for Kidnap-Killer

New Rochelle, N. Y., May 30.—(AP)—One hundred police and G-men searched nearby shores today for remnants of the body of kidnaped 12-year-old Peter Levine, whose wire-trussed headless torso was yielded up last night by the waters of Long Island Sound after three tragic months.

Scores of residents joined the search. Dozens of small volunteer boats patrolled the coast, seeking evidence that might point to the killer.

Detective Lieutenant George Rensenberger expressed belief that the boy had been tossed into the sound, dead or alive, from a boat, perhaps in the vicinity of Rye or Mamaroneck, seven miles above New Rochelle.

Police and Federal agents spent the night studying charts of wind and tide movements, trying to locate the approximate scene of death.

Discovery of the body was the first development in the case in several weeks and confirmed the growing dread in his family that he would never be returned alive.

Seriously Injured
When Taxi Wrecks

One young Raleigh woman was seriously injured and two others received minor hurts about 6 o'clock this morning about four miles from Farmville on the Greenville highway when the taxi in which they were riding overturned.

State Highway Patrolman C. R. Williams, who investigated the wreck, said a man who gave his name as Jack Perry was the driver of the cab and was being held on a charge of reckless driving. Bond of $200 was not posted immediately.

The patrolman said the cab, which was from Raleigh, turned over when it failed to make a curve.

A woman listed on hospital records as Miss Helen Quakenbush was the most seriously injured. She suffered a broken right arm, a fractured left shoulder and severe cuts and bruises. The other two women in the cab, each of whom were only slightly injured, were listed as Miss Ida Kevitt and Miss Mary Fulton. All three gave their home address as Raleigh.

City Firemen Answer
Call; Find No Blaze

Firemen were summoned to the main business section of the city at 2:30 o'clock this morning when someone pulled the alarm at the corner of Evans and Third streets after the sprinkler system at the Blount-Harvey department store went off after something went wrong with the apparatus.

Fire Chief Gardner said Greenville had experienced only one fire so far this month, that one being at Byrum's market on West Fifth street the first day or so of the month and caused damage estimated at $100.

Planes Soar Over
Island Of Kyushu

Tokyo, May 30.—(AP)—Two airplanes believed to be Chinese, last night cruised along the entire length of the west coast of Kyushu and caused a declaration of a state of alarm for western Japan which was not ended until early this morning.

All available reports agreed the planes dropped no bombs and apparently they ended their reconnaissance of the Kuroki coast without molestation and turned homeward. It was the second bloodless "air raid" on Japan proper in 10 days.

Coming from the south, the planes flew as far as Fukuoka and Mojo at the island's northwestern tip and then disappeared.

Japanese authorities fearing such flights might be preliminaries to mass air attacks on the crowded ports and industrial districts of Kyushu, admitted worry and mystification.

The diesel engine was patented by Dr. Rudolf Diesel, German engineer, in 1892.

KIDNAP CHARGE MADE IN HOBBS' CASE

Police charged Mrs. Anna Legare (right), former tea room operator with kidnaping as they announced that golden-haired Betty Hobbs, 4, who disappeared mysteriously from North Tonawanda, was believed to be alive in Coolville, Ohio. A child identified at Betty is shown with 8-year-old Margaret Gillman of Coolville in the picture at the left. Police said Mrs. Legare claimed she had Betty's mother's permission to take the child "for a visit." This was denied by Mrs. Ellsworth Hobbs, mother of the little girl.

TANK NO. ONE IS INSTALLEDFirst of Three Put Into Service This Morning

One of three large water tanks recently purchased by the city was filled and put into service this morning and Martin Swartz, superintendent of the Greenville Water and Light commission, said he hoped to have the other two installed and ready for service by September 1.

The tank put into operation this morning is located on Chestnut street on the Sinclair property. Mr. Swartz said it provided sufficient water and the proper pressure for the section of the city it serves.

Each of the three tanks is of 300,000 gallon capacity. They were purchased to provide sufficient water pressure for all sections of the city. They are part of an improvement program undertaken by the Water and Light commission, for which bonds, authorized at an election, were sold.

Tank number two, being erected at Washington and Thirteenth streets, is expected to be ready for service by July 1, Mr. Swartz said.

Erection work has just been started on tank number three, to be located on Jarvis street, between First and Second streets. It is service by September 1.

Mr. Swartz said when all three tanks are filled all sections of the city will have sufficient water with proper pressure. Heretofore the pressure in several sections of the city has been so low, officials said, it would have been impossible to secure sufficient pressure to fight a fire properly.

ed. Like Topsy, these machines "just growed." Nobody cut out a master pattern so they all would fit together. No one unit of government spends money for relief in direct ratio to any other unit.

And it so happens that some relief machines run better than others.

Under our state-federal system of government, no other operation has yet been found agreeable. If all the relief machines were hooked up to pull together, one single directing head would have to throw all the switches. That would add up to a relief dictator, and the American public doesn't like dictators.

So, we have many different pieces of relief machinery. The most flexible of them all is the federal machinery, operating for the most part through the Works Progress Administration (WPA). It should be flexible to help take care of the unemployed.

