Peace Action

PLATFORM OF CAMPAIGN FOR WORLD ECONOMIC COOPERATION

The National Peace Conference has adopted for its platform a statement made by Cordell Hull. The platform follows:

"Many other nations have likewise made a contribution to a reversal of destructive and disrupted trends in international economic relations. A redoubling of efforts in this direction is the next indispensable step in the restoration and expansion of world trade.

"It is also the next step for world peace. Many nations are caught today in a stifling net of neutral distrust, of political hostility, of exhausting and suicidal race for military power of continuing economic warfare. A demobilization of all of these armaments—moral, political, military and economic—is necessary for durable peace."

Ireland Saves Its Trees
Dublin (AP)—North and south Ireland may disagree over politics, but they have one thing in common—reforestation.

Both have extensive nurseries, and both have pursued so vigorously a policy of planting every unused acre that today nearly 50,000,000 trees are in growth.

The countries confidently predict that one day they will become the world's biggest timber storehouses.

FARM ACT AIDS 'LITTLE' MAN

Small Grower Given Special Consideration in Bill

Raleigh, March 7.—The small grower has been given special consideration under the new farm act, according to E. Y. Floyd, AAA executive officer at State College.

Both the acreage allotments and the proposed marketing quotas would require less adjustments for smaller growers than for larger growers.

And the payments offered under the agricultural conservation program will be increased for small growers, Floyd explained.

On a farm with 25 acres or more in cropland, the five-acre tobacco acreage allotment cannot be more than 25 per cent of the tillable acreage.

But on a farm with only four tillable acres, the tobacco allotment could be up to 45 per cent of the cropland if the tobacco base acreage is large enough to justify this amount.

For other small farms, the percentage of cropland that could be planted to tobacco would vary with the amount of cropland—the percentage increasing as the acreage of cropland decreases.

A different method will be used in working out cotton allotments, but the principle is the same; that is, small growers will receive bigger allotments, according to the amount of cotton they have been growing.

Under the conservation program, a farmer whose payment is $50 or less will receive his regular amount plus an additional 40 per cent. That is, a $20 payment would be increased to $28.

Above $20, the rate of increasing the payments tapers off, as for example a $40 payment would be increased to $52, and a $136 payment would be increased to $200. No increases will be made in payments of $200 or more.

10 CSPA Delegates Leave For New York

Ten delegates who will represent Greenville high school at the Columbia Scholastic Press Association convention in New York City left by automobile Sunday, March 6, to spend a week.

V. M. Mulholland, faculty adviser and Mrs. J. H. Rose will accompany the group. Mary Belle Robertson, Elizabeth Meadows, Doris Duval, Louise Kilgo, Myra Blount, James Whitfield, Thornton Ryan, Allen Taylor, Baxter Clark and Howard Hodges will represent Greenville at the convention. Automobiles will be furnished by Howard Hodges, V. M. Mulholland, and Tom Wilson.

The journalism students look forward to this annual event with great anticipation because the trip provides real experience for the delegates. Since the convention does not start until Thursday, the students will have ample time to take in many places of interest and amusement. At the meeting the students will have the opportunity of hearing many famous men.

prominent in the field of journalism. Since several thousand students from schools all over the country will attend this gathering, the delegates will have the privilege of meeting people of their own age with a mutual interest in journalism. The knowledge obtained from the speakers and the ideas exchanged among student writers will result in great improvement in the different papers.

Copies of Green Lights and other competing papers are already in the hands of the judges and their criticisms will form a part of the group discussions.

The delegates will visit various newspaper offices in New York City, where the process of publishing a daily may be witnessed.

In the 1937 competition among papers of its class, Green Lights received a first class recognition at Columbia University. In October, 1937, a cup for the most perfect school paper in its class at the Southern Intercollegiate Press Association in Lexington was presented to the staff.

