LEADERS HOPE END CONGRESS EARLY IN MAY

Determined To Make This Short, Productive Session

LARGER RELIEF FUND REQUESTED

House Naval Committee Chairman Wants Test of Mysterious New Aerial Bomb

Washington, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Congressional leaders determined to make this a short productive session concentrated today on hastening action on President Roosevelt's legislative program.

The leaders and most members were hopeful of adjournment early in May, many of the lawmakers were anxious to get back home and look after their election-year political interests.

The faster tempo of Congress the last week heartened leaders.

Other developments:

Senator Bone (D-Wash.) said he would ask the Senate to increase the $250,000,000 supplementary relief appropriation possibly to $400,000,000.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Naval Committee, suggested using part of a $15,000,000 experimental fund to test a mysterious new "aerial bomb" which the inventor said would revolutionize this country's defenses.

Vinson referred to a device which Lester Barlow, Stamford, Conn., inventor, said yesterday would force drastic alterations of the proposed one billion dollar naval expansion program.

Secretary Wallace appointed three directors of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, an agency authorized by the new farm act, to insure wheat growers against losses from drought, flood and other causes.

Compliance with the administration's new farm program, officials estimated, would cost about $250,000,000 subsidy payments in the pockets of the nation's cotton farmers.

Safety Education Program In State Pleasing To Fulk

State Highway Patrol Head "Ticked to Death" With Results of Current Campaign

Raleigh, Feb. 19.—Major Arthur Fulk, head of the Highway Patrol and the Safety Division, is "ticked to death" with results so far obtained from the campaign of safety education being waged in the public schools of the state.

Almost simultaneously with release today of the January accident report, showing a decrease in fatalities from the corresponding month of 1937, he said that training given in the school course is already apparent in many applicants for drivers' licenses. He noted that not less than 20,000 students either of or near the age for obtaining licenses are enrolled.

"I am tickled to death with progress of this school campaign," he said, "and I believe we are going to be able to tie into it with an aggressive campaign among adults, based on the safety film now being sponsored by the county commissioners of the state."

Giving details of the work in the schools he said that at the opening of the year 5,000 copies of the textbook "Man and the Motor Car" were (Continued on page six)

White Man Lands In Court For Use Of Profane Words

A white man, Elliott Simons, was bound over to County court under bond of $100 following a preliminary hearing before Mayor M. K. Blount in police court this morning on charges of using vulgar and profane language over the telephone while connected with an operator.

Simons, who was using a booth in the telephone exchange building was taken in custody by officers who had been summoned by telephone officials. He was taken to police headquarters last night and posted bond for his appearance in City court this morning. Under a special statute the case was sent up to County court.

Jasper Moore, Negro, was fined five dollars and costs upon conviction of failing to observe a traffic signal.

BRITAIN, ITALY NEARER TERMS

British Take Step Toward Renewal Of Friendship

London, Feb. 19.—(AP)—The British Cabinet recessed temporarily tonight after a three hour and 20 minute session was understood to have failed to solve the critical break between Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Eden over a "deal" with Italy.

London, Feb. 19.—Britain took a step toward friendship with Fascist Italy today, apparently leaving France alone to take the lead in any effort to check expansion of German influence in Austria.

Both Italian-British friendship and the Austria-German situation were on the agenda of today's unusual cabinet session—the first full session on Saturday since November 5, 1936, before the abdication of Edward V.

It was understood Prime Minister Chamberlain, after two weeks of talk with the Italian Ambassador Count Grandi, had reached the point where he could present to the cabinet a concrete plan for renewing Italian friendship ties.

This plan involved concessions by both sides on foreign intervention in the Spanish Civil war and the Anglo-Italian radio propaganda war for Arabic good will.

Britain has tried since the Spanish Insurgents, has been reluctant. Italy, Britain has charged, has spread by radio propaganda harmful to Britain among the Arabic nations of the Near East. To combat this, Britain recently began Arabic news broadcast of her own and plans for broadcasts in other languages have been formulated.

Rare Fur in Rag Los Angeles (AP)—A rug made of one of the rarest furs in the world is owned by Mrs. Martin Hirsch of this city. It contains 50 pelts of the Australian duckbill or platypus. Bought by Mr. Hirsch 20 years ago for $2,000, the rug is considered by its owners now to be worth about $10,000.

Sacramento, Calif., will celebrate its centennial from February to December, 1939.

Extra Prize Race Will End Tonight

The big $25,000 extra cash prize offer will end tonight. Some candidate in the Cash Offer Campaign will have won $25,000 extra money. The race for this extra cash may be close between a number of workers, so it stands to reason that a little extra effort and a little extra business landed in these last few hours may be the deciding factor in winning it. A race is never won until the finish line has been crossed and all candidates are warned not to assume that they have done enough and slow down. These Last Few Hours May Decide The Winner.

The Campaign Office will remain open until 6 o'clock for the benefit of the interested campaigners who wish to work late. Hundreds of out of town people will be in Greenville this evening. Every one of these folks are potential subscri-

Predicted Problem to Exceed That Suffered in 1935

Little Rock, Ark. Feb. 19.—Three rivers and their numerous tributaries roared an ominous flood threat to Arkansas today while other sections of the South were recovering from effects of storms which claimed at least 27 lives.

Hundreds of persons fled their low land homes as the Ouchita, Arkansas and White Rivers, swollen by a week's torrential down-pour, spilled their excess burden over thousands of acres of farmlands. Army engineers here said the predicted crests probably would bring greater flood problems than in 1935.

Relief workers at Rodessa La., started rehabilitation work in the little oil field community, where a tornado ripped through the residential section Thursday night, leaving 25 dead, 41 injured and four missing.