What has happened? Isn't the government spending enough? Why should reliefers find their checks cut down or shut off?

It all traces back to the fact that each unit of government in the nation—federal, state, county and city—has built its own relief machine to help take care of the unemployed.

SCHUSCHNIGG
NOT AT CASTLEEx-Chancellor Moved
By German Secret
Police

Vienna, May 30.—(AP)—The whereabouts of ex-Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg were a mystery today after it was learned reliably that he had been taken quietly "somewhere north" by German secret police Saturday night.

The castle which was his home and where he remained under guard is to be emptied by next Tuesday, neighbors said.

Three possible explanations were advanced unofficially to explain the transfer.

One was that Schuschnigg would have to face trial before the Leipzig Supreme court.

Others who thought his health too impaired for imprisonment at Leipzig penitentiary believed he might be permitted to live under guard in a German sanatorium.

The third reason was that letters threatening to "lynch him" and assurances by friends they would try to free him and necessitated his removal.

No County Court Set

Judge Dink James said today that since all cases had been set for June 7, no session of County court would be held tomorrow, despite the fact the court room will be idle.

No cases were made; returnable this week because of the fact that a civil session of Superior court was scheduled to have been in progress.

WHAT IT MEANS:
The Relief Crisis

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(AP Feature Service Writer)

Washington.—The Federal government is spending $250,000,000 a month to create jobs for the unemployed.

Since 1933, Uncle Sam has put well over 10 billions into relief, and another 10 into credit and other phases of recovery. The states, counties and cities also have chipped in about three and a half billions for the destitute.

And yet, in the pinch of the latest depression in the Middle West, Chicago marchers are yelling for food. Women riot for relief money in Cleveland.

What has happened? Isn't the government spending enough? Why should reliefers find their checks cut down or shut off?

It all traces back to the fact that each unit of government in the nation—federal, state, county and city—has built its own relief machine to help take care of the unemployed.

End Of Congress
By June 11 Seen
By Sen. BarkleyMajority Leader Declares Relief Measure
Should Be Enacted by Middle of Week;
Both Houses in Recess Today

Washington, May 30.—(AP)—Members of Congress want to go home by June 11, and Senate Leader Barkley (D.-Ky.), expressed confidence today that they will get their wish.

"We should pass the relief bill in the Senate by the middle of the week," Barkley said. "Then all we will have left are a compromise on the wage-hour bill, a deficiency appropriation measure and a few odds and ends that can be sandwiched in at any time."

Administration leaders, it was learned, have decided definitely to abandon the government reorganization bill for this season. There had been frequent rumors that the measure, shelved in the house after senate passage, would be received before adjournment.

Several informed Congressmen, however, predicted that President Roosevelt would renew his request for the legislation next year.

Both chambers were in recess for Memorial Day. When the senate convenes tomorrow it will start voting on amendments to the $3,247,000,000 relief and public works bill.

Although opponents planned a vigorous fight to "earmark" funds for specific purposes, several conceded privately that the measure would pass in substantially its present form. Further debate was limited under an agreement reached Saturday.

A joint committee arranged to meet tomorrow or Wednesday in an effort to reconcile differences between the house-approved wage-hour bill and a labor standard measure voted by the senate last summer.

Roberts Smashes Record
To Win 500-Mile RaceSpectator Killed By Wheel from Crashing Racer

Speedway, Indianapolis, May 30.—(AP)—Floyd Roberts of Van Nuys, Calif., roared to a record-breaking victory in the 500-mile automobile race here today. It was his first major triumph in 22 years of racing.

Roberts, driving the entire distance without relief and making only one 30-second stop, received a tumultuous acclaim of the huge crowd as he piloted his car across the finish line.

The winner finished about five miles ahead of Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis, winner of the 1937 classic.

Roberts covered the 500 miles in 4:15:58.40 to establish the remarkable average of 117,200 miles an hour, smashing the record of 113,580 hung up by Shaw last year.

Everett Spence of Terre Haute, Ind., a spectator, was killed by a wheel which flew off a crashing racer.

The wheel flew off a car driven by Emil Andres, of Chicago, whose mount crashed into the lower retaining wall on the southeast turn as he was speeding on his 112th mile. Andres, rushed to a hospital, was found to have suffered a broken nose and a possible brain concussion.

Spence was reported to have been standing on top of a truck watching the race when Andres crashed into the wall, turning over three times.

Breaking all speedway records, Jimmy Snyder, former Chicago milkman, had regained the lead at 300 miles of the 500-mile race.

Clouds hanging low threatened thunderstorms as the 33 drivers, piloting the fastest field ever assembled, lunged away at 11 a. m. in the start of the annual race.

Officials of the speedway estimated the crowd would surpass that of last year, but just before the start of the race it appeared the attendance would fall short of 150,000 the 1937 figure, as the spectators continued to swarm through the gates.

The sun was trying to break out the clouds, and it peeped for a few seconds just before the start. Official weather observers said the clouds would disappear with the sun coming out to beat down on the two and a half mile course until the finish of the grind.

