FDR TO EXTEND CURRENT DRIVE FOR RECOVERY

Would Permit Taxing Government Bonds and Salaries

PLAN MESSAGES ON TWO SUBJECTS

Asks Congress To Be Aware of Need For Eliminating Exemptions Future Bonds

Washington, April 15. (AP)—President Roosevelt, pressing his drive for business recovery, said today he would ask Congress shortly to strengthen anti-monopoly laws and to permit taxing the income from all future government bond issues and government salaries.

He plans two messages to Congress on these subjects, he told his press conference.

The President, in his message yesterday, asked Congress to be "definitely aware" of the need for eliminating exemptions on future bond issues of all kinds of government agencies and for subjecting salaries and wages of all kinds to Federal and state income taxes.

State employees now paying a state income tax are exempt from the Federal levy and Federal employees paying Federal tax are exempt from State levies.

Roswell Magill, under secretary of the treasury, estimated if all present Federal, state and local securities and salaries were taxable the additional Federal income tax revenue would be about $155,000,000 a year.

Roosevelt talked to the large gathering of reporters while his recovery campaign went forward on many fronts.

He told the nation last night that existence of "our Democratic institutions" depends on defeating the forces of depression.

All the energies of government and business must be directed to increasing the national income, to putting more people into private jobs, to giving security and a feeling of security to all people in all walks of life, Mr. Roosevelt said in a fireside chat broadcast throughout the nation.

Waynick Explodes Myth Of Surplus In Highway Funds

Editorial Declares Money Retained On Hand Is Only a Fairly Steady Balance in Account

Raleigh, April 15.—All that glitters isn't gold and the $9,000,000 "surplus" so glibly described by Governor Clyde R. Hoey and the Highway Commission isn't in fact a "surplus" at all, according to an analytical editorial appearing in Wednesday's High Point Enterprise.

His name is not signed to it, but Caspus M. Waynick, formerly chairman of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, is editor of the Enterprise, and it's a fair assumption that the exploding of the "surplus" myth was done by Mr. Waynick, who ought to know where he speaks.

"The existence of the so-called 'surplus' in the road fund is somewhat misleading," the editorial recites. "That pile of gold in the highway fund does not represent excess beyond road need as surely as it reflects fear and cautions."

"That state has no 'surplus' in road money; it does have a legal reserve. A fairly steady balance of around $9,000,000 lies to the road fund account, while the highway forces work with inadequate appropriations on maintenance of the (Continued on page six)

Loyal Forces In Flight To Mediterranean Coast

FRANCE PLANS TO COURT DUCE

Move Quickly to Follow Anglo-Italian Negotiations

Paris, April 15.—(AP)—France will begin conversations with Italy next week, sources close to the French foreign office said today, in an effort to woo Mussolini from his diplomatic alliance with Germany.

Quickly following successful Anglo-Italian negotiations to be concluded by the signing of an agreement Saturday in Rome, Premier Edouard Daladier hoped to arrive at a similar agreement before the League of Nations council meets May 9.

This would allow France to follow the British lead in discussions before the league on Ethiopia's status under Italian domination. Besides recognition of Il Duce's Africa Empire, other questions which probably would be discussed between Rome and Paris include the Mediterranean status quo; foreign volunteers in Spain and financial arrangements about the French-owned railroad from Djibouti to Addis Ababa.

Elections Board Powers To Be Argued In Court

Raleigh, April 15.—If Judge Marshall Spears goes behind a smoke-screen of technicalities and decides the Cumberland mandamus case on the merits of the contentions presented, his ruling is likely to set a standard for the extent of the State Board of Elections' power to exercise discretion in appointing election boards.

In the case of W. C. Ewing of Cumberland, is seeking a writ of mandamus compelling the State Board of Elections of the two men recommended by Democratic State Chairman Gregg Cherry, who were recommended to Cherry by the county Democratic executive committee with 22 of its 23 members present and agreeing unanimously upon the recommendations.

The State Board named M. B. Person one of the county board members instead of accepting C. C. McAllister, recommended by the state chairman, who submitted only two names instead of the three which the election law says he shall have the right to recom-

Japanese Suffer Losses In China; Trouble At Home

Ministers Split Over Full Strength Mobilization

PREMIER READY TO RESIGN POST

Army and Navy, However, Fear Effects on Troops in China If Such Action Taken

Tokyo, April 15.—(AP)—Premier Prince Konoye was said today to be ready to resign because of a split among his ministers over mobilizing Japan's full military strength in an effort to achieve a quick and final victory in China.

The army and navy were said to be strongly opposed to any cabinet resignations at this time, fearing the effect upon troops in China.

Putting Japan on a full wartime basis would involve invoking the national mobilization law, which gives the government unlimited power to draft Japan's manpower and economic resources in a war emergency.

