SENATE AGAIN DEFEATS MOVE FOR GAG RULE

Refuses to Limit Debate on Anti-Lynching Bill

2D VICTORY FOR SOUTHERN BLOC

Opponents Predict Measure Soon Will be Shelved as Result of Today's Vote

Washington, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The Senate rejected today, 46 to 42, a motion for limiting debate on the anti-lynching bill.

Defeat of the motion left unchanged the status of the filibuster against the measure, now entering its 28th day.

Opponents of the bill which would provide for Federal prosecution of state officials who willfully failed to prevent lynchings, predicted it would be shelved soon as a result of the vote.

Proponents said they would continue to seek a vote on the bill itself, but Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky, indicated it might be laid aside Friday to take up the $250,000,000 emergency relief appropriation.

Senator Wagner (D-N. Y.) told the Senate shortly before the vote to restrict discussion of the bill that "a vote against cloture is bound to be regarded as a vote against the bill."

Supporters of the anti-lynching bill tried three weeks ago to invoke the rule in an effort to break the filibuster.

Replying to Wagner's plea for a favorite cloture vote, Senator Connally (D-Texas) leader of the Southern bloc, said that the "Senators from New York seeks to intimidate the Senators by saying a vote against cloture is a vote against the bill."

The House, debating an emergency $250,000,000 relief appropriation, heard Representative Cannon (D-Mo.) appropriations committee-man, say the money was needed immediately to provide employment for thousands who have been thrown out of work because of "conditions over which they have no control."

House leaders predicted passage of the relief measure by nightfall.

Before the House met, its Military Committee approved bills to re-establish an army reserve of 75,000 enlisted men and to increase the authorized number of regular army officers to 14,659.

Old-Age Insurance Claims Averaging At Least 12 Slain 20 Daily in N. C. In Bloody Rioting

Applications for Lump-Sum Payments Certified During January At Rate of 29.2 Per Day

Claims for lump-sum payments under the old-age insurance plan of the Social Security Act were certified during January at the rate of 29.2 per working days in North Carolina, George M. Adams, manager of the Rocky Mount field office of the Social Security Board, announced this week.

During January, a total of $10,871.47 was certified for payment to 524 claimants—workers who reached the age of 65 and the estates of workers who died. The average amount of each payment was $20.75, a very appreciable increase over the average claim paid six months ago.

Throughout the country during January a total of $745,691 was certified for payment to 23,538 claimants. The average amount of each claim was $31.68, or almost double the average of $17 for all claims paid up to the end of last August.

Pennsylvania with 2,929 headed the list in number of claims certified, but the greatest amount of money went to New York where $97,175 was distributed among 2,768 claimants. The State with the highest average—$39.24—was New Jersey, where 1,144 claims were certified.

The largest claim that has been certified went to an employee who reached the age of 65. He received a lump-sum payment of $525. The largest death claim certified was for $420.

Since the Government's old-age insurance plan went into effect, on January 1, 1937, $2,023,207 has been certified for payment to 76,775 claimants. In the State of North Carolina, Mr. Adams said, a total of $28,816.71 has been certified for payment to 1,586 claimants.

A nine-year-old boy, C. E. J. Bishop, is the champion piano accordion player of Great Britain. He won the title in a London tournament, competing with more than 1,000 players.

Beal Arrives In Raleigh And Begins Prison Term

NO CHANCE FOR HOSPITAL HERE

Greenville not Included in Prescribed Area

Washington, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Veterans Administrator Frank Hines said today an engineer would visit various North Carolina cities soon to inspect possible sites for a new veterans hospital in the State.

The project was approved by the President recently. Hines said he believed the facility should be established near a city of at least 10,000 population and within 125 miles of the center of population of the area to be served.

Cities within the prescribed area which will be visited include: Charlotte, Winston-Salem, Greensboro, Durham, Raleigh, High Point, Wilmington, Rocky Mount, Gastonia, Salisbury, Goddards, Fayetteville, Wilson, Kinston, New Bern, Concord and Statesville.

Other cities, Hines said, would be inspected if it were deemed advisable.

Accompanied by Attorney and Committee Members

Raleigh, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Fred Beal, labor organizer who fled to Russia while under a 17 to 20 year prison sentence in this State, surrendered to Attorney General A. A. F. Seawell just before 2 o'clock this afternoon to begin his term.

A short time later he had been taken to State's prison.

Beal and his lawyer, George Roewer, of Boston, Mass., and three members of the non-partisan committee for the defense of Beal, saw newspaper reporters at a hotel this morning.

Roewer conferred with Attorney General A. A. F. Seawell during the morning.

Beal gave out a lengthy statement setting forth his position, saying he knew of his "complete innocence." He added he was "carrying out my steadfast desire since the days of the Gastonia trial, namely to face squarely the issues raised by my arrest and sentence, and to erase the blot on the record of the American judicial system implicit in my conviction."

Beal and six others were sentenced to prison in the slaying of Chief of Police O. F. Aderholt of Gastonia during a textile strike riot in 1929. The defendants fled to Russia, forfeiting bonds posted while their case was on appeal.

Recently a newspaper interview with Kelly Hendrix, who returned from Russia and served his term, said Beal visited Hendrix at State's prison here, but Beal denied this.

WEST HELD BY WINTRY BLAST

Denver, Col., Feb. 16.—(AP)—Death dealing cold gripped the Rockies, snow and sleet lay over much of the Great Plains area, and Oklahoma streams ran at flood stage today as a long delayed blast of winter whipped southward out of Western Canada.

Cut off by snowdrifts 20 feet high, 400 residents of the Lake Tahoe district in California faced an acute food shortage.

Carl Behtold, proprietor of Tahoe Inn, appealed to the state for aid. He said an airplane "was about the only means of bringing food in."

Residents of Glennbrook killed a horse to provide meat Behtold said.

Montana and Nebraska reported deaths by freezing and icy highways were blamed for deaths in Colorado and Kansas. Two to six inches of snow covered Colorado and Wyoming.

The abrupt change of weather reached from the Mississippi river to Utah.

There are about 18,000 British ex-service men between 40 and 60 who are chronically ill and compelled to apply for public assistance; and 25,000 under treatment in municipal hospitals.

Four Cases Heard In Mayor's Court

The following cases were tried in City police court this morning:

Eddie Moye, Negro, violation of traffic regulations, taxed with costs of court.

Rosebelle Hamilton, Negro, destroying personal property, dismissed and prosecuting witness, James Battle, taxed with court costs.

Daniel Earl, Negro, disorderly conduct and assault, pay costs.

David Lee Clark, William Joyner Dye and Louis Morris, Negroes, larceny, bound over to County court under bond of $200 each.

Out of The Daily Reflector "Cash Offer" campaign, members now rushing toward the home stretch will emerge a number of persons to whom victory will mean the accomplishment of one of the big aims in life—victory, honor and a big reward. Who the happy ones will be, no one knows; but the candidates are hurling themselves into the opportunity offered by the Extra Cash Prize offered this week to gain a lead which will mean supremacy.

