GOV. CHANDLER IS CRITICIZED BY ROOSEVELT

FDR Says He Was Placed in Disagreeable Situation

SEAT IN SENATE BEHIND WRANGLE

Chief Executive Says Chandler Wanted Him to Traffic in Appointments

Washington, July 9. (AP)—President Roosevelt has accused Governor Chandler of Kentucky of placing him in a "disagreeable situation" by proposing that a way be cleared for Chandler to run for the Senate.

The Governor, Mr. Roosevelt said in a letter to Senator Logan (D-Ky.), wanted him "to traffic in judicial appointments," a proposal which he said put him, Logan, and Senate Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky "into a most disagreeable situation and wholly without any cause therefor."

The letter, given out by Logan's associates here today, was dated February 1. It was written shortly after Logan had announced he would not resign from the Senate to accept a judicial appointment.

His resignation would have opened the way for Governor Chandler to run for his Senate seat. When Logan did not step out, Chandler announced in opposition to Barkley. Yesterday the President, in a speech at Covington, Ky., endorsed Barkley's candidacy by citing his record in Congress in a lengthy and laudatory manner.

Just before the President's letter to Logan was given out today new charges of political activity by the WPA in Kentucky in behalf of Barkley brought a complete denial from Harry Hopkins, administrator of the works agency.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), wrote Hopkins asking about a distribution of groceries or other commodities in a large paper bag bearing the name of Senator Barkley, candidate for re-nomination.

Vandenberg had sent Hopkins a photostatic copy of a bag which bore the legend "paper bag donated by friends of Senator Alton W. Barkley."

Hopkins said that an "unnamed friend" of Barkley had supplied the bags to a general store across the street from the WPA commodities distribution center in London, Ky., where they were handed out to anyone who asked for them to be used for any purpose that they might see fit to put them.

Meantime the President's first address on his western tour dispelled any doubt for capital politicians as to the vigor of the campaign he intends to wage for a clear-cut political division of "liberals" and "conservatives" as he defines them.

In Ohio and Kentucky he made sharply clear that he would like to have Senators Bulkley and Barkley returned to Congress because of their support of administration measures.

Welfare Official Praises CCC Work

K. T. Futrell Declares Camps For Boys Best Work Being Done By Govt.; 25 Sent from Here

K. T. Futrell, Pitt county welfare officer, today took occasion to praise the work being done by the CCC camps in announcing that 22 white and three Negro boys from this county were sent to camps during the July enrollment period.

"In my opinion it is the best work the government is doing," declared the welfare officer. He added it provided a stepping stone for ambitious boys, in addition to providing their dependents with $25 monthly. The boys themselves are allowed to keep $5 monthly and also are paid additional for outstanding work.

The 25 Pitt boys were enrolled at Washington, N. C., and will be located at camps in this state.

Mr. Futrell said three numerous cases where the camps had made men out of shiftless boys. He cited one case where "one of the wildest boys in his community stayed at the camps for a while and returned and now is manager of a reliable concern, and added there were plenty more similar cases.

FARMER BLAMES 'WITCH ROOT' FOR SLAYING

William Baxter Parnell, 22-year-old tenant farmer, is held without bond at Concord, N. C., in connection with the fatal leechpick stabbing of his sister-in-law, Martha Jane Fink, 19, as she knelt in prayer in a hog lot. Witnesses at the inquest quoted Parnell as saying he slew the young woman while under the influence of a root he chewed after it was obtained from a Negro woman "Witch doctor," "Aunt Jenny" Morris. This picture, made at the inquest, shows Parnell (left, in overalls) and "Aunt Jenny" (extreme right), and several spectators.

BENNETT SAYS TOUR SUCCESS

Large Number Men and Women Take Part in Affair

The second annual Pitt County Farm Tour, covering 107 miles with approximately 50 farm men and women participating, was even more successful than the 1937 tour, declared R. R. Bennett, farm agent today.

There was an average of 15 cars with 65 people participating throughout the entire day.

The group enjoyed roasted peacans and lemonade at Mrs. Leon T. Hardee's and an ice cold bottle of sweet milk at J. T. Thorne's. The men, as well as the women, were interested in the comfortable homes with modern conveniences observed at Mrs. J. Brooks Tucker's, Mrs. Walter Cherry's and Mrs. Clarence Whitehurst's.

Mrs. J. V. Taylor's group gave their attention to the new beef cattle barn, ridge and method of tobacco cultivation and hog castration.

D. J. Wilson explained his crop rotation, cotton variety demonstration and turkey p. g. demonstration to the tourists.

Marvin Taylor explained his cotton variety tests and the object of cotton seed certified.

