JAP INFANTRY DRIVES DEEPER IN SHANTUNG

Take City 70 Miles From Birthplace of Confucius

RAILWAY CENTER ALSO CAPTURED

Chinese Admit Heavy Casualties But Declare Japanese Also Suffered Losses

Shanghai, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Japanese infantry columns today drove deep into the "holy land of China," Central Shantung province, and reported capture of cities more than 50 miles south of Tsinan, the already occupied provincial capital.

Domel, the Japanese news agency in a dispatch to Tokyo said the Japanese vanguard had captured Chufu, 70 miles south of Tsinan where Confucius, China's great sage, was born in 550 B. C.

The Japanese army said it would accord full protection to the tomb of Confucius at Chufu, to the great Confucius temple there and to the present Duke of Kung, 77th lineal descendant of the sage, now chief ritualist of his temple.

A Japanese military spokesman, reporting "steady progress" for the march through Shantung, said one Japanese column had seized a city on the Tientsin-Pukow railway, 50 miles below Tsinan, another force advancing west of the railway, was said to have taken another city also about 50 miles south of Tsinan.

Such is the main objective of the Japanese armies driving southward through Shantung and also another force advancing northward above Nanking. Its capture would give the Japanese all the trunk railway linking Peking and Tientsin with Nanking and Shanghai.

Chinese admitted they had suffered 5,000 casualties in fierce fighting for control of the Shantung railway, but declared Japanese losses also were heavy.

Specialist Finds State Swine Crop Highest In South

Despite Fact, However, Declared North Carolina Does Not Produce Enough Pork For Home Use

Raleigh, Jan. 4.—The value of North Carolina's swine crop per capita last year was the highest of the Southeastern States.

And in the Nation, only seven other States had a higher swine value per capita than North Carolina, said H. W. Taylor, extension swine specialist at State College.

Yet this State does not produce enough pork to supply its own demand.

North Carolina is well suited to swine production, Taylor continued. Moreover, it has a large home market and is comparatively near to the Richmond and Baltimore markets.

Through cooperative shipments, North Carolina farmers have been able to add millions of dollars to their cash income, as they can get better prices and lower freight rates in this manner.

The climate here is mild enough to permit the production of two litters a year by each sow without the necessity of heating the farrowing houses artificially.

In most sections of the State, permanent and temporary pastures provide grazing the year round. This is especially true in the southern and eastern parts of the State.

If properly cultivated, much of North Carolina's arable land can

PRESIDENT DELIVERS ADDRESS AT JOINT SESSION OF CONGRESS

President Roosevelt is shown on the rostrum of the House as he delivered his message before a joint session of Congress during which he said government can be expected to cooperate with business "provided business abandons practices which do not belong to this day and age, and adopt price and production policies appropriate to the times." Declaring himself as anxious as any industrialist, banker, investor or economist to balance the budget, the President pointed out that this depended upon a number of conditions. Shown on the rostrum with the President are, left to right: Lewis Datcher, parliamentarian of the House of Representatives; Vice-President Garner, Speaker William B. Bankhead (D.-Ala.), and at extreme right, James Roosevelt, son and secretary of the President.

Search Underway For Detroit Girl

Detroit, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Gertrude Bennett, 17-year-old daughter of Harry H. Bennett, the Ford Motor Company service department's chief who has assisted in solving several kidnappings, was missing today and authorities considered every possibility from abduction to elopement as they conducted a widening search for her.

Bennett disclosed she had received anonymous telephone calls yesterday warning him to guard his Turreted Castle-like home between Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor. He discounted the elopement theory.

State police, however, were impressed by the fact Russell Hughes, 20, trap drummer with whom Miss Bennett was seen at 3 P. M. yesterday, also was missing. Both were students at Michigan State Normal college at Ypsilanti.

Today state police learned Miss Bennett drew $50 from her account in the State Savings bank at Ann Arbor at 2 P. M. yesterday. Apparently she had not informed relatives of any plans that would require such a sum of money.

Bennett phoned state police at 1:30 a. m. asking that they conduct a search for his daughter, who then had been unreported for 12 hours. State Police Captain Donald Leonard was directing the search. Federal Bureau of Investigation agents were on the scene, but Jay Newman, head of the field office here, declined to comment on the part his men were taking.

Whether Miss Bennett vanished voluntarily or was kidnaped State police believed that Hughes, who had been her escort on several occasions and the last person with whom she was seen by acquaintances could throw light on her disappearance. An intensive search was in progress for him.

Burley Tobacco Growers Warned Of Speculators

Raleigh, Jan. 4.—Farmers of Western North Carolina are losing money on the burley tobacco market every day they sell to speculators rather than through regular warehouse channels. W. P. Hedrick, tobacco marketing specialist of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture said today.

"However, despite the practice of speculator selling, the growers through December, were receiving a fair price for their product," Hedrick said after studying the conditions on the markets where he has been stationed for the past three months.

"It stands to reason that speculators would not buy the tobacco unless they were assured of some profit," he added. "It stands to reason that if the speculators make a profit, then the growers' profit is decreased. Therefore, and the warehousemen will agree, it is to the best interest of the farmers to sell directly through the warehouse rather than to the speculator who buys and then resells profits that justly belong to the grower."

"Growers of Western North Carolina can take a lesson from the tobacco farmers of the eastern markets where the speculator-buying evil has been long recognized and reduced materially. It would be difficult to estimate the actual sum farmers of the west lose by selling to the middle man speculator, but instances are not infrequent where the speculator makes anywhere from one to ten dollars profit per 100 pounds on resale of tobacco bought from the growers before the auctioneer reaches the pile of tobacco on sale."

Hedrick said "there is little the warehousemen can do to eliminate this condition, the solution of which rests almost entirely with the farmer, himself."

LACK FACILITY HOUSE INSANE

Charlotte Story Exposes Situation In North Carolina

Raleigh, Jan. 4.—The inadequacy of North Carolina's facilities for taking care of its insane has been thrown into bold relief by a story in Sunday's Charlotte News exposing terrible conditions surrounding the care and keeping of insane Negroes in the Mecklenburg County Home.

According to the expose, violently crazy Negroes are being confined under indescribably filthy conditions because they cannot be admitted to the state hospital for insane Negroes at Goldsboro, the only institution for the care of insane or feeble-minded Negroes in the state.

According to the expose, including Governor Clyde R. Hoey and Mrs. W. T. Bost, commissioner of Welfare and Public Charities the hospital at Goldsboro is filled to capacity and there is little prospect that it will be able to accommodate the excess insane now confined in Mecklenburg and other county homes.

If it were a question of maintenance, there are emergency funds which could be used to take care of the situation," the Governor told this bureau's correspondent, "but there is nothing that I or any other state official can do about the inadequacy of accommodation. That is a matter for the legislature. The General Assembly alone can authorize expenditure of funds for additional buildings."

Both Governor Hoey and Mrs. Bost said they are going to do everything in their power to get the Mecklenburg Negroes, especially the more dangerous ones, into the Goldsboro institution.

