Reports Show Only Slight Increase In Unemployment

GAINS SHOWN IN WEEKLY WAGES Data Gathered From Reports of 440 Manufacturing Concerns in North Carolina

Raleigh, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Major A. L. Fletcher, State Labor Commissioner, reported today that complete reports from 440 manufacturing enterprises in North Carolina showed they used only 4.6 per cent less employees in a mid-December week than they did during the comparable November week.

For the purpose of the labor statistics, all employers report detailed data on their work week ending the nearest 15th of December as compared with the similar week of November.

"There is no doubt the recession has made itself felt in North Carolina, but the cold figures, certified by the employers, show that during December the unemployment was nothing like as serious or widespread as idle rumors would have made our people believe," said Fletcher. "The manufacturing plants cut off a few people, the payrolls dropped some, but the weekly earnings of those working went up."

Fletcher noted that because of seasonal conditions employees increased in retail trade establishments and dropped slightly in wholesale houses.

The 440 manufacturing enterprises said their December employees totaled 111,325, down 4.6 per cent from November; the payrolls totaled $1,639,431, down 2.3 per cent, and the man-hours of labor showed a drop, with the average work week being 69 per cent off, but the average weekly earnings jumped 2.3 per cent to $17.27.

The highest paid industrial workers were in knit goods as they averaged $17.77 weekly for 38.2 hours, the earnings being up 2.1 per cent over November in 64 plants.

State Lacking In Proper Facilities For Feebleminded

North Carolina Has No Means Whatsoever For Taking Care Of Adult Persons Of Feeble Mind

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Jan. 14.—North Carolina's facilities to care for its adult feeble minded are not inadequate—they are non-existent.

In words of one syllable, the state has no place to put them. Yet it is the Constitutional duty of the state (not the counties, not the cities nor anything else) to care for them.

Feeble minded children, if they are white and between the ages of 6 and 21, may get into the Caswell Training school, near Kinston, if their applications have been on file long enough. Feeble minded children if they are colored, may get into a ward of the Goldsboro state hospital when some of the 300 now there die.

But feeble minded adults, of both races, must wander aimlessly about the streets or, if they just can't make it in the outside world can be shut up in county jails or county homes.

And only a small percentage of the feeble minded children get even the custodial care of the state. The recent report of the Commission for the Study of the Care of the Insane and Mental Defectives estimated that there are 58,549 mentally handicapped white children in the public schools of North Carolina. NO LET-UP IN ORIENTAL WAR

While France Faces Grave Domestic Difficulties and China and Japan Locked in See-Saw Battle Over Fate of Central China, Tired Infantrymen at Teruel, Spain, Rest For Battle To Come

(By Associated Press) The People's Front Government of France collapsed in a factional struggle today, tired infantrymen at Teruel, Spain, rested in slush and mud for battles to come, and in the Orient a half-million Chinese and Japanese soldiers were locked in a see-saw battle to determine the fate of Central China.

The Bank of France ordered all exchange transactions suspended "until further notice" while President Albert LeBrun sought a new government to replace that of the resigned Camille Chautemps. He first invited Chautemps to form a new cabinet, but the latter declined.

Some observers felt the new government would be a middle of the road cabinet, carrying out the policies of a sphere of opinion somewhere between the "Leftism" of the former Working Union of Socialists, Communists and Radical Socialist and the Conservative Right.

Insurgent war planes bombed government communications near Teruel, the main theatre of the Spanish war.

report that meat market inspections are now under the supervision of the State Health Department. 'Malaria control, in the matter of the Swift Creek drainage, has continued and this project is now nearing completion. An effort was made in 1937, and will be continued in 1938, to have Pitt county make a model malaria control county by the State Board of Health.

'One of the outstanding phases of our public health program is the monthly, State-Pitt County Orthopedic Clinic, sponsored by the Greenville Rotary Club and held in the offices of the Pitt County Health Department. This clinic serves not only Pitt, but Beaumont-Hyde, Pamlico and Carteret counties as well. During 1937, 182 individual patients were admitted to this clinic.

'Last year a small beginning was made in the matter of cancer control. This effort consisted of the presentation of a scientific paper and a moving picture before this Society by Dr. H. B. Ivey of Goldsboro, member of the State Cancer Committee, and of a limited lay-educational program carried on by talks, by the distribution of cancer literature, and through the newspapers.

