Defeat Proposal To Limit Debate On Lynching Bill

SEES SHELIVING AS EARLY STEP

Vote of 52-37 Encouraging to Southern Senators

ROBERT JACKSON TO SUCCEED REED

National Labor Board Declared Partly Responsible for Business Recession

Washington, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The Senate killed today a proposal for drastic limitation of debate on the anti-lynching bill, against which Southern Senators have been filibustering since the session started.

The vote was 52 to 37. The vote against debate limitation gave encouragement to the Southern bloc that the anti-lynching measure would be shelved.

Imposition of cloture or debate limitation, which would have limited further speech making against the bill to an hour for each Senator, was requested in a petition signed by 17 Senators.

A sharp wrangle broke out as the Senate met over which side would speak first.

Meantime, President Roosevelt nominated Robert Jackson of New York to be Solicitor-General of the United States. He is now assistant Attorney-General in charge of anti-trust cases.

Jackson succeeds Stanley Reed of Kentucky, who received his commission as a member of the Supreme Court from the President earlier in the day.

Reed will take his seat on the high bench Monday.

Other developments: Senator Burke (D. Neb.) declared that many persons believed that "no small part of the blame for the present appalling economic depression may properly be laid at the door" of the National Labor Relations Board.

Burke appeared before a Senate judiciary sub-committee in support of his resolution for a congressional investigation of the board.

He said it was a "common procedure" for the board to prohibit criticism of unions, of the national labor law, or of the board itself.

He gave as an example the case of the Mansfield Mills at Lumberton, N. C.

Fairmont Farmer Slain At Crossing

Rowland, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Frank Simmons, age about 45, Fairmont farmer native of Winston-Salem, was instantly killed this afternoon when a pick-up truck he was driving was struck by a south bound Atlantic Coast Line express train at a main street crossing in Rowland.

The machine was carried 1200 feet before the train was stopped. The crossing is equipped with electrical signals. Coroner D. W. Biggs and Deputy Sheriff W. C. Britt, who investigated, said no inquest was necessary.

ROBBERS DRAW PRISON TERMS

Eight Sentenced For Two Robberies Of Bethel Store

Eight Negroes, two of them women, today discovered that robbing the M. O. Blount store at Bethel may be profitable for a short while, but in the end they have to pay high for their crime.

Four Beaufort county Negroes were convicted at this morning's session of Superior court here of attempting to rob the Bethel store early yesterday morning and were given sentences totalling 18 years. One of the quartet was arrested a few hours after the robbery and the other three were taken in custody this morning and within a few hours had been tried and sentenced.

Four other Negroes were convicted yesterday afternoon of robbing the same store several weeks ago and given sentences totalling a maximum of 24 years. In all, the eight drew maximum terms of 42 years.

The quartet tried today for the more recent robbery and their sentences, are: Willie West, James Latham and Charlie Mack Little, five years each; and Allie Sharp, the only one who pleaded not guilty, three years.

The four convicted yesterday afternoon of the robbery several weeks ago and the sentences meted out to each, are: Gus Lockett, three to seven years; George Filmore, five years; John Rush, 10 years, and Millie Rush, two years, suspended upon good behavior. Millie Rush was the only defendant to contend she was innocent.

Most of the other cases tried this morning and yesterday afternoon involved charges of larceny and burglary.

Nathaniel Gardner tendered a plea of guilty to robbery and was given a term of from five to seven years.

James Redmon was given a term of three years after pleading guilty. (Continued on page six)

CURRENT COLD WAVE EXTENDS TO FAR SOUTH

Highways In Upper Michigan Blocked By Snow

DEATH TOLL OF NINE IS CLAIMED

Temperatures Hover Below Zero Mark in Some Points; Floods Also Reported

(By Associated Press)

Chilling winds extended today a cold wave which blockaded highways of upper Michigan with snow and spread sub-normal temperatures as far South as Central Florida.

Nine deaths were attributed to winter storms and floods.

A shift in the wind relieved the pressure of an ice jam against "honeymoon bridge" at Niagara Falls and saved the steel span from immediate destruction. Below the bridge the twin steamboats, "maids of the mist," were in the grip of the fogs.

Michigan highway crews cut through snowdrifts ranging up to a depth of 30 feet in the northern part of the state. Road workers rescued hundreds of motorists. Train and bus schedules are restricted. Mine operations ceased and some schools were closed.

Temperatures dropped below the zero mark at many points in the mid-west yesterday.

Fair, cold weather and recession of head waters localized "winter flood of Arkansas in the South-Central and South-Eastern parts of the state. Weather observers fear east the Ouachita river would rise to a crest of 42 feet, a modern record, at Camden, Ark. Friday.

Power and telephone lines were washed out by flooded Rock river in Whiteside county, Ill. (Continued on page six)

BIRTHDAY BALL DRAWING NEAR

Tickets to 1938 Event On Sale at All Drug Stores

With the Roosevelt Birthday ball only a few days off, the various committees for the affair declared today that indications are this year's dance will be the biggest in the history of the event.

The ticket and founders' certificate committee reports that communities throughout the county are making large purchases, insuring a large crowd for the floor show and dance.

The Town club will not hold its regular January dance, 1938 tickets to the Birthday ball having been purchased and members of the club may secure them from Frank Patrick, president.

Tickets are on sale at all drug stores in Greenville and committees have been named for each of the communities in the county. The ball will be held at the Robert H. Wright Memorial auditorium at the college Monday night.

A special attraction to be offered will be a floor show under the direction of Miss Ramona Staples, head of the Ramona School of Dancing here.

Jimmy Livingston and his orchestra will provide music for the dance.

FILIBUSTER 'JUST STARTING'

In the midst of the filibuster against the anti-lynching bill, Senator Reynolds (left) of North Carolina wants the office help to stick around regardless of the hour—just in case they're needed. "It's no time to go home. The thing's just starting," he told one of his aides, Bingham Mattox, of Maysville, N. C., when the latter reminded the senator of the late hour.

Sheriff Tells Of Payne Confession

Asheville, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Buncombe County Sheriff Laurence Brown testified at the murder trial of Bill Payne and Wash Turner today both defendants had admitted to him they participated in a gun battle which left a State Highway patrolman dead at the end of a farm road near here last August.

