HAND-TO-HAND BATTLE RAGES IN WIDE AREA

Chinese and Japs Are Locked In Strife At Mingkwang

GAINS CLAIMED BY BOTH SIDES

Japs To Probe Conditions In Nanking Which Brought Protests From U. S.

Shanghai, Feb. 1.—(AP)—Chinese and Japanese armies clashed hand-to-hand today in a struggle for the 190-mile wide corridor separating areas Japanese have conquered in almost seven months of undeclared warfare.

The engagements centered along the southern border of the corridor, at Mingkwang, 75 miles northwest of Nanking. Chinese and Japanese reports of the battle were at odds, with both sides saying they had taken a heavy toll of enemy lives.

Near Mingkwang Chinese told of hurling back Japanese after repeated bayonet charges against troops reinforced with tanks and airplanes. Japanese, however, said they pushed Chinese northward toward Pengpu, next objective in the Japanese drive toward Suchow.

The northern border of the Chinese corridor apparently was quiet.

Japanese officials in Shanghai prepared to press their investigation of conditions at Nanking, which had brought protests from the United States government.

The United States gunboat Oahu, which has been at anchor off Nanking since the reopening of the U. S. Embassy there after Japanese conquest of the city, was to leave for Shanghai for fuel and supplies.

Four Automobiles Wreck Near City

Four automobiles were involved in wrecks in front of the home of Mrs. R. W. King on the Ayden highway about 8 o'clock last night, but no one was seriously injured.

According to State Highway Patrolman H. B. Smith, who investigated the accidents, an automobile driven by Lieut. Sills of Fort Bragg collided with the rear of one driven by Miss Julia Gaylord as the latter was attempting to turn into the driveway. The two vehicles had been moved off the highway, but when two automobiles approached from opposite directions they collided at the scene. A car driven by R. E. King of Washington was struck by one driven by R. B. Banning also of Washington. Patrolman declared that Banning's car traveling toward Ayden, struck King's car and then crashed into the rear of Lieut. Sills' vehicle, which already had collided with the Gaylord vehicle.

Phillip Blount, who was in the lieutenant's car, suffered a cut on the rear of his head, but it was not considered serious. At first it was feared that Mrs. King was seriously injured, but a physician was summoned and it was determined that her injuries consisted chiefly of shock and bruises.

Inland Waterway Vessel Sinks Near Wilmington

Captain and Crew Of Six Men Escape Unhurt

Wilmington, Feb. 1.—(AP)—The inland waterway motor vessel Chelsea, 107 tons, burned and sank in the Cape Fear river five miles south of Wilmington early today. The captain and crew of six men, all of Norfolk, escaped unhurt.

The craft was owned by the Norfolk, Baltimore and Carolina line, with head offices at Baltimore. It carried 50 tons of cargo, all of which was lost. It was en route to Wilmington, on a weekly schedule between Wilmington and Norfolk. Captain H. H. Toier of Norfolk said he did not know the origin of the fire. The flames began in the cargo, crept up around the smokestack and spread rapidly, he said. The fire was noticed about 1:15 A. M. The craft burned to the water's edge.

The crew managed partially to beach the vessel, but it sank in eight feet of water on the west bank of the river. The captain and crew took a life boat, rowed eight miles down stream to a plantation and remained there the night.

MAIL GETS THROUGH IN 'SNOWMOBILE'

Bliss, N. Y. (AP)—Winter's snows hold no terrors for Edris Morgan, rural mail carrier.

When roads are blocked with drifts, and other automobiles remain garage-bound, Morgan rolls out his "snowmobile," a revamped auto, equipped with eight wheels and mounted on skis, plus a caterpillar tread in the rear.

"It bucks snow drifts with the 'greatest of ease,'" Morgan says.

New Brunswick, Canada, has a seaboard of about 550 miles.

Tar Heel Farmers Await Farm Bill

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Feb. 1.—Farm leaders of North Carolina are eagerly awaiting Congressional action on the crop control measure now in Conference between the Federal House and Senate; but outside of these leaders and a small group of unusually well-informed people, few realize the importance of the measure to the state.

In the main the attention of most people has been centered on industrial problems, including labor relations, and it has been generally overlooked that North Carolina ranks third in the entire country in number of farms, with a total of 300,967 in 1935, and a value in excess of $707,000,000.

Yet with this vital stake in farming and in legislation affecting it, there is a lack of information in Raleigh's official circles about the pending crop control bill which is astonishing. Nobody seems to

BRITAIN RUSHES FOUR WARSHIPS

Spanish Government 'Amazed' That Foreign Intervention In Strife Permitted

London, Feb. 1.—(AP)—The Spanish Government today charged Italy had assigned four destroyers and two submarines to the Spanish Insurgent fleet and an Italian vessel sank the British merchantman Endymion off Spain's southeast coast with a loss of 11 lives.

The British Admiralty rushed four destroyers armed with depth charges to the Mediterranean area where the freighter was torpedoed. Pablo de Azcarate Y. Florez, Spanish Government Ambassador accused Italy in a note handed to the British Foreign office.

The Spanish government, he declared in another communique, is "amazed" that "foreign intervention in Spain is permitted to such an extent as to allow the Rebels (Insurgents) to receive whole important units of a foreign fleet.