Inhabitants of the area returned to the collapsed homes to recover what they could and discuss plans for rebuilding.

Searchers who dug into the storm made bog last night found no additional victims and expressed belief the death toll would run higher.

Property damage was estimated as high as $500,000, including destruction of seven oil derricks.

Two drowning deaths were reported in Missouri. Central Alabama had its first rainfall in 18 days.

To Illustrate Growth Of Methodist Church The Union Service which will be held at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist church Sunday night, will be different in character from the usual service at this time. Daniel C. Boone will show 55 colored slides giving a complete history of the origin and development of the Methodist church.

This should be of special interest to all Methodists, and all other denominations may enjoy learning more about the beginning and growth of this church. All people of the community are invited. The offering taken will be used to defray the expenses of Mr. Boone.

Over-Confidence So far there are no cases of over confidence which have come to the attention of the campaign manager, but if there are any of the candidates who feel that they already have a sufficient number of votes to win the prize they want, and are resting upon that assumption they are going to find that their supposed safety rested upon highly dubious conclusions. Some of the later entrants have been forging to the front in an amazing manner, and it can be truthfully said that at the present time it is anybody's (Continued on Page Three)

SCIENTISTS ARE EN ROUTE HOME

Removed From Arctic Ice Floe By Soviet Ice Breakers

Moscow, Feb. 19.—Four Russian scientists who had been marooned for more than eight months on drifting Arctic ice were taken to safety today on the ice breakers Taimyr and Murman.

The four men and all the equipment which they had been using for meteorological observations looking toward establishment of a Russian air line across the North Pole to the United States, were load on the two rescue craft.

The four scientists had been planted near the North Pole by an aerial expedition since last May 21. A terse radio message from the rescuers off the Eastern coast of Greenland, more than 1,000 miles from where the camp was first located said:

"Papanin, Federoff, Shirshoff and Krenkel, with all equipment, removed from ice floe by Taimyr and Murman, which are proceeding to Murmansk."

They were rescued from the sea going floe, a 100 by 160 fragment of their original camp piece, after a long and hazardous isolation.

For days the ice breakers had fought crushing ice in the effort to gain the position three miles from the camp.

Business firms in Shanghai have been using homing pigeons during the war emergency for the delivery of important messages within the city.

Furs worth $2,285,700 were shipped from Alaska in 1937, an increase of $368,000 compared with 1936.

REBEL TROOPS CIRCLE TERUEL IN NEW DRIVE

Report Government Would Like to Talk Surrender Terms

MADRID ADMITS HEAVY FIGHTING

No Confirmation from Capital, However, That Teruel Has Been Surrounded

Hendaye, France, Feb. 19.—(AP)—The Spanish Insurgents officially announced today they had encircled Teruel in their new South Aragon offensive.

Two thousand Government troops garrisoning the provincial capital city, were fighting to defend it. The insurgents said they had "intimidation" from the garrison, however, they would like to discuss terms for surrender of Teruel.

General Francisco Franco's offensive, striking east and southeast from the Alhambra river valley north of Teruel, gained several miles of mountain territory before the action centered on Teruel.

Government Madrid dispatches said there was heavy fighting around the Balchite sector, on the northern sector of the Aragon front, where their troops had been forced back. There was no confirmation in Madrid, however, of the insurgent reports that Teruel, on the southern sector of the Aragon front, had been encircled by Insurgents.

The insurgents said a vast quantity of arms and munitions had been seized and a large number of prisoners taken as their forces swept around the provincial capital.

The insurgent troops reportedly halted just outside the city to give the Government garrison time to decide whether to surrender or continue the fight.

MORE DOGS THAN PEOPLE IN THIS NEBRASKA COUNTY

Alma, Neb. (AP)—There are more dogs than people in Harlan county, Nebraska, if 1937 tax assessment figures are accurate.

The tax valuations show 10,280 dogs in a county which has a population of only 8,960. With approximately 2,000 families in the county, that makes an average of five dogs a family.

Rose Attends Meet Of State Committee J. H. Rose, superintendent of the Greenville City schools, today attended a meeting in Raleigh of the North Carolina committee of the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges.

The committee is composed of Mr. Rose, Dr. J. Henry Highsmith of Raleigh, Dr. Holland Holton of Duke University, R. H. Latham of Asheville, J. W. Moore of Winston-Salem and T. O. Wright of Oak Ridge.

The purpose of the meeting is to review reports of all accredited schools in the state and to receive applications from any schools who wish to get on the accredited list again.

Greenville was one of the few schools in the state retained on the list in 1937, when most of the schools were taken off the list.

Purported Robber Shot Down On Kinston Street

Slain Man Identified As Eugene Lee Of Fayetteville

Kinston, Feb. 19.—A man identified by Lieut. Arthur Moore of the State Highway Patrol as Eugene with highway robberies in Cumberland and Bladen counties, was shot to death last night in a rush with nine state and city officers in the business district here.

Moore said he had arranged a trap after learning a stolen automobile had been left at a garage here by a man who told garage attendants he would return.

As Lee got into the car, Moore said, eight State Highway Patrolmen and a city officer stepped out of the shadows and moved toward the car.

Moore said Lee jumped out and pulled a pistol, hesitated an instant, then turned and fled without firing.

A hail of bullets followed Lee, the lieutenant said. The fleeing man ran into a small area beside an office building and slumped, dead. He was struck four times, once in the heart.

Moore said Lee was being sought here for questioning about store-breaking in Greene county this week.

He added Lee had been "badly wanted" to complete a three year sentence for breaking and entering.

SHARP GAIN IN STATE BIRTHS

Total of 6,395 Little Tar Heels Born Last Month

Raleigh, Feb. 19.—The January report of the State Board of Health's Vital Statistics division, of which Dr. R. T. Stimpson is the Director, shows that the upward trend in the number of births in North Carolina, which was maintained throughout 1937, was holding its own the first month of 1938. The number of deaths, however, was also greater than in January last year.

