IMPROVEMENTS DISCUSSED BY CITY FATHERS

Several Important Matters Taken Up at Session

NEW CITY HALL ONE OF TOPICS

Budget, Tar River Program, Street Improvement, Finance Officer Talked

Several important subjects were discussed by the Greenville Board of Aldermen last night in a special fiscal year-end meeting provided under the charter.

Among the major topics considered were: A new municipal building. The Tar river project. Street improvement program. Highways entering the city. The 1938-39 budget.

The possibility of employing a finance officer and purchasing agent.

A movement has been started looking toward the possibility of erecting a new city hall with the aid of Federal funds. Board members expressed the opinion it would be better to purchase a new lot if the city hall project goes through. It was brought out that the government would pay for almost half of a new lot, the old site to be left in the hands of the city for sale if it is so desired with all of the funds going into the city treasury.

Mayor M. K. Blount advised the board that he had been assured by the Highway and Public Works Commission that a road would be constructed to the proposed port at Hardee's creek and this morning said final confirmation had been given the project.

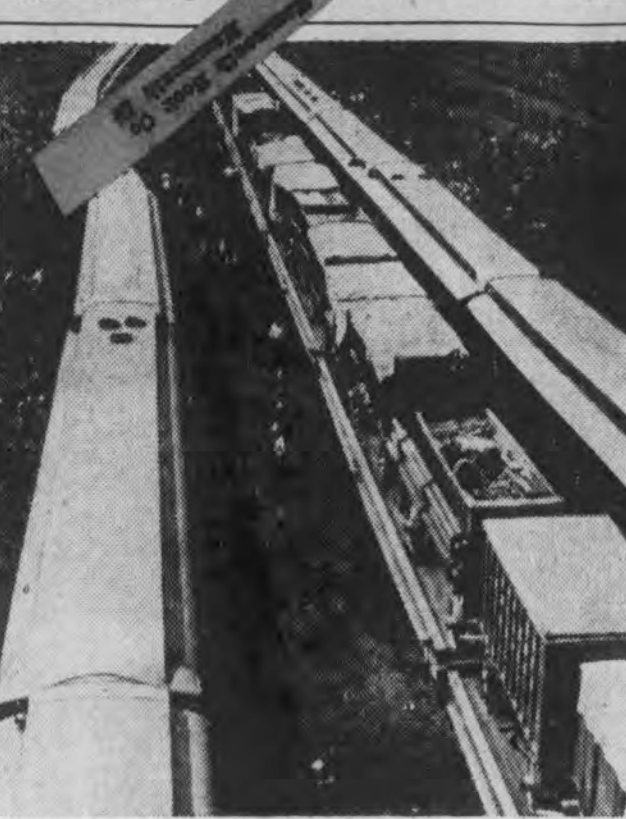

The mayor also said he had been assured that the commission would widen the Bethel highway to the Stokes road intersection, but added this project would be held up until after the tobacco market so as not to interfere with farmers hauling tobacco to Greenville.

The street improvement project, for which the PWA has made a grant of $46,000, was discussed. The city has authority to sell $50,000 in bonds for its share of the work but if the entire $103,000 project is carried out this amount will be short about $7,000 of the required sum.

The new budget was considered only briefly. The board discussed the budget and expenditures for the year just ended with a view to the new year's needs. It was revealed that the city lived within its income for the past year, although expenditures ran ahead of the budget.

Some time ago the board began considering the possibility of adopting the city manager form of government and a committee was named to investigate the suggestion. J. A. Watson, speaking for the committee, last night recommended that a finance officer and purchasing agent be employed. The recommendation, however, met some opposition and the matter was left open until the next meeting, which was postponed from the first Thursday night in July to the second Thursday night. It was the contention of those in favor of employing a man that a person of recognized ability in city government could save many times his salary. The suggestion was opposed on the ground that capable men at the heads of the various departments...

June Building Permits Believed High Record

FIND BODY OF MISSING SCION

Remains Of Medill McCormick Found on Lonely Cliff

Albuquerque, N. M., July 1.—(AP)—Indians climbed jagged knife-life Sandia peak today to return the body of Medill McCormick, 21-year-old scion of a politico-publishing family, to the heart-broken mother who learned of his fate just after she had renewed hope he was alive.

The Indians who had searched the steep Sandia peak eight days for McCormick, came upon his body yesterday on a lonely cliff deep in the heart of the mountain.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, Medill's mother, went to bed in her ranch home immediately upon receiving the news. She was in a state of nervous collapse.

Until two days ago she kept an almost sleepless vigil at a base camp for the searchers at the foot of Sandia peak, anxiously awaiting word of her son's fate and conferring frequently with mountain climbers on possible clues.

Only yesterday, when most of the searchers had quit the Sandia search after intensive surveys had failed to disclose any trace of McCormick or his body, hope that he had been renewed.

"The point of search is for Johnny alive," said Mrs. C. Barnes, Jr., his sister, speaking for the family.

Just a few hours later Frank Pooler, U. S. regional forester, announced the discovery.

Only Two Defendants In City Court Today

Only two cases were tried at the regular Friday morning session of City Recorder's court.

F. A. Bendall, charged with crashing a red light, was fined $10 and taxed with the court costs, judgment to be suspended upon condition the defendant not violate any traffic rules for one year.

A nolle proes was taken in the case charging Sylvester Tyson, Negro, was careless and reckless driving.

Work Started During Month Estimated Cost $105,494

The total figure of more than 1105,000 compares with 21 permits issued during May for work estimated to cost $63,999.

State Ends Record Year In Spending, Collecting

Raleigh, July 1.—North Carolina yesterday ended its biggest year, financially speaking. During the twelve months period of the fiscal year in which the books just closed the state collected more money than ever before and spent more than in any previous year in history.

Exact figures will not be known prior to the middle of July, but Governor Clyde R. Hoey and State Treasurer Charles M. Johnson today estimated that the surplus of "credit balance" in the general fund will approximate $5,000,000, the second largest in history.

This does not include the credit balance of about $7,000,000 which was on hand in the highway fund, but against which there are future commitments. The state highway department constantly maintains a revolving fund in order to balance of about $3,000,000 for use to obviate the necessity for short term borrowing.

Eastern Carolina Tobacco Markets To Open Aug. 25

Date One Day Earlier Than Opening Last Year; J. S. Ficklen Named President of U. S. Tobacco Association

White Sulphur Springs, West Va., July 1.—(AP)—The Tobacco Association of the United States today announced the tobacco market dates for next fall would start with the Georgia markets on July 28.