'The tuberculosis control program was greatly extended during the year. The Pitt County Board of Commissioners wisely provided 11 Burr cottages for the segregation of advanced cases of tuberculosis. The annual annual state tuberculosis clinic, in cooperation with the Pitt County Health Department, was held during April in Greenville, Farmville and Ayden. In November at the invitation of the Greenville Woman's Club, Dr. P. P. McCain, superintendent of the State Sanatorium, discussed tuberculosis control at a public meeting. Also tuberculosis moving pictures were used during the year by the Health Officer before this Society and in the public schools.

'The objectives for 1938 are: 'The extension of ALL present activities with emphasis on: '1. Diphtheria vaccinations in infancy.

'2. Venereal disease work. (Perhaps a clinic in Ayden). '3. Maternal and infant welfare work.

'4. Better tuberculosis control.

Green Phantoms Best Wilmington; To Play Rocky Mount Tonight

Lautares Leads Local Cagers in 54-10 Win For 6th Straight

In a one-sided fast moving basketball game, the Greenville high school champions continued their winning streak by defeating the Wilmington cagers 54-10. It was Greenville's fifth conference win in as many starts. This puts them well on their way toward repeating last year's success. They now lead the eastern conference.

John Lautares made 13 points to lead the winners and Dabose Simpson followed with 10 points. Tom Parrish scored 8 points; Richard Gaylord 6; and George Sakas 6. The second team also scored steadily making 15 points.

Wilmington made only 3 field goals, all by Bullard, and 4 three throws. Greenville's defense was the feature of the game.

Greenville will play Rocky Mount tonight, in the high school auditorium at 7:30 in their sixth conference game of the year. In their first contest they defeated Rocky Mount by a score of 15-13 in a close fought battle. The game tonight is expected to be equally as close as the previous engagement between the two teams.

IRISH ARE STILL TOUGH

South Bend, Ind. —(AP)— Just as was the case a year ago, Notre Dame's basketball quintet has run slap-dab into early disaster, but the Fighting Irish may snap back into trim for another long victory string.

Coach George Keogan's professional eye detected a lack of tension in his cagers early this campaign. They weren't keyed up to their task.

Keogan's diagnosis was correct and the Irish didn't get away with just a scare. Illinois bopped them and halted their consecutive game streak at 19.

So, now that that's over, Keogan hopes they'll get set for another winning streak. On paper, at least the Irish should turn in a better record than in 1937. The squad is in better physical shape than it was early in the previous campaign, is stronger and more experienced and the schedule is no more difficult.

A year ago Captain Raymond Meyer was out with injuries. John Moir was playing with a broken cheek bone. Paul Nowak was recovering from an appendectomy and Earl Brown had reported late from football.

PAUL NOWAK He's Recovered

But, after pre-holiday setbacks from Illinois and Northwestern, they won all their other games except a close tussle with Pittsburgh.

All the veterans are in hope this year. Moir and Brown at forwards; Nowak at center; Meyer and Tommy Wukovits at guards. The quintet also has the advantage of replacements who won 13 straight contests as freshmen.

PLAN DISCUSS QUAIL SEASON

Sportsmen To State Views at Meeting in Kinston

Kinston, Jan. 13.—Hunters in Eastern North Carolina will not press for a closed season on quail, Ellis Simon, local leader in the movement for perpetuation of the species, said Tuesday. Sportsmen have agreed on a substitute four-point program.

A mass meeting will be held in the court house here at 8 p. m. January 21. Sportsmen and officials will state their views. Whatever the sportsmen request, other than a closed season, will receive careful consideration from state officials, it was said.

It is explained that a closed season would be "impossible." It would take many hundred dollars of revenue from a department unable to exist without license fees.

The sportsmen believe their substitute program would build up the supply of quail. It follows:

1. Abolish the split season on doves; have the dove season open and close simultaneously with the quail season.
2. Ban automatic and repeating shotguns, allowing only one-, two- and three-shot guns.
3. Have in each hunting week two or three closed days.
4. Organize a "wild life club" in each county to assist landowners in purchasing feed and birds, for restocking; pay bounties on predatory animals and birds; cooperate with wardens by reporting out-of-season hunting, poaching and selling of birds.

Sportsmen ask cooperation and others interested in the program are urged to communicate with Game Protector Daniel Brodie, Simon or the Free Press on or before the 21st. Since plans for a mass meeting were announced a month ago Simon has received letters containing more than 600 names of persons favoring a closed or shorter season for quail. The movement launched here affects some 35 counties in this section. A similar movement is expected in western counties.