The Ambassador denied the Insurgents have submarines of their own and declared "it must be clear to the whole world" that the Endymion's attacker was Italian.

The destroyers were under orders without hesitation to drop depth charges if the attacking submarines were sighted and tried to resist capture.

The Nyon accord against "piracy" signed last September 14, established any such submarines be "counter attacked and if possible destroyed.

Lawrence Lee, president, and Hal Trentmann, vice president, attended the session. Principal talks were made by Mr. Lee and E. L. Warren of the State Insurance Department.

Mr. Lee declared that life insurance played an important part in the economic structure of the country. He added that world progress and life insurance go hand in hand and said that money invested in life insurance years ago provided the backlog that cushioned the economic structure during the depression.

MANY ROBBERY CASES SOLVED

Eight Negroes Held in Seven Recent Robberies Here

Seven recent robberies were marked "solved" at the Greenville police station this morning after city officers had spent much of the night in rounding up eight Negroes, five of whom are minors.

The minors, Louis Whitfield, John Earl Hogan, alias Fields, Stephen Little, Wilbur Hines and Floyd Lee Hines, were turned over to county welfare officials, while the others, Willie Blow, Will Carr and James Carr, are being held in city jail awaiting a preliminary hearing, at which they probably will be ordered held for Superior court.

Chief of Police George Clark declared the Negroes were being held in the following robberies: the home of C. C. Skinner, N. Russo's cafe on Green street, Watson Feed store, Evans feed store, Pitt drug store, Saied's clothing store and Pender's grocery store on Dickinson avenue.

The Skinner home was robbed on January 21, while both Mr. and Mrs. Skinner were in Huntington, W. Va., where he is on the tobacco market. Several pants, coats, a traveling bag and other articles were taken, part of which was recovered. Louis Whitfield, John Earl Hogan and Stephen Little, three of the minors, are charged with the robbery.

The cafe operated by N. Russos was entered the night of January 18 and candy, cigarettes and food was taken. John Earl Hogan, Stephen Early and Wilbur Hines are held in this case.

New Markets

Raleigh, Feb. 1.—(AP)—W. P. Hedrick, tobacco marketing specialist of the State Agricultural Department, said today opening of markets for tobacco in Central and South American should mean much to North Carolina growers.

"At present," said Hedrick, "Central and South America seem to be our most promising new markets. Benefits to North Carolina tobacco growers will depend on the speed with which salesmen open up that field."

Increased consumption of tobacco by the British should also help North Carolina growers, Hedrick said.

BIRTHDAY BALL HELD SUCCESS

Chairman Lee Thanks Those Cooperating In Affair

Chairman W. W. Lee of the 1938 Roosevelt Birthday Ball held here last night declared today that the affair was successful and he considered the crowd good despite the inclement weather which kept many persons at home who otherwise would have attended the dance and floor show.

"I wish to thank everyone who helped to make the ball a success," declared Chairman Lee, "without their wholehearted cooperation it would have been impossible to have made as good a showing as we did."

He especially thanked Dr. L. R. Meadows for the use of the Robert H. Wright memorial auditorium and otherwise cooperating, and Miss R. Ann Staples, who presented entertaining floor shows.

While no figures are available on the profits derived from the annual event, the advance sale of tickets was encouraging and officials are hoping that a good sum will be realized to aid children crippled from infantile paralysis or other causes.

More Power To Farms

Washington (AP)—The era of the oil lamp and the hand pump in American farm life is drawing to a close.

During 1938 the rural electrification administration expects to finish or place under construction some 70,000 miles of rural power lines. These will provide light and power for 1,000,000 persons, for some 300,000 farm homes.

Offers Camping Trip To Some Local Scout

Dr. E. L. Henderson, chairman of Scouting in the Greenville District, has announced that he will give to the Scout making the most advancement from February 1 to July 1st a free trip to Camp Charles for a week.

He is trying to get several other free trips for Scouts on the same basis. Scouts now have the opportunity to earn a vacation and some Greenville Scout will be the lucky boy to enjoy this week in the open.

Best Vote Getters Biggest Winners

It can be truly said that the real campaign for the big cash awards is just starting. With the announcement of this week of the extra bonus vote offer which lasts only one week the candidates are striving with renewed interest and enthusiasm for the big awards. Candidates realize that this special vote offer lasts only six days and then comes a greater drop in votes, and are losing no time on this important period.

Big Pay For All

The "Cash Offer" campaign makes it possible for you to earn a large amount of real cash, in return for only a reasonable amount of spare time on your part during the next few weeks.

No Red Tape

There are absolutely no strings tied to this campaign. Red tape has been abolished. All awards go absolutely free to the successful workers. There is no cost attached to entering and making a try. Everybody is paid for their efforts—no one loses. Your friends will be glad to help you—in fact it is a friendly campaign from beginning to end. It is free to everyone and The Daily Reflector pays the entire bill.

Awards Represent Value

Each of the grand capital awards is equal in value to money saved through years of frugal saving, years of painstaking denial. The money can now be won in a few weeks spare time effort and with the assurance that if you fall short for any reason, you will still get a reward exactly commensurate with your effort.