The Premier won passage of the measure during the March sitting of parliament after bitter opposition only with a promise that it would not be used during the present incident in China.

GRIFTON BOYS LOCATE STILL

Found Half Mile from Town; Quarter Mile From Road

Three students of the Grifton school yesterday afternoon found a still while walking through the woods about a half mile from that place and, only about a quarter of a mile from the Ayden highway.

The students notified their elders, who in turn advised officers. J. M. Ward and J. L. Taylor, special ABC law enforcement officers, and Chief of Police Dixon went to the place designated by the students and found the illicit distillery.

It was a small copper plant, with only 30-gallon capacity. No beer was found at the place, officers declaring a run had recently been made. Mr. Ward declared he believed the still had been located at the site for some time. He added that it was so close to the highway a person could stand at the still and see cars passing along the road. It was situated in a honeysuckle thicket.

Jerusalem Filled With Mourning Christendom

Good Friday Ceremonies to Continue Late in Night

Jerusalem, April 15.—(AP)—The Holy City of Jerusalem today led all christendom in mourning the death of Christ.

Long before dawn pilgrims in their thousands hurried to the old city along the worn cobbled lanes leading to the chapel of Calvary for the first somber age-old ceremonies of Good Friday.

Because of structural damage to the church of the Holy Scripture authorities at first forbade congregations to assemble there, but pilgrims altered the order to permit pilgrims to enter the church in groups of 10 at their own risk.

An earthquake last October damaged steel and wooden supports of the church. Promptly at 6:30 great doors of the chapel swung shut upon those kneeling in the pale glare of oil lamps and candles hung from the dark roof.

All Christendom was represented in the congregation which heard the celebrant begin the ceremonies of the mass. The ceremonies will continue until late tonight.

Early this afternoon thousands in procession trod the Via Dolorosa, visiting the stations of the cross—familiar ceremony in every Roman Catholic church—along the road of Christ's struggling steps to Calvary.

Intended to supplement the standard booklet "Variety Vacationland" in following up inquiries, the new issue of "North Carolina Today" will be the most colorful book yet published by the advertising division. It will have four-color covers, made by Dr. Sharpe and will present a picture story of "places to go, things to see and do" to the prospective vacationist.

Activities and personalities will be featured rather than the conventional tourist attractions, the aim being to offer material not found in "Variety Vacationland."

SOUTHERNERS IN OPPOSITION TO LABOR ACT

Object to Elimination of Differentials in Wages

OPPOSITION LED BY McREYNOLDS

Expresses the Opinion New Measure Will Never Reach Floor of House

Washington, April 15.—(AP)—Southern opposition developed in the House today against the new wage-hour bill, chiefly because of the elimination of all wage differentials.

Representative McReynolds (D-Tenn.), who led the Southern opposition to the legislation rejected by the House last December, expressed belief the new measure would never reach the House floor.

McReynolds said he was personally "very much opposed" to the new bill, approved by the Labor Committee last night, because he believed it would "work a great hardship on the South."

The Senate Civil Liberties Committee reported meantime, that large employer association have "stripped files" and "doctored books" in an effort to thwart the committee's investigation of their labor activities.

Reporting to the Senate, the committee headed by Senator LaFollette (Prog.-Wis.), asked that it be given a further appropriation to permit continuance of its present investigation.

Outstanding in the present phase of the committee's incomplete inquiry into the activities of some of the large employer associations, the report said, "are the obstructions designed to thwart the committee's effort to get all the facts."

House proponents of wage-hour legislation, fired by greater confidence of victory, put their strength behind a new bill, stripped of differentials and providing a graduated minimum wage starting at 25 cents an hour.

A new government corporation may be formed to finance the public works part of the administration's new spending program.

The long idle WPA, it was learned, may incorporate and borrow directly from the public $1,000,000,000 share.

Leonard Plan For Running Tax-Free Store Is Criticized

Comment on Capitol Hill to Effect That Fair Tax Association Head In Need of Publicity

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, April 15.—Publication of a story that J. Paul Leonard, secretary of the North Carolina Fair Tax Association, plans to open a sales-taxless store in Winston-Salem in order, he said, to test the constitutionality of the sales tax law, draws comment here only to the effect that Leonard need a bit of publicity, is anxious to quicken collections by his organization, would like to "dramatize" the sales tax issue, or would like to make a "martyr" of himself.

Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell pointed out that the Leonard contention that opening such a store is the sole method of getting a test of the law is perfect nonsense. All Leonard or anyone else need do is to secure one merchant in the entire state of North Carolina who is willing to pay the assessed sales tax under protest and bring suit for its recovery, the Commissioner said.

This would enable the protesting merchant to bring up any legal question he chose, including the Constitutionality of the sales tax. Mr. Maxwell. The levy is in effect in no less than 30 of the 48 states, the Commissioner said, and was not been declared unconstitutional and has not been declared unconstitutional in a single one of them.

