LABOR UNITES TO HELP BEAL KEEP FREEDOM

Massachusetts Judge Continues Hearing Until Feb. 16

WANTED IN N. C. TO SERVE TERM

Committee Formed in New York to Represent Fugitive at Extradition Hearing

Lawrence, Mass., Jan. 26. — (AP) — Judge F. N. Chandler today continued until February 16 the case of Fred Beal, labor organizer charged with being a fugitive from justice in connection with an alleged conspiracy to murder a police chief during a Gastonia, N. C., strike in 1929.

The continuance was granted after Beal's counsel informed the court the Attorney General office would hold an extradition hearing February 15. Beal remained free on bail of $5,000.

The labor organizer, convicted with six others of conspiracy to murder Police Chief O. F. Adersholt of Gastonia, fled after being sentenced from 7 to 20 years.

New York—A non-partisan committee for the defense of Fred Beal, fugitive from North Carolina, had been formed here today. Louis Waldman, labor attorney and member of the state executive committee of the American Labor party, will represent the committee at the extradition hearing for Beal in Boston, Mass.

Two Inquests Set Into Road Deaths

Inquests into two highway fatalities in Pitt county within the past few days have been set by Coroner A. A. Eilwanger.

A hearing into the death of Alfred Francis Simmons, who died yesterday as a result of having been struck by an automobile allegedly driven by J. G. Blow, of Vanceboro Saturday night will be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Simmons was said to have been walking along the Falkland highway with three companions when struck by a car driven by Blow.

An inquest has been scheduled for 3 P. M. tomorrow afternoon in Ayden into the death Monday night of Eugene Forbes, 16 year old Negro boy, who died almost instantly after having been struck by an automobile allegedly driven by Fountain Worthington of Winterville. Patrolman C. R. Williams, who investigated the accident, declared that the Negro youth was hit while skating on the Ayden-Kinston highway, both legs being broken and his skull fractured. Worthington is alleged to have continued after striking the Negro.

A third highway fatality occurred Saturday night, when Herman Wood, Negro, was killed when a car said to have been driven by Joe Cannon, another Negro, ran into a bridge between Greenville and Ayden. Cannon probably will face manslaughter charges.

Held In Death Of Robeson Resident

Dillon, S. C., Jan. 26—(AP)—Three men, James Daniels, Will Rowell and Will Wright, were charged in a warrant today with murder in the death of Willie Oxendine of Robeson county, N. C., whose mangled body was found on a railroad near here about a week ago. Witnesses at the inquest said Rowell, Daniels and Wright engaged in an altercation with Oxendine shortly before his body was found. The three were ordered held yesterday by a coroner's jury.

Five Defendants At Today's Police Court

Three white men and only two Negroes, were tried in the regular Wednesday morning session of City police court. The white defendants, Richard Mills, Walter Haddock and Calvin Haddock, all were convicted of drunkenness. The two Haddocks were fined $5 each and taxed with costs of court, while Mills paid the costs of his case. James Redmond, Negro, was bound over to Superior court under bond of $300 on a larceny charge. Arthur Jones, Negro, was ordered held under bond of $200 to face a charge of assault with a deadly weapon in County court.

The first electric railway was built in the United States in 1885.

SEADLUND PLEADS INNOCENCE

John Henry Seadlund (right), accused kidnaper and slayer of Charles S. Ross, wealthy Chicago manufacturer, mustered a faint smile during his arraignment before a United States commissioner in Chicago. Surrounding him are federal officers. A plea of innocence was entered in his behalf.

State Offers Testimony Against Payne, Turner

Circumstances Surrounding Murder Told from Stand

Asheville, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Five of the prosecution's 38 witnesses in the trial of Bill Payne and Wash Turner, escaped convicts, on charges of murder in the slaying of State Highway Patrolman George Penn described today the officers' pursuit of a fleeing blue sedan shortly before he was shot down on a dead-end road.

The last two witnesses to take the stand before the luncheon recess were Miss Mary Shuford, deputy clerk of court, and Clarence Capps, fruit stand employer, who told of seeing the chase. The latter said he was talking to Penn just before the officer began the pursuit.

The first witness, Dr. George Baier, Jr., Buncombe county coroner, testified, "every bone" in Penn's skull was fractured and his brain was "torn and lacerated" by a bullet found in the left temple inflicted by a high-powered rifle.

The doctor also described many bruises all over the body of the officer, who was slain in an exchange of shots with two men he had chased into a dead-end road after they wheeled their car about and sped away from a highway weighing station.

T. A. Early, in charge of the weighing station, was the next witness. Mrs. Margaret Penn, mother of the slain officer, left the courtroom when deputies brought in several guns, blankets and other articles and laid them on the solicitor's desk as the court opened.

Early testified he returned to the weighing station after being absent about 10 minutes, around 6 p. m., August 22, to find Penn gone. Later, he said, he and State Highway Patrolman R. C. McNeill drove nine miles east of the station where they found Penn dead.

McNeill, next witness called, gave testimony corroborating Early's.

Grant Hearing On Radio Application

Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, has announced that a hearing on the application for the establishment of a radio station in Greenville has been set for February 23.

Mr. McNinch declared that the hearing docket as crowded, but that efforts had been successful in securing a date to hear the application by L. B. McCormick of Greenville.

Permission also was granted for the taking of depositions of Greenville and Pitt county residents on January 24 at 9:30 a. m. in the offices of J. C. Lanier, Greenville attorney.