Pleas Entered In Slaying Of Agent

Elizabeth City, May 30.—(AP)—Barnard Irving Royals and Joe Thomas West pleaded guilty to second degree murder in Federal District court today in the slaying of J. W. Jackson, Jr., an agent of the alcohol tax unit.

The agent was mortally wounded on the night of March 8, when he sought to inspect an automobile halted near the North Carolina-Virginia line. John Estes, assigned to the alcohol tax unit office in Norfolk, Va., testified he was accompanying Jackson at the time. He said five shots were fired from a pistol as Jackson started toward the car.

Estes said he pulled the body of his companion back into the car and then chased the other automobile for eight or nine miles before capturing the men.

Royals and West were charged originally with first degree murder.

Sermon

Delivering the baccalaureate sermon to the 1938 graduating class last night in the high school auditorium, Rev. Chester Alexander, spoke on "The Stepping Stone Life."

A capacity audience, including 100 graduates, the senior class in the history of Greenville high school, heard Mr. Alexander, pastor of the Howard Memorial Presbyterian church in Tarboro.

Recognized as a leader in the Southern Presbyterian church, Mr. Alexander emphasized the importance of building personalities on which a better and finer world may be built. "Each of us has been tremendously influenced for good by the stepping stone, lives with which we have come in contact."

Mr. Alexander made forceful suggestions by contrasting stumbling-block lives with significant stepping-stone personalities.

The program, which was presided over by V. M. Muhland, included "My Creed" by the girls' glee club and "Open Our Eyes" by the combined glee clubs.

A cathedral window, executed by Tom Field, head of the industrial arts department, was placed behind the choir. This lent dignity and solemnity to the evening program.

Rev. R. C. Grady, pastor of the local Presbyterian church, offered the invocation, read the evening lesson and pronounced the benediction.

SMALL CINCINNATI
GIRL FOUND SLAIN

Cincinnati, May 30.—(AP)—The body of six-year-old Shirley Woodburn, missing since Sunday, was found covered with weeds in a wooded patch near her home today.

Police Major Gustav Lorenz said she had been ravished.

Police had hunted the girl since her parents reported she failed to return home from an errand.

Playmates said she was seen with a youth of about 17. Mr. and Mrs. John Woodburn discounted the story, asserting Shirley had been warned never to go with strangers.

The child's home is within a short distance of a neighborhood from which Frieda Hornberger disappeared in 1921, and Emily Gump in 1909. Neither was ever accounted for.

Smith, operator of Smith's place here, was freed on bond of $5,000 Saturday, May 31, and a hearing was set for last Saturday. The hearing was postponed, however, until Saturday of this week. Smith, meanwhile, remains free under the bond posted by R. V. Keel.

Shanghai, May 30.—(AP)—Japanese reinforcements battled furiously today in an effort to reach Lieut.-General Kenji Doihara's trapped division, virtually surrounded by Chinese northwest of Lanseng.

Chinese dispatches said the reinforcements were still five miles east of Lanseng, however, and blocked off by masses of Chinese troops.

The Lieut.-Generals' reputations as an outstanding army leader and the chief Japanese political manipulator, would make his defeat by the Chinese of tremendous importance.

The Chinese, with General Chiang Kai-Shek reported personally commanding operations, have thrown a highly barrier of fighting men in front of the Japanese forces and are fighting desperately to stop the offensive westward along the Lunghai railway.

Doihara's fourteenth division, the advance element of a Japanese army which aimed eventually at reaching the provisional Chinese capital at Hankow, was cut off in some of the bloodiest fighting of the war.

McDonald Out For Timon Valentine

Raleigh, May 30.—Ralph W. McDonald, who has been ill for months apparently injected himself into the Democratic primary campaign today with an appeal to voters in the second judicial district to support L. T. Valentine for the choice for Superior Court Judge.

Valentine was one of McDonald's managers in the bitter primary two years ago when Governor Hoyer defeated the Winston-Salem legislator. Valentine is opposing Judge W. J. Bone, who was appointed to office by Hoyer.

Postal cards mimeographed and bearing a "Western North Carolina Sanatorium, Black Mountain" date-line and signed by "Ralph W. McDonald" were seen here which urged support for Valentine in Edgecombe county.

Meanwhile candidates for nomination in Saturday's primary put on last minute pressure throughout the state.

Democrats only will ballot in the state-wide voting, while Republicans choose a solicitor in the 17th district.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds, seeking renomination, and his opponent, Frank W. Hancock Jr., put on the last push.

It was announced in Elizabeth City that Hancock would speak to the people of the Albemarle section there tomorrow night. From Winston-Salem came word that both candidates would be there tomorrow.

Peace Action
What are the costs of war? According to Thomas J. Watson, president of the International Chamber of Commerce, the World War has, to the present time, cost the United States $31,000,000,000 and has cost the world $338,000,000,000.

What did the world buy for its $338,000,000,000? It bought death, depression, and dictatorships—and still more war. Was it worth the cost?

We want peace. We think we want peace; we say we want peace; but we don't really do anything about it. Why? Partly because we don't know what to do; partly because, even if we do know what to do, we simply don't take the trouble to do it.

