DUCE DIRECTS GENOA TALK AT ANTI-FASCISTS

Address Hits at What Italy Regards Bias in the U. S.

DECLARES ITALY DESIRES PEACE

Adds, However, Totalitarian States Will Become Bloc, March Together to End

Genoa, Italy, May 14.—(AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini, hitting back at what Italy regards as anti-Fascist bias in the United States, declared today the totalitarian states would "become a bloc and march together to the end," if threatened with a "doctrinal war by the so-called democracies."

Mussolini's thinly-veiled, but unmistakable thrust at "speeches from across the ocean" reflected the Italian government's growing irritation over remarks made recently by Secretary of War Harry Woodring of the United States and various other American acts.

Woodring, in a speech May 5, warned dictator-controlled nations that democratic countries might some day get enough of their provocations and resort to war.

Other things regarded as entering into the Italian attitude were statements by Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes, a congressional move to have Italy named among violators of the Kellogg-Briand pact and the State Department's failure to recognize the sovereignty of Ethiopia. The Ethiopian matter was for several months blocked conclusion of a new commercial agreement between the United States and Italy.

It Duce, who arrived here this morning aboard a battleship, said in a speech devoted to international affairs that Italy wants peace. "But," he asserted, "we must be ready with all our forces to defend it, especially when we hear speeches—even if from across the ocean—on which we must reflect. It perhaps is to be excluded (from consideration) that the so-called great democracies really are preparing for a doctrinal war. However, it is well to know that in such a case the totalitarian states would immediately become a bloc and would march together to the end."

Asks Use of Cars In Pitt TB Clinic

The annual tuberculosis clinic will be conducted at the offices of the Pitt County Health department next week and Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, health officer, today called on citizens to aid in providing transportation to those unable to get to the office for the examination.

Dr. Ennett stated that many patients, especially children in poor families, will be unable to avail themselves of an examination at this clinic unless some kindhearted person will furnish transportation. A number of volunteers have been secured through the Thrift Shop but additional volunteers are desired. "Any woman who has a car and a little spare time will get great satisfaction in making it possible for some poor family to have the advantage of an early diagnosis," Dr. Ennett declared.

"If you can help please phone the Health Department 130 and you will be allowed to select a day and hour to suit your convenience. Remember that these clinics are held but once a year and that if you are to play the part of the 'Good Samaritan' you must do so now."

TPA Annual Meeting Is Brought To Close

Hickory, May 14.—(AP)—Payetteville was chosen as the meeting place of 1939 and R. B. Davis of Pilot Mountain was unanimously elected president of the North Carolina division, Travelers Protective Association, at the closing session of its annual convention here today.

Next year's meeting will be some time in May. Greensboro, Wilmington and Wilson were other cities bidding for the convention.

Other officers elected were O. E. Wilson of High Point, first vice president; J. M. Baity of Henderson, second vice president; W. E. Beck of Durham, third vice president; J. M. Fitzgerald of Wilson, fourth vice president; and J. E. Gillard of Wilmington, fifth vice president.

Five directors were named for two years. Five other directors had been elected last year to serve two years.

To Hold Revival

Rev. J. Lester Lane (above) of Greer, S. C., will conduct a revival at Memorial Baptist church here, beginning Monday and continuing through Friday, May 27. Services will be held each evening at 8 o'clock. L. K. Day of Rocky Mount will lead the song service.

CHURCH URGES FIGHT ON WETS

Report Calls for Full Support to Prohibition Cause

Richmond, Va., May 14.—(AP)—A report urging Southern Baptists to "give their full moral support to the prohibition cause" was prepared for presentation today to the 1938 convention.

The report drafted by the church's social service commission headed by Arthur Barton of Wilmington, N. C., expressed "great pleasure in what appears to be the rising tide of prohibition sentiment as indicated in state dry victories in Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee and in the great number of dry victories in local option elections x x x"

A Georgia member of the commission, Willie Upshaw, who was prohibition candidate for president in 1932, said he would ask support from the thousands of messengers (delegates) from 18 states and the District of Columbia for a "stop drunk" amendment which he said Republican Smith of Oklahoma had proposed in Congress.

He said the amendment "incorporates as its punitive object the basic cause of the liquor traffic—the social criminal who buys liquor to get drunk."

Another matter of secular interest, indemnification of the church by Japan for losses in China, was sent to the resolutions committee for report today after the convention had elected Dr. Les Scarborough of Seminary Hill, Tex., to serve as president until the 1939 convention.

Weather For The Week.

South Atlantic States: Few widely scattered afternoon showers in remainder of district shower period middle of week; otherwise generally fair, temperature near normal, except rather cool in north part of district first half of week.

Nonagenarians Reunited

Judicial Races Clothed With Degree Of Dignity

Raleigh, May 14.—Underneath the surface there are probably no more bitterly fought political battles in progress than those involving more than half a score posts on North Carolina's Court benches; but outwardly there is a certain amount of dignity which prevents these contests from flaring openly in the daily prints.

Only in the First District, where Solicitor Herbert Leary is attempting to unseat Governor Hoey-appointed Judge C. E. Everett has the fighting broken over into the front pages of the press and into the advertising columns as well.

There Mr. Leary has been making a house to house canvass in real candidatorial fashion. As the campaign opened he was generally conceded the edge over Judge Thompson, but latest reports indicate that the Leary claims he was "slighted" in the appointment of Judge Thompson have been on the public payroll for a dozen years and its argument that another is entitled to a chance. Now the race appears a tossup, from

BLOC OPPOSES PUMP PRIMING RELIEF FUNDS

Republicans, Conservative Democrats Form Combine

WOULD CUT FUND ABOUT ONE-HALF

Group to Make Effort Eliminate All Funds for Public Works Recommended by FDR

Washington, May 14.—(AP)—A group of Republicans and conservative Democrats in the Senate said today they would try to eliminate all funds for public works from the $3,154,000,000 spending-lending program recommended by President Roosevelt. This would reduce it by about one-half.

Members of the group, led by Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) said they would support appropriations for the WPA and other direct agencies, but would oppose any "pump priming" public works.

The bill approved by the house included $1,465,000,000 for public works loans and grants.

Meanwhile the navy asked an early start on the billion dollar, 10-year, fleet expansion program.

Officials recommended that the President make an immediate request to Congress for an initial appropriation of about $12,000,000.

The fleet expansion bill, sent to the White House yesterday, authorized a 20 per cent increase in the navy, but carried no funds.

Other developments: The National Labor Relations Board sought an early Supreme court ruling on its power to recall orders—a hitherto untested power of the Wagner act.