AT LEAST FIVE DISTRICTS TO SEE JUDICIAL CONTESTS

(Continued from page one) Second: Judge Walter J. Bone, of Nashville, sits on the bench by appointment of Governor Clyde R. Story and not through the voice of the people. Thomas Valentine, of Spring Hope, had aspirations even before Judge Bone. He hasn't yet fled, but he has asked R. C. Maxwell, secretary of the election board, for an official blank.

This should be a landmark. Judge Bone was of the faction which elected Haro D. Cooley to Congress, and so was Valentine. The Spring Hope Lawyer has been an important and influential figure in "liberal" circles for years and is generally credited with being among the state's most astute campaigners. He managed Ralph W. McDonald's spectacular, and almost successful, campaign to unseat the dominant Administration forces in 1936.

If Bone and Valentine get too strenuously embroiled, a so-called "conservative" might slip in and get away with the prize despite the fact that the district (Edgecombe, Martin, Nash, Washington and Wilcox) is predominantly Anti-Administration.

Sixth: Judge Henry A. Grady, Clinton, has an announced opponent in the person of Henry L. Stevens, Warsaw, one-time National Commander of the American Legion. Grady, who was a Grand Knight of the Ku Klux Klan, has just brought down on himself a roar of protest for placing Mrs. Sina Pope Godwin, of harnett, on probation after her conviction for killing her husband. The judge is rapidly backing-water and has issued a "show cause" order which may result in the woman's having to serve the term to which she was sentenced; but Stevens is likely to make political hay out of the issue, though he says he was not influenced in any way in announcing Duplin, Lenoir, Onslow and Sampson compose this district.

Eighth: Judge E. H. Cramer has announced his retirement and John Jay Burney, Wilmington solicitor, is already out for votes. Jay as he is called has shown amazing political strength in New Hanover, Pender, Brunswick and Columbus which make up the district. There is talk of Isaac C. Wright, a crackerjack lawyer but a fanatic dry in a fanatically wet county, as his opponent Burney in walk over on the present state of things.

Tenth: Judge Marshall Spears has announced himself "out" Solicitor Leo Carr, Luther Carlton of Person and Judge James R. Patton, Durham, are regarded as likely aspirants. The district embrace Alamance, Durham, Granville, Orange and Person.

PIRATES MEET NORFOLK TEAM

College Squad Leaves for Game with Naval Base Quint

Coach Joe Alexander with a squad of twelve basketball players left this morning for Norfolk, where they play the outstanding U. S. Naval Base team, at the Naval Station, tonight. Tomorrow night they play the Norfolk Division of the College of William and Mary.

Coach Alexander expressed doubt at winning from the Naval Base team, but hoped to even the win and loss percentage by taking the William and Mary Braves.

Men making the trip on the ECTC Pirate squad are James Johnson, Felix Cecot, B. Ridenhour, and L. Ridenhour, guards; Bert Lettle and Kelly Martin, centers; William Shelton, Earl Smith, Bill Durdash, James Hinson and Adrian Ayres, forwards, and William Merina, manager.

The Naval Training Station plays a return game here next Tuesday night, at which time East Carolina basketball fans will have an opportunity to see one of the finest teams to be here this year. Lieut. Conley has one of the cleverest ball-handling clubs ever to represent the service base and will present an adept team well equipped in a fast break offense with a shifting man-to-man defense.

Beth High School, coached by Francis Sinclair, a former ECTC athlete, will play the ECTC outlaws in the preliminary game which will start at 7 o'clock.

Beware Coughs That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product, and the relief you want. (Adv.)

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Jan. 14—Widest spread confusion and maverick in the matter of slot machines and "bookies" on the part of local authorities is furnishing advocates of a State Department of Justice with more than a little ammunition.

They point out that these matters would be brought to a speedy determination if there were a central law enforcement bureau for the state.

A Department of Justice, they contend, would soon find out whether or not the co-called "Silent Salesman" now protected in some jurisdictions by a Federal Court injunction are violations of the Flanagan Anti-Slot Machine Law, and it would soon get a financial verdict on whether anyone can openly maintain a betting establishment in North Carolina on the plea that it does nothing but receive and transmit money to state where horse race betting is legal.