No candidate will go unpaid. The attractive commission takes care of that. The twenty per cent commission is in cash which actually means that there are just as many Cash Awards as there are active candidates. (Continued on page six)

SENATE PASSES HOUSING BILL BY CLOSE VOTE

Final Congressional Approval Won On 42-40 Vote

SENATORS ARGUE FOREIGN POLICY

Borah Asserts World Led to Believe Britain and U. S. Agreed Boost Navies

Washington, Feb. 1.—(AP)—Senate action gave final Congressional approval today to the administration's housing bill.

The vote of approval was 42 to 40.

A scrap over the administration's housing bill had been temporarily interrupted in the senate by another argument—on foreign policy.

Before the housing program was disposed of, Senator Pittman (D.-Nev.) and Senator Johnson (R.-Calif.) gained the privilege of dissenting back and forth a question raised yesterday by Johnson: "What is this country's foreign policy?"

Into their heated arguments Senator Borah (R.-Ida.), ranking Republican on the Foreign Relations committee, flung the statement that the world had been led to believe the Great Britain and the United States had an "alliance" for building up their navies. Borah said it was the same kind of situation that led to the World War.

Meanwhile United Automobile Workers' officials urged President Roosevelt to recommend an immediate federal appropriation of $130,000,000 to provide employment and direct relief for unemployed automobile workers and their families in Michigan.

Homar Martin, president of the UAW union, presented the request at a White House conference. He said later the President had agreed to take the matter up tomorrow with the WPA. Martin added the President was "quite cognizant of the emergency of the situation."

Other developments: The navy's top-ranking officer, Admiral William Leahy, told Congress the United States should build battleships larger than the 35,000-ton limit fixed by the 1936 London treaty if other powers disregard the limitation.

Leahy made this statement to the House Naval committee.

Henry A. Dennis, whose mother died in Henderson late last night, at one time was a resident of Greenville and was news editor of The Daily Reflector. Mr. Dennis at the present time is editor and publisher of the Henderson Daily Dispatch.

Judge Takes Oath To Succeed Small

...eigh, Feb. 1.—(AP)—An unusual ceremony, with Governor Hoy administering the oath of office to Everett Thompson of Elizabeth City, recently appointed a Superior Court Judge, was set for the governor's office this afternoon.

Thompson, appointed to succeed Judge Walter Small, asked that the Governor personally administer the oath.

Judge Thompson will hold his first court in Granville county, starting Monday.

He had the Attorney General look up the legality of such procedure and announced he would give the oath.

Veteran state attaches said it would be the first time in 39 or more years that the Governors had sworn in a judge, if it ever had been done before.

Rash Prime Minister

London (AP)—Some of the local bigwigs were concerned recently at what they called Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's "rashness." He jumped off a wall while cutting across fields on a shooting party in Yorkshire. It was only a low wall—but the prime minister had just recovered from a bad attack of gout. And he is on a gaily frolic. But his critics' fears that this might precipitate a return of the illness were unfounded.

EMPIRE FOR A LADY

SYNOPSIS: Two ships are anchored in tropical Balingong bay; our fortified gun-runner, the Linkang, and Christine Forrester's Avon. Sumatang island is seething with a Dyak revolt against the Malays, but my uncle, James Clyde, and myself (Paul Thorne) manage to reach Clyde's besieged client, Rajah Mantusen. We learn too late that Christine is supplying the Dyak guns, and Mantusen blames us. Talking against death, Clyde finally gains a concession. While he is held hostage, I am to bring the Linkang up-river.

Chapter 13 Back To The Linkang

A NEW ugly horror had got inside of me. In spite of what Clyde said, it was not true that the Linkang could withstand the attack of the Malay war praus; and even if by some miracle she saved herself, she certainly could not save the Avon. I knew with altogether too much clarity exactly what was going to happen to Christine Forrester when the Malays forced the river and took the Avon. That would be Mantusen's next quick move, if I failed to burst the Dyaks—and I was sure to fail. Clyde's idea was impossible. It could not be done. I said so to Clyde, ignoring Mantusen.

"This is your chance of a lifetime," Clyde answered. "You will succeed simply because you've got to succeed. Go out there now, and blow this Dyak blockade sky high and hell wide!"

"I can't do it," I kept saying over and over. "I can't."

"Mr. Thorne," my uncle said, "you will do exactly as you are told."

"Yes, sir."

My knees felt as weak as if the tendons had been cut. As I stood up I thought at first that I would need to help myself with my hands. Mantusen was watching me with a smile of pleased contempt. Christine Forrester was waiting on the Linkang when we came aboard.

We had reached the shore of Balingong bay two hours before dawn, and after that we waited indefinitely for daylight. The extra time was due to my allowing three hours for getting from Balingong to the beach, although Lundok, who guided us, had wanted no more than one.

I suppose I had thought there would be a lot of crawling around on our bellies in the bush, and hair-raising delays with prowling Dyaks trying to hunt us out; but there was very little of this nonsense. We opened our foray by crawling 400 yards on our hands and knees, but after that we stood up; and Lundok led us, by intricate trails he knew, almost directly through some of the strong Dyak camps. He had long ago learned the exact lines of the Dyak ring, which not even a mouse deer could have crossed, and found a way within the lines to reach the bay. His knowledge was of no service to Mantusen, to whom the sea was least safe of all; but it served us now.

