress votes on the measure January 10, 1938. If it does not receive 290 votes in the House of Representatives, the War Referendum will be killed until 1939. By that time a foreign war may have started.

QUESTION: What does the war referendum do to keep us out of foreign wars?

ANSWER: It gives the people the right, in a national referendum, to vote on whether or not they want the nation to enter into wars going on between foreign nations—into

The Greenville District Board of Review will meet tonight at the Christian Church. All boys wanting to be examined on any test are urged to be at the church at 7:30 o'clock.

All the Scout troops in the city had very successful meetings last week, considering the holiday season. Troop 30 has a new scoutmaster, Mr. Davis Roberts of the city water and light plant, has taken over the reign of this troop and plans to give the other troops some stiff competition in every phase of scouting.

Troop 30 will re-register sometime this week under the leadership of W. H. Windham. He is doing a splendid work with the boys of the West Greenville section.

All the troops should go on the new budget system for the new year, then we would not have the problem of registration at the end of the year. Only two troops have started this plan and they report that it works perfectly. Let's have all the troops on this system.

A number of the scouts received new uniforms for Christmas. Nothing looks better than a completely uniformed troop.

HOLD CONTEST FOR 4-H BOYS

Monday, January 3, 1898

Bankers' Association Offers Free Cruise to Havana

Raleigh, Jan. 3.—The North Carolina Bankers Association announced today that the 4-H Club boy and girl, securing and submitting the largest number of farm and home survey records would be offered a free cruise to Havana, Cuba.

Frank P. Sprull, Rocky Mount, president of the association, declared the purpose of the contest is to stimulate interest in a live-at-home program in North Carolina and to educate and impress upon farm youth the value of such a program.

The contest is open to any bona fide 4-H club member living in any one of the 35 counties represented on the Agricultural Committee of the association, L. R. Harrill, club leader at State College, said in explaining the rules of the contest.

The competition begins today and will close April 30. All records must be in the State 4-H club office on or before May 1, Harrill declared.

Objectives of the contest are to acquaint farm youth with the value of systematic record-keeping, to bring about a closer cooperation between the banker and the farmer, to secure a larger number of farm and home records, and to encourage modern equipment and better living conditions for the home.

The award will be based on the number of complete records secured, the club member's individual report of each farm and home surveyed, and his story of the value of a farm and home record, Harrill said.

Complete information on the contest may be secured from farm and home agents or from local bankers, the club leader explained.

Open Winter Term At State College

Raleigh, Jan. 3.—The winter term at State College began today with the registration of students in Frank Thompson Gymnasium. Class work will begin tomorrow.

Students began to file through the gymnasium early this morning, and college officials were of the opinion that a record enrollment for winter sessions would be recorded. It was expected that the final registration would be in the neighborhood of 1,950 students.

According to W. L. Mayer, registrar, approximately 250 students who were enrolled for the fall term, will not re-register today because of scholastic, financial and other difficulties. The net loss, however, will be only around 150 students and 100 new students are expected.

The enrollment of 2,106 students for the fall term was the largest in the history of the college.

NORTH CAROLINA FARMERS TURNING TO LIVESTOCK

Raleigh, Jan. 3.—With cotton no longer profitable as a cash crop, North Carolina farmers are gradually turning to livestock as an additional source of cash income that will help to balance their farming operations. Livestock production, crop rotation, and soil conservation go hand in hand. The soils, climate and crops of this State give growers many natural advantages in livestock production. An abundance of cheap cottonseed meal helps lower the feed costs, says Earl Hostetler of State College.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Jan. 3—This bureau's story about acquittal of "Bookies" in various cities of the state has, at least, started a minor legal controversy.

Charlotte's city attorney is quoted as saying he does not agree with the bureau's "reliable authority" that the bookmaking joints can be prosecuted as gambling houses under the common law.

Opinion of the Attorney General of the state, of course not binding on the court any more than the opinion of any private practitioner, but if some public prosecutor would ask the A. G. for a ruling it might be interesting.

Still talking law—this Federal slot machine injunction is a rather unique one. It is not only directed to certain specific defendants, but is addressed to all who may have knowledge of the ruling.

From August, 1933, to December 12, 1937, the North Carolina State Employment Service had taken 704,461 registrations, and made 361,678 placements were in private industry. This represents 68 placements for each 100 registrations taken.

