FDR EXPLAINS DISMISSAL OF TVA CHAIRMAN

Defends Action Pending Inquiry Into Valley Authority

JACKSON HOLDS FDR HAD POWER

Acting Attorney General Recounts Morgan's defiance of Executive's Authority

Washington, March 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, advising Congress today that he had ousted Arthur Morgan from TVA, said it was "clearly the right" of the legislature to make "any fair inquiry" into TVA's administration of policies.

"But I can not in the meanwhile," he said, "abdicate my constitutional duty to take care that the laws be carefully executed."

Mr. Roosevelt ordered Morgan's removal from the Tennessee Valley Authority chairmanship, yesterday to become effective today. Simultaneously the President announced the elevation of H. A. Morgan, now vice chairman, to the chairmanship.

His message on TVA made no recommendation for filling the vacancy on the board, but some informed persons believed he would nominate James L. Fly, TVA general counsel.

With his message Mr. Roosevelt sent to the capital a letter from Robert Jackson, the acting Attorney General, upholding the President's right to remove TVA board members from office.

Court Of Opinion Jury Lists Unlawfully Drawn By Pitt Commissioners

In all probability indictments against Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst and Deputy Sheriff Herbert Harris will be set aside upon convening of Superior Court at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Judge Henry A. Grady, presiding over the session, after a motion by counsel for the two officers, expressed the opinion that the present Grand Jury, which returned the indictments, is void and not a legal jury.

Two separate bills of indictment were returned against the sheriff, one of them charging him with accepting bribes and the other with failure or refusal to carry out the duties of his office, including turning over to the county money belonging to it which had come into his hands by virtue of his office.

The indictment regarding failure to execute the duties of the office applied only to the sheriff, no bill containing such charges having been returned against Deputy Harris.

Upon convening of court this afternoon, Solicitor D. M. Clark made a motion that the case be set for trial next Tuesday morning and that a special venire from another county be drawn to try the case.

Before any action on this motion Judge Albion Dunn of counsel for the two officers presented a motion challenging array of the Grand Jury and seeking abatement of the indictment on the grounds of irregularities on the part of the county commissioners in selection of the jury list from which the Grand Jury was chosen.

PLEA IS SENT TO INSURGENTS BY POPE PIUS

Urges Moderation In Bombing of Civilian Population

ARMY MEANTIME CONTINUES PUSH

General Franco Shifts Rebel Campaign To North to Liberate Provincial Capital

Vatican City, March 23.—(AP)—Pope Pius made two appeals to Insurgent General Francisco Franco to use moderation in the air bombing of the civilian population in the Spanish Civil War, the Vatican newspaper disclosed today.

Great Britain and France asked the Pope to join in appeals to Franco, after last week's bombings of Barcelona, the Governmental capital, in which at least 872 persons were killed. Monday, U. S. Secretary of State Hull expressed a "sense of horror at the Barcelona slaughter."

The paper said the Pope made "a warm appeal" to the Spanish Insurgent chieftain in February and received a "reassuring reply."

On March 21 after new bombardments of Barcelona the Pope ordered the Holy See's representative in Salamanca to make a new appeal to the general.

Many Victims of Accidents

Statistics Show 1,633 Fatally Injured in One Year

Raleigh, March 23.—Preventable accidents are killing off North Carolinians at the rate of more than 1,600 a year, a study of vital statistics compiled by the State Board of Health shows.

During the year 1937, for which complete figures have been compiled, 1,633 persons were fatally injured. The total for the preceding year was 1,610.

Automobiles do their share of removing the earth's inhabitants, but there are other preventable routes taken by humanity. For example, last year's total of those who died from burns was 244, compared with 203 the preceding year. In 1937 there were 153 persons drowned, 88 died from firearms accidents and 96 were victims of railroad accidents other than those connected with automobiles. In two brackets—accidents on railroads associated with automobiles—decreases were shown. In 1936, 109 persons were killed in railroad accidents, as such, and 43 in combination railroad and automobile, as compared with 35 in 1937.

So far this year, reports compiled through February show 231 persons have been the victims of preventable accidents in North Carolina, including those listed above. This is 12 less than had been reported the first two months of 1937. Notice. (Continued on page six)

Clue Uncovered In $80 Robbery Here

BYRD SEEKING TO ALTER BILL

Offers Amendment to Continue Comptroller General Post

Washington, March 23.—(AP)—Senator Byrd (D.-Va.), declared today the Comptroller General had earned the displeasure of the administration by stopping what the Virginian called "illegal expenditures."

He urged the Senate not to destroy the office and "give all the powers to prevent illegal government expenditures to the director of the budget, an appointee of the President."

With a final Senate vote on the pending executive reorganization bill probable before nightfall, Byrd proposed an amendment which would continue the Comptroller General's office, established in 1921.

Byrd's amendment and a move to shelve the bill by sending it back to committee were the major obstacles to Senate disposition of the measure.

Before the reorganization will debate began, both Senate and House received from President Roosevelt. (Continued on Page Six)

Control Counties Seek Oust Moore

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, March 23.—Cutlar Moore today flatly denied persistent and detailed reports that he has tendered or plans to tender, his resignation; but simultaneously with his denial advocates of county liquor stores intensified a campaign to force him out as chairman of the State Liquor Board.

Reports that Moore would like to resign apparently originated from usually well-informed sources in his home county of Robeson and despite his denial they carried the earmarks of authenticity. It was stated in circumstantial detail that the board chairman some two or three weeks ago handed his resignation to Governor Clyde R. Hoey, but that he was persuaded to reconsider the matter and remain at his post, at least for an indefinite period.