Chairman Pittman (D-New) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee predicted the next session of Congress would be called upon to revise the neutrality act.

AUSTRIA PLANS GROW TOBACCO

May Reduce Imports Of American Product to Germany

Washington, May 14.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department received word from representatives in Berlin today that Germany plans to reduce imports of American tobacco by encouraging Austrian farmers to grow the product. Heretofore there has been no commercial production of tobacco in Austria.

"The new plan to grow tobacco domestically is intended primarily to reduce the expenditure of foreign exchange, to increase self-efficiency, and to provide increased employment and income for the small farmers, especially in the vineyard regions, where it is claimed that both climate and soil are satisfactory for production of medium quality leaf," the Department said.

Foreign trade experts said it was possible Austrian production would take away the market for nearly 1,000,000 pounds of American tobacco annually.

Dr. Paul E. Jones, of Farmville, today was elected chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Executive committee succeeding W. E. Hooks who has held the post for the past 12 years. Dr. Jones was elected by the executive committee in session immediately following the county convention at which Hooks had announced he would not be a candidate for re-election to the post.

Mrs. J. Vance Perkins was re-elected Vice-Chairman and E. L. Henderson, Secretary-Treasurer.

PAIR HELD IN ATTACK WAGED GIRL'S DEATH BY LOYALISTS

Two Youths Jailed In Shooting At Rocky Mount

Rocky Mount, May 14.—(AP)—Two local youths were jailed here today while police investigated a mysterious shooting here late last night which claimed the life of a 16-year-old girl.

The girl, Ethel Davis, died in an ambulance en route to a hospital shortly after police had been summoned to the home of her aunt, Mrs. Pearl Davis, where the shooting occurred.

Continuing until Tuesday a hearing started last night, Nash County Coroner M. C. Guiley announced that possibilities of both murder and suicide were being investigated. Guiley said his initial in-

Two Things Congress Must Do Babson Picks Up FDR's Recommendations

By ROGER W. BABSON
Babson Park, Mass., May 14.—Cutting out tax-exemption on new public bonds and softening the capital gains tax would be the biggest immediate help which Congress could give the country now. It would aid in bringing an end to the strike of capital which started last August. Taxing new government bonds and easing the levy on capital gains should force billions of dollars into new enterprises. These two steps are more important to recovery than the appropriation of the new $5,000,000,000 spending program.

Basically, taxes should be limited to raising money to pay public expenses. The soundest way to do this is to abandon all present federal levies except estate taxes and a broad income tax and to rely thereon. Present revenue measures are like a Chinese puzzle to figure out. They are unwise and restrictive. The framers of the newer tax statutes had no idea what their ultimate effect would be. They did not realize, for instance, that a higher levy on personal holding companies, coupled with John L. Lewis' activities, would be largely responsible for throwing 4,000,000 people out of work between last August and this May.

What Higher Tax Did
Personal holding companies formerly held a tax advantage for wealthy individuals. Dividends and interest from investments could accumulate in these holding company treasuries by paying a flat corporate income tax of around 15 per cent. But if the dividends were paid direct they had to be put through the owner's personal tax return at rates up to as high as 75 per cent. For several years Treasury experts had tried to stop this "leak" but up until 1937 it was still cheaper to use the holding company device. Finally, last August, a bill was pushed through Congress which hiked the tax rate on these companies to 80 or 90 per cent. Immediately their owners began to sell their stock.

VITAL LUNGHAI RAILROAD CUT BY JAP FORCES

Mobile Troops Blow Up Bridge Upon Reaching Line

EAST AND WEST TRAFFIC HALTED

Japanese Achieve the Goal for Which They Have Been Fighting for Past 5 Months

Shanghai, May 14.—(AP)—A Japanese army communiqué said today the vital Lungchai railway—aim of Japan's Central China campaign—had been cut east of Tangshan. Mobile troops reaching the line immediately blew up a bridge.

Traffic over the railway, running east and west through the heart of Central China's rich agricultural area, had been blocked shortly before by aerial bombardment, disrupting transportation of war supplies to China's huge army defending the region.

In reaching the railway the Japanese achieved a goal for which they have been battling five months. Japanese army spokesmen declared 400,000 Chinese troops were trapped in the Suchow area, with no choice other than to surrender or face annihilation. Suchow was violently bombed with 100 civilians killed.

While the Japanese were furiously pressing their advantage in central China, warships landed troops near the south China port of Foochow—evidently for an attack on the Canton-Hankow railway.

Japanese planes swarmed overhead, protecting the ground troops.

HAND BRAZIL NAZI PROTEST

Germany Objects To Arrests Following Uprising

Rio De Janeiro, May 14.—(AP)—The German government today protested to Brazil against the arrest of six German citizens as suspects in the abortive Fascist uprising Wednesday against President Vargas.

The Brazilian government, however, assured the German embassy the six were arrested as individuals and that there was no indication they were agents of any foreign power or organization.

The assurance was given despite the fact that President Vargas flatly accused the Fascist Green Shirts of having "foreign help" in their short-lived uprising against his regime.

He did not name the foreign source of their aid.

The protest was lodged by Ambassador Ritter in an interview with Foreign Minister Aranha.

Officials disclosed 800 persons had been arrested in a huge roundup of those under suspicion of taking part in the revolt.

The newspaper O Globo said 150 sailors were among those in custody. Police seized new quantities of Green Shirts' war supplies, among them 80 powerful bombs.

Dispatches from Sao Paulo indicated numerous political leaders there were being detained for questioning about the plot.

Fifteen to Five

James M. Priest of Memphis, Tenn., who accepted a 15-year state penitentiary sentence in preference to five years in the workhouse because he figured the work would be lighter, is shown taking his case in the Shelby county jail at Memphis. In the state prison, Priest pointed out, "I will not have to work as hard and the hours are shorter... It'll be like a vacation." He pleaded guilty to participation in a $142 robbery.

ARRESTED FOR 1933 ROBBERY

Tennessee Man Held In Charlotte Mail Truck Holdup

Asheville, May 14.—(AP)—Federal authorities announced here today that Rufus Costner of Knoxville, Tenn., had been arrested and brought to Asheville to face indictments charging him with concealing a part of the $105,000 stolen from a mail sack in Charlotte late in 1933 by the Chicago Touhy gang.

Marshal Charles Price said Costner was a brother of Isaac Costner, one of three men now serving long terms in Alcatraz prison for the robbery. The others are Basil Banghart and Ludwig Schmidt. A fourth accused of participating in the daring hold-up, Charles Connors, was found shot to death in Chicago before officers had solved the crime.