Should Leonard go through with his announced intention the case might take any one of several courses. If Leonard advertised that he would collect no sales tax from the customer, then there would be an immediate violation of the revenue law.

The Boxwood Barrier

By BLANCHE SMITH FERGUSON

MUSEUM for children is dream of Doll and Toy Collectors club sponsoring New York pageant featuring live dolls such as Dutch girl (Peggy Zere).

The Story So Far: In love with dashing Gary Brent, Judith Goodloe marries Reuben Oliver for his money, only to discover he is bankrupt. Sticking to her bargain, she accompanies him to a dramatic, musing town where twins are born. Then Reuben loses his job. Red-headed Cusy Rogers, loving Reuben, schemes to throw Gary and Judith together again by getting Reuben a job in the lumber camp Gary manages. On her arrival Judith bumps into Gary, and the world stands still.

Chapter 28

The Old Fascination

SAME Gary, same greeting. He might have left her only yesterday. It might have been that day in the garden. His arms around her filled her with the same joyous expectancy, the same hushed breathlessness. He bent his handsome head close. With his lips almost touching hers, he looked deeply into her eyes.

"Judith!" A mere whisper—a clash like cymbals. He did not know what halted his kiss. This was little Judy Goodloe, whom he had known all his life. It was a stranger too. A thin girl with overbright eyes, and a faded old rag of a dress—A lover's Judith than he remembered.

While he searched for the subtle change and its cause, Judith looked up at him and he caught that elusive quality that Raphael and Murillo loved to paint. The latent Madonna had come alive.

feel of a good horse under me!" "You don't have to tell me! Heaven won't be heaven to folks like us unless there're a few old nags there, eh?"

Judith wiped away the last tear. "I haven't cried for ages. 'How long are you staying here?'" "I don't know. Reuben is working in the woods."

"I haven't run across him yet, indifferently. 'When I heard he was here I rather thought you had gone home to Maryland.'" "No." She turned to the shabby car. "Come and meet my son and daughter."

She pushed aside bundles and displayed the fretful twins with pride. "They're greeting you with tears, too, Gary."

"Should I be flattered?" Gary had a way with children surpassing even his way with adults. He said, touching a dimpled hand. "This young man will be calling me an old dud before you know it."

Judith laughed at the idea. "You'll see," Gary sighed. "And I'll be waiting in the stag line for a dance from your daughter—and ten-to-one—not getting it!"

No one could think of such cheering things to say as Gary. He helped her into the car, and then slipped under the wheel. "Which is your plot, Judy?"

"Sixteen. The tent isn't up—there's been a mix up."

Sudden Hatred

WITHOUT seeing plot 16, Gary decided, with his usual impulsiveness, that it was no place

"Judith!" A mere whisper—a clash like cymbals.

Still unable to explain why, he did not kiss her smiling lips. Instead he raised her roughened, thin brown hands and kissed first one palm, then the other.

"Judith—Judith—I've never been so glad to see you!"

It was true. Never before had her presence given Gary such pure ecstasy as this moment gave him. "Are you glad to see me, Judy?"

Glad to see him! She thought of all the sleepless nights; of all the days, when just the touch of this man's hands, just the sound of his voice would have turned hell into heaven. She tried to think of just one of the things she had planned to say should they ever meet. She could not remember a word.

She said, her eyes upon the sorrel horse, "Gary, isn't that Kingpin?"

He nodded. "I sent for the old duffer."

She stepped to the gelding's side, touched his shining arched neck as though she feared it would vanish beneath her fingers. Smelled the odor of well cured leather and suddenly homesickness submerged her like a restless sea. Man and beast were a symbol of all she once held dear.

She buried her face in the sorrel's flowing mane and let the tears that she had been fighting since her wedding day have their way. Hard, hot, tempestuous tears. Rebellious tears drawn from every fibre of her being. They seemed to have neither beginning nor ending.

An April Smile

KINGPIN, sensing something wrong, turned his head and nuzzled her convulsed shoulders. Gary stood by helplessly. He could not fit this thin, sobbing woman into the valiant Judy who once lived in an old manor topping Maryland hills.

"Judith—" She raised her head and flashed him an April smile. "It was just—seeing Kingpin—and I didn't get any sleep last night. Gary, if you knew how I've longed for the for Judith Goodloe. It was a sacrilege that she was here in a free camp, a foster's wife—a nobody's wife!

He glanced at her hands resting in her lap—Judith's vital hands—listless now, pathetic in an inexplicable way. So this was the pass to which Oliver had brought her.

Sudden hatred for the man who was Judith's husband welled up within him. An upheaval, piercing the shell of his selfishness, his contentment: "I should have married her myself," he thought.