A large number of residents will testify as to the legal, technical, financial and other qualifications of the applicant to construct a radio station here.

Kendallville, Ind., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Since January 1, in this town of 6,000 persons—no one has been arrested and no cases have been tried in city court. The fire department hasn't made a run. There have been no violent deaths. No building permits have been issued. And, although it's a campaign year, no one has stepped forth as a candidate for public office.

Urges Support Of '38 Birthday Ball

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt county health officer, who probably is more familiar with the work being carried on with funds derived from Roosevelt Birthday Balls, today urged the support of every citizen in the county.

Dr. Ennett wrote the following letter to W. W. Lee, general chairman of the 1938 ball:

Uncle Sam Searching For Ways To Bolster Defense

WAR IN SPAIN SEEN AS TEST

Protagonists Of Increased Armaments Advance Both Spanish Civil Conflict and Sino-Japanese War as Conclusive Reasons Why America Should Strengthen Defenses

(By Associated Press) Uncle Sam cast about today for ways to bolster American defenses before a turbulent quarreling world.

More men, more guns, added strength in the air and at sea, stronger defenses on land—these are the needs advanced by protagonists of armaments increase.

They find their reasons in the Spanish Civil war, which for a year and a half has fed Europe's war jitters; the Sino-Japanese war with its frequent incidents, involving foreign nations; armament building by other nations.

The Civil war in Spain has become a testing ground for the armaments of all nations, thrown in to aid one side or the other.

It is possible that that test one day may determine whether one nation or the other shall find it expedient to challenge another to conflict, which could embroil all Europe.

In China the rumbling of Shanghai's seven charity morgue wagons daily emphasizes war's toll is not alone from the battlefield, but also is taking behind the lines by disease and starvation. Fifty-one thousand Chinese refugees and poor have died in Shanghai since the warfare began here last August.

Fighting is scattered through much of China, with Japanese in control of the major cities—Shanghai, Nanking, Peiping and others. The Japanese avow their intent to form a Japanese-Chinese Manchukuo economic coalition and want a new favorable Chinese government.

Japanese were stalled, however, dispatches indicated today, in a drive to conquer China's lifeline.

BETHEL STORE AGAIN ENTERED

Would-Be Robbery Is Frustrated by Night Policeman

A Negro is being held in jail and officers are searching for a white man following an attempt to rob the M. O. Blount store in Bethel last night.

The store was robbed several weeks ago of merchandise valued at $1,500 and four Negroes are facing trial in this week's session of Superior court on the charge.

When Night Policeman J. E. Carson detected the men attempting to rob the store last night, he found that a large quantity of clothes had been placed in front of the building, ready to be taken to a waiting automobile, through a front glass which had been broken.

Policeman Carson was quoted as

FORCED TO PAY

Judge Henry A. Grady, presiding over a term of criminal court here, is taking stern steps to help the county collect approximately $2,000 in unpaid court costs.

Fifty-three writs authorizing the arrest of as many persons who owe the county court costs have been issued and are being served.

Judge Grady ordered that the defendants be brought before him in Superior court here. Several persons who have been served with the writs and unable to pay have been placed in jail.

BOREALIS SEEN IN THIS AREA

Phenomenon Causes Much Wonderment Among Citizenry

The Aurora Borealis was the answer to many questions on the lips of thousands of citizens throughout this and other communities last night.

First there was no end to the list of citizens who did not realize what caused the bright lights appearing in Northern skies and wondered if a big fire was raging in the distance.

Too, radio receptions caused many a fan to lose patience and forego his or her favorite program.

And it was all caused by the Aurora Borealis making its appearance with all its glory of bright lights flashing across the skies.

While the lights were visible in the city, reports from rural areas declared they appeared much plain er where there were no city lights and where the broad fields offered a more distinct horizon.

Red streaks of Neon-appearing lights flashing across the skies were visible in the country reported that they could see the complete arc with streaks of varicolored flaming lights flying up and then spreading and dying out.

Radio and telegraphic communications felt the effect of the Aurora borealis—or rather the accompanying magnetic storms.

The magnetic storms are attributed by astronomers to sun spot activity.

The last time an Aurora Borealis was visible here was about 10 years ago. Whether the present phenomenon has been seen for the last time or will make its appearance again tonight is uncertain. Neither can radio fans be sure of clearer reception night.

Drop Recorded In Temperature Here

After enjoying balmy-like weather for the past several days, local residents dug out more blankets last night as the mercury dropped down to 31 degrees, as compared with a low during the 24 hours ending at 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

The low reading last night also was much below those of Sunday and Monday nights. Yesterday the lowest recorded was 37 degrees and Monday was 35 degrees.

FUNDS SOUGHT TO AID CHINESE

Red Cross Chapter Is Asking for Voluntary Contributions

Acting in accordance with the pressed wishes of President Roosevelt, the Pitt county chapter of the Red Cross has decided to accept voluntary contributions to aid war-ravaged Chinese citizens.

Contributions will be accepted by A. B. Ellington, treasurer of the local chapter, and by the two daily newspapers in the city, The Daily Reflector and The News-Leader. Each of the school principals in the county has been delegated to accept contributions in his respective community. Principals are members of the executive board of the Pitt Chapter.

In a recent letter sent to the national chairman, President Roosevelt declared that "I feel that our people are sympathetic to those in need in this (the Far Eastern crisis) situation and will wish by their voluntary contributions to take some larger part in aiding in this humanitarian task which the peoples of many countries are participating."