But even should they accomplish that end, the remedy would be temporary at best. Other violently insane and dangerous persons would soon be again confined in county homes and jails, both in Mecklenburg and elsewhere.

Though Manhattan Island contains the tallest structures in the world, its highest natural elevation is only 267 feet.

BATTLE RAGES ABOUT TERUEL

Action May Determine Tide in Spanish Civil War

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Belaguered insurgents and Spanish government troops fought today through ice-crusted streets of Teruel, in guerrilla warfare that may determine the tide of the civil conflict.

Snow checked mass offensives by the 200,000 troops of the two armies on the front encircling Teruel and sleet grounded airplanes and bogged motorized units in the mountainous terrain.

Within the city itself, however, there was the crackle of rifle fire and fighting at close range.

Both sides claimed control of the provincial capital. It appeared the insurgents held the advantage, but a earlier announcement of complete domination of the Teruel front was not borne out.

One band of insurgents lashed at the Madrid-Barcelona enemy from a church and the shambles of a nearby seminary, dymitted last week by government troops. A Barcelona government communiqué said the church was captured.

MANY SEEKING COURT DECIDES GET PAYMENTS STOCK LIABLE

At Least 1,200 Attempt to File Claims Here First Day

At least 1,200 persons attempted to file claims for unemployment compensation at the Greenville offices yesterday and equally as many lined the streets in front of the office today, seeking to make application for the payments, W. G. Cherry, in charge of the office estimated.

The number seeking to file claims here yesterday and today exceeded by far expectations and was among the largest for any city in the state.

Mr. Cherry reported that 350 applications were handled by the local office yesterday and declared that approximately the same number would be disposed of during today.

He estimated that there are at least 5,000 eligible for compensation in Pitt county. He declared that a survey showed that there were 4,000 unemployed eligible in Greenville alone.

A seasonal lay-off in the tobacco industry was given as the cause

EXPECT BOOST IN ESTIMATED FISCAL DEFICIT

Predicted Figure To Be Revised Up To $1,250,000,000

BUDGET MESSAGE DUE TOMORROW

Deficit for First Half of Year Reported by Treasury Officials at $645,068,770

Washington, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Amid predictions that President Roosevelt would revise his deficit estimate for this fiscal year upward to $1,250,000,000, the Treasury announced today the deficit for the first half of the year reached $645,068,770.

Mr. Roosevelt expects to send to Congress tomorrow his budget for the fiscal year 1938, which begins next July 1. Informed officials forecast the budget would propose a one billion dollar deficit.

To this they added another prediction that Mr. Roosevelt would change his estimate of this year's budget deficit from $896,245,000 to $1,250,000,000.

The Treasury reported in the six months to December 31 it took in $3,176,213,515, compared with $2,158,306,452 in the similar period of last year.

Expenditures in the six months totaled $3,821,282,265. Emergency expenditures, including relief, declined more than $600,000,000, but some emergency activities transferred to regular accounts were reflected in increased general expenditures.

Meanwhile White House officials said reaction to the President's message to Congress asking the cooperation of business in correcting economic evils had been "more spontaneous and more favorable" than on any of his previous messages.

Stephen Early, a secretary, said telegrams and telephone calls began when the President returned to the White House and continued through the night. He added there was just one telegram that appeared unfavorable.

Other developments: A Labor Department official testified some firms which tried to combat unemployment by spreading work in 1929, "are not attempting to spread the work today."

Appearing as the first witness before a special Senate unemployment committee, Isador Lubin, Commissioner of Labor statistics, said he did not know "whether or not this change was deliberate."

Christian Science Church.
"God" was the subject of the lesson-lesson in all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, January 2.

The golden text was from Psalms 77:13. "Thy way, O God, is in the sanctuary; who is so great a God as our God?"

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-lesson was the following from the Bible: "Canst thou by searching find out God? canst thou find out the Almighty unto perfection? It is as high as heaven; what canst thou do deeper than hell; what canst thou know? The measure thereof is longer than the earth, and broader than the sea." (Job 11:7-9).

The lesson-lesson also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The Scriptures imply that God is All-in-All. God is individual, incorporeal. He is divine Principle, Love, the universal cause, the only creator, and there is no other self-existence. He is all-inclusive, and is reflected by all that is real and eternal and by nothing else. He fills all space, and it is impossible to conceive of such omnipresence and individuality except as infinite Spirit of Mind. Hence all is Spirit and spiritual."

THE WAR REFERENDUM

QUESTION: What is there in the claim that this referendum is embarrassing the administration in its present dealings with Japan?

ANSWER: Nothing at all. This is a Constitutional Amendment which has to be passed by the Senate as well as the House, and by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states, before it goes into effect. It cannot possibly be adopted until 1940, even if the House and Senate both approve it in 1938. Something which is not effective until 1940 cannot possibly embarrass the administration in 1937-38. All but 10 of the 218 signatures on the discharge petition were put there before the Panay incident.

QUESTION: What is there in the claim that it will leave the nation defenseless?

ANSWER: Nothing. In case of any attack upon this nation or its territories overseas Congress can immediately declare war without any referendum. This referendum simply gives the people the right to vote on getting into wars in which the United States is not attacked.

QUESTION: Won't the holding of a referendum give a possible enemy some advantage?

ANSWER: No. The holding of a referendum can be as fast as a decision by Congress.

QUESTION: How long will it take to hold a referendum?

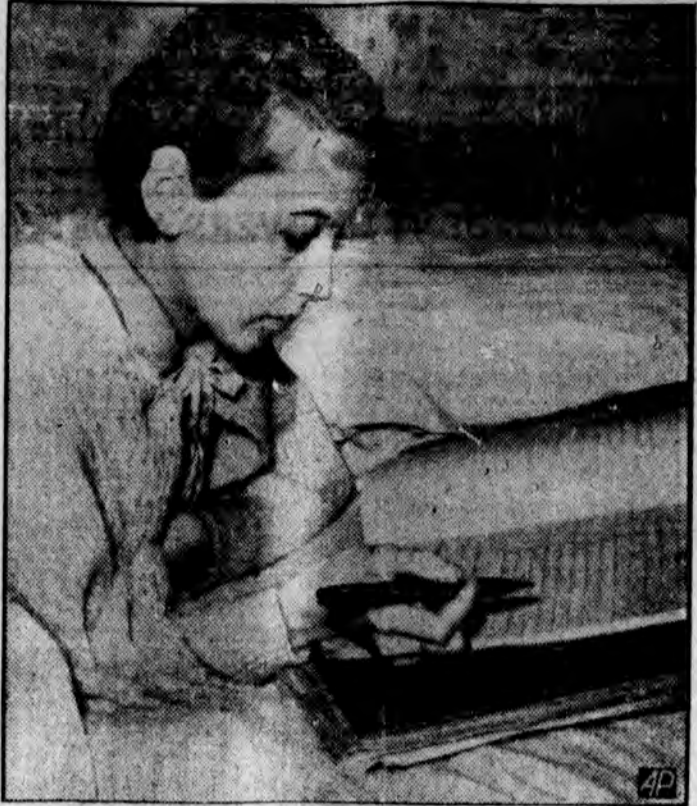

ANSWER: Two or three days, according to Admiral Samuel MacGowan, former Paymaster General of the Navy. This is a shorter time than in 1917, when Congress took four days to declare war after the President had asked for a declaration.