Wiley Speight gave an interesting explanation of his tobacco crop rotation demonstration and the object of having his tobacco and cotton seed certified.

At J. T. Thorne's, the tourists evidenced interest in the success he had made with his Services and Kobe Lospedez for hay. Many of the men and women viewed electric milking machines in operation for the first time.

At Mr. J. B. Tucker's, the group observed a 4-H Club corn project, the results of tobacco and corn following crimson clover, a 4-H Club baby beef project, and a poultry project.

L. T. Weeks, tobacco extension specialist, and K. J. Shaw, who is working on tobacco diseases, of State College, led the discussions at many stops.

The party stopped for dinner at the Respass Barbecue station.

Liquor Round-Up

A Norfolk private detective agency aided Edgecombe county ABC officers in making the investigations and today the officers were serving the warrants.

TO BRING TRIO BACK TO STATE

Men Wanted for Tar Heel Robberies in Savannah, Ga.

Raleigh, July 9.—(AP)—Governor Hoey has signed extradition papers asking the return from Savannah, Ga., of three men wanted on charges of secret assault with intent to kill, breaking and entering and safe blowing at Red Springs June 25, the governor's office said today.

The papers list the men as Joseph N. Gupton, Franklinton native; Harlon Massey of Texas, and Clint White of Indiana.

Director W. P. Whitley of the Raleigh-Wake County Bureau of Identification, said he understood Savannah authorities had agreed to their return. All three, he said, escaped from a Texas prison May 25 with two other prisoners.

He said Red Springs Police Chief M. N. McRaney was in Atlanta getting the papers honored.

The trio has confessed taking part in the Red Springs and Franklinton safe robberies, alleged to have totalled several hundred dollars in cash and checks, Whitley said.

Red Springs Night Policeman A. J. Breedon remains in a Lumbermen hospital with spotgun wounds he suffered during the night of the recent robbery there.

Better Business Ahead

Babson Says June Saw Turning Point Of The Recession

By ROGER W. BABSON Omaha, Nebraska, July 9.—Business has finally hit bottom and is bouncing back. Conditions have improved sharply in the last several weeks. Sentiment has changed almost overnight. Sensitive business barometers have risen vigorously. They forecast that the turn has been made. Business should now continue to pick-up very rapidly, at least until Election Day. Everyone should be cheerful and happy over the events of the last few days. Had the recession of 1938 continued at the rate it was traveling in recent months, the only result could have been economic chaos in the United States.

Business today is nearly five per cent higher than a month ago. It reached 28 per cent below Normal on the Babsonchart at the bottom of the dip compared with minus 40 per cent at the extreme pit of the old depression. Today, it has recovered to 25 per cent under normal and is rising weekly. While we have had several false starts in this recession, I am convinced that this one is the real turning point. The other temporary pick-ups were not preceded or accompanied by the traditional signs of an important change in the business trend. This current turn has come with most familiar barometers forecasting better times ahead. Here are some of the most important of these indicators:

Barometers Confirm Them 1. BOND PRICES have been slowly edging forward in recent weeks. Such a rise ordinarily indicates that investment cash is piling up and the temptation to accept handsome yields on good bonds cannot be overcome any longer. Hence, bond investing increases, prices rise slowly, yields fall, and buying power spills over into stock market barometers.

STATE TO PAY DEATH BENEFIT

Dependants Of Officers To Get Up to $1,500

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, July 9.—Hereafter the State of North Carolina will pay benefits not exceeding $1,500 to the widow or other dependents of its officers who are killed while in the actual discharge of their duty. George R. P. P. Chairman of the Committee for the Administration of the Law Enforcement Officers' Benefit Fund, said today.

The State Auditor was named chairman of the group which was authorized by the last legislature to make a study of the matter and devise some plan for payment of benefits in cases where officers are killed or seriously wounded on duty.

So far no regulations have been adopted except for death cases. But Mr. P. has written a circular letter to all sheriffs and chiefs of police in the state asking that they furnish him with a complete roster of their forces. The sheriffs and chiefs are also being asked to send in monthly statistics on such officers as may be killed or seriously wounded.

Benefit regulations approved by the Governor and adopted by the committee are:

To widow of deceased officer, or other nearest relative if no widow survives, for funeral expenses, $300

To each dependent child under 18 years old $100.00

To each dependent son or daughter over 18 and physically or mentally incapable of making a living, $100.00

To the widow, $500

If no eligible widow is living, then the sum of $500 may, in the discretion of the committee, be paid pro rata to the children; if there be no children, then to the surviving parent or parents; and if no parent or parents then to a surviving dependent brother or sister under 18.

Total benefits shall in no case exceed $1,500 the regulations provide.