There are four things you can do. You can study books which come to grips with the problems of war and peace, such as Mills' "Road to War," Gunther's "Inside Europe," and material from the Carnegie Endowment, (all in the public library). You can join with agencies working for peace.

You can write your Senators and Congressmen asking them what they are doing for peace.

You can vote for the candidates who have done most for peace.
—Message from the National Peace Conference.

The following letter has been received from Dr. Roswell P. Barnes, secretary of the Department of International Justice and Good Will of the Federal Council of Churches. Dr. Mary E. Woolly, former president of Mt. Holyoke, is chairman of the committee.

To The Greenville Council For Peace Action:
Thank you so much for your good report of World Trade Week and for the pictures of the library exhibit. They are most useful and I am going to place them on exhibit as examples of what may be done by a local committee. If the Harmon Foundation can make slides from these pictures, I shall use them in that way, assuming that you will not have an objection.

We hope that you take real satisfaction in the effective work you are doing in a movement which is so desperately important these days.

The whole machine is directed from Washington, and operates in nearly every one of the 3,100 counties in the United States. Its flexibility, so far, has been limited only by the amount of money Congress appropriates for work relief.

WPA can speed up relief here, slow it down there, or cut it off entirely, according to what the WPA thinks the needs of the unemployed are.

Where Need Is Greatest

During a depression, the need usually is greatest in the nation's middle-western work shop, where many steel, building and automobile industries are located. The area is bounded roughly on the east and west by Pittsburgh and Des Moines, and on the north and south by Chicago and Cincinnati.

In that area, big industries feel that they can't merely slow down to an easy stop when they see a depression coming. They have to slam on the brakes to avoid a disastrous drain on their payrolls.

Suddenly many thousands of workers lose their jobs, and begin living on unemployment insurance, savings, and credit. That usually lasts from a week to two or three months. Then the jobless turn to the relief rolls.

That's the picture in the Middle West now, especially in such cities as Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit and Toledo.

The hoppers of the federal relief machine were enlarged early this year to take more and more relief cases. In Chicago, the rolls were stepped up from 50,000 to 120,000; in Cleveland from 20,000 to 70,000. In other words, WPA created 120,000 more jobs in a few months in those two cities alone.

But, after a while, city and state machinery stalled. There were more people eligible for direct relief (financed by states, counties, cities) than the machinery could stand. Hence, jobless parades and minor riots.

'Up To The States'

Through Harry Hopkins, chief of the WPA, the federal government served notice the other day that it had done its share, and the rest was up to the states.

"That states have the money," said Hopkins, "I know of no citizen in Ohio or Illinois who thinks the federal government has not done its part."

Said Aubrey Williams, Hopkins' assistant: "We take the position that any further expansion of WPA relief in two rich states like Ohio and Illinois would mean the federal government would be giving direct relief to the destitute, instead of creating jobs in a work relief program. If we give in out there, every other state would have plenty of grounds to demand the same thing. That would be the end of work relief, and the exhaustion of the funds Congress appropriated for work relief."

So Ohio and Illinois called extraordinary sessions of their legislatures to repair the state relief machinery.

Financial Resources Available For Homes
Washington, May 30.—North Carolina's 15 Federal savings and loan associations, with resources of $9,200,000 "offer their communities unprecedented thrift and home financing facilities," Preston Delano, Governor of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, said here today.

In a message to O. E. LaRoque, president of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Winston-Salem, Mr. Delano congratulated Federal associations of that state on their community services.

These associations are located in Asheville, Brevard, Burlington, Durham, Fayetteville, Gastonia, Greenville, Hendersonville, Mooreville, Raleigh, Rocky Mount, Tryon and Winston-Salem.

"Federal associations perform multiple services for their communities," Mr. Delano pointed out. "Savings are fully protected by our $113,000,000 Insurance Corporation up to $5,000 per investor. Such savings are utilized for financing construction and purchase of homes."

"Money of investors thus loaned on homes provides for employment of building trades and building material workers, and goes to many other groups and enterprises, stimulating business of the community and further assisting its citizens. Federal associations are among the

Greenies Split Series With Snow Hill; King Pitches Win

KING BAFFLES BILLIES SUNDAY

Fans 10 Batters As Mates Swat Ball Opportunely

Don King held the Snow Hill Billies to one run yesterday afternoon as the Greenies won their first game since the abbreviated contest with Tarboro here last Monday afternoon. The game was played in Snow Hill, but a goodly number of Greenville fans witnessed the contest.

King had the Billies "eating out of his hands" for the first six innings, during which he fanned 10 batters.

Druce, Snow Hill hurler, also was effective except for occasional wildness. He held the Greenies to seven hits, while his mates were making one more than that number, but King kept the base knocks so well scattered they resulted in only one run.

Tuesday—Greenville at New Bern.

Wednesday—New Bern at Greenville.

Thursday—Greenville at Goldsboro.

Friday—Goldsboro at Greenville.

Pratt, who played left field in place of Pilot Joyner, who is suffering from an injured leg, and Miller each hit circuit blows. Pratt hit his four-bagger in the third on a score Smith who had reached first on an error. Miller came in the sixth and ended the scoring for the Greenies.