Payne, 41-year-old High Point man, was quoted as saying he fired "some several shots" from a rifle after shots had been fired at the car in which he and Turner were trying to escape.

Turner's purported admission was first given in detail by the sheriff. He then quoted Payne as telling a story similar to Turner's.

Brown quoted Payne as saying he shot a rifle at State Highway Patrolman George Penn as Turner used a shotgun. A state witness had "some several shots" from a rifle (Continued on page six)

FALL FATAL TO VACANCIES ON JERSEY SOLON BOARD FILLED

Rep. Kenney Jumps or Falls from Sixth Floor Window

Washington, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Edward A. Kenney, 52 year old New Jersey representative known for his advocacy of a national lottery, plunged or fell to his death from the sixth floor of a fashionable hotel here during the night.

The body, clad only in underwear, was discovered at 8 a. m. by a hotel waiter and identified by Kenney's secretary, John Stewart.

The short, silver-haired representative had been a guest last night. (Continued on page six)

Peasant Irregulars Aid in North China Assaults

STRIKE AT JAPS TIME AND AGAIN

Sallies Declared Have Interrupted Traffic on Jap - Controlled Railroad

Peiping, China, Jan. 27.—(AP)—China's Red legions and peasant irregulars are on the march against Japanese in the vast North China area.

Concentrating swiftly, attacking and dispersing swiftly, they have struck time and again at Japanese communication lines and Japanese garrisons.

Authentic details of this warfare in the Northern provinces, where the Japanese-Chinese conflict began, were brought to Japanese-conquered Peiping today by foreigners arriving from the war areas.

They reported during January Chinese irregulars along the Peiping-Hankow and Cheng'ai Railroad wiped out small detachments of Japanese troops in at least twenty instances.

Sallies of the irregulars interrupted traffic on the Japanese-controlled part of the Peiping-Hankow line, on an average of three times a week.

BUNDY IS GIVEN SHRINE OFFICE

Local Attorney Elected To Post Of Outer Guard

New Bern, Jan. 27.—(AP)—At the annual winter business session here today Sudan Shrine Temple elevated Chief Rabban R. T. Allen of Lumberton, to Potentate; named William J. Bundy of Greenville, as outer guard to fill the vacancy caused by elevation of each divan member one office, and selected Fayetteville for the Spring meeting in May.

Retiring Potentate, C. K. Proctor of Oxford, H. M. Potot of Wake Forest, Potentate Allen and Harry S. Storr of Raleigh, were elected delegates to the Imperial meeting in Los Angeles.

Those elected to serve with Potentate Allen include: L. A. Raney of Wilmington, first ceremonial, and George W. Waters of Goldsboro, second ceremonial master; J. Edward Allen of Warrenton, marshal; William J. Bundy of Greenville, outer guard; N. D. Gwaltney of Goldsboro, director; and Dr. Geo. E. Bell of Wilson, medical director.

Japanese Sentry Slaps U.S. Official; Red Legions Strike

Shanghai, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Domei (Japanese news agency) reported today that a Japanese sentry slapped the face of John M. Allison, third secretary of the United States Embassy at Nanking and presently in charge there, when he tried to enter a house despite the sentry's objection.

Domei quoted a military report thus: "Allison sought to enter a house, to which the Japanese objected, the sentry telling Allison not to enter, which Allison did not heed. The sentry slapped the American's face and prevented entry into the house."

The report asserted the house was Chinese and held Allison had no right to enter it, the report continued. According to Domei, the Japanese authorities apologized and were undertaking to reach a settlement locally.

DEAN OF STATE TO SPEAK HERE

To Address County-Wide Teacher Meet Saturday

Dean Edward Lamar Cloyd of N. C. State College, will deliver the principal address at a county-wide meeting of teachers and officials of Parent-Teacher Association, Saturday in the high school building. The meeting is scheduled to get underway at 10 o'clock.

Officials are stressing the importance of all Parent-Teacher Association officers and other members interested being present for the sessions as this phase of school work will be discussed at length during the meeting.

Dean Cloyd is one of the state's most outstanding educational leaders. Born in Lenoir county, he was graduated from State College after finishing the Lenoir high school. He received his B. S. degree in mechanical engineering in 1915 and returned to Lenoir to teach physics and mathematics in 1915-16 and 1916-17.

He returned to State College January 4, 1918, as instructor in drawing and descriptive geometry in the Department of Mechanical Engineering. Since 1923 he has devoted his full time to administrative duties as dean of students, but has continued his own education at the same time, receiving his M. S. degree in industrial management in 1927 and during the summer of 1929 attended Teachers College of Columbia University.

He was president of the North Carolina College conference in 1935 and in 1937-38 was vice-president of the North Carolina Vocational Guidance Association. From 1933 to 1938, inclusive, he was association with the counselling service of the Southern Student Conference, Blue Ridge.

Dean Cloyd has taken an active part in the civic affairs of Raleigh. In 1935 he was president of the Kiwanis Club and was lieutenant-have been reading about the "Cash Offer" and thinking of entering the competition we extend an invitation to send in their names at once while the campaign is yet young.

Cites Necessity Of Smaller Leaf Crop

Raleigh, Jan. 27.—A huge 1938 tobacco crop on top of the 1937 crop largest ever produced in North Carolina, may spell disaster for growers unless reasonably controlled, W. G. Finn, assistant administrator of the AAA East Central region, told farmers attending the second annual tobacco short course at State College.

Pending tobacco legislation in Congress would put a check on production, Finn stated, cutting larger growers as much as 30 per cent and smaller farmers down to 10 per cent. Such a provision would also make room for new producers.

The 1937 flue-cured crop, valued at $200,000,000, was the greatest money maker in history except that of 1919. This apparent phenomenon of a huge crop averaging about 23 cents a pound was brought about by an increased demand from both foreign and domestic consumers.

"Because of this condition," Finn declared, "growers this year are likely to plant even more tobacco than they did last year, expecting good prices. But favorable prices may not prevail since there is about a 100,000,000 pound carry-over from the 1937 crop. Also the foreign demand may not increase because of unsettled conditions in Europe and the Orient."

Use Electric Eye On State Traffic

Raleigh, Jan. 27.—In eight widely separated points, electric eyes, technically known as "automatic traffic recorders" are working full 24 hour shift daily counting motor vehicles as they pass on the highways.