Price said two federal indictments were returned against Rufus Costner yesterday. One, he said, accused him of possessing and concealing about $75,000 of the Charlotte loot. The other alleges he entered a conspiracy to rob the United States mails.

Mae Blalock, also of Knoxville, and described as Banghart's sweetheart, is now serving a 30-year sentence in Tennessee, Price said, on a charge of kidnapping Rufus Costner in an alleged attempt to force him to give up what she termed her share of the stolen money.

THEY RING BELLS WHEN CHILD IS BORN

Rehern, Rhineland — (AP)—They're going to ring the bells in the new schoolhouse every time a child is born in Rehern.

It's all down in black and white in the parish archives: "Germany will never go under and remains always young so long as many children are born to her. We should therefore all be interested when a young German brother is born."

"For this reason when such a happy event takes place the bells in our district shall ring."

N. C. Offers Plenty For Visitors To Do And See

Raleigh, May 14.—The only rare days in June in North Carolina will be those on which there is nothing set on the state's calendar to entertain citizen and visitor alike, according to a compilation of coming events made by the Advertising Division of the Department of Conservation and Development.

For a starter, thousands of school teachers, coming from almost every state in the Union, will arrive in North Carolina during the first and second weeks of June to combine their vacations with summer school work.

Morganton, the "Mimosa City," will entertain visitors beginning June 10 as the famed mimosa trees of the city beginning to bloom. This show will continue until June 15.

June will be a big month for trout fishermen, since the well stocked streams in the Pisgah National Forest Game Preserve, not far from Asheville, will be open for

MEXICO PARTS WITH BRITAIN OVER OIL ROW

Offended Over Attitude on Expropriation Property

U.S. DEPARTMENT SHOWS CONCERN

Fears Settlement Of American Claims for Oil Properties Will Be Delayed

Mexico City, May 14.—(AP)—Mexico and Great Britain came to a diplomatic parting of the ways today for a third time in two decades.

Offended at Britain's "unfriendly attitude" arising from President Lazaro Cardenas's expropriation March 19 of British oil properties valued at $250,000,000, the Mexican government announced withdrawal of its Minister in London and closing of its legation there.

It was confidently expected that the British minister to Mexico, who presented his credentials only last November 5, would be recalled promptly as Britain's first act.

Local quarters held it likely that Great Britain, which already had announced its intention to boycott Mexican government to terms.

London, May 14.—(AP)—Mexico formally severed diplomatic relations with Great Britain today in protest against Britain's brusque demand for payment of past civil war claims.

The Mexican minister, Primo Michel, called at the foreign office for half an hour to communicate Mexico's decision to withdraw her diplomatic envoy from London.

A British note demanding payment of an installment on the old claims—some less than $100,000—had complained, among other things, Mexico apparently was discriminating in favor of the United States in meeting her obligation.

Washington, May 14.—(AP)—Informal persons represented State Department officials today as disturbed by Mexico's break in diplomatic relations with Great Britain and concerned lest it cause this country embarrassment.

The possibility of any such step as a British naval demonstration in Mexican waters was said to be remote, but persons close to the department expressed the opinion in any event the rupture would make more difficulty, and possibly delay, a settlement of American claims for expropriated oil properties.

School Trustees Luncheon Guests

Members of the Board of Trustees of the Greenville City schools and others were entertained at the Negro high school Thursday.

The menu was prepared by the home economics department, under the direction of Bertha Donnell, member of the Fleming Street school for a number of years, and was served by members of the home economics class.

Following the luncheon Professor C. M. Epps, principal of Negro schools in Greenville, made a brief talk in which he related the progress made in Negro education in this city and county. He was warm in his appreciation of the aid and assistance and understanding of the white race for his people.

J. H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville schools, responded and praised the work and progress made in the Negro schools under the direction of Professor Epps.

Those present for the luncheon were Mrs. C. W. Harvey, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, M. K. Blount, E. O. Flanagan, B. S. Warren, J. L. Little, Mr. Rose and D. J. Whitchard, Jr.

Three Hay Crops On One Planting

An example of the fertility of Pitt county soil may be seen on the farm of W. F. Whitchard in Carolina township, where a third crop of oats are growing from one planting.

Two years ago Mr. Whitchard planted a crop of oats, harvested them and then planted a hay crop. Last year another crop of oats was produced on the plot although no seed were planted. After harvesting the oats, Mr. Whitchard again planted the plot to hay. This year another crop, the third from one planting, is being produced and the Carolina farmer said he intended to plant the field in hay again after harvesting the oats.

Joyner-Savage.
Mr. and Mrs. Luther Marion Savage announce the marriage of their daughter Marjorie Lawrence to Mr. Bernard Bennette Joyner, Jr. on Saturday, the fourteenth of May. One thousand nine hundred and thirty-eight.

Richmond, Virginia

A beautiful wedding of special interest in Eastern Carolina and Virginia took place in Richmond, Va., May 14th, at high noon, when Miss Marjorie Lawrence Savage and Bernard Bennette Joyner, Jr., of Greenville, North Carolina, were married at Ginter Park Methodist Church.

The Rev. A. P. Williams officiated, using the ever beautiful ring ceremony, made even more impressive since the ring, set with tiny diamonds, was cast from the wedding fingers used by the bride's mother and grandmother on the occasion of their marriages in 1903 and 1889.

The vows were spoken in the presence of only the members of the families and close friends, while Miss Mary Shaw Robeson of Greenville, played "My Heart At Thy Dear Voice," from Samson and Delilah, "Meditations" from Thais, and "I Love You Truly."

The groom entered with his best man, Anderson Byron Holderly of Richmond, meeting the bride at the altar. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. W. H. Wright of Richmond, Va., who wore a gown of wood rose crepe with matching accessories and carried an arm bouquet of delphinium and Columbia roses.

The bride was lovely in a charmingly designed navy crepe effectively trimmed with white silk embroidery, and her becoming navy hat was a Gage model. She carried a bouquet of valley lilies, miniature pink roses and maiden hair fern.

Mrs. Joyner is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Savage. Through her parental line she is descended from the French Huguenot family of Jigitts of Williamsburg, and Elizabeth Lewis from the illustrious Lewis family of Warner Hall, Gloucester County, Virginia; also the distinguished Dr. Joshua Lawrence and Benjamin Dickens of Edgecombe county. Mrs. Joyner attended East Carolina Teachers College and for the last several months has done specialized secretarial work. She is a popular member of the younger set and is held in high esteem by a host of friends.