RALEIGH LAST WEEK

"This is not merely a formal request for the observance of this week, but it is intended as an urgent appeal to the whole citizenship of North Carolina to enter actively into the plan to make this week tell mightily in the promotion of public safety on our highways throughout the entire year," he wrote in a statement to the press regarding the purpose of the campaign.

Raleigh showed its devotion to college athletics in the manner in which it supported the Southern Conference basketball tournament Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Despite the fact that the two outstanding favorites with the crowd—the University's Tar Heels and State's Red Terrors—were eliminated on the first day, spectators overflowed the huge Memorial Auditorium for both semi-finals and final matches.

On Friday Governor Hoey made the last major appointment provided for by the 1937 General Assembly when he named Frederick C. Handy, Raleigh insurance man, to be director of the Bureau of Identification and Investigation. Salary of the new appointee is understood to be $3,600.

Utility Commissioner Stanley Winborne on Thursday announced a slash in wholesale power rates by the Carolina Power and Light Company, from which fourteen municipalities of the state will benefit to the extent of $38,000 annually.

It was the first power rate reduction announcement in about a month, previous reductions having been put in effect by the Tide Water and Duke companies.

Candidates for judgeships and solicitors posts continued to file with the State Board of Elections, confirming previous predictions that these races will feature this year's primary.

MIAMI WOULD BE KNOWN FOR ITS POINCIANAS

Miami, Fla.—(AP)—Miami, tiring of its boom-time slogan, "The Magic City," wishes to become known as "Royal Poinciana City."

As a step toward this goal the Chamber of Commerce asked school children to gather seeds of the royal poinciana tree. The youngsters brought in a truckload. The committee turned the seeds over to the two railroads serving Miami to be planted along their rights of way near the city.

In the spring the royal poinciana becomes a mass of vivid color.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coom

Hollywood—The Bartholomew's return to court—his time to ask that daddy's percentage of Freddie's salary be trimmed—doesn't even interest Freddie. If you can believe his Aunt Mylicent.

Says she: "He hasn't been concerned about the court troubles since it was settled that he and I wouldn't be separated. . . . When I came in from court yesterday the only question he asked was, 'Was it a hard day, Girl?'"

By this time, of course, you wouldn't expect a boy to get excited about routine. Freddie's new love is flying. He's done a bit at a dual-control plane, while Aunt Mylicent shuddered but went along. He's grounded now—by studio order, he thinks.

Incidentally, there's a nice story about Freddie and Miles Mander, the English author-actor-director playing his miserly uncle in "Kidnapped." Mander was the first movie director to encourage Aunt Mylicent in her effort to place Freddie in pictures. He played a bit in a Mander film in England when he was six. That encouragement lasted four years—until "Copperfield." And the Bartholomews kept the "Kidnapped" role open until Mander recovered from an illness and could play it.

One of the best jobs of salvage in recent times is that done on the career of Robert Taylor. The young man seemed finished after a poor picture and that marriage of Great Love stuff that marked his cross-country voyage to England. On his return trip there weren't any schoolgirls hiding under his state-room bed. The picture he brought back, "A Yank at Oxford," is clicking hugely—and the athletic, virile role is helping. This, of course is the planned objective, but Bob has had no little to do with it himself. His attitude in taking pretty merciless kidding has won friends among the kidders.

Another Survivor
Rudy Vallee is another idol of the famous who's survived a lot of heckling and, apparently, won a sounder foundation of popularity.

Asked him the other day, on "The Gold Diggers of Paris" set, if he thought the judicious use of his good right arm on several be-headed occasions was responsible.

He thought not.

"The only thing that mattered," he said, "is what has gone into the microphone on my program each week. I've been fortunate in being able to keep the music coming the way a number of people like it—and that's what really counts."

Take it like me!

OIL INDUSTRY BACKS SAFETY

Warns Against Fly-By-Night Campaigns However

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, March 7.—North Carolina's campaign for highway safety, emphasized by Governor Hoey's proclamation of next week as "Safety Week" was today enthusiastically endorsed by State Senator S. Gilmer Sparger, secretary of the North Carolina Petroleum Industries committee and chairman of the Senate Committee on Roads in the 1937 General Assembly.

