PRESIDENT HAS LITTLE TO SAY ON REFORM BILL

Declares there should be no personal recrimination

PRESENT TENSE USED IN TALKING

Senate Meanwhile Refuses Write Processing Taxes in New Revenue Measure

Washington, April 9. (AP)—President Roosevelt said today that House defeat of his government reorganization bill offered "no occasion for personal recrimination, and there should be none."

The President added, in a note to Representative Rayburn (D-Tex.), House majority leader, that the "question presented is solely one of policy."

"The reorganization is intended to simplify and improve the public service," Mr. Roosevelt said. "With this single objective in view I have given it my earnest approval."

Though the White House refused comment on the administration's future plans, it was noted the President used the present tense in describing the bill.

Mr. Roosevelt's letter was made public a short while after he had talked with Senator Byrnes (D-S.C.) manager of the legislation on its successful course through the Senate.

The reaction of Speaker Bankhead to the House action was that it might hasten adjournment.

The Senate refused, meantime, to write processing taxes into the $5,000,000,000 revenue bill. The vote was 53 to 24.

The levies on cotton, field corn, wheat, rice, tobacco and synthetic fibers had been asked by Senator Pope (D-Idaho) to raise $212,000,000 annually for additional farm benefits.

A total of $500,000,000 now is available under the farm program.

Other developments: The Supreme Court considered whether to pass on Dr. Francis Townsend's appeal from a 30-day jail sentence imposed for contempt of a House committee.

He was convicted for walking out on the committee while it was investigating his proposal to pay $200 a month to the aged.

Fayetteville, April 9.—(AP)—G. W. Price, of 1708 Green street, Philadelphia, sustained severe scalp lacerations and shock late yesterday when his car, driven by a chauffeur, skidded on a wet pavement near Raceford.

Attaches said they understood he was a prominent resident of Philadelphia.

Severed Head Of Eleventh Victim Of Slayer Found

Hero Of Fire

Hugh Gillespie (above) former Notre Dame athlete and now a policeman, was credited by firemen with saving several lives when roaring flames swept the upper floors of a Chicago transient hotel. Gillespie rushed into the smoke-filled structure, and aroused and helped sleeping occupants, and broke down a door to warn a deaf Civil War veteran. Seven men were burned to death in the blaze.

Woman Newest Prey of Cleveland's Mad Torso Slayer

HOMICIDE SQUAD SEARCHING RIVER

Coroner Declares Killer Becoming More Fiendish with Each Gruesome Slaying

Cleveland, Ohio, April 9. (AP)—Dredge company employees reported to detectives today they had sighted a woman's severed head floating in the Cuyahoga river as detectives searched the banks of the river for some clue to help in identifying the eleventh victim of Cleveland's mad "torso killer."

The dredgers said they had seen the head a short distance below the point where a part of a dismembered leg was found by a WPA worker yesterday.

Homicide squad members, searching the muddy stream for other sections of the body, immediately began a search in the boats in the area designated by the dredgers. Coast guard vessels carrying detectives began a close survey of the river after yesterday's gruesome discovery.

Coroner Dr. Samuel Gerber, who has studied and minutely charted each of the mysterious killings, said the slayer was becoming more "fiendish" with each new killing.

He said the tenth victim apparently had been cut into 11 parts. The head of the tenth victim, a man, never was found. The human segment found yesterday, a section of the leg from the knee to ankle, seemed to indicate, he said, that the body of the newest victim likewise had been dissected into many parts.

He said he believed the eleventh victim was a small woman between 25 and 30 years old.

CONTESTS WON BY GREENVILLE

District Music Events Held in School Auditorium

The Greenville District Music contest was held this morning in the high school auditorium at 9:30. The contest was concluded this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Greenville high school only entered four events, the unchanged boy's voice, the junior high piano, the alto solo, and the girls' trio. Greenville high won first place in these four events. The local high school did not enter the other events because there was no competition.

Most of the contest was taken up with the Class C schools; that is, schools with less than two hundred enrollment. In the Class C schools Ayden came off with major honors, taking six first place honors out of seven events entered, and second place in the other event. Aulander high school entered only two events and took first place in both of these. (Continued on page six)

OUR TWO BIG MISTAKES

Babson Says Air-Conditioning: Great Aid To Jobs

By ROGER W. BABSON

Savannah, Ga., April 9.—Hated between groups in this country is greater now than at any time since the Civil War. Scarcely a day passes that some group is not at another's throat. With 10,000,000 unemployed, it's time for Washington, business, labor, utilities, and investors to pull together. Consequently, I hope this article will be read by President Roosevelt, John L. Lewis, David Lilienthal of the T. V. A., and Wendell L. Willkie of Commonwealth & Southern. At any rate, I am sending all these men marked copies.

What Not To Do

(1) Fighting over what now exists instead of trying to produce more is our first big mistake. Only as more is produced is there more to divide. If we distributed the entire national production equally among all the people, omitting small children, it would amount to only about what $500 can buy. Here is a simple problem for every reader. Total the annual wages of the breadwinners in your home. Then take the number of people in your family, less babies, and multiply this number by $500. The difference be-

ROOSEVELT SUFFERS DEFEAT

Washington, Apr. 9.—(AP)—The government's reorganization bill went into a house committee pile on hole today, killed for this session by a revolt of Democrats who ignored pleas of party leaders not to proclaim to the nation a "lack of confidence" in President Roosevelt.

The surprising administration set-back left Democratic chiefs stunned and silent.

INCREASED YIELD OF INDIA TOBACCO

Washington, April 9.—(AP)—The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported today that the production of flue-cured tobacco in India during the 1937-38 season was about 36,000,000 pounds, or about double that of the preceding year.

It also said cable reports from India indicated that growers would increase their plantings this year.

The Indian tobacco is being used to some extent by English cigarette manufacturers as a substitute for American flue-cured.

The Bureau said the seasonal average price of India leaf will be about 14.6 cents a pound.

Steel Firm Held Guilty Of Eight Counts By NLRB

Republic Ordered Re-instate Workers, Some with Pay

MUST BREAK UP COMPANY UNION

Corporations Found Guilty of Violating Wagner Labor Relations Act in Strike

Washington, April 9. (AP)—The Labor Relations Board decided today that the Republic Steel Corporation had violated the Wagner Labor Relations act on eight counts before and during the bloody "Little Steel" strike last summer.