The South Carolina markets will open August 4, the Eastern North Carolina markets August 25; the Middle Belt markets September 15; Old Belt Markets September 27; and the Dark Fired Virginia markets November 28. The Eastern North Carolina markets opened last year on August 26.

No recommendations were made as to the closing and reopening of the Bright and Dark Fired Virginia markets for the Christmas holidays, James S. Ficklen of Greenville, N. C., was elected president of the association, succeeding E. J. O'Brien, Jr., of Louisville, Ky.

Three vice-presidents were named as follows: J. W. Dunnington, Jr., of Farmville, Va.; J. W. Goodson of Winston-Salem, N. C.; and A. B. Carrington of Danville, Va.

President O'Brien, in his annual address, termed the best the tobacco men have heard in 16 years, said of the new wages and hours bill:

"While certain industries in the North and East may be able to support the provisions of this bill, it will have a most disastrous, if not fatal, effect on certain branches of the leaf tobacco industry. The agreed rates of wages and hours of employment will abnormally increase the cost of stemming and redrying of stripes 100 per cent the first year."

SEVEN KILLED IN ROCK SLIDE

Birmingham, Ala., July 1.—Seven men were killed and several others injured today in a rock fall 3,000 feet underground in the Traco coal mine of the Alabama By-Products company.

Dr. C. E. Elgin, company physician, called company officers here to announce the seven deaths and to ask for additional doctors and rescue workers.

Two crews attempted to cut through a rock ledge which separates a main working of the mine from the section in which the fall occurred.

Dr. Elgin said two injured men had been brought out but that they were not in the section cut off by the rock fall.

Praco is 20 miles northwest of Birmingham in an isolated section.

Rescue crews from Birmingham and Jasper were sent to Praco. W. Hillhouse, state mine inspector, also left for the mine to direct rescue operations.

Gets Plenty Of Help In Worming Tobacco

D. N. Nobis of near Stokes says he is having little trouble in securing aid in efforts to keep worms out of his tobacco.

He reported that the first of the week he and his son, Marion, were in the field and noticed several crows in the tobacco. Upon coming closer to the crows he said he found they were catching worms, thereby saving him the trouble.

He also said that two years ago he had a little dog that would go to the field with the children and help in worming the tobacco.

The announcement said the Franco-Turkish treaty would be signed at Ankara and the military accord at Alexandretta, both within 48 hours.

PAYNE AND TURNER PAY PENALTY

North Carolina's Number One and Number Two desperadoes were executed in State's prison this morning for the slaying of George Penn, State highway patrolman, last August. William (Bill) Payne, left, was a native of Forsyth county. John Washington (Wash) Turner, right, was a native of McDowell county.

'We Didn't Mean To Kill' Final Turner Statement

Desperado Gives Out Statement Before Going to Death

Raleigh, July 1.—(AP)—Chaplain E. C. Cooper of State's prison, gave out a statement today in which Wash Turner outlined how he and Bill Payne killed George Penn, highway patrolman, last August.

Cooper's statement quoting Turner said:

"We never had the attitude they claimed we had. We did not want to kill anybody. We did not plan by any means to kill Officer Penn. We only wanted to get away."

"When I drove up to the barn, I really hoped to be able to drive around it and come back out when the officer had followed around. If we had really wanted to kill, we had an ideal place as we came around the curve in the woods and got out of sight of the officer. We could have pulled into the woods and blown him in two."

"What we were trying to do with the guns was to shoot down the radiator so that the car would run hot and we could get away."

He was born in Pitt county and spent his entire life in the Belvoir community. He was a member of Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church.

JAP BOMBERS RAID SWATOW

Nine Large Planes Cause Terrific Destruction

Hongkong, July 1.—(AP)—Nine big Japanese bombers caused terrific destruction today in a raid on Swatow, south China port northeast of here.

The raiders arriving at 5 p. m., circled over the city for an hour and a half, dropping more than 100 bombs.

Casualties ran high and hospitals were overflowing with wounded, but trustworthy estimates of the death toll were not immediately available. Many women and children were believed killed.

The raid was believed by Chinese to be the prelude to large-scale Japanese operations in South China.

Japanese air raids on Swatow, 200 miles east of Canton, began June 22. At the same time Japanese marines occupied the island of Nanshan, 20 miles off Swatow. The United States gunboat Asheville has been standing by Swatow for protection of Americans, of whom 69 were reported in the Swatow consular district, 25 in Swatow city.

The Greenville Board of Aldermen, in session last night, passed an ordinance making it illegal to construct a building less than 14 feet from the curb on either side of Cotanche street.

The action was taken with the view that in the near future the street will be widened.

PAYNE, TURNER EXECUTED FOR SLAYING PENN

Criminal Career Of Desperadoes Ends at N. C. Prison

MOTHER CLAIMS BODY OF PAYNE

Brother at Penitentiary to Take Body of Turner Home For Funeral Services

Raleigh, July 1.—(AP)—John Washington (Wash) Turner, 35, and William (Bill) Payne, 41, North Carolina's most notorious criminals in recent years, paid with their lives at State's prison today for the killing in Buncombe county August 22, 1937, of George Penn, 22-year-old highway patrolman.

Fellow officers of the dead patrolman, including Major Arthur Fulk, Captains L. R. Fishes and Charles Farmer and Lieut. W. B. Lynch of Asheville, and newspapermen were among the witnesses. Some 1,500 persons had asked to see the men die, but only about 35 were admitted in all.

Earlier, Wiley Brice, 35-year-old Negro, was executed for a murder committed in Alamance county.

Turner, a native of McDowell county, entered the gas chamber at 10:30:10 and the gas switch was thrown at 10:32:25, after Chaplain E. C. Cooper had prayed. It was 16 minutes and 15 seconds before Dr. Feida Highower said Turner was Turner inhaled deeply for the gas fumes after he heard the switch click to start the generating machinery, as he had kept his eyes shut after the prayer. His moans for about 45 seconds could be heard in the witness chamber, through two heavy walls of glass.

Elvis Turner, a brother, claimed the body and the Rev. C. W. Greene, who will conduct the funeral, said services would be held tomorrow.

Payne, a native of Forsyth county, entered the gas chamber at 11:10:35. He shook hands with the chaplain, who prayed with him, and then with all the prison officials. He closed his eyes and his lips moved as if he was praying.

When the gas switch clicked, at 11:12:35, Payne leaned over as if he knew just where the gas fumes usually come up first, and breathed deeply. He was dead 15 minutes and 15 seconds later.

His mother, Mrs. Emma Payne of High Point, claimed his body.