"Education is now and always will be the best approach to the problem of highway safety," said Mr. Sparger. "Governor Hoey and other state officials have the right approach to the matter in encouraging continuous educational efforts. Engineering ingenuity can never entirely compensate for human error and the possibility of mechanical failure," he continued. "There were accidents—fatal accidents—in the horse and buggy days even when a poor driver couldn't possibly drive a mule over an embankment. There are fatal accidents in the home and even in the bath tub, and yet no one has suggested that the fullest use of this sanitary device be curtailed or that it be provided with a rough non-skid surface because of careless use."

He warned against the "emotionalism" of many fly-by-night safety campaigns conducted primarily for the purpose of building up sales for the promoters' products or services.

"Many organizations, instead of cooperating with constructive educational efforts to foster highway safety—such as those of Governor Hoey, Major Arthur Fulk, head of the highway patrol, and other state officials—ignore that important phase of the matter to promote the use of expensive road materials, costly schemes for highway lighting, or alleged safety gadgets for automobiles," he said.

Despite the fact that there was a greater number of deaths in 1937 than in any previous year in North Carolina, Mr. Sparger pointed out that the highways were safer than ever before when figured on a basis of fatalities per mile traveled by autotals.

MILLIONS FISH IN HATCHERIES

Five Cold-Water Hatcheries Operated by State

Raleigh, March 7.—Esoy trout by the millions are darting about the rearing pools in the various state fish hatcheries maintained by the Game and Inland Fishing division of the Department of Conservation and Development, according to John D. Clark, chief of the division. Almost 5,000,000 trout have been hatched out already at the five cold-water hatcheries and will be held some of the trout until late next fall when they will have reached fingerling size and be ready to release.

"This is the biggest batch of brook, rainbow and speckled trout we have ever had and should help greatly to increase the trout population in the creeks and rivers in the western part of the state," Chalk said. "Most of these should be large enough to liberate by September or October, although some may be held over to attain more size before being released."

For the past year the Game and Inland Fishing Division has been conducting some experiments by holding some of the trout until they attain more size before liberating them to determine if there is greater survival of the larger fish. Indications are that some of the trout may be held in the pools until they attain a length of five or six inches before being liberated.

The five cold-water fish hatcheries and the number of trout turned out this spring are as follows: Walnut, 1,600,000; Marion, 700,000; Roaring Gap, 1,400,000; Boone, 1,300,000 and Mt. Mitchell, 400,000. The trout hatched at the Mt. Mitchell hatchery are smaller than the others and develop more slowly because the water is so much colder up there, Chalk explained. But these trout are regarded as more hardy than those reared in the hatcheries at lower altitudes.

It's Odd But It's Science

New York.—The question is when did engineers learn to "talk." The Engineers' Club of New York City is noted for conversational power of its members. They are the tops of engineering from all over the world.

But when it was proposed to start this club, just fifty years ago, this objection was made:

"You can't have an engineer's club because engineers don't like to talk to each other."

The objection is believed to have referred to a tendency of engineers not to talk about social and economic welfare. That is what engineers lately have been preaching as the coming topic of greatest importance for their profession.

It appears that some time in the last few years, engineers have learned to "talk" about the social consequences of their work. They are the big applicators of scientific discovery.

They have decided to look to the social effects of their material works. Byron Eldred, president of the club puts it this way:

"The pen is mightier than the sword, and now in the last fifty years the 'sledge' rule has become mightier than the pen."

Eldred has learned to "talk."

Many historians rank the invention of the hand-mill for grinding grain as the second greatest event in the march of civilization. The discovery of fire is ranked first.