Christine's Concern
AFTER we reached salt water there was nothing to do but wait on the slimy beach until daylight came. Grogan, weak and feverish from his wound, was in serious difficulty. He kept mumbling sheepishly that he was all right, but he was not. His foot was a mess after an hour's trot in jungle dirt. I washed it with salt water, and bandaged it with strips of my shirt; but, tropic mud being what it is, I know that we stood a fine chance of losing that man.

When daylight was plain we signalled the Linkang watch, by waving what was left of my shirt; and after what seemed to me an unnecessarily long delay, our boat put in and picked us up.

It would have seemed like coming home to safe and friendly things, after that nightmare in the Siderong river, if only James Clyde had been there.

Then, as I swarmed over the Linkang's counter, I saw that Christine Forrester was waiting at the rail.

"Where is he? Where's Captain Clyde?" She was pale, and there were blue shadows under her eyes, so that I knew at once she had not slept that night. "Why don't you answer me?"

John Blair, that set-faced silent man who was Clyde's second mate, stood behind her, his face very grim; and all down the deck the crew was waiting, all ears. These people, every one of them, knew that Clyde must be dead.

"Captain Clyde is with the Rajah Mantusen," I said.

"He's alive? He's all right?" "Was when I left."

She gave a little gasp that must have been relief, and leaned against the rail. Her lips moved uncertainly, without making any sound.

"Please stand back," I told her. "My men have to come aboard."

"He'll Be Killed!"

HE blazed into speech again, her words racing. "But he can't stay there! Don't you people understand that? The Dyaks have rifles. They have three times the rifles they had yesterday. They can pour fire into every corner of Mantusen's stockade. They'll take Mantusen himself within 24 hours. He'll be killed there—can't you see—"

I said bitterly, "I gathered that the Dyaks have rifles. I'll talk to you about that in a minute."

I took Blair a little aside, over by the long swivel in the waist. "We ran into a jam," I told Blair rapidly. "This other boat's been unloading guns to the Dyaks, and Mantusen knows it. He thinks we did it. Clyde is still with Mantusen because Mantusen is holding him. He's going to keep on holding him until we undo the harm that's been done. Unless it gets too hot for them there; and in that case you know what will happen to Clyde."

"Golly!" said Blair. His face was like iron, but he made no other remark.

"Captain Clyde's orders are that we move the Linkang into the river with the tide. We're supposed to kedge her up to where our guns can hammer down the Dyak stockades. If we breach the stockades, then the Malays are supposed to rush. That was the best deal we could make. If we can't do it, Mantusen still has Clyde."

Blair considered slowly, his eyes on the mouth of the Siderong. "It's seven hours to high tide," he said at last.

"Put out a boat to sound the bar; once now and again in four hours. From that we can compute the tide." I told him other things to do, about the rocket guns and boarding nets, and Grogan's foot.

"Aye," he said at last, and moved off slowly, two thirds dazed. As I turned away, I saw that Christine was still waiting for me. "Come aft," she said.

I followed her. There was nothing to be done for hours now that Blair could not take care of, and he had plenty of time. I was glad she was here. There were some things I needed to know, and meant to find out. But mostly, now that I saw she was still safe, I wanted to take out on her some of my anger over what she and her people had done.

Miss America Still Ducks Fame; Prefers Textbooks To Scripts

BEAUTY AT SCHOOL
Here's Bette Cooper filling her pretty head with learning, or maybe, wondering what would have happened if she hadn't run out from under the Miss America crown.

(By The AP Feature Service)
Hackettstown, N. J. — Blonde, dimpled Bette Cooper, an "old-fashioned girl," surprised herself by winning the Atlantic City beauty contest last September—and then ran out on her role as Miss America.

She didn't like the arrangements and besides she wanted to get home to Hackettstown. Not even offers of $400 a week on the stage and a chance in the movies could change her attitude.

School Is Across The Street
Now, four months later, she hasn't changed her mind yet. Renewed efforts to put her in the spotlight have not shaken her determination to "complete my education first."

So at Centenary Junior College, across the street from her home here, the 17-year-old Miss America 1937 is studying voice culture, musical interpretation, shorthand, typing, English, speech, dramatics, tap dancing, physical education and the Bible.

She neither drinks nor smokes and she doesn't "care a bit" for Hollywood's No. 1 male screen star.

But she has ideas about what her "gentlemen friends" should be: "Dark, curly-haired . . . blond boys look sissified (her tresses are pure platinum) . . . good talkers, have nice manners . . . wear sport clothes especially English tweeds."

Must Have 'Some Money'
And, she added, "A fellow has to have some money, too, you know. No girl wants a boy friend who can't take her some place."

Rising at 7:30 every morning, Bette helps her mother with breakfast and house-cleaning before starting for school. Her week nights are given to home work, and she gets to bed by 9:30.

Athletic prowess has won her 50 medals and trophies in basketball, volleyball and track. Once she captained the Hackettstown high school track squad.

Her recreation favorites include swimming, tennis, cycling and dancing—but not those modern dances (big apple, rumba), she says. "I prefer the old-time graceful waltz."