QUESTION: Would the American forces be hampered by a referendum?

ANSWER: No. They could not start fighting until Congress declared war, and a referendum could be taken as quickly as Congress can declare war. In 1917, it was three months after the outbreak of war that any considerable body of American troops were sent to France.

Students Of College Visit Silver Springs

Silver Springs, Fla., Jan. 2—Two bus loads of men and women from the East Carolina Teachers College, Greenville, N. C., were among the hundreds of visitors at Silver Springs last week-end. They saw Florida's underwater marvel through glass bottomed boats and were entertained by the guide's version of the legend of the Bridal Chamber, one of the underwater spots with which there is connected a romance that ended in tragedy.

The Teachers were enroute back home after what they termed "a most interesting tour of Florida," which took them to St. Augustine and old Fort Marion, oldest fort in the United States; the scenic east coast of Florida, and a loop trip, across the Everglades to Ft. Myers thence through Tampa to Ocala and nearby Silver Springs.

H. L. Wright and Paul V. Ricks in charge of the tour, said "if a vote were taken of interesting spots we have visited, I am sure our party would vote unanimously for Silver Springs. It is the most unusual beauty spot we have seen."

In the party were Miss Cornelia Ferrel, Clinton, N. C.; Mrs. Rosa B. Worley, Selma, N. C.; Miss Emma Goodman, Mount Ulla, N. C.; Miss Anne Hammond, Cullowhee, N. C.; Miss Hazel Hardy, Winterville, N. BUSY YEAR FOR HIGH TRIBUNAL

Supreme Court Made 414 Decisions In 12 Months

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Jan. 4.—North Carolina's Supreme court doesn't sit every day, of course, but during 1937 its Justices handed down an average of more than one decision every day.

The court decided 414 cases in all, 215 of them during its Spring Term, 199 during its Fall Term. There were nine decision days during the Spring session. However, against only 5 during the fall sitting. The Spring decisions were written by a five member bench, the fall findings by a seven-justice court.

Of 46 cases decided, 355 were civil, 59 criminal, with 179 civil, 36 criminal cases at the Spring term and 176 civil, 23 criminal at the Fall.

Result of the appeals showed that the civil litigant who doesn't agree with the lower court decision has slightly less than one chance in three of getting another bite at the cherry through a victory in Supreme Court. Convicted criminals are only slightly more favored by the figures, slightly more than one-third getting new trials or reason of their appeals.

At the Spring term 123 civil cases were affirmed. In 56 cases the Supreme court disagreed with the court below. Almost exactly the same percentages prevailed for civil cases during the Fall term as 121 were affirmed, 55 reversed. For the year 68.7 per cent of the civil appeals were fruitless for the appellants.

At the Spring term 23 criminal convictions were upheld, 23 defendants won new trials. During the Fall term 15 convictions were sustained, eight reversed. The year's percentage for criminal cases was 44 to 35.6 against the appellant defendant.

Analysis Of Report Fails To Show Depression

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Jan. 4.—Analysis of the Revenue Department's December report fails to reveal any business depression in North Carolina.

On the contrary, practically every item usually considered an index to business conditions showed a substantial increase over the corresponding report for 1936.

It is true that the report shows taxes of one sort or another collected during December but the result of transaction of November.

Beginning right at the top of the list on the department's report, inheritance tax revenues for December showed a considerable increase over December, 1936, but this item is considered worthless as it is dependent upon acts of God in removing more or less wealthy men from this terrestrial sphere.

Sales tax collections, always regarded as a true criterion because they are based on volume of business, showed a marked upward swing with $1,612,837 in December 1937, against $983,479.89 for the corresponding month of 1936.

Beverage taxes just about doubled, moving up from $68,373.29 to $131,236.58.

In the Motor Vehicle Division revenues the returns are highly significant, with car license and gasoline tax receipts soaring well above December, 1936.

Gas tax revenue was $2,058,884.92 against $1,361,096.73, while license tax receipts ran $2,383,859.77 against $1,618,741.75, perhaps due for some discount as an index because of the fact that tags went on sale year on December 1, while in 1936 sale was started on the 15th.

DARE TO DREAM

BY ALICE MARIE DODGE

The Characters
Nelda, who is struggling with a lettuce farm, breaks her engagement to Reck when they quarrel hotly over her ambitions.
Bill is a tanned, young lettuce farmer. He and Nelda are drawn together, in spite of frequent flare-ups.
Reck, a wealthy playboy, scoffs at Nelda's lettuce farm and her dream of finishing college.
Mrs. Reckless, Reck's haughty mother, dislikes Nelda.
Jack, Nelda's younger brother, has given up medical school against Nelda's wishes.

Chapter 25 Reconciliation

"ANY one ever tell you that you talked too much?" Ray asked his wife.
They stopped in a glade where the sun spattered down through the pine boughs. Happy chatter and laughter echoed through the trees as the young people gathered stonies to make a grill. Bill had brought wieners to roast and he went about the task gayly, his face eager, alive, dynamic.
When he handed one to Nelda on a long stick she said, "Bill, you're terrific!"
"Must be the air," he replied with a grin.
At times such as this she liked him enormously. But there were "Bill, you're terrific!" At times like this, Nelda liked him enormously.

moments when her thoughts drifted to Reck, to his engaging smile, his curly blond hair, the wonder of what he'd do next and the enchantment of the way he'd do it. It would take her a long time to get over Reck. Maybe she never would.
"I heard yesterday," Ray said over the rim of his coffee cup, "that the agreement between the Vegetable Workers Union and the packing houses expires sometime in August or September and that the wages are raised and they are allowed a hiring hall."
"So what?" Bill rose and stretched himself.
"I think the packers will allow the raise but not the hiring hall."
"What will that do to our crops?" Nelda inquired, alarm flashing in her eyes.
"The packing sheds will buy our lettuce all right, but just try to make delivery if there's a strike on."
"If I put in the money and agony of raising a crop I'm going to deliver it no matter what happens," Nelda vowed.
"Atta girl!" cheered Doris. "Behold! Miss Nelda Barrie! A second Joan of Arc rides through the picketing mob of strikers—on a truck!"
During the laughter that followed Nelda said, "I'll do that if I have to. See if I don't!"
"Maybe you're the reincarnation of Joan of Arc. Are you?" Bill wanted to know.
"I'm only Nelda Barrie, farmer by necessity." Her gaiety left her and she became a little petulant. "Why," she demanded of no one in particular, "do all these awful things have to happen to us? Rains, strikes and what have you?"
"Life would certainly be swell if it would leave us alone," Bill commented dryly. "But who wants to vegetate?"
"I don't want to vegetate, but I would like a break on my lettuce crop," Nelda said firmly.
"If we don't get that break," Bill began and paused for a second— "Well, in my case it will be a crisis."
When they reached the paved thoroughfare on the way home they passed Reck. Nelda's heart gave a leap at sight of his roadster, then dropped like a plummet when she saw the blond girl beside him.