Winborne Scores On Power Fronts With Lower Rates

Raleigh, March 7.—Without intimating in the least that the moves were made or timed with politics a forethought, it certainly may be said that Stanley Winborne's chances of re-election without serious opposition have not been hurt by the fact that within the short span of one month he has announced power rate reductions by each of the three major companies and on each of the three main classes of electrical energy.

The Utility Commissioner's latest announcement was of a reduction in the Carolina Power and Light Company's wholesale rates on power for resale by municipalities or co-operative associations.

Previously he had been able to tell the world that the Tide Water was reducing its residential rates—the small home owner and renter getting the biggest benefit. Next came the big reduction (in the neighborhood of a million dollars) in the Duke Power Company's rates to commercial users.

And so Mr. Winborne has accomplished the undoubtedly real and valuable feat of getting voluntary or semi-voluntary reduction from all three power companies on all three kinds of current, wholesale, residential and commercial.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York.—If you were to wander unannounced into the lower part of the Majestic theatre you would come upon this scene: Lupe Velez in slacks and a tight blue sweater; Lily Holman wearing smoked glasses; Clifton Webb seated at a breakfast table but in reality is something the Shuberts thought up; Rex O'Malley in a leather over shirt with side vents making him look like a modern Robin Hood, and a number of other people including a director, a press agent, and a house manager.

Most of them are rehearsing a scene from a new Shubert play. Miss Holman is across the table from Mr. Webb. "Let's take that scene where the letter comes in," suggests the director. "Okay," replies Miss Holman. "See what we can do with her bosom, then stop." What a dreary place to "keep a secret," she says to the director. "Don't I have a pocket in my apron, something?"

"Of course, darling, of course, and we must make it large enough so that the letter doesn't fall out."

After the scene Miss Velez comes over and Rex O'Malley puts his arms around her. "Car! Rex," calls the director. "Lupe once killed a man." "Don't you, Lupe-de-doop?" "Not for public consumption, then me, darling, for taking them away." Then Lupe leans over and bites the director so hard on the arm that he shrieks at the top of his voice. "Confound you, Lupe!" The fiery emerald Lupe replies in a low voice. "She tucks her sweater into her slacks, which are dove grey with a zipper up the side, and hangers up to the director: 'Well, what's holding us up, big boy?'"

"Come on, everybody," he calls. "Wherefore Miss Holman still wearing the smoked-glasses although it is twilight down there, and O'Malley sit down at the breakfast table." Webb and Lupe wander off into the background and stare into a fireplace which had either a real fire or a very good imitation. I couldn't tell which.

"Now, begin with the letter," says the director hopefully. But at the moment a chauffeur with a smart cap came downstairs and glanced significantly at the players. "How long can you rehearse, Lupe?" the director calls. "Five o'clock," she says. "It's that now," he tells her. "Where do we rehearse tonight," Miss Holman wants to know. "At the Shubert office, 8 o'clock. Be there, everybody."

Miss Holman goes out and is driven away in her limousine. Lupe goes out and gets into a cab. Webb and O'Malley and the rest pile into automobiles. I shove off in the direction of Broadway, walking.

PERSHING—Last of The World War Commanders

In 1905, before his second tour in the Philippines, Pershing had married Helen F. Warren of Wyoming. Ordered to the Mexican border in 1915, he left his family in San Francisco. The night of Aug. 27 their quarters in the Presidio burned. Mrs. Pershing and three daughters perished. A nurse saved their son.

Burying his grief under work, Pershing led 10,000 men into the Mexican mountains on the trail of the bandit Villa, who had been plundering American towns on the border. After a year, the trail vanished. Pershing returned to the United States to command the southern department of the army.

When the United States entered the World War, President Wilson gave Pershing the supreme command. Under "Black Jack" the A.E.F. grew to 2,000,000 men by November, 1918, and he directed all U. S. military activity in cooperation with the Allied armies. But he credited victory to the rank and file.

With his retirement from active army service in 1924, General Pershing devoted himself to patriotic activities and the publication of his memoirs. His two-volume account of his work in France described in detail his bitter struggle to keep the A.E.F. an independent unit within the Allied forces.