Thousands of interested and enthusiastic spectators are watching the combat, and lending a hand to favorites wherever possible. The last few weeks have absorbed the attention of men and women everywhere in this part of the State, and made the present race the greatest campaign for circulation this section has ever witnessed.

In the rush and torrent of the remaining periods, one is apt to overlook this fact and it will cause disappointment later. Members are urged to make an active survey of their field so that every possible source of votes will be looked after. To let failure overtake one at this stage of the game would be to relinquish the most attractive opportunity one ever had to make big money in such a short time.

What are a few days' diligent effort compared to the weeks, months and years of comfort and pleasure that one of these awards will bring? As the matter now stands the race is remarkably close among many. That is why the last few weeks are so important, as they enable members to win the biggest honors if full advantage is taken of every possible moment.

Extra Cash Great interest is being shown in the ADDED EXTRA CASH PRIZE. The keenest rivalry is indicated and the campaign department advised (Continued on Page Six)

AUSTRIA FREES TWO THOUSAND NAZI CONVICTS

Release One of First Moves Under Reorganized Regime

AUSTRIA SEEN BY SOME AS PUPPET

Hitler and Mussolini Real Power Behind Sweeping Governmental Changes

Vienna, Austria, Feb. 16.—(AP)—More than 2,000 amnestied Nazi convicts began leaving Austrian prisons and concentration camps today as a reorganized cabinet with Nazi influence in a powerful role assumed control of the republic's destinies.

Their release was one of the first results of the sweeping governmental changes brought by Chancellor Schuschnigg at the behest of the leaders of Austria's powerful Northern and Southern neighbors, Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

Some circles spoke of Austria as the puppet of the two leaders as the new cabinet, containing a close friend of Hitler, two men avowedly friendly to Germany and two Nationalists came into power.

The changes resulted from Saturday's meeting of the German and Austrian Chancellors and the advice of the Italian Premier.

By these changes Austria was represented as having bought "internal peace and amity abroad"—the approval and support of two powerful neighbors, and promises of new guarantees of her independence.

The five years of strife, terrorism, propaganda and sabotage for which the amnestied Nazis had been sentenced were considered at an end, with these offenses excused overnight and new peace between Austrian factions in prospect.

Most striking development was the admission into the cabinet of Hitler's personal friend, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, pro-Nazi Nationalist, as Minister of the Interior with jurisdiction over the police.

Regulations for more complete control of the press were promised.

Six Army Bombers Poised For Flight

Miami, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Six of the army's mightiest war planes—four four-motored "flying fortresses"—were poised today for a non-stop flight of 3,132 miles to Lima, Peru.

The planes, en route from Langley Field to Buenos Aires for inauguration Monday of President Roberto Ortiz of Argentina, were scheduled to take off at midnight.

From Lima, the huge bombers, carrying 50 officers and men, will try another non-stop flight, the remaining 2,552 miles to Buenos Aires.

ABC Law Enforcement Activities Are Revealed

Report Shows Cost Of Work Carried On in County

A report on the law enforcement activities of the Pitt County ABC board and the cost for the period July 1-December 31, 1937, was released today by Charles O'H. Horne, chairman, showing expenditures of $6,096.83 out of an available fund of $18,529.92.

A balance of $2,139.14 out of funds set aside for law enforcement was left on hand July 1. Added to this sum was $16,390.78 reserved during the six months period making the total of $18,529.92.

The sum of $2,150.47 was expended for salaries and expenses of the regular officers and for awards. Attorneys fees for special prosecution cost the board $600 during the six months. Up to January 1 the board had paid from the money reserved for law enforcement activities the National Bureau of Investigation $3,200 Bond premiums amounting to $146.16 making a total of $6,096.83 and leaving a balance of $12,433.09 in the special fund on January 1, 1938.

Results of J. M. Ward and J. L. Taylor, special ABC law enforcement officers, as reported by them for the six months, follow:

Arrests, 29; convictions, 19; cases pending, six; fines in County court, $165; fines in Federal court, $1,200; sentences passed, five years and six months; stills captured, 42; beer destroyed, 89,000 gallons, equivalent to 7,418 gallons of whiskey; whiskey destroyed at stills and during

Under a state law the county deducts 20 per cent for law enforcement activities, which in this case amounts to $16,390.78, leaving a net profit before deduction of sales tax of $65,563.12.

The state collected 7 per cent tax on gross sales or 30.44 per cent of the net profit, $19,958.89, leaving a profit to the county after all deductions, of $45,604.23, or 15.95 per cent of the total sales.

Fourth Effort By Japanese Soldiers Enter Settlement

Incident Comes As Marine Officers And Nippon Authorities Seek to Settle Issue of Authority in Area; Conquest Continued Along Corridor

Shanghai, Feb. 16.—(AP)—United States Marines turned back for the fourth time today an armed Japanese patrol of 13 men trying to enter the American defense sector of Shanghai's International Settlement.

The incident came as marine officers and Japanese authorities conferred in an attempt to settle amicably the issue of authority in the settlement.

The Americans maintained they were capable of patrolling the area without Japanese help. The Japanese said their patrols were sent to the sector to supervise Japanese who entered it "informally."

Stricter Japanese control of Shanghai in another direction was seen in a disclosure by A. M. Chaplain, postoffice director general that he had been notified that Japanese censors would move in on the postoffice "in the near future."

While these questions came to a head in Shanghai Japanese troops on the vast Lungshai corridor battled to establish a base for crossing the Yellow river in the drive to sever the Lungshai railway and threaten Hankow, China's temporary capital.

Japanese airplanes and artillery backed up ground forces fighting against stiff Chinese resistance at Fengchu on the river's Northern banks opposite Kalseng.

Capture of Kalseng would cut off the main route of retreat Westward for the 400,000 Chinese troops defending the corridor.

Savings Accounts Down In Spite Of Recent Increases

Per Capita Average of $28 in North Carolina Compares With National Figure of $31

Raeford, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Despite the fact that savings bank deposits increased nearly two and a half million dollars in North Carolina last year, the state's per capita deposits of all kinds are still low, comparatively speaking, that only two others in the Union are lower.

On June 30, 1937, according to figures compiled by the American Bankers Association savings deposits in North Carolina averaged $28 per capita, which left only Arkansas, with $22, and South Carolina, with $17, lower in the list.

The national average reached $191 per capita, while Massachusetts showed the highest figure of any state, $583, with New York's $565 taking second place.

Asked if he could give any explanation of the very low figure for North Carolina, Banking Commissioner Gurney P. Hood confessed himself stumped.

"I know we're a richer state than many—in fact most—others in the South, and why North Carolina saving bank deposits should rank so low, I can't say. Maybe our people just haven't got the habit of using this form of savings."

He suggested that perhaps some of the difference, at least is due

Hoey To Hold No Debate With Beal

Raleigh, Feb. 16.—Governor Clyde R. Hoey hasn't the slightest intention of engaging in any "debate" with Fred Beal, the one-time labor leader convicted of conspiracy to murder Gastonia's Police Chief O. F. Aderholt several years ago.