Never Again

BY the time she reached the rancho her emotions had exhausted her—left her without impulse to think or act. Let him go. Let him marry Vivian Nelson. She had been home about an hour when a familiar horn sent up a demanding honking in the yard. Reck!

He had come back! Joy shot through her, sudden and sharp, like a dazzling wave. She started out on a run, but her steps slowed as she approached the back door. "Don't throw yourself at him!" her pride warned.
"Hello, Reck," she greeted in a steady voice.
He leaped out and advanced possessively upon her, tall, golden like a Greek god.
"I came to give you this!" He took her hand and placed the diamond ring upon her finger. "I know you didn't mean what you said the other night."
"What I said!" She drew away from him.
"I didn't mean a word of what I said." The softness in his voice made her crumble up and go into the arms he held out for her.
"Let's never shoot off sparks like that again, Reck—I've been miserable."
"So have I. But there's something I want to know. Is that fellow Langdon in love with you?"

"No."
"I hate any one who is in love with you," he said passionately. "You've got to come to Europe with me."
"It'll take me such a very few months to graduate."
In the end they compromised. She would go back to college, but she would join him in Paris as soon as she possibly could after graduation.

Paris in April

I AURA returned from her visit to her brother all aglow with accounts of his fine farm and the good things she had to eat while there.
"Is your brother better?" Mrs. Barrie wanted to know.
"He's as well as he'll ever be, I guess," Laura answered. "He's the complainin' kind, but you know a creakin' hinge hangs a long time."
June came brightly and gave way to the more brilliant radiance of July. There was a great charm about the summer season in the Pajaro Valley. The days were blue and gold, steeped in sunshine.
Nelda's lettuce crop looked even more promising than the spring one had. It was as if the earth had opened her heart and yielded treasures.
Nelda had all her plans organized. The crop would be ready to harvest around the middle of September. She would superintend that and enroll at college the first of October. Reck and his mother planned to sail for Europe in November. They were going to New York by way of the Panama Canal. They expected to remain abroad for two years. Nelda would join them in Paris in April.
"What a time we'll have!" Reck prophesied. "The mater knows the social paths of the continent like nobody's business."
It would be fun to do Europe with him, Nelda thought. She had drugged her mind against her suspicions concerning Mrs. Reckless's real reactions to her. Finally she reached the point where she felt she had only imagined that the woman objected to her as a daughter-in-law.
(Copyright, 1937, Alice Marie Dodge)

Labor troubles loom on Nelda's horizon, tomorrow.

Even in the heeting gumpes she recognized her as Vivian Nelson.

FARM SESSION IS SCHEDULED

Announce Program for Annual Extension Conference

Raleigh, Jan. 3.—John W. Goodman, of State College, announced today the complete program of the annual Extension Service conference, which will be held here January 11-14.

The conference, constructed around the theme "Reorganizing North Carolina's rural life," will feature agricultural, educational, and social and national importance.
For the first time, an outside group will join the Extension personnel this year in the conference. Goodman, who is assistant director of extension at State College, said. Workers of the Farm Security Administration will attend and take part in the four-day session.
Governor Clyde R. Hoey has been scheduled as one of the featured speakers on Tuesday, the opening day of the conference. Others on Tuesday's program are Col. John W. Harrelson, State College dean of administration; Dr. C. W. Warburton, national director of the Extension Service; and E. B. Garrett, State coordinator of the Soil Conservation Service.

Joint sessions of men and women workers will be held every day, and separate sessions of the two groups during two afternoons Goodman said.

Current farm problems affecting the lives of millions of rural people, such as the agricultural conservation program and tenant security, will be discussed thoroughly during the conference.

Because of its growing importance in the life of the farm family, one afternoon session will be devoted to the widely-expanding rural electrification program and the many uses to which electricity can be put on the farm.

Rice is India's most important crop.

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine
By Iago Galston, M.D.

Colds in Children
As everyone knows, infants and children are highly susceptible to respiratory infection. This is the most frequent ailment confronting physicians who treat children. The danger of complications following colds is greater among children than among adults. Apparently children have less resistance to such infection. Also, the anatomical structures of the child's head (notably the eustachian tube leading from the throat to the middle ear, and the sinuses) differ radically from those of the adult. The eustachian tube is shorter and more open; the sinus in the cheek bone has a comparatively large opening leading into the nose. Among the serious complications of colds in children are infection of the middle ear, involvement of the lungs (bronchitis and pneumonia) and involvement of the head sinuses, notably the sinuses of the cheek bones. This last condition (sinusitis) is much more common in children than was previously suspected, and may in itself be responsible for the first two complications, as well as for numerous constitutional disturbances.

We are inclined to speak of colds as affecting the nose, tonsils, larynx or the bronchi. So we call them rhinitis, tonsillitis, laryngitis or bronchitis. But these descriptive terms point only to the sites of greatest involvement. In practically all colds the entire mucous membrane, which forms a continuous lining throughout the respiratory tract (including the head sinuses) is likely to be affected. The head sinuses are practically always involved when an individual suffers a cold. This is particularly true in children because the opening of the child's cheek bone sinus is comparatively large. In the presence of a head cold, sneezing, coughing, crying or vomiting readily drives the infectious material into the sinus.

Under normal conditions the sinuses can evacuate whatever material may have gotten into them, as well as the mucus secreted by their own membrane. But when there are structural defects in the sinuses, or when their openings have become narrowed or blocked by inflammation, drainage is inadequate and sinusitis results.

"WE KNOW TOBACCO BECAUSE WE GROW IT"

What quality of tobacco goes into Camel cigarettes?

This question, of interest to every smoker, is answered by the men who know tobacco from the ground up

IF YOU want to know the quality of the tobaccos that go into various cigarettes, here is one certain source of information—the men who grow tobacco. They sell leaf to the buyer who bids most for it. They have seen Camel bid and pay higher prices necessary to get choice piles of leaf. And they report other planters who grow fine tobacco have had the same experience. That's why, as one grower puts it: "Most planters prefer Camels."
Smoke Camels steadily, and you'll realize what finer, more expensive tobaccos mean in smoking.

"CAMELS ARE MADE FROM more expensive tobaccos," says planter Beckham Wright. "I know the kind of leaf used for making various cigarettes. Only my best lots are bought for Camel."

"THE CAMEL PEOPLE bought the best of my last crop," says T. N. Williams, tobacco planter. "They paid the highest price. More expensive tobacco goes into Camel cigarettes all right."

"I'VE BEEN in this county for 30 years," says tobacco planter Olie Hazelwood. "I'll tell you where the best tobacco goes. The choice lots of my crop are almost always bought by the Camel people. Every one on our place smokes Camels too—just like me."
Fastest rising star: Sonja Henie (who skated and smiled from nowhere in pictures to eighth ranking box-office draw—in less than a year)

MEET ALEY SKIDMORE, of Winchester, Kentucky. "I'm a tobacco planter," he says as he displays some of his choice leaf. "Those Camel buyers pay for the best—and get it. The choice lots of my last crop brought me a top price, and Camel took all of the fine leaf that I had. I'm a steady Camel smoker myself. Camels are the favorite with men who grow tobacco." Mr. Skidmore and the other planters shown here bring direct evidence that Camels are indeed made from costlier tobaccos. Turn to Camels and see for yourself that those costlier tobaccos do make a real difference.