In May, 1937, the sixth General of the Armies in all U. S. history represented the United States at the coronation of George VI. Later, on a final visit to France, he spoke at the dedication of a monument to himself at Versailles. Home, he went to Tucson, Ariz., for the winter. He was 77 in September.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL
 Raleigh, March 7—Fourteen regularly calendared and one special set case will make up the docket for oral argument before the Supreme court this week.
 Only cases from the Fourth District (there are ten of them) will be called Tuesday, but commencing Wednesday cases from either fourth or seventeenth will be called.
 Outstanding in importance, if not in general interest, is the specially set case of State vs. Adams, from Graham, which involves a nice legal question of jurisdiction as between state and Federal governments.
 A. M. Adams, who testified he is a "farm agent of the Cherokee Indian Agency employed by the United States government" was convicted of destroying a bridge on a carway for which right-of-way is alleged to have been condemned by the state.
 The defendant, in his appeal, contends that the state has no jurisdiction over the carway, because it is on land owned by the United States government as trustee for the Indians and also he contends that the state has no jurisdiction to try him because he was a Federal officer acting under his Federal agency.
 Total drivers license revocations rose to 15,635 as result of last week's activities at the Motor Vehicle division.
 Seven candidates are now formally in the field for the three House seats to which Guilford is entitled. All three incumbents are trying again.
 The list of candidates includes John Caffey, Joe T. Carruthers, Jr., Royel Piskens, J. K. Harrison, Rupert L. Bowman, John A. Suits and L. R. Herbin.
 State authorities really mean something in the Safety Campaign they are conducting. Donald Hocutt, assistant director of the Safety division, plans a tour of eastern cities Monday and Tuesday in connection with the "Safety Week" proclaimed by Governor Clyde R. Hoey.
 He will contact local officials in each city and urge them to inaugurate a real and comprehensive program of education.
 On his return from the east, Mr. Hocutt will likely undertake a similar trip through the western section.
 Representative Fred Thomas of Harnett has announced he will be a candidate for the State Senate this year.
 Thomas voted against a state-wide liquor referendum in the 1937 session and advocates of county control will support him strongly for the upper house this time.
 Despite the fact that the number of automobiles on the roads of the country has increased 43 per cent since 1925, the highway fatalities per 10,000,000 gallons of gasoline consumed fell from 28.4 to 20.4. Mathematically highway deaths would have increased because of the great influx of cars. If the 1925 ratio had prevailed in 1937, in addition, 10,000 persons would have lost their lives on the highways.

WHAT IT MEANS: Spying On America's Defense Secrets

By ALEXANDER B. GEORGE
 (AP Feature Service Writer)
 Washington — To your Uncle Sam this spy business is an over-inflated old world custom. He recalls that the Babylonians and the Israelites had some espionage "smoothies." He also knows spies have never been a serious threat to this country.
 While G-men recently got a lot of publicity for arresting a United States army deserter, an American soldier and a German girl on espionage charges, seasoned military men will tell you that:
 (1) About 90 per cent of the so-called military "secrets" that spies obtain and try to peddle for a price, are available through regular channels of unguarded military information—published reports and articles in service magazines.
 (2) Vital information is so guarded that it's a 100-to-1 shot your average spy can't get within shooting distance of it. These secrets are not available to lower rank officers. Few copies of important plans are made, the officers in possession of them give receipts and their is a constant check on their safekeeping.
 (3) Popular estimates that 10,000 spies are on the job in Europe today are melodramatic exaggerations. The arms race between elbow-to-elbow nations has greatly increased espionage activity but nine out of every ten so-called spies are amateurs whose reports are of scant value if not downright undependable.
 (4) The operations of a capable espionage agent rarely come to public attention. Few of them are linked with military organization because such affiliation would make their detection easier and because establishment of such a connection would discredit the military organization involved.
 (5) Women operatives may give a romantic touch to the secret service but most espionage agents do not rate women's services. In war or peace, in the class of those of proficient men. Beautiful women sometimes are effective trappers of smitten officers but scarcely one out of 100 officers is gullible enough to be thus duped by women.
 counter-spy system was highly developed.
 In wartime, military spying is regarded as a highly honorable profession providing, of course, the spy is working for his own country. It has been estimated there were 40,000 spies in Europe during the World war but military men say one-tenth of that number would be closer to facts.
 Death—In Wartime
 The pay for free-lance espionage work is higher during war its value the danger and the obstacles being greater. Death is the customary penalty for the captured wartime spy.
 Since the World war only two persons have been tried and convicted under the U. S. espionage act of 1917. The first was Harry Thompson of Baltimore, former petty officer in the navy, who was convicted in 1936 and sentenced to 155 years in prison for selling information to an officer in the Japanese navy.
 The second was former Lieutenant John S. Farnsworth, who last year began a 4 to 12 year term for conspiracy with two Japanese naval aides to communicate U. S. naval secrets.