The board ordered the company to: Reinstating 3,000 strikers with pay starting from yesterday.

Break up its employee representation plan in its five Ohio plants. Reinstating with back pay 27 employees discharged before the strike. Compensate employees of the Canton Tin Plate mill and the Massillon Works for pay lost during the shutdown from May 4 to May 19, 1937.

The board said the company had violated the act by:

Domination of the employee representative plan. Discharge of 27 employees for union activity. Shutdowns at Canton and Massillon.

Spying on its workers and vilifying the Steel Workers Organizing committee (CIO). Inciting violence during the strike by trying to turn civil authorities and business interests against the union.

Giving fear and sickness gas to the city of Massillon.

Supporting the Massillon Law and Order League and three back-to-work committees.

Activity in connection with the fatal shooting of three strikers in Massillon.

The board's decision covered only Republic's Ohio plants and did not involve the Chicago plant, where 10 strike sympathizers were killed in the Memorial Day riot.

RECORD RAIN IN PAST 24 HOURS

Fall of 4.63 Inches Second Heaviest Ever Recorded

The second heaviest rain on record fell in Greenville last night and yesterday, 4.63 inches having descended here during the 24 hours ending at 8 o'clock this morning.

B. T. Clark, in charge of the local weather bureau station, recalled this morning that only one time during the 20 years he has been keeping records has a heavier rain been recorded in any 24 hours. This was several years ago when the fall was measured at 5.33 inches.

During the 48 hours ending at 8 o'clock this morning 5.01 inches fell here.

No serious damage was reported as a result of the heavy fall, although many persons declared that the water beat through windows and doors, loosened bricks in chimneys and beat down eaves into their homes. One woman reported that a number of her chickens were drowned.

Whitney Sentence Scheduled Monday

New York, April 9.—(AP) District Attorney Thomas Dewey today urged that a "substantial and punitive sentence" be imposed on Richard Whitney, bankrupt broker who is due to be sentenced Monday on his plea of guilty to grand theft.

In a memorandum to General sessions Judge Owen Bohan, who will pass sentence, Dewey reviewed Whitney's activities before the collapse of his Wall Street firm March 8, last.

"With full knowledge of the consequences he embarked upon a deliberate course of criminal conduct covering a period of six years involving larcenies, fraud and misrepresentations and the falsification of books and financial statements."

"Furthermore, by reason of the position held by the defendant, his conduct has amounted to a betrayal of the public trust."

The Guaranty Bank and Trust Company of this city, which already has branch institutions in six towns and cities outside of Greenville, will open a branch in Robersonville the latter part of this month and contemplates a branch in Ahoskie some time in the near future, it was made known here today. The Robersonville branch will be established through a purchase of the Bank of Robersonville, and the Ahoskie branch will be a conversion of the Bank of Ahoskie, the control of which is already owned by E. G. Flanagan, W. H. Woolard and J. H. Waldrop, officials of the Guaranty Bank.

Subject to the approval of the directors, the stockholders of the institutions, the Commissioner of Banks, and others, the assets of the Bank of Robersonville will be purchased by the Guaranty Bank and the former converted into a branch of the latter about the 21st of this month. The negotiations have been under way for some time and are said to meet with the general approval of all concerned, but the deal cannot be consummated until officially approved by the stockholders of the two banks who will meet on the 20th. The conversion of the Bank of Robersonville into a branch of the Guaranty was said to be favored by the officials of the Robersonville. (Continued on page six)

FORECAST FOR MILD WEATHER IS WELCOMED

Rising Temperature Forecast for Storm-Hit Sections

FORTY-TWO DEAD OVER WIDE AREA

Workers Labor To Clear 6 Major Highways; Trains Stalled at Stations

(By Associated Press) Forecasts of rising temperature betokened relief today to a vast area of the nation buffeted for three days by rain, snow, sleet and tornado winds.

Warmer weather by Sunday was in store for most of the snow-clogged middle-west and the rain-drenched Atlantic seaboard forecasters said.

Forty-two deaths were attributed to the spring storms which lashed virtually the entire area east of the Rockies.

Thirteen persons were killed by an Alabama tornado and as many died when a cloudburst washed away a store building in Georgia. Seven were found dead of asphyxiation in a snow-swept Texas home.

Flood danger drove thousands from their homes in Alabama. Boats removed refugees from flooded Prattville, a town of 2,500. The Mississippi at Quincy Ill., the Wash and White rivers in Indiana and the St. Francis and Red rivers in Arkansas and Louisiana neared flood stage.

Workers labored through the night to clear six major highways in Missouri. Almost every Missouri highway leading into Kansas City was blocked by drifted snow.

Two Rock Island and two Missouri Pacific passenger trains were stalled at stations in Kansas and two other Rock Island trains in Texas. The Kansas City Southern Railway sent a train to Abury, Mo., to rescue 75 marooned motorists.

More than a hundred bus and automobile passengers were stalled near Balton, Mo. For food they had bologna and oranges taken from stalled freight trucks.

Churches Sponsor Morning Services

With the thought of the churches of Christendom again turning toward the Resurrection and the preceding events of Passion Week, the local Ministerial Association in a recent meeting voted to sponsor, as in previous years, morning services of meditation.

These Holy Week services will be held, beginning Monday, April 11, in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church from 8 to 8:30, each morning thru Friday of the coming week. It is expected that this half-hour period each morning will draw large numbers of school children and business men and women.

Presided over by the Rev. T. M. Grant of the Methodist Church, each morning's service will deal with the events of that particular day in the life of Jesus during His last week.

The list of speakers for the morning is as follows:

Monday—Rev. W. A. Ryan, Eighth Street Christian Church.

Tuesday—Rev. R. O. Grady, Presbyterian Church.

Wednesday—Rev. Lowell Sodsman of Memorial Baptist church.

Thursday—Rev. Worth Wickett, St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Friday—Rev. Clarence Patrick, Immanuel Baptist church.

Aaron Mills Seeking Office Of Constable

Aaron A. Mills today announced his candidacy for the office of constable of Winterville township, the first to announce publicly for the post.

Child township, which has three candidates out, is the only place so far where a contest for constable has developed.

River Rising

With the Tar river rising at the rate of two feet every 24 hours here, the stream was predicted to reach flood stage and above.

R. T. Clark, in charge of the local weather bureau station, reported at 1 o'clock the stream was standing at nine feet and five inches. Fourteen feet is regarded as flood stage for the river.