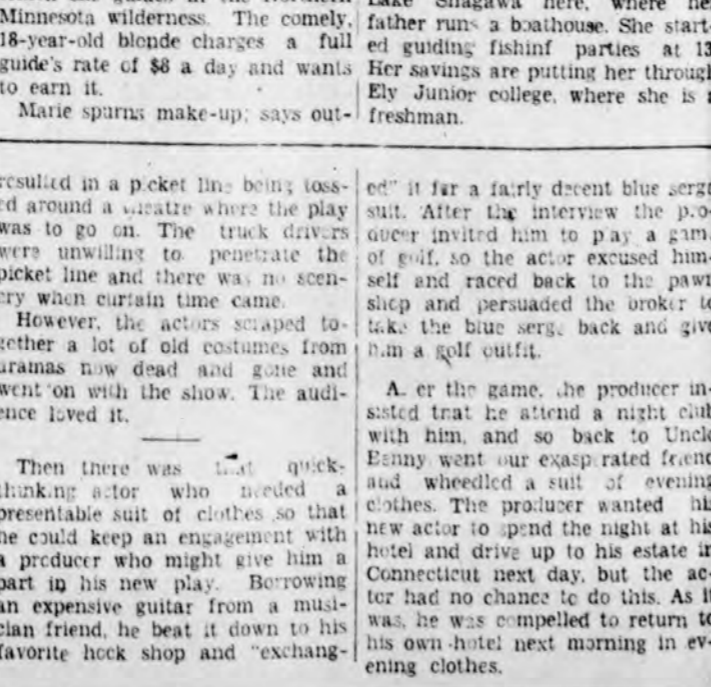

Wants To See America
Although Bette ran out on the Miss America life, she isn't forgotten often her school routine is interrupted by interviews with people who want her to endorse something. Some are disappointed because, she explains, "I can't say no to everything they want me to."

She has given several radio talks, refused other offers on account of home work.

When she is graduated next June, she wants to travel—and "see America first." She might accept trips to Hollywood and other cities proffered by the beauty contest promoters.

Marriage?
"No young girl should get married until she has a start in life," says Bette.

GIRL, 18, DOES MAN'S WORK AS GUIDE; ASKS NO CONCESSIONS

Marie Sarkipato Knows Her Woods Lore

(By The AP Feature Service)
Ely, Minn.—Marie Sarkipato can paddle her own canoe. She asks no concessions from hunters and fishermen she guides in the Northern Minnesota wilderness. The comely, 18-year-old blonde charges a full guide's rate of $8 a day and wants to earn it.

Marie spurns make-up; says outdoor exercise keeps her trim. Her patrons agree.

When she was 12 she swam two and three-quarters miles across Lake Shagawa here, where her father runs a boathouse. She started guiding fishing parties at 13. Her savings are putting her through Ely Junior college, where she is a freshman.

resulted in a pocket line being tossed around a wad where the players were unwilling to penetrate the pocket line and there was no scenery when curtain time came.

However, the actors scraped together a lot of old costumes from uranias now dead and gone and went on with the show. The audience loved it.

Then there was that quick-thinking actor who needed a presentable suit of clothes so that he could keep an engagement with a producer who might give him a part in his new play. Borrowing an expensive guitar from a musician friend, he beat it down to his favorite hock shop and "exchanged

LOCAL BOXERS MEET WILSON

The first intercollegiate boxing match in the history of East Carolina Teacher's college will take place tonight when the Pirate pugilists meet Atlantic Christian college at Wilson.

Coach "Big Jim" Johnson will take an inexperienced, but ready and willing crew of fighters to Wilson in an attempt to make a victorious debut for boxing at E. C. T. C. Very little is known of the strength of the A. C. C. outfit, but the Wilson boys have always placed very aggressive, capable teams in the arena and this year's edition will probably measure up to the high standards of the past.

In addition to the match with A. C. C. the East Carolina pugilists have scheduled meets with the Duke freshmen in Durham and a return engagement with A. C. C. The Duke freshmen will be met on February 5 and this match will be followed by the meet with A. C. C. on February 12 in the Pirates' own backyard. A match with the freshmen of George Washington university, Washington, D. C. has been tentatively arranged, but no information of a definite nature is forthcoming as yet.

DEFER NAMING CLUB OFFICERS

Owing to the illness of three of the directors and the absence of two or more others who were officially identified with the staging of the President's ball at the College, the baseball meeting at City Hall last night confined itself to general discussion of the baseball outlook and the matter of a playing field for the forthcoming season.

It had been planned to elect new board of directors and officials at last night's meeting, but a quorum was not on hand and the matter was deferred until a later date, probably Friday night, when a supper meeting will be held in the private dining room of the Proctor hotel, to which all of last year's officers and directors and about 20 specially invited guests will attend.

At an early date there will be another meeting of league directors and officials, at which time it will be determined if each of the same towns comprising the league last year are ready to post their forfeit money, which, it is expected, will be boosted this year to $600—or half a month's salary per club.

The 1938 Coastal Plain season will open early in May this year, and the tentative schedule provides for approximately 112 games, which would run the season until the last week in August. Following the last games the play-off series would be held, same as last year.

On or before the 25th day of December, 1938, or this notice will be pleaded in bar of their recovery. All persons indebted to said estate will please make immediate payment.

This December 24th, 1937.