Snow Hill scored its only run in the seventh. Greenville lost a tough one Saturday when they were defeated twice by the Billies despite a fine brand of hurling by John Delaney, who also batted. His team's only runs, Delaney was the only Greenville to make more than one hit. Longest, Snow Hill hurler, also featured in his team's scoring and won the game with a double to score two men.

Aces Use Castoffs To Turn Back Goldbugs

Ayden, June 30.—A pair of Tarboro cast-offs were the stars for Ayden in a 7-4 win over Goldsboro yesterday afternoon.

Johnny Yent, young right-hander, who started the season with Tarboro's Serpents, hurled seven-hit ball to turn back the Bugs. Earl Carnahan, with Tarboro last season and for part of this campaign, batted in four runs to play a major role on the offense.

Goldsboro's tallest, resulted from homers. Dirmann, first man up in the game, parked one of Yent's heaters. Mickey Balla also turned the trick in the second inning, following a walk to Watson. The other Goldsboro homer, by Watson, came in the seventh. Balla's home run was his first in two seasons.

Ayden's first run, in the third, resulted from doubles by Purcell and Carnahan. The Aces tied it in the next inning by mixing an error, Jirak's single and a stolen base, and Purcell's single. The winning runs came in the fifth—Schuerholz singled and Carnahan hit for the circuit.

Yent fanned 10 and walked two. Pete Kunis, his mound for fanned four and didn't allow a single free pass. The Aces collected 13 hits. Carnahan, with three hits for four tries, was the leading hitsmith of the day.

Eagles Down Martins To Retain 2nd Rank

Williamston, May 30.—Kinston's Eagles held to second place in the Coastal Plain standings by defeating the third-place Martins, 4-2, this afternoon. Rain threatened all through the game.

Tommy West's Eagles won in a hurry. They put over three runs in the opening frame. A walk, an infield out, and a single by Wyrostek brought the first run. Billy Southworth hit a homer over the left field wall.

The other Kinston run, in the sixth, came on a homer by Wyrostek.

Williamston did all its scoring in the opening inning. Stanley singled. Ignasiak was safe on an error, and then Bowen hit a single which drove in both runners.

Hurley, Kinston hurler, had the situation in hand all the way. He gave up only five hits. The Eagles made seven off Larry Wade, now back with the Martins. Wade fanned seven.

Top batter was Eddie Ignasiak, with two for four. Villepique hit one for two. The leaders for Kinston was Johnny Wyrostek, with a homer and a single for three runs.

Serps Utilize Homers To Lick Smith's Bears

New Bern, May 30.—The league-leading Tarboro Serpents had a big enough lead today to come out on the top end of the score despite rallies by New Bern in the eighth and ninth innings. The final count was 5-4.

Home runs accounted for all but one of Tarboro's scores. Mooney homered in the fourth, following a single by Manager Snake Henry. In the sixth Henry once more got a single, and this time Al Lehman provided transportation of the home run variety. The other Tarboro run, made in the third, resulted from a walk, a sacrifice, and Hank Lehman's single.

Roth's homer in the fourth broke the scoring ice for New Bern. The Bears made two runs in the eighth, on singles by Thornton, Anderson and Stith, plus Campbell's error on Stith's single.

The ninth-inning rally by the home club was started when Roth hit for two bases. Harper flied out to deep left center. Burge's single scored Roth. Norwood hit a Texas leaguer to left, and Solly Myers made a fine catch, although he collided with Outfielder Campbell on the play. Myers, fanned, took time out—and used the period to argue with Campbell. Thornton hit a slow roller to third and Maynard rifled the ball to first for the final out.

A big Sunday turnout was treated to a fine game. Four double plays speeded up things. Red Harper, Bears' third baseman, was top man in a day of top defensive play.

Washington — The harmony between AFL and CIO in the Oregon primary does not extend to Seattle, 300 miles to the north, where the two organizations fought each other to a virtual deadlock over which should negotiate Alaskan salmon cannery wages.

In Oregon both labor organizations turned against Governor Martin to defeat his attempt to get the Democratic nomination for re-election. By voting together the two organizations held the balance of power which gave the nomination to Henry L. Hess, whom they liked better.

But in Seattle there was no peace.
The National Labor Relations Board had very limited success in placating the combative labor groups in time to start them north to meet the salmon, which were already running inland from the sea.

Salmon Were Undeterred

The Alaskan salmon industry, worth several millions annually, has been tightly unionized for a number of years, but this year a dispute arose while the men were yet in Seattle as to which should dicker with the employers for wage and hour terms. The dispute continued for weeks. Long after the time for ships usually left for the Alaska fishing grounds the workmen remained deadlocked.

Recently an election was held by the NLRB to permit the cannery workers to ballot on which organization should negotiate the agreement.
Reports here were that each organization lined its men up before the voting place. First one side would send in a group to vote, then the other.

Meantime the choice Alaska salmon, unaware of the delay, continued to move upstream in increasing numbers, escaping the delayed cannery. The Alaska salmon run begins late in May and reaches the peak with the elect red salmon during June. Any delay usually means a smaller catch, and reduced profits and wages.