Uncomfortable under his speculative gaze, Judith asked: "Have you been home recently, Gary?" "Six months ago. Had some repairs put on my house. I stayed home about five weeks."

"You saw Gran and Jim?"

"Every day, nearly."

"How do they look?"

"Wonderful. Gran grows younger. Amos is chipper as a bird and Hannah made corn pone for me ever so often."

"I've learned to make that myself," Judith said.

"Then you're going to have frequent company."

Their talk fell in familiar lines, of Dick Blout, of the Hunt Club, of Biddy O'Hare and Paddy.

"I'd like to ride her," Judith sighed.

"When are you going home for a visit?"

"It's hard to say."

"You should show the offspring to the natives."

"I will some day. Is Biddy O'Hare a good jumper, Gary?"

"An unreliable one. Jim can make her toe the mark."

"Bet I could too."

The sun was almost down. The car was running through the dim woods sweet with mingled odors—clean wood smoke, pungent balsam.

A great content seeped through Judith. For the first time in years she was at peace, relaxed. She had been foolish to fight tears so long.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—Congress has risen so fast recently in regaining prestige that it may appear that it has already overrun the capital. But look again. It is all a matter of relativity.

In the defeat of the President's reorganization bill Congress merely has recovered the prestige and position it had lost during the preceding five years.

It is true that presidential prestige also was at stake. Mr. Roosevelt's leaders in the House, wisely or otherwise, made the reorganization bill an issue of loyalty or disloyalty to the President's program. They lost.

Veto Still There
But it is neither in the cards nor in the Constitution for Congress to seize the reins of government all by itself. It can deny to the President the legislation he wants. On the other hand, it is extremely unlikely he will often be compelled to accept legislation to which he seriously objects, for the President retains the executive power of veto. All he needs to prevent Congress overriding it is a fat one-third of Congress to support him. He has that.

Even the reorganization bill was defeated by only eight votes. And while all that was going along, the President asked—and got—the biggest naval and army appropriations since the smoke of battle cleared away after the World War.

The congressional slap at the President on the reorganization bill is a case of the legislative branch assuming its usual attitude toward a second-term President.

Had It Passed—
Incidentally, the House was taking no chances that the reorganization bill would perpetuate the President's authority over appointment of postmasters. By executive order, postmasters in the past several years have been selected almost exclusively by examination, leaving congressmen the thin option of recommending one of the top three—in certain instances.

Before the reorganization bill was sent bleeding back to committee, the House, just in case the bill might pass, tacked upon it an amendment restoring postmasters to House patronage.

"We are now in the position where our constituents understand and know that the postmasterships are the patronage of congressmen," said Representative Fuller of Arkansas.

"Our chief executive in an unguarded moment in a campaign promised to issue an executive order that took these appointments away from us, but by the eternal, we want them back and we are going to have them back." (Applause).

And this from Representative Nichols of Oklahoma:
"I, for one, will yield to no man in the government of the United States in my ability to pick the best man to serve as the postmaster of a post office in my district, and I just do not think there is a man serving in the government in Washington, be he in any position, who can possibly know as much about the qualifications of a man in my district as I can know."
So there.

School Building Is Destroyed By Fire

Rutherfordton, April 14 (AP)—Fire destroyed the $300,000 central high school building here early today.

The structure was located on a high hill between here and Spindale.

Firemen from Rutherfordton, Spindale and Forest City City fought the flames, but were handicapped by both lack of sufficient water and low water pressure and the blaze was never brought under control.

Officials announced the structure was insured.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh April 15—Press comment and general reaction of the public to the Hancock address which opened the Fifth District Congressman's campaign against "Our Bob" Reynolds were in complete accord that Frank didn't live up to his self-bestowed title of "Friendly" at least so far as Reynolds is concerned.

On other points of view there were more than a few differences. On the whole the Hancock blast seems to have had little real effect in lifting the pall of indifference that has covered the Senate race so far. Tom Bost, veteran correspondent, put it "Nobody gives a damn" and Tom appears to have hit the nail squarely on the head. Unless Hancock can come through with something better than his first radio speech, Reynolds is likely to win the election practically by default.

Those who hold that opinion may of course, be jolted as badly as the great majority of political wiseacres who couldn't see defeat for the President's Reorganization bill. What is now mistaken for utter indifference to the Hancock appeals may be, instead, complete indifference to Senator Reynolds and his ambition to continue in office. It is usually the case, however, that where there is no interest in a campaign it is the incumbent who benefits. He stays in office simply through the force of inertia which works at all times for the status quo.

One day this week Representative Hancock by inference and innuendo at least, pictured Senator "Our Bob" Reynolds as wearing the "accoutrements of a clown."

We wonder if it was a coincidence only that on the very next day one of the state's daily papers carried the headline "Senator to Open Indoor Circus." We also wonder if "Our Bob" will wear the Hancock habiliments when he appears at Wilson.