PEOPLE DO APPRECIATE THE COSTLIER TOBACCOS IN CAMELS
THEY ARE THE LARGEST-SELLING CIGARETTE IN AMERICA

Camel spends millions more for COSTLIER TOBACCOS. They are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Jan. 4.—Not so long ago this correspondent predicted that solicitor John Jay Burney, of Wilmington, would be a candidate for the superior court judgeship in the Eighth District.

This Burney man, incidentally, seems to be such a formidable fellow that his expected opponents quit before the race starts.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds, who has opposition in the person of Representative Frank Hancock, has this to say of the coming session of Congress as it affects those legislators who will have to make active campaigns.

"Unfortunately, all these things—the congressional agenda, face Congress in an election year. Members will be faced with a desire to be with constituents and the call of duty in Congress.

"Bob" Thompson, the Governor's private secretary, has to retain a sense of humor or he would soon be cutting out paper dolls or beating on the walls of a padded cell.

Monday, for instance, he opened a letter containing three sheets of legal cap paper, single typed, wading through the several thousand words he reached the conclusion that there was one really significant passage in it.

All the writer wanted the Governor to do of course "Bob" got first crack at the letter) is to appoint a commission to determine what vast sums are due him (the letter writer) because various firms had infringed on his patents of several different kinds of gadgets and also what damages are due him (again the writer) by reason of breach of certain copyrights held on certain religious tracts.

After wading through this, Bob picked up another communication. This was from Oklahoma. It asked the Governor for a tablespoon of North Carolina's soil, preferably "from the grave of a patriot or a signer of the Declaration of Independence."

More than 30,000 Gold Star Drivers operated their motor vehicles in 1937 without an accident, according to headquarters of the Carolina Motor Club.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington. Two seemingly unrelated new developments of recent days, when added together, make sense.

G-Man Hoover Names First Six on New Public Enemy List

By SIGRID ARNE (AP Feature Service Writer) Washington, Jan. 4.—G-Man J. Edgar Hoover and his boys know of six bank robbers they would like very much to have at the busy end of a forty-five.

Hoover originally named eight men on the public enemy list. Two of them, John Washington Turner and William Payne, North Carolina escapees, were captured last night by G-men in Sanford without firing a shot.

These six are Hoover's personal nominees for today's "public enemy" top-flighters. The kidnapers had their day as "Public Enemies One, Two and Three."

So he has combed his records for the next batch of law-breakers he particularly wants to catch. He found the most dangerous fugitives today are bank robbers.

The bank-robber is the post-graduate of the criminal world. He works up to it slowly, beginning maybe as a "punk" stealing cars for joy-rides, then breaking into stores, then passing a hot check or two.

He's a dangerous man to round up. He has plenty of money to buy protection and to roam. He's desperate because if he's caught it means a long term. So he's likely to shoot it out with anyone who gets in his road.

G-men are hunting all six of these men with a cool, careful cataloging of all facts. They find out the bandit's friends, what they like to wear, what they order for dinner, and even when they light a cigar.

When the picture becomes complete and the trail hot, G-men test their hair-triggers. They fear it's going to mean shooting it out with any of this gang when they finally trap them.

Here are the men Hoover names:

Arnold Thomas Kyle

Identified with the robbery of five banks in California. Works with his brother-in-law, Joseph P. Cretzer, who is wanted in connection with seven bank robberies.

Joseph Paul Cretzer

Born in Colorado. 27 years old. Once a hotel keeper. Has a long criminal record. Lives like a prosperous western business man. G-men want him for bank robbery.

Maurice Denning

An Iowan. 27. Formerly a salesman. Arrested first in 1931. Paid $200 fine. Now wanted for robbery of six banks in Nebraska, South Dakota and Kansas.

Irving Charles Chapman

Mississippiian. 38 years old. Sentenced for bank robberies in Louisiana, Texas and Arkansas. Escaped from the penitentiaries in each of the above-named states.

Alva Dewey Hunt

Floridian. 38. Arrested several times since 1924. Sentenced for five years in Florida in 1932. Jumped a $2,500 appeal bond. Is wanted for robbery of Cross City, Fla., bank.

Hugh Gant

Also a Floridian. 36 years old. and Hunt's brother-in-law. G-Men say he lightly lifts autos when he need them. Rifles bank tills. The pair terrorize the southeast.

December 1937:

Japanese Sink A U. S. Gunboat

BY VOLTA TORREY News Review Editor

The AP Feature Service

Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, saying nothing for publication, returned to America in December 1937. Soon, engineers' 1938 work was cut out for them—preparing bids for Chairman Lindbergh of Pan American Airways' technical committee on planes to carry 100 passengers each for 5,000 miles at 200 miles an hour.

Edger planes, said commentators, will make the world seem smaller—a world that spent three as much in 1937 as in 1913, on arms; a world where an apostolic Japan's bombs in the Yangtze river, verterated, this December, along the Potomac and the Thames.

While capturing Nanking, and launching a new anti-red regime in Peiping, the Japanese sank a U. S. Navy gunboat. President Roosevelt insisted that the Son of Heaven himself be spoken to about it. And enough congressmen signed a petition to force consideration of a constitutional amendment providing for referendums on U. S. war declarations.

It's Gridiron Season. Alf Landon, meantime, said the presidential bee was out of the can. But Vermont's long faced Governor Alken was put on the G. O. P.'s possibility list, and Republican coaches met to pick a policy squad.

In Washington, Gridiron Club cheaters sang about the New Dealers: A merry go round was theirs. And business paid the fares. The merry go round broke down. The budget's upward bound. And Franklin said "Is my face red?"

While the merry go round went. Manufacturers urged changes. Congress tussled with wage and hour and farm bills. On the latter, said Representative Warren, the house worked more consecutive days than it had on any other measure in his 13 years in congress. The senate was even slower.

Benito Mussolini: Finally the League brings her own goods into China duty free while other nations are compelled to pay duties, the other nations (including the United States) may be squeezed out of that market.

The second news event was President Roosevelt's statement at a press conference and in a letter to the house appropriations committee that the world situation was compelling him to give attention to the question of a bigger navy.

The President emphasized that he had not committed himself to more vessels than already are ordered but that "if the situation warranted it, he would send to congress a supplementary request for more ships. Repeatedly he emphasized the "if."

The Big Stick. Diplomats know that the nation which can hit hardest gets the most attention. Roosevelt is aware of that. The other Roosevelt once said: "Speak softly, but carry a big stick."

Of course the President did not speak out his navy plans simply because he heard of the Japanese merchant ships landing duty-free cargoes in Shanghai. Those ships represented concretely what has been evinced all along. That is that the Japanese conquest may give Japan a lion's share of the oriental trade.