These Robeson reports indicated that Moore had been offered, and would accept, a connection with O. Max Gardner, former Governor and a brother-in-law of Governor Hoey. Asked about them, however, Moore unequivocally denied that he had tendered his resignation or that he contemplated quitting his post. "I wouldn't resign now, even if I wanted to," he said. He did not say so in that many words, but it was obvious that he felt that any discussion of possible resignation would smack of quitting under fire. "I haven't even talked to Max Gardner in three or four months," he said when told of the report that he intended forming a connection with the former Governor.

At the same time Moore was denying the reports, it was evident that all is far from serene on the liquor board front, and that the control forces are determined to have a new chairman if it is humanly possible.

They do not like Moore—have never liked him since his appointment and show no signs of liking him any better as things move on. They claim that Moore has adopted a Hitler-like attitude ever since he was appointed and that his conduct of the liquor commission has been such as to create friction at every turn and to bring the control system into disrepute.

On practically every subject which has come up the State Board chairman has been at loggerheads with the county boards. Prices, audits, advertising, formation of an ABC association—each one of these subjects has brought fresh discord. (Continued on page four)

SAYS PROGRESS DEPENDENT ON HIGHER WAGES

Roosevelt Calls on Industrial South To Boost Pay

SETS FORTH VIEW IN GEORGIA TALK

Declares Prosperity Is Being Retarded Chiefly by Selfishness on Part of Few

Gainesville, Ga., March 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt in a speech that admittedly surprised many of his hearers, called on the industrial South today to increase wages and buying power and asserted national progress and prosperity were being retarded chiefly by "selfishness on the part of a few."

With several opponents of the wage-hour bill in his outdoor audience, the chief executive declared bluntly that Georgia and the lower South must "face the facts"—that wage earners in the entire area get wages "which are far too low."

He said the good things that come from higher wages and purchasing power would be lost to the South "if the opposite progress—if we believe in our hearts that the feudal system is still the best system."

"When you come down to it," he added, "there is little difference between the feudal system and the Fascist system. If you believe in the one, you lean to the other."

The President spoke to a large crowd in dedicating Roosevelt square a civic center of new buildings and parkways that rose from the ruins of a tornado two years ago with the help of Federal funds.

His outspoken views on wages brought private expressions of surprise from several national legislators in the audience. They said they expected the President to make a different kind of speech.

Senator George who voted against the wage hour bill in the Senate introduced the President. He would not comment afterwards on this phase of speech, but said "the President is eternally right in his position that the national income must be increased. Our national income must go to $100,000,000,000 to enable us to meet the encyclopaedic demands on Government."

Possible Hospital Sites Are Viewed

Charles H. Stratton, representative of the Veterans' Administration, arrived in Greenville last night and today visited available sites and discussed with a group of local citizens the possibilities of Greenville securing the veterans' hospital to be erected in this state as result of a recent act of Congress.

The proposed hospital will cost $1,500,000.

Mr. Stratton at this time is making a tour of the section, visiting around 49 cities that have been included on the veterans' bureau map as possibilities for location of the hospital.

Mr. Stratton apparently was well pleased with Greenville and local persons interested in securing the hospital for Greenville were instructed to prepare a brief for presentation to the Veterans' administration.

Two Youths Face Extortion Charge

New Rochelle, March 23.—(AP)—Federal agents today arrested two North Pelham, N. Y., youths and booked them on charges of attempted extortion in seeking to collect the $30,000 Levine kidnap ransom.

Agents said the suspects had no knowledge of the actual abduction of 12-year-old Peter Levine, missing from his home since February 24th.

The pair, handcuffed together and guarded by G-Men and detectives were described as Edward John Penn, 18, a student at Pelham high school, and Werner Fred Luck, 23, unemployed father of a small child.

E. E. Conroy of New Orleans, La., Federal agent in charge of the case, brought in the two youths. Conroy had been absent from headquarters for five days.

Round Table Entertains
Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. O. G. Gully and Mrs. W. C. Vincent entertained The Round Table at the home of Mrs. Gully. Mrs. Gully has been a guest of The Round Table so often that members were quite happy to have her with them again.

Bowls of Jougnauls, purple and white were much admired by the guests. Some of the flowers were from the gardens of the hostesses, others were sent in during the morning by friends in true Round Table spirit.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Julius Etheridge and Mrs. E. W. Stafford.

A few matters of business were carefully considered. The members voted unanimously to make the usual gift of forty dollars to Sheppard Memorial Library and renew the subscription to Good Housekeeping for one year. The club has kept this magazine in the library reading room for several years.

The paper for the afternoon, a very scholarly study of Foreign Universities, was given by Miss Nelly Denny. Miss Denny gave interesting facts about the Universities of Canada, Mexico, India, Germany and France, going more into detail with the Oxford and Cambridge which belong not to England alone but to the literary world.

During the social hour the hostesses served a frozen salad with refreshing cold tea.—Reported.

Literature Department Meets.

She then gave us this literary history of New England from 1815-1885, the purpose of which is to reflect the social, religious and cultural life of the New England people of that period. She showed how the writings of great poets and geniuses as Longfellow, Emerson, Lowell, Thoreau, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Edward Everett Hale, Daniel Webster and others influenced the lives of the people. Mrs. Ryan read the "Present Crisis" by James Russell Lowell, and an excerpt from Van Wyck Brooks' "Life of Emerson."