This was made plain today by Robert L. Thompson, private secretary to the governor, in commenting on news reports that Beal, who is due to surrender to North Carolina authorities today would "read a statement to North Carolina's governor at a conference" which he believed was arranged before he left.

As far as the Governor is concerned Fred Beal is just another prisoner being returned to North Carolina," Thompson said. "If his counsel has anything to say, the governor will gladly hear it, just like he would hear a lawyer for any prisoner."

Beal, according to press reports, is on his way here to begin service of a 17 to 20 year sentence for his participation in the killing of Aderholt.

Announcement of the agreement was withheld from the press in order "not to embarrass Beal's counsel" according to Mr. Seawell. It was feared that publication of the report would have led to increased agitation of the case by radical elements opposing Beal's return to North Carolina.

Four Killed When Saw Mill Explodes

Meeks, Ga., Feb. 16.—(AP)—A man and three boys were killed today by the explosion of a saw mill boiler.

The dead were Remus Hutcherson, 50; A. J. Watkins, 14; and two young sons of Mrs. George Odum. Their first names were not ascertained immediately.

John Matthews was slightly hurt by falling debris, and Linton Hutchinson and Grover W. "ins escaped injury, although they were near the boiler at the time it burst.

Hutchinson, owner of the mill and former county school superintendent, said he and Grover Watkins were standing within three feet of Hatcher when the latter was killed, almost instantly and he could not explain how they escaped.

A. J. Watkins' torn body was hurled more than 40 feet into a wire fence, but he survived until he reached a hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Peel announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, to Mr. Henry Marvin Gardner on Saturday, February twelfth between hundred and thirty-eight.

At Home.
Greenville, N. C.

Mr. Frank Wilson Honored.
On Monday night, February 14th, Mrs. Frank Wilson was entertained a surprise birthday party by Miss Wilson at the former's home on fifth street. About ten neighboring close friends gathered to wish Mrs. Wilson a happy birthday and extend their personal greetings.

Lovely red roses and sweet peas gave a festive air to the home. During the evening bingo was played and Mrs. W. L. Bell read a poem specially written for the occasion. Delicious ices were served the guests. Mrs. Wilson was remembered with many lovely gifts.

Athenium Club Meets.
Mrs. J. J. Perkins was hostess to the Athenium Club yesterday afternoon at her home on Fourth street. After a brief business session orales presented to the speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. J. H. Rose, who began her presentation of the "Lost Colony" by speaking briefly of the greatness of Paul Green as a play writer.

In a most interesting way she then gave a resume of one of the most powerful Paul Green's plays, asking us to live anew the trials and hardships of the founders of our country. The speaker had seen the play as presented on Roanoke Island, and in her review was able to add interesting touches other than her own interpretation.

When the program was concluded, Mrs. Perkins then invited us into the dining room. From the beautifully decorated table we were served a delicious sea food dinner. She was assisted in serving by her mother, Mrs. Hannah Richardson, and Mrs. Grace Warren. Miss Jesse Moye, Madames Richardson and Warren were guests of the club.—Reported.

Speaks To Inter Se Club.
Miss Kate Lewis, head of the Art Department of East Carolina Teachers College, was the guest speaker yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Inter Se Book Club, at the home of Mrs. J. H. Blount, where Mrs. B. H. Staniel was hostess.

The setting for the club meeting was lovely, the room being decorated with artistically arranged hawthorne and other seasonal flowers.

Guests for the afternoon were Miss Lewis, Miss Sue Barrett and Miss Laura Foley.

Following the opening formalities and welcoming of guests by Mrs. W. T. Tait, club president, Mrs. Wyatt Brown presented Miss Lewis who gave a comprehensive talk on "The Origin of Art."

Miss Lewis stated that art had its birth on the Western continent and grew out of man's desire for beauty and for the things which he needed.

She discussed the art of the Aurognacian Age, the Solutrian Age and the Magdalenian Age.

Information regarding art of these periods has been obtained in recent years by the opening of caves where material has been gathered from their most inaccessible parts.

Artists of the Aurognacian Age carved and then painted, using very few lines and only two colors, red and black.

Working exclusively in outline form they featured realistically animal life and attempted to show it in motion.

The Solutrian Age contributed to art by the Magdalenian Age, as much advancement over earlier times in both technique and material work along with beautiful household utensils and ornaments.

The work of the artists of these periods, which was done in limestone, soapstone, slate and bone, was kept beautifully.

Very little sculpture has been accredited to early artists but some of the pieces which have been found are of a close resemblance to modernistic art.

Miss Lewis passed pictures illustrating her lecture.

At the close of the program the usual business meeting was conducted during which Mrs. Wyatt Brown asked the club members to please send your new spring things early and send your old things to the Thrift Shop.

At the close of the meeting the guests served a frozen salad course while the club participated in a happy social hour.—Reported.

'The Queen's Husband.'
The American Repertory Theatre, the cast of experienced players, directors, managers and scenic artists, which will present "The Queen's Husband," at the college tomorrow night, carries four plays on its first tour.

"The Devil Passes By," by Ben W. Levy, is a deeply serious play. Sheridan's old favorite "The School for Scandal," is a third play in their repertory. And a play for children "The Emperor's New Clothes," is their fourth.

The company has been asked to give the comedy "The Queen's Husband" here because of its light, amusing satire and its reputation of being a play that pleases all audiences.

End of the Century Club Meets.
The End of the Century Club was delightfully entertained on Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. F. C. Harding at her home on Harding street. Mrs. James S. Ficklen, the president, conducted a brief business session.

Mrs. O. A. White, chairman of the program committee, graciously presented Dr. A. D. Frank, who had selected for his discussion Adolf Hitler, the one man who has the world on edge awaiting his speech Sunday.

Although it is considered almost impossible to obtain a good biography of a living man, Dr. Frank's biography of Hitler was most enlightening, forceful and interesting. Beginning with his humble origin as the son of an illegitimate without a name, the name Hitler having been adopted, he told of the many incidents in his life that developed him into the leader he now is.

It was while living for three years on charity in a hostel that he learned to argue on every subject and learned to hate the Jews. There it became an obsession with him to unite all Germany under one head. His chosen professions were art and architecture and he made something of a living selling his pictures and plans until the war came. He was the only person who openly welcomed the war and he made a splendid soldier. He was decorated for bravery, although he only reached the rank of corporal. At the close of the war, realizing that authority lay in the dust for anyone who could pick it up, he entered politics, chose his program and chose the people to help carry out his program, appealing to the lower officials and enlisted men of the army, to the monarchies and intelligent men of the middle class and to the industrialists. He based everything on military discipline, because he said "People want to be told what to do." So what could any expect, except that such a man, in spite of the ruthlessness of his achievements, should be made Chancellor of Germany.

His ruthlessness has been so recently displayed in the killing of many who were not in accord with his program and the smug benevolence of himself head of the army because of dissatisfaction there, and so today we have the dual personality of Hitler the dictatorial leader and Hitler the shy, reserved man.

The hostess, assisted by Misses Mary and Eliza Harding and Mrs. Worth Wicker, served a most delicious salad course.—Reported.