The rapid rise of the river indicates that heavy rains were experienced in the upper reaches.

The local station has been advised to advise the state headquarters at Raleigh twice daily on the rise of the stream.

Clues In Abduction Of Peter Levine Uncovered

New Rochelle, N. Y. (AP) A stolen automobile and toy typewriter that might have been used by the kidnapers of 12-year-old Peter Levine was found by searching party of boy scouts today.

The automobile stolen some time ago, was found in a patch of woods near a small hut, hidden by trees in a nearby.

Nearby was a mound of freshly dug earth, which police admitted they began to turn over. There was a possibility, they said, that it was a grave.

The ashes of a bonfire, a broken pick handle and a lantern also were found in the vicinity.

Sticks To Job

A setting hen owned by J. W. H. Roberts and declared by him to be his favorite, owes her life to the fact she stuck to her knitting—or to be exact, her setting.

Mr. Roberts, who lives in the Westbrook apartments, declared today that all his chickens save his favorite were drowned in the heavy rainfall last night.

The setting hen was found this morning some 25 yards from her usual place, but she was still on her nest, which was partially filled with water and floating around in water some three feet deep.

Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR, Saturday, April 9, 1938. Personal. H. W. Holcombe went to Richmond today. Sheriff W. H. Harrington left this morning for Raleigh to take a prisoner to the penitentiary. Notices. Easter Sunday tomorrow. There may be spring weather for Easter after all. Riverside Nurseries had ripe strawberries this morning and they were beautiful. Editorial. It may be a hard accusation to bring against a man occupying the highest position within the gift of the American people, but the frequent changing situation from excitement to one of quiet makes it look like President McKinley is under the control of the Wall Street manipulators and is helping them to fleece the people on stock fluctuations. They seem to be posted in advance of every movement and play the game accordingly. The people of Lumberton, N. C., held an indignation meeting Thursday night and hanged McKinley in effigy. The figure was a large man of straw kneeling at the feet of Mark Hanna. At the foot of the effigy a United States flag was dragged in the dust by a chariot of gold driven by Mark Hanna. Birth Announcement. Mr. and Mrs. Alton Vincent announce the birth of a son, Alton Gene, April 8th, Pitt General Hospital. Mrs. Vincent was formerly Miss Corinne Smith of Black Jack. Special Services. By throwing light on a translucent screen in the medium of Form, Color and Motion, Thomas Wilfred, composer-playwright in the new Art-Lumia—held absorbed in his "Recital of Light" last night at the college an audience that practically filled the big Robert H. Wright auditorium. Wilfred, Danish discoverer of what he insists is an eighth major Fine Art—Lumia, or the Art of Light—Inventor of the Clavilux, an instrument through which he can present the Art, prefaced his program with some explanation of what he is attempting. He compared his appearance before a modern audience to the appearance of the first musician before a group, and said that people seeing a Light Recital would have to use their imagination, as listeners do in music, and make their own interpretations. After announcing his program, the artist disappeared behind the silver screen facing the crowd, into the canvas tent which stretched behind it in a box-like compartment containing the Clavilux; the lights in the auditorium were cut off; the "intermission lights" flashed on the screen in their rising sun pattern; the melody with which the artist introduced his composition swelled and died away; and in the silence waves of light and color began to take shape on the screen and to advance and recede in a systole and diastole like that of ocean waves. Indeed, the whole effect was that of a silent ocean with the most gorgeous hues of sunrise and sunset combined, lighting up its waves and the sky above. The name of this composition—a favorite with the audience—was "Horizontal Study." "Enchanted Forest," a number in the second group, was, in the opinion of many, one of the most beautiful of the whole program. In it, dream-like trees in shifting vistas were thrown into relief by changing colors, and then into the background by thin floating forms of indescribable color and shape, which later disappeared to let the forest take the foreground again. Wilfred began his experiments in the Art of Light in 1905 and started Light as an independent art in this formulation of the theory that just as melody, harmony and rhythm contribute to music, or sound as a fine art; so form, color, and motion contribute to Lumia, or light, as an art. In 1922 he gave his first public recital of silent "visual compositions," in which Light appeared for the first time on a screen as form, color, and motion. Since that time Wilfred has spent the summers in creative work and the winters in recitals at home and abroad. The Clavilux has three sets of keys to control what flashes on the screen: one for the form, one for the movement, and one for the color. As Wilfred plays the instrument the sets of keys work together to blend color with shape and motion. Wilfred is the founder of the Art Institute of Light in New York City, where there is one other large instrument of his making. At this institute, housed in Grand Central Palace, programs are given every Thursday and Friday nights, and artists are being trained to compose for the new art. The program given last night follows: 1. Horizontal Study; Elliptical Study; Orientale. 2. Study in Black and White; Second Study in Depth; Enchanted Forest; Spiral Etude. Wilfred declares that other fine arts will follow this one, and that this—Lumia—will be as important in the future as music now is in the list of such arts. Seeing Through My Windshield. THE HOME AND THE CHILD'S ATTITUDES. April 24 to April 30 is set apart as Better Homes Week. We recognize that individual personality and the ways of adjustment are definitely influenced by the purposeful training, ideas, and methods of parents and by the cultural opportunities provided in the home. It is generally agreed by psychologists and sociologists that attitudes are learned and that they are potent forces in affecting one's behavior. The child's attitudes represent his frame of mind towards certain things. They are unified emotional and mental states that tend to guide and direct the course of his attention and behavior. In the course of life we develop certain social attitudes, civic attitudes, religious attitudes, international attitudes, and the like. These attitudes, in turn, determine in a large measure our behavior in various life activities. While the child comes into a social heritage without any attitudes, he brings with him the capacity for developing attitudes. He is born a plastic and susceptible creature and does not have a background of experience for reasoning and thinking out the best solution to the different problems he meets. He is born into a home where various attitudes are in existence. These attitudes already present in the home are in most cases founded upon certain sentiments and a culture not wholly harmonious with one present order. Obviously, a certain amount of uniformity of attitudes is essential for the interest and welfare of the group. However, when a rigid conformity to meaningless family beliefs and attitudes is demanded, the most desirable civic character qualities and wholesome personality traits are not likely to be developed. The first consideration for parents who wish to create desirable attitudes in their children is their own attitudes. The development of science and concurrently the scientific method has brought with it in many cases scepticism and a feeling of uncertainty on problems not solved. Not certain as to the course of training to follow they depend upon the church, the school, the neighborhood, or in some cases the backyard gang for the development of the attitudes of their children. The importance of the early plastic years in the molding of character, personality, and attitudes has been recognized by certain groups for a long time. Educators unite in stressing the importance of these years in the development of the child's attitudes. Standards, ideals, attitudes must be an intrinsic part of the home situation if the experiences of these early years are to be most effective in the child's social development. The attitudes of the home that will be most effective in the future development of the child are those established along broad principles and well organized in the home; that are later emphasized in the schools and other institutions with which the child comes into contact; and are still later effective in the development of a life of happiness and success. Assuming that parents have rather desirable attitudes themselves, they may not choose the best method for developing these attitudes in their children. The most obvious and least satisfactory is the direct method. Under these conditions, ideals or traits are discussed specifically. Possessing in a measure the desired ideals and standards, the parents undertake to interest the child in these same ideals and standards. Finally, discussion moves into experience and parents provide opportunities for exercising these ideals and attitudes in actual situations. This method is in general use, although its limitations are quite obvious. The child's character and personality cannot best be fixed by rigid molds. Attitudes will develop best in a more fruitful environment of desirable experiences and a larger unified philosophy. Far more effective is the indirect method in the home. Attitudes are developed by taking advantage of situations. A situation may be used to enable the child to show courage, unselfishness, or self-control. The fact that what he does requires a new brand of courage, or an enlargement of unselfishness, may include a new group of people, may become for him a satisfying experience in that growth which is the purpose of life. All the discussion in the world will not produce as vivid an experience as that which comes with the actual evidence of progress in good living. Furthermore, attitudes are developed indirectly as a result of the child's response to the total environment. The child may come to accept in the main the ways and attitudes of his elders, unconscious that anyone is seeking to bring about such a result. The right people suggesting and exemplifying desirable attitudes is essential for the development of worthy ideals and attitudes among children.—(Dr. Karl C. Garrison, North Carolina State College). ART FESTIVAL NEARING CLOSE