Mrs. P. P. Brooks gave our poetry program. She gave a sketch of the life of Edwin Markham and read his "The Man With the Hoe," "Lincaln," "Preparedness," and "Outwitted."

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Brooks and Mrs. Ricks, served a delicious ice course.

And it didn't help things one bit when a new Schubert began his career a few weeks ago. It aggravated a condition already so grave that innocent bystanders get themselves insulted by merely mentioning the name.

Let me explain. If I say to you, "I see where Lee Schubert has a new play," you are sure to reply, "Not Lee, you dope; you mean J. J." Or if it may time to be nasty I fang you with, "What do you mean Lawrence Schubert is John Schubert's uncle—who is Milton Schubert's cousin."

Things got so bad that I finally nixed over to the Schubert office, and we were both wrong. Milton Schubert is Lee Schubert's nephew, and here's how:

In 1838 a German-Jewish trader (he was probably clairvoyant and could not sense those Nazi purges) came to America and settled at Syracuse, N. Y. He acquired a hale, went into business and raised a son. This son also raised a son who turned out to be a slight, underweight little boy named Sam.

Sam Schubert became the founder of the Schubert theatrical dynasty on Broadway, and when he was killed in a train wreck in 1905 he left two sons, Lee and J. J., to carry on the family tradition.

He also left a daughter, whose two sons, Milton and Lawrence, legally adopted the Schubert name when they were six years old. Today Milton is head of the dramatic end of the Schubert enterprises. Lawrence lives in Philadelphia and handles the firm's interests there.

Lee and J. J. Schubert, who are Milton's uncles, operate in the grand style and produce most of the biggest musical shows which periodically bob up under the Schubert banner. A typical musical venture of theirs is "Hooray for What," which stars Ed Wynn. But the firm owns interests in many plays other than the ones they produce themselves. For instance, they own half interest in "Shadow and Substance," which was produced by Eddie Dowling.

At the moment the Schuberts en masse have their hands in 18 dramatic productions, and they control 18 theaters in Manhattan. They even have a street named after them, Schubert Alley, where most of their offices are located.

The newest Schubert is John, son of J. J., who is making his start as a producer. He has a play with music featuring Lupe Velez and Clifton Webb, but it is on the road and won't get to New York this season.

Incidentally, Milton Schubert goes shortly to Hollywood, and don't anybody call me a liar. He's a Warner Brothers associate producer and will be out there three or four months.

ETIQUETTE

By JOAN DURHAM (AP Feature Service Writer)
Jewelry should be worn for the enjoyment of others, not yourself. For that reason you should wear it so others will see it at its best, says Mrs. C. B. Dyer of Indianapolis, who has been collecting material about jewelry for many years.

The one exception, says Mrs. Dyer, is the wrist watch. That should be worn so the owner can read the dial most conveniently. Wrist watches should not be worn on formal occasions.

That Others May See
Cameo, equestrian and crest jewelry and other pieces having a top and bottom should be worn so that the tops are up when others look at them. A cameo ring, for instance should be worn so the face looks upside down to the owner.

A ring is considered the most intimate of gift jewelry. Necklaces are second. Bracelets are not quite so personal.

It is customary for a bridegroom to give the bride a gift of jewelry—in addition to the engagement and wedding ring—at the time of the wedding. Many choose strands of pearls, although the bride may already have received pearls—as a debutante from her grandparents, or godparents, as a bride-to-be from her parents or in-laws. (In Europe it is customary for the in-laws to give the bride elaborate gifts of jewelry.)

Wedding Ring Customs
The bride-to-be should remove her engagement ring just before the wedding ceremony so that she goes to the altar with her hand unadorned. The best man should keep the wedding ring in his vest pocket until it figures in the ceremony. Then he hands it to the bridegroom, who passes it to the clergyman, who passes it to the bridegroom, who takes it back and places it on the third finger of the bride's left hand. From that time on, custom has it, the ring should never leave the bride's finger.

If the bridegroom is to wear a wedding ring, the maid of honor hands it to the bride at the same time she hands the bridegroom the bride's ring to the bridegroom. The bride puts her husband's ring on his finger after he has put her ring in place.

The Boxwood Barrier

By BLANCHE SMITH FERGUSON

The Story So Far: The boxwood hedge surrounding Goodloe's choice in the Maryland hunting district is a symbol and a sacred boundary. On the inside, Judith Goodloe is longing to hear a proposal from dashing Gary Brent. Outside, on horseback, Reuben Oliver, self-made millionaire, peers anxiously over the hedge until Jim Goodloe invites him in. Attempting to jump the boxwood, Reuben is thrown at Judith's feet, badly injured.

Chapter Eight Another Outsider

IN the house, while she directed an excited and bewildered Hannah to bring towels, gauze, hot water, Judith, despite a vague pity for his plight, was hating Reuben with a fierceness that actually shook her. Keeping her from Gary as if two years of waiting wasn't long enough! Keeping her whole future hanging in the balance, her happiness—

"I won't be kept another minute! I'm going down! Why couldn't he have selected some other spot in which to smash himself!"

Hurriedly she turned back jasmine scented sheets of the guest room bed. As they laid him upon the wide four poster bed, Reuben opened his eyes.

"He's coming round," Mr. Blout murmured. "Oh, Oliver? How do you feel? What did you say?"

Reuben had merely sighed, his eyes upon Judith standing between him and the west window. The sun made reddish lights in her hair. Subconsciously he reached out a straying hand, attracted as a child to a bright bauble! "I didn't dream—"

"Of course you didn't, Oliver," Dick Blout assured him. "You tumbled all right!" Then to Judith cheerfully: "They don't usually talk so soon when there's concussion. It may not be an operative case after all, briskly. 'Now if you'll get my scissors, Judy, I'll cut that sleeve.'"