The first month of 1938 was marked by the birth of 6,395 little Tar Heels as compared with 6,103 a year ago while deaths numbered 3,098 against 2,796 reported the first month of 1937.

There was a slight decrease in the number of deaths among babies under a year old, however, the number this January having been 411, as compared with 420 last year, but an increase of four in the number of maternal deaths. "We always keep an eye on these figures," said Dr. G. M. Cooper, director of the Division of Preventive Medicine, who gives much attention to maternal and child clinics. "It is gratifying to note," he continued, "that there was a decrease in the number of pellagra deaths in January, the total having been 15, against 25 last year."

Increases were noted in deaths from several causes, especially pneumonia, the January, 1938 total having been 404, as compared with 333 in January, 1937.

There were ten more homicides last month than a year ago, the report shows, and two more suicides. Deaths from cancer continued on the upgrade, with 173, as compared with 151 last year.

Tuberculosis deaths were up three while there were 14, or twice as many deaths from firearms and 19 more from accidental burns. One death from smallpox was reported, this being an unusual occurrence in this day and time, while measles took the lives of 16 children, as compared with none a year ago. Syphilis deaths dropped one, while diphtheria (Continued on page six)

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Twenty candidates have paid the State Election Board $1,390 as their formal and official "earnest" money, indicating their irrevocable intention to seek posts of power and perquisites in the approaching primaries.

While this is a small group, as compared with the aggregate total expected to enter before time limit for filing comes around, it is considerably larger than usual for this time of the year. The primary is still more than three months off, and there is still more than a month left in which to file.

Impressive as forecasting special emphasis on the judicial races is the fact that of the twenty who have filed, more than half—an even dozen to be exact—seek to become, or to succeed themselves as, judges of the state's Superior courts.

The twelve come from eight districts, with pairs of opponents already entered in eight of them. The judicial list already duly qualified to get their names on the ballots is: Second District: Titmuss Valentine and Walter J. Bone; incumbent.

JAPAN ORDERS NEW TROOPS TO CENTRAL CHINA

Reinforcement Dispatched To Meet Chinese Thrusts

HEAVY FIGHTING ON LONG FRONT

General Hata Reported to Have Arrived To Take Over Control of Jap Forces

Shanghai, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Japan ordered a new commanding general and troop reinforcements to the Central China war zone today "to meet the new situation" precipitated by violent Chinese counter-offensive operations.

Savage fighting continued along the far-flung front paralleling the strategic Lunghai railway, with both sides winning indecisive victories.

It was reported that General Hata, inspector general of military education in Japan, had arrived to take over command of the Japanese troops, which for months have been struggling to conquer the rich Central China agricultural region and railroad network.

General Hata was said to have been sent to replace General Matsui because of dissatisfaction in Tokyo over progress of the Central China campaign.

Tokyo was represented as dissatisfied with the loss of prestige suffered by the Japanese army because of breaches in discipline in Central China.

Dispatches from the front indicated the Chinese counter-offensive was meeting with success in the Hwai river sector, north of Fengpu.

Twenty Qualified To Seek Positions In June Primaries

Comparatively Small Number Of Candidates Have Filed With State Elections Board

Bonding Company Held Responsible For Bank Shortage

Fremont, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Gurney Hood, State Banking Commissioner, reported today a shortage of more than $40,000 in the accounts of the Bank of Fremont, whose president, Cutler Lee, was found shot to death in the bathroom of his home here late yesterday.

The Bank of Fremont was taken over about two weeks ago by the Branch Banking and Trust Company of Wilson, which opened a branch here.

Hood said the shortage was not discovered until after the bank consolidation.

Funeral for Lee was held at 4 p. m. this afternoon at the graveside in Wilmington.

Hood said at Raleigh the Branch Banking and Trust Company, of Wilson, would not be responsible for liabilities created by the alleged shortage in the Bank of Fremont.

Instead, he said, the Bank of Fremont would have claims for the shortage against the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the bonding company which bonded the bank president, and his estate.

Entertain Bridge Club. Grifton, Feb. 19.—Mrs. Brown Hodges was hostess to her contract club on Friday night at a delightful supper at her home on Main street. The home was attractively decorated with a variety of early spring flowers.

On arrival guests found their places at the individual card tables marked with novelty tallies in the Washington birthday motif. Mrs. Hodges assisted by her daughter, Betsy, served a delectable barbecue plate with iced tea, followed by a sweet course.

After supper bridge was played at three tables. Mrs. Cecil Cobb was given perfume as holder of high score among the ladies. The men's high award, socks, went to W. I. Bissette. Mrs. H. C. Oglesby won the honor prize.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. Bissette, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. George Sugg and Dr. A. F. Hammond, Jr.

EMPIRE FOR A LADY

SYNOPSIS: Chance and a young English girl have contrived to make the trader and gun-runner, James Clyde, rajah of Balingong. Christine Forrester, completing a plan of her dead father, is behind the Dyak revolt which caused Malay surrender. This desperate enterprise may bring power and wealth, or defeat and death. It means lifelong jungle exile for Clyde and myself (Paul Thorne, his nephew). But Christine needs our help, and we are both in love with her.

Chapter 25 The New Rajah

ALL these negotiations had to be conducted through the goings and comings of Lundok, for Clyde would not go into Balingong again, and Rajah Mantusen could not come out. Lundok's prowlings were a little safer now, since the orders to Tenyalang riflemen; but he still could travel only at night, and often was delayed for hours in his circuit of the intervening miles of jungle.