GIRLS TO MEET OLD-TIME FOE

Lady Phantoms to Engage Washington High Tonight

By EARL HELLEN

Coach Mary Shaw Robeson's girls' basketball sextet of Greenville High School will meet their traditional rivals, Washington High, here tonight in the high school gymnasium at 7:30 o'clock.

There is an intense rivalry between the girls' teams of the two schools and their annual games draw large crowds. The local girls have won the last three games after a long losing streak. Last year the two teams played two thrilling and hard-fought games which were decided by two points each time—20-18 and 18-16.

The Lady Phantoms are batting 500 this season with 2 wins and 2 losses. They have won their last two games against Bethel and Wilson. In the Wilson game, which they won 20-6, the Lady Phantoms showed marked improvement. The guards were constantly breaking up Wilson passes and exhibited some fine guarding holding the losers to a lone field goal after the first few minutes.

Coach Robeson will probably start Betty Tyson, Joy Planagan and Frances Clark at forward, and Dorothy Merritt, Jane Harrison and Nancy Roberts, at guard.

The lineup lists three sophomores—Tyson, Planagan and Harrison; the others are seniors.

Miss Robeson also plans to use another set of forwards: Marjorie Sugg, Myra Blount and Jane Rowlett, all three being seniors.

Coach Thurward Stowe's Green Phantoms journey to Wilmington tonight to engage New Hanover High in a Class A conference game.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—Your romantic novelists may dole on the ingenuity of women folk in war time—their ability to make tea from bark, fashion clothes out of window curtains and keep the home fires burning while adversity stares them in the face—but what about these peace time victims who run into new problems every day? They are the ones who show resourcefulness, who know how to take it.

There was that awful discovery made by Joe Cook at the zero hour—a discovery that would have appalled a less ingenious man. The water in his hotel was shut off. In ten minutes he was due downstairs at a banquet. And his beard was so long that he had to shave. Hastily gathering some bottles from the kitchenette, Joe raced into the bathroom, shaved in grape juice, and raved his face in ginger ale. He tore into the banquet hall just as the master of ceremonies was saying, "And now, ladies and gentlemen, I give you that great fellow, that great clown, that great comedian, Joe Cook."

Still another token of Broadway's ability to "take it" was that rather bizarre countertemps which compelled a group of actors to go onto a bare stage the other night and give a performance without benefit of scenery, costumes, or props. A technical snarl which the theatrical trades unions were unable to unravel at the last moment

Raleigh, Feb. 1.—Dr. C. C. Crittenden, secretary of the state Historical Commission is "very much interested" in the reported clearing up of the Virginia Days and Lost Colony mysteries by means of the inscribed stone now in the possession of Emory University (Atlanta) officials.

"Our chief concern is that the work of determining the authenticity of the find made by a California ink salesman on the Chowan be done by the very best archaeologists," he said.

Little Matsui, Japan's Big Gun In China, Has Been Army's "Bright Boy" 40 Years

By RELMAN MORIN (AP Foreign Service Writer) TOKYO—The little man with the biggest job in China today is General Iwane Matsui, Japan's "bright boy."

He commanded the Japanese army at Shanghai, smashed China's "Hindenburg Line," chased a demoralized enemy up the Yangtze river to Nanking, and then pierced the massive walls of the Chinese capital and took the city.

His triumphant entry was the high spot of a notable life.

Bright From The Start He became the "bright boy" of the Japanese Army 40 years ago in the Tokyo Military Academy.

He became the "bright boy" of the Japanese Army 40 years ago in the Tokyo Military Academy. His instructors were not quite sure about Matsui. They grudgingly admitted that his grades were the highest, his boots the shiniest and his solutions to strategic problems the most brilliant in the academy.

But Japan's "West Point" felt a vague uneasiness about the student who was too smart. His nimble brain juggled technical problems and performed military acrobatics with too great facility, his instructors reported.

The Japanese army likes its men to work hard for what they get, to encounter great difficulties in their preparation for future wars. Matsui never had to work hard.

Reputation Grows Forty years of soldiering on the Asiatic mainland have only added to Matsui's reputation. He was an officer in the Russo-Japanese war. He came through the terrific battle of Port Arthur without a scratch.

The next few years saw him move up the line with no better, than normal speed. Not even brilliance such as he is credited with having, can dislocate the machinery of promotion in the Japanese army.

He must guard against a "retreat from Moscow." As his lines of communication lengthen, they grow increasingly thin, increasingly susceptible to punctures.

His victories have brought only great problems. Likewise, because of the curious mechanism of Japanese politico-militarism, they probably will spell oblivion for him when he returns. The Japanese army does not believe in heroes. When a man gets too big he is shunted to some corner-pocket or retired.

Unless some new crisis appears on the continent, Japan's "bright boy" is shining for the last time. Matsui is scraggle-toothed, unhandsome, unsmiling, laconic. He is 50 years old, married but childless. He smokes the cheapest cigarettes obtainable and is interested in only two things, a mongrel dog he brought back from Paris—and the China problem.

Shining For Last Time He must decide how deep to penetrate the interior, how far to chase the quicksilver-like Chinese army. He must guard against a "retreat from Moscow." As his lines of communication lengthen, they grow increasingly thin, increasingly susceptible to punctures.