"Twilight was closing in before Judith was free to go down stairs. It seemed a lifetime had passed since she had been kissed in the garden, but woman-like she tried to take up her enchanted moment where she laid it down. She stepped out on the wide porch radiance in her eyes.

"I'm sorry, Gary Hannah wasn't a bit of good I had to stand by." But it was not Gary who paced the porch impatiently. It was a strange little figure whose head made a red blot in the twilight. "How is Reuben?" The voice was blurred with throaty notes not unlike the first chirping of a mudlark. "Don't stand gazing like a wooden Indian! Hurry and tell me how he is!"

Judith, submerged in her own affairs, continued to stare at the intruder in surprised silence. Here was a person she had never seen before and of a type foreign to the valley. Even in that moment she noticed the stranger's expensive Paris was written all over her. Who was she, where had she come from, and what had brought her?

From the shadow of a vine enclosed corner, Gary came forward. "Miss Rogers is a friend of Oliver's," he explained. "Miss Goodloe will give us a cheering account of the patient. I'm sure, Miss Rogers."

"He isn't badly hurt," Judith laughed up with the moment. "The doctors say Mr Oliver will be as good as new in a week or 10 days." Cissy sighed her relief. For an instant she was beyond speech. Then, "I might have known nothing could do Rube in for long!" She scanned Judith's face—the girl who had taken him from her, if she had ever had him—low voiced, poised, beautiful.

"She has something I haven't," Cissy thought. "Something I would give the world for."

Aloofness
"I'm sorry you've been anxious." Judith saw this uninvited guest as one more obstacle between herself and Gary. If she would only hurry and go! She wanted to be alone with Gary—wanted him to take her in his arms—wanted him to kiss her.

Seated upon the porch railing, a smile upon his handsome face, Gary showed no sign of impatience for the guest's departure. He said: "Miss Rogers was wandering in and out between the box like a lost soul when I salvaged her."

"I corralled him," contradicted Cissy. She was conscious of Gary's charm. Conscious of his approval of herself. "I should be running along, but—"

Curiosity about Judith Goodloe made her linger. Curiosity and the fact that Reuben was upstairs. She was nearer to him here.

Judith still in riding togs, swung up on the porch rail beside Gary: "You're a guest at Five Chimneys?" she asked politely. Cissy nodded and helped herself to a cigarette from a nearby table. Gary gave her a light. In the flare of the match her hair showed very red. Very short. Her eyes were two flawless emeralds with black centers. "Reuben has a house party over the week end," she explained.

"And missing it! Talk about hard luck!" Gary felt a sudden sympathy for the man lying upstairs in the four poster bed.

"He isn't so crazy about it," Cissy said. "It was my idea entirely."

"His fiancée, of course," Judith decided and asked: "Do you wish to see Mr. Oliver?"

Terrifically Cissy wished to see Mr. Oliver. She hated the assistance Judith had been able to give him. Was jealous of the minutes—of the very walls that surrounded him. She said: "Not tonight. I'll come tomorrow, if I may." Proud of the way she said it.

"Please come as early as you wish," Judith invited cordially. "I'm sorry your party is getting off to such a gloomy start."

"The gang won't be gloomy long," Cissy dragged on her cigarette. She felt the other girl's aloofness. "They'll have a great laugh when they hear that anything so archaic as a horse did Reuben in."

Judith gasped: "Archaic?—Horses?"

"I've made a bad break," Cissy thought. She stuck to her guns. "Aren't they?"

"Maybe—I hadn't thought. Ours are part of the family."

"But hardly the modern means of locomotion, flicking an ash with slender ringed finger."

"I like the creatures, well enough. I love around the park sometimes. Usually though, I'm in a hurry to go places and do things."

"Then a car, of course—"

Cissy blew a perfect smoke ring. "I usually fly an RX Super."

"How very modern!" Judith murmured without interest but Gary flung away his cigarette and slid from the porch rail. "I knew there was something tantalizingly familiar about you! You're C. C. Rogers the aviatrix—by all the gods! The C. C.!" His glance sweeping her was openly admiring and surprised. "You're just as big as a minute!"

Blue Eyes Meet Green

"I'm five feet one inch."

"Sure about the inch?" Gary grinned. "I've pictured you a— a sort of Juno."

"I'm flattered that you wasted a thought! Devastated because I'm not Juno?" impishly.

"Heavens no! But your pictures give that impression. I was among the mob that day you landed at Crofton. That was a grand flight, you made—remember, Judy?"

"Yes," Judith remembered only because Gary had written, not because she cared about the fiercest of the members have changed through the years. Paramount works off its family spirit on its annual "Big Broadcast" and "college" series—every year a "broadcast" and every year a collegiate musical like "College Swing."

basis could we get some gradation in the various sort of relations that may exist between nations.

Step By Step
Now for instance, when nation meets nation they don't at once agree to share each other's bed and board and take up each other's fights. Diplomatically they begin sounding out each other. That is step No. 1. Next comes informal talks without commitment. Number three stages involves formal conversations with perhaps exchange of notes. Negotiations begin then and as a fifth step the negotiators decide what to put into a written record of what they hope to do.

As a sixth step comes the drafting of what is going to be put into writing. That is getting very serious. When that is done, the next step is either an executive agreement (such as a reciprocal trade pact) or a formal treaty which requires ratification by the Senate.