The groom is the son of Mrs. E. C. Swain of Norfolk, Va., and the late Mr. B. B. Joyner of Courtland, Va. Following his graduation from the Courtland high school, he attended Duke University, later taking special training at the Norfolk Business College. For some time he was associated with the National Biscuit Company in Norfolk, and at present is the cashier of their Greenville office.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Joyner left for a motor trip through the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

Upon arrival, Mr. Minges was called from the main dining room into the private dining room where to his amazement, he was greeted with the song "Happy Birthday." The table was beautifully decorated with seven-branched crystal candelabra at either end; a large pink and white birthday cake with lighted candles was placed on a crystal platter in the center. Crystal bowls of mixed flowers completed the decorations. Boutonnieres of sweet-peas marked the men's places, and shoulderettes indicated the places for the ladies.

Following the supper, Mrs. Herman Nobles presented the honor guest with a tray of gifts. Cutting the cake and the favors drawn was the source of much merriment. The guests departed after wishing Mr. Minges many happy returns of the day.

Dancing was enjoyed throughout the evening. Refreshments consisting of punch, cakes, and nuts were served. Approximately 75 guests attended this most enjoyable affair.

Junior Woman's Club Meets.
Dr. N. T. Ennett of the Pitt County Health Department, stated in an instructive talk before the Junior Woman's Club Friday that around 100,000 persons die each year of venereal diseases. He discussed symptoms of and treatment for the diseases and suggested that all persons should submit to a blood test. Dr. Ennett further went on to say that the present law regarding health certificates for domestic servants was rather weak, but doubtless would be strengthened in time.

Following the health talk, a short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Dink James. A letter from the Farmville Junior Club was read to Greenville club members, inviting them to a tea in Farmville at the home of Mrs. J.

Mrs. Luther Herring, faculty adviser for the junior class, was general chairman of the entire affair, and to her goes much of the credit for the success of the party.

Nurses Meet In Kinston.
The Florence Nightingale International Memorial Foundation was the subject upon which Miss Lula K. Wolf, associate professor of Nursing Education in the Medical College of Richmond, Virginia, spoke to the nurses of the Eighth District of the North Carolina State Nurses' Association, at their May meeting held in Kinston on the tenth.

Miss Wolf has recently returned from Europe. She spent some time in London taking special courses in nursing at the P. N. International Memorial Foundation. Part of her time was spent in visiting hospitals in other countries as well as England. She gave a most interesting account of her experience there as well as giving an inspiring talk on the Florence Nightingale Foundation.

Each year this association has as its May meeting a Florence Nightingale Memorial program, with the nurses from different places in the district in charge of the program.

Miss Elsie Jane Cox of Rocky Mount, presented Miss Wolf. The Rocky Mount nurses had charge of the program, with Miss Winnie Bradley as chairman. Rev. A. S. Parker of the Queen Street Methodist Church, had charge of the opening devotional exercises. Mrs. A. L. Hogan, accompanied by Mrs. Henry Johnson, sang a solo.

There was a large number from various places in the district with senior nurses of the training schools in the district as special guests.—Reported.

Junior-Senior Banquet.
One of the most distinctive and enjoyable junior-senior banquets given by the Greenville high school was held last night in the east dining room of East Carolina Teachers College and later at the Country Club.

A three-course dinner, in charge of Mrs. L. L. Rives, college dietitian, was served to 182 guests at seven o'clock. Hosts for the occasion were members of the junior class and the faculty. Guests for the occasion, besides the seniors, were members of the Greenville School Board and Mayor Blount. Entertainment at the banquet consisted of a trumpet solo by H. A. McDougle, numbers by the girls' trio, two solos by Helen Bunch, and the reading of the senior superlatives by Waylan Tucker.

Junior class acted as toastmaster and welcomed the guests to the party. James Whitfield, president of the senior class, recognized the welcome in behalf of the seniors. Kenneth Woolard toasted the faculty, and Mrs. Utley responded to this toast. V. M. Mulholland welcomed the school board.

All committees were composed of juniors and faculty members, since the affair was jointly sponsored.

Following the banquet the party was continued at the Country Club, where dancing was enjoyed from nine to twelve.

Presiding over the punch bowl during the evening were Miss Imogene Riddick, Mrs. Clem Utley, Miss Margaret Putrelle, and Miss Louise Park.

Mrs. Luther Herring, faculty adviser for the junior class, was general chairman of the entire affair, and to her goes much of the credit for the success of the party.

OCTAGON HOUSE

BY PHOEBE ATWOOD TAYLOR

The Story So Far: Quammet is aroused when his pittance is caricatured in the post office mural. The next night the artist's wife, unscrupulous Marina Lorne, is murdered with her sister's knife. Pamela Frye appeals to Asey Mayo, Cape Cod detective, telling him she found $50,000 worth of emeralds which Marina tried to claim, and hid it after discovering Marina dead in the garage. Asey has Pam announce a false hiding-place for the emeralds. Police arrive with Doc Cummings, who says the murderer is left handed. After Asey conceals Pam in his house the mysterious listener returns. Then someone knocks at the door.

Chapter Eight

Pleasant Young Man

DEFINITELY the young fellow did not belong to Hanson's outfit, nor could Asey recall ever seeing before that longish face, and the thick horn rimmed glasses. It was possible that he might be a messenger from Dr. Cummings—the doc was always commanding tourists to do his errands, and this one had the usual raw and untanned look of the newly arrived summer visitor.

Of course, Asey thought, there was the possibility that this fellow might be the prowler who had overheard Pam's story, and crawled off through the pines. The immaculateness of his white linen suit cried out that he couldn't have crawled through anything, let alone 100 yards of dusty pine grove. But that was no conclusive proof. He might have a car stuffed full of clean white linen suits for just such crawlings.

Asey swung the door open wide. "Mr. Mayo?" the young man smiled. A pleasant smile, Asey conceded, and a quiet, well bred sort of voice.

"I'm Mayo."

"How do you do? My name is Carr, Timothy Carr. I'm a boarder at Octagon House."

"Yes," Asey said, in a tone that said perhaps he was Mr. Carr of Octagon House, and perhaps he was not.

"The police have been here to see you? And the doctor?"

"They've been here."

Asey's grudging taciturnity did not appear to bother Mr. Carr. "That's fine," he said, "because it'll save me any amount of explanations. Of course, as a matter of fact, I knew quite well that they'd come in and talk with you about this affair. I told Mr. Frye I'd talk to you, and—"

"And what?" Asey demanded. "And I intend to," Mr. Carr smiled his engaging smile. "I fully intend to, even if I have to stand out here and yell through your splendid paneled door. It would distress me to have to yell, but on the other hand, I promised Mr. Frye. He spoke very quietly, but he obviously meant what he said. Asey grinned. "Come on in," he said, "an talk."