Brice was executed first so the removable electric chair could be taken out before the gas execution. Brice entered the chamber at 10:03, was given two shocks lasting a total of four minutes and 15 seconds, and was pronounced dead at 10:15:35.

The Negro said he was born at Chester, S. C. He was doomed for the slaying of Shelby Lee in an attempted robbery in Alamance county in 1926. He fled, worked in West Virginia and other states, and was arrested at Greensboro last year.

Under state law, the penalty for capital crimes committed before July 1, 1935, is electrocution, with gas being used for executions involving crimes committed since then.

Brice left a long statement in which he said "The devil was leading me to hell and destruction, but I can say that God has saved my soul from the gates of hell. I shall know my Redeemer when I reach the other side and His smile will be the first to welcome me."

Mrs. Neva A. Allen Claimed By Death

Mrs. Neva Ann Allen, 49, died last night at 8:40 o'clock in Pitt General Hospital, where she had been receiving treatment for the past four months. Her condition had been critical for the past several weeks.

Funeral services were conducted this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the late home at Ballard's Cross Roads, by Rev. W. A. Ryan, pastor of Eighth Street Christian Church. Interment was made in the Allen cemetery.

Mrs. Allen was born near Greenville and spent her entire life here. She was a daughter of the late Noah and Martha Tucker Forbes, widow of the late Tom Allen. She was a member of Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church.

Mrs. Allen is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Thurman Crawford of Ballard's, with whom she made her home; one brother, C. Heber Forbes; five sisters, Mrs. Harvey Allen, Mrs. Clara Crawford, Mrs. Albert Allen, Mrs. J. L. Harris and Mrs. Allen Moore.

The following nephews will serve as active pallbearers: Carl Crawford, Hubert Crawford, Lyman Forbes, Forbes Allen, Howard Allen and Johnnie Harris.

Tobacco Grading Service Expected To Be Expanded

Washington, July 1.—(AP)—Government inspection of tobacco, mandatory on markets where two-thirds of the growers request it in referendum, enters its third year this season with prospects for expansion.

Charles E. Gage, tobacco division chief of the Agricultural Economics Bureau said it was too early to determine the number of referenda to be called this year, but a number probably would be held in Burley growing areas.

Gage said it was doubtful that any would be held on the flue-cured markets of the Carolinas, or that service could be started this year on three South Carolina markets where injunctions dissolved until the appeal period in the Oxford case expired, and by that time it would be too late to start the service on the three South Carolina markets involved—Lake City, Darlington and Pamplico—because of their early opening.

Broughton-Briley

On Thursday afternoon at five o'clock, the Eighth Street Christian Church was the scene of a lovely wedding, when Miss Ella Louise Briley was married to Mr. Charles Edward Broughton, Jr., of Dunn. For the wedding the church decorations carried out the conventional green and white color scheme. Simplicity was the keynote, effectively emphasized in the placing of fernery, standard baskets of lilies, dahlias and gladioli, and tiers of burning tapers.

While the many guests were assembling, Mrs. Paul Davenport rendered a beautiful program of spiritual music. Just before the entrance of the bride party, Miss Margaret Tyson of Asheboro, sweetly sang "All For You" and "Oh Promise Me." Both Mrs. Davenport and Miss Tyson wore dresses of dusty rose with corresponding hats and shoulderettes of pink roses. As the bride party approached, Mendelssohn's Wedding March from "Midsummer Night's Dream" was played and the Wedding March from the opera "Lohengrin" was played as a recessional.

The four ushers were first to enter the church. They entered singly down the left aisle and stood two on either side of the pulpit. They were Messrs. Ray Newell, Francis Broughton, Earl Jones and C. B. Aycock, Jr., all of Dunn. They wore white trousers and dark coats and ties, and their boutonnières were gardenias.

Next came Mrs. J. Harvey Briley, mother of the bride, as Dame of Honor. She was comely attired in a costume of black and white with white accessories, and carried an arm bouquet of pink rosebuds. She was followed by the Maid of Honor, Miss Margaret Thigpen, who wore a becoming dress of yellow crepe with British tan accessories. Her arm bouquet was made of garden flowers.

Preceding the bride was the dainty little flower girl, little Miss Julia La Ware Satterthwaite, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Satterthwaite of Farmville. She wore a becoming fluffy pink dress and carried a basket of garden flowers. The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage. Her slender blonde beauty was enhanced by a gown of pink crepe made sport model and fashioned with a fingertip coat with a touch of blue. With this she wore a becoming blue hat, blue shoes and gloves. Her bridal bouquet was of white roses and wisteria lilies. The groom entered with Mr. John Snipes of Dunn, as best man, and met the bride at the altar. While "I Love You Truly" was softly played on the organ, Rev. W. A. Ryan, the bride's pastor, spoke the impressive words that made them man and wife, using the ever beautiful ring service. The entire bridal party left the church by the right aisle.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Harvey Briley. She is a graduate of the city high school and East Carolina Teachers College. For the past three years she has been a member of the faculty of the Erwin school. She is popular among a wide circle of friends and has been entertained a number of times since her engagement has been announced. Her maternal grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Ward of this county.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Broughton, Sr., of Dunn. He was born and reared in Dunn, where he possesses a host of friends. He holds a responsible position with the Fritchett Drug Co. Mrs. Charles E. Broughton, mother of the groom, wore a navy georgette crepe dress with shoulderette of pink roses.

The bride and groom left immediately after the ceremony for a short wedding trip, after which they will be at home in Dunn.

Among the out-of-town guests here for the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Broughton, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Aycock, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Aldridge, Jr., Messrs. John Snipes, Earl Jones, Ray Newell, Francis Broughton, Carl Fritchett, Misses Virginia Anne and Sarah Hope Fritchett, Miss Beattie Massengill, Rev. F. W. Weigman, Mrs. M. A. Thompson, Nathan Thompson, Jr., Miss Anna Mae Broughton, Mr. Tam Broughton, Jack Broughton, Paul Broughton, Mrs. L. R. Norris, Mrs. Florence Holliday, Mrs. Sam Broughton and Mrs. Sidney Broughton, all of Dunn; Miss Ethel Graham of Godwin; Miss Margaret Tyson of Asheboro; Mrs. M. L. McLamb, Lake City, S. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Satterthwaite and children of Farmville; Mrs. R. L. Mitchell of Yanceyville; Mrs. L. Z. Fleming of Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Ada Ward of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Satterthwaite of Pactolus; Milton Moyer of Tarboro; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Broughton and sons of Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Milton Dall, Mrs. John Broughton, Misses Margaret and Julia Broughton of Hertford; and Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Harrell of Edenton.