None of that includes what constitutes an "understanding" however but any reputable writer on things foreign will insist that nations may have an "understanding" although it is a bit difficult to define.

We remember only recently when a news editor came up to a foreign writer who had just written a piece. The news editor, properly respectful, pointed out that the foreign writer had used the word "agreement" two times in the first sentence and would it be all right to substitute "understanding" for one of them.

Now to the lay mind that may sound like splitting hairs, but not to this foreign service writer. His brow wrinkled. He rubbed his chin. At first he was almost to agree that "understanding" would be acceptable in place of agreement, but just as the news editor was about to write it, the foreign writer solemnly suggested that it would be wiser and more exact to use "accord" rather than "understanding."

Webster No Help
Go to the dictionary if you like but you will find Webster and the others hopelessly provincial. They use "understanding" to explain what constitutes an "agreement" and use "agreement" to explain what is meant by an "accord."

After pressing foreign service writers for definitions we have come to a conclusion—wholly our own—that an understanding is something more than an expectation but something less than an agreement. An agreement is equal to an accord—only not quite. It is something more than an understanding, but on the other hand, less than an accord.

Now an accord has something of old world tenor. It is perhaps 1-2 times an understanding and 1-2-5 times an agreement but falls at least 45 and perhaps 50 per cent short of a treaty.

We wouldn't go into these matters ordinarily but in such troublesome times it is well to understand clearly what you read. Nations, we fear, have fallen in the gap between an understanding and an accord.

But when we tried for "official" definitions of what constituted an understanding, we ran into a stone wall. Only on a strictly unofficial

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—The colony's getting to be a real family minded-minded place, even on the screen.

Several studios, after looking at what "The Jones Family" has done for 20th Century-Fox, already have climbed in with parallel fireside groups. And before long we expect all the lots to have their individual version of these versatile, problem-beset Joneses.

M-G-M is offering the Hardys, who made their bow in "A Family Affair," continued their adventures in "You're Only Young Once," and currently are in the throes of a new one called "Judge Hardy's Children." Like the Joneses, the Hardys' "just grewed" as a film perennial. The first one was intended to be a program-filler, but it clicked, and the second did better. Now the studio plans a series of 12 features with the same characters—Lewis Stone as the judge, Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker, Janet Beecher, Ann Rutherford, et al.

R-K-O is projecting a series of a slightly different type—what might be called a pre-family saga. Theirs will concern the adventures of a young married couple, but the possibilities of a future "family circle" are obvious.

A "Quickie" Start
The Joneses, as a movie family, date from Christmas, 1935. On Christmas eve the first one, called "Every Saturday Night" was completed after 13 days' shooting—a genuine quickie, costing next to nothing. It was based on a little theater play by Katherine Cavanaugh, prolific playwright who worked on this film and the next, then sold the characters for other movie writers to work on. So far there have been nine Jones adventures, with comparatively few changes in cast. Shirley Deane replaced June Lang as the daughter—when June stepped up to the "A" class—and there have been additions such as Russell Gleason, son-in-law, and Marvin Stephens, adopted son. At last reports the players, through long association, were actually beginning to develop into a family resemblance.

The screen's "family tradition" dates back a long way to the first two-reelers of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, but the Joneses set off the present interest in movie family life.

Those studios which haven't inaugurated regular families have substitutes of one kind or another. The "Gold Diggers" or Warner Brothers constitute a family of sorts, although the members have changed through the years. Paramount works off its family spirit on its annual "Big Broadcast" and "college" series—every year a "broadcast" and every year a collegiate musical like "College Swing."

The detective "families" are in a class by themselves. Charlie Chan, of course, is the real family man among sleuths.

EUROPE'S TROUBLE SPOTS

Spain (By The AP Feature Service) The Baltic

As Spain's civil war raged into its 21st month, insurgent bombers were blasting the Loyalist capital at Barcelona day and night, and the cabinet had SOSed France for help to stand off Franco's renewed drive (arrow on map) to split the narrow strip of government territory along the Mediterranean.

A jittery world's eyes shifted from Australia to the Baltic region as Poland sought to end a 20-year quarrel with Lithuania by mobilizing on the Lithuanian border and forcing her tiny neighbor to swallow a demand for restoration of diplomatic relations. France and Britain brought pressure on Poland to prevent a narrow strip of government territory along the Mediterranean.

Washington Daybook

Washington — Prime Minister Chamberlain is quoted as saying England has a very satisfactory "understanding" with the United States about keeping the peace of the world and Secretary Hull tells Congress first, and the world at large later that there is no such understanding.

So we went to the state department to discover just what it was England said we had and Hull said we hadn't and it seems such a thing as an "understanding" has no official diplomatic standing in the world.

Readily we obtained a definition of a treaty, which is widely understood to be a signed pledge of nations to do this and that or not to do this and that. For many years a treaty was an extremely sacred sort of thing, like the treaty between the United States and Muscat which for 105 years has required Muscat to rescue all sailors stranded by shipwrecks and send them back home, f. o. b. front porch.

But when we tried for "official" definitions of what constituted an understanding, we ran into a stone wall. Only on a strictly unofficial

YOU MUST REGISTER IF YOU EXPECT TO VOTE

Registration books for the city bond election and the city recorder's court, to be held next Monday, will close Saturday of this week, and persons who have not registered will not be permitted to vote in the election.

While the registration books have been open for practically a month, only a little more than 500 voters have registered so far.