MODES of the MOMENT

by Adelaide Kerr

SPRING PREVIEW—There's a hint of spring styles in this three-piece suit for southern wear. Its material—deep blue, muted green and white wool tweed—reflects the spring vogue for color. Its design links a jacket, skirt and topcoat.

Scouts Advance.

Several Boy Scouts of the Greenville district were honored for their advancement in Scouting at the Court of Honor on Sunday night.

Scouts moving one step higher up the ladder of Scouting were: Heber Adams—Athletic merit badge and life rank, is the next to last rank to Scouting and Heber expects to get the Eagle badge some time in the summer.

Leon Smith—Star rank, which is only two steps from the highest rank.

Percy Wells—Woodwork merit badge.

Milton Beland—Pioneering.

Bill Lee—Second class.

Billie Hardison from Troop 48 at Stokes, one merit badge, and Charles Worthington, three merit badges.

These boys are to be congratulated for their interest and work. They certainly have a good start in the advancement contest, the prize for which is a free camping trip for a week.

The Chatham Club.

"No state in America owes more to its women than does North Carolina," said Mrs. Luther Bowling in a paper before the Chatham Club Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Bowling's discussion was centered around the subject "Interesting Women of North Carolina." Electing to view the fine social, political, and educational contributions to the state by its famous daughters through the activities of two personalities, she chose Mrs. Cordelia Phillips Spencer and Mrs. Sallie Southall Cotton. Following the courses of the lives of these two outstanding Southern ladies, Mrs. Bowling indicated quite clearly that they were ever active and energetic; in the cause of the State's advancement. Education, woman's political emancipation, and improved social and economic conditions have been the fields of their greatest service. And the State, now and in the future, owes to these genuine leaders a debt of lasting gratitude.

The club met with Mrs. Durwood Tucker. Deviating from the usual practice of an afternoon meeting, Mrs. Tucker assembled the club for a one o'clock luncheon. The luncheon was typically Southern in its preparation and service. The decoration motif was Washington's birthday, featured by a hallowed section of cherry tree bearing the American flag and adorned with a cherry. The guests of the club were Mrs. J. B. Kuttrell and Mrs. Burnett. Mrs. H. G. Clayton, the vice-president, presided.—Presided.

Clio Book Club Meets.

Miss Agnes Fullilove was hostess to members of her book club Tuesday afternoon at the home of her sister, Mrs. Dink James, on Ninth street. Yellow jonquills throughout the home made a lovely setting for the occasion.

Mrs. Jack Spain, president, presided over the business meeting. Following the business meeting, Mrs. James Johnston, gave a most interesting paper on the life, personality and writings of Willa Cather. At the age of six, Miss Cather moved from Winchester, Virginia, to Nebraska, where she found no traditions, no established customs and an alien race, just beginning to make history. Instead of attending school, she visited the Bohemians, Danes, Norwegians and Russians, and learned to love them all. At night she learned English classics by reading them aloud to her grandmothers. In a small high school in Red Cloud she received her first formal education. She attended the University of Nebraska and there began just writing with a college paper on the life and characteristics of these people. After finishing the university, she came East to teach and continued to write of these people.

The next six years, she was assistant editor of McClure's Magazine.

She resigned this position and devoted all of her time to writing.

Of the fifteen full length novels that Willa Cather has written so far, "The Lost Lady" and "Death Comes to the Archbishop," are the two she likes best. Sinclair Lewis says that Willa Cather, in his opinion, is the greatest living author and that "to all women's clubs I recommend as an exciting, optimism-generating study the drama of this woman, who has for thirty-five years gone on creating beauty and has vigorously not attended literary dinners to such awe-inspiring foreign geniuses. Willa Cather has greatly pictured the great life."

Current topics, with Mrs. William Bost as leader, were given and discussed by the members.

Miss Fullilove, assisted by Mrs. James and Mrs. Fred Haar, served a delectable salad course.

The club was delighted to have present Mrs. William Bost and Mrs. G. B. Starling, Jr., members who have been out of town for some time.—Reported.

Meeting Of Round Table.
On Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. T. G. Basnight was hostess to the members of the Round Table and several guests at her home in Stokes.

The regular club program was carried on, presided over by Mrs. S. J. Everett, and a mastery paper on "The Coming South" was read by Mrs. Herbert ReBarker.

We were told that the South is now holding the spotlight of the world, and some of our great resources were enumerated.

First, the personality of our people, rich in ideals and individuality, fostered by conditions of climate and purity of Anglo Saxon race.

Always an agricultural country, the South has added many industries, some of which have become the largest of their kind in the world. Rapid progress in education, sports and literature were noted, especially since 1900, and some of the many Southern holding positions of authority and trust in national and diplomatic positions were named.

For the current event, Mrs. Milton White read a graphic description of the last run of Engineer Charles R. Bush, who on the eve of his retirement at the age of 70, brought "The Constitutional," running from New York to Washington "in on time." In spite of what seemed like insurmountable difficulties.

The gracious hospitality of our hostess, the fragrance of spring flowers, and the abundance of the delicious repast, all combined to make this meeting an outstanding event of our club year. Special guests of the afternoon were Mrs. J. B. Congleton of Stokes, Mrs. W. C. Harris, Mrs. T. N. Ennett, Miss Lella Higgs and Mrs. H. H. Duncan of Greenville.

Assisting the hostess serve refreshments were Mrs. Ethel Clark, Mrs. T. O. Basnight, Jr., and Miss Dorothy Robinson of Stokes.—Reported.

Dr. ReBarker Speaks To Assembly.
The joint inauguration at Nashville, Tennessee, on February 4 and 5, of the new president of George Peabody College for Teachers and the new chancellor of Vanderbilt, was the theme of a talk at the college assembly on Tuesday by Dr. Herbert ReBarker, the official delegate of East Carolina Teachers College at the double inauguration.

The speaker described the colorful professional, and told a little of the various features of the program, but he gave most of his time to pointing out the significant aspects of the occasion.

First, it was significant in general because it was the first time in the history of American education that two college presidents have been inducted into office jointly.

Then, it was significant for East Carolina Teachers College, because the college and the town together

Battleship Maine Reported Blown Up.

Early this morning The Reflector received the following special bulletin:

"The United States Battleship Maine was blown all to pieces by a Spanish torpedo boat last night, 102 of the crew reported killed."

Inquiries were made by wire as to the correctness of the report and it was said to have come through reliable channels.

Later: Just before going to press the report was confirmed but no definite particulars given except that the killed and wounded of the Maine's crew was about 40.

Wires Down
There was a heavy windstorm Tuesday night reaching almost the velocity of a cyclone. It seems to have extended over much of the state, especially along the coast regions. The telegraph wires are demolished and market reports and messages have been badly interrupted.

Peabody College. The speaker pointed out, is unique in that it is the only such private institution devoted solely to training teachers, and particularly to graduate work in teacher training.

George Peabody College and Vanderbilt, in the cooperative program they have mapped out for themselves, have a great future before them, declared the speaker in conclusion.