WE THANK YOU
 Our subscription campaign that ended Saturday night was a success from every point of view, and we take this opportunity to thank not only the contestants who took part in the campaign, but the public at large for the expression of confidence in us by subscribing to our paper. While the work of checking the final reports has not been completed, the campaign as a whole has added around 500 new subscribers to our list bringing it to the 3,200 mark, the largest since the depression. It is our sincere hope that we will make our paper attractive enough to these new readers that they will want to continue permanently on our list. Our increased number of readers will prove a distinct benefit to those merchants who use The Reflector as their advertising medium.

THE WINSLOW TRAGEDY
 Naturally this community was shocked yesterday at the news of the tragedy in Raleigh that cost the life of Phillip Winslow, of this city, but all the mystery surrounding same together with the conflicting reports leaves a question in the minds of our people as to what really transpired. State College authorities as well as Wake County officials should leave nothing undone to find out the true facts in the case.

ATTEND FARM MEETING
 Farmers are urged not to miss the opportunity of hearing the farm control measure explained at the college here Wednesday night. If the farmers do not vote overwhelmingly for crop control at next Saturday's election we believe it will be because they do not understand the provisions of the law. It is to the advantage of our farmers as well as to the business of this entire section that the tobacco crop this year be reduced to a point that fair prices will be maintained.
 Attend Wednesday's meeting, get the facts and then on next Saturday vote for crop control this year.

RUSSIA GIVES PRIZES TO SPEED PRODUCTION
 Moscow (AP)—Premiums and prizes have been awarded to 14,000 coal miners in the Donetz basin by Lazar Kaganovich, commissar of heavy industry, to stimulate lagging production.
 When Kaganovich was commissar of railways the policy was to shoot red-brothers who upset the system by accidents and bad work. Now his successor, Alexei Bakulin, also is awarding prizes. He recently distributed 200 watches to railway Stakhanovites (shock workers).
 Darwin spent five years as a naturalist on board a survey ship in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans before undertaking the scientific researches that made him famous.

The Famed Mata Hari
 The famed Mata Hari, dancer-siren who in the World War wheeled information from allied officers she had vamped, was not a great spy. Her crude tactics and her passion for display made detection by the French military intelligence comparatively easy.
 Even Belle Boyd, the darling of the Confederacy, who daringly carried important military information through the Union lines, would have been up against a different proposition in the World War, where the

EMPIRE FOR A LADY

SYNO SIS: Love for a young English girl has plunged my uncle, James Clyde, and myself (Paul Thorne) into a desperate enterprise. With Christine Forester's support Clyde becomes rajah of tropical Balingong, throwing out the Malays, enemies of our Dyaks. Kentionen, the sultan's representative, strikes quickly, and I lead a jungle campaign. I know I can't take Christine away from Clyde, so it doesn't matter if this black nightmare never ends.