Yet so cunningly are the machines contrived that the traffic does not know it is being counted. Not that it would make a great difference to the Highway Department which is reticent only about the exact location of the eyes. If these spots were generally known so many inquisitive and curious folks would gather round that the roads would be made dangerous and the main purpose of the devices would be defeated by creation of an artificial rather than normal flow of traffic.

Incidentally the purpose of the devices, according to J. S. Burch, engineer of statistics and planning "is not to get a traffic count at an individual point, but rather to reveal complete time patterns of traffic movement on typical roads."

"Knowing these time patterns," he continued, "it is possible accurately to expand short sample counts which are made at thousands of point."

The "electric eye" or "automatic traffic recorder" if you please, is a very ingenious device of practicality absolute accuracy and one which is on the job every second.

The general principle upon which it works is that every vehicle passing on the road under the eye's scrutiny trips a mechanical recording device by breaking a beam of traffic. (Continued on page three)

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

Hollywood—They don't think about it, but some movie executives daily are making the blunders that led in due time to expensive contract squabbles and even lawsuits with their players.

They will know how to their stars, but for the little fellows—the boys and girls who constitute the routine hired help in artistry—they haven't too much time. One of these kids the other day wanted to see the boss, pleaded with becoming humility for just a moment of his precious time, at his convenience, and was given the gruff reply that anything unsatisfactory could be taken up with the legal department.

Gable's Experience
That your's thing has the makings of a star. Maybe she won't make the grade, but the executive is paying her salary weekly in the expectation that she will. If she does, it will be hard for her to forget the snub.

Here's a case in point. The story is that it happened to Clark Gable, but it might have been any of a dozen other stars. One day quitting work about 20 minutes work left on that particular set. If Gable consented to work overtime, they could finish there, be ready to start fresh next morning on a new set, saving considerable time and money.

"You're a good guy, and I like you," Clark affably told the director. "But it just happens I don't feel like working any more today. You see, this studio kicked me around plenty before I thought I could do it some good. Now that it's decided I'm worth something—can you give me one good reason why I should go out of my way?"

And the director, knowing Gable from way back, had no answer. "Charlie Chan" Takes A Walk
The other day "Charlie Chan at the Ringside" met an unexpected delay. Charlie Chan (Warner Oland) objected to the ringside (otherwise stated) provided for his labors, pronounced it drafty and a menace to health, and walked. Before long the studio changed its mind—and the stage—Oland returned amiably to work. Later he was in the studio charging he had walked again.

Yet actors generally, Oland and Gable among them, are famed for their willingness to cooperate in a producing crisis.

EVEN THE WEATHER CAN BE A TOUCHY TOPIC

Chicago. —(AP)—"Nice weather we're having," said the taxicab driver to his passenger.
"Yes," replied the man, "but the forecast is for bad weather."
"You mean the government forecast?" inquired the cabbie.
"Yes."
"Aw, them forecasters are a lot of clowns; they never get anything right," snorted the cabbie and then he launched into a long tirade on how dumb forecasters are.
The passenger listened attentively to the end of the trip and after paying the driver he handed him his card—he was C. A. Donald, government forecaster.

COLLEGE NEWS

The International Relations Study Group under the auspices of the A. A. U. W. met yesterday afternoon to discuss the reasons behind Japan's expansion program of recent years.

A number of women from various women's groups of the town listened to the material presented by one of the group, and several contributed to the discussion.

As some of the reading done by individuals had been pro-Japanese, some pro-Chinese, and some professedly impartial, different points of view were brought out.

The next meeting, on Wednesday February 2, will take up Japan's penetration into North China, 1933-1937, with Miss Mamie E. Jenkins, of the College as leader.

E. C. T. C. Senior Play, Feb. 4
"The Patsy," a delightful comedy in three acts, by Barrie Connors, will be presented by the Senior class of E. C. T. C. on February 4.

After having a three year run on Broadway, "The Patsy" has become very popular with amateurs of experience, in spite of the heavy royalty attached to the play.

The comedy situation centers in a typical, big-city family trying to crash the social register.

The director, Cason Britton, who has staged all the student plays on the college campus in the past two years, says this promises to be the best he has managed.

The stage sets, designed by John David Bridges, are being built under the direction of Roy Barrow, who has worked with Britton in all of his College productions.

The carefully selected cast includes Miss Fannie Brewer, of Clarksville, Tennessee, who takes the lead in the role of Patricia; Alvah Page, of Trenton, who plays the part of Tony Anderson, Patricia's suitor; and Joe Braxton, of La Grange, who ably portrays the character of Mr. Harrington, Patricia's father.

Of Mice And Medicine

Washington (AP)—Pedigreed mice worth $24,800 worth of them—are stocks for Uncle Sam's health service in its investigation of cancer. But not all mice can be medical martyrs.
"We buy our cancer mice from Bar Harbor, Me., breeding center, where their parentage is known," says Dr. L. R. Thompson of the public health service. "Then we can use them understandingly and for particular work."

Steamer Aground

The steamer Myers got stuck on a shoal near Yankee Hall this morning and had to wait for the tide to take her off. She had not come in at 4:30 this afternoon.

Editorial

The fact that the steamship lines plying to the Klondike already have raised their rates so high that they have been compelled to raise their passenger rates, may temporarily tend to thin out the spring rush; but it will operate to enliven competition in the transportation business and means will somehow be improvised to get all the gold seekers to the Yukon who can provide the passage money. Thus the steamship business will regulate itself; but the major problem will be to provide a government for the great population which is sure to be massed in that region. In the solution of this question the Government will ultimately have to take a part.

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine

By Iago Goldston, M.D.

Safe Maternity Hospitals

"A poorly managed, ill equipped, carelessly supervised hospital is the worst place on earth for a woman to have her baby." But, "a high-grade hospital with a properly planned and well supervised maternity department is the safest and best place for childbirth."

So says an American Hospital Association committee after consulting many obstetricians.

How are the good hospitals to be distinguished from the poor ones? The task is partly performed by the American Medical Association and the American College of Surgeons which inspect and certify hospitals.