Those who are so confidently predicting that Victor Bryant, of Durham, will be speaker of the 1939 House, seem to be overlooking the fact that the speakership, according to unwritten but usually binding custom, rotates between East and West.

The west had the speakership in the 1937 House, in the person of wisecracking, hard-boiled Gregg Cherry of Gastonia.

The East has its turn John Hill Paylor, of Pitt, is likely to prove a sturdy contender. Craigh Libby Ward would be a leading figure but for two perfectly good political reasons.

November, 1937: Fascist Axis Set As Shanghai Falls

By VOLTA TORREY News Review Editor, The AP Feature Service

Three men on a fascist horse—the Fuehrer, the Mikado and the Duke—were bound together in November, to make the civilized world unsafe for communism. And some folks feared Brazil's Boss Vargas would cling to the horse's tail.

After all, it would be much easier politically, to show voters how big business was tamed, then to explain why the 1937 Congress failed—if it does fall—to pass the New Deal program.

Tucked away in the Department of Justice, the Roosevelt administration has the ablest trust-busting lawyer of modern times in Robert H. Jackson, the Jamestown, N. Y., boy who made good in the capital.

Jackson took on Andrew Mellon's lawyers and won a $700,000 verdict for the government in the Board of Tax Appeals. He downed the giant Electric Bond and Share company in open court and persuaded the company to sign up under the holding company act.

The next question is, how does the administration propose to tame big business?

Bold Bob Jackson has already fired the opening barrage in the form of monopoly suits or "complaints against the Aluminum Company of America, several big mid-western oil companies, the two big telegraph companies and a group of cement manufacturers.

One of the earliest White House advisers has suggested that the President avoid a flat-footed demand for more laws to regulate business. Such a declaration would show little sympathy for such businesses as are harassed by bad times, and might indicate to some folks that the President had made up his mind what should be done with big business before he knows what its sins, if any, are.

This strategist thinks the first thing to do is to see that the public gets a barrage of evidence on the practices of big business. This should give the public an educational course in business methods to pave the way for legislation.

If remedial legislation should prove advisable, the legislation would be bolstered by public opinion, and thus would be inoculated against attack after it reached the statute books.

The Procedure Put how to get the facts before the public? The answer might be found in a thorough investigation of monopolies by Congress, a demand he voiced in a 1937 message to the lawmakers.

Closest asset to such an investigation would be an able prosecutor like William Bradford Huie, who was well-timed from the blackest days of the government when he investigated the stock market for a senate investigating committee.

The procedure should be politically safe. If the investigation should fail to disclose the collusion that Jackson thinks there is among powerful industrialists, no harm would be done. If regulation should be indicated, as he predicts, the Dem-

To spend or not to spend? That was the question in Washington as business slumped. President Roosevelt, smitten by a toothache himself, strove to soothe wailing taxpayers and investors.

Private Power Potentate Wendell L. Wilkie said nothing could be accomplished by calling Roosevelt names or railing against economic royalty.

Duke's Visit Postponed Congress met in special session. An anti-lynching filibuster promptly stalled the Senate; the House rules committee persisted in holding back wage-and-hour legislation.

The President suggested some things Congress might do to help John Public get a new home, and went fishing.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor put off their U. S. housing tour after hoots from labor leaders at the man arranging it.

But the world's richest girl, Doris Duke Cromwell, ran around to see settlements with Mrs. Roosevelt.

Census of Jobless Auto strikes revived memories of last winter. But CIO and APL still talked peace terms and Nov. 30 John L. Lewis and William Green, in person, were ready to try to bury the hatchet.

Malmen's burdens were increased, meanwhile, by returns from an unemployment census.

Editorial writers scratched their heads about the significance of the American Labor Party vote re-electing New York's Mayor LaGuardia, the Haiti-Dominican Republic war, the merchant marine, and what some serious thinkers who take the long view rated among the year's most significant news items: Trade negotiations between America and Great Britain.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Steels led a slow comeback in today's stock market.

While dealings barely kept the ticker tape moving early minor losses were converted into gains running to two point or so near the fourth hour.

Market forces on the whole displayed an inclination to conserve their trading ammunition pending delivery of the President's message at the opening of Congress later in the day.