Word from Mecklenburg indicates that Mercer Blankenship, whose freshman term in the 1937 House was more colorful than the legislative infancy of most new members, is banking on dry support to put him in the 1939 State Senate.

His opponents, Ed Tonissen and Joe Blythe are both reputedly wet, while Mecklenburg county has repudiated any desire for ABC stores by its action at the polls last year.

Blankenship started so badly in the House last time—making a real nuisance of himself by his repeated "popping off"—that it was necessary for older heads to give him the works in a "hazing" way to put him in his place. He learned fast and distinguished himself by putting through the legislature a bill to limit the salary of Charlotte's city attorney, when he was opposed by Mecklenburg's most powerful political cohorts.

He is campaigning this time as "The Workman's Friend," with rallies and whoop-uh and general noise-making as a feature.

Fifteen cases constitute next week's calendar in Supreme Court—14 of them from Mecklenburg county. For a wonder, there isn't a single criminal case in the list.

Illness continues to keep Justice George W. Connor off the Supreme Court bench and his absence from consideration of cases is leading to an increasing number of "affirmances by action of law" on three to three division of the court—an outcome even more exasperating and unsatisfactory than any 5 to 4 vote of the U. S. Supreme Court.

More than $100,000,000 is expended for music tuition in the United States every year, the National Association of Musical Merchandise Manufacturers estimates.

Here's The TVA "Inland Empire" That Congress Will Investigate

(By The AP Feature Service)
Year in year out the best shows in Washington are the congressional investigations. It's a poor season when the Capitol Hill dramatists don't produce at least one hit. But this has been a season of flops.

The Senate relief probe drew good crowds for awhile, then petered out. The House naval hearings failed to develop any real fireworks.

But now it appears Congress may have another hit in production—the inquiry into TVA by a joint Senate-House committee of ten. Advance reports have received excellent press notices.

President Roosevelt himself wrote the prologue to the drama when he fired TVA Chairman A. E. Morgan as the climax of a series of charges and counter-charges between the chairman and his fellow-directors of TVA, H. A. Morgan and David Lilienthal.

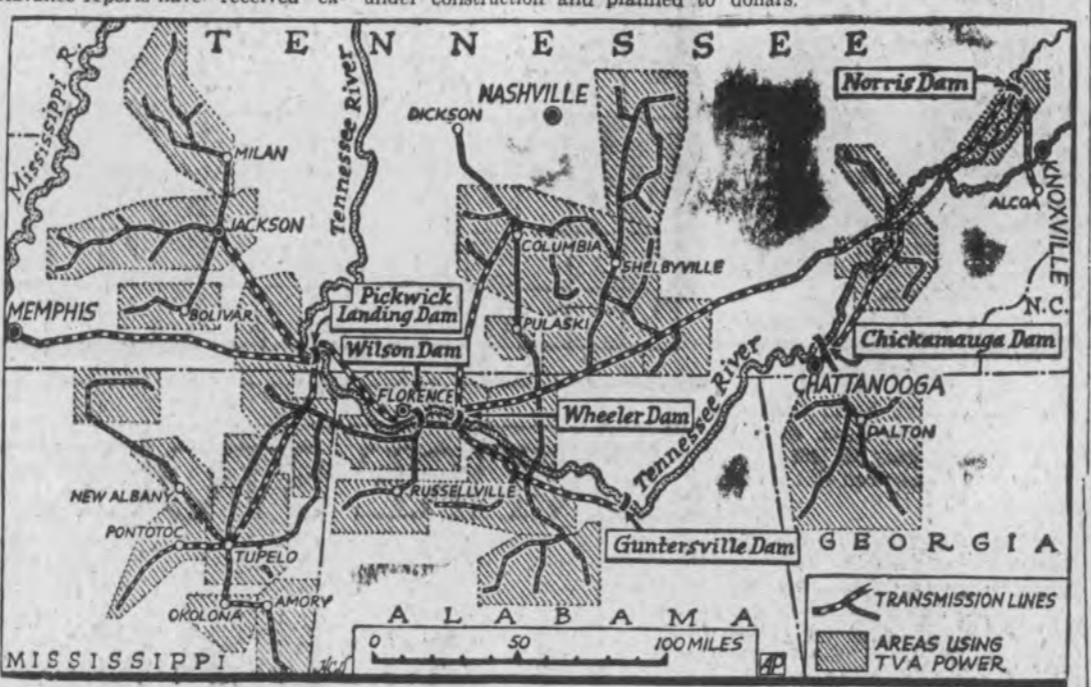

And now Congress is going to investigate the whole thing—TVA, its power policy and the activities of its private competitors.

These two maps show the physical set-up which the congressional sleuths will examine:

1. Above The Tennessee river and the several dams completed, under construction and planned to develop its natural resources.
2. Below: The power distribution system, with its 4,000 miles of lines, and the areas in which it serves 40,000 customers.