The President stated in his letter that inquiry had been made both of Chinese and Japanese as to the need for outside help. He added that the Japanese society required that their resources were adequate to deal with the situation, but that the Chinese said that "they were very much in need of outside assistance."

J. Nat Harrison, recently elected chairman of the Pitt county chapter, declared that time is of great importance. He urged the citizens.

FILIBUSTER ON LYNCHING BILL FACING THREAT

Senate Expected To Adopt Gag Rule to Limit Debate

EXPECTS ACTION ON VET HOSPITAL

Frank Dunlap Protests Proposed Cut In Federal Highway Appropriations

Washington, Jan. 26.— (AP)—Southern Senators facing the threat of a limitation on debate, resumed their fight today on the anti-lynching bill, meanwhile receiving assurance that there would be no Senate session this evening.

Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky.) announced that in view of the impending vote at 1 p. m. (EST) tomorrow on debate legislation, the Senate would recess today at the usual 5 o'clock hour. Monday and Tuesday it was in session until about 10 p. m.

Senator George resumed the Southern's filibuster, after two Senators tried unsuccessfully to add their names to the petition which forces tomorrow's vote on the seldom-used cloture rule, limiting debate.

George, protesting against efforts "to impose a gag rule," said there were other ways to fight a bill besides speaking against it.

Representative Doughton (D-N. C.), meantime said he expected an early announcement by the Veterans' Administration about a proposed new veterans' hospital in Eastern North Carolina.

He indicated the announcement would relate to the initial allocation to be made for the institution from the proposed $4,000,000 appropriation for new veterans' facilities.

The House has approved the appropriation and it is now before the Senate.

The 300-bed North Carolina hospital has been estimated to cost $1,500,000.

Other developments: The White House arranged a conference between President Roosevelt and Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) on the latter's bill to curb monopolies.

Representatives of State Highway departments objected at House Road Committee hearings to reductions in federal aid highway appropriations as recommended by President Roosevelt.

The committee is considering a bill by its chairman, Representative Cartwright (D-Okla.) to authorize a $238,000,000 appropriations for each of the fiscal years 1940 and 1941.

Frank Dunlap, chairman of the North Carolina Highway Commission, said reduction in federal aid "would affect North Carolina seriously." He referred to "dangerous conditions" arising from worn highways in his state.

Dunlap added the need for road and bridge construction was greater than for grade crossing elimination in North Carolina.

McCormick Offers Support To Move

B. McCormick, upon his return from a business trip North declared that the movement to prevent the return of unlawful slot machines had his wholehearted support as well as that of his employees.

Mr. McCormick declared that upon returning home he found that a number of illegal slot machines had made their appearance in neighboring counties. He stated that the devices were being distributed by an Ohio firm and that while they were contrary to state laws, were being operated under an order signed by Judge I. M. Meekins restraining officers from interfering with their operation.

The local man declared that his firm was connected in no way with the Ohio firm and that his company had no connection with any company that handled any machines other than music devices.

Tar Heels Killed On Virginia Road

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 26.—(AP)—Two North Carolinians were killed when a car crashed into the concrete abutment of a bridge over a creek one mile east of Bowers Hill on the Portsmouth-Suffolk highway today. Dr. L. C. Perkins, Norfolk county coroner, identified the dead as Rigdon Harrison, 39, of Arapahoe, N. C., and Clayton Banks, also of Arapahoe.

Norfolk county police said they found a peddler's license on Harrison's body, made out to W. W. Harrison.

Mercury In N. C. Takes Sharp Drop

Raleigh, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Temperatures over North Carolina ranged from four degrees below zero up to above the freezing mark today as a cold wave gripped most of Tar Heels.

Hundreds of citizens in nearly all parts of the state talked about the display in the northern skies last night by the Aurora Borealis. Raleigh had a temperature of 30 degrees this morning, compared with 50 yesterday, and Asheville had a 6 degree reading. On Mount Mitchell the mercury marked off a four degree below zero temperature.

Wilmington listed 32 and Hatteras 36 while a low of 22 to 24 was fore cast here tonight.

A gusty wind which reached a velocity of 35 to 40 miles an hour here yesterday had abated somewhat, though 25 miles and hour gusts were recorded at intervals.

Miss Hyman announced that the Literature Department will be hostess and have charge of the program at an open meeting at the Woman's Club in March.

Miss Stella Grogan of the college in Durham, gave the program for the afternoon. Her subject was "An American Doctor's Odyssey," by Victor G. Heiser. Since Miss Grogan is a capable writer and personally acquainted with Dr. Heiser, she is vitally interested in this subject and she presented it well. She told us that Dr. Heiser was born in Johnston, Pa., and studied medicine in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia. He was later sent to Boston to examine immigrants. He drafted the Immigration Act. He directed public health work in the Philippines for years, and he saved 100,000 lives a year, thus making a brave fight against ignorance and superstition. His first work here was in behalf of the leper. His heroism was beyond praise. He promoted international understanding and health in many countries of the East. His aim was to open the "Windows of the East" to the benefits of health. He visited 80 countries and contributed greatly to the progress of civilization.

We had as a special guest, Mrs. Davis, a returned missionary of the Christian Church, who has spent 33 years in India. She spoke to us briefly and told us she had been to some of the same places visited by Dr. Heiser, and had met with some of the same problems.