Miss Antoinette Jones, Mr. Douglas Jones of New Bern; Mrs. Alice Minefee Rabb, Mrs. Cathy, Miss Della Myrtle Gaddy, Miss Finch, Miss Ten Cannon, Erwin, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Aycock, Jr., of Dunn; Mrs. W. T. Swindell, Mr. Harper of Washington, N. C.; Miss Bertha Thomas, Mr. W. J. Thomas, Mrs. W. O. Briley of Kinston; Mrs. W. D. Woodall of Erwin.

Luncheon For Bridal Party

Mr. and Mrs. J. Harvey Briley entertained most hospitably Thursday at noon, at their country home, for the Broughton-Briley wedding party. The home was beautifully decorated with colorful zinnias, dahlias, gladioli and daisies. As the guests arrived, they were cordially greeted by the host, hostess, bride and groom-elect.

Individual tables were placed throughout the home for luncheon, and the wedding party was seated at the central table bearing a wedding cake surmounted by a miniature bride and groom. A sumptuous luncheon was served in true Southern style. Those serving were: Misses Mary Shaw Robeson, Elizabeth Overton, Mae Hearne, Mesdames H. S. Ragdale, Harvey Tripp, L. B. Fleming, and W. L. Whedbee.

The bride and groom-elect remembered each of their attendant, will suitable gifts.

The guests numbered about sixty-five and included members of the bridal party, relatives of the families, out-of-town guests, and a few intimate friends.

Unsalt Yourself After Bathing In The Surf

By BETTY CLARKE

AP Feature Service Writer
Salt-water bathing brings a special problem to the summer beauty front.

Salt water, if left in the hair, can make soft, silky hair stiff and matted. And swimming in salt water followed by sun bathing, can cause an extremely dry skin condition unless you take precautions.

Hence these three memos to the salt-water bather.

1—Wear a tight-fitting bathing cap when you go swimming to keep out as much salt water as possible from getting into your hair. But if your hair gets salt water-soaked be sure to wash it thoroughly.

2—To avoid that sticky after-effect of a salt water swim, take a good bath, using a mild soap and soaking in water that is some where between 92 and 98 degrees Fahrenheit. Hint: Many hospitals and doctors make sunburned patients soak in baths of strong, hot tea. Tea contains tannic acid, which is beneficial to burns.

3—Be careful what lotions you use. Sunburned skin is extremely susceptible to infection. If you're badly burned, consult a doctor at once. Protect yourself by using a good sunproof lotion—before you go out.

The rapier was a favorite dueling weapon for years, and was worn by every gentleman in the 16th and 17th centuries.

Ankrom had no choice. It was his life or theirs. One brown fist flashed beneath his coat and came out spitting flame in a steady stream.

LOVE ON THE RANGE

BY NELSON C. NYE

Chapter One
Never Trouble Trouble

WHERE the trail crossed a high plateau the tall, lean rider on the gaunt buckskin halted his dusty animal and sat loosely in the saddle looking back. He scanned the burning way with eyes narrowed beneath his down-pulled hat, but no moving speck disturbed the heat haze that hung like a pall over the earth.

This was not the first time that the bronzed rider had halted for a cautious backward glance. Many times during the past few days he had done so. Once or twice he had seen solitary horsemen, but they had been traveling different courses.

As he lounged now, with one knee crooked about the horn his left hand went to his shirt pocket and extracted cigarette papers and a sack of tobacco. The same left hand rolled a smoke and his tongue licked the tiny cylinder while his eyes scanned the trail.

With a shrug he lit the cigarette, broke the match in two and let it drop. Some of the cold intentness left his glance as he faced front once more and kneed the buckskin into movement.

Abraham Lincoln Ankrom he had been named by fond parents in the hope that one day he might be great. But such distinction as had thus far come his way could not have been farther from their dreams. Up and down the twisting length of this South western border country he had achieved fiery notoriety as "Blur" Ankrom—king of the corsemakers.

He had found no pride in the distinction, nor had he sought it, it had come upon him octopus like against his will. Men had deliberately brought him quarrels that they might lay claim to the eminence of having "downed" Blur Ankrom. But their hands had been a little slow.

The lines of his face deepened as he thought of those drifting leather-slappers whose greedy lust for the reputation he did not want had taken them to hell on shutters. Gradually the realization was being forced upon him that nowhere could he hide from their breed or from the turmoil that, like some ghostly Nemesis, dogged his horse's steps.

He had grown weary of the attempts to find some haven where he might let down his vigilance. Such a place it seemed for him, did not exist. Peso Pinto lay ahead and there, he told himself, he would stop tonight and give himself the rare treat of a night in bed beneath a roof.

To show himself thus openly in a town, even a place the modest size of Peso Pinto, would be dangerous. But danger, loneliness and himself had been companions during these last two years. And he was tired of his efforts to avoid trouble.

He crossed the sandy, stifling stretch of desert at a slow lope, passed the whitewashed stone marker and urged his buckskin across that invisible line that separated himself from the State of Texas.

The afternoon slouched along and the plop-plop-plop of the buckskin's hoofs made the only sound in the vast silence. To his right, miles away across the haze of heat, a broad mountain range rose from the baking earth, one great peak towering high above its companions. Ankrom knew this peak and from it checked his course.

Presently he could discern far off the sand-scoured adobes of Peso Pinto where they lay squat and solid against the yellow and fore which he stood. And yet this seemed unlikely for the place was dark and shuttered. He stooped down beside his horse as though inspecting the cinch.

Seconds passed and he finally straightened. He cursed himself for a fool; told himself this thing was none of his business. His proper course was to ride along. "Never trouble trouble till trouble troubles you," he quoted softly and was reaching for the horn with one foot lifting toward the stirrup when the cry came again.

Gleaming Metal

SLOWLY Ankrom set his foot down, the out-thrust arm returned to his side. He turned and stared at the wooden building. There was no movement among the shadows about its door.

"Extremely odd," he muttered and eyed the house again. He felt sure now that the cries he'd heard had come from there. The last one had been a sort of gasp. Slowly, not quite knowing just what he was going to do, Ankrom started forward.

He was almost to the door when a scream cut the quiet. Thin and high it was and stopped abruptly as though a hand had roughly clamped across the mouth.

Ankrom lurched his body sideways. What warned him he did not know, yet even as he moved a gleaming thing of metal whizzed past three inches from his shoulder, embedded itself in the post beside his horse.