Minimum standards of the American College of Surgeons for good obstetrical service are:

- (1) A properly equipped and organized department of obstetrics providing for mothers and newborn; adequate segregated accommodations, with separate personnel, sterilized equipment and supplies.
- (2) Special facilities for immediate (outside) isolation of all cases of infection.
- (3) Adequate and competent medical, nursing and non-professional staff, assigned solely to work in this department.
- (4) Adequate laboratory and special treatment facilities under competent supervision. Routine laboratory examinations to be made of all patients.
- (5) Accurate and complete clinical reports to be kept on every patient, and a complete history of the baby and its progress.
- (6) Major obstetrical procedures to be carried out only after consultation.
- (7) A thorough monthly analysis and review of the department's work, considering deaths, infections and other problems.

(8) Adequate instruction and practical experience for student nurses in caring for the patients before, during and after birth, as well as in caring for the new-born.

Points 1, 2 and 3 aim at protecting the obstetrical patient against cross infection from the other hospital patients, and against any infections developed in the obstetrical wards. Points 4, 5 and 6 provide against carelessness, bad management and meddlesome obstetricians.

Point 7 provides for the quick recognition of any deficiency or carelessness in the obstetrical service.

Point 8 aims for better obstetrical nursing.

YOU DANCE! HE'LL WALK!

Pitt County people will have an opportunity to dance to the music of Jimmie Livingston and at the same time help some youngsters regain the use of his legs here Monday night, when the annual Roosevelt Birthday ball will be held in the Robert H. Wright Memorial auditorium. A floor show under the auspices of Mrs. Rosanna Staples will add to the entertainment of the affair.

STATE SOLONS SEEKING SEATS

Most House Members Will Be Re-election Candidates

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Jan. 27.—At least three out of every five, probably four out of every five, of the 1937 North Carolina House members will be candidates for the legislature this year.

Based on these figures is found in replies of twenty House members to a questionnaire sent out by this bureau to forty House members chosen at random from the roster of the 1937 Assembly.

Of the 20 who replied ten said unqualifiedly they will again be candidates; five said they are undecided; and only five said they will not run, and even in these cases there was usually a qualifying "unless," usually signifying that the respondent is ready to be drafted, though he does not wish to be pictured as an active aspirant.

Those who said they will run include:

Willie Lee Lumpkin of Franklin, leader of the "Liberal" or Anti-Administration forces in the 1937 House. Mr. Lumpkin qualified, however, with the statement that he has not decided what office to run for; meaning, it is believed, that he may be a candidate for the State Senate rather than for the House.

J. R. Williamson, Columbus' 1937 Representative, who said he is not in this year's House race, but is definitely in the running for the State Senate seat this time in his county's right.

D. Libby Ward, 1937 Appropriation chairman, who is regarded as a strong contender for Speakership honors next term. Mr. Ward is essaying to become the first House member in many years to serve Craven for three consecutive terms.

Oscar G. Barker of Durham, who was a member of the Gasoline Commission and who led the legislative fight in 1937 to enact the commission's recommendations into law. He was generally regarded as one of the up-and-coming younger members of the legislature.

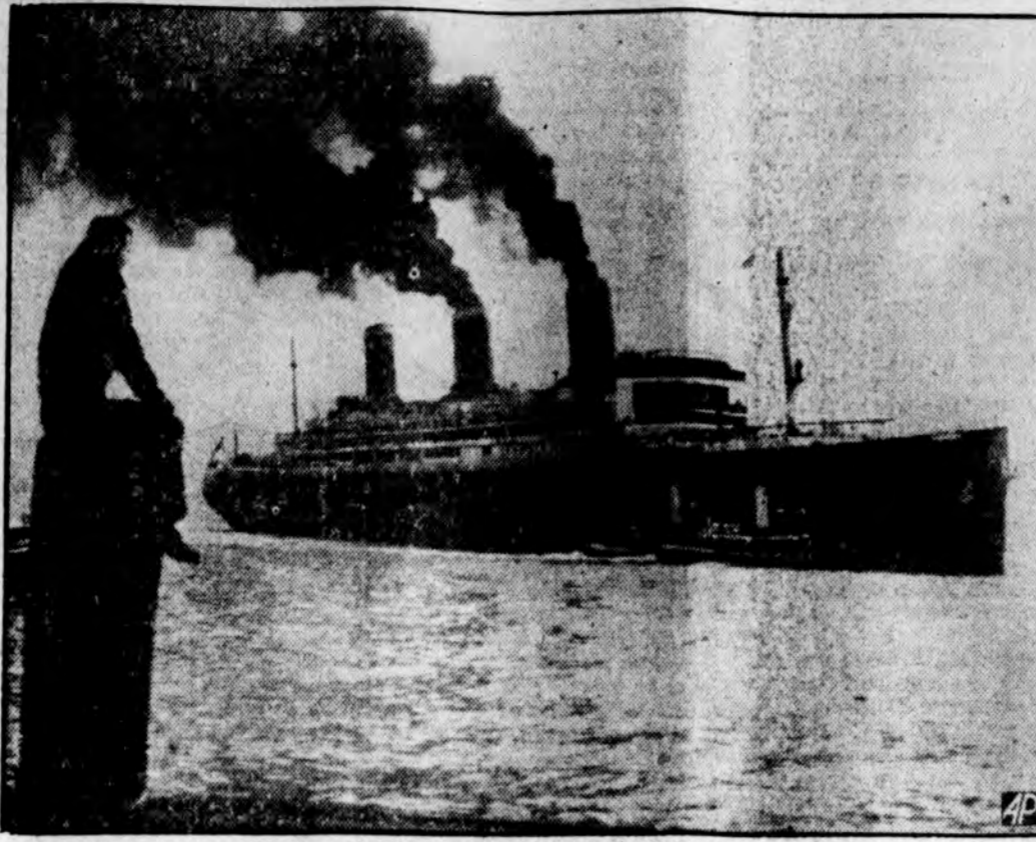

David P. Dellinger, the "Other Gentleman from Gaston," while Gregg Cherry was in the Speaker's chair. Mr. Dellinger says he really cannot afford from a business standpoint to be a candidate, but that he will abide by the decision of his friends who last time drafted him for service.

Joe T. Carruthers and Rupert T. Pickens, two of Governor's three-member delegation. Mr. Pickens is from High Point, Mr. Carruthers from Greensboro.