We were through the blockade and the river was empty once more except for the perpetual pelting of the rain. The shrieking prau line of the white Tuan moved up the Tomarrup still, and there were dead men in the current behind. Christine was holding out her sun-browned hand to me, and it was a beautiful hand. But she was speaking of the Rajah Clyde. "That is a brave man—and something more than that... I can imagine a woman loving such a man..."

Those words of hers kept coming back to me, clearer than the beat of agons or the drumming of the monsoon rain. "That is a brave man—and something more..."

"Tuan, you are hurt! You are bleeding, Tuan!"

I had been nicked under the arm by a spear, and though it amounted to nothing the slight wound would not close, but kept seeping a little blood day after day. "I am bleeding because I have too much blood."

"Tuan, we will never take another town."

"How many men have we?"

"Tuan, there are seven tens and six."

"With that many men I can sweep this island—and all islands!"

"But Tuan—"

"My skin felt strange, and my ears were ringing, but I reached upward and caught the cord of the Tenyalang limat which circled the neck of the speaker. "Are you afraid to die?"

"No, Tuan!"

"Get the praus into the river again—we're going on."

Once I raised my eyes to a break of moonlight along a ragged cloud bank, a crooked silver scrawl upon the sky. Then the fever cloud closed again and I could not see the sky. Instead I was seeing a girl lying asleep in a deck chair, with the folds of a grey robe falling from one shoulder. I wanted to touch her, but though I could see her so well and though she seemed so near, I knew that she was far away—as far as the moon and as unreachable.

Surrounded!

SOON she would be Rancee of Balingong—perhaps she was that already, in fact as well as in name. Balingong could not be the stinking shanty town on pilings that some part of my mind remembered—how could it be since she was there? I saw vague glittering cities that must have come out of the Arabian Nights.

"Tuan, the river is very narrow. We cannot get through here, Tuan. They can almost reach us with their spears."

"Leave your paddlers in each prau and take to the banks, half of you on each side. I'll go on in mid-stream. You must keep abreast of me along the shore, and you must clean the jungle out as you go. When I call to you, stop and lie down; when I call gain, get up and go on."

The worst of the fighting was there in those tangles, after I had to send the skirmishers ashore. It seemed to me that that fighting lasted many weeks, but I believe that it was only one day. I was still bleeding a little—but I had not been wounded any more.

I seem to remember stopping and going on, stopping and going on, while my three Tenyalang rifles kept cracking sporadically in the jungle, and I could hear the shouting and the thrashing in the brush when the parangmen fought.

(Christine, Christine, I must destroy this; I must go on, and on, trying to destroy this black hell. I must break a way through it so there will be a way in here for a little light. For you must always have light. There must be sunlight on your quick hands, and sunlight weaving gold through your hair, and the water must reflect gold, ripples of light across your eyelids, across your lips. There is a light behind your eyes that I have never seen; it must come into your smile. You must be happy again. There has to be a way. There will be a way, if we go on; for you are going to be guarded forever by a new kind of Kamang.)

"Tuan, we must go back! It's there! It's ahead!"

"What is it?"

"The great village, Tuan! They are all there—ten times as many as we've killed! They're all around us! There are Malays! Malays!"

"Well, that's fine. Send the Tenyalang forward into my boat."

"Tuan, the Tenyalangs are dead! We have lost their guns!"

"That's all right. Parangs are better, anyway. Against Malays. Bring up the other praus; we're going on."

"Tuan, we cannot Tuan—we—we—we—"

Through the mists that were not all rain I saw it then—the long stockades, waist high, such as the Malays build.

"Drive those praus ashore. Drive those paddles in! Damnation, you will go on! Get up that beach!"

Winston-Salem Cagers Beat Bethel In Finals

Unique Furniture Five Wins Over Pitt Entry, 51-31

By BERT MOYE

The Unique Furniture Makers of Winston-Salem, A. A. U. Basketball champions of North Carolina, annexed another championship to their list here Saturday night when they defeated the Bethel Red Raiders 51-31 in the finals to take championship honors in the Gold Ball basketball tournament sponsored by East Carolina Teachers' College.