Interesting and Varied Programs Being Presented

The Thursday evening program of the Fine Arts Festival was held in the club house at 8 o'clock, with Mrs. S. M. Crisp presiding. Mr. Dean C. Tabor of E. C. T. C., sang "Deep River" by Burleigh, and "The Hobo" by Brown. He was accompanied by Miss Mary Dormer of E. C. T. C. Mrs. Crisp presented Col. Flanagan as a friend who could not only tell about his travels, but thanks to modern photography, could show us many of the places visited. Colonel E. G. Flanagan delighted his audience, which filled the club house to its utmost capacity, with an account of his recent trip across the continent and to Mexico and Hawaii. He briefly reviewed his trip from the time he left Greenville until his return, telling some of the most interesting and unusual places he visited. Pictures taken by him on the trip were shown. Both the talk and pictures were made more interesting by incidents told of former Greenville residents visited on the trip. Mrs. C. M. Tolar and son, Furnie, Major Carl Wilson and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Free-Whitthorne often appearing on the screen to the delight of their friends in the audience. Colonel and Mrs. Flanagan and Miss Alice Lee Hooker who accompanied them on the trip, also appeared often in the pictures. On Friday afternoon at 4:30, at the Woman's Club, Matt Phillips talked on Photography as an art. Mr. Phillips has been associated with Bayard Wooten, noted photographer of Chapel Hill, for the past year. He used many photographs taken by Mrs. Wooten, to illustrate his talk. This program was a part of the Fine Arts Festival and was planned especially for the college and high school students interested in photography. Mr. Phillips showed very plainly how good photography is an art and not just a mechanical means of taking a picture. He showed how good small prints may be used to make lovely pictures and said it is not necessary to have expensive equipment to make good pictures. He urged his audience to photograph the interesting places in their own yards and communities. The final program for the Fine Arts Festival will be held in the club house on Sunday afternoon at 3:30. This program is sponsored by the Greenville Ministerial Association, and Rev. R. C. Grady, president, will preside. A musical program of Negro spirituals will be given by Negro choirs of Greenville.

Easter Season Brings Opening Of Seal Sale

The Easter season brings with it the bright seals of the local Welfare Department, an affiliate of the State League for Crippled Children, as harbingers of joy in a joyous period. These seals bring to the attention of the public the work being done for children and adults, unfortunately handicapped by crippling diseases or accidents, and the need for pursuing the effect unceasingly. The work of these organizations should receive the support and encouragement of all persons. Modern science and modern methods have brought a new life to many persons whose afflictions once were considered hopeless. But these modern blessings are not yet available to all who need them. There is still much to be done. The local organization has for its main purpose the focusing of attention on these problems. Such an aim cannot help but attract the sympathy and support of the community and these can best be offered by making the Seal campaign an outstanding success. The seals sell for a penny. The Easter Seal Sale is being carried on in all parts of the county. The consolidated schools, city schools and civic clubs are assuming their responsibility in making the Seal Sale this Easter a great success. The Kiwanis Club of Greenville gave the Seal a boost at its regular meeting last night. The Rotary Club of Bethel through W. J. Smith has assumed $100.00 of seals and throughout the entire county there has been optimistic notes to reach their quota. The colored people are taking a great deal of active interest in the sale of these seals. The local seal sale will be handled in Greenville and community under the direction of Mrs. Dink James, President of the Junior Women's Club. Her workers will be in various places certain days next week to give the public an opportunity to share in this program. As mentioned in previous announcements fifty per cent of the money derived from the sale of stamps is retained locally and fifty per cent forwarded to the State Society. Five per cent is used for overhead expenses. The forty-five per cent sent to the State Society is returned to the counties and matched dollar for dollar for the purchase of braces, crutches and hospitalization of crippled people. RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY N. C. STATE TEACHERS. Whereas, the Governor of North Carolina has appointed a committee to sell North Carolina to the United States and the world, and also appointed a committee on State beautification, and Whereas, the President of the United States has appointed a former teacher and supervisor as State Chairman of Better Homes to cooperate with such committees as the Governor has appointed, and to coordinate the activities of all educational agencies interested in and working for Better Homes, more wholesome family life, cleaner towns, and more beautiful countryside. Therefore, be it resolved that the teachers of North Carolina encourage and cooperate with the Better Homes Movement in North Carolina by working with the Home Demonstration agents who are Better Homes chairmen, and by assuming definite goals for their schools such as motivation of school activities around home and family life, and by active participation in the statewide clean-up campaign, for cleaner communities will develop better citizens. That the teachers of North Carolina encourage the boys and girls to develop a better community spirit and more civic pride through participation in such activities as planting the school grounds, cleaning school grounds, taking part in chapel periods devoted to homes and by exhibits of activities relating to homes. THANK CITY To The Editor: We, the committee representing the parents and children living in the South and East districts of Greenville, wish to express our appreciation of the efforts of the many people in securing for us the tract of land to be used as a recreation center for our children.