Ex-Marine General Smedley Butler and many another are insisting that the oriental trade is not worth the price it may cost to save it. You can argue on either side of that question.

Faster Merchant Ships. It might be interesting to know what the United States is doing now in a navy building way. Two 35,000 ton battleships at $60,000,000 apiece have been ordered. The navy has asked, and probably will be granted at once, two more. Altogether 11 have been authorized.

In addition, since 1934, four new aircraft carriers have been built

"When Santa Passes Over Madrid"

December brought, among other things, Christmas in the latter law. CIO steel workers met and cheered a militant speech by their chief, John L. Lewis.

Congress tussled with wage and hour and farm bills. On the latter, said Representative Warren, the house worked more consecutive days than it had on any other measure in his 13 years in congress. The senate was even slower.

A cartoon by Harper in The Birmingham Age-Herald depicted "business draming of a Santa bringing 'tax evasion. In the Utica Observer-Dispatch, Cartoonist Messner showed a man rumped in the Christmas rush, remarking, "So this is a business recession." While York of The Louisville Times drew a picture of children fleeing and captioned it: "When Santa Passes Over Madrid."

In Russia, more than 90,000,000 voted the way they were told and started, 17 heavy cruisers have been built and one is building. Nine light cruisers have been started and two more are authorized but not appropriated for. Thirty destroyers have been built or are building and money appropriated for two more. Congress has authorized 40 additional destroyers, without yet appropriating. Twenty submarines have been built, or are building, and there is congressional authority, without appropriations as yet, for 19 more.

but naval building is not the only way to strengthen the navy. The maritime commission has called for bids for 12 fast new freighters and is dickering with oil companies with a view to putting 12 fast new oil tankers on the ocean. The tankers will be fast enough—the navy is seeing to that—to keep up with the battle fleet which needs oil.

Washington—If what this country needs, is more houses for less money, the Farm Security Administration can build them. The trouble with farm security houses is that they are not broken in to city ways and probably would cause zoning authorities to hold up their hands in horror. But the houses are being built, farmers are living in them—and they don't look so bad.

Of course they are not Park avenue houses. Maybe they wouldn't even look so good on that choice lot in Drake's Corners, Iowa, but if anybody says they are not houses, they would be awfully mistaken.

An Arkansas House. When the Wagner housing bill and other housing bills (most of them are strictly Wagnerian) were before Congress, there was a lot of talk about the impossibility of building worthy houses for less than $1,000 a room. The idea seemed to be that no self respecting stenographer or steel-puddler would live in a house costing less than $1,000 a room. And the fact of the matter appears to be that it is hard to build much of a house in city conditions under that figure.

Yet in Altheimer, Arkansas, the

De Koven Case Detective Now No. 1 French Sherlock

Paris (AP)—Roly-poly, chubby-cheeked Commissaire Andre Roches, who looks more like a cherub than a crime-detector, has become the No. 1 detective of France.

Solution of the mass crimes of Eugene Weidmann has brought the Commissaire general recognition in the top place, to which his office as chief of the special brigade of the judiciary police entitled him traditionally.

First break in the case came when police solved the tragic ride of the disappearance of Jean de Koven, 22-year-old Brooklyn dancer. Weidmann, German ex-convict, confessed strangling the girl and named Roger Millon as "brains" of a "murder for profit" ring of which Weidmann admitted being a member.

Roches replaced Commissaire Marcel Guillaume, most celebrated modern French detective, Jan. 12, 1937, as chief of the special brigade, when Guillaume retired after 37 years' service.

Drew Frowns. When Roches first took charge of France's "Scotland Yard", veteran detectives frowned on the little man whose principal experience had been as secretary to the judiciary police.

When many slayings went unsolved in the Paris department of the Seine, for which Roches was responsible, they scowled even more. But he capture of Weidmann gave a single solution to a mass of crime, and confirmed Roches in his place.

The honor of breaking the Weidmann case went to the recently-created "police d'etat", Versailles branch of the Surete Nationale.

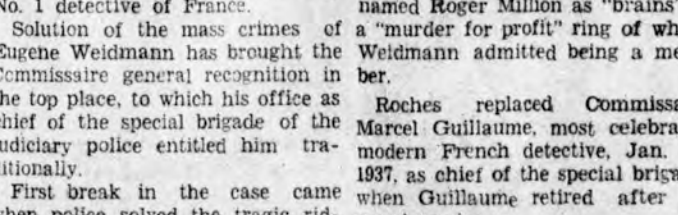

Roches puffed his pink cheeks, clasped his hands in a characteristic prayer-like gesture and went to work. He remained unruffled, even Million, Jean Blanc and Collette Tricot, alleged accomplices of Weidmann, escaped from a trap set for them in a hotel at Nantua, near the Swiss frontier.

They Gave Up. "First," the surete telephoned me, "the birds are in bed," said Roches. "Then, when I heard they had fled I sent warning telegrams to all stations, sat back and waited. They came in soon.

Jean Blanc surrendered personally to Roches, at his office, while Million and Collette presented themselves to the Versailles police. Roches has been with the judiciary police for seven years. As chief of the special brigade, he is entitled to go through the country, and abroad if necessary, to solve crimes committed in the Paris region.

GAME SET FOR FRIDAY NIGHT

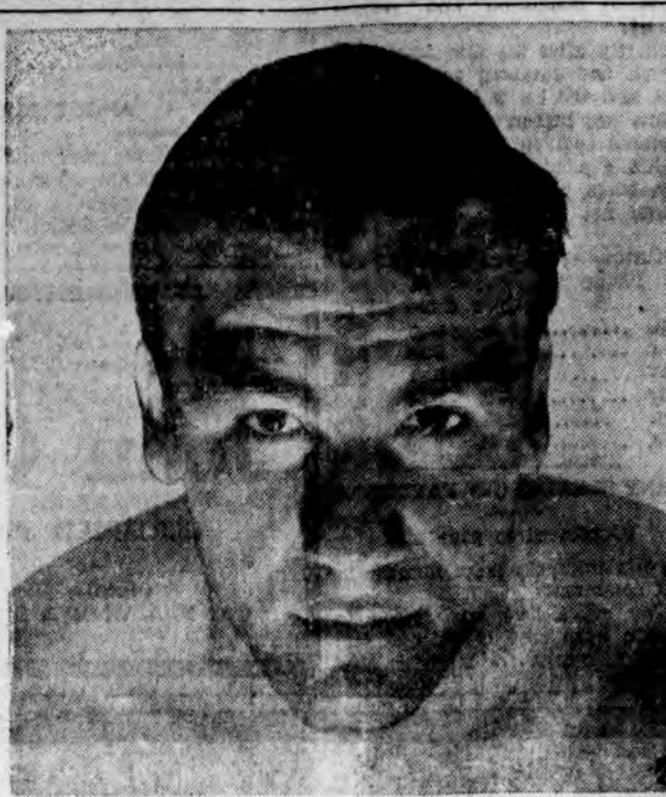

Greenies To Meet Fayetteville Class A Quint

Tomorrow night the Eastern Class basketball champions of Greenville high school will meet Fayetteville high's quint in the high school auditorium at eight o'clock. After playing in Rocky Mount tonight in their first contest of the season, the "Phantoms" will attempt to defend their championship record further by engaging Fayetteville here tomorrow night, and Goldsboro there, Friday night.