"Thank you, Dr. Cummings, too," Timothy said as he followed Asey into the living room. "He'll be over shortly."

"If you'd told me that first," Asey said, "you'd have got in quicker."

"I know, but I'd have been entering under false pretenses," Carr said amiably, sitting down on the couch and watching Asey draw the window shades. "I do really want to talk with you about this affair, and the message was incidental. I was coming here any way. And besides, I wanted to find out if you were as adamant about playing with the case as that policeman seemed to think. Gran and I—that is, my grandmother and I, we both decided you were faking, and now I'm sure you are. Gran's an old Asey Mayo fan, she reads every scrap she can find about you in the papers."

Alibied.
"WHAT did Hanson say?" Asey countered with another question.

Timothy Carr polished his glasses. "Hanson," he said, "probably has a heart of gold. He must have some redeeming feature, and heaven knows his teeth aren't it, or his brains. Look, to begin with, Aaron Frye is frantic. Naturally, then Hanson set a copper over him, and forbade his stirring from Octagon House, which made him more frantic. Gran and I worried about him, and the only way we could calm him at all was to promise that we'd come to you and ask your help. Hanson said we couldn't go, but the doctor took our part, and gave me that message when Hanson was otherwise occupied."

He paused and pulled out a cigarette case. The initials, Asey noticed, did not stand for Timothy Carr, unless Mr. Carr spelled Timothy with a G and Carr with an M.

"What," Asey asked blandly, "do you propose should be done about things—are those Turkish cigarettes that you're smoking?"

"Won't you have one of the filthy things?" Timothy got up and offered him the case. "They're Gran's fault, she has an elderly beau in the tobacco business who gives her these in carload lots."

Asey declined the cigarettes and lighted his pipe. Mr. Carr, he thought, was as left handed a young man as he had observed in some time.

"What," he asked casually, "did you say your name was?"

"Carr, Tim Carr—oh, you saw those initials! That's Gran again. She gave me this case when I was 21. She brooded a week to find a suitable sentiment to have engraved on it, and with great simplicity she landed on G. M. Grown Man," he explained.

"I see," Asey said. "You're quite a southpaw, ain't you?"

"Tim Carr stared at him. "You certainly take everything in!" he said with admiration. "I'm left handed, but I'm really not grist to your mill, you know. Gran and I are alibied by the movies. But that left handed time is one of a number of odd and instructive details I wanted to talk with you about, if you'd care to hear 'em. Things like how I fell in love with Marina, and my offering to kill her, and all—shall I go on?"

"Just why," Asey inquired, "are you so lush an lavish with your information?"

"Whenever it seems likely that I shall become involved in a situation," Timothy said, "I find it's simpler to tell than wait to be found out about."

"A noble an high-minded sentiment," Asey commented, trying not to look at the pine needle that was caught in the sole stitching of Mr. Carr's brown and white saddle shoes. "Almost lofty."

Bellowing With Rage.
"YES," Timothy agreed, "it's the type of homely honesty I try to implant in the young, and it gets me promoted to a mastership over much worthier folk. I'm a teacher of mathematics by the way, in Banks and Webster's swanky little prep school on upper Madison Avenue. Everything pointed toward my becoming an architect, originally. Everything except the depression, and that pointed to a job. Once I got into this quadractic surd business, I never dared leave a regular salary. Just a nother square peg. I'm quite sure," he added, "that you don't care a rap about my career or my early youth, but if going into them will melt those base suspicions gleaming in your eyes, I certainly shall go into them at great length."

"Just what makes you feel that you'll be involved in this business?" Asey asked casually.

"All the murders I've read about, in fiction and in the papers," Timothy said, "always dig up vast quantities of details concerning bystanders. All bystanders, innocent or otherwise. Gran and I are bystanders, in a sense. Amazing how one slips into the language of murder, isn't it? Gran just called it Foul Deed. Anyway, when people begin delving into Marina, they'll find us. Bellowing with rage and screaming murderous threats. It just seemed simpler to tell you first."

"If you and your grandmother," Asey said reasonably, "disliked Marina so much, what time did you come an park yourselves practically next door to her for? What made you come to Quammet?"

"You don't think we knew she was here?" Timothy said. "Perish the thought! We came because Gran had flu last month, badly and expensively, and we needed cheap country for her to rest in. Gran found the Fryes' ad, and we both liked it. It said, 'Old fashioned boarders wanted, for impossibly inconvenient house with no modern improvements whatsoever. Oil lamps, outhouse, pump. Prunes for breakfast, catch your own fish, dig your own clams. It had a curiously honest ring. And then when I found out it was an octagon house, I don't know why. Anyway, I've collected a lot of junk about them. Pictures, photographs, floor plans, the old Orson Fowler book. So Gran and I came—"

"Fowler," Asey said thoughtfully. "That name seems familiar. Who was Fowler?"

He knew perfectly well who Fowler was, for up in his attic were a hundred odd Fowler books, the legacy of a great-uncle. Most of them concerned phrenology, but the rest covered practically everything from bee-keeping to the evils of tight lacing.

"Fowler," Timothy said, "was some lad." And forthwith he embarked on a discussion of Fowler, his invention of the octagon house, the gravel wall mode of building, and the general sanity of Fowler's architectural ideas.

"Yes," Asey said, a little disappointed that he had not been able to catch Mr. Carr, "but let's get back to Marina Lorne. You knew Marina in New York. You must have known where she came from."

Comrade... WANT TO BUY A NEW CAR?

"Here it is, comrade, just the thing to run down to the Crimea over the week-end to see the folks! Yes sir-ski! She's guaranteed to do fifty-five on a level pavement with a good tail wind and she's got the very latest improvement—four-wheel brakes! None of those dizzy capitalistic gadgets, either, like shatter-proof glass, wipers, defrosters, knee-action, stream-lining or silent transmission—no ma'am! This is a REAL car—1938 model—made right here in Russia. And, boy, they're pouring 'em off the assembly line at the rate of twenty per day!"

THIS snappy little sedan is the latest wrinkles in Moscow. It delivers for about $1200, spare tire and bumpers extra. If you're a Soviet citizen you can get it for less—provided you've got a Communist Party card, show up promptly for your twelve and-a-half hour shift at the factory and have a drag with the right people. But if you are ever late for work they may crack down and take it away from you.

It's an ancient old crock; just the kind they were making in Michigan when Coolidge was President. But as a Russian citizen you can be glad you don't have to take the street car.