Mrs. H. C. Haynes gave our program of music. She played beautifully "Les Sylphes" by Charminade, and "Lullaby" by Burleigh.

Mrs. Woodard, seated at a beautifully appointed table, poured tea and the hostess assisted by Mrs. Spruill Spain, Misses Helen Settle and Lillian Abbe, served sandwiches, sated nuts and candy hearts.

We were pleased to have Mrs. H. C. Haynes, Mrs. D. S. Aspin, Mrs. C. D. S. Spain, Jr., Misses Settle and Abbe as guests for the afternoon — Reported.

Peace Action

"This subject of propaganda is so vast that I cannot do more than mention it. But the experienced newspaper reader will always be on guard against it. How is propaganda to be known? Unfortunately there is no fixed rule to follow in discovering its presence. There is, for instance, a provision in the postal regulations that paid material when printed in a form resembling regular news must be labeled 'advertisement.' Yet on November 21, 1937, one of the best known newspapers in the country, the New York Herald Tribune, published a 40-page special section on Cuba, leading the present administration in that island, and the only indication that this might be honest reporting was the line: 'This section written and presented by friends of Cuba,' which appeared on each page. It developed on inquiry, however, that the whole thing was a piece of paid propaganda, worked up by an enterprising press agent and paid for by the Cuban government. How the Herald Tribune was able to square this with the requirements of the post office department only its own business office knows.

"In general it is a safe rule to be on guard against propaganda under circumstances such as these: When the sources of news are not clearly identified. When the news contains only an ex parte statement, that is, when only one side in a doubtful matter is presented. When news originates in places where censorship operates. When news is printed in papers with a reputation for violent partisanship. (I find it necessary, for example, to be on my guard when reading the Daily Worker as when reading any of Mr. Hearst's papers). When what is printed as news is seen on close

EMPIRE FOR A LADY
BY ALAN LEVAY

SYNOPSIS: A widespread revolt of savage Dyak tribes makes it impossible for my uncle, James Clyde, to run guns to his client, the besieged rajah. A further complication is the presence of the Forrester's paul, the Apon, in tropical Balingong bay. Christine and her brother, Robert, blankly refuse to leave because they are completing a "plan" of their dead father. Unwilling to quit the island with the young English girl in danger, we are attempting to reach Rajah Mantusen over-river. There is something queer and wrong about this whole situation.

Chapter Eight Refuge!

SUDDENLY, there was a ripping crackle of rifle fire, concentrated at first, then quickly subsiding into the ragged pounding of irregularly reloaded guns. Over these presently began to sound the hoarse, blunt concussion of lantakas, the small-bore brass cannon of the Malays.

Something like cold fire jumped into my uncle's eyes. "By God, Mantusen still holds Balingong!" I remember hearing myself say. "The Dyaks may be fighting among themselves."

"With lantakas, you fool!"

"His decision then was instant, without thought or reason; it was as sudden as the reflex of a muscle, or the crack of a whip."

"Paul, swing he, nose up-stream! Set your oars! I'm going through."

He didn't hear me. "Wait your swing—wait your swing—Now pull!"

The faces of the men were blank with astonishment, but they obeyed with everything they had, lashed into action by the sting of Clyde's voice. "Pull, you fools! Pull as you never pulled! Lift her, if you want to live!"

The water boiled from the blades, and from every blade a deep spiraling hole in the river opened up to go whirling away down the stream. It was as if the violence of my uncle's will had lifted the whole boat half out of the water, and kicked the river out from under him.

Now the ugly, rabid drone of voices with which Dyaks go into action rose from the stockade. Brown figures raced along the shore and ran parallel to us in the jungle. They piled into 20 praus. A throwing-spear splashed into the water close by the boat, sending up a little crystal spout from the brown polished surface of the flood. It was a small sound, not terrifying in itself; it might have been made by a jumping fish, except that I had seen the quick slicing flicker in the air that was the attempt of a brown savage to get himself an oarsman.

"Pull, will you? Can't you pull?" Somehow we made the turn untouched. Far up ahead, at the end of the next long reach, Balingong hove in sight at last, raised high on pilings whose feet were in the water.

Balingong was a strange town, built there by many elements, not one of which was white. Not even a single ugly Dutch bodega softened its completely native look. The river here spread out widely into many-throated shallows, cut up by sandbars and mud islands; and most of the houses stood upon pilings in the water itself, or in mud which would be water when the river turned brackish with the high tide. There were about 400 of those houses, set high on their stilts, made of bamboo and split bamboo and nipa thatch. The disorderly arrangement of the place made it look larger than it was, rambling and tortuous, so that the first time I ever saw it I thought there were thousands of those houses there.

Shower Of Spears

JUST now Balingong had a single immediate meaning. It was refuge. The bold, dangerous reconnoitering of my uncle had suddenly changed into something else. We had come gropingly at first, feeling our way, Clyde's abrupt, brilliantly swift decision — even then I thought it questionable in the extreme — had snatched us through the blockade, and there was no longer any question of turning back. Already we were irretrievably caught in the undertow of events.

With the first sight of Balingong, I saw that the town was strangely changed, and after a moment I knew what was the matter. The palace of the Rajah Mantusen was no longer there.

Because his slaves could bring in his water supply from distant springs, the Rajah Mantusen had been able to elect that no other house in Balingong should be between his own and the sea. It had been set in the river like most of the rest, and like them had been built of bamboo, but topped with shingles, its roof-trees decorated with carved figure-heads. Stilted upon pilings, but impressive in its extent, the bamboo palace had always been the first thing in sight, coming up the river.