Harold Baird, of Elizabeth, N. J., used to be a friend of George Ross POU, but the State Auditor is now just a bit puzzled how to classify him. Mr. Baird is the fellow who sent Mr. POU two "baby" St. Bernards, weighing a mere 125 pounds or so each. They eat so much that the State Auditor has to figure them in his budget.

Farm agents from all over the state, here for the four day Extension Workers' Conference of the State College Extension Service, were shown what makes the wheels go round in the State Department of Agriculture. Commissioner W. Kerr Scott had them go through the building Thursday evening.

Commutation of the sentence of Tommy Walls, Mecklenburg Negro who had been sentenced to die for first degree burglary, recalls that earlier he got reprieve less than an hour before he was slated to sniff prison gas, and projects again the question whether or not such last minute interventions are wise.

Many contend that granting reprieve so late prevents confusion of their crime by demented criminals. Knowing that up to the very last minute there's always a chance their execution will be stayed, they keep a "stiff upper lip" and a quiet tongue, whereas if were known that no reprieve will be forthcoming within, say, two days of the execution date, many would "come clean" and remove any last lingering doubt of guilt.

Public figures are sometimes heard to complain that newspaper men have published a mething told them "of the record," but just as often the news man has a better right to be the complainant about failure to observe an agreement about any piece of news.

For instance, your correspondent called Henry Stevens, of Warsaw, early this week and asked him if he was going to run for judge and if he had any comment to make on the Godwin probation controversy in Harriet. Mr. Stevens urgently requested your correspondent not even to write that he had talked to the Warsaw man about the matter, at the same time saying "If I have anything to announce, I'll see that you get it before it's published anywhere else" or words to that effect. The next thing your correspondent knew, Mr. Stevens announcement was printed in the morning paper.

Washington Daybook
By Preston Grover
Scene: The senate chamber. A dozen senators are sitting about, maybe two dozen at times, some listening, some drowsing, some signing letters, some just sitting. The senate is debating the anti-lynching bill.

Pro And Con
Senator Lewis: "Mr. President, I have moved to strike out of the bill the provision I have read touching the question of exempting gangsters from the provision of the bill, and also those involved in labor disputes."

Senator Barkley of Kentucky: "I do not believe there has been any criticism of the wording which would eliminate labor disputes."

Senator Connelly of Texas: (Note—He hates the anti-lynching bill as an offense against southern state sovereignty.) "Would the senator from Illinois mind telling me who these mysterious, occult, invidious, and influential interests are which are dominating the senate without disclosure of who they are or where they are from?"

Some Senatorial Wit
Connelly: "If there is any reflection on the senator's constituents, it is simply because he recognizes that the bill under its terms would cover more gangsters and more racketeers in Illinois and Chicago than in any other place. (Laughter)"

DARE TO DREAM

BY ALICE MARIE DODGE

The Characters
 Nelda, courageously drives a truck, and cuts lettuce herself, determined to market her crop, regardless of strikes.
 Bill, another lettuce farmer, is a great help and encouragement to Nelda.
 Reck, a wealthy playboy, and Nelda's fiancé, is unsympathetic with Nelda's ambitions.
 Mrs. Reckless, Reck's haughty mother, seems to have something up her sleeve.
 Jack, is Nelda's younger brother. She wants him to become a doctor.

Chapter 34

Turning The Tables

"IT DOESN'T matter what Mrs. Reckless does," Nelda had meant to add, "But I am her son's fiancée."

Was she Reck's fiancée, she asked herself inwardly and answered the question with spirit. Of course she wasn't! She'd see to that. The fact that they hadn't invited her to the party was like a call to arms. She would show Reck and his mother that the Barries were as proud as they were. She could give parties, too. Her eyes stormy, she turned to Claire.

"I wish you would all stay over tonight, and I'll give a party," Claire grinned.

"Attainable! You know I'd enjoy helping you get even with that Reckless tribe."

"It's not getting even so much as to show them I don't care. Do you think the others will stay?"

"They'll leave here only over my dead body," Claire granted. "Let's make it a big affair. Anybody you can invite around here?"

"Oh, yes! I've met a number of young people in town since you were here last."

"Good!" Claire's eyes narrowed. "Any man you could invite who would make Reck jealous?"

"Bill Langdon."

"Send him a very special invitation, and if he doesn't accept we'll shanghai him."

"He'll accept all right."

"Oh, oh! So it's that way!"