Greenies Again Lose To Durham Quint

HIGHS DOWNED BY 31-18 SCORE

Eight Fights Scheduled At College Meet Tonight

Phantoms Fight, However, To The Very Last

By BAXTER CLARK

In one of the most thrilling games ever played in the Greenville high school gym, the Phantoms were beaten by a taller aggregation from the Durham high school last night school last night. The final score stood 31-18.

The Greenville boys were fighting until the final whistle blew and Durham realized they had met a good ball team. Due to superior height, the Bulldogs pulled away from the local "midgets" in the third and last quarters. Durham's height was checked well until the Phantoms became tucked out from fighting to get the ball from the giants over them.

Bobbie Gantt started the scoring of the evening by tipping in a follow-up shot over the heads of the "midgets" in the first minute of play. John Lautares scored a few moments later to tie things up to two all. Fred Moore made good two foul throws to give Durham a 4-2 lead. Ruben Whitfield scored for Durham on a crisp shot. Cedric Loftis scored on a gratis shot to give Durham an 8-2 advantage. Dabose Simpson made a charity toss good. This ended the first period. Score 8-3 in favor of the visitors at this time.

Cedric Loftis added three points to Durham's score with a field goal and free toss. Howard Hodges added 3 points to the local's score to make the score 11-6. He duplicated his field goal feat a few minutes later. Bobbie Gantt and Garland Loftis a substitute added two field goals just before the half ended. Score 14-8 with the Durham team leading the lead.

The Phantoms came back after the half and tied the score before Durham could make a point. Dabose Simpson sank two field goals and George Sakas scored on a gratis shot by the time at 14 all. Moore made good two free shots and C. Loftis made one charity toss good to give the Bulldogs a 3 point advantage. Gantt scored a goal and Simpson quickly followed this with a two pointer for the locals. Durham led 19-16. Moore increased Durham's lead two points just before the third period ended. Score 21-16 with the Bulldogs still out in front.

Durham really got hot in the first period. With the Loftis brothers scoring two field goals each and Horace McKinney making one, the Durham boys added 10 points to their score while they held the local "midgets" to only one goal, which was made by Tom Parrish on a 12 1/2 "pot" shot. Final score, 31-18, and the Phantoms were defeated.

Greenville, Feb. 16 — Sherwood Eddy, internationally known lecturer and traveler, will give two lectures at Woman's College Thursday, February 17, on conditions in Spain and the Orient. Mr. Eddy's first lecture, on Spain, will be in Student's Building auditorium, at one o'clock and the second in Curry Building auditorium at 7:30 p. m., on China and Japan.

Greenville sports fans will have the opportunity to see the introduction of college boxing in Eastern North Carolina tonight when the E. C. T. C. Leather-slingers open their home schedule with the Atlantic Christian College team, in Wright Gymnasium at 8:30.

Eight fights are on the schedule and the fans will see action as it can only be seen in the collegiate boxing game. The collegians pull no punches nor do they drag along awaiting a decision, but go in to do their work in the quickest manner possible.

Billy Daniels will open the match by scrapping A. C. C.'s 115 pound boxer. The second fight will find Jack Daniels scrapping for the 125 pound honors. In the third scrap Everett Perkins will tangle leather with Lewis A. C. C. The 145 pound division will find David Breece, diminutive football and fistic star scrapping Brant in what promises to be a thriller. Carl Langley will fight in the 155 pound class. Joe Williams, local scrapper, and one of the most dependable scrappers on the Pirate squad will fight in the 165 pound division, with Kenneth Quirell, solid Yankee football tackle and one of the toughest lads on the team representing the locals in the 175 class. In lieu of a heavy weight man the A. C. C. coach has agreed to add an additional man in the 145 pound division and the fans will have an opportunity to see George Djioavandis tangle with Marley in a scrap that will see good old-fashioned slugging forming the basis of the action. Djioavandis makes no effort at defense but stays in there and mixes punches with the best of them.

Joe Alexander, E. C. T. C. Athletic Director, and James Johnson, senior boxing coach are to be congratulated on their efforts to broaden the college athletic program and upon the showing their charges have made in the various sports. The coming high school boxing tournament on March 9, 10 and 11 together with the introduction of boxing at the college will add much to sports interest in Greenville.

Fives to Clash Tonight In High School Auditorium

The Junior High teams of Greenville and Wilson will clash tonight in the high school auditorium at 7:30 in the second contest of the year.

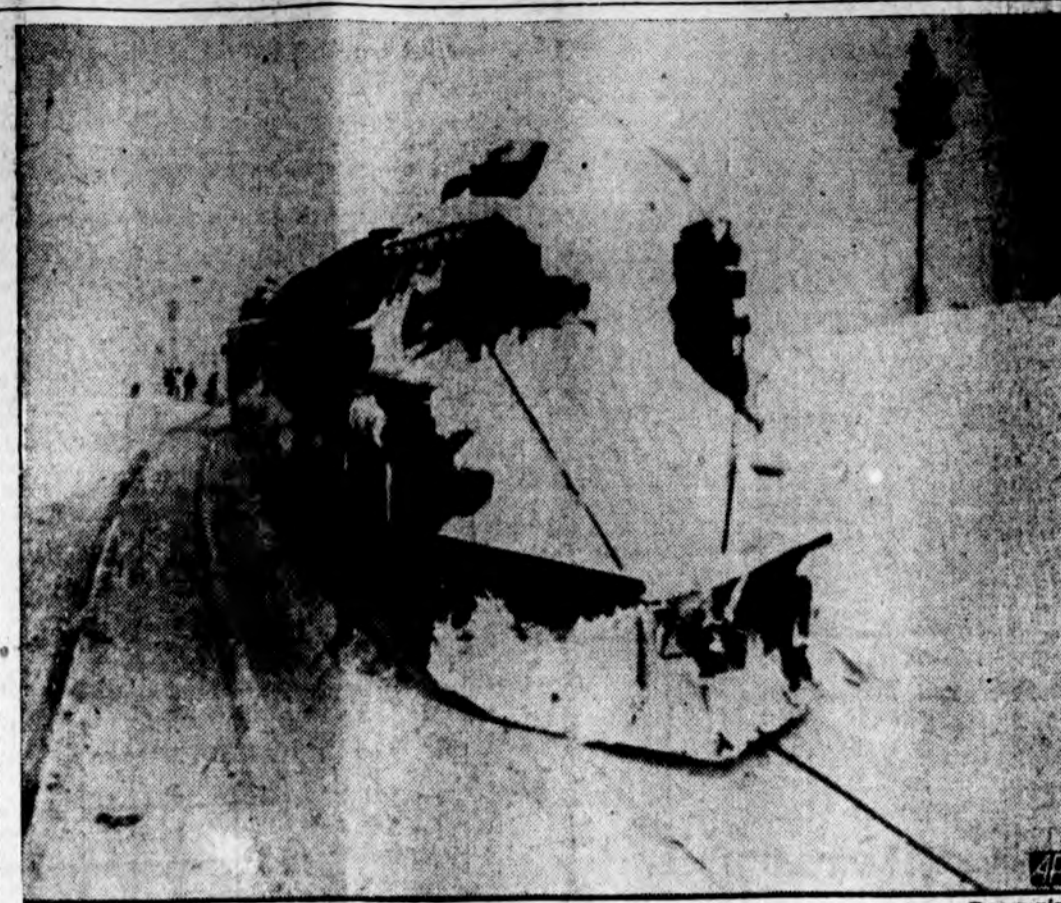

The local Juniors have played three games this year with other schools. They were beaten in their first contest of the year by the Wilson lads by a score of 23-21. They beat Washington decisively by a score of 50-10. Durham defeated them later in their first home game of the season. The locals hope to return to the win column in tonight's contest. They have shown great improvement since their first contest with Wilson and will attempt to turn the tables on them tonight. Coach Daily has been sending his boys through stiff workouts this week and he is optimistic over tonight's contest.