C. E. Quinn of Duplin, who was one of the very driest of the Drys during the liquor fight of 1937.

R. H. Underwood of Hertford.

LEVIATHAN, ONCE PROUD LINER, ON LAST VOYAGE

Her antiquated boilers throwing off a black pall of smoke, the Leviathan, one a proud luxury liner, is shown heading down the Hudson river at New York on her last voyage. The rusty, black "ghost ship" is en route to Rosyth, Scotland, where she will be broken up and sold as junk.

Athletic Club

The Greenville Athletic Club will hold its second regular meeting at the Army tonight from 7 until 10 o'clock.

The recently organized club meets each Monday and Thursday nights.

The club already has purchased basketballs, volley balls, nets and other equipment. A second order for equipment was sent off today.

At the first meeting last Monday night about 15 members attended and took part in the various forms of recreational exercises.

and W. E. Honer of Lees. Undecided what course of action they will follow are:

Ralph Flowers of Catawba, the World War veteran who has lost both legs and who won a place in Raleigh's affections last session by his conspicuous cheerfulness despite his handicaps.

J. M. Bailey Jr., the young Republican from Madison who put the Democrats "on the spot" last term by his resolution commending Senator Josiah W. Bailey's stand in the Supreme Court reorganization bill and who was roundly and soundly spanked therefore at every opportunity.

Speaker Cherry himself, who didn't say so, but who is generally regarded as bigger political things than a seat in the House.

John Caffey of Guilford, who is making no definite statement of his political plans. It is definitely understood, from all other sources, that he will run for his old post in the House if he does not go gunning for higher honors in the form of the Congressional seat now occupied by Durham's Bill Umstead.

J. C. Hobbs of New Hanover, who is considering a race for clerk of Superior court in his county.

The five who said they will not run were T. P. Dellinger (Republican) of Avery; F. E. Royster of Granville; T. E. Cooper, New Hanover; R. L. Pope, Davidson, and D. Lacy McBryde, Cumberland.

The longest river in Switzerland is the Aar, 181 miles in length.

Long forgotten memories may be revived in a state of hypnosis.

DIRECTORS IN SESSION HERE

Production Credit Association Renders 1937 Report

Reports submitted by officers and directors of the Greenville Credit Association at the annual stockholders meeting in Greenville on January 26, indicated that this Farmers' Co-operative Credit organization had another successful year in 1937. The reports showed an increased volume of business done and, notwithstanding the recession in farm price, a perfect collection record.

Complete and detailed reports were given to the stockholders at the meeting, which was attended by farmers from Pitt and Greene counties, which are served by the association. The financial statement of the association was displayed on a big chart and other interesting data showing costs of operation, etc. were likewise displayed on charts.

Reports were made to the meeting by John R. Carroll, president; Robert A. Darr, secretary-treasurer; and D. F. Hardison, a member of the board of directors.

John R. Carroll was elected to serve on the board of directors. Other members of the board, whose terms did not expire this year, are J. Paul Davenport, Mack Smith, C. L. Newborne, and D. F. Hardison.

The reports revealed that the association made 581 loans for a total of $290,202.00 in 1937.

Mr. Ernest Graham, president of the Production Credit Corporation of Columbia, addressed the stockholders at the conclusion of the business session. Mr. Graham stressed the fact that the production credit association is a permanent, dependable source of credit for responsible farmers organized on a cooperative basis. He said these associations have systematized farm financing, are farmer controlled and operated, lend money only to farmers, meet all of the farmers' short term needs and are operated by farmers in the interest of

(Continued from page one) or rather two beams of light projected across the highway. The electrical and mechanical principles which govern the operation are too technical for explanation in a short newspaper story.

A projector set up on one side of the road sends two parallel beams of light across the road to a receiving machine of every similar appearance, where the beams are focused upon a photo-electric cell whose electrical resistance changes according to the amount of light shining upon it.

If only one of the beams of light is broken nothing happens, but if at the courthouse door in Pitt County, both are broken the little photo cell does its duty and a mechanical recording device automatically adds one to a total which will run as far as five-digit numbers go.

Two beams are projected so that a pedestrian walking along the road will not add to the total, as he only breaks one beam at a time and nothing happens. Vehicles, however, are long enough to break both beams and thus are recorded.

Infra-red rays are used in the beams for two purposes; because they are invisible to the naked eye and because they are not as much subject to interference from the sun's rays. The projecting machines are always placed with their backs to the setting sun because of the strength of the infra-red rays of old Sol as he goes below the horizon.

The receiving device automatically prints the total of vehicles recorded every hour, and this department officials have in black and white the exact number of cars which passed a given spot during every hour or every day.

From these figures it can easily be figured just how many cars pass, on an average, on each day of the week, and even during each hour of each day. By placing the eyes on typical spots (four are now operating on main highways and four on secondary roads of typical type) it is possible for the Highway Department to estimate with a high degree of accuracy the volume of traffic on similar roads all over the state. Thus the figures obtained from the eight "electric eyes" make it unnecessary for there to be a full and man-made count at each of North Carolina's 26,000 rural highway intersections—a task which, on its face, would be entirely too costly to be feasible.

You Know 'Em, But Can You Name 'Em?

Hollywood — Their names seldom go on the marquee, but in every picture they—actors like them—contribute to the film-goer's entertainment.

Some draw large salaries and are eagerly sought for supporting casts. They belong to the little army of "character actors"—and frequently "steal" scenes from the stars.

But how well do you really know them? Can you supply the names of these typical "characters" without peeking at the answers below?

1. He's "that funny little fellow" to millions. Once he appeared with Mary Pickford—and many other stars—on the Broadway stage. He's of French-English descent, born in London, and his first picture-making (silent) was done in Brooklyn.

2. In pictures she looks this way frequently. She's a stage star, and a prominently featured player in pictures. Last year, in a film that was an artistic success and a financial failure, she had the leading feminine role.

3. His picture work has been little to date, but in one famous picture last year his characterization stood out among a whole collection of character portraits. He's a native of Moscow, from the Moscow art theatre and has been called in academic circles "the world's greatest actor."