Bonds and commodities were moderately mixed.

Under the plan a person must make application for claims and wait three weeks. If he is unable to get work during that time, either through his own initiative or thru the help of the employment service, he is eligible for payments. Each applicant must file a continuing claim each week. It was explained. Payments are limited to 16 consecutive weeks for any one person and $15 is the maximum to be paid any single applicant.

not carry on his full duties as pastor of the church, and on October 1 Rev. Lowell F. Sodeman, of Kansas City, Mo., was elected assistant pastor. Recent developments in Mr. Fleischmann's physical condition caused his physicians to advise complete rest and as a result he tendered his resignation to the church.

From the point of service with a local church, Mr. Fleischmann is the oldest minister in Greenville, is highly esteemed and enjoys a host of friends throughout the county. In acting on his resignation last night members of his congregation expressed regret that he found it necessary to retire as active head of the church.

After acting on Mr. Fleischmann's resignation the church elected Mr. Sodeman pastor to fill the vacancy created by Mr. Fleischmann's retirement from active service.

Manufacturing In State Holds Pace

Raleigh, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Major A. L. Fletcher, state labor commissioner, reported today that 370 North Carolina manufacturing firms listed many hours of work during the first week in December at only one per cent below the same period in November.

Hosiery mills, Fletcher said in reporting on 40 plants, showed an increase of 8.7 per cent in hours worked during the first week in December over the first week in June, but 115 cotton mills listed a decrease of 29.4 per cent in hours of operation in the same comparison.

The 370 firms reporting on November and December operations with 29 failing to list hours showed their first week in November payroll at $1,310,642 and for the corresponding December period it was $1,281,345. The payroll drop was 2.2 per cent.

The 341 industries listing hours of work reported 2,785,497 for the November week and 2,756,877 for the December period.

operation. We have improved some matters by way of remedial legislation, but where, in some particulars, that legislation has failed we cannot be sure whether it failed because some of its objectives and our principles to be sound. "We will never go back on them."

Business practices which the President said "most people" believe should be ended, he listed as: tax avoidance through corporate and other methods, excessive capitalization investment writeups and security manipulations, price rigging and collusive bidding in defense of the spirit of the anti-trust laws by methods which "baffle the prosecution under the present statutes."

Placed in the same category were "high pressure salesmanship which creates cycles of over-production within given industries and consequent recessions in production until such time as the surplus is consumed; "use of patent laws to enable larger corporations to maintain high prices; unfair competition to the detriment of the small producer; intimidation of local or state governments to prevent enactment of laws for the protection of labor "by threatening to move elsewhere and shifting actual production from one locality to another in pursuit of the cheapest wage scale."

"The enumeration of these abuses," Mr. Roosevelt said, "does not mean that business as a whole is guilty of them. Again, it is deception that will not long deceive to tell the country that an attack on these abuses is an attack on business."

TAR HEELS INTENT UPON ENDING BUSINESS SLUMP

Washington, Jan. 3.—(AP)—North L. Ross of Farmville.

Senators Foresee End of Session by First of May

Washington, Jan. 3.—President Roosevelt personally carried his annual message to Capitol Hill today to present it to a joint session of house and senate members, whose leaders voiced optimistic predictions of a comparatively short productive session.

There were several evidences of determination on the part of leaders to get down to work quickly.

Democratic Leader Barkley of the senate said prospects for enactment of Mr. Roosevelt's program were "bright." He predicted the senate would dispose of the controversial anti-lynching bill in a week. It is set for consideration January 6th.

Speaker Bankhead told newsmen he hoped Congress would complete its work by April 15. Barkley predicted adjournment by May.

Bankhead predicted the house would start consideration January 10 of the Ludlow war referendum resolution and added "as far as I am concerned I am opposed to for the reconvening of Congress, intent upon bringing an end to the business recession.

Senator J. W. Bailey has served notice of an impending fight for repeal of the undistributed profits tax.

Representative Robert L. Doughton of Laurel Springs, chairman of the House ways and means committee, also will play an outstanding part in this matter.

A House ways and means subcommittee has been working several weeks on proposed new tax legislation.

For the most part the Tar Heels awaited President Roosevelt's message on the budget before embarking on their own legislative programs.