Funny, these Russians. Are they all satisfied to bump their bones in a 1927 crate masquerading as a modern car? Probably not. But what are they going to do about it? The higher-ups figure a car like this is good enough for common folks. It's the only kind the government Auto Trust makes for home consumption and they can take it or leave it.

Well then, maybe Stalin drives a car like this, too. Does he? He does not. Stalin rides a sixteen-cylinder job four months out of the shops in Detroit. But then Stalin's different. He's boss.

You see, Russia is a Dictatorship—any Dictatorship—the government makes all the rules. One of the first rules they make, usually, is that they're going to knock the stuffing out of Business; there's not going to be any nonsense of Business Competition, with everybody trying to make a better motor car, refrigerator, radio or pair of shoes than his neighbor. No sir! Business Competition is wasteful. It results, for one thing, in Advertising. And Advertising puts ideas in people's heads like wanting to have a new and better kitchen range every now and then, or an improved heating plant, or a more efficient electric fan, or a faster automobile. Advertising makes folks want to decorate the living room or visit the movies or wear new fall bonnets when they should be home raising kids to be soldiers in the next war.

Advertising is a bad thing—for Dictators. It keeps people so busy raising their standard of living that they don't want to go on and lower someone else's.

Advertising makes the home folks dissatisfied with old-style radios and refrigerators and reading lamps, bedroom sets. It makes them want new ones, improved ones, and then the manufacturers have to break their necks putting out better products every year. And that means buying raw materials and it means fatter payrolls. And both of these mean prosperity with everybody well-fed and happy—and when people are well-fed and happy how in tarnation are you going to get them interested in crusades—like fighting capitalists or conquering Ethiopians or warring on Chinese or cracking down on Jews or Catholics or people who wear blue neckties? No. When people are well-fed and happy they won't even say Heil or Doochay and pretty soon Mr. Dictator goes out on his ear.

Now, we dunno. Maybe a Dictatorship would be a good thing for this country, with everybody paying great big enormous taxes and goose-stepping and sending letters to Uncle Joe and Cousin Charlie at concentration camp. One of the fastest ways to get it is to crack down on all business. Just give it the works. And then cut out advertising. Eliminate it entirely. We'd soon have a sure-enough, first-string Dictatorship then, and when we weren't pulling in our belts another notch and trying to find somebody to blame it on we could all go out riding in our new four-cylinder 1927 sedan, price $1200 f. o. b. Flint, Michigan, spare tire and bumpers extra.

That is, we could if anybody had $1200 left to spend on a car.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—One way to get into an argument in these woods is to propose government operation of business, but the government always is in one business and is making money at it.

Back in World War times the government put some money into the barge business as a relief for the overladen railroads. When the war ended the business went to pot,
but in 1924 Congress started it off again under the title of the Inland Waterways Corporation. You should see it now.

President and board chairman is General T. Q. Ashburn, who looks and talks like Cappy Ricks and occupies a trifle of space in the old munitions building out by the Lincoln memorial. He was put in charge of the business from the start and declares that, honest to goodness (he didn't say goodness),
he had to lift some of the barges
out of the bottom of the Mississippi
where they had sunk from disease
and lack of care.

Business Expands
Congress listed the value of the business when he took over at $10-000,000. General Ashburn says it wasn't worth more than $2,000,000.
In 1929, $15,000,000 was appropriated for new low-boats and barges to help extend the service along more Mississippi tributaries as well as along the Gulf and Atlantic coasts.

He started out with 80 men employed and a handful of towboats piled and a handful of towboats ed the operation to 3,655 miles of river and coastal waters, using 29 towboats and 256 steel barges of 500 to 3,000 tons capacity and has a payroll of 3,900 employees.

Congress authorized the corporation to operate until it put the line on its feet and then to sell to private operators. But so many restrictions were put on the sale that General Ashburn seems to believe selling it is well nigh impossible. A primary requisite is that the business is to be sold in units which will insure that the less profitable lines will not be abandoned but will continue to have support from earnings of the best lines. Bet paying of all is the Mississippi channel line.

A private bid for the line was put in last year but nothing came of it. President Roosevelt is opposed to selling it at present. Questioned about it at a press conference one time, he asked why sell it when it is making a profit.

Labor Trouble
Ashburn now values the line
at $25,000,000 and reports a bank balance of $5,000,000. Recently he turned back $3,000,000 of the $15-000,000 appropriation, saying he didn't need it because profits from the business were sufficient to support the line, build new tow-boats and barges and to extend the service to other rivers from time to time.

He insists that he pays his labor better than competitive private industry and when a strike recently threatened to tie up the outfit he shut down the whole works for 11 days. It reopened after an agreement was reached to negotiate differences. Part of his trouble, he said, is that his upper Mississippi crews are mostly A. F. of L. while his lower Mississippi and coastal crews are predominantly CIO.

In spite of the President's position, General Ashburn says he is in favor of selling the line into private hands as soon as possible now that it has been demonstrated that the thing can make a profit.

Revival of Religion Is Imminent

(Editor's Note: This is the third and last of a series of articles given us for publication by Rev. Lowell
F. Sodeman, pastor of Memorial Baptist Church, Greenville, by way of preparation for a series of revival meetings in this church, May 16-27.)

Continuing with the article by R.
C. Campbell: "There is dire need for a revival. In addition to the bold and defiant wickedness on all sides, in many of our churches there is a lukewarmness, coldness, and indifference that has chilled our spiritual ardor. The most ferocious enemy we face today in our work for the Lord is apathy. The form of godliness is seen but the power of God is not very evident. We may possess the fuse, but we do not have the dynamite. Oh, yes, we have love, but it is not on fire. We have plenty of light but too little heat.
Compacency, the lack of compassion for souls kills churches. In many places intellectualism has killed emotionalism."

"We need a revival today because
a lost world is not bothering us Christians much. I know we care, but how much do we care? We are concerned, but how much are we concerned? Yes, some of us will do something to help win a lost world, but how much will we do and how far will we go?"

"A revival is needed further because soul-winning is the major objective of Christianity, and we are not majoring on soul-winning today."

Christianity through the centuries has made progress and flourished to the degree that she has gone out in compassionate interest to win the lost. When a church or denomination loses its compassion it has lost its spirit or conquest. We move forward only as our pathway is lighted by the incandescent glow from the fires of evangelism. The brighter the fires burn the greater the progress we make. We grow the fastest when these fires of evangelism burn the hottest. The church or denomination that does not evangelize will paralyze. Blood that does not flow coagulates. Coagulation means death. Winning the lost is not secondary. It is primary. It is not incidental; it is fundamental.
It is not to be shrunk to one side;
it is to be kept in the center. The beysdays of Christianity have been the high days of evangelism."