ETIQUETTE

By JOAN DURHAM (AP Feature Service Writer)
Look for the best in a person—when you're writing a letter of recommendation for him.
Remember, the job may depend on what you write.
Analyze the person about whom you are writing and say as many favorable things as you can. If you can't cite virtues, don't point out the fact that they're missing and then bend over backwards trying to find excuses.
Short And To The Point
And make your letters short but to the point.
Most employers want to check on these six qualities in applicants:

honesty, sobriety, capability, intelligence, initiative and ability to work.
Many also want to know why a prospective employe left his last job. If cutting down the staff, for instance, was the cause of dismissal—and not a weakness in character or ability—be sure to make that plain. Otherwise your omission will be taken as deliberate.
Don't Be Prejudiced
If you know the type of job the applicant is after, play up traits the applicant has that would fit him for the job.
Don't let prejudice enter your appraisal, someone who is personally disliked by you and your associates may enter another group and feel much more at home.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Feb. 16.—For several years North Carolina has had just one Republican district solicitor, Joan P. Jones of the Seventeenth.

While the Democrats have been able to keep the Republicans from electing any judges by placing all Superior Court judges on the statewide ballot—they have never quite been able to gerrymander the opposition out of one solicitorship.

Here's a man who really has some thing worth considering. In a letter to the editor in the Raleigh morning paper he suggests that the state take over operation of slot machines, just as it has allowed the counties to go into the business of selling liquor.

Inasmuch as it seems the suckers are dead set and determined on giving away their money by playing it in the one-armed bandits, it seems it would be a good idea to let the state get it in lieu of some of the many forms of taxes it now imposes.

Most of us are inclined to look upon the maps we see as being more than ordinarily accurate, but try this.

Get four or five maps and see the different sizes, shapes and locations given to Knapp's Island, up near the Virginia line. Your correspondent tried it on four—two put out by oil companies, one by the Highway Department and the other by those eminent map makers, Rand McNally.

Making the rounds of various departments Tuesday, your correspondent was reminded of the old rhyme about "one flew east, one flew west and one flew over the cuckoo's nest."

Commissioner of Labor A. L. Fletcher had gone to New Orleans to a labor officials conference; Parole Commissioner Edwin Gill had gone to Washington to see about his eyes; Governor Clyde R. Hoey was preparing to go to Durham to make a speech.

There are points in Caswell county where North Carolina farmers wishing to go to other points in their own county and state, not more than a mile or two away, as the crow flies, have to travel from ten to twenty miles in Virginia to get there.

It's all because of the Dan river which dips down across the border copping a little block of Caswell off from the rest. As there is no bridge across the river in the immediate vicinity, the farmers have to make the long detour through Virginia to get on the other side.

J. M. Grainger, engineer for the State Rural Electrification Authority, had a little chameleon in a bottle on his desk Tuesday. The little fellow had just shed his skin and was busy eating it up.

If and when Fred Deal actually gets to North Carolina and begins serving his sentence for conspiracy to kill Gastonia's Police Chief Aderholt, officials of the Attorney General's Department will breathe a sigh of relief. They have been confident all along they could get Deal back, but they remember that it took almost a year, seven trips to Tennessee and two appeals to the Supreme court of the United States to get Former U. S. Senator Luke Lea out of Tennessee and into State's prison after his conviction for looting.

Accident 'Scores' Are Posted In Court To Make Motorists Death Conscious

Judge Gilliam And His Courtroom Reminder (By the AP Feature Service) DENVER — Police Judge Phillip B. Gilliam hopes to "drive home a lesson in safety" in 1938 by making every person who appears before him conscious of the deaths from traffic accidents.

Packet Being Polished For Trip To Mardi Gras

Cincinnati (AP) — Darkies are scrubbing and polishing the hasty Gordon C. Greene, for come Sunday, February 20, twin black feathers will curl from her stacks, her whistle will salute the ghost of another century's crack packets, and her big stern wheel will push her down the great inland waterway.

She'll be bound for New Orleans and the Mardi Gras, with nearly 200 persons on a 1,500-mile trip of loafing, merrymaking to the tune of a swing band and of seeing things that Mark Twain thought would never be seen again from the hurricane deck of a packet.

Washington Daybook

Washington—While some have been confused by his policy with relation to Great Britain, Secretary of State Hull has drawn a ready distinction between "parallel" action and the "joint" action of which he sometimes has been suspected.

These distinctions have been preserved even in the informality of his daily press conferences during the course of the Chinese-Japanese conflict.

As early as last July 13 he was asked by the correspondents who crowd around the long table in his conference room whether it was this government's general attitude simply to exchange information with the British government and other governments interested in the Chinese situation.

That was a bland general outline and the correspondents pressed him to explain how such a course would operate with relation to the nine-power treaty in which major nations pledged themselves to respect the territorial integrity of China. He replied that in dealing with some phases of an international question there is some "flexibility" to the policy when several nations find conditions and interests affecting them in common.

An Example One state department official seeking to draw a concrete illustration suggested that it might be similar to a neighborhood in which one family is found to be anti-Semitic. If three neighbors hold a preliminary conference on what to do and then move in on the neighborhood nuisance in a body with a demand that the noise be stopped, that is "joint action." Each neighbor would be somewhat obliged to assist the others in event the troublesome party started swinging fists.

But it is simply "parallel" action if each of the neighbors goes individually to protest. It is still simply "parallel" action if they meet to exchange data on what is happening without agreeing to make a united protest. It is still "parallel" action if each neighbor, after such an exchange of data, decides to write a note to the neighbor or call on him in person independently to kick about the racket. The other neighbors then are not obligated to come in if fists begin to fly.

Again And Again Repeatedly Secretary Hull has insisted that this latter procedure is as far as the United States has come in its "parallel" action with ments but we believe in co-operative effort by peaceful and practicable means in support of the principles hereinbefore stated. The principles include such items as respect for treaties, reduction of armament, maintenance of peace, and non-interference in the internal affairs of other nations. He stated that position in press conferences July 30, August 12, August 17, and August 23 and headed again December 15, three days after the Panay sinking, that we correspondents remember that it was possible for nations to act for a common purpose, even concurrently, without such action becoming "joint."