First, we feel that our Honorable Mayor and Board of Aldermen have tried to give to each section of our city, those concessions asked by the people of these particular districts. They have indeed proven themselves wise and just and truly worthy of the faith our people have placed in them. We commend them for what they have done and thank them.

Second, our Superintendent of City Schools, J. H. Rose, who was responsible for many of the votes cast in favor of the bond issue by his talks at the various P. T. A. meetings and for his efforts in securing playgrounds for the different parts of town since the bond issue. He has worked untriflingly for this and we commend him.

Third, our Alderman from the Second Ward, Mr. Jack Spain, who studied and presented our cause to the Board of Aldermen.

Fourth, Mr. J. Con Lanier and Mr. J. W. H. Roberts, who so ably presented our cause at the mass meeting Monday night.

Fifth, to our two daily newspapers, The Reflector and The News-Leader, for the help they so kindly gave us. Sixth, to all those other individuals who have in many ways given their time and efforts toward securing for the children in all parts of Greenville these splendid places for recreation centers, we offer our sincere thanks.

CONTROL PROGRAM

To The Editor: What is our attitude toward our farm program? The new farm bill itself, we feel, is as good as Congress was able to give us. At least we must say apparently to go a long way toward our ideal. Now are we as individuals willing to do our part to make the program a success? Its destiny lies in our hands.

Are we going to make the same honest effort to carry out the program as Congress did to give it to us? Each individual must assume his share of the responsibility for carrying it out. The bill is designed to be fair and just, are we going to be fair and just? We know there were some inequalities under the emergency set-up. The continuation of the program depends upon our honest effort to right any inequalities.

If some of us think this is a free-for-all grab game, that it is all right for us to get all the allotment, we can regardless of our neighbor, then the program's days are numbered unless our honest fair-minded citizenship assert themselves and see that right prevails. I have confidence that our farmers will support a program that is fair. I am also confident they will not support a program that is motivated by selfishness.

We realize it takes time to perfect any program; and we have plenty of sympathy and admiration for the heads of our program who fought so valiantly for our cause. By our vote we said we wanted a compulsory control program, now are we willing to give it our fair and honest support?

about the row in Congress over the T. V. A. I feel that the Administration has been unfair to the public utilities. They do not deserve the persecution which they have had. On the other hand, if all parties would stop scrapping and unitedly get behind air-conditioning, the whole problem would solve itself. Due to the demands for power from air-conditioning, there will be a shortage of generating capacity even after the new big government dams are in full operation. Some day, when air-conditioning is universally used, the utilities will thank President Roosevelt for his foresight in providing this additional electric power.

Next week I expect to spend in Washington. While there, I shall visit the White House offices, the Senate, and the House of Representatives; also the offices of some of your Congressmen. I expect to find all these offices air-conditioned. Yet less than one-tenth of one per cent of the office buildings, stores, and factories in this country are air-conditioned. Why should these political leaders deny the people something which they themselves consider indispensable? They should pass along this great improvement to others.

What About Relief? The Roosevelt Administration has gone into debt twenty billion dollars in trying to beat depression. I do not object so much to the money involved. The great harm has been the undermining of character. I often wonder whether, if our Great Western country were unsettled today, our young men and women would have the guts to go out and build the railroads, hew the forests, start the farms, and do the other things which our grandparents did seventy-five years ago. But let us not cry over spilt milk. Let us blame no one, not even the President, for anything that has been done up to date. From now on, however, let us devote our energies to developing new industries. If possible, let us select industries like air-conditioning which will not compete with existing industries. In this way, relief can steady be cut down, things which our grandparents did seventy-five years ago. But let us not cry over spilt milk. SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, April 9.—Closely following announcement that Gordon Gray, publisher of two daily papers, will be a candidate for the State Senate, came another interesting political tidbit from Forsyth in the declaration of intentions by Hal Alspaugh, who will stand for one of the 1939 house seats.

Hal was given statewide publicity by Sandy Graham during Sandy's determined, though unsuccessful, bid for the governorship in 1936. At every crossroad where Sandy spoke during the state's fiercest campaign the Orange county man tore into Dr. Ralph W. McDonald's House record by citing an anecdote in which Alspaugh (then one of Forsyth's three Representatives) playing a leading role.

The story, which was never denied by Dr. McDonald, went like this: In the fall end of the 1935 General Assembly the New Hanover liquor bill was passed, quickly followed by the Pasquotank act, which was made an omnibus measure by those counties desiring liquor stores. While the amending was at its peak, Dr. McDonald whispered to Alspaugh, sitting next to him, "Put Forsyth in, Hal," whereupon Representative Alspaugh rose and sent forward an amendment adding the county to the list of those in the bill.

A voice vote was called in which Dr. McDonald, as well as Alspaugh, voted "Aye." Then a Representative from Mecklenburg (which Sandy always described as the "wettest drinking and driest voting county in the state"), demanded a roll call vote. Alspaugh, high on the alphabetical roster stuck to his guns and voted "Aye"; but when McDonald's turn came the professor lost his nerve and switched to "No."

"It was funny to see poor Hal left holding the bag," Sandy used to tell the folks. Leave it to the women to start something. Down in the Second Senatorial district everything was to be smooth and easy this year, the regular political bosses had it figured out. John Larkins from Jones, was to come back in accordance with the district's usual custom of giving its Senators two terms. Little Greene county was to get its first Senator in to these many years.

Everything was figured to a gnat's heel—all that was necessary was for the Greene folks to get together on their man, who was to slide into the Senate as gracefully as Sonja Henie slides on her skates. Then came Mrs. Mary G. Murphy with a gun-busting announcement that she wants to be the Senator from Greene. Whereupon all agreements, pacts, bets and accords were "off" like Sally Rand's clothes. Politicos from other counties were willing to see a man, but not a woman from Greene set the prize.