Matsui was a staff officer in the Japanese Expeditionary Forces during the Siberian adventure, after the World War. Then he campaigned in Manchuria and Mongolia. The years passed and he reached the Supreme War Council, was a delegate to the Geneva Arms conference in 1931.

The outbreak of this current "incident" was Matsui's big moment. China His Hobby For more than ten years, he had been one of the leading formulators of Japan's China policy. He has been the backstage director of that policy ever since the Tanaka Ministry in 1927. Japanese say he knows more about China, from a military, political and even a geographical standpoint, than any living man.

China has been his hobby for decades. It is one of the paradoxes of the present campaign that Matsui has been a close friend of China's Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek for years. They met, when Chiang was a young student, entered military college in Japan. That friendship has been continued through the years, the two men meeting occasionally with almost fraternal affection.

Matsui is known as an expert in the intricate, treacherous game of Chinese politics. Thus, his knowing direction was seen behind the "victorial parade" of the Japanese troops through the International Settlement in Shanghai.

This Japanese claim, caused Shanghai's white government to "face" no end with the Chinese masses.

Matsui's biggest job lies ahead. He is confronted with a hostile government, a citizenry of uncertain sentiments, an effective military force—and the whole Chinese countryside.

CHECK NO. ONE IS DELIVERED

Unemployed Asheville Man Prefers Work to Benefits Raleigh, Feb. 1.—Ed Hull, of Asheville, received check No. 1 issued by the North Carolina Unemployment Compensation Commission, and delivered to him today, the first day on which checks to eligible unemployed workers were distributed.

"I want my regular job back," said Hull, full name Cleo Edward Hull, as he fingered the rabbit's foot in his pocket, while he and Charman Charles G. Powell posed for a picture, of the check delivery in the State Unemployment Compensation Commission office in Raleigh. Yes, Ed carries the right hind foot of a rabbit regularly, and, as it happened, he got a new one about a week ago. "I carry one most of the time, especially when I'm bothered," he explained.

Ed Hull, 25, is a furniture finisher and was engaged in finishing chairs. He had done such work outside his own account, and worked that way during the first quarter of 1937. In the second and third quarters he had worked for the company most of the time, and was laid off 13 December. His weekly wage was $12 when he worked regularly and he had made an average of $10 a week, so his first check for a week was half that amount, $5.

A typical furniture worker, Hull was born in Guilford county, near Kernersville. His father, R. H. Hull, moved to Martinsville, Va., where Ed's mother died when he was three years of age. Later they moved to Lynchburg, Va., where Ed attended school, reaching the fourth grade, which was the extent of his schooling. The family then moved to Winston-Salem, where he remained for about 15 years. His father, who remarried, is now an invalid, living at 717 Goldfoss St., Winston-Salem. One brother, J. D. Hull, is married and lives in the same city. Another brother, B. W. Hull, lives with his father. His mother, before marriage, was Georgia Brannock, of Forsyth county.

Hull's wife, before marriage about two years ago, was Sara Stegall, who lived near Kernersville. They have no children. Their home is a small one, in the King Tut community, about two miles from Asheville.

"I appreciate the check, but rather have my regular job back," said Hull. He said that the plant was resuming work gradually and that he hoped to get back on the payroll soon. He did not make enough in the two quarters he worked to provide him compensation for the full maximum of 16 weeks in any benefit year.

Forest Nursery In Henderson County To Be Established

State to Acquire Title to 65-Acre Plot for Project to be Located Near Brevard Raleigh, Feb. 1.—Henderson county will get a new state forest nursery, established for the purpose of growing hardwood seedlings and other trees which need higher altitudes for their growth.

The nursery will cover about 65 acres and will be established near Brevard. State Forester J. S. Holmes of the Department of Conservation and Development said.

The state will acquire title to this land as soon as the approval of an attorney from the office of the Attorney General is secured.

Much of the work of establishing the nursery will be done by CCC enrollees from the camp near Brevard, which is close enough to the nursery site to make this easy Mr. Holmes said.

In the opinion of the State Forester it is important that North Carolina enlarge its forest nurseries in order to meet the heavy increase in demand for seedlings and forest planting stock. Plans are being made to double the output of the state nursery near Clayton so that it will produce between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 seedlings next fall as compared with this year's production of about 3,000,000 trees.

Growing demand for seedlings for reforestation purposes has been urgent in about largely by increase in the pulp wood industry and it is anticipated that it will be even heavier in the next five or ten years.

Seed has already been gathered with which to start the Brevard nursery as soon as the land has been finally secured and the bed prepared for planting. It is thought that the nursery will begin to produce transplantable seedlings within two years.

DECISIONS DUE ON WEDNESDAY

At Least 4 Of State-Wide Interest Expected

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Feb. 1.—At least four decisions of statewide interest or importance are expected to be handed down by the North Carolina Supreme Court Wednesday when it clears its calendar in preparation for beginning the regular Spring term kind next week.

The quartet of decisions eagerly awaited are (1) The "Smuck" case; (2) the High Point hydroelectric project controversy; (3) the Johnston county electrification row; and (4) the Slot Machine case brought by a Fayetteville concern in the state courts.

Naturally, there has been no hint from any of the justices with reference to these decisions and there is, of course, no way of reading the judicial minds in advance but a few generalities can be hazarded regarding the decisions.