4. On the stage he played serious roles, with such dramatic actresses as Nazimova, Pauline Frederick. Once he was Messala in "Ben Hur." But in pictures, where he's been 11 years, his appearance brings audience giggles. He's a smoothie, a flutterer, a laugh-getter.

5. This Welshman studied to be a doctor, but now—by virtue of a long career in the theater—he knows all the stories about the stage but practically none about operations. In Hollywood he produced plays before the camera began insisting that he get in front.

CITES NEED OF VET'RINARIANS

Scott Says Profession Needed As Never Before

Raleigh, Jan. 25.—Services of veterinarians are needed now as never before to guard the health of a "hundred-million-dollar" livestock industry. Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott this afternoon told the N. C. Veterinary Medical Association in session here.

Your association has a wonderful opportunity to render the state a great service," the Commissioner said.

He cited the fact that parasites and diseases cost livestock men more than half a million dollars each year and pointed out that about half North Carolina's counties are without veterinarians.

"The veterinary division of the department has already started hog cholera work in the eastern part of the state in an effort to protect the grower," he said, "and additional hog cholera program will be launched all over the state just as soon as there is money available for the purpose."

Both the Department of Agriculture and the veterinarians can play leading roles in combatting disease and eradicating epidemics and parasites, he said. He cited the poultry industry and the Department's fight against pulorum disease as an instance in which much has been accomplished.

"The Department is proud of the service it has rendered in seeking to protect our rapidly-growing poultry industry," he said. "But the veterinarian can play a leading part in this control work also. He should preach economy of disease control and eradication in his community."

He complimented the association on its cooperation in the joint program of state and federal Departments of Agriculture to combat Bang's disease among cattle.

Dr. George A. Ferguson, Leaksville, is president of the association. Dr. P. C. McLain, Charlotte, is secretary-treasurer.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Jan. 27.—To the unusual objects of larceny add the very fine and matured long leaf pine tree recently stolen from the Snow Hill forest; fire observation tower site in Greene county.

Theft of the tree has been reported to the Department of Conservation and Development by County Fire Warden H. M. Waters. The tree was cut down, sawed into logs and removed without the knowledge of the arden.

This is the first incident reported of the larceny of timber from state-controlled property. Investigation is being made with a view to possible prosecution of the person or persons responsible, according to Assistant State Forester W. C. McCormick.

He's a cleaner and presser, according to his sign, but he ought to be a Swiss Yodeler—Lee O. Layton of Raleigh.

Miss Leslie Toler has taken over the duties of Social Work Consultant of the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare, succeeding temporarily Miss Emma A. Ashton, who has been granted a leave of absence from February 1 to June 1, 1938, for the purpose of taking up post graduate work at the Pennsylvania School for Social Work in Philadelphia.

Elizabeth City folks are eating crow and liking it, according to the Daily Advance, of the Pasquotank capital. It's not figurative "crow" either. The Advance advances the statement that crow meat is really good and that folks like it if they don't know in advance what they're getting.

Heads of a dozen Resettlement projects in five states conferred here this week with C. B. Paris, assistant regional director in charge of Resettlement projects, and Geo. S. Mitchell, regional director of the Farm Security Administration.

States represented were North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky.

Attending from North Carolina were L. L. McLenon of Rowanoke Farms at Enfield, W. H. Robbins of Penderles Homesteads at Willard, H. C. Green of Pembroke Farms, E. B. Welch of the North Carolina Farm Tenant Security Project at Goldsboro, and T. W. Armstrong of Columbia's Seapungent Farms.

There are 26,000 rural highway intersections in North Carolina, according to J. S. Burch, engineer of statistics and planning of the State-wide Highway Planning Survey, a cooperative project of the State Highway Commission and the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

No wonder motorists sometimes get lost.

In the January number of 'Sports Afield' publication devoted largely to hunting, there are several stories with North Carolina settings, as well as a rotomast section devoted to Tar Heel pictures.

In the latest issue of 'Hunter, Trader, Trapper' appears an interesting article by Tommy Beunsey, veteran Cardrunk Sound guide.

Word from Charlotte's incidental, is that Ed R. Johnson, 1937 House member who created quite a stir by his insistence on naming the county school board may not be a candidate for the 1939 House. There is much talk that he will consent to the naming of Chester Morris, whom he beat in 1937 by about 20 votes, on a compromise platform.

IT'S ODD But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (AP Science Editor)

Philadelphia—Scientists hunting for a beam that will destroy cancer without hurting other tissues have discovered one new fact.

This is that a beam of neutrons will destroy some tissues faster than others. Raymond E. Zirkle of the Johnson Foundation, University of Pennsylvania, and I. Lampe of the University of Michigan, make the discovery with Michigan's cyclotron.

They found that the beam killed roots of wheat seedlings faster than their stems. It kills some kinds of tissues of fruit flies faster than others.

The discovery shows that the neutrons have one of the qualities wanted for cancer. But before testing this on cancer, scientists want to learn why one kind of tissue is more susceptible than another.

Neutrons form the most penetrating and dangerous rays yet

Natural balance! That's the secret.

Uncle Natchel says that's everything in Sonny's learning to ride his mule.

And be sure of natural balance in your nitrate, too!

Chilean Nitrate of Soda is natural—the only natural nitrate. For over 100 years it's been a dependable source of nitrogen for nearly every crop that's grown. Now we're learning the importance of its other vital elements, such as iodine, boron, calcium, magnesium, manganese, potassium, zinc, iron, copper and many others. Chilean Nitrate of Soda carries these vital elements in Nature's balance and blend.

SYNOPSIS: Pursued by Dyak war canoes, we are desperately rowing our whaleboat up the tropical Siderong river to Balingong, and refuge. My uncle, James Clyde, owner of the gun-running Linkang, is trying to reach his client, the besieged Rajah Mantusen. We would be on the open sea but for Christine Forrester. This young English girl and her brother refuse to take their defenseless yacht to less dangerous waters, and Clyde won't sail without them. I'm sure there is more to this fantastic situation than we know.

Chapter Nine Balingong

The oarsmen laid a last violence into the stroke, so that the straining sweeps bent with every pull. We swung between those ghostly charcoal pilings, and drove hard toward the steep beach beyond.