More throwing-spears began to sting into the water around us now, cleaving deep, then rising again to float away. A dart from a sumpitan, fired from a hopeless distance, stuck momentarily in the back of my wrist, then fell off.

One of those loaded-bamboo throwing sticks caught the stroke-oar back of the head with a sound like a falling coconut, and he collapsed, one shoulder trailing in the water. His oar dropped free; and I caught it out of the water and shipped it, as we heeled past.

Then abruptly the spears seemed to be all around us, so that you could not count the flickers in the air or the splashes in the water. They ripped into the smooth surface of the Siderong as if somebody had thrown a handful of gravel.

Clyde said, "The damned fools will hurt somebody if they don't look out."

One of the spears struck an oar close by young Slider's hands, and the high spinning bound of the glancing spear gave an idea of the force with which it had been thrown. It came and went like a shadow, leaving a quick flowing curtain of blood on Slider's cheek. It began to drip and run down his chest and his sweat-soaked shirt, without Slider or anybody else knowing just how or how much he had been wounded.

Sea-going Praus

ANOTHER spear broke its point against the bottom of the boat, and splinters jumped; but instead of bounding, this spear stood fantastically on its head, waving crazily straight up. Grogan was looking down at it in a dazed way; the spear was standing there because it had gone through his foot.

For two full strokes he stared at that phenomenon, until my uncle's quiet, supremely matter-of-fact voice awoke him.

"Well, pull it out and throw it away."

Grogan dropped his oar, grabbed the spear with both hands and in a single motion pulled it out and threw it high over his head; then seized his oar and rowed again, slashing a great shower of water over me in his attempt to catch the boat.

The narrow fighting, praus which had put into the river in pursuit of us can lift and skim, they can slide over the water with a free-running ease which was a serious threat. Driven by a short choppy stroke with many paddles, very quick in the beat, they look to be going much faster than they are, and they made our heavy whaleboat seem to founder.

"I said, 'Shall I fire, sir?'"

"Mr. Thorne, you will please get away from those weapons. What, shoot at our little brown brothers, with ammunition that sets me back better than seven cents a round?"

Fortunately those praus were sea-going, too. Some of them had come a long way by the coast. If they had been river raucos they could not have helped running all over us. But their long outriggers, light built though they were, put a bad drag on them, and the praus themselves, with their narrow beams, rode deeper than they looked.

And though they seemed able to close a good bit of distance, they put less enthusiasm into it than we might have feared. We had showed no weapon, but they were afraid just the same. That was the type of advantage Clyde always got by sticking to his white crew, punk though they might be. The Dyaks did not know what kind of explosion of sudden death to expect from us — simply because we were men of the unaccountable white race.

So we swung up that last long reach to Balingong without anybody stopping us. At the stroke oar, Schweicamp, who had been knocked out, began to founder about a little again, trying to find out where he was; and Grogan, the next oar on Schweicamp's side, was showing his teeth as he made a mighty effort to make up for Schweicamp's missing oar. But the rest of the crew was pulling smoothly.

Clyde laid his oars upon a rifle, half picked it up, then laid it down again and took a pistol. The ball passed me so closely that I felt the horn-like buzz of it along the skin of my arm.

The praus faltered.

"Ram her through where the palace used to be," Clyde said.

marked changes in thinking have taken place.

The speaker read from the list a number of ideas that had been current in economics, in religion, in affairs of conduct and dress that were so different from those in wide acceptance today, that the audience found them very amusing.

One example was the belief that a small bag of asafoetida worn around the neck would ward off all matters of conduct and dress that were so different from those in wide which education in North Carolina has made progress, President Meadows called attention to some of the insistent problems in the field.

There is, of course, an economic problem. There is a need for more money to draw better teachers into the profession and to provide better equipped buildings.

An even greater need, he said, is a curriculum better fitted to the needs of life in North Carolina today.

Dr. Meadows pointed out the recent effort to make some such needed adaptations here in the college, in the addition of Commercial and Physical Education departments, and said that there is also an immediate need for work here in manual arts and journalism.

The last problem President Meadows discussed was the need for a changed conception of what constitutes success.

Says Amendment To Farm Measure A Distinct Enemy

Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott Says Proposal Would Hurt Dairy Industry

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Jan. 26—Commissioner of Agriculture, W. Kerr Scott today termed the Boileau amendment to the national farm bill "a distinct enemy to agricultural progress in North Carolina."

The amendment, now a part of the Congressional agricultural bill, would prohibit participants under the Soil Conservation program from feeding any of their soil conserving crops to livestock for marketing. "North Carolina's dairy industry is still in its infancy and to enact legislation that would tend to stunt its growth would be fundamentally and economically unsound," Commissioner Scott said. "Therefore, I have wired our Congressmen and Senators that the Boileau amendment will not help this state."

"Unfortunately, millions of dollars worth of dairy products are exported to feed Tar Heels each year," he said. "This fact emphasizes the reason why we should encourage rather than discourage our dairy industry."

Scott said he appreciated the Six-conson author's motive in seeking to protect the western dairymen with the Boileau amendment, but added that "the sooner more attention is given to agricultural diversification and the live at home movement, the sooner the South and Nation will be on the road to agricultural stability."