Personally, we favor the bond issue and expect it to carry, but we do feel that every person should have his or her voice in such matters, so whether you favor the issue or not, we urge you to register this week and vote your convictions at the polls next Monday.

If you are not willing to take the trouble to register and vote on this matter, then after the issue is closed, you should not complain about the results if the election does not go to suit your wishes.

It is an open secret that the ABC men would prefer almost anyone to Moore, but their contention—and one they are trying to impress upon Governor Hoy—is that the head of the Control Board should be in harmony with the theory of control as well as a man who can work harmoniously with the county people.

In addition to seeking the replacement of Moore, the controllers are dead set on the appointment of an acceptable successor to Thomas J. Murphy of Greensboro, as a member of the liquor board. Murphy's term will expire at the end of April, and it will be up to Governor Hoy to name a new man to serve with Moore if he is still chairman and Webb Williams of Pasquotank.

Murphy, controllers say, has been nothing but a figurehead during his year in office, with Moore dictating his vote on every issue. Williams has said nothing to confirm such a belief, but controllers feel that the Elizabeth City man has stood up for the county boards in their battles with Moore. They would like to see him as chairman.

But above all they contend that something must be done before the next session of the General Assembly, to get the state control system working smoothly and without the friction which has marked its every act since it came into being last May 1. Otherwise, they fear, the legislature will vote for a state-wide referendum, in which event there is entirely too much chance for a dry victory to suit the controllers.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, March 23.—North Carolina automobile dealers will be represented at the 21st annual convention of the National Automobile Dealers Association, Mrs. Bess Phoenix, executive secretary, says.

IF BARNUM were alive and running a wax works of famous living men, he probably would bill Adolf Hitler as the greatest human enigma of all time.

That, of course would be a Barnum exaggeration, but it would be a showman's way of explaining the unpredictable man who is dictator over 75,000,000 Germanic peoples.

For whatever else one may think about Hitler he certainly is a puzzle—more so than other famous dictators.

Even the beginning of his life present contradictions, a tempting field for students of human character.

The Hitler ancestral home is Spital, Austria, across the border from Germany. The region is peopled with honest, illiterate peasants, whose tragedy has long been poverty and illbreeding.

Father Strong-Willed. Hitler's father, Alois, is pictured by biographers as a strong-willed cobbler who obtained, a financial nest-egg when he married the first of three wives. Then he wanted an Austrian civil service job, and started a family moving from town to town along the border as a customs inspector.

One day, the widowed Alois spied tall, dark-eyed Clara Poel, a young woman who had been a housemaid for the first Mrs. Hitler. Clara had left her rural home for Vienna in her teens. Now she was back, a mature woman.

Although Alois Hitler was more than forty and fond of tavern evenings, he pursued and married Clara Poel, and their first child was Adolf Hitler. He was born in 1889 in Braunau, another border town. Most accounts agree the elder Hitler thought Adolf something of a weakling.

For five years he lived from pillar to post, earning his bread as a hack artist, house painter, paper hanger. "In the years 1909-10," he wrote, "I had so far improved my condition as not to have to earn my daily bread as an assistant worker. I was working independently as a draughtsman and painter in water colors."

He was also dipping into history and economics, and attending political meetings now and then. Once, he says, he came across a being in a long caftan, with black side-locks. "My first thought was: Is that a Jew?" And then, "Is that a German?" He studied the Semitic question a long time, he says, before concluding that Jews were not Germans.

Discards Citizenship. In 1912 Hitler migrated to Munich. Came the World War and Hitler discarded his Austrian citizenship like a dirty shirt. He rushed to enlist in the services of the beloved Germany.

The dandy, the sensitive lad, emerged from the war four years later a man's man. He was a hero upon whom had been hung the Iron Cross for personal valor, a soldier who bore shrapnel wounds and the pains of war gas.

This was the man who was one day to awaken Germany to a new day—for better, or for worse.

IRON RULER OF GERMAY'S 75,000,000 FIRST TEMPERED IN FIRE OF THE WORLD WAR

Great events can best be understood if one understands the men behind them. Behind the great events in Europe today stands Adolf Hitler. This is the first of Beatty's three articles.

father's footsteps in the civil service. He punctuated the declaration with a spanking.

The young Hitler obviously preferred his mother. This favoritism seemed to develop in him into a reverential love for her, and a positive dislike for his father. Certainly it is he fought shy in later life of alcohol and over-eating, both liked, say biographers, by the elder Hitler.

Fared Badly As Artist. When Adolf was 13, his father died and the son continued his schooling for awhile, making indifferent progress, and leaning more heavily toward that art career.

Although his mother was slowly dying of cancer she determined Adolf should settle the course of his life in his own way. She helped him go to Vienna to study art when he was 17.

In a year or so the young painter, dubbed "handsome Adolf," tried to enter the Vienna School of Fine Arts but was turned down twice. Then his mother died.

For five years he lived from pillar to post, earning his bread as a hack artist, house painter, paper hanger. "In the years 1909-10," he wrote, "I had so far improved my condition as not to have to earn my daily bread as an assistant worker. I was working independently as a draughtsman and painter in water colors."

He was also dipping into history and economics, and attending political meetings now and then. Once, he says, he came across a being in a long caftan, with black side-locks. "My first thought was: Is that a Jew?" And then, "Is that a German?" He studied the Semitic question a long time, he says, before concluding that Jews were not Germans.

Discards Citizenship. In 1912 Hitler migrated to Munich. Came the World War and Hitler discarded his Austrian citizenship like a dirty shirt. He rushed to enlist in the services of the beloved Germany.