"Of course not!" Nelda disclaimed hastily. "We're just—sort of pals of the soil."

"Why not get him to take you to our sorority dinner-dance on the 28th?"

"Well—"

"Perhaps he has no ballroom graces?" Claire hazarded.

"Oh, yes, he has! I was just wondering if he'd want to go." Nelda visualized Bill in formal clothes. He would be good to look upon. He would tower above most of the other men.

Claire ran into the kitchen where the others were dishing up lunch.

"We're going to stay all night!" she cried.

"Not I," Harvey said. "I have a dinner engagement."

"Break it!" commanded Claire.

"Can't possibly."

"Take your choice," she said tightly, "of breaking it or our friendship."

Every one present knew that Harvey valued the friendship of the rich, influential girl. All eyes focused on Harvey.

He hesitated only a fraction of a second, then gave a lopsided smile and said, "You win."

After lunch Nelda went to the telephone and invited as many of her friends to the party as she could reach. Then she sped around in her roadster to invite the others. All but the Powells were free for the evening.

You Dared To Dream

BILL was in his living room when she called at his home.

"Won't you come in?" he asked. Curiosity made her accept. The furnishings of the room, she found upon closer inspection, were of very fine quality. A book was turned face down upon a coffee table beside one of the large chairs.

"Your place is lovely, Bill," she said frankly.

He said nothing.

"I was amazed to see such beautiful furniture in a farmhouse," she went on. "That was why you caught me peeping in that day. Remember?"

He smiled, but there was a touch of sadness in that smile.

"I salvaged these things from the wreck," he volunteered.

"I can talk about it now. Couldn't at first because I was so bitter."

"I could see that you were."

"My dad was president of a bank. Just about the time I graduated from college the bank failed. Dad wasn't to blame, but people made him feel he was and he—well, we found him in his car one morning with the motor running."

In her softest voice she said, "I'm sorry, Bill."

"I turned over everything to the bank receivers except this furniture," he continued. "I kept it because my mother used it and loved it. She died about three months before the crash."

"I can understand now how you felt when you saw me crying over my changed lot that morning."

"I resented it because you still dared to dream. I'd run away from everything and bought this farm—on a mortgage. But I found it hard to get used to the new life."

"How do you feel about it now?" she asked curiously.

"After kidding myself, berating myself and psycho-analyzing myself, I finally—"

"Why, Bill, it's gone!" burst from her.

"What?"

"That hurt look in your eyes."

"Yes." He smiled. "I finally evolved a philosophy of living that has made me happy here. How about you?"

Four Stars

SLOWLY she said, "I don't believe I'll ever be content to stay here."

He studied her for a moment before he spoke.

"When you're Mrs. Reckless, you

Softly Nelda said, "I'm sorry, Bill."

won't have to worry whether your soil yields anything or not."

"I'm not going to be Mrs. Reckless."

He stared at her as if he couldn't believe his ears.

"That's over," she said, and added, "Will you come to a party at my house tonight, Bill?"

"Why—yes—of course."

It occurred to her then that each time she and Reck had quarreled she or circumstances brought Bill into the picture in some way. But, she thought, he hadn't seemed to care when she and Reck made up. That was because he was not in love with her. The romantic interest he'd had for her in the beginning seemed to have faded into a strong friendship.

There was something about his confidences this morning that touched her deeply.

"You've been so wonderful to me, Bill, that I've put four stars before your name. Maybe five."

"I don't deserve even one. I've done nothing more than any other man would have done." There was a sort of shyness in his voice. Nevertheless, she saw that he was pleased at her gratitude.

"Bill," she said impulsively, "if I ever hurt you in any way I want you to smack me down."

"Hurt me! What do you mean?"

It was her turn to be shy.

"Well—I've been awfully sarcastic to you and I—"

"I've been sarcastic, too. So we're quits."

"Okay—pal."

They grinned at each other and shook hands.

"I've got to dash home and get things ready for tonight," she said and hurried out.

"I can understand now how you felt when you saw me crying over my changed lot that morning."

BEING ROCKEFELLER'S SON DOESN'T GIVE DAVID AIRS

By WILLIAM MCGAFFIN

(AP Feature Service Writer)

LONDON — John D. Rockefeller, Jr. may be one of the richest men in America but you'd never know it from the comparatively simple student life David, his youngest son. David, who enrolled recently for a London school of economics, is living in a modest flat near the school on a scale no different from that of any student of independent but moderate means.