And now the candidates are popping up as fast as Italians in Franco's Spanish army. Besides Larkins and Mrs. Murphy there are now Charles Skarren, who gets his mail at Beaufort; Victor Venters, Rich-lands man who is a director of the Kinston Production Credit Association; and H. M. Grant, who fishes down around Sneed's Ferry in Onslow. And the end is not yet.

Out West some of the chaps who used to come to Raleigh are getting the urge to run for the 1939 House. In Transylvania W. M. Henry, 1935 Representative, has announced against the 1937 incumbent, fat Pat Kinzey. Some time ago W. W. Neal—a veteran of many Assemblies—said he is going to give another fat incumbent, D. P. Giles, a run for his money in McDowell.

OUR TWO BIGGEST MISTAKES

(Continued From Page One) tween these two figures will show how much your family would gain or lose each year if the national income was equally distributed. You can see that we will never get far by fighting over what already exists. (2) Trying to revive old industries is our second big mistake. I would like to see the railroads helped, the farmers helped, the coal miners helped, and other groups helped. "Helping" these groups by bolstering up wages and prices, however, will never put any more people back to work. The trouble with our government financing today is that we are spending two dollars to save one dollar! Furthermore, we will never get out of debt by getting into more debt. Industries, like people, have a definite length of life. A study of history shows that prosperity has come about through the development of new industries—never through trying to revive old, existing industries. A Needed New Industry During the past three months, I have devoted a large amount of time to an impartial study of the various new industries on the horizon. I feel that AIR-CONDITIONING offers the greatest opportunity. If the country would declare a moratorium on political back-biting and spend the same energy on whipping up enthusiasm over air-conditioning, five million people could be returned to jobs. Most of the proposed new industries would put out of work some people who are now engaged in existing occupations. This is not true of the air-conditioning industry. It could directly or indirectly give millions of people jobs and go a long way toward restoring employment to normal conditions.

I would admit that air-conditioning would throw some doctors, and perhaps druggists, out of jobs. I have in mind the fact that air-conditioning greatly improves the health and efficiency of workers in factories, stores, and homes. Remember that air-conditioning is much more than merely cooling your rooms. It means drying the air in Summer, and moistening it in Winter. There are only three things in life, viz: How we think, how we feel, and how we love. Certainly, air-conditioning can become a great factor in the first two of these and perhaps an influence in the third!

What About The Power Row? We see much in the papers today

What About Relief? The Roosevelt Administration has gone into debt twenty billion dollars in trying to beat depression. I do not object so much to the money involved. The great harm has been the undermining of character. I often wonder whether, if our Great Western country were unsettled today, our young men and women would have the guts to go out and build the railroads, hew the forests, start the farms, and do the other things which our grandparents did seventy-five years ago.

The Boxwood Barrier

By BLANCHE SMITH FERGUSON

The Story So Far: Loving someone else, gently bred Judith Goodloe marries Reuben Oliver—self-made man and outsider—for his money, only to discover that his fortune is lost. But Judith's code insists that she stick to her marriage and follow Reuben to a dismal mining town, Fordney's Gulch, Nevada. Unfit for poverty, there are times she hates Reuben bitterly, and she knows it. It is Thanksgiving, with nothing to be thankful for.

Chapter 23 Only Half Alive

A GOOD quarrel would have cleared the atmosphere but they were so careful, so very careful to avoid even a remote hint of one. Perhaps neither could have told why they feared an eruption even while they longed for one that would rock the earth.

"Hurry and change, Reuben," Judith filled a bud vase with water, put the geranium in it and placed it in the center of the small table richly laid with damask, silver, crystal. "I'll keep the things warm until you're ready."

Despite their combined efforts it was not a festive meal. The disheartened turkey was quite tasteless from too long hours spent in a steamer. The cranberry jelly was leathery. The potatoes soggy.

While they were pretending to enjoy themselves Mrs. Kraus came bustling in with a platter of piping hot home cooked turkey. The skin was golden brown, the meat tender, juicy. The dressing and gravy savory dreams.

"I could cook like that!" Judith envied.

"You could, if you tried hard enough," the woman told her. "The Row feels sorry for Mr. Oliver."

"Sorry?"

The woman nodded. "It ain't right for a man to have to do outside work and inside too, so when I saw him coming with a basket—"

"The neighbors felt sorry—not for her—for Reuben. They felt sorry for Reuben—"

"I'm afraid I wasn't cut out for a miner's wife," frigidly.

Mrs. Kraus agreed. "But the one sure way to keep your man always in the mine is to let your end down."

"Don't mind her," Reuben said when they returned to their interrupted meal. "This turkey is worth a few insults."

Judith tried valiantly to capture the holiday spirit, so did Reuben. They tried too hard. Perhaps that was why it eluded them.

They had so pitifully little in common. Judith tried to take an interest in Reuben's work, but she hated the mine, so did Reuben. He would have talked of their days in Maryland, but the subject always led to regrets and hurt feelings, so she spoke brightly of impersonal things.

"I had a letter from Jim," Reuben remembered suddenly and felt his pockets. "Left it in my other coat."

"What did he say?"

"Hugs to fine Jim. He has been hunting for him a lot this autumn." He wanted to add that he hoped to send for Hugo soon, but planning for the future was taboo because Reuben visioned largely—a panorama of vast proportions. Some day he would buy back Five Chimneys—buy her sables—a yacht—When a man has no future the less he says about it the better, so Reuben banked the fires of his ambition deep within himself.

Sometimes sitting in the cluttered little room with Judith so near he could touch her, he knew a loneliness greater than any he had felt in the heart of the wilderness. If, for an hour, she would understand, if he could hear her laugh in the old spontaneous way.

He looked at her across the table with its joyous display of elegance so sadly out of place in the mean room. Perhaps he could find the right word—

"Judith."

She met his eyes and smiled absently. She was reminding herself that the easiest way was just to live for one day at a time, to feel nothing; want nothing; remember nothing—that was wisdom.

Self Pity

WINTER set in earnest. Snow. Wind. Blizzards. Sleet. Thaws. Reuben's wet muddy boots dry, hanging by the kitchen stove. The air filled with wood smoke, drying leather, stewing food—but at last Spring! Bringing a hint of beauty even to Fordney's Gulch with its mining shafts, its smoke.

The muddy pocket handkerchief of lawn sent out feeble shoots of grass. Judith planted petunias and nasturtiums close to the water pipe fence and bought a green window box. The plants made a brave effort to live. Flowers bloomed sparsely, feebly, but before the pitiless summer sun and dry, searing heat withered, grew altogether discouraged—died.