The quintet of Greenville High has been developed into a steady outfit. Coach Stowe has built his team around three starters from last year's championship team, namely, Dubose Simpson, John Lawrence and Tom Parrish. George Akas, substitute last year, has won starting position at forward. Howard Hodges, another substitute last year, has won a starting position at guard. Richard Gaylord, Tom Skinner, and Earle Hellen will probably see some action also.

Dubose Simpson, star center, has been elected captain of the team by his teammates. He will be depended upon greatly by the "Phantoms" to lead them to victory. Tom Parrish, hardening ability will also be an important factor of the game.

Picturing Sports

FIGHTING FACE

Before every big bout, a boxer must put on a fearful expression and pose. This is Nathan Mann. He meets Joe Louis February 23. It's supposedly a clinch for Joe, but if Nate wins he'll be champion.

SKIING ON BRISTLES

Probably the world's oddest ski course is one in Berlin composed of 50.0 inverted scrubbing brushes. Heinz Erpel, an amateur, was the inventor. Here's a closeup of skis on the course.

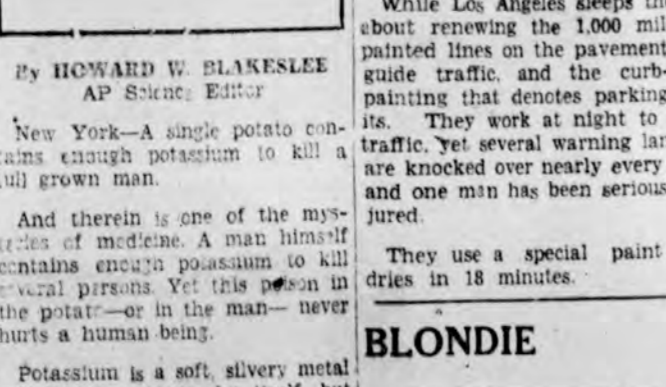

SKIING ON SAND

Another nomination for a strange runway is one of sand located near Palm Springs, Calif. Spills were common as skiers got in pre-season practice on a sand-covered hillside.

SCHOLARLY SPORTSMEN

This miniature gallery of famous faces shows four men who became noted for athletic ability, then won Rhodes scholarships for their studiousness. Byron White of Colorado (left) has just won a Rhodes award; he is an all-America halfback with an "A" average in grades. Brother Sam White (next) won football honors at Colorado; he is at Oxford now. Teddy Burwell, North Carolina tennis star, went to Oxford a few years ago.

STATE COLLEGE TO HAVE ONE SUMMER SESSION

Raleigh, Jan. 3.—Col. John W. Harrelson, administrative head of State College, announced today that there would be just one summer school session this year. Last summer there were two.

The summer school catalogue is ready for distribution. It lists several new engineering courses which have not previously appeared on the summer school curricula.

The new courses have been added primarily for the convenience of students of the South's engineering schools who cannot obtain instruction in those courses at their schools during the regular school year.

NCS ENLARGES NEWS SERVICE

Dixon to Handle General News; Ison Is On Sports

Raleigh, Jan. 3.—The appointment of a full time man to the post of editor of the college news service has marked the beginning of a "new deal" for N. C. State College publicity efforts.

Fred Dixon, for seven years sports editor of the News Service, was promoted to the position. Wade Ison, sports editor of the Charlotte News, was named sports editor in his place.

Each man will give full time service to the department to which he has been assigned. The college has been without a full time news service writer since its organization, although the college administration and the alumni have repeatedly urged the appointment of such a person. Funds are now available in the athletic department for a sports writer, making it possible for the college to have a full time news writer.

However, at the meeting of the athletic council, it was decided that the athletic department is to assume all expenses for the sports editor, thus making it possible for the News Service to obtain a full time man for the coverage of "straight" college news.

Dixon will devote his time to the writing of news and special stories concerning departmental work and student activities, with Ison handling sports solely. Ison was selected for the position of sports editor by a committee of the athletic council composed of H. A. Fisher, chairman; Dr. I. O. Schaub and A. G. Floyd. The new sports editor was employed after a careful survey of available men. His selection has received the approval of Col. J. W. Harrelson, dean of administration, and Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina.

This new arrangement will mean a close affiliation of the service with the athletic department of the college and of a more thorough coverage of "straight" college news than has been the case in the past.

Batting Practice Is Winter Sport For DiMaggio's Rival

THE YORK FAMILY

Joe Wilburn is on Father Rudy's knee, next to Mrs. York; Mary Jane is in foreground.

RUDY DISPLAYS AN ANTIQUE

Jo Jo White (left), visits York's home and examines the bat with which Rudy made 22 homers.

RUDY SMOKES A PIPE

The other boy is his younger brother, Lavis, who will get a tryout with Detroit next spring.

Atco, Ga. (AP)—Rudolph Preston York, 24-year-old rookie sensation of 1937, is so glad to have a good job he works on it the year round. He'll begin batting a ball a month before the call for spring training. He's signed his 1938 contract, and he's already down to his playing weight, 212 pounds.

To complete the thoroughness of his preparations for the '38 big-league baseball season, he's giving his bats a unique treatment to make them weapons of magic.

York is spending the winter here with his wife and two children and with Lavis York, a brother who plays first base and who will get a Detroit tryout next spring.

Look In The Garage

Rudy's Exhibit A is in his garage. Hanging on the walls are two catchers' mitts, a first baseman's mitt, and a Detroit uniform.

"See," York smiles. "When it starts raining up I'll get down to work in condition."

"Lavis and the neighbor kids like to chase flies. I'm going to give 'em a workout on the first good day."

York's Exhibit B is a big wooden box. It contains bats packed in compost.

"It makes 'em lighter," Rudy says, "and they last longer. I've got some of Gump's sticks in here. Some belong to Marv Owen. The rest are mine. There are three dozen of 'em."

The Bad Old Days

"It's all because he's so thankful to have a regular job, and he's so anxious to keep it, York explains. He admits he was ready to give up when he was ordered to take over the catching job for Detroit last season.

"I'd just missed being shipped to Toledo," he recalls. "Then Cochrane

Makes A Better Mousetrap, But May Lose Path

Cainsville, Mo. — Even if the railroad does quit beating its path to hill door, Olin R. Booth, this town's lone industrialist, is going right ahead building what he believes is one of the better mousetraps.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy recently asked the Interstate Commerce Commission permission to abandon a 20 1-2 mile branch between Koyle, Ia., and Cainsville—population 705. The only industry on the line, said the railroad, was Booth's mousetrap manufacturing company.

The railroad's departure, says

Olin Booth & Mousetraps

Booth, will "hurt some," but two-thirds of his shipments go by truck.

"This is the dull season, anyway for mousetrap makers. In the spring production is stepped up until his two-room factory employs 12 persons and turns out traps at 15-a-minute. He sells them in 10 states.