"Ship your oars," my uncle said. From 100 yards up the hill behind the beach three or four of the brass Malay lantakas now spoke once more; their round shot went overhead with that heavy sibilant noise they make, something like the cough of a horse. But they were not firing at us; they were driving off those now faint-hearted Dyak praus.

"Well," Clyde said, "there's our customers, Paul."

Half the Dyak fighting men of all Sumatanga were concentrated here—yet 100 Malays still stood there.

The irregular cracks of gunfire had died away as we came on, and as our keel ran grating onto the beach, the Siderong shore was altogether still.

No Malays came forward to meet us. I saw why. Their half naked, turbaned figures were peculiarly grouped. They bunched squatting on their heels, close in the shadow of the stockade pilings, or in peculiarly shaped lines in the shelter of the buildings, like men seeking shade though shade was now everywhere.

It was the first time that I had ever seen Malays fear guns—especially guns in the hands of Dyaks. Mantusen's refuge consisted of two stockades, one within the other; but these, unlike the Dyak stockades were of pilings no more than four feet tall and open to the river. The Malays like to spring out and meet the rush of their enemies with a charge of their own, however much they may be outnumbered. This works well, because the Dyak has no stomach for the cold kris, while so far as I have seen, the Malay appears to have no fear of steel.

The line of the outer stockade was 50 feet beyond that of the inner, which was very compact; and beyond the outer stockade the ground was cleared for a distance of 200 yards. The whole arrangement was ideal for standing off the Dyaks, for the primitive weapons could do no damage until the attackers had come into the open.

Clyde looked about him, without any appearance of hurry, while yet he wasted no time. "Drag the boat high," he said as he stepped ashore, "out of reach of the tide. We're exposed here; we'll walk on in."

As he spoke, splinters jumped from the gunle of the boat, immediately followed by the crack of a single rifle from the far side of the Siderong. Naturally, luck being what it is, it was Grogan that the shot almost got. What amazed me was that the well-aimed shot must have come a good 300 yards.

Your average Dyak closes both eyes and fires in a general direction, so that the gas-pipe guns most traders were palming off on them served as well as any. But now some new element seemed to have entered this fight, forcing the Malays to take shelter from Dyak guns for perhaps the first time in their memory; and I could not imagine how to account for it.

Clyde no more than raised his eyebrows as he turned and walked slowly up the steep beach, the rest of us following with something of the deliberate step of men who no longer have any control over their circumstances. They were half carrying Schweicamp, and Grogan hobbled with the aid of an oar.

We Surrender Arms

NOW a single figure walked forward, slowly, but with a rolling Malay swagger. Until I found difficulty in recognizing this man's face, I had not realized how fast the twilight was falling. Now I experienced a great relief. For the man was Lundok—perhaps the only Malay in Balingong, except for Mantusen himself, who spoke English with any fluency. Lundok was also perhaps the only Malay in Balingong upon whose word James Clyde rested any weight. He seemed to have learned, along with English, that certain men can sometimes make themselves a reputation for doing what they say they will; and that this reputation is a valuable tool.

He came out into the open, then stood waiting, his hands on his hips, looking about him at the tall ribbing palms 300 yards away with an evident wonderment that the guns did not cut him down.

Lundok and James Clyde shook hands. We had tried to teach the Malays that the white man accorded them an honor when he did this, but I do not know what Lundok thought.

"Come out of gun range, Tuan," Lundok said. "The rajah will talk to you very soon."

He led us to one of the places where the Malays were grouped, evidently sheltered from the rifery. Here he left us. James Clyde produced a cigar, and began to smoke. I noticed how he stood a little out from the protected area, so that the Malays watched him narrowly. It was one of those swagging things we do to make natives think we have no fear, however frightened we may be. Somehow, I was not sure this method was working for us just then.

After a long time, while the tropic twilight quickly darkened, Lundok came back and told us, with a restraint I did not like, that the Rajah Mantusen would see us now.

Then he said, "I must ask for your weapons. The rajah will talk to you unarmed."

"I am not accustomed to this," Clyde said coolly.

"I am sorry, Tuan," Lundok was grave. "We are in deep trouble here. The rajah has made a law. After brief consideration, Clyde conceded. Already we were in too deep to stand hard on any point. Clyde and I were the only ones who wore pistol belts, and these we gave to Lundok, after Clyde had first told him that he was to be personally responsible for their return. We did not look back—at least Clyde and I did not; but we knew that behind us quick figures ran, silently, to gather the arms we had left in the boat.

The house in which Mantusen received us was set 100 yards back from the river upon a rise of ground, and it was easy to see at a glance that this house had never been built by Malays. A Dyak longhouse was what it was, better than 100 feet long, and set high upon pilings of cocoanut trunk. The Dyaks build these for a number of families to live in together. This was a big one, but rough and jungly compared to what the rajah's palace had been. Evidently it had been built by and for slaves from the inland tribes, captured in the Malays' perpetual raiding.

Rajah Mantusen

WHEN slaves had lived here the effect of the whole thing must have been crude and mean; but since the Malays had moved in, this was changed a good deal. Darkness had now closed down with tropic abruptness, but the rui was partly lighted by a number of lacquered Chinese lamps, each flame about as strong as a candle; and by these small golden lights it could be seen that the house had been turned into a house of treasure.

Evidently the Malays, forced to abandon the palace before the Dyak onslaught, had been able to bring here most of the things they valued. The mats which thickly covered the uneven split-bamboo floor were of a soft, close weave, suitable for use in a fine hat, tucked deep on top of the mats lay rugs which must have come from Arabia; where the lamp-glass struck them they gave off the soft rich glow of jewels. And the wall behind the rui was hung with a great array of that embroidery which seems so effete in the hands of these men of the kris, and yet is so characteristic. Its patterns, heavy with gold and silver thread, suggested that much of it had come from looted Chinese junks, and some of it was set off with seed pearls and little stones.

But these things were only the background for a great collection of the most beautiful weapons I have ever seen. There is no finer metal work in the world than the Malays can put into the way blades of a rajah kris, and into the scabbards, hilts, and trappings of those blades.

Mantusen sat midway of the rui upon a stack of mats, with about a dozen of his Malay leaders arrayed along the wall on either hand.