In the end, Clyde had to make guarantees of enormous indemnities if any accident should befall Mantusen himself, or his goods, when Malay praus took to the river. This was purely a gamble on Clyde's part; he could not pay the indemnities, if our plans went wrong. But I think those stubborn Malays would have died there if they could not have obtained terms which they felt satisfactory to the saving of face.

Our longboat moved up the Siderong river at last. It was I who officially took over the improvised palace which represented a theoretical lordship of Balingong raj. Clyde had been forced, after much arguing, to admit that we could no longer allow him to risk falling hostage to Mantusen.

Even the danger of some uncalculated indignity must be guarded against. He was no longer simply Captain James Clyde of the Linkang, gunrunner to the narrow seas. He was our new rajah, upon whose prestige and supposed infallibility all our plans must depend.

There was no proclamation ceremony, under the circumstances. But word was now running through the Tenyalang, and from the Tenyalang through all the Dyak tribes, that I herewith, look over Balingong raj on behalf of the Rajah Clyde—rajah of Balingong—in the name of Anthony Forrester, and by deed of the Sultan of Saramba; that the Rajah Clyde now ruled Balingong, asserting the authority of life and death to its farthest limits, but promising friendship and assistance in war to all who were faithful; and that no man must interfere with Mantusen as his prau roared to the river, on pain of death and the destruction of his village.

So at last Mantusen started down the Siderong in 11 heavily laden praus.

I sat in the shaded rust of the longhouse with the Mantusen's stockade, with Jarab, bosun of the Linkang, and eight of the Linkang's men; and when the last of the great praus had swung its big sea-gouging outrigger around the bend of the river, we sat waiting for a long time.

Sweat was running down my face—which was justified by the heat, except that this was cold sweat. I was listening for the rattle of gunfire, the wild yammering of Dyak tribesmen, and the war cries of the Malays as they died shouting that there was no God but God. I could not believe in the barest possibility that the praus would get through. I was mentally timing their progress so that I would know when they must have reached the bay.

His First Audience

AFTER a long and a curious sound began to come from far down the river—some of the Malay paddlers were beginning to sing! They sang with an odd intermittent rhythm—a chorused whine that carried them six strokes, then silence for six strokes, then the song again. And this thing was repeated over and over, until their voices thinned away, and at last died.

I knew after a while that the leading prau must be passing the delta. In imagination I counted those 22 praus as they entered the bay. I thought finally that they must all be clear. Then, at the very last, a gun was fired far down toward the mouth of the Siderong, and this was followed by the quick snaling sound of several more rifles which spoke together. I knew that it would only take a few minutes for that jungle to boil over into a maelstrom of murder; and I thought that the end was near.

Until now I had not realized that the gong had been silent while the Malays were on the river, but now a great hammering of excited sound broke out all through the jungle as gongs and drums kept questioning each other without getting any answer. To my surprise and vast relief the gunfire ended abruptly as it began.

Later we learned that three Malays had been killed—one of them an old woman, and another a little boy—when the steersman of the last prau had called out insults to the jungle. Intermittent diplomatic difficulties, which could even end with a war with Saramba, might come of an incident like that; but for the present Mantusen and his people were out of there.

Late that day, after a long parley with Mantusen aboard the Linkang, Clyde came up the river to his palace. He was brought in a big Dyak bankong, paddled by the pick of the Tenyalang.

With him came Robert Forrester, so weak and mackerel-gutted from fever that he seemed three parts disembodied. It was impossible to make out what he thought about all this, so little energy was left in him with which to take interest. But, in a way, his pale immobility was impressive; and his blondness among these dark people made him look like some strange young god.

Just before sunset Clyde held his first audience with the Tenyalang. They came into the big inner compound cautiously at first, reluctant with suspicion; the various groups watched each other arrogantly, and with distrust. But within an hour they must all have been there, and many pangriangs and others who were not supposed to be, for presently the compound was filled with more than 300 men.

The Tenyalang were not prepossessing—small brown men with ragged hair, wild visages, and short naked legs. They wore black goatskin war jackets and sheathed parangs, but the elaborate shields without which the average Dyak will not be seen, in time of war were not carried by the Tenyalang.

In A Mood For War

ONE thing common to them all was enough to send chills down the back of any white man who knew his business here. Around the neck of almost every man was a thong suspending that small, intricate jimat of the Tenyalang—the same horribly cut-out that Christine had shown me, and that I had seen swinging from the gun taken by Mantusen. And each man carried a rifle crooked in his left elbow, muzzle high.

The ordinary Dyak handles his gasp gun, if he has one, with a gingerly awkwardness, until he has had it for a long time. After that he uses it for driving stakes. But there was something loving and reverent, and also practiced, in the way the Tenyalang warriors handled their weapons. These were not simply men who had rifles; they were riflemen. If I had not learned by this time to believe what Christine Forrester had told me about her father, I would have believed it now.

Clyde had a pile of mats put at the edge of the platform in front of the house, and when he at last came to sit cross-legged there, all movement and sound in the compound stopped. Robert Forrester sat to his right, very still and white. I sat on Clyde's left, and on my left sat Lundok, who helped with the translations.

Clyde was in shoal water, and he knew it. All about us was a huge angry stew-pot of Dyak tribes, no doubt befuddled by the turn of events but in a mood for war. It was up to him to establish at least a semblance of government, and do it quickly. The Tenyalang, whom Anthony Forrester had brought into partial discipline, were useful, to us now as a means of conveying Clyde's immediate intent.

At first, of course, he could do little except to assure them that he represented their friend, the rajah laut—Anthony, Forrester, whom they must not know to be dead—and attempt to obtain their temporary obedience, or at least neutrality.