"All my life," Booth says, "I've had the desire to make some little thing that is universally used, and put it on the market. About four years ago I got the idea for this trap. I started to think about it, and you know how it is—I couldn't get it out of my mind. It took about a year of working on it before I had it right."

He has patents pending on the device and claims these features: A nipple wire catch which makes the trap open without tearing the fingers; a hole in the bottom to permit setting the bait trigger without danger of pinching the fingers; a sensitiveness which insures a never-failing doom for a nosy mouse.

It's Odd But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE AP Science Editor

New York—A single potato contains enough potassium to kill a full grown man.

And therein is one of the mysteries of medicine. A man himself contains enough potassium to kill several persons. Yet this poison in the potato—or in the man—never hurts a human being.

Potassium is a soft, silvery metal which never occurs by itself, but always in combination with other chemicals. A little bit of it in the human blood stream is fatal. Yet the human cells are high in potassium. The poisonous metal is "bound" in the cells. For some reason not known it does not escape.

Take away the potassium from a man's cells and he would probably die. Just why it is part of the body's cells is not known. There has been some recent evidence that this silvery stuff is useful in regulating the heart.

Medically potassium is useful for a large variety of ills. Its uses depend on what other substance is combined with it. With bromide it quiets spasms. It is useful in skin troubles, for nerves, rheumatism and tuberculosis.

PAINTING TRAFFIC LINES IS DANGEROUS JOB

Los Angeles—(AP)—James Ganey and his crew are engaged in safety work but it's mighty unsafe for the men themselves.

While Los Angeles sleeps they go about renewing the 1,000 miles of painted lines on the pavement that guide traffic, and the curb-stone painting that denotes parking limits. They work at night to avoid traffic. Yet several warning lanterns are knocked over nearly every night and one man has been seriously injured.

They use a special paint that dries in 18 minutes.

"Another Cowboy in The Making"

YORK'S BIGGEST THRILL CAME AUGUST 31

Atco, Ga. (AP)—The biggest thrill Rudy York has had in baseball came when he broke Babe Ruth's one-month home-run record.

Last August he smashed out 18 home runs, which shattered the Babe's all-time mark of 17.

The record-breaking blow was his second hit of the day on August 31 and was made off Pete Appleton, Washington right-hander. In addition to hitting two circuit blows York that day collected two singles and drove in seven runs.

"I was a little afraid I'd tighten up," he said. "After I hit the first one I got adjusted and had a good day. I could hardly believe it though, when I connected for that second homer—the one that beat the record."

School Principals Express Gratitude To Roy T. Cox

J. P. McBryde, principal of the Grimesland school, acting for the various principals of Pitt county, has written a letter to Roy T. Cox, who recently retired as chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, expressing gratitude and appreciation for his interest and work in the educational life of the county.

The letter follows: "Since you have chosen to retire to a life less strenuous than the very active one which has used you sometimes selfishly, always unsparringly, in the service of the people of this county, I have been requested to attempt to express to you the gratitude and appreciation of a cause you have loved and served so well—Education.

Words are such meaningless symbols when used to summarize the activities of a life so intense—when used to praise a man so averse to public acclaim—yet they can in some small measure recall the instances in which your honesty, common sense, and sound judgment have helped win the fight for Public Education in this county. It is a matter of general knowledge that Pitt County has one of the finest school systems in this state and you have been largely responsible for this fact, although, the part you have played has been so modestly unassuming that only those in closest touch with the administration are aware of just what a courageous stand you have made as Chairman of the Board of Commissioners which has been directly and jointly responsible with the Board of Education for the fine status of our county schools today.

"Without mentioning specifically any particular case, for they are far too numerous, we wish to congratulate and pay tribute to you for the high ideals which have always characterized you in the exercise of your duties as a public servant of the people of this county. We, as school men, wish to thank you, too, in behalf of the thousands of school children in Pitt County who we feel will make inner citizens because of the opportunities which the wisdom and foresight of you and your board have provided."

Ray Moves Up By Falling Down

RAY BOLGER
The Screen's Fall Guy

Hollywood — Ray Bolger, rubber-legged dancer and comedian, is scoring a hit in Hollywood as much for what he hasn't done, as for what he has.

It happened this way: Famed on the stage as a tap and eccentric dancer, Ray was a hit in "The Great Ziegfeld" last year—appearing in but one number. This year he was assigned to the musical "Rosalie" in a prominent role. But the picture was so long when completed that cutting was necessary. Much of Bolger's stuff was sacrificed in the operation. Result: previewers unanimously inquired, "Why wasn't there more of that funny thin man?"

Ultimate result: there will be more in "The Girl of the Golden West," and in subsequent films—more, and more.

Ray's from Boston, wanted to be a bank president but became a vacuum sweeper salesman instead, and gave that up for hoofing. Here's how he does it:

TAKEOFF Ray doesn't recommend this for beginners. It's a time step two feet from the ground. But if you think that's high, look at the next one.

CLIMBING Now he's really going into action, flipping himself 4 feet off the ground while clicking the soles and heels of his shoes together at the same time.

CRASH Maybe he's in too much of a hurry. Look out, Ray, or you'll need a parachute. Anyway, it looks like a bad landing.

GROUNDING There he is, back to earth again. Get up Ray, you might have gotten a cauliflower ear. Or can tap dancers take it better than prize-fighters.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Buyers were few, but persistent in today's stock market and favored steels, aircrafts, motors and specialties, which were lifted fractions to more than three points.

The advance was negotiated on relatively small volume, the ticker tape frequently being at a standstill. Profit realizing was absorbed without much trouble and leaders were not far from the best levels near the fourth hour.

Many corporation bonds improved, but U. S. Governments were inclined to give ground.

Protein supplements such as tank age, fish meal, soybean oil meal, are readily available at moderate cost.

All these things, Taylor said point toward a substantial increase in North Carolina's swine industry during the coming years.

The expression "All is lost save honor" was first used by Francis the First of France after a military defeat.

of applications. A large majority of those eligible, however, probably will have filed claims by the end of the week, it was predicted. Of these seeking to make applications yesterday and today, it was estimated that at least 95 per cent were colored residents.

HE SELLS 20 MILLION POUNDS OF TOBACCO A YEAR

Bob Cooper — tobacco auctioneer — tells why he, and other tobacco experts, prefer Luckies . . .

"I've been auctioneering for 20 years," says Mr. Cooper, "in Georgia, North Carolina and Tennessee . . . and I've seen the tobacco Lucky Strike buys at auction after auction. It's the best in smoking quality."

"Luckies suit my throat, too, as well as my taste. Even after crying out bids 7 hours a day, Luckies never bother my throat in the least." (Reason: the exclusive "Toasting" process expels certain irritants found in all tobacco.)

"In every section of the Tobacco Belt where I auctioneer," Mr. Cooper adds, "I've noticed tobacco men smoking Luckies."

Are you benefiting by the experience of the tobacco experts? . . . Sworn records show that among independent tobacco experts, Luckies have twice, yes—twice, as many exclusive smokers as have all other cigarettes combined.