Again in the last few days, after the United States, Great Britain and France had asked Japan to let the world know the size of her armaments it was building, Secretary Hull told the Senate in a formal letter that there was no agreement or understanding with Great Britain relating to war or possibility of war; no agreement on use of the navy jointly with the British;

no agreement, expressed or implied, for the U. S. to patrol one part of the world while Britain patrolled another part. Some seem to doubt it yet, but these are the gentleman's words. How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine By Iago Goldston, M.D.

How Much Immunization? Against how many diseases should a child be immunized?

This question is common among parents of young children. The answer is comparatively simple: Children should be immunized against smallpox and diphtheria. An attempt may be made to immunize them against whooping cough and measles if it is wished or seems necessary.

The effectiveness of whooping cough vaccination isn't determined yet. Some authorities, on the basis of their experience, believe it offers some degree of, if not complete, protection. Others are skeptical. So parents should be guided by the judgment of their physician. One thing is certain—the vaccine will do no harm.

Immunization of an exposed child against measles is usually indicated if the child is under five years; if he suffers, or has just recovered from, some other serious illness; if, for any other reason, he is not in good physical condition.

Immunization against measles lasts only a short time.

When effective, it will protect the youngster only against recent exposure. If at a later date the child is again exposed to measles, he is likely to develop the disease.

The child is immunized against measles by having injected into him convalescent serum derived from the blood of a person who has recently recovered from measles, or blood taken from one of his parents. Parental blood is not as effective as convalescent serum, but it is likely to make the developed case of measles milder.

The child should be immunized against smallpox before reaching his first birthday. Shortly afterward, he may be immunized against diphtheria.

EMPIRE FOR A LADY

SYNOPSIS: Savage Dyak tribes are on the wild loose at war with the Malays on tropical Sumatran island. Christine Forrester, a young English girl, is behind the revolt, completing a plan of her dead father for Dyak freedom. Rajah Mantusen thinks my uncle, James Clyde, controls the Dyaks and offers him the governorship of Balingong. Chance and Christine have thrust on Clyde unlimited opportunity for wealth and power. His decision is what 1 (Paul Thorne) am waiting to hear.

Chapter 26

A Desperately Homesick Man

HE could handle the Dyaks— even had a certain hold upon them, through Anthony Forrester. There were ways to assuage the Malays, who wanted nothing here but the revenue to begin with. He could even see ways to save Mantusen's face. Mantusen could go back to the Sultan of Saremba with the Balingong revenue guaranteed forever by a white man—a white man as good as working for him. What greater triumph could Mantusen have taken home than that? Two more Balingongs and Mantusen would be a sultan himself!

There was something wrong with the whole thing, and my uncle knew it. But he could not find out what it was. The millions that lay in that raj—if only they could be got out—kept pulling him into it with an irresistible appeal. I could not have believed that Clyde would have been drawn in, but it seemed to me that he was being drawn in, before my eyes.

And now after dark when Lundok came aboard the Linkang once more the answer that Clyde gave him made me sure of it.

Lundok brot word of course that the terms Clyde had sent were impossible. That was to be expected—in fact had been Clyde's intention. Lundok and Clyde now had another long talk, both of them ostensibly trying to negotiate an agreement, while yet a different purpose, I thought, was in the minds of each. Clyde had come to no decision as far as I knew, and exactly what was in Lundok's mind was very hard to make out.

Only a few Malay faces have the impassivity which Mantusen's could sometimes affect. Lundok's face was livid, and expressive, and should have been readable. The thing is that a Malay has an entirely different reaction, basically, than a white man has, in any situation. His mind was as different from ours as his clothes were different from our clothes.

Lundok wore black trousers with side lacings at the calves, which made them more than skin-tight about his typically short and spindly Malay legs. His short jacket, exposing his naked stomach, was also black, but his sash was a rich purple, and from it glinted a kris hilt elaborately worked in gold. His headcloth, twisted tight and small, more like a skull cap than a turban, was of gold cloth; while his feet were bare, as is common with Malays of even the most lordly class.

Yet all these things, which seem very eccentric when you first see them, are easy to get used to. What I never could get used to, nor fully understand, was the workings of the mind behind the slanted, surface-lighted eyes.

Powwow

WE knew that Lundok was more honest than any other Malay we had yet known—and at the same time could be counted on to make any representation, whatever it would save face for either himself or Mantusen. Thus the whole powwow with Lundok was distorted by the necessary pretense that neither side was in the slightest difficulty. In fact, at times the conversation seemed based on the cracked assumption that Mantusen had us at a serious disadvantage.

In the end Clyde sent Mantusen a fresh proposition, worked out in some detail, and it was so reasonable, and on the whole so practical in its arrangement that even I was moved to the conclusion that Clyde had made up his mind and was actually trying to persuade Mantusen.

Mantusen, Clyde stipulated, was to retire to Saremba, with all honor, by an agreement which was expressly voluntary on his part and to his great advantage. A sum representing the revenue which Mantusen was accustomed to squeeze out of Balingong was to be paid him at regular intervals in the form of an annuity. An annuity to the Sultan of Saremba was also to be guaranteed.

Clyde, however, was to take over all the responsibilities of the rajahship, and was to have the full life-and-death authority of rajah of Balingong. Clyde's rajahship was to be permanent as long as he fulfilled his part of the contract. These terms were to be set down in Arabic, and sworn to by Mantusen upon the Koran; and the whole thing was to be ratified at once by the Sultan of Saremba. No revenue was going to be paid until this was done.

The rest of the agreement, though somewhat more complicated, was not to be in writing, and part of it was tacit. It had to do with how Mantusen and his people were actually to be got out of there. Mantusen himself, of course, knew that he could not haul away barge-load after barge-load of loot in full view of the rebel Dyaks. This had to be put diplomatically—Clyde was to "purchase" whatever treasure Mantusen "found it inconvenient to transport."

On the whole, the proposition was one which might well have been advantageous to Mantusen quite apart from his present extremity. It was well known that Mantusen's political fences needed repairing in Saremba, and that he was suffering great disadvantage through being immured in this distant river. The sultan, too, should be glad of the white man's guarantee.

When Lundok had paddled away across the dark water, I asked Clyde if he was not afraid that Mantusen would accept the proposition as he gave it; but my uncle refused to admit the possibility. He was, he declared, still talking for time; the reasonableness and detail of his offer was intended merely to sustain Mantusen's interest.

'No White Woman'

THEN he told me, unhappily, that he was supposed to go back aboard the Avon. He had promised Christine that if Lundok appeared again he would let her know what message he had concluded to send to Mantusen.

"I ought to be over there now, I suppose."

"You may just as well tell her," I suggested, "that you've made up your mind."

"Yes," he said slowly, "I know that. Paul, I dread that worse than anything I've run into yet."

"Dread it? But she wants you to accept!"

His words were no longer uncertain. He spoke with an entire finality. "I have to tell her that I can't do it."

I was taken unawares; I had fooled myself completely about him. "I've watched you all day," I objected, "hauling windward to a point where you could talk yourself into this thing!"

"I've looked at it from every angle I can," he admitted, "I even admit that the thing might be done. But this thing is not for me. It's too big—way too big. This isn't a job for one year, or five. It's a job that would take up the rest of a man's life."