Robert Forrester kept prompting Clyde out of the corner of his mouth as Clyde now told them what great things were ahead. Their oppressors had been vanquished and sent away. Their new rajah was devoted to their welfare. He would defend them in war. He would protect them in trade. He would lead them into ways which would make them great.

All this was pretty vague, and it was a good thing that it was. If Clyde had attempted to give them any exact idea of what he meant to do, they would have gone away scandalized by what little they understood. As it was, they perhaps got the notion that he was promising them all more heads than formerly.

I don't know whether they believed him or not, or how much. Every time Lundok concluded translating one of my uncle's speeches, the buzz of Dyak voices would spread through the enclosure and seem to hang in the warm air until the next burst of oratory.

The fact that Clyde was a white man, possessor of a strong ship, gave him a great prestige; but it also made them suspicious.

How will Clyde begin his gigantic task Monday's chapter.

DUKE AND NCS MEET TONIGHT

Big Cage Double-Bill To Be Staged At Durham

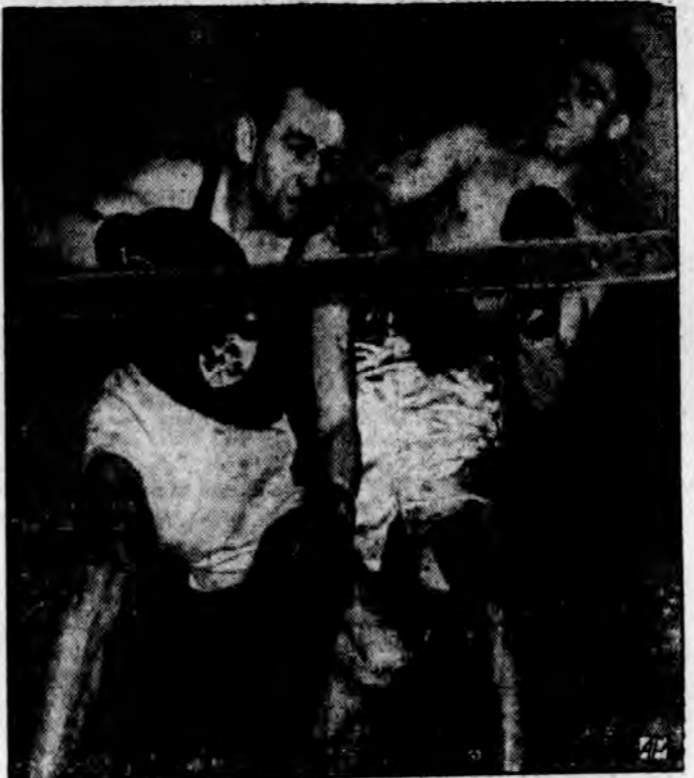

Durham, Feb. 19—A full evening of fine basketball will be offered in Duke gym tonight when the Blue Devil varsity clashes with N. C. State and the unbeaten freshman outfit battles the yardlings of North Carolina.

The freshman encounter will get under way at 7:15 o'clock when the varsity clash slated to start at 8:15.

Both will be return games. The unpredictable Duke varsity handed the Red Terrors a sound whipping in their first meeting this season and will be facing a team tonight that is anxious for revenge. Duke's margin over the Tecus was the biggest made on that team this season.

The freshman clash will feature some of the future stars of basketball in this section. The Tar Babies are led by the brilliant Geo. Glanack, towering center, while Duke has a well-rounded team composed of Ed Shokes and Lu DuBois, forwards; Chuck Holley, center; Cy Valasek and Tom Connelly, guards.

While the Blue Devils turned the trick one time, it is hardly expected that they will win tonight's clash, although they long ago showed fans that they were absolutely unfigurable. They face the task tonight of stopping three of the finest shotmakers in the conference—Bill Mann, Connie Mark Berry and P. G. Hill—and of evading the close guarding tactics of Eddie Berlinski and Bill Jones.

A victory means much to the Blue Devils. It would give them a fine chance of being one of the four seeded teams in the conference tourney for which they definitely qualified with their victory over Washington and Lee Monday night. With a win over State and an even break in the games next week with Carolina and Wake Forest, the Blue Devils might have the victories necessary to win one of the first four places in the conference.

Next week's program at Duke is light. The cagers play the lone home game—with Carolina Friday night. Wake Forest will be met at Wake Forest Monday night. Four members of the boxing team will be working hard next week in preparation for the conference tourney at College Park Friday and Saturday.

PHANTOMS WIN FROM RALEIGH

Locals More Than Triple Score Over Capitals

The Greenville High School Phantoms defeated the cagers from Raleigh last night by a decisive margin in the high school auditorium. Let by Dubose Simpson, the local five went on to score a 32-10 victory.

Captain Simpson, lanky center, and high scorer, made 16 points to show his team-mates the way to victory. Tom Parrish, guard, scored 8 points and held his man to 1 point to play a brilliant game. Howard Hodges held his man scoreless and played a very good game.

George Sakas and John Lautares played a good defensive brand of ball. Richard Gaylord was an important factor in winning the game.

Raleigh was held to one field goal by the varsity boys and one by the "scrubs." Red Alford and Preacher Weeks scored their only field goals. Weeks also made two foul shots good.

E.C.T.C. LASSIES ARE DEFEATED

Lose to Appalachian By One Point Margin, 17-16

A field goal in the final 30 seconds of play by Alleen King, forward, gave the Appalachian, State Teachers college sextet a 17-16 victory over the East Carolina Teachers College sextet here last night, and enabled the visitors to keep their perfect record, not having lost a game in the past two years.

The loss was the second of the season for the local collegians.

The visitors led throughout most of the game and at the half had an 8-5 margin. Louise Martin, forward, set the pace for the locals with 12 points, while Alleen King, forward, paced the winners with 9 points.