The furniture makers literally coasted to victory over the Bethel boys and never during the entire game were threatened. At the end of the first quarter they were leading 17-9 and when the half way period came had a 30-19 lead. It was just a case of where the best ball team won, and that team was those furniture makers which snowed the Bethel quint under.

Donald Brock, center and Dalrymple, guard, with 16 and 11 points respectively, led the Unique's attack. Fenner Wallace, forward, led the Bethel's attack with seven points.

GABBY HARTNETT obtained a hit in each of 26 straight games, to lead the National league in this department. Another Chicago Cub, Augie Galan, scored at least one run in each of 11 successive games, to do better than anyone else in that specialty.

N. Y. Stock Market
New York, March 7.—(AP)—Leading stocks retreated slowly in today's markets as traders found little in the financial news picture to inspire the buying urge.
Feeble rallying signs in evidence at the opening, soon gave way to moderate selling that brought setbacks running to a point or more.

SAFETY URGED

BY GROUP HERE
"The property damage alone last year from the highway wrecks that caused a loss of 1,123 lives and injuries to 7,790 amounts to as much as a five-cent tax levy on the $100 valuation of property in North Carolina, or in other words the most conservative estimate of the loss in dollars and cents runs well over a million dollars," said Secretary Skinner.
Mayor M. K. Blount has called upon the citizens of Greenville to observe "Safety Week."
Mr. Hocutt is seeking to organize a Safety Council for Greenville and while here conferred with several interested citizens of the city.

N. C. Republicans Perk Up as State Convention Nears

Democrats Do Most of Talking in Raleigh, But Elsewhere Over State GOP Laying Plans
Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL.
Raleigh, March 7.—Here in Raleigh, where Democratic officials and employes do all the talking for publication, not much is heard about the Republican state convention to be held March 16 in Charlotte, but all over the State G. O. P. partisans are beginning to perk up a bit and wonder if they can't do something about the low estate to which they have sunk.

MAY KEEP JOB AND GET FUND

Retirement Not Necessary for Old-Age Payment
Rocky Mount, March 7.—"Employees who have reached the age of 65 since January 1, 1937, need not retire from covered employment before filing claims for lump-sum payments to which they may be entitled under the Social Security Act," George N. Adams, manager of the Rocky Mount field office, announced today.
Many employees have confused the requirements for lump-sum payments with those for monthly old-age insurance benefits.
"It is true," Mr. Adams said, "that monthly payments, which will start in 1942, will not be made to persons who continue to work in covered employment, but this requirement does not apply to persons who make claim for lump-sum payments."
In order that lump-sum payments may be made to qualified persons who have reached 65, since January 1, 1937, it is necessary only that such persons apply to the nearest Field Office of the Board. "Every possible assistance will be furnished," Mr. Adams stated, "in filling out the few simple forms that are required. There is, of course, no charge made for such a service."

Present plans call for the Republicans to come away from their state-wide gathering with a brand new party chairman, a duly endorsed candidate for Governor, and a candidate for the United States Senate seat now held by Robert R. Reynolds and a ringing denunciation of Old John Barleycorn and all his working including pointedly county liquor stores.
It is in the cards—and upsets in G. O. P. party organization politics are scarcer than old maids with oomph—for Jake Newell, Charlotte lawyer and long-time foe of Demom on Rum to succeed comparatively young W. C. Meekins as state chairman; and it is also written in the advance press releases that Irving Tucker of Whiteville shall unfurl his banner in the Senate Campaign.

The House had eight, the Senate two minority party seats.
A glance at the returns from the 1936 general elections will show that there is some basis for G. O. P. hopes along those lines, as it would not require political miracle working to swing something like twenty counties in the Republican column, given good candidates and good luck.