Toward that door Ankrom sprang quickly. The muscles bulged like ropes along Ankrom's jaw as his shoulder struck the door and smashed it. His momentum flung him across the threshold reeling into a room dimly lit by a lamp that showed him three men crouched before a wild-eyed girl who was lashed to a chair. By their clothes and evil faces he knew those men for city thugs. A glowing branding iron was gripped in the outstretched hand of the nearest.

As Ankrom caught his balance that man let drive with the red-hot iron straight at his head. Ankrom ducked. When he came up the right hands of the thugs were behind them in his pockets and coming out weighted.

Ankrom had no choice. It was his life or theirs. One brown fist flashed beneath his coat and came out spitting flame in a steady stream. Deafening reverberations rocked the room and snuffed the lamp plunging the place in blackness through which cut lance-like jets of fire.

Something struck Ankrom's right shoulder heavily, smashed him backward, and whirled him half around. From the tail of his eye he saw a black shape slide out through the open doorway. For long moments, tensely alert, Ankrom crouched in the gloom with leveled gun. Nothing moved. Finally he struck a match.

One of those thugs lay slumped against a wall. Another was face down on the dusty floor with one arm outflung, the other doubled beneath him; his feet sprawled wide apart. The third had vanished.

The girl's eyes were upon him intently. There was some strange, unreadable emotion stirring in her depths. A dirty handkerchief had been bound across her mouth; no doubt placed there after she had screamed. He moved toward her where she sat lashed to the chair and her eyes remained steadily on his face. There was a question in them.

Sports For Women

Systematic physical training for girls and women has been developed more thoroughly in Europe than in the United States, though in our own country the unsupervised participation in games and sports for young women is probably more widespread.

So we find many more data on the effects of competitive athletics on women in European scientific literature. We also find the widespread conviction that competitive athletics for women should be banned or restricted, for such activities appear to have harmful effects on the female nervous system and skeleton.

Excessive muscular development brings about a thickening of the bone structure which in young women interferes with the development of the pelvis.

Women under 21, the European authorities maintain, are not fitted for strenuous athletic effort. They list the following sports as most suitable for women:

Walking, climbing, high jumping, discus throwing and flat races from 60 to 80 meters without any attempt at record breaking.

Swimming is ideal, for women appear to be particularly suited to it owing to their abundant adipose tissue. Nevertheless, swimming competitions are not indicated because a woman's body does not conform to the constitutional type of the swimming champion—broad shoulders, long arms, deep chest and narrow hips.

Rowing, which develops the abdominal and back muscles, is a useful sport for women. Training should not begin before the age of 18, however, and excessive effort should be avoided.

Golf, tennis, hockey and basketball are all suitable sports, but fencing, boxing and wrestling are not.

Bicycle riding for long distances and at high speeds is not on the advised list.

All violent exercise is inadvisable owing to the risk of injury to the abdominal wall which is relatively weak in women.

In this list, consideration was centered on competitive athletics, and the prohibitions against these must not be applied against all athletic activities. Women, as well as men, can gain much more from exercises which are taken within the reasonable limits of the individual's capacities.

SHORT SHOTS
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, July 1—Tomorrow's primary runoffs are few and far between, but those which will be contested involve some rather interesting angles—particularly the Congressional sweepstakes in the Sixth District and the Solicitor's race in the Sixth Judicial.

The Congressional battle finds two survivors of an eight-man field which indulged in a devil-take-the-hind-most sort of affairs in the first primary. These survivors are Judge Lewis Teague of High Point and State Representative Oscar Barker of Durham.

Teague was high in the first voting and would normally be favored heavily to come through in the second, but the election fraud issue raised against the High Point polling machinery and officials has done him no good at all. In fact, united Greensboro factions against him and has given Barker supporters plenty of ammunition to fire in the other counties of the district—Alamance and Orange.

A last minute, and somewhat unanticipated development was the vocal advocacy of Barker by Sandy Graham, just about the first overt political move the former Lieutenant Governor has made his defeat in the gubernatorial primary of 1936.

Sandy's backing will help Barker immensely, make no mistake about that, but it is still quite questionable whether or not Teague can be beaten by the Durham man.

The High Point, all signs indicate, has a close knit organization and has some money to spend. And what it takes to win elections, particularly runoff primaries where there isn't any real enthusiasm on the part of the voters, are organization and money, and this column means no intimation that the money is to be spent for questionable purposes.

In the Solicitor's race between Rivers Johnson, of Warsaw, and Abner Barker, of Roseboro, reports are that Barker has the edge in organization and in available legal talent.

Too, there are reports from well informed circles that Henry Stevens, Johnson's fellow townsman who was nominated for Judge of the Sixth, wasn't particularly well pleased with the former Speaker of the House too energetic in urging a heavy race, with the result that he will be state House entered the solicitor's vote in Duplin.

Barker, too, is using the argument that Duplin now has the judgeship and shouldn't get the solicitor's plum also—and using it with good effect according to information from the district.

Limb-climbing being one of this correspondent's favorite sports, here goes for a little ground and lofty predicting.

Teague to beat Barker for Congress in the Sixth.

Burgin to beat Deane for Congress in the Eighth.

Barker to beat Johnson for solicitor in the Sixth.

Scott to beat Irie for solicitor in the Twenty-first.

The Wake county constable's race?—Pass.

Getting back to Sandy Graham, there has been more than a little speculation here about why he jumped into the Teague-Barker fight at all. Nobody seems to have any explanation other than the fact that Barker was for Sandy in 1936 and the Orange man is returning the favor.

Loyalty to his friends has always been one of the outstanding Graham characteristics, and that's probably the explanation of his action in coming to the Barker aid.

At a distance, however, it looks like a mighty fine race not to get mixed up in—especially if one has political ambitions for the future.

OCTAGON HOUSE
BY PHEBE ATWOOD TAYLOR

Chapter 49
"Is It All Real?"

A FLOCK of shots rang out. Hanson bumped into Asey at the doorway.

"We had to shoot, Asey!" he said breathlessly. "We had to! She went for the Carrs—she'd got it out of the well, and into the barrow, and she was just making for your roadster when the Carrs came back. And without a second's warning, she pulled that gun and shot at Tim—we had to shoot her!"

"How's Tim?"

"She just winged him, but well, we got her," Hanson said. Asey pushed past Hanson outdoors.

Timothy, gripping his shoulder, was sitting on the running board of the little coupe. Beyond, in the grass, lay Peg Boone.

"Is it all real?" Tim asked blankly. "Is it all real? Is it—was it Peg?"