"Legislation for the benefit of our cotton and tobacco farmer will be appreciated," he added. "But to enact the Boileau amendment into law would be a blow to an industry—the dairy industry—that offers North Carolina farmers the opportunity to supplement their incomes and consequently become further removed from the need of Federal supplements that have been necessary in the past, assure somewhat near parity prices for agriculture products."

MAP CAMPAIGN ON PNEUMONIA

Vanguard Of Army Gathers At Duke University

Raleigh, Jan. 26—The vanguard of North Carolina's army to systematically light pneumonia, through the use of serum, gathered at Duke University January 24, when, according to information received by Dr. Hubert B. Haywood, of Raleigh, chairman of the North Carolina Commission on Pneumonia Control and member of the State Board of Health, over 50 technicians were present to take the entire course in the typing of pneumococcus.

This intensive training of technicians was planned to continue through January 29. On Friday, January 28, beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning, there will be a symposium on pneumonia. Seats will be reserved for Negro physicians, Dr. Haywood said, expressing the hope that all who could would attend.

The North Carolina State Board of Health, with the aid of the State Medical Society and the medical school and faculty of Duke University, has set up a commission to study typing pneumococcus, with a view of combatting pneumonia with serum. This commission is composed of Dr. Hubert B. Haywood, of Raleigh, member of the State Board of Health, Chairman; Dr. Carl V. Reynolds, State Health Officer; Dr. Douglas Craig, of Winston-Salem, president of the State Board of Health; Dr. Grady Dixon, of Ayden, member of the State Board of Health; Dr. W. T. Rainey, of Fayetteville, member of the State Board of Health; Dr. Wingate Johnson, of Winston-Salem, president of the State Medical Society; Dr. Thomas Long, of Roanoke Rapids, secretary of the State Medical Society; Dr. C. T. Smith, of Rocky Mount, member of the State Medical Society; Dr. W. DeB. MacNider, of Chapel Hill, dean of the University of North Carolina Medical Department; Dr. C. C. Carpenter, of Wake Forest, dean of the Wake Forest Medical Department; Dr. Wilbert Davison, dean of the Duke University Medical Department, and Dr. Frederic M. Hanes, professor of Medicine, Duke University Medical Department.

Response Enthusiastic "The response to the invitation extended technicians to study the typing of pneumococcus at Duke University this week has been enthusiastic," said Dr. Haywood.

"While over 50 were present to take the full course to enable them to type pneumococcus in laboratories, the number will be augmented during the week by those who will be present for shorter periods. As a result of this training we are assured that every section of North Carolina will have someone capable of identifying the specific type of pneumococcus causing pneumonia."

"It is reasonably certain," Dr. Haywood continued, "that in every part of North Carolina pneumonia serum will be available for proper cases. Raleigh and Wake county, through their commissioners, have taken a forward step toward setting up a fund to pay for serum for the indigent. This is in line with progressive policies in other States that have set up pneumonia control commissions."

"It is our hope that other counties and communities will do likewise."

SHORT SHOTS
 By HENRY AVERILL

Reflector Bureau
 Raleigh, Jan. 26.—The flowers that bloom in the spring (str.) may have nothing to do with the case, but they were blooming all round the Department of Agriculture and in the Governor's office yesterday.

Cause was the meeting of North Carolina's nurserymen, who brought along with them floral gifts for the state officials. In Commissioner Scott's lapel and on Governor Hoyt's desk were two of the prettiest japonica your correspondent has seen in a long time—and your correspondent lived for eight years in Wilmington where the japonicas are now in full bloom and as pretty as you please.

The State's Rural Electrification Authority will hereafter meet only once in two months instead of once every month; and the reason therefor is entirely economic.
 Members of the board do not receive any per diem for the meetings, but they do get actual expenses and now that W. M. Sherrard of Hendersonville, is on the board, these expenses are enough to worry about.
 The member from Henderson county drew twenty-seven dollars and some odd cents for attending this week's session, which didn't give him anything to brag about considering he was away from home for three days, but it was enough to cause some worry in the mind of Dudley Bagley, REA chairman, who boasts that his is the only State Department which has never used all the money appropriated for it in any year.

North Carolina boys in C.C.C. camps have sent home almost $10,000,000 in the form of allotments to their families during the last four and a half years, Rufus E. Milles, Jr., of the U. S. Department of Labor, told social workers here this week.

Forest fire forces were recently called on for the first time to fight a fire in a cemetery, according to Department of Conservation and Development officials.

Wayne county forest fire wardens recently reported to the department that they were called upon to fight a fire in a ten acre graveyard inclosed with an eight foot steel fence. Investigation showed the fire had been started by a hunter who had entered the graveyard by tearing down a portion of the fence. The blaze was put out before much damage was done.

The Department of Conservation and Development, incidentally, is attempting a feat which could better have been done by Janus, the old two-headed Roman god who looked in opposite directions at the same time.

Through its advertising division the department is telling folks outside the state how good our quail hunting is and how many birds we have for them to shoot at.

Through its game division, the very same department of C. and D. is telling our own folks just how badly the quail of the state need conserving.

It's a good trick if you can do it. A corrected record in the case of Henry Moseley, Plymouth county Negro, has been used in the clerk's office of the Supreme court, as was directed recently by the judges.
 In the corrected record, Judge Don Phillips finds as a fact that Moseley was found guilty of "first degree murder" upon his trial in Winston-Salem. Now the Supreme court is in position to pass upon the merits, if any, of the Negro's appeal from a death sentence.