The dandy, the sensitive lad, emerged from the war four years later a man's man. He was a hero upon whom had been hung the Iron Cross for personal valor, a soldier who bore shrapnel wounds and the pains of war gas.

This was the man who was one day to awaken Germany to a new day—for better, or for worse.

UNC BASEBALL NINE SELECTED

Line-Up For First Game Pretty Well Settled

Chapel Hill, March 23—The starting team which the University of North Carolina will put on the field on March 29 for the opening game here with the University of Richmond is pretty well settled except at one position.

Seven letterman, possibly two sophomores or one soph and a reserve, likely will be in the starting line-up.

The seven veteran players are David Parker, pitcher; George Netter, catcher; Harold Bissette, first baseman; Foy Grubb, third baseman; Captain Tom Burnett, Frank Cox and Harry LeGrande, outfielders.

With Matthew Hopkins, brilliant short stop laid up with illness, head Coach Bunn Hearn has shifted Geo. Stirnweis, star sophomore athlete, from second base to short stop. Stirnweis, the outstanding sophomore back on the 1937 Tar Heel football team is a fast fielder and a hard hitter. His addition is expected to bolster considerably the team both offensively and defensively.

The big problem facing Coach Hearn now is the selection of a second baseman. At present Sophomores Dante, Berini and Harold Austin and Reserve Burke Craver are the outstanding candidates for the key position and there's little to choose in ability between any of them. Craver, senior, may have the advantage due to two years of more experience. They are all strong in fielding but weak in hitting.

The Richmond game inaugurates a 22-game program for the Tar Heels this season. Contest with Dartmouth, Cornell and Navy in the East and Duke's Southern Conference champions are the feature attractions on the 1938 diamond card. Dartmouth and Cornell will come to Chapel Hill for engagements on April 4 and 8, respectively. Navy will be met twice this season at Chapel Hill May 6 and at Annapolis May 14.

Duke will be opposed three times at Durham May 18, at Greensboro May 21 and at Chapel Hill May 23 in the Tar Heels' final game of the season.

FUN IN CAMP

Spring Training Has Its Brighter Side

By the AP Feature Service

If you were a rookie at a major league spring camp, you would find hard work: Rolling off extra pounds, limbering up muscles, practicing essentials of baseball. You might find disappointment: Two of every three rookies go back to the bush leagues. But you would also find a lot of fun. These pictures, of "Doc" Greene, prospective Cincinnati first baseman, shows the brighter side. Greene, incidentally, is a full-fledged dentist back home in Pittsburgh.

YOU WOULD get a thrill from your first major-league uniform. If you stuck with the club you would have to buy four of 'em each year—at $23.75 apiece.

BEING something of a celebrity, you would be called upon to broadcast over local stations.

YOU MIGHT miss the fun of night life while in training. But you would get a kick out of singing around the piano at night. Some rookies are talented musicians.

PITT GRAND JURY REPORT SUBMITTED

Due to the County's interest in the Greenville Armory this building was inspected. This building is well constructed and well maintained. This Grand Jury recommends that removable seats be placed in this building.

The office of the North Carolina Highway Patrol is well kept and well constructed.

We inspected the physical properties of all consolidated schools within the confines of Pitt County and submit the following report:

ARTHUR: The building is in a good state of repair. However, conditions are extremely crowded. The school buses are in good condition, but crowded. New toilet facilities are badly needed and are being supplied.

AYDEN: The buildings, toilets and grounds are in excellent condition. The trucks are in good mechanical condition. Two 1931 trucks are inadequate for school transportation. We recommend that they be replaced with more modern conveyances. The condition of the buses is extremely crowded, most of them carrying from 75 to 80 pupils.

BELVOIR: The building, toilets and grounds are well cared for, and are in a good state of repair with the exception of minor repairs. The buses of this school are quite crowded. We recommend that an expert heating engineer check the heating plant of this school for a possible defect in the boiler.

BETHEL GRADED SCHOOL: The building and grounds are well kept. We recommend the removal of the toilet to the first floor.

BETHEL HIGH SCHOOL: The grounds and building are well kept. The brakes on two school buses were improperly adjusted at the time of this inspection.

CHICOD: The physical property of this school is in good repair. The building and school buses are crowded.

FALKLAND: The physical property of this school is in excellent condition, well kept and adequately supervised.

FARMVILLE: The school building, the buses and the grounds are well kept and in good condition.

FOUNTAIN: The heating system of the Fountain school is inadequately fitted for its requirements. We recommend that some method be devised for closing the ends or wings of this building.

GRIFFTON: We recommend that a cover be extended from the school building to the girls' toilet; two 1931 trucks should be replaced with more modern buses, two trucks are too crowded, carrying 80 pupils.

GRIMESLAND: We recommend that a qualified building inspector inspect the old school building with a view toward ascertaining its safety and general merit for its present use.

We recommend that proper ventilation be installed under the floor of the new school building.

PACTOLUS: This school is in good condition. We recommend that the brakes on all school buses at Stokes be examined by a competent mechanic.

WINTERVILLE: This school was found to be in very good condition. The colored schools throughout the county were found to be adequate and in good repair with the following exceptions:

WINTERVILLE: Toilets not sufficient. Two new ones recommended and yard not properly drained.

AYDEN: Toilets in poor condition, apparently due to private water system, suggest this matter be investigated by the County Health Officer.

GRIFFTON: No water supply. Water must be carried about 150 yards. We recommend that a pump be put on the grounds.

BETHEL: New toilet facilities needed, additional rooms and equipment needed.