Asey nodded. "We had to let her know where it was to get her. We just meant for her to go—to hang herself, as you might say, we—"

"Well, you certainly did," Mrs. Carr, hugging Emma to her bosom, peered out of the coupe. "You certainly did. Asey, what's in that barrow, that she was wheeling? Whatever made her go for Tim like that? Why, she—she went for him! Like—like Emma went for the bird! Whatever did she have in that barrow?"

"You can come out now, Gran," Tim said. "I wish you would, my arm needs fixing—what is that stuff, Asey?"

"That stuff in the barrow," Asey said, "that is ambergis."

Half an hour later, Cummings spread a final piece of adhesive on Timothy's arm, and leaned down to put the roll back in his bag.

"That," he said, "that'll hold you, I guess. Now just you keep quiet, and—"

"Keep quiet nothing," Tim said. "Asey, explanations are tedious, but you'd best begin. How did you know it was her? How did you know it was a woman?"

"I went back to the beginning," Asey said, "and it come over me that first off, it was sort of a feminine touch to pin that note back on the door for Pam, after takin' the knife. An' it was a feminine temper. An' she smoked cigrettes—an' she liked your Turkish best. An' she's an athletic sort. I thought so when she vaulted the barbed wire barricade the other day."

"How?" Mrs. Carr said. "Why? I don't—somehow, I can't get this through my head."

"She was up in Roddy's plane," Asey said. "She seen that lump after Marina did. Brigham remembered her. She was over there that day—only no one remembered till we started askin'."

"Unobtrusive," Tim said, "but there. Everywhere. Well, I got that much, didn't I, Pam? I said she was all over the place. So she saw the ambergis from the plane."

"But Marina had taken the beach wagon, when she got to land," Asey said. "Peg didn't have any way of gettin' out there. From what we have been able to discover, she took her car out around the other side of the point, as far as she could, and then she walked. But the stuff was gone. I s'pose she seen the tire tracks, an' done her own figurin' as to what Marina wanted Roddy's beach wagon for. She got her car an' come back here, an' took Pam's knife—"

Marina's Pet Spot

"Why didn't she take the ambergis right away, after Sister and I came back?" Pam demanded.

"You was here, Nettie was here—she begun to do some figurin'—we know she was at that party where Roddy and Marina were."

"What part did Roddy play, exactly?" Tim asked.

"First off, Marina got him to say he'd play holdup, and take the ambergis from her and Pam. He came over here to do that. An' he found Marina dead, an' beat it!"

"Why didn't he take the ambergis?" Mrs. Carr demanded.

"He didn't, because he didn't know how valuable it was," Asey said. "Not till later, when he looked into the matter through encyclopedia an' his grandfather's book on whalin'. That had a nice lot about ambergis. So Roddy come over, ingratiate himself by offerin' rewards, an' he must see Aaron take it to the barn. Later, he took it out an' dumped it in the well."

"Well," Tim said. "Stop at the well—I never heard of an octagonal well! How would Roddy know?"

"It was one of Marina's pet spots," Asey said. "Pam says she often showed it to people. That's how he knew about it. He dumped it in before the barn burned. That same night, Peg went for Jack's drawin's while we was all huntin' the troopers. The mural was done from her drawin's you know. Marina swiped 'em—"

"What?" Tim said. "You mean, she swiped my old drawings?"

"That's Lorne know? He really didn't," Asey said.

PLAN TREK TO FORT RALEIGH
Thousand or More Adults Students to Make Trip

One thousand and more WPA adult education students from 26 eastern counties will journey to Fort Raleigh, Roanoke Island, Friday, July 8, for their annual WPA Community School Day. From other counties all over the state, as far west as Swain, will come other adult education delegations to swell the pilgrimage.

There they will celebrate, as in commencement, their advance from "signature X" or to functional literacy. There WPA leaders will greet the students in happiness over having had a part in their forward march. There State of North Carolina dignitaries will meet them and too rejoice over human resources developed, added riches, for the commonwealth.

Fitting it is that the trek should be to the WPA-restored Fort Raleigh, that a part of the program is to be the viewing of Paul Green's pageant-drama "The Lost Colony" in which the first pilgrims to this land has been made to live again; as into these modern pilgrims has been made to live the spirit of happiness of learning. Pioneers were those colonists seeking better living conditions. Pioneers are these WPA and state adult education leaders—seeking a more abundant life for not only those ten hundred but for the entire 28,653 persons enrolled in classes over the state.

At four-thirty a fish fry will be given the students. Six-thirty calls for an assemblage in the amphitheatre of the Fort where education in North Carolina will be reviewed from the time of the immortal Governor Charles B. Aycock to and including the education-minded Governor Clyde R. Hoey, who wears so effectively the education toga of Aycock. Governor Hoey will make the principal address of the exercises after having been introduced by State WPA Administrator Geo. W. Coan, Jr. Presiding will be Mrs. Elizabeth C. Morris, state director WPA education program. Students and guests will head Dr. L. A. Alderman, federal director WPA education program; Hon. Clyde R. Erwin, state superintendent of Public Instruction; and Mrs. May Campbell, state director WPA women's and professional projects.

At 8:15 there will be a showing of "The Lost Colony."

TO THE EDITOR:

It appeared that the Commissioners were trying to be considerate of the sheriff when they asked for a simple resignation which would have saved the expense on both the county and Mr. Whitehurst.

If the sheriff's system was faulty, there needed to be a change. Had our commissioners failed in this respect it appears they would have been placing the interests of an individual above the interests of our county, thereby betraying our trust and failing to perform their solemn duty.

The purpose of this article is not to condemn, or uphold either sheriff or commissioners, but that we may realize that no social or economic reform can come through politics.

Why have not more of our responsible citizenship expressed themselves in regard to this and other questions? One answer is they are afraid of politics, afraid they will lose some support. The politicians must speak the language of the voters. The morals of the ballot box can never be raised until that of the individuals themselves are raised.

I have failed to see any reference to former Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst's self-explanatory statement regarding recent developments affecting him.

I do not attempt to state the position of our commissioners, however, in fairness to all, I would like to present the observations of an outsider.

In the first place I fear we cannot accurately determine friendship by the ballot box. With our ballot we are most fickle—today for, tomorrow against. My opinion is those who voted against our sheriff will today do him a favor just as ready as those who voted for him.

Whatever might have been Mr. Whitehurst's mistakes in the past, we gladly welcome him as a private citizen and trust that we may work together for a greater and better county.

Why does Mr. Whitehurst feel that he was more persecuted than prosecuted? So far as revealed, no one held anything personally against him.