To date the government has spent about $155,000,000 on TVA. For its money it has:

1. A power system producing about 8,500,000 kilowatt hours a month, which is being sold wholesale to municipalities and rural cooperatives.
2. Facilities for flood control, erosion prevention, navigation and the manufacture of fertilizer which cannot be accurately evaluated in dollars.

Greenies Engage Norfolk Here Sunday Afternoon

GAME CALLED AT 3 O'CLOCK

Manager Joyner Optimistic Over Outlook for Locals

Manager Monk Joyner of the Greenville baseball team said today he intended to use all players on the roster when the greenies meet the Norfolk team of the Piedmont league here Sunday afternoon at three o'clock.

The manager said he had approximately a score of players on the roster and he intended to give each an opportunity to show his stuff for the first time in actual competition.

When the two teams meet, Frank Thompson, shortstop, will be playing against his old team mates. He played 37 games with the Norfolk team, a farm of the New York Yankees, last year and is expected to be one of the mainstays of the local club this season.

The services of Don King, pitcher who was with the Greenies last year, will be missed, however. Don underwent an operation for the removal of his tonsils in the local hospital this morning and will be out of the game for at least two weeks.

Four other hurlers here at the close of the season last year will be ready for duty, however. They are John Delaney, Fred Caligiuri, Karl Williams and Lefty Moser. In addition to this array of pitching ability, two new hurlers have been added. They are Wade Harrison and Lefty Dunn.

Three catchers are on the roster at present. They are Vincent Smith, Bill Andrews and George Pratt.

Infielders here at present include E. T. Wise, first base; Villa Miller, second base; Frank Thompson, shortstop; Tom Hoskins, third base, and Fred Cione, second base.

Those trying out for the outfield positions are John Radzill, Swamp Norwood, Al Pirnaturo, Carl Selph, Link, Fred Dunston and Manager Joyner, who also can play first base.

Birch Douglass, star first baseman with New Bern last year, will arrive about June 10 to take the duties at the first sack.

Although the daily practices have attracted good crowds of followers, Sunday will be the first time the team has run into real competition and a big crowd is expected to see the Greenies in action.

Manager Joyner appeared optimistic over his team this afternoon. "We have some real ball players here and I expect great things of them," he declared.

ETC TO MEET ACC SATURDAY

To Play Game Postponed by Rain of Last Week

East Carolina Teachers College plays the Atlantic Christian College here Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in what promises to be a real good game of baseball. The game was postponed from last week because of wet grounds.

The Atlantic Christian College boasts a strong team, and the Teachers have one of the strongest college teams in the State.

Coach Boley Farley announced that Big Bill Holland, left hander, who so far this season has pitched in two games and allowed a total of five hits by his opponents, will be on the mound for the Teachers.

TEACHERS WIN BY 19-2 SCORE

Rout Louisburg Trojans on College Diamond Thursday

East Carolina Teachers went on a rampage to defeat the Louisburg College Trojans 19-2 yesterday behind the fine pitching of Big Kelly Martin, ace righthander of the college pitching staff. Martin pitched nine-hit ball and was never in trouble.

The College hitters looked like the "Murderers' Row," collecting fourteen hits and scoring 19 runs. Earl Smith with five for six; Hatem with two for two, and Johnson with two for four, led the Teachers at bat. Brinn, Wise and Richardson hit two apiece to lead the Trojans.

The Teachers showed fine defensive play throughout, and looked in mid-season form. It was just a plain case of too much Teachers.

High School Editors To Meet April 29-30

Chapel Hill, April 15—High school newspaper editors from all sections of the State are being invited to gather in Chapel Hill Friday and Saturday, April 29 and 30, to participate in the second annual meeting of the North Carolina Scholastic Press Institute sponsored by the Daily Tar Heel, student newspaper of the University.

The program for the Institute, which brought 45 delegates, representing 14 state high schools, to Chapel Hill last Spring, is being arranged by David Stick, of Elizabethtown.

Track Star

Bill Hendrix, U. N. C.

Bill Hendrix, Greensboro boy, who ran a brilliant 1:55.8 to finish first in the 880-yard run against Princeton last week runs against John Goodall in one of the feature events of the North Carolina-Virginia track meet to be held at Charlottesville on Saturday afternoon. Hendrix is one of the best combination runners—track and cross-country—ever to represent Carolina. Goodall placed well in the indoor games at Chapel Hill last February. Carolina lost to Princeton 76 to 50 last week.

both City, a member of the Tar Heel editorial staff. Stuart Rabb, of Lexington, originated and directed the Institute last year.

With headquarters at Graham Memorial, the program will get under way Friday afternoon with a general get-together when the purpose of the Institute will be explained.