David Rockefeller at his morning chores

There is no butler to open his door, no valet to dress him, no chauffeur to drive his car. He doesn't even own a car.

Like most students, he has a roommate. He shares his apartment with William Walters, a Minneapolis boy with whom he made friends at Harvard.

As for servants, their "staff" consists of one—a woman who comes in each day to cook and clean.

He's A Conservative

David is the first of his family to try out personally the facilities of the London school although Rockefeller Institute has contributed to its support for years.

If any one wonders at a Rockefeller attending a school with the left wing reputation this one has, David is ready with an answer.

"As far as I can see, that characteristic of the school has been greatly exaggerated," he says.

He merely laughs at the idea that his attendance here indicates any left wing sympathies.

"No," says David, "I'm afraid I'm a conservative."

An Average Student

He does not, however, have to go outside his apartment house to be reminded of left winners. The occupants of the apartment below his is Stafford Cripps, the Socialist party firebrand.

David is a quiet, unassuming, pleasant-spoken fellow and is said to be an average student.

After taking a degree at Harvard in English history and literature, he studied economics in the Harvard graduate school.

Following his year in London he plans to complete his education with a year at the University of Chicago and be awarded, he hopes, a Ph.D. degree.

he died. I carry it in my pocket all day and sleep with it at night."

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—There is an amazing act at Leon and Eddie's, a nightclub in the Fifties. Two trained tom cats box. Staff act appear in a ring, receive instructions and begin faying each other. At the end of the round they return to their corners and look bored. Finally, one falls on the canvas and is counted out. These cats must weigh 15 or 20 pounds each. In front of a full audience, with everybody screaming, a band baring and a "referee" shouting instructions, they stare into space and yawn. It's far and away the best animal act in town.

Now that the days are growing longer one gets about more, and that is good. It is in the sunlight that one sees things—at night one only hears about them.

A hat check lass in an uptown club tells us about a vile little brat who lives in her neighborhood. He has the brass of a cathedral bell and proved it recently when caught pilfering trinkets in a dime store. They hustled the kid into the basement and were on the point of spanking him when he indignantly disavowed the theft.

"But this was in your pocket," cried the manager, "and one of my sales girls saw you take it."

"There is some mistake here," retorted the lad. "I did not steal this locket. It is a keepsake my little dead brother gave me before

As refreshing sales chatter, I submit this spot by a woman selling gardenias in front of the Music Hall the other night:

"I am not starving and I do not buy them because I love flowers and they are 25 cents each, and I will thank you. But if you are disinterested, that is your business, and God speed you on your way."

She emptied five baskets in 15 minutes.

For years there has been a campaign afoot to interest women in smoking pipes and cigars, but it doesn't seem to catch on. Only twice have I seen women smoke cigars in public. The manufacturers would guarantee anybody a fortune who could propose a suggestion that would win the wide feminine trade to their side, but they admit that it isn't probable, not in their lifetime at least. However, the tobacco shops still have trays of dainty little pipes designed for ladies, and they are still hoping. If you have never seen a lady select a good cigar, light it, puff languidly a series of smotherings towards the chandelier, you have missed something.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

Hollywood—John Carradine, the lean and slimy villain of many pictures these past two years, is going to shock fans who love to hate him.

In "Benefits Forged" Carradine is seen as the traditionally kindly and beneficent Abraham Lincoln—and all because Clarence Brown saw him at lunch.

This director is a confirmed lunch-time caster of his pictures. More than a few players, calmly eating in the studio commissary, have won or lost important roles because Clarence Brown's roving eyes studied them there.

"I can see the actors there as their natural selves," he says, "and that's the only way to judge what sort of performance may be in them."

Specialist In Dying Familiar with death in all of its forms—for the movies—Ricardo Cortez is looking toward life as a director.

In half the 260 pictures Cortez has made in his 16 years before the camera, he has played the villain, and in nearly as many films he has met violent death.

Sheep—No receipt; quoting ewes $2.50 to $4.50; bulk of nearby lambs quotable $6.50 to $8.25.

back from the electrical clouds registered on photographic film as isolated spots. The regular "layers" similarly registered by echo, look like a distant mountain range

What makes the clouds is the puzzle. The regular layers are largely caused by ultra-violet rays of the sun. But the little clouds are as numerous by day as night.