POST OAK COLORED SCHOOL: Roof needs repairs.

WEBB COLORED SCHOOL: Building needs repairs.

CLARK'S NECK COLORED SCHOOL: This building is a fire trap and in bad condition. We recommend a new building or this one be thoroughly renovated.

We, the Grand Jury, recommend that due to the crowded condition existing in the school buses throughout the county that additional buses be supplied to adequately relieve this congestion. We also recommend that buses be provided for the transportation of students to and from the centrally located colored high schools.

In line with the duty of the Grand Jury of Pitt County we have conducted a careful investigation into the affairs of the county and recommend:

1. That a more adequate system of original entry forms be provided for the offices of the Register of Deeds, Clerk of Court and the Sheriff, to facilitate the bookkeeping and clerical work of these offices.

2. That certain apparent discrepancies in the accounts of the various county offices as shown by the audits of Williams and Wall be immediately rectified, and that the County Board of Commissioners immediately take such steps as may be necessary to bring about a final and complete settlement of such differences as exist.

3. That adequate steps be taken to maintain, inviolate and to protect such records of Pitt County as are kept by the Clerk of Court and the Register of Deeds and that such Clerical Help as the Board of Commissioners of Pitt County may deem wise be immediately added to the staff of these offices for the purpose of carrying out this recommendation, in order that all entries and cancellations may be expeditiously and properly handled.

4. That a complete and thorough audit be made immediately of the financial condition of Pitt County as of December 31, 1937. That such audit delve into the interstices and ramifications of all the County affairs.

'No-Hit' Rookie Pitchers Abound; Joe Kohlman Won 25 Straight

boy turned in the greatest winning streak in baseball's history. He won 25 games in a row!

The jump from Salisbury to the majors is as wide as the Atlantic and Joe may need some more seasoning. He's got a lot of stuff but isn't very fast.

Another 1937 no-hitter was scored by Paul Arthur Gehrman, Cincinnati's big right-handed Dutchman. He took off into the Hall of Fame while pitching for Durham against Portsmouth in the Piedmont league and around Carolina they still talk about the husky lumberman's twisting curve.

Tommy Reis of the Philadelphia Phillies hurled a perfect game in one of the "little world series" of the minor leagues. Working for Wilkesbarre he did the stunt against Elmira in the New York-Pennsylvania league playoffs last autumn. A six-foot-two right hander, Reis won 19 and lost 9.

PAUL ARTHUR GEHRMAN As A Durham Pitcher, He Entered Hall Of Fame

By DILLON GRAHAM

(AP Feature Service Writer)

Orlando, Fla.—Hopping about the Palmetto belt from one baseball training camp to another, I have bumped into rookie pitchers who've got something very, very few of their major league betters can boast—no-hit games tacked onto their record.

Here in Orlando there's a youngster barely of voting age who tossed two perfect games last season. Two in a year—and there are hundreds of pitchers who twist them over the platter for a lifetime and never come close.

He's black-haired, 170-pound Joe Kohlman of the Washington Senators. This righthander flung for Salisbury, Md., in the Eastern Shore league. Now that circuit, as you've probably suspected, is quite a ways down the baseball ladder, but a no-hitter is a no-hitter and tops in any league, even if it's a middle-de-winks loop.

CONVICTION OF YOUTH UPHELD

Supreme Court Sustains Death Verdict in Rape Case

Raleigh, March 23.—(AP)—The State Supreme court today granted a new trial to Henry Moseley, Winston-Salem Negro, convicted of the murder of Clarence Black, but upheld the death sentence imposed in McDowell county on 15-year-old Mann Smith, alias Hiawatha Smith, also a Negro.

Twenty-seven cases were decided. Smith was convicted of rape. The court found there was ample evidence to show the crime was rape and that the youthful age of the defendant did not prevent him being sentenced to execution. The court noted that "if the youth of this defendant constitutes a mitigating circumstance it is directed at the discretionary power of the governor to parole or pardon."

Moseley got a new trial on grounds that parts of the charge in Forsyth Superior court by Judge W. P. Harding relating to a plea of self-defense were prejudicial.

The conviction of Alvin Vick in Nash county on charges of possession of implements for house-breaking also was affirmed. Shotguns, nitroglycerine and eyedropper, soap, dynamite caps and other articles were found. The list of opinions include: State vs. Vick, Nash, no error.

As the afternoon session got underway the trial of Paul Whitehurst on charges of manufacturing liquor was resumed. The Grand Jury yesterday afternoon returned a true bill of indictment against John H. McElroy charging the Marshall attorney with reckless driving and with manslaughter in the death of Joseph Edgar Gaylor, who was killed in a collision between automobiles driven by Gaylor and McElroy here last month.

The Grand Jury today recessed until next week.

city. He served four years as solicitor of the County Recorder's court and five years as Mayor of Greenville. In 1933 he was called to Washington City as tobacco expert in connection with the passage of legislation that set up the AAA. He wrote the original sign-up agreement in which the tobacco growers first agreed to curtail production in 1934 following the warehouse holiday of 1933.

Mr. Lanier likewise was the author of the Kerr-Smith tobacco control bill and the amendments thereto. After leaving his post as tobacco expert of the AAA, he became national administrator of the auction tobacco warehouse code under the NRA and continued as same until the Supreme court declared the act unconstitutional. Last year Mr. Lanier again was called to Washington by farm administration officials and had a large part in drafting the present farm control act. Following passage of the act this year by Congress, he was active throughout this section in securing adoption of the plan by the farmers in the recent referenda.