The commissioners doubtless realized that in performing their duty as they saw it, they must make a personal sacrifice which all citizens should appreciate.

The morals of the individuals can never be raised until we turn to the church which alone can solve our social and economic problems.

MARK H. SMITH.

That Littlest Cat

"THERE'S always clews," Asey said, "if you can find 'em to fit in Roddy's car was a yellow glass bead. Didn't mean anything to me till I got to thinkin' about the clocks here, an' that littlest cat, with the little beady eyes. You see, Peggy Boone didn't like clocks—she's the first woman I've seen for a long time that ain't got a white strip around her wrist, from wearin' a watch. She didn't like the tickin' of clocks and watches. She didn't have one. But when she set out to kill Roddy, she knew she needed a time check. So she took that smallest cat along—that was durin' the time that she was presumablin' gettin' her car from the garage. She got it. She timed it beautifully. Took Hanson some time to follow her moves, this mornin'. But she left the little glass bead from the clock in the roadster when she started it."

"But the mural—why was that ruined?"

Asey smiled. "Everyone was sore," he said, "at the way they was pictured in that thing. What they was made to look like. When I looked at the pictures of it a while ago, I thought I'd been barkin' up the wrong tree. Peg Boone was an Indian girl. Lorne hadn't distorted her any."

"She was skinning some sort of animal," Pam said.

"Yup, An' she was skinnin' it with a knife," Asey said, "held in her left hand. See what I mean? There you are, anyway. That's how things happened. Marina took Jack from her, Marina swiped her drawings, Marina got the ambergis first."

"Her left hand!" Pam said.

"Why, I never thought of that—but why didn't we think of her?"

"Why should we at first?" Asey said. "Why was so solicitous about you—she not? You pointed to the ambergis! When she come back to get that, after killin' Marina an' all, you'd taken it, you see. But the minute she found you didn't know, she stopped being solicitous. Hanson, I see O'Malley an' Shorty gettin' out of that car, an' Jennings is here—I'm goin' down to avert some murders!"

The two troopers and Jennings were carrying on what seemed to be a first-class rough and tumble when he got out on the lawn.

"Come on!" Asey said. "Snap out of it!"

"Okay," Shorty said. "I suppose it ain't dignified—say it's the first time we seen him since Company B disbanded."

Asey went back to the house and started up the stairs just as the clocks struck eleven. The noise died away, and he heard voices drifting down from Aaron's room.

"Asey," Pam said, "is marvelous!"

"All his work," Hanson said. "All of it!"

"Naturally," Cummings told them. "Naturally, Asey is a—"

Asey hesitated.

Toots, the parrot, was staring at him from his cage.

"Ah," Toots said, speaking for the first and only time in his life "ah, brains! Brains, brains, brains, brains!"

"Ain't it," Asey said, "the truth?"

TOBACCO GRADING SERVICE TO BE EXPANDED

Gage said the bureau would concentrate this year on training additional graders in anticipation of future expansion of the service on the fine-cured market.

In view of this situation, expansion will be concentrated on other tobacco growing areas this year.

The service already is operating on the seven fine-cured markets of Kentucky and Tennessee, the five fine-cured markets of Virginia and five Burley markets.

Studies are now being made, Gage said, to determine the possibility of additional referenda on Burley markets.

The service consists of free but mandatory inspection of tobacco as delivered by growers before auctions. Daily and weekly price reports supplement the inspection service.

Gage explained the object of the combined service was to acquaint the grower with the grade of each basket of his tobacco and the current market price as a matter of information by which he might protect himself against unfair prices.

The total acreage of wildfire sanctuaries in the United States is 7,957,927.

Douglass' Double In 10th Gives Greenies 4-3 Victory

KING PITCHES FOUR-HIT GAME

Don Was Never In Trouble Until Ninth With Two Away; Error and Fluke Hit Accounted for Bug Runs; Double-Header Here Saturday

Birch Douglass broke up as pretty a ball game as seen at Third Street park yesterday afternoon when he doubled with two out in the last half of the tenth inning to defeat Goldsboro, 4-3.

A single Greenville error kept Don King from pitching two-hit ball and blanking the Bugs. The locals had Goldsboro three to nothing when the visitors went to bat in the first half of the ninth. With two out, Jans hit a stinger down first base line. Alexander then hit an easy roller toward first base, but the ball hit a pebble or either hole and went off course enough to cause Douglass to error it. He tossed to King who was covering first and the ball went wild and during the scramble for it Jans came home with the first Bug run of the day. Morris then hit safely and Alexander raced to third. Morris going to second. With men on second and third, the infield and the manager gathered around King for a conference, but it was decided to let him remain in the box. Glenn Mullinax then singled to score both runners and out, third to first, to end the frame.

Neither team was able to score until the fifth, at which stage of the game neither pitcher had yielded but one hit. In that inning, however, Simpson was safe on an error, took second on the wild throw to first and came home on Christopher's double. In the sixth Greenville added another when Allen singled, advanced on an error and came home on Morris' double. Pitcher King, himself, scored the third run for the Greenies, which came in the 8th. The hurler doubled, went to third on a sacrifice and came home on a wild pitch.

The Goldbugs then followed with their three-run rally in the first half of the ninth. Greenville was unable to score in their half of the ninth. Heavener fanned, Korba flied out to out to center-field. The Greenies got a break in the first half of the tenth. The first Bug up walked, but the next man up attempted to bunt, hit the ball in the air and King caught it, doubling the runner off first base. The third man went out, flying to center field.

Simpson came to bat for the Greenies in the tenth and singled. Smith attempted to bunt and the first two balls went foul—so did the third and he was automatically out. King then tried his hand at bunting and on the second attempt advanced Simpson to second on the sacrifice.

With two men out and a runner on second, Allen was purposely walked by the pitcher or simply slipped up on one throw however as it was called a strike. Douglass then broke up the game with a sizzling 370 footer over Center-fielder Mullinax's head. The first ball pitched to him was called a strike. He fouled the next two, but on the third strike he "laid the wood on it", to use an expression by the colored fans.

The game offered plenty of thrills for fans of either team. It was a pitchers' duel through, with King holding the edge over Kunis. The first Goldsborer hit went for naught when he was caught on a first double play—Douglass to Allen to Douglass. Another double play also added the Greenies.