HOSPITAL AID WILL REPLACE PLAN POPULAR ACCOUNT CARD

Annual Report of Executive Secretary Released

During the two years of its existence, 50,481 members, representing 1298 groups located in 55 different counties, have joined the Hospital Saving Association of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, according to the annual report of Felix A. Grisette, executive director, which was released yesterday. Miss Margaret Kornegay is manager for Pitt, Wason and Wayne counties.
 The annual report of the Association, which is a non-profit organization controlled jointly by the North Carolina Medical Society and the North Carolina Hospital Association, was released simultaneously with the annual meeting of the board of trustees, held yesterday in the executive offices at Chapel Hill.
 The rapid growth of this co-operative method of protection against the expense of hospital bills was illustrated in Mr. Grisette's report by citing the fact that there are now nearly 2,000,000 people throughout the United States who are members of the 60-odd associations which offer such a service. Although the North Carolina association is one of the youngest of the group payment plans, its membership enrollment at the end of 1937 ranked it among the first half dozen in the United States. The New York Association, obviously, led all others with an enrollment in excess of 500,000 members.
 As of December 31, Mr. Grisette reported that the Association had paid the hospital bills of 2,557 of its members. These members were patients in an even one hundred North Carolina hospitals.
 As was to be expected, female members required more hospitalization than males. Fifty-five per cent of the entire membership are female and these 55 per cent required 66 per cent of all hospitalization. Sixty-three per cent of all hospitalized admissions were surgical, the division between major and minor operations being about equal.
 Dr. I. H. Manning of Chapel Hill is president of the Association, Robert Lassiter of Charlotte, vice-president, and J. Lyman Melvin of Rocky Mount, secretary-treasurer. Other members of the governing board, representing equally the medical profession, hospitals, and the public, are: Dr. J. P. Brownberger of Fletcher, Herman Cone, of Greensboro, T. Holt Haywood, Winson-Salem, Dr. T. W. M. Long of Roanoke Rapids, Dr. Paul H. Ramey of Asheville, T. A. Wilson, of Raleigh, M. E. Winston, of Raleigh, Dr. Wingate Johnson of Winston-Salem, and Dr. J. P. Highsmith, Sr. of Fayetteville.
 Total for lines under construction and authorized have shrunk slightly since July 1, 1937 as more miles have been completed than have been freshly authorized. February 1, 1938 will see 439.31 miles under construction as against 442.84 on July 1, 1937, with 1,311.57 more miles authorized as against 1,828.53 seven months ago. The net increase, however, of lines actually built, under construction and authorized is 845.51, or more than 100 miles per month.

to help them obtain employment. Reports from all parts of the country indicate, Mr. Adams explained, that employers are giving preference to job applicants having account number cards. This may be due to the fact that if an employee fails to obtain an account number the employer must, under Federal Treasury regulations, apply for a number for this worker. The employer is required to include both the worker's name and his account number in periodic reports of the worker's wages which he files with the Treasury.
 Field office managers have been instructed by the Board to obtain the home address and the name and address of the employer of persons requesting duplicate cards. It was explained that this additional information is required so that if it is found necessary, the Board can communicate with the wage earner or his employer.

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.
 How do Calotabs help nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the virus-laden mucus and toxins. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.
 Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package.—(adv.)

Sharp Increase In Rural Electricity Past Few Months

State Engineer Reports 33,580 Rural Customers Now Compared With 26,321 Last July

Raleigh, Jan. 25.—Consumers of electricity in rural North Carolina have increased more than 1,000 per month for the past seven months, according to the report of J. M. Grainger, engineer, submitted late yesterday afternoon to the State Rural Electrification Authority.
 Mr. Grainger's figures showed that on July 1, 1937, there were 26,321 actual users of electricity in rural North Carolina who have become customers since establishment of the State REA in July, 1935. On February 1, 1938 there will be a total of 33,580, an increase of 7,259 for the period. In addition there are still the eleven thousand and some odd users who had current before the State REA came into being.
 These 33,580 customers live along 5,936.12 miles of line built since July, 1935. On July 1, 1937 the complete lineage was 4,370.22, making 1,565.90 miles constructed in the last seven months, almost 200 miles per month.
 Total for lines under construction and authorized have shrunk slightly since July 1, 1937 as more miles have been completed than have been freshly authorized. February 1, 1938 will see 439.31 miles under construction as against 442.84 on July 1, 1937, with 1,311.57 more miles authorized as against 1,828.53 seven months ago. The net increase, however, of lines actually built, under construction and authorized is 845.51, or more than 100 miles per month.

 by L. B. Greene to the citizens of Pitt County.
 You will be interested to know, I am sure, that, since the establishment of this clinic in July of 1936, it has treated 197 individuals. It is not only cases for the victims of infantile paralysis, but also treats such cases as broken limbs, bow legs, club foot etc. The funds raised through the President's Ball have been used for the care of such cripples who were unable to provide special shoes, braces, crutches etc., for themselves.
 Since the funds raised through this Ball serve every town and hamlet of Pitt County, I trust that every citizen, able to do so, will give his support to you in your efforts to make the Ball a worthy tribute to our great President, himself a victim of infantile paralysis.

Explorer and Photographer of Wild Life At College

A crowd that packed the large Robert H. Wright auditorium at the College greeted Mrs. Martin Johnson, noted explorer and photographer of wild life, with enthusiastic applause on her personal appearance last night.