Saturday morning will be devoted to round table discussions to be led by prominent newspapermen of the State, and Saturday afternoon a tour of the campus is scheduled.

The Institute will end that night following another social gathering.

AUKER RELIED ON BY TIGERS

Only Submarine Hurler to be Found in American League

(By The AP Feature Service)

The Detroit Tigers, listening to the pennant be buzzing in their ears, look to lanky Edden Auker, a 6-foot-2-inch 290-pounder, to provide a large number of the pitching triumphs they hope will tumble the New York Yankees from their lofty perch atop the American League.

Auker is the only submarine pitcher in the loop. He won 17 games and lost nine for the Tigers last season. Only Roxie Lawson, with 18, had more victories for Detroit than Auker. Auker spent the entire winter in sunny Florida, where he owns a fruit-packing plant, and was in great shape when the Tigers opened at Lakeland.

While the Tigers have several rookies they hope will come through, Manager Mickey Cochrane must depend heavily on Auker, Tommy Bridges, Lawson, Vernon Kennedy from Chicago, Jackie Wade and Schoolboy Rowe.

Auker gives a perfect picture of balance as he slides through his pitching motions. As he steps on the rubber he eyes the batter, and the slot through which he wants to toss the ball and never, during any part of his backstroke or follow-through, do his eyes ever leave the batter.

WANT ADS PAY

TRY A REFLECTOR WANT AD TODAY!

WE were pretty sure we had a great car when some months ago we checked the final blueprints on the 1938 Buick.

It had the new and mighty DYNAFLEX engine for sparkling action—the sensationally desirable TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING for a lullaby of a ride.

Looking ahead in that promising day, we figured we had every chance of getting our sales share by reason of what this car gave the buyer for his money.

Now, when times are sterner, it appears we built better than we knew—we've got a car folks just won't do without!

This great new Buick was first introduced to the public last fall. Through September, October, November, it sold in steadily increasing volume.

In a period when sales of other cars were sliding off it went ahead, in one month actually outselling one of the Big Three of the lowest-priced field.

It's still going ahead—not car Number Seven or Eight, as one might expect by its price-class, but one of the season's Four Best Sellers!

There is only one explanation of such a record when made by a car in the thousand-dollar bracket.

Such a car is so good—has so much of value in it—people just won't do without it!

They buy it not only in preference to other cars—they buy in preference to waiting for easier times and readier money-to-spend!

That's the convincing sort of car you're about to drive when you first take the wheel of a 1938 Buick.

If you haven't yet handled a new Buick, you ought to—just to see what such a car is like!

"Better buy Buick!"

Plans For Camporee Discussed At Wilson

Final plans were started last night at the Chamber of Commerce office in Wilson, for the annual camporee of the East Carolina Council of Scouts, to be held at the fair grounds in that city, on April 22-24. Chairman Lester Rose of the camporee committee, presided over the meeting.

A last minute change in plans was made last night at the meeting when the place of the camporee was changed from Gold Park to the fair grounds. The American Legion granted permission to the council to hold their camporee on the new site.

It was also announced that Sherwood Brockwell of Raleigh, state fire marshal, had accepted an invitation to attend the camporee and speak to the boys, if he could possibly return from an engagement in New York in time.

It was revealed that the camporee programs, in part, will be broadcast for the first time over the radio. A parade was also scheduled for the boys.

On the morning of April 22 the executive committee of the East Carolina Council will hold their quarterly meeting in connection with the camporee.

The camporee will begin that afternoon when some 600 scouts from 21 counties in the eastern part of the state will attend the gathering.

On the night of the twenty-second the boys will hold a campfire meeting at which time W. A. Dobson of Atlanta, regional scout executive, will speak to the boys. At the same time a number of Eagle badges will be awarded at special ceremonies.

On April 23, special scout demonstrations will be held at the camp, at which time a contest will be held "against scout standards," the scout executive told the gathering. First, second and third prize ribbons will be awarded that night for contest winners.

On Saturday afternoon the scouts will attend a showing of "Tom Sawyer" at the Wilson theatre under special arrangements with the management, while later in the afternoon demonstrations will continue for the public.

On Saturday night a monster Boy Scout campfire program will be held at which time a number of speakers will be present, including Fire Marshal Brockwell. This program, as all programs, will be open to the general public.

On Sunday morning a special sunrise service will be held at the fair grounds under the direction of the Rev. E. C. Lynch of the First Presbyterian Church.

The Scouts will then return home Sunday morning and Sunday afternoon.

QUESTIONS ON ACT ANSWERED

New List Explains Details of Social Security Plan

As another service to its readers, The Reflector each week will give authoritative answers to questions on the Social Security law. By special arrangement with George N. Adams, Manager of the Social Security Board office in the Municipal Building, in Rocky Mount, the Social Security Board has consented to pass on the accuracy of answers to questions on Social Security which may be asked by employers, employees, and others, through The Reflector. Address inquiries to The Editor.