(1) The evidence against E. L. Smuck, convicted of poisoning his daughter, was so overwhelming to the average lay man that few are willing to predict a new trial for the New Hanover man, despite the fact that his counsel, L. Clayton Grant made a masterly argument before the Supreme Court and despite the fact that the decisions in similar cases have been so conflicting as to give the court plenty of authority for any kind of finding.

(2) If the Supreme court should decide that High Point cannot issue its revenue bonds for the purpose of building a hydroelectric plant on the Yadkin, it will mark a break in the unbroken succession of defeats sustained by the Duke Power Company in its fight against governmental competition in the power field.

(3) The Johnston county lines have been completed by the Carolina Power and Light Company and any decision by the Supreme Court that it had no right to enter into the contract with the directors of the Coop would seemingly be like the famed trial of a pig in the Lewis Carroll poem "Hunting of the Shark" in which the jallor informed them in tears, that the sentence would have not the slightest effect, as the pig had been dead for some year.

(4) General opinion is that the court will find flatly against the slot machine people in their fight to avoid the Flanagan law.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Feb. 1.—(AP)—Further recovery signs appeared in today's stock market as leading issues successfully surmounted numerous profit-taking handicaps.

While activity was small throughout, it was noted the ticker tape was a trifle brisker on buying flurries than in offering periods.

United States government and high-grade corporate bonds edged higher.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

Hollywood.—The movie history lesson of the week is "Gold Is Where You Find It."

Beautifully photographed in color—this outdoor melodrama covers the fight between hydraulic miners and wheat farmers in the California of 1877. It has vigor and abundant action, a hard-hitting hero of the old school in George Brent, a dyed-in-the-wool villain in Barton MacLane, a fine gentleman who loves his land in Claude Rains, and the unscrupulous lords of big business arrayed against the simple, earthy farmers of the valley.

Most of all it has Olivia de Havilland, whose fresh beauty in the color medium will startle you. It has, for a climax, a smashing flood—brought down by our hero for no apparent reason other than to provide a smashing climax. Michael Curtiz directed.

"Paradise for Three" is one of those "surprise" pictures. Robert Young, perennial contest-winner, but unemployed, wins a soap sloop award, a vacation at an Alpine hotel. Frank Morgan, soap magnate, wins second prize, inognito, goes to the same resort. There gold-digging Mary Astor; Morgan's valet, Reginald Owen; Morgan's housekeeper, Edna Mae Oliver; his daughter, Florence Rice; and sundry others become involved in senseless doings—to no good end but light amusement. Eddie Buzzell directed.

Those old de Grissac emeralds are with us again in "Arsene Lupin Returns." Melvyn Douglas, Virginia Bruce, Warren William, John Halliday make the French burglar's return auspicious with George Fitzmaurice directing. It's a good piece of what Variety calls the "whodunit" school.

nated against cholera in 1937. The report brought out that it had been proven that pigs grow better when farrowed and kept in a clean pasture where no other hogs have been allowed to range for at least 100 years, until they weigh about 100 pounds. The advantage of a balanced ration through self feeders also were shown by demonstrations.

It also was shown that the farmers were interested in pure bred cattle, nine beef bulls and two pure

Burke's leading man.

Directed by Edwin L. Marin, the piece keeps pace with its possibilities for humor and song, projects 14-year-old Judy more prominently than before, and gives the Brice humor full opportunity. Less pretentious, less beautifully staged than "Rosalie", it's much better entertainment.

In "Happy Landing" Sonja Henie falls in love with Cesar Romero, dance band Lothario, and doesn't realize the true worth of Romero's manager, Don Ameche, until she has followed them to America.

From this lean plot germ is grown a pleasant flowering of romantic and comic incident, exciting specialties, and beautiful skating ensembles enough to please the most exacting filmisical—or Henie—fan. The net result is, I think, the best of the three Sonja films to date, if you discount the novelty appeal of "One in a Million."

Cesar Romero caricatures a Great Lover amusingly, and Ethel Meriman is the "hot and happy" gold-digger. Wally Vernon does, among other things, a "strip tease" to entertain impatient reporters about to walk out on his publicity-hungry boss. The Condos brothers, tappers extraordinary, do a "War Dance for Wooden Indians" to the sultry, scintillating music of Raymond Scott's Quintette. El Brendel is back with a Swedish specialty and Jean Hersholt. And Don Ameche, as the Real Thing, proves again he is the screen's most natural romantic leading man. Roy del Ruth directed.

He pointed out that during the three worst months of the depression the life insurance companies paid out in benefits and policy loans an average of $8,000,000 daily, which meant the difference between existence and utter want. He called the agents' attention that they were engaged in a profession that had a great part in making the world a better place in which to live. He told how money placed in the hands of insurance companies was continually invested and re-invested to keep the wheels of industry turning and at the present time no section of the country was enjoying a progress as was the Southeastern section of the United States and especially North Carolina.

Warren called attention to the part life insurance companies played in cushioning the depression and pointed out that North Carolina was one of the very few states that did not call a moratorium on policy loans and that North Carolina companies continued throughout the depression to meet all requests for aid from their policy holders.

He urged agents to familiarize themselves with the policies they were selling and at all times consider the needs of the policyholder instead of the commissions they received.

Various agents made short talks and round table discussions were held.