Voting Aftermath

Just what happened at the election is in dispute, but when the voting place was closed by the NLRB official at an hour fixed in advance, the CIO had 1,500 votes and AFL only 1,307. AFL complained that when the polls closed 400 or 500 of its men were left outside.
The NLRB official said the number was only 40 or 50, not enough to change the outcome.

AFL promptly challenged the fairness of the balloting and some of its members, it was reported here, threatened to picket and effort to start the canning and fishing ships northward. Two weeks after the election only a scattered few outfits had started for the salmon grounds in Alaska's famed Bristol Bay.

Oddenda!

Hundreds of decks and chairs assigned to Senators are branded
"S.O.B." It means Senate office building. All police on duty at the White House and Supreme Court carry pistols, but of those protecting Congress only a few are armed.
A jeering court policeman said the uniformed boys around the capitol were armed until they began having accidents while toying with their weapons. Engraved on a brass cannon at the west entrance to the State Department is the motto of the British Order of the Garter:
"Honi Soit Qui Mal y Pense"—evil to him who evil thinks. The gun was captured from the British at Stony Point in 1779.

CHINESE FARMER'S LOSS IN WAR EQUALS YEARLY INCOME

Chengtu, Szechwan.—(AP)—The average Chinese farmer can be said to have sustained a war loss about equal to his annual yearly income, according to reports received here of an investigation by National Christian Council workers.
A census of villages in Central China showed about 15 civilians killed or missing from each. Losses include looting, damage to buildings, loss of grain and farm animals and damage to standing crops.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, May 30—The primary campaign in North Carolina swings into its last week amid great public apathy than has been the case in the recollection of reasonably aged commentators and observers—the indifference extending at least to the two statewide races to be decided by the voters this coming Saturday.

Neither Senator Robert R. Reynolds nor his opponent Congressman Frank Hancock has been able to rouse the populace to a talking heat, though there may be more interest under the surface than is apparent to the naked eye.
It has been a campaign almost unique in the state's history, with scarcely an issue to ripple the placid surface of the political waterers. Hancock has waged an almost singlehanded campaign of ridicule against Reynolds, whom he has characterized as a playboy and a counterfeit statesman.

As the last phase approaches the Hancock manager, William A. Devin, Jr. released a statement in which he said he has been "reliably informed" that the CIO is furnishing campaign funds for Reynolds. He named no names, dates, nor places.

A few hours later Hancock declared that Senator Josiah W. Balley and his friends are actively backing Reynolds because the present junior senator is such a feeble personality in the Senate that Bailey just about has no colleague.

When these lines were written Reynolds had made no reply whatever to either of these charges. Like the Tar Baby of Uncle Remus fame he "ain't saying nuthin'."

Both candidates appear serenely confident of victory—one of them is bound to be badly off base. Outwardly all the noise has been for Reynolds, but Hancock claims a great "silent" vote which will nominate him overwhelmingly. About midnight Saturday we'll know more about which of the two is right.

The other statewide race, for Utility Commissioner between incumbent Stanley Winborne and Paul D. Grady of Kenly, showed signs of warming up to near the boiling point.

In a series of speeches over various radio stations in the state, Grady fired several salvos of vitriolic oratory, whom he termed a tool of the utilities and entirely unrepresentative of the mass of the state's people.

He charged there have been big write-ups of power company valuations, that there have not been rate reductions commensurate with the true condition and earnings of the companies. In a statement, he called Winborne little but a "filing clerk for the utilities."

In rebuttal the Commissioner denied there has been a single write-up in utility values during his term of office; and with Dudley Bagley, director of the state Rural Electricification Authority, denied flatly a Grady charge that he declined to approve the Caldwell community co-operative electrical project.
The petition, he said, and Bagley said, was withdrawn voluntarily by its sponsors.

Winborne announced he will make his first campaign speech in Charlotte Monday night. He has bought radio time in Raleigh for Wednesday and Friday nights and will himself speak on one of these nights. On the other one of his most capable backers (probably I.
M. Bailey of Raleigh) will speak for him.

Local races over the state seated and simmered as the polling approached. L. O. Burgin in the Eighth District and Major Edney Ridge in the Sixth dared their many opponents to let the Congressional nominating go to the high man in Saturday's primary; but none of the opponents has so far accepted the challenge. Nor have any of the joint debate challenge of the last campaign stages been accepted.

KEEP A GOOD MAN IN PUBLIC OFFICE

D. M. Clark, who has been Solicitor for the past seven years, is again asking the support of the voters.
If the lamp of experience is to be our guide it will be well to re-elect him. He has performed his duties in a conscientious manner. In his office he does not try to get a conviction nor does he let factional politics guide him. He does his work for the good of the people. You can trust him. Vote for Clark and you get the same service you have in the past 7 years. When you have a good man it pays to keep him.

STATE SEEKING SWEET THINGS

But Alas, Boys, They Are Only Colonies of Bees

Raleigh, May 30—North Carolina already has some thousand or more colonies of "sweet things" wintering within its borders, but they are not the sweet things to which dashing blades like to whisper sweet nothings in the moonlight. They are colonies of bee tourists, which Northern bee keepers have found profitable to bring here for the cold season.