EXTRA PRIZE RACE WILL END TONIGHT

race. Don't forfeit your position at the head of the procession because of a failure to crowd on steam at this stretch.

Many of the residents of Pitt and adjoining counties have not been approached for a subscription. This statement is borne out by the fact that hardly a day passes that does not see one or more residents of the Reflector territory come into the office and subscribe "over the counter." When questioned in practically every case these people have not been approached by any candidate and in a number of cases did not know about the "Cash Offer" Campaign. Anyone who has not been getting the paper would naturally not know about the big race and the awards offered unless they had been told by some candidate.

The above goes to show that the territory has not been thoroughly covered by any means and that there are still plenty of subscriptions to be had by the candidates who are big enough and interested enough to go out and "dig them up."

U.N.C. Mittman

Bill Moore, 165-pound Tar Heel boxer, will meet Swede Vincent in one of the feature individual duels of the Carolina-Duke boxing meet at Chapel Hill Saturday night. The contest, final dual meet for both teams this season, will decide the 315 Five championship. After getting off to a slow start, Moore has shown marked improvement in recent meets. He is boxing his first match at Carolina. Moore will also participate in the Conference tournament next week.

DEACONS SEEK TOURNAY POST

Must Score Wins Over Duke and Davidson, However

Wake Forest, Feb. 19—The Deacons still have a chance to get a berth in the Southern Conference tourney, but they have two big obstacles that they must cleanly hurdle if this hope will be gone. These obstacles are Duke's Blue Devils and Davidson's Wildcats.

On Monday night the Blue Devils will come to Wake Forest for the first of these two all-important contests. The Davidson game will be played at Davidson, February 26.

Monday's battle with Duke is the second meeting between the two clubs this season. The Deacons went over to Durham on January 7, heavily favored to win—the Deacons had previously lost a non-decision game to Davidson—but had the tables turned on them as Coach Eddie Cameron's team walked off with a 34 to 33 victory.

In that contest, Hoffman, Duke's No. 1 guard, held the high scoring Wilder to seven points—a remarkable job for any guard considering the fact that the Deacon sharpshooter is leading the conference in scoring by a wide margin.

IT HAPPENED on the DIAMOND

MAC BROWN, Pittsburgh Pirate hurler, got into a total of 50 games in 1937. He did not pitch a complete game at any time. Hugh Mulcahy, Phillies, pitched in 56 contests last season to tie the one-season record Christy Mathewson made in 1908.

E.C.T.C. BOXING MONDAY NIGHT

Pirate Team To Meet Louisburg College Mittmen Here

The E. C. T. C. boxing team meets Louisburg College in the second home meet of the year, Monday night at seven-thirty o'clock.

Since the Louisburg boys do not have a 115 pound scrapper Herbert Wilkerson will open the show for the Pirates when he meets Smith of Louisburg in what promises to be the thriller of the evening in the 125 pound division. Wilkerson does not wait for developments but goes in and makes things happen. They usually happen fast when the little Pirate struts up the opposing fighter, Wilkerson is a local boy who is making good.

There will be two fights in the 135 pound division Moore and Perkins will represent the Pirate scrappers and will meet Robertson and Dall of Louisburg. If anyone thinks these fights will be slow they are set for disappointment as the local entries are training hard to strengthen weaknesses reveal in earlier fights and both will be after tall-

David Breece will have his hands full in the 145 pound division when he meets Broom. Breece is far from slow and advance notices would lead one to believe that the Louisburg entry is most adept at slinging the leather. There will be a second scrap in this division in lieu of a heavy weight entry. The second Pirate fighter is yet undetermined as several candidates are trying to make the weight.

In the 155 pound division Williams or Carl Langley will entertain the visitor and both are tough scrappers. Joe Williams can handle himself and is an experienced fighter. Kenneth Qurnell will probably draw the 165 pound assignment and his opponent is as yet unassigned.

The local entries are all working hard this week and have recovered from the effects of the Atlantic Christian College meet in great shape. Most of the boys profited from the experience of previous meets and are looking forward to the coming fray with Louisburg.

ACCIDENTS CLAIM SIXTY IN JANUARY

Of the other 25 pedestrians killed seven were listed as children at play in the streets, six were walking on the highway, seven were intoxicated, three were crossing a highway, one was "confused by traffic" and one came from behind a parked car.

Eight children between the ages of 4 and 14 were killed during the month, but as a rule the fatalities were much more numerous among older people. Of the 15-24 age group only nine were killed, while 37 belonged to the 25-65 group. Age of six victims was not stated.

Sunday was worst for accidents, with 109 occurring on the day set aside for worship and rest.

75 or dangerous hours, the period between 7 and 8 o'clock at night showed up worst, with six fatal and 52 non-fatal accidents to its discredit. Next most dangerous to life was the preceding hour, 6 to 7 p. m. during which there were five fatal and 41 non-fatal accidents; but for total accidents the 3 to 4 P. M. period came second with 2 fatal and 49 non-fatal accidents for a total of 51.

It was the first time that the Safety Division has listed separately accidents in incorporated towns and cities, as distinct from those without corporation limits. It has been the contention of safety heads and experts that most accidents, fatal ones at least, are caused by high speed; and the January figures showing that "in town" accidents, though more frequent, are less apt to be fatal tends to uphold that view.

It was notable, however, that in the causes of accidents, only ten fatal and 61 non-fatal accidents were listed as caused by "speeding." Other causes, with fatal and non-fatal accidents due to them, were: On wrong side of road, 2 and 20; reckless driving 9 and 99; hit and run 3 and 46; disregard of signals 4 and 30; loss of control 3 and 29.