Looking very young and chic in her beautiful silver and blue brocade and soft white fur cape, Mrs. Johnson began by saying that the film she was showing and giving running comments on was a product of around twenty-five years of exploration and photography.

Out of her twenty-seven years of married life, she said, only about three had been spent in civilization, all the other time having been passed in the South Seas, Africa and other little known portions of the world.

For the two hours of the program the audience followed lecture and picture with great interest.

They roared with laughter not only at such scenes as Mrs. Johnson's unique capture of a baby elephant and some of the primitive dancing, but also at her humorous side remarks such, for example, as her comment on "Mr. Johnson's cook" when Osa, herself, was shown

Seawell To Argue On Slot Machines

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Jan. 26—When Federal Judge Isaac M. Meekins is asked to rescind or modify his injunction protecting "Silent Salesmen" slot machines, Attorney General Seawell will press an offensive against the "one armed bandits" on every front.

The Attorney General said today that he will present every phase of the matter to the Federal Judge, arguing that Judge Meekins' sweeping order banning interference with the Silent Salesman was not only based on erroneous findings of fact, but that it far exceeded the jurisdiction of the Federal District court in the matter before it.

In language easy for the layman to understand, the Attorney will contend that Meekins took in entirety too much territory when he made the injunction applicable to anybody except the named defendants in the case which was presented to him; and will also present evidence designed to show turning pancakes and scrambling ostrich eggs.

They uttered subdued exclamations over the "long-headed people" of the far wilds and the gaping jaws of countless alligators along one swampy stretch of shoreline.

And they gasped to watch Mrs. Johnson face a charging rhinoceros and allow him to get within twenty feet of her before dropping him with a well-placed shot; and to see her in a hut of cannibals, with cannibals pressing her from every side as they watched Martin Johnson show on a screen some of the pictures of them he had taken.

One of the many impressive parts of the film was the series of scenes showing the "great migration" of 1928, when a broad stream of animals passed their camera without a break for five days and nights, going from the sun-parched stretch of one section to the still open water-holes of a more favored one.

The speaker was presented to the audience by R. D. Douglas, lawyer of Greensboro, who had shared some of the experiences of the Johnsons in Africa in 1928 as one of three Boy Scouts selected from the whole national organization through a contest sponsored by George Palmer Putnam, the publisher.

The selection of Robert Douglas for this honor is of particular interest to the people of this section, not only because he is a North Carolina olinian, but also because he is cousin of Mrs. James Picklen of this city, in whose home he was entertained while here. He is a great-grandson of Stephen A. Douglas.

Douglas, himself, appeared a number of times in one section of the film shown last night. Many Boy Scouts scattered through the crowd, no doubt found this part of the film most interesting.

In an interview given the College News Bureau, Mrs. Johnson declared that she intends to go on with making the record of wild life she and her famous husband had worked on for so many years.

Hancock to Speak At Eastern Meet

The Honorable Frank Hancock will be the principal speaker at an all-Eastern Carolina mid-winter business conference in Kinston on February 10, at 7 p. m. This business conference is being sponsored by the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of acquainting the business and farming interests of Eastern Carolina with conditions as they exist and what to expect in 1938.

Mr. Hancock will discuss "National Legislation Pending Now as it Affects Eastern North Carolina," which will include a discussion of the Farm Bill, Wage and Hour Bill and other important legislation which this session is interested in.

Other speakers on the program will include a representative from the banking interests, the public utilities and the automobile manufacturing industry, all of whom will discuss the prospects of 1938 as they relate to their respective industry.

Reservations for plates should be sent to N. G. Bartlett, secretary, Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce, Kinston. "It is our purpose to make this a real constructive and informative meeting," Secretary Bartlett stated, "and it is the hope of the regional organization's officials that a large number will be present from all parts of Eastern Carolina."

James Whitcomb Riley was an itinerant sign painter, entertainer, and assistant to patent medicine vendors before he began publishing verses.

Weakness of the stock market and discouragement over the continuing difference between the administration and business leaders affected sentiment adversely. Trading was quiet. REA Disapproves Appliance Survey Throughout State

Survey Designed to Determine How Many Rural People Using Electricity and Appliances. Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Jan. 26.—It wasn't given out to the press at the conclusion of the board's session, but the State Rural Electrification Authority this week disapproved plans for a statewide survey to determine exactly how many rural people are using electricity and just what appliances they are using. Principle of the survey was approved by every member of the board who made any comment on the plan, but fear that the survey would be criticised as "in the interests of the power companies" was sufficient for the board to withhold its sanction for the plan worked out in full detail by J. M. Grainger engineer for the REA. Mrs. Jane S. McKimmon was the principal spokesman for the view that it would be unwise to proceed with the survey unless it could be financed and carried out entirely by the REA, without permitting power companies or other outsiders to participate and bear the expense. When it was found that the survey would cost not less than $3,000, probably nearer $5,000, it was thought impossible to squeeze it out of the Authority's limited annual budget, which is only $13,000 for all purposes. The Grainger plan was to place questionnaires in the hands of 4-H club members in every section of the state, with prizes offered by the power companies for those interviewing all, or at least 90 per cent of the families assigned them. Vocational Agriculture of the questionnaires by the school children. The questionnaires prepared for the survey would have given the State REA, and incidentally the power companies, full and detailed data on all rural electricity customers.