At first glance, to the eyes of an American seaman, he looked something like a bouquet. He wore long loose trousers of a featherweight lavender silk, bound at the waist with a gold-threaded sash which also strapped close his ornately hilted kris. His short Malay jacket was of black satin, heavily crusted with gold thread. It was not supposed to close in front, so that it exposed a chest entirely hairless, but cleanly roped with the wing muscles of the expert krisman.

Then, as we walked forward, the Rajah Mantusen stood up.

I can not describe the awful feeling of danger, of entrapment, that was conveyed to me as Mantusen did this. For you must know that for the rajah to stand as his visitors approached was not an honor, but a thing apart from custom. It meant that the audience was to be short; that we were not expected to sit; that there was no friendliness here, nor even the form of friendliness.

Will they learn why Mantusen is angry, tomorrow?

NEGRO TEAMS BEAT KINSTON

Industrial Boys And Girls Score Double Victory

Before a large crowd who braved the weather last night both the Greenville Industrial high school teams scored a victorious against their strongest team in the Eastern A division, Kinston.

It took five minutes of the first period for the local girls team to find the basket while Kinston connected twice from the floor with a four point lead in the first five minutes. The locals came from behind and were lead-locked, 8-8 at the end of the first period. Kinston was held scoreless the entire second period while the locals scored twice from the floor holding a 10-8 leads at the half. Early in the third period the visitors moved up to the lead 12-13. With two minutes to play Gorham connected and Morris with a free shot completed the scoring for the night, 15-13.

The boys went the first period trailing 0-6. A substitution, Jones for Eaton, at forward put the team to clicking. At the half the locals held a 12-8 lead which Kinston never able to regain. The visitors moved up 16-11 at the end of the third period. The first five minutes of the last period gave Kinston 16-16 catch-up. The locals took time out to talk things over, an with one and one half minutes to play Edwards and Daniels connected from long range to complete the scoring for the night a 20-16.

Summary of scores: Girls: Morris 7, Daniels 6, Gorham 2. Boys: May 8, Edwards 8, Daniel 2, Wilkins 2.

Officials: Referees: Edwards-Lowrey. Time keeper, Taft Busby. Score, Houston and Norcott.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 27.—(AP)—The stock market partially regained its balance today as offerings dried up in virtually all departments.

While the comeback pace was extremely slow, recoveries running to two points or so were in evidence near the fourth hour.

After a slightly lower opening, gold mining issues came into prominence. Bonds on the whole inclined to do better.

DOG'S SURE SNIFF BRINGS HOME THE BACON

Dakota City, Neb.—(AP)—Thirteen-year-old Jack Magir has a dog with a nose sensitive to bacon. That's why loot taken from a Dixon grocery store was recovered and two men were jailed as suspects.

Jack's dog smelled some bacon hidden under a bridge where Jack was ice skating. Authorities were called, and the loot discovered.

Officers said they apprehended the two men when they returned to obtain the stolen articles.

Fun In Jail Herrick, Ill. (AP)—The prisoner-less Herrick jail has been turned into a recreation center.

Individual cells have been transformed into work rooms and the "bullpen" is used as a craft laboratory. The building also contains a small library, reading tables, game equipment and stage for amateur shows.

But just in case the trend of good behavior has been overestimated, one cell is reserved for law violators.

night at the annual congressional dinner of the New Jersey Chamber of Commerce in the Carlton hotel near the White House.

No one, police said, saw Kenney fall to his death on a concrete walkway beneath the open sixth floor window.

First identification was effected through clothing found draped over a chair in a hotel bedroom which had been assigned to guests of the visiting Chamber of Commerce members.

A preliminary examination indicated Kenney had received a fractured skull, broken left leg and punctured thigh.

VANANCIES ON BOARD FILLED

Hoey said he tendered a reappointment to L. P. McLendon of Greensboro, chairman of the board, or four years, but McLendon declined due to his duties as chairman of the Commission which is studying the advisability of a State Department of Justice.

McNeill, a former board member and also a former state senator, was appointed to succeed McLendon. Heil was named to succeed Harry Sample of Asheville, now state probation director.

ROBBERS DRAW PRISON TERMS

Ed O. Merry pleaded guilty to driving drunk and was given a six months sentence, suspended for five years upon payment of the costs, and further provided that he remain of good behavior.

Alex Loyd was given an 18-month sentence on a charge of driving drunk, but the term was suspended for five years upon condition the defendant remain of good behavior and not drive a car.

Will Miller, convicted of incest, was given a five-year sentence.

B. L. Little was acquitted of a charge of hunting without a license. Herbert Hemby pleaded guilty to burglary and was given a three-year sentence, to start at the expiration of a sentence he is now serving.

Gertrude Green pleaded guilty to selling whiskey and was given an 18-month sentence, suspended upon condition she leave the county by February 10 and not reside in any town in the state.

Storms buffeted shipping on the Great lakes and at sea. Snow flurries were reported in Ocala and Brooksville, Fla., about one third of the way down on the peninsula.

The Federal crop warning service at Lakeland, Fla., predicted frost as far south as the Everglades by morning, but said the probable minimum temperatures would not injure mature citrus fruits.

BIRTHDAY BALL DRAWS NEAR tained here and recalled that many children suffering with infantile paralysis had received aid through profits from the dance.

Although each of the previous Roosevelt Balls held here has been successful, officials declare it is their aim and hope to make the 1938 event the biggest in its history.

SHERIFF TELLS OF PAYNE CONFESSION testified previously that the officer's death was caused by a rifle bullet wound in the head.

After spending two nights in the woods near Black Mountain, the sheriff said Payne told him he forced a boy and girl to drive him to Thomasville. En route, the sheriff still quoting Payne, said, the party stopped at Hickory to buy gasoline, sandwiches and drinks.

Payne, the sheriff said, told him he instructed the couple to wait until he telephoned where the automobile might be found but did not abandon the machine until he reached Siler City.

Brown was still on the stand when court recessed for lunch.

Three guns, Penn's pistol, the discharged shell and cartridges the sheriff and Van Patton, owner of the farm where Penn was slain, testified were found near the scene; and the unexploded cartridges, Brown testified, in the rifle when found, were introduced as evidence.

DEAN OF STATE TO SPEAK HERE governor for the Fifth District in 1936. Last year he was a member of the committee on vocational guidance of the Raleigh club.