Judith wilted too. Each day, when she had made the little house tidy, she would lie on the uncomfortable Sheraton sofa in the crowded up living room—the slope roofed bedroom was too hot —and dream of the cool, high ceilinged rooms at Goodloe's Choice. When the sun went down she sat on the doorstep and waited for Reuben. Sometimes the neighbor women came to chat with her. They were kind, friendly, generous. They thought Judith queer, stiff, unsovable.

"Will you go down the Gulch to the picnic with us next week, Mrs. Oliver?" another foreman's wife invited her cordially.

"Why—" Judith started to refuse.

"I'll pack enough lunch for you," Mrs. Kraus offered, "You won't have to bother about that."

"I'll go, of course."

The wooded hollow where the picnic was held was shady. It would have been pleasant had not the smoke and smell of the mine hung over it. The lunch was delicious—homecooked ham, pickles, jellies, cakes and what not. The women talked happily of their homes, their husbands, their children, their future, their past—as happy women will. They asked Judith questions.

"From the South, aren't you?"

"From Maryland."

"My—that's a long way." Most of them had been born within a radius of 100 miles of the mine.

"Was it a pretty place?"

"Pretty?" If only she could have told them of home as it was! But they would have thought she was bragging or lying.

At rare intervals when she stopped pitying herself, Judith thought of Reuben and pitied him too. Poor Reuben—working long hours in this fiendish heat. She remembered the cars he had driven, the yacht he had sailed, the money he had handled, the power, of a sort, he had wielded. Yes, it was hard for Reuben too.

Mysterious Process

SOON he would be coming home, tired, dirty. There wouldn't be enough hot water—She had left one kettle filled on the back of the stove. There never was enough hot water. Reuben never enough room, nor any. Never enough of anything except discomfort, dirt, work—endless work.

It was the dishes with streaks of egg gummed to them that made Judith wish she were dead. Perhaps she would die—she hoped she would when the baby was born. She looked forward to going to the hospital with something akin to delight. There would be plenty of hot water there. Smooth flat beds. No dirty dishes—

She and Reuben never spoke of the coming child. He longed to speak of it, but the mere miracle of it tied his tongue. His son! Another Reuben Goodloe! It was up to him to make good now—a little lad had to be proud of his daddy.

He made happy solitary plans. Resentful, confused, fearful—Judith would sometimes think of the child that would soon be hers with a great, rending pity—not a Goodloe, an Oliver—born to squallor, struggle, to everything that was unlovely and alien! Poor little tad! Horrible to think of—impossible to speak of. When she learned there were to be two children—Well!

Into a breathless, humid July night Judith's twins—a boy and a girl—were born.

White, shiny, slippery walls. Bright lights making circles upon them. White hurrying figures. Low babble of voices.

Confused, broken, Judith wondered if all women felt as she did. Was it all like this rant about maternal love being the greatest thing in the world? She looked at the pink, scowling faces of her children: at their wavering, tight-fisted little hands with distaste.

"The young lady is exactly like her daddy," the nurse said.

Judith closed her eyes. She knew she should say something in Reuben's defense. Reuben didn't have a puttyish lump for a nose, a wrinkled chin or squint eyes. Most people thought Reuben handsome. She was too tired to argue about it. If this woman in white wanted to say the girl baby looked like Reuben, let her go ahead. She felt disappointed, cheated because she could not love even her own babies, but the first time she heard one of the pink mites sneeze Judith, who had never known fear, almost died of it. "Nurse—she's choking, dying!"

"Talcum powder up her nose," the nurse said easily, but it was a half hour before Judith knew a blessed, tearful peace while deep within her, by a mysterious process, was born such a love for these perfectly amazing, absurdly ugly, grotesquely beautiful bits of humanity that were flesh of her flesh!

They must have the finest and best of everything. If she had loved Goodloe's Choice before, she wanted it now—boxwood, land, house, all that it stood for—with a greed that frightened her. Wanted it for them! How safely a little girl could play inside the hedge! What gorgeous dream ships a little boy could launch on the meadow brook at home! Home! The word had taken on its full meaning.

answer Scott has designed to give is that he did nothing more than tear out dead wood afflicted with "dry rot." He has never yet fired anybody secretly or tried to dodge the resulting walls of anguish and rage.

His foes say he can't work in harmony with anyone. The North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation lets no opportunity pass to take a pot shot at him. It is an entirely open secret that there has been continuous friction between the Commissioner and Dean I. O. Schaub at State College. His marketing specialist, R. B. Etheridge and the North Carolina Livestock Co-operators have engaged in a perpetual-motion row ever since Scott went into His appointment of Dr. Kilgore as chemist has been widely assailed as peculiarly political. He drew hot fire from the Board of Health by attacking dairy inspection and inspectors.

His determination that the State shall operate the State Fair brought down wrath upon his head in many quarters. He was assailed from all sides; but he stuck to his guns with the grim determination characteristic of the man; and when he put on what was admittedly the best fair in years and showed a cash profit of some $3,000 in addition to some $7,500 in permanent improvements and repair work, there wasn't much for his belittlers to say.

In short, Kerr Scott has started a controversy with respect to practically everything he has tackled since becoming Commissioner.

He is undoubtedly determined to the point of stubbornness, undiplomatic to the point of being cordially disliked by many who have to deal with him; but he is the kind of man who gets things done.

Illustrating some of his faults and virtues is the remark attributed to Dean Schaub at a time when Scott was a County Agent working under the State professor.

PATRIOT SPURNED GOVERNORSHIP

ARTHUR MIDDLETON OF SOUTH CAROLINA TURNED DOWN THE HIGHEST OFFICE IN THE STATE.

THE man who declined a governorship! Such was the unique distinction enjoyed by ARTHUR MIDDLETON, famous patriot and signer of the Declaration of Independence from South Carolina. Upon returning home from Congress, he found in 1778, that the state constitution did not meet with his approval and because of this actually declined the governorship of South Carolina. The Middleton family was one of great wealth and prominence, however, the estates of Arthur Middleton were terribly ravaged and his income greatly diminished by the vicissitudes of the Revolutionary War. He took an outstanding part in the defense of Charleston, and when that city capitulated to the British, was sent to St. Augustine a prisoner. On his exchange he sailed to Philadelphia and served again in congress from 1781 to 1783.

agents," the Dean is reported to have said. "He gets things done, but he simply will not do anything the way he is told to do them. He has his own way of doing them and nothing can change him."