DIXIE HIGHLIGHTS

Where did that romantic word DIXIE originate? Tradition has it that a Mr. Dixie moved a group of his slaves from his New York plantation to another in the deep South. Here the slaves were in strange surroundings and became homesick. They wanted to go back where they were born —to Massa Dixie's land, which to them typified a paradise on earth. Their desires were celebrated in song, which soon spread to other plantations, and in time the term
"Dixie's Land" became transferred to their new homes and thus became a name for the South. So well did it fit the tradition of the Southland that "Dixie" eventually came to mean only that section of the country below Mason and Dixon's Line.

The history of cotton production in Dixie is the history of the South itself. It is interwoven with the romantic story of pioneers, who created colonies, fought savage tribes and cleared plantations out of a wilderness. Its influence has played a dominant part in southern industry and development. A few years after Jamestown was settled, cotton was planted at Newport News, Virginia. Next, the first settlers of the Carolinas began commercial production, which later extended to all the other southern states. After the advent of Eli Whitney's cotton gin, in 1793, cultivation began to surge forward and cotton became one of the greatest commodities on earth.

Today, the South leads the entire world
in production of cotton, which directly effects a far greater turnover of commercial funds than any other product.

TWO THINGS CONGRESS MUST DO

holdings and replace them with tax-free government bonds.

Under the three year rule of the Securities Exchange Commission
the stock market had become very "thin." Prices often changed faster in a day than they fluctuated in a week ten years before. Hence, the market was unable to absorb these big blocks of securities which the holding companies wanted to get rid of. Prices naturally began to sink. Then high margins brought on selling from other sources. One forced sale would uncover another stop-loss order. Within a month what began as an orderly retreat had turned into a rout. For the first time in my experience a stock market crash brought on a business decline rather than a business decline bringing on a stock market crash!

Reforming By Taxes Bad Business

The drafters of last August's increase in personal holding company taxes little dreamed that it would touch off one of the sharpest recessions in history. The experience is a vivid illustration of the danger of tampering with our economic machinery. It shows the dynamite in using the tax power as a reform club. Business is like a watch. You cannot take off one wheel to repair it and expect the other wheels to keep good time. Our crazy-quilt tax system is the biggest problem we face today. Unemployment, crops, labor strife, spending, and all our other worries are "junior" to it.

We are now wallowing in a stupid recession. Yet ours is the greatest and richest nation in the world.
Gigantic mineral and farm wealth,
unlimited factory and machine
equipment, and unprecedented credit reservoirs are ours. What has gone wrong? My answer is that those who control the wealth and industry of the nation have joined labor and consumers in a strike! These capitalists refuse to risk their money (and every business deal is a risk), unless they can make, and retain, a fair profit. They feel that the administration has "stacked the deck" so they have gone on a "sit-down" of their own!

End The Strike Of Capital

Add this capital strike to renewed labor troubles, plus the consumer
"sit-down," and we have business stagnation. The new Roosevelt spending program has been given a cold and clammy reception. In 1932 and '33 we needed pump-priming. We needed to inflate the business balloon and get it off the ground. But we do not need inflat-ing or priming today. What we need now is a little assurance that the "heads-I-win, tails-you-lose" game is over. Banks do not need bolstering; utilities do not need new money; labor does not need higher exemption; encourage it to work, on the other, by lowering the tax on capital gains.

These Are Emergency Measures
If we expect owners of capital to launch new industries we must assure them that if they are successful the government will not take 85 per cent of their profits. That is just plain horse-sense. The great hope of America is new industries. Our wonderful standard of living has come because of the development of new industries. These proposed changes in our restrictive and unwise tax system would be a powerful stimulus to new industries and to prosperity. They should be pushed through this session of Congress as EMERGENCY measures. Then the pump will need no priming!

Rain Blocks All But One League Tilt; Baker Joins Locals

TWO RELEASED, TWO SIGNED UP

Hoskins and Little Fail Make Grade With Greenies

The Greenville-Tarboro game scheduled for Third Street park was called off this afternoon because of rain, following postponement yesterday of the Greenville-Goldsboro contest.

The Greenies will go to Goldsboro Monday to make up for the game called off Friday. The Tarboro-Greenies affair will be played on a later Monday.

Friday and Saturday marked the only days rain had interfered with the Coastal Plain league this season.

The Greenies are scheduled to play in Tarboro tomorrow, play the postponed game at Goldsboro Monday, go to Kinston Tuesday and return here to meet the Kinston Eagles Wednesday. As an added attraction to Wednesday's game, Al Schacht, baseball's greatest comedian, will be here.

With tomorrow the deadline for cutting the squad down to 15 men, Manager Joyner today announced the release of two men and the signing of two more. The club now has 17 men and two will be released before tomorrow's game with Tarboro.

Hoskins, who came here from Edenton and displayed much power at bat the first week of play, was one of the two released. He started out playing third base, later being shifted to right field. Although Hoskins proved effective at bat at times, his fielding was not considered as good as that of some of the other players and it was because of this he was released.

Walter Little, hurler, was the other man to be released. He came to Greenville on option from Savannah, Ga., of the Sally League.

John Robert Baker of Richmond, Va., outfielder who was with Ayden last year and considered a heavy hitter, was signed and was ready to take his place in the lineup. Also signed was an outfielder and third baseman by the name of Riley, who lives in Thomasville. He, too, was in town this morning ready to play.

Two Departments Claim Credit For Hog Grading Plan

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, May 14—It seems to be an undisputed fact that Federal agricultural officials have been in Raleigh discussing the matter of Federal grading of soft and oily pork, but there also seems to be quite a difference of opinion between the State Department of Agriculture and the Extension Division at State College about who should get credit for the visit and for agitation of the matter.

Says a release from Louis H. Wilson, Editor, Department of Agriculture, "U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics officials, answering the request of Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott for pork inspectors, will arrive here this afternoon," etc.

Says a release from the State College Extension Service, in regard to the same visit, "Negotiations for Federal grading of soft and oily pork, begun over a year ago by H. W. Taylor, extension swine specialist at State College, have resulted in a plan of procedure which is expected to be announced soon."

And there you are—you can take your choice as to where the credit is due.

The Department seems to feel that hog producers of the state have been losing a large sum annually by allowing buyers to classify pork as "soft or oily," a procedure which on its face puts it in the power of the buyer himself to pay as much as $1.50 less per hundredweight.

The Extension Service doesn't appear to believe much loss has resulted. Says its release:

"Of the $5,000 hog shipped from co-operative swine markers in Eastern North Carolina since January, 1937, less than six per cent have graded soft and oily at the packing houses."