Some 800 colonies are buzzing around New Bern, enjoying the climate to the full, while about 300 northern groups are gathering honey and dispersing themselves in the sea breezes down about Wilmington.

"Aparists who are bringing their bees into North Carolina find that their winter loss of bees is materially less because of the mild climate and since Spring comes earlier here by several weeks. The bees have ample time to build up strong colonies before time to move them back north for the honey harvest," said Dr. David L. Wray, associate entomologist of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture.

With the tourist bees wintering in North Carolina, the entomology division of the department has made rigid inspections to prevent the spread of foulbrood, the dreaded disease which afflicts young bees.

North Carolina itself is regarded as a "substantial honey producing state," with the annual honey crop valued at between $75,000 and $100,000 according to Dr. Wray.

There are a dozen queen bee breeders in the state who annually ship queens throughout the world. Tar Heel breeders export approximately 1,500 to foreign countries each year.

In view of the high opinion held of North Carolina's climate by northern bee breeders, the State Advertising and Industrial divisions are considering a campaign to induce the northerners not only to bring their bees here for the winter but to make them all year residents.

SECOND HAND CIGARETTE TRADE HIT BY CHINESE WAR

Shanghai—(AP)—Small-try manufacturers of cigarettes for Shanghai's coolie trade are complaining over the shortage of the cigarette butts they pick up from the streets. The butts constitute their principal source of tobacco supply.

Since the depression that followed the Sino-Japanese hostilities in this area, Shanghai smokers have been getting the most out of a cigarette, and the butts they toss away are so small that they are practically worthless.

Go West, Young Women.

Amarillo, Tex. (AP)—Gene Howe, Amarillo editor, says women of the high plains carry more beautiful legs than women elsewhere. It is because the women of the plains have to brace themselves against high winds. Howe said, and this exercises the muscles of the legs which makes for beauty. "So come west, young women," Howe advises.

OCTAGON HOUSE

BY PHOEBE ATWOOD TAYLOR

The Story So Far: Asey Mayo, Cape Cod detective, is investigating the murder of Marina Lorne, whose husband's post office mural has aroused Quer House. She was killed by a left handed blow from her sister's knife. Suspected Pam Frye disappears after hiding $50,000 worth of ambergris she found. Asey learns that someone smoking Turkish tobacco was trailing Pam to learn where she hid it; Roddy Strutt's plane crash is a suspicious alibi; and agreeable Tim Carr, a boarder at Octagon House, is left hander, smokes Turkish tobacco, and hated Marina. Asey overhears Tim's grandmother ask him, "Where did the girl put it?" And also discovers that their movie alibi is a bluff. He talks with Pam's father.

Chapter 21

Quer House, Quer People

"HAVE you any idea what Pam found on the beach yesterday afternoon?" Asey asked.

Aaron Frye drew in his breath sharply.

"There is only one thing," he said. "That Pam hunts on a beach. Did she—ah, I think I see. Yes I see. And somehow Marina entered into it."

He took the information, Asey thought, with superhuman calm.

"You don't need to tell me any more," Frye said. "Pam found the—"

"Stuff," Asey interrupted swiftly.

"That might be best. Stuff I've always hoped that Pam might find some, she wanted to so badly. But I feared the consequences. I've a notion which time has never disproved to my entire satisfaction, that sudden wealth is a rather awful thing."

Asey nodded. "What's gold" on in Queromet right now is a swell example of quick money," he said. "Look—what I want to know is, where, can the stuff be? Where could Pam have put it? Here, I mean."

"Where in this house?" Frye said promptly. "The police combed this place last night, hunting for Pam. They would have been sure to have uncovered it. And—"

"An' these borders of yours," Asey said. "Where were they last night, an' yesterday evenin'?" I thought that you three went to a clam bake an' the movies."

"We did go to a clam bake, and then Tim parked the car up in the square, and we set off for the star," Frye said. "But I got sidetracked. Main Street was dotted with antimural groups, and some of the discussions interested me. I told the Carrs I'd drop into the movies later, but I never got there. Some of the talk was violent. Pam and I had already talked over this ugly undercurrent—"

"She told me."

"Did she? Well, I listened, and when I heard one eager hand planning to burn the post office, and to tar and feather Jack Lorne as a side issue, I decided to stroll rapidly home and warn Jack. In fact, I thought of suggesting that he and Marina might possibly be happier if they took a brief vacation elsewhere. I foresaw difficulties, for I knew they were broke again. Jack had been around in the morning, trying to borrow from me."

"Any special problems?" Asey asked. "Or was it more in the line of general brokenness?"

"Marina's bills, as usual. She had a talent for bills. Anyway, as I came out of the woods behind the house here, I saw the crowd, and the Carrs. I joined them, and the police assumed I'd seen with them to the movies. The Carrs—they're very quick witted—they rather led the police to believe that—what did you say, something about the Carrs?"

"Go on," Asey told him.