While traveling with the Bryant Minstrels in 1859, DANIEL DECATUR EMMETT was asked by Jerry Bryant to write a "hooray" song with a catchy air. Failing miserably on his initial attempt, a cold and dreary Sunday later provided the inspiration for the famous words "I wish I was in Dixie Land". With what negro dialect he had picked up on the stage, he next composed a stanza and chorus and patiently set about working up a tune to the words. Other stanzas were subsequently added and from its first presentation

Because he wrote a southern song, which later became the South's battle cry of freedom, Emmett received numerous letters of severe denunciation, some going so far as to suggest that he should be hanged for treason!

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Feb. 19—The big meeting of farmers here Friday wasn't quite the Mecca for politicians it might have been expected to be. Of course "Farmer" Thad Eure (self-styled "People's Man") our handsome and dashing Secretary of State; "Farmer" Charlie Johnson, State Treasurer generally reputed to quite willing to sit in the Governor's chair any time after 1940; and a few others were conspicuous on the platform; but by and large it was a real farmer's and confined itself largely to farm problems.

As usual the principal speakers spoke entirely too long and hurt themselves and their speeches by their verbosity.

There will be no oral arguments before the State Supreme court as the Justices take time out to prepare opinions in those cases already heard by them. Court attaches, likewise, will have time to catch up with their work.

Next oral arguments will be heard the week of March 1, and next opinion day will be March 2.

A suit to determine constitutionality of the 1937 North Carolina effort to stop sale of "scrap" tobacco has been brought in Pitt County, according to Assistant Attorney General Harry McMullan, E. B. Picklen, Treasurer Common has paid the intentionally prohibitive tax of $1,000 required of "scrap" tobacco dealers, but paid under protest and as now brought suit against A. J. Maxwell, Commissioner of Revenue, for return of the amount so paid under protest.

A 1935 legislative act which sought to prohibit scrap sales was declared unconstitutional.

It will be extremely interesting to watch the various exchanges of judicial circuits made this spring as judges with opposition try to stay in their own districts during the primary campaign.

Theoretically Judge A shouldn't be at all concerned about such profane affairs as politics, but from a practical point of view it isn't human nature for Judge A to be satisfied holding court out in Cherokee county while Candidate B is campaigning vigorously in Judge A's home district over about Dare, for example.

And so Judge A will likely do a bit of term swapping with Judge B so that both can get around a bit among the "boys' back home.

Revocation of licenses this week brought the total of drivers deprived of their right to operate in North Carolina to 15,408.

The most pathetic figure in Raleigh for the execution of Edgar Leroy Smoak, New Hanover man who died for the poisoning of his daughter, was a brother, S. O. Smoak of Orangeburg, S. C.

The South Carolinian was convinced of his brother's innocence. "I talked to Leroy for more than an hour," he told this correspondent, "and if he's guilty he's out of his head and doesn't know it."

The Department of Agriculture was really a "Deserted Village" Friday, as all hands and the cook went to the Memorial Auditorium for the big farmer meeting.

Nobody in Raleigh was any sadder than Governor Clyde R. Hooper when the double execution of Friday was over here.

STATE COLLEGE LAUNDRY HANDLES 2,300 PIECES DAILY

College Station, Raleigh, Feb. 19—One of the busiest places on the State College campus is the college-owned and operated laundry and dry cleaning plant.

According to W. L. Godwin, superintendent of the plant, the laundry and dry cleaning branches combined handle a total of about 2,300 pieces daily.

The daily total varies, according to Godwin, in different seasons of the year and during some weeks, but generally the amount is just about the same each day.

Home Will Be Far Sweeter In 1963 Even If Made of Glass, or Rubber

(This is the second of five articles in which Alexander R. George, after talking with the researchers who are charting tomorrow's world, pictures life in 1963 as it shapes up in the laboratories and on the drafting boards of 1938.)

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE (AP Feature Service Writer) MANY middle-class Americans will be living in "magic houses" 25 years from now.

But don't expect them, or their neighbors, to be ga-ga about it. For they took pretty much as a matter of course the transportation from the cupola cutie and the bay-windowed behemoth of the Victorian era to the immeasurably more comely and livable house of 1938.

And you can count on U. S. home-lovers, already casually familiar with flip-of-the-finger conveniences, to take in their stride the houses of 1963 with such miracles as:

Telephones that will take down the message whether or not anyone answers the phone.

Newspapers In The Home A bedroom light that will go on automatically in the night when one gets out of bed—an important safety gadget since 39 per cent of all home falls occur in bedrooms.

An electric eye that will light the entrance to a house as one approaches it.

Concealed lighting, providing maximum "daylight" illumination night and day, and simultaneously flooding every room with health-giving rays.

Television offering home movies, baseball and football games and photo finishes of horse races. Perhaps a tabloid newspaper by radio or wire facsimile.

Chemically treated air-conditioning which will kill germs in noise-deadened, vermin-proof, dust-free rooms.

Kitchens will go completely mechanical, and there will be a great increase in electrical devices for cooking on the dining room table. Water-softeners and moth-proof closets will be in common use.

Old Designs To Linger There will be sundry versions of the elegant houses of tomorrow. Architectural styles, exterior and interior construction materials, appliances and furnishings will come in a multiplicity of easily-assembled combinations. (Easier assembly of materials, experts say, is the key to lower-priced homes).

Houses will have more flowing lines but many will incorporate graceful contours of classic designs. Architectural seats are confident take their collapsible pre-fabs with them. The trailer-type home, of course, will be taken along on jaunts to woods, mountains and seashore. It will not be fantastic to see combination tile-glass roofs affording miniature solariums in small houses. This offers a new use for attics. Special "below-basement" garages will be reached by elevators. Coming also are more basement gymnasiums and small swimming pools that can be covered when not in use.