But whoever did it, it seems there will be Federal inspection of pork before long. The U. S. Bureau has agreed to the grading plan and will begin it as soon as it has enough trained graders to do the work. Packing houses are said to have offered their co-operation in the training work.

While the lawyers-doctors-court house employees and Carolina Dairy-Post Office were making a total of 36 runs at Third Street Park yesterday afternoon, Transportation-Nehi-Insurance and Auto Dealers scored only three runs.

The day's games saw the most runs in any one way of the season in one and the least runs in the other.

The Carolina Dairy-Post Office crew came out on the long end of the 36-run game, scoring 23 to 13 for the lawyers-doctors-court house team. The dairy-postal team led all the way through and had little trouble in defeating the professional group.

It was altogether a different story in the other game of the afternoon. Transportation-Nehi-Insurance defeated the Auto Dealers 2-1 in the closest game played this season. Ty Wagner homered early in the game to put the auto men in the lead, but it was for only a short time as the Transportation-Nehi-Insurance team came back in their half of the inning to score two runs, the final tally of the day. The game was featured by good hurling and close fielding.

UNC AND DUKE FACING SERIES

Play at Durham Wednesday; Greensboro Saturday

Chapel Hill May 14—With the spring competition rapidly drawing to a close, the sports spotlight will be focused on the first two or three scheduled baseball games between Carolina and Duke, arch rivals, next week. Duke and Carolina, who have been perennial opponents in contests which decide championships for the several years, will probably scrap it out again for the Big state and Southern Conference crowns. They will meet at Durham Wednesday afternoon and at Greensboro Saturday night. The third and final game of the series is set for Chapel Hill on Monday afternoon, May 23. The team winning two of these games likely will be crowned champ in both leagues. There are still several teams with mathematical chances of winning the Conference title. Wake Forest is still in the running for the state championship.

The North Carolina High School Association will sponsor its 25th annual state championship Class A game here Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock on Emerson Field. Raleigh and Greensboro are the Eastern and Western finalists, respectively, scheduled for last Friday was postponed due to rain.

Conference meets are also carded in tennis and track next week. The Conference track meet will get under way at Durham Friday and will continue through Saturday. The Conference tennis tournament, to be played at Chapel Hill, will begin on Thursday and will last thru Saturday.

Only other Tar Heel team to be active next week is the lacrosse club which closes its 1938 season by meeting Virginia in a return engagement at Charlottesville Saturday.

Carolina's freshman athletic teams were to end their 1938 program today, (Saturday).

Eagles Knocks Serps From Top of the Heap

Tarboro, May 14.—Kinston's Eagles took over fifth place in Coastal Plain League standings and pushed Tarboro out of a tie for the top by taking a 7-2 victory yesterday. The result snapped a Tarboro winning streak which had reached eight games.

The contest here was the only one played yesterday in the Coastal Plain—rain blocked other games. Clarence Roper's Goldsboro Bugs, riding a four-game winning streak, now have full charge of first place.

Stanton and Norwalk looked after the pitching duties for Manager Tommy West's Eagles in yesterday's contest, and they combined to hold the home club to five scattered hits. Manager West, breaking into the line-up for the first time since an injury forced him out during an exhibition game, batted 500 for four pulls in the fifth. Yent, first up, walked. Myers forced Yent. Ware doubled, Myers going to third. Campbell was hit by one of Stanton's pitches, and the bases were filled. It was at this point that Norwalk replaced Stanton. Latham popped out, Maynard grounded out. Norwalk yielded two hits in his 4-2-3 innings of duty.

Danny York yielded six hits in 3 innings for Tarboro. Yent, who relieved York, yielded four safeties for the rest of the route.

Stringfellow, with two for five, and Manager West were the only players getting more than one hit.

SCHOOLS AIDED BY ALEXANDER

College Coach Works on Physical Education Set-up

Coach J. D. Alexander, head of the department of Physical Education, East Carolina Teachers College, has been working this spring with a number of county school organizations that are interested in improving their physical education set-up.

With his aid several counties have perfected new organizations for sponsoring their athletic programs, and several groups have been formed to carry on a program of six-man football this fall.

Schol administrators are becoming more and more alert, he says, to the importance of a well directed, carefully balanced physical education program in the public schools.

The coach has had thorough training and wide experience in his field.

SCHACHT HERE ON WEDNESDAY

Fans to get Opportunity to See Famous Comedian

The largest crowd ever to witness a baseball game in Greenville is expected to fill the stands and bleachers at Third Street park next Wednesday afternoon when Al Schacht, baseball's greatest comedian, will be an added attraction to the game between the Greenies and Kinston.

The festivities are scheduled to start at 3 o'clock and Al will be on hand ready to amuse the crowds.

With only half a game separating Kinston and Greenville at present, the game itself is expected to be a "natural."

Kinston is expected to send a large delegation here for the game and in addition large crowds are expected from Ayden, Goldsboro, and Williamston, whose teams are playing away from home that day. Other towns which probably will be well represented are Washington, Wilson, Bethel, Winterville, Grifton, Farmville and other nearby places.

Al Schacht, who was forced to retire from active play when he was injured, loved the game too much to leave it altogether and it was then that he began his role as comedian. At first he and Nick Altrock combined to provide a baseball comedian team, but later Al decided to take his antics to the minor league towns and has attracted large crowds wherever he has been booked.

New York Cotton

New York, May 14.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened two to three off. Lower cables were partly offset by improved textile markets and absence of contracts.

October sold up from 8.77 to 8.82 and shortly after the first half hour was 8.81, with the list one net lower to one higher.

Futures closed one to four lower. Spot quiet, middling 8.72.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, May 14.—(AP)—Most stocks drifted to moderately lower levels in today's market, although selling pressure was exceptionally light.

Losses of fractions to a point or so predominated in early dealings, but mild support came in just before the close and lifted the majority of the leaders from low marks and established a number of modest advances.

Transfers approximated 250,000 shares. Bonds were uneven.

This morning's meeting was presided over by Chairman, who was the unanimous selection for convention chairman. At the outset Mr. Hooks read a telegram from Congressman Warren in which Mr. Warren expressed regret at being unable to be the guest of today's convention and wished continued progress and success for the Democratic party in this county.

Following Chairman Hooks' announcement that he would not be a candidate for re-election as county chairman the convention gave a rising vote of thanks for the years of faithful and untiring service he had rendered the party in this county. F. M. Wooten delivered a brief address to the convention recounting the progress that had been made by the party in the county, state and nation and urged a continued support of the principles and efforts of the party.

At the meeting of the executive committee the name of John R.