Question: A certain older man was employed in a job, that comes under the old-age insurance law, for some time before he reached the age of 65, but failed to get a Social Security account number. Would it be possible for him to collect old-age insurance benefits to which he is now entitled?

Answer: It is entirely possible. But the claim could be filed and certified for payment with less delay, if the applicant held a Social Security account number. No lump-sum payment of old-age insurance can be approved until a claim is filed, and proof of the claimant's right to benefits is submitted. As a rule the amount of any benefit payment of old-age insurance is based on the wage record kept under the claimant's Social Security number. However, if the investigation shows that the claimant is actually entitled to old-age insurance, he will be assigned a Social Security account number and then he can file his claim.

Q. Is it possible for a person, whose employment is not included under the Act, to voluntarily participate in the old-age insurance provisions of the Social Security Act?

A. No. The Social Security Act specifies that the following employments are excepted: agricultural labor; domestic service in private homes; casual labor not in the course of the employer's trade or business; services in Federal, State or local Government; services performed as an officer or member of a crew on a licensed vessel; services in the employ of a non-profit organization operated exclusively for religious, charitable, humane, scientific, literary, or educational purposes.

Most workers under the age of 65 who are employed in some commercial or industrial establishment are included under the Act, whether or not a person under 65 is sub-

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—It was to be a night of bridge. For blood. Four men in shirt sleeves gathered about a table dealing and shuffling the little spotted cards. And no women. No gossip. No endless chatter and tedious pauses between bids.

"You will have to pinch hit for me," said Charles, who is a doctor. "But you will have a good time. Dick Maney, Morton Downey and Conrad Miller will be there. At my house. I asked them to come and now I have to go and take out a jeweler's appendix. You'll find the key in the mail box. But the others will probably be there. Move right in. Help yourself. Everything you want will be in the ice box and on the kitchen table."

And so I cancelled an appointment to meet C. L. Martin, the writer, at the library, where we were going to look up a lot of data on early New York murders.

And I went up to Charles' house, about 8:30. I wanted to see Dick Maney, who is a poet and a publicist, and I wanted to see Morton Downey, who is Irish and a singer. Maney and I have a half-date to go to New Orleans on a banana boat soon, and it would be good to discuss it with him.

But when I got there a cherry fellow whom I had never seen met me at the door. "My name's Green," he explained. "Morton Downey couldn't get here and I'm taking his place. Hope you don't mind."

Green was a tall, very lanky fellow and a good companion. And in a few minutes, since the other's hadn't come, we went back into the kitchen and got out the ice and mixed a few cool glasses of water, to ease our thirst.

As the ice water sank home and we began to feel like old friends, the door bel-janged an in-walked another lad, neither of us had ever seen.

"Say," he said, "I'm taking Dick Maney's place, if it's okay with you. He got a wire from Guthrie McClintic to meet him in Philly, and he just can't get here. Something about a new show. Hope you chaps don't mind too much."

"Well, that's fine," cried Green. "You must be thirsty after your long journey. Come into the kitchen where the hydrants are."

His name, I forgot to mention, was Bill Teller, and that's what he was, a teller at a downtown bank and by the time Bill had refreshed himself at the hydrant somebody was clamoring at the door and it was our fourth at bridge.

And of course, as you've guessed, it wasn't Conrad Miller at all. It was his brother-in-law, a blond, good-natured Swede. Because Con-

If Leonard did not advertise he is absorbing the tax, then the Revenue Department would assess the tax as usual and if it were not paid would issue execution and there-by close Leonard up, unless he assumed the burden of a court fight.

rad had a sore throat and didn't want to risk pneumonia. An rather than break up the game, he sent his brother-in-law.

Well, there we were, four guys who had never seen one another, sitting down to a table in a house in Manhattan. In shirt sleeves. And no women. Just as planned. I will say here that the Swede won, although I had good cards and should have walked off with the chicken. Come to think of it, I did get some of the chicken. It was old and fried. We found it in the doctor's ice box.

road system since the State took over full responsibility from the counties.

The editorial then goes on to point out that the governor burns loose only a meager portion of the reserve funds because he is afraid to release more of it since diversion of road funds is still prohibited under the law and he must retain sufficient reserve to meet the maximum potential diversion.

"This potential diversion, being three per cent of the retail sales price of gasoline, for the current biennium would be close to $4,500,000. With $1,500,000 of the surplus in inventory and some $2,000,000 needed as a revolving operating fund, it can be seen that a real drive on road improvement cannot be financed.

"The $4,500,000 potential diversion and the other two items bring the maximum needed reserve to some $8,000,000."

"The unfortunate circumstances of the constant threat of diversion stands between the people of the state and the use of three times $2,000,000 for an important push toward better roads."