Eagles Back On Top In Coastal Plain Loop

Kinston, July 1.—Kinston and Tarboro battled yesterday for top place in the Coastal Plain league, and Kinston took over the lead by defeating the Serpents, 11-2. The Eagles collected 11 hits off Lefty Zschau, and mixed these with five walks and three errors. Ed Hurley, ace of the Kinston staff, gave up 10 hits and two walks, but did a fine job of keeping the Serpents in check. Kinston won with a four-run first inning. A walk and Stringfellow's triple brought the first run. Singles by Wyrastek and Patton, plus a double by Crouch, completed the game-clinching act. Wright's triple and Hurley's fly brought a run in the fifth. The Eagles made five in the seventh. One was tallied when Crouch and Wright put on a double steal, with Crouch scoring. Wright, Kinston shortstop, had a perfect day at bat—he hit a triple, a double, and single. The Snakes made their runs in the eighth, by mixing three singles with an error.

Martins Beat Bears In Duel of Hurling Aces

Williamston, July 1.—Pitcher Breezy Beard and Outfielder Hans Stanley paced Williamston in a 3-2 win over New Bern yesterday.

Beard outlasted Lefty Archer in a pitching duel, and Stanley figured prominently in the tallying of two runs.

The Martins made only one hit off Archer in six innings, and tallied by 2-0. But they got busy in the seventh. Stanley opened the inning with a triple, and scored on Eddie Ignasiak's double. An infield out and Charlie Wilcox's hit scored Ignasiak with the tying run.

Williams won in the eighth. Earp's clean single and a couple of infield hits—by Rhinehardt and Villeneuve—filled the bases. Stanley's fly to center scored Earp. Except for the fourth, in which the Bears bunched four hits to get their runs, Beard pitched three-hit ball. Williamston also made seven hits.

Lakotas featured afield.

STATE ENDS RECORD YEAR
IN SPENDING, COLLECTING
on hand above all expenditures.

The state this year has had the largest operating budget in its history with an availability of $79,857-801 in state funds, without taking into consideration several million of Federal funds allotted to match state funds, such as Federal aid for roads, forest fire protection, public health and so forth. The total budgeted revenue from state funds, amounted to $71,867,983 without including any Federal funds whatever.

The total amount expended by the state during the fiscal year just ended will probably amount to at least $78,000,000 when the exact figures have been determined, including the amounts received from the Federal government, according to an estimate just made by A. J.
Maxwell, Commissioner of Revenue.
But in spite of this large expenditure, the state will still have a credit balance of at least $13,000,000 in the combined general and highway funds.

The large carry over in both of these funds this past fiscal year is due to the collection of more revenue than had been anticipated, especially for the income tax, the sales tax and the state tax on gasoline, according to Commissioner Maxwell.

With all the enthusiasm which the fine condition of the state finances however, officials are warning that all is not clear sailing ahead.

The Governor, Treasurer Johnson, Commissioner Maxwell and Chairman Frank Duniap of the Highway Commission, all point out that appropriations for the second year of the legislative biennium, which today, are as heavy as for that which closed yesterday, while revenues are almost certain to be smaller in view of the business depression of the first half of this calendar year which is certain to be reflected in receipts for the fiscal year ending next June 30.

IMPROV' MEN IS DISCUSSED BY CITY FATHERS

ments were able to conduct their own units and a central governing force was not needed.

As provided by charter, the board was called to meet at noon today to swear in three aldermen who began new terms today. Two of the three, Dr. M. B. Massey and J. M.
Taft, were out of the city, however, and only Alderman Watson was sworn in.

The mayor was scheduled to have made his appointments today and they, too, were to have been sworn in, but this was postponed and the old appointive officers will continue in office automatically until the reappointed or some one else named in their places.

Efforts Are Made To Get Band Fund

The City of Greenville last night was asked to underwrite $50 monthly for the next year to assure the firemen's band of funds to pay a conductor and to meet other expenses.

The matter was referred to the finance committee pending making up of the new budget.
J. Nat Harrison, president of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, appeared before the board and outlined his aim. It provided that the city underwrite the sum, but he declared that efforts would be made to have the WPA furnish part of the fund, perhaps half, with the two civic clubs also aiding.
He said the city might not be called on for any funds at all, but added assurance that the funds would be forthcoming if needed was the objective.

nounced the finding of the body.
Said he:
"It has been established with practical certainty that a body found early this afternoon on a cliff north of Sandia peak is the body of Medill

July Fourth Advice By Health Officer

Tells How to Avoid Serious Disease, Injury or Perhaps Death
While Celebrating

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt County Health officer today called attention to the fact that tragedy usually follows upon the heels of the 4th.

Serious disease, injury, or perhaps death will almost surely be the experience in many homes as an after-math of the 4th of July celebration.

The two principle causes of these tragic deaths will be drowning and automobile accidents. Some persons may even die from lockjaw resulting from fire works, and others may contract typhoid fever by drinking impure water or bathing in polluted pools or streams.

Dr. Ennett suggests the following precautions:

- 1—Don't go swimming unless there is a life guard or a boat and a companion nearby.
- 2—Don't go swimming if you suspect the water is polluted.
- 3—Don't "rock the boat." Have respect for deep water.
- 4—Be careful where you eat and the kind of water you drink.
- 5—Remember fireworks may cause lockjaw.
- 6—Don't drive an automobile if you have been drinking. Don't drive if drowsy or sleepy; pull over to the side of the road and take a nap.
- 7—And lastly, if you spend your vacation at the beach, try to avoid severe sunburn for even sunburn can be a serious matter. A liberal application of sweet oil, vaseline or cold cream is the best insurance against sunburn, but it must be used before exposure, rather than afterwards. Here as elsewhere prevention is, infinitely better than cure.

Have a good time but remember that for the foolish and the reckless tragedy is always "just around the corner."

Move Offices Of Two Branch Units

The Unemployment Compensation commission and the local employment office are temporarily located in the Star warehouse, while quarters are being made ready at 815 Dickinson avenue.

The two commissions moved this morning from the White building on East Third street and hope to be in their new place within two or three weeks.

The new offices will more than double the floor space available in the White building.

Citizens Are Warned To Cut Down Weed

All Greenville citizens having vacant lots with weeds growing on them were warned today by Chief of Police George Clark to cut them down during the first 10 days of July or face arrest and prosecution.
The Chief's warning came after the Board of Aldermen last night passed an ordinance making it unlawful to allow the weeds to stand.

Police In Possession Of Stolen Property

Chief of Police George Clark today said he was in possession of a pistol and other property believed to have been stolen by two young boys from a parked automobile.

The two boys, Eugene Jones and Louis Baker, were taken in custody by officers this morning with the gun and other goods found at the home of one was believed to have been stolen.

Chief Clark said anyone having lost a pistol or other property could