"What if it would? If you think it would succeed, what more do you want? You'd certainly never get hold of so much money, nor power either, in any other way."

He was prowling like an unhappy tom cat, weary but unable to rest. "What can you do with money if you have to live in Balingong? Not one white man in 16 could even stay alive in it long—and no white woman!"

I stared at him; but I was remembering now what I sometimes forgot. The truth was that under all his hard-bitten vanity my uncle was, and always had been, a desperately homesick man for the island trade. His copper-bottomed constitution withstood stubbornly the tropic diseases which neither he nor anybody else could entirely escape in those seas. Malaria kept him lean, but it could not keep down his elastic energy.

And he was helped, too, by a very exceptional singleness of purpose, so direct and so constant that few people were ever able to understand him. He was said to be penurious, unprincipled, unscrupulous—none of which was true. And he was not well liked, which is unusual I think, in a man who laughed as much as my uncle.

Most people never suspected what his mainspring was. He never talked about it. But it was so simple that when once you had seen it you could notice evidences of it in many little ways every day. All that Clyde wanted from the tropics was to get out of them.

Every plan he laid, every venture he attempted, was designed with the single purpose of some day getting him back to the little Massachusetts town where he had been born.

Sometimes, in discouragement, he must have wanted to turn and go back on any terms; but that queer quirk which will not permit a certain type of man to return empty-handed would not let Clyde go home. Over and over you will find men like that, who consign themselves to some far ill-conditioned place in search of fortune, and thereafter refuse to turn back without it.

COURT RULING HAS REACTION

Validation of S. C. Truck Law to Have Effect in N. C.

Raleigh, Feb. 16.—Federal Supreme court validation of South Carolina's right to limit size and load of trucks upon its highways will have a marked reaction and effect upon many North Carolina trucking concerns, R. B. McLaughlin, director of the Motor Vehicle Division of the Department of Revenue said today.

"It means that more than half the North Carolina trucks now making trips into South Carolina will be barred," he said. "Only the smaller farm trucks will be able to operate legally in South Carolina."

The decision, he said, indicates clearly the need for uniform regulations governing motor vehicles and transportation by means of motorized vehicles.

North Carolina law will now permit a combined truck-trailer weight of 40,000 pounds, he pointed out, while South Carolina limits the gross weight to 20,000 pounds, whether in one vehicle or in a combination of truck and trailer.

"If the various states keep on making widely differing regulations," said Mr. McLaughlin, "A man starting on a truck trip which is to take him through seven different states, for instance, is likely to find himself in jail seven times—that is if he gets out of the first six one by one."

Commenting generally on the decision, Mr. McLaughlin described any wish to reflect upon a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, but he characterized the ruling as "both a good and a bad one."

"It's bad because it will seriously interfere with North Carolina's trucking business. It's good because the court has finally recognized that there are some vestiges of state's rights left."

"However, much as we may dislike Federal meddling with state affairs, we ought to have some sort of uniform motor vehicle rules and if federal regulation is the only way we can get it, then I'm for it."

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The stock market slowed almost to a halt today after slipping a few cogs in the forenoon.

Around the fourth hour leading shares were up a little from the day's lows, but losses predominated. Rallying tendencies were limited as traders stayed out of the market to look for more clear-cut guides to action.

Bonds drifted along an uneven narrow range.

ABC LAW ENFORCEMENT ACTIVITIES REVEALED

raids, 1,062 gallons; cases found not guilty, two; suspended sentences, two; cases tried in Federal court, one; cars confiscated by Federal court, one.

Results of A. S. Batson, manager of the National Bureau of Investigation, on activities while engaged in under-cover work for the board from July 10, 1937 to October 20, 1937, were reported by him as follows:

Number of persons tried, 51, cases, 156; cases pending, 31 persons, cases, 93; fines in State and County courts, $350; time given prisoners, 42 years and five months; number of cases in Federal court, four; time given prisoners, four years and one day; fines in Federal court, $1,450. The report noted that in trying these cases there were only three not guilty verdicts.

Attached to the official report was a list of comparative sales for 1936 and 1937, showing a total of $150,066.75 during 1936 and $285,822.50 for 1937.

Comparative sales by months, listing 1936 sales first and 1937 sales second, follow:

July, $13,397.30—$21,688.05; August, $15,126.50—$27,558.90; September, $25,192.35—$46,111.25; October, $35,363.80—$72,123.70; November, $29,056.20—$57,905; December, $31,930.60—$60,435.60.

REPORT AUDIT ABC BOARD

The audit contained several notations, one of which stated that from an analysis of percentage figures "you will note that your expenses are only 6.508 per cent of sales." It pointed out that this percentage is from two to three per cent lower than for other counties doing about the same amount of business and "your board is to be commended."

It further states that "worthy of mention also is that outside of the chairman's salary for full time services the per diem expense of board members has been only $232.50; an infinitesimal item in ratio of the volume of business done and personal sacrifices made."

The salary of the chairman is $200 per month, while other members are paid at the rate of $7.50 each day they are in session.

The audit calls special attention to law enforcement fund, a complete report of which is made elsewhere in this paper.

PUBLIC SHOWING MORE INTEREST

vises those who mean to carry off the highest honors and are really sincere in their efforts to win one of the very best awards in the list, to put forth every effort possible and round up every available subscription NOW!

Double Votes will be allowed on every subscription turned in this week. The offer is really a "two-for-one" proposition as the money turned in for subscriptions applies upon the extra cash prize for this week and the votes due upon these subscriptions count toward winning the regular awards at the end of the campaign.

SAVINGS ACCOUNTS DOWN IN SPIKE OF INCREASE

to the fact that building and loan associations are very numerous in the state and many people prefer keeping their savings accounts with these associations rather than in the regular banks.

The American Banking Association figures include savings accounts and all time deposits in national and state banks, trust companies, private banks, etc.

North Carolina's time deposits evidenced by savings pass books totaled $48,385,711.75 on December 31, 1937, while other time deposits amounted to $14,024,770.32, according to Mr. Hood's annual reports.

FLORIDA TREES COPY THE KILKENNY CATS

Miami, Fla.—(AP)—It is a case of tree eat tree in a park beside the First Avenue bridge here.

Years ago a palmetto palm and a banyan tree sprang up side by side. As they acquired the lusty growth of semi-tropical trees they crowded each other for space. Little by little the banyan encircled the palmetto.

Today a small portion of the palm's trunk shows outside the banyan up to a height of about 20 feet, where it becomes completely "swallowed." A few feet higher the palmetto emerges into the air and rustles its fan shaped leaves defiantly at the hungry banyan.

On a recent week end there were 1,256 sports fans registered in the park.

3 point landing

When a plane lands on all three wheels... that's called a perfect landing

... and when you land on Chesterfields you find the three points of smoking pleasure... all you look for in a cigarette

MILDNESS that's refreshing
TASTE that smokers like
AROMA that makes you downright hungry for a smoke.

You'll find MORE PLEASURE in Chesterfield's milder better taste