Houses All On The Ground Many experts believe that in suburban areas houses will be built on a ground-floor plan as far as possible. Living rooms will be shifted to the rear in many cases to escape street noises and provide a view of gardens.

Large wall sections will be devoted to windows, or to glass bricks which provide diffused light without loss of privacy. Plumbing lines will be fewer but more efficient than today's complicated set-ups.

Many appliances will be built into the house. Room-to-room communicating systems will be installed.

Some experts look for a large number of all-glass houses, the inside walls and partitions of which will be kept clean by the mere rub of a sponge. Floors, in winter, would be covered by a thick carpet of solid rubber made of removable squares to afford easy cleaning.

Water will be piped along the walls—to cool the house in summer and to clean the glass.

Authorities see a definite trend to planned large-scale production of single and multiple family homes for sale and rent. Limited dividend corporations will build entire residential sections providing for elaborate landscaping and freedom from traffic hazards. Central management will insure neighborhood upkeep, recreational facilities and underground parking zones. Cities will encourage similar corporations to rehabilitate rundown residential neighborhoods.

Hollywood Signs And Sounds

By Rabbit Coon Hollywood—The Schickelfritz are as incredible as their name. It sounds like a gag, and it is—half a dozen of them.

They, or it, is a band. Freddie Fisher's Schickelfritz Band from Minnesota. Rudy Vallee gave a party to show them off—they're in Dudy's "Gold Diggers in Paris" at his insistence—and the show-off was amazing.

They are a rustic novelty crew of the musical jester school. All six of them manage to look like bewildered hayseeds. They don't dare look anything else, this being expected of ex-husbands, as Paul Cooper, pianist and arranger, explained. Cooper used to be a radio announcer (Wichita Falls, Tex.) Barber College Alumnus

"There ain't one of us six who can't milk a cow," said Kenneth Trisko, trap drummer, with pride.

"If things go bad in the band, we can always go back to barbering," proclaimed Stanley Fritts, the gangling trombonist. (He brought his certificate from Omaha's barber college along, just in case).

Fisher recognized the group in Winona, Minn., late in 1935. A year ago they began making phonograph discs which sold like Shirley Temple dolls. Vallee found them in a Minneapolis night club. They had gotten together—from Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Together, they found, they could do the darndest things. They still do. One of them is "The Wreck of the Old 97," with Neals Laakso, the Finnish cornetist, playing a train whistle while the others do a choo-choo with their feet and smoke comes out of Maestro Fisher's tall hat.

Hats, it is soon apparent, are fairly vital to the Schickelfritz art. They brought two trunksful of old hats with them. One of the main uses of hats, which may sound unmusical but isn't, is to keep the hats going, from one player to another in endless chain while the music plays.

Laakso, The Artist The trombone is Fritts' forte, by no means his only talent. His specialty is, believe it, the case! That isn't a musical instrument except in this band. To it are fastened assorted objects. He strums a washboard, taps out cadences on a cow-bell and frying pan with thimble fingers.

Nels Laakso, youngest of the six, is considered a "real artist" on the cornet—triple-tongued and easy master of high C. He's a glum-looking individual, with a fair for comedy.

Charles Koenig, the smallest, plays—what did you expect?—the biggest instruments. At 152 pounds ringside weight, Koenig wrestles with the tuba (28 pounds), and the bull fiddle (21 pounds).

Kenneth Trisko does the drums which include drums and other things. All of them play the hats.

South Dakota was the first state to live-trap pheasants for stocking purposes.

Federal Savings Off To Fast 1938 Start

Washington, Feb. 19.—The fifteen Federal savings and loan associations in North Carolina have made a fast start for 1938 in home mortgage financing and in providing thrift facilities for their communities.

Mr. Delano reported that the total of direct-reduction mortgage loans for construction, purchase, reconditioning and refinancing in North Carolina, made by these associations, was $7,425,900 at the beginning of February, an increase of $2,728,160 over the total a year ago.

Savings invested in these insured institutions had risen to $3,709,900 in the early part of February, an increase of $1,251,500 over the figure of February 15, 1937.

Assets of the associations amounted to $8,518,600 on February 1, the increase being $2,570,800 in twelve months.

Federal associations in North Carolina are located in Asheville, Burlington, Durham, Fayetteville, Gastonia, Greenville, Hendersonville, Mooresville, Raleigh, Rocky Mount, Tryon and Winston-Salem.

'SOS' IS GIVEN NEW MEANING

Distress Cry Interpreted to Mean "Save Our Soil"

Raleigh, Feb. 18.—The old "SOS" distress cry of the sea has been brought on land and given a new meaning—"Save Our Soils."

Alarmed at the rapid rate which the soils of this country are being exhausted and eroded, soil conservationists have mapped out a huge program designed to give new life to old soils and to stop the ravages of erosion.

Much of the work is being accomplished through the co-operation of farmers in the Agricultural Conservation program. In complying with provisions of this program, farmers agree to carry out certain soil-conserving and soil-building practices.

In a new bulletin just issued by the Extension Service at State College, five specialists have collaborated to suggest to growers how to carry out the practices to best advantage in building up their farmland.

E. C. Blair, extension agronomist, discusses soil-building crops; J. A. Arey, Extension dairy specialist, tells of developing pastures; R. W. Graeber, Extension Forester, explains farm forestry practices; H. R. Niswonger and L. P. Watson, Extension Horticulturists, discuss fruits and vegetables; and D. S. Weaver, Extension Agricultural Engineer, outlines terracing as an erosion control measure.

Q. Must an employee be employed continuously and uninterruptedly during the five-year period required to qualify for monthly benefits? A. No. One gainful employment in each of five different calendar years is sufficient to meet the five-year minimum requirement.

Q. Will monthly old-age insurance payments be made to everyone after the age of 65? A.