One of Scott's best friends—a man who worked for him like a Trojan in 1936 and who says he will "go down the line" for him any time—recently told your correspondent:

"Scott's the hardest fellow to help I ever saw. I'm afraid he is going to have a hard time being re-elected. Before he had at least 80 per cent of the county agents working for him. If he ran now, he had nearly that many against him. That's because he can't get along in peace and harmony with Dean Schaub, and all the agents swear by the dean."

Then he added half-jestingly: "I've been giving him what I think is good advice ever since he went in office—and he hasn't taken any of it."

Withal Scott has a long list of accomplishments for the department—accomplishments of which your correspondent will write soon.

Meadows Speaker At Assembly At College

President L. R. Meadows in speaking at assembly yesterday morning about his recent trip to the Texas meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, told his audience that probably the most important committee to report there was he one on Standardization of Schools and Colleges, which presented eighteen recommendations.

Six of these Dr. Meadows spoke of as the most important. They were: (1) that the plant of public school must be good; (2) that the school must have the proper equipment in the classrooms; (3) that the students should be trained to meet the requirements of life rather than the college; (4) that the teacher be properly prepared to meet the needs of the students; (5) that the teachers receive proper salaries; and (6) that the institution should be judged by its finished product.

Dr. Meadows also summarized what he considered the most outstanding talk of the convention—one given by Dean Hawkes, of Columbia University on "The Individual Goes to College."

"There is only one thing worthwhile in the student and that is personality," he quoted Dean Hawkes as saying.

The Dean also suggested that the authorities should let the students graduate without taking certain subjects, taking the courses they preferred instead, but the student must be good in the selected course.

Dr. Meadows prefaced his talk by comments on the interesting sights of his trip, mentioning that he paid a visit to his old home and saw various members of his family.

Dr. J. H. McGinnis who was with Dr. Meadows on the trip and who had been serving as a member of the important Commission on Higher Education was re-elected to the commission for three years. Also has was appointed by that group to its committee on standards, of such institutions.

Kerr Scott Sets Record Of Making Most Enemies

Reflector Bureau

Raleigh, April 9.—W. Kerr Scott, blunt-speaking Commissioner of Agriculture who has been the stormy petrel of Raleigh's Department heads ever since he defeated veteran William A. Graham in 1936, is able to make one undisputed boast in answer to his critics.

He has never yet been accused of "doing nothing." All the alleged sins which he has been charged with were of commission and not of omission.

Even before he formally took office he was the target of virulent, at times vicious, press attacks because he let no grass grow under his feet in announcing his intentions to fire a considerable percentage of the personnel of the Department of Agriculture. He said he was going to clean house, and he it known that he has never backed up one inch in carrying out his announced intentions—no matter how hot the opposing fire, nor what the pressure brought to bear on him.

His critics say he ruthlessly tossed out people he didn't like, no matter how efficient they were. What

GUARANTY BANK TO HAVE BRANCH IN ROBERSONVILLE

(Continued from page one) sonville institution because the increased capital and enlarged banking facilities would better serve the people of that community. The Guaranty Bank and Trust Company is one of the state's larger banking institutions with capital and surplus of $600,000, undivided profits of $132,819.10, and total assets of over seven million dollars.

From the statement of April 1, 1933, to the statement of March 7, 1938, surplus, profits and reserves have been increased from $79,157.41 to $279,793.53 or a net increase of over $200,000 in addition to cash and stock dividends worth $69.50 a share. In addition to the home bank here, there are the Dickinson avenue branch in this city, and branches in Bethel, Belhaven, Snow Hill, Washington, Elizabeth City, and Willsboro. The establishment of the Robersonville branch the latter part of this month will make the Guaranty a nine-bank institution and if the Bank of Ahoskie is converted into a branch in the near future the total will be brought to ten.

While no definite date has been set for the change of the status of the Ahoskie institution, the controlling stock is already owned by E. G. Flanagan, W. H. Woolard and J. H. Waldrop of this city, and Mr. Waldrop is president of the bank, and Mr. Woolard is chairman of the board.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, April 9.—(AP)—Stock market leaders bounded skyward today in the broadest buying surge of the year, many climbing one to more than six points as traders scrambled for favorites. The main ammunition for upswings, brokers said, was the unexpected defeat of the government reorganization bill by the House. This, from the standpoint of some financial circles, indicated Congress might ditch other measure which administration opponents deem restrictive to business and industry. Secondary bidders pumped with stocks.

ECTC EXPECTS 2300 GUESTS

Students From More Than Ninety High Schools Invited

With around 2,300 guests from over 90 high schools and 30 counties of Eastern North Carolina expected to attend the barbecue luncheon at the college on High School Day next Tuesday, April 12, plans are under way for the preparation of hundreds of pounds of picnic foods—such as barbecue, slaw, pickles, cornbread, and cookies—for the outdoor luncheon that will be served there. Eighteen or more pigs will be slaughtered to make probably 800 pounds of barbecue.

There will be 100 gallons of slaw and 30 gallons of pickles, almost a barrel full, to serve as relishes for the pork.

The bread is estimated according to a different measure: 8 bushels of cornbread is scheduled to be baked. Around 5,000 cookies will be ready for serving, and 150 gallons of punch as well as a more limited supply of coffee for those who prefer it.

Besides the 60 girls serving the college tables in their regular noon meal in the dining halls, there will be 85 serving at the barbecue luncheon on the campus to see that every ticket holder gets his full plate as soon as possible. The serving of the luncheon is in charge of W. H. McHenry of the college faculty. He will be assisted by Mrs. L. L. Rives and Mrs. Rose Harrell, steward and dietitian.

RECORD RAIN IN PAST 24 HOURS

bureau. The outer tube was left, however, and the rain was caught. Mr. Clark used the Water and Light commission's gauge to measure the rainfall. The measuring tube is of solid copper and Mr. Clark expressed the opinion that it was stolen for its metal value. He is anxious that it be returned and asks that anyone learning anything of its whereabouts notify him or local police headquarters. Traffic was completely halted by high water on the dirt section of Fourteenth street and the New Bern highway at Green Mill run was covered, but vehicles were able to pass. Water was almost up to the road level on other highways in the vicinity.