"Due For A Shock"

"WELL, I saw no reason for disillusioning the police, under the circumstances. I had nothing to do with the murder, but if I hadn't been for the Carrs, I should have been dragged into it. I know. I'm really very grateful to your boarders for giving me that alibi, although I suppose it's quite wrong on my part. They're charming people, Timothy and his grandmother."

"Uh-huh," Asey said. "Now, you come home by way of the woods, out back. I don't suppose you happened to bump into anyone lurking around there? I'm sure you didn't, because if anyone was lurking, they'd take care not to be bumped. But did you notice anything that didn't seem to be quite as usual?"

"Nothing but that elaborate roadster of Roddy Strutt's, parked near the entrance to the old foot path. But I didn't see Roddy. Aaron got up and walked over to the window. 'I don't suppose you could fix that windup lock, could you?' he asked. 'I spent last night sitting beside the phone here, hoping that Pam might call, and—oh, probably it was my nerves, but I thought I heard someone outside. It wasn't the police, and I couldn't see anyone—'

"Have they tapped your phone?" Asey asked.

"I wouldn't know. They apparently haven't given up the hope of getting Pam, though. But they're not as adhesive about the idea as they were last night. Oh—here are Mrs. Carr and Tim. I'm sure they'll want to see you."

"I want," Asey said ruthfully, "to see them, too. But you let me choose the time. An' while I dally with this window lock, will you keep your eyes on the Carr family, an' tell me where they walk to?"

"They're just strolling around," Frye said. "Why are you interested in—"

"It's their intense charm," Asey said. "It's got me. Will you watch 'em, while I fix your window lock?"

He was a little annoyed when Aaron Frye, a few minutes later, went out and joined the Carrs in their walk. That was, of course, one way to find out the Carr family's destination, but he doubted if it would be the same destination they originally had in mind.

In one sense, Asey thought, it didn't matter very much. If the Carrs were contemplating any dirty work, their plans were due for a rude shock. Timothy and his grandmother were very shortly going to be put through a wringer, and he intended to apply the handle with considerable force.

And Aaron Frye was going to come in for a bit of wringing, too. That pose of indecisive absent mindedness was going to be chased right square out of the picture. He could be decisive enough when he wanted to.

Frye must have known, Asey thought, about the ambergris. He must have known. He did know. Any man whose nervous system reacted to loose window catches would have reacted with considerable violence to news like Pam's finding her long-sought-for ambergris. But Frye hadn't even asked how much she found. He hadn't even displayed ordinary curiosity. He'd taken the information as casually as though ambergris grew luxuriantly on the trees outside Octagon House, and it was his custom to pluck great hunks of it every morning before breakfast.

Not The Only Odd Thing

Frye was an odd duck anyway. Asey thought, as he finished with the window. He'd once been some sort of college professor—

Bill Porter always called him "Doctor," and so did lots of other people. But why a college professor should choose to bury himself in a place like Queromet, Asey couldn't imagine. People said he had come for his health, which was very possibly true. And Pam had attributed his lack of interest in breadwinning to her sister's actions. Perhaps Marina's goings-on had done something to Frye's pride and ambition.

Perhaps Asey thrust the screw driver back in his pocket. Perhaps. Anyway, Frye was odd, and he wasn't the only odd thing in the mess, either. And it was high time Asey decided that he personally got down to work. Whatever painting, outwitting and tinkering around he did in the future, he would do as Asey Mayo. He'd dabbled long enough.

Squaring his shoulders, Asey started for the back porch. When he came through the strange circular hallway with Aaron Frye, he had not noticed anything but its shape in the dim light. But now as he stepped out of the study, he stopped short and stared at the clocks lining the walls and wondered how he had missed them before.

There were 12 angular sides to that hall, not counting the doors to the kitchen, the dining room, the study and the parlor, and every available inch was covered with clocks, or shelves with clocks on them. Asey had never seen so many clocks in such a limited space—and no one, he thought, ever saw so many queer clocks anywhere, outside of a bad dream. There were clocks like cats whose eyes moved, clocks like cats whose eyes didn't move. There were clocks like dogs whose tails moved. Clocks with ship pendulums that swooned groggily over painted waves. Clocks with moon faces, clocks with human faces. Cuckoo clocks—any number of them. And one whole wall was devoted to a collection of frying pan clocks, of all sizes.

Asey blinked. They were enough to make a man blink. They were enough to drive a man crazy.

"Huh," he murmured. "I wonder how many cartons of soap an' oatmeal was bought to get them things originally. It's certain sure that no one bought 'em for themselves alone—ow!"

The hour struck, and for the next five minutes there was pandemonium in the hallway. Asey gritted his teeth. No wonder things happened in Octagon House. It just wasn't sane.

He found the back porch deserted. The trooper with the tired voice had gone. There was no sign of Aaron Frye, or of the Carrs.

He walked around to the front of the house. To his surprise, not a single person lingered behind the barred wire barricade. A lone trooper, sitting on an overturned bucket, munched on a hot dog and sipped orangeade from a paper container.

"What happened?" Asey asked (Copyright, 1938, Phoebe Atwood Taylor)