Unable To Find Cure For Election Fraud Cancers

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, July 9.—North Carolina's political doctors—maybe they should be called physician-politicians—seem to be of many minds about the epidemic of election fraud cancers which have been discovered on the state's body politic this hot summer.

Certainly they express almost diametrically opposite views on the best remedies and preventives. Certainly it is obvious to all concerned that something should be done about conditions which give rise to the almost innumerable cries of thievery and skulduggery which have arisen in all quarters after both the first and second primary votings.

But taking at random three opinions which have been voiced by prospective members of the 1939 General Assembly, it will be noted that they are far from agreed on what should be done.

BOARD FAVORS NEW PROJECTS IN GREENVILLE

Approves City Hall, Fire Stations, Street Dept. Yard

RESOLUTION YET TO BE PASSED

Total Cost of $210,000 Would be Divided $115,500 by City —$94,500 by FWA

Proposals to erect a new municipal building, a central fire department station with a sub-station in the residential section of the city, and a street department yard, provided a PWA grant can be secured and the citizens favor the issuance of bonds for the projects, were approved at a called meeting of the Greenville Board of Aldermen last night.

The projects have been under discussion for some time, but last night's action was the first official step taken. The meeting was called in order that George A. Snyder, architect of Frank W. Benton, architect of Wilson, could discuss in detail plans for the various projects. The session was called by Mayor Pro Tem L. B. Fleming, in the absence of Mayor M. K. Blount.

The regular monthly meeting of the board, postponed from last Thursday night, is set for this coming Thursday, at which time a resolution probably will be passed calling for a bond election to determine if the citizens desire to borrow money to provide 55 per cent of the total cost. An application also probably will be forwarded to the PWA for 45 per cent of the funds. It is the opinion of board members that there will be no difficulty in securing the 45 per cent outright grant from the federal government.

If the board passes the resolution calling the election it will be necessary to wait 30 days before holding the election.

The undertaking would be one of the most extensive ever started in Greenville. The total estimated cost of the projects would be $210,000, of which $94,500 would be contributed by the federal government.

Last night's discussions brought in the public for the first time the proposal to discard the old fire station and erect a new one near the business section of the city. It was the idea at first to use the old fire station for the central department and construct a sub-station on Dickinson avenue. The newest plan is to move all the city departments from the present site, the police station, will be located in the proposed new municipal building, and sell the entire city plot on Fifth street. By doing this, it was pointed out, the city would get the full receipts from the sale while federal funds would be used to help pay for the new sites. Of the 210,000, $43,000 would be used for the two fire department stations.

The proposed municipal building would cost approximately $125,000 and would be located on a site to be determined later. There is some talk of locating it at the present site, but the board passed a resolution at a previous meeting instructing a committee to proceed with investigating the possibility of purchasing a new plot. At least three places have been mentioned. They are the Flanagan property on Evans street, next to the liquor store, the Stokes property on Washington street, between Second and Third, and across from the county property.

FDR PRAISES SENATOR BULKLEY

In the first address of his transcontinental speaking tour, delivered at Marietta, Ohio, before a crowd celebrating the 150th anniversary of the settling of the Northwest territory, President Roosevelt included a word of praise for Senator Robert Bulkley, staunch New Dealer who is a candidate for re-election on the Democratic ticket. Here Mr. Roosevelt is shown addressing the crowd.

Latin-American Nations Open Doors To Refugees

Other Nations, However, Reject Mass Immigration

Evian-Les-Bains, France, July 9.—(AP)—Three Latin-American nations offered today to open their doors to German and Austrian refugees after other countries had told the Evian conference they could not permit mass immigration.

Mexico pledged "asylum to foreigners who are afraid for their lives" and promised opportunities for them to work.

The Dominican Republic promptly followed suit, as did Peru, the latter making an exception, however, of refugee intellectuals.

V. T. Molina, Dominican delegate, announced both agricultural and professional men would be accepted. He said large areas suitable for farming were available and the West Indian republic would provide seed and technical advice.

Garcia Calberon, Peruvian delegate, said Peru would welcome farmers and all agricultural workers, but would "place restrictions on lawyers, doctors and other professional immigrants."

Moderate selected immigration would be helpful to Peru, he said, but the nation would not compromise its national stability.

The Mexican delegate, P. V. Michel, told the conference "our collaboration will make it possible to carry out the migration of refugees from Germany and Austria in an orderly manner at the rate appropriate to each country's requirements and possibilities."

WHAT IT MEANS: The Wheat Crisis

By MORGAN M. BEATTY (AP Feature Service Writer) Washington—The year 1938 is all set to go down in history as the eighth year of the great American wheat crisis. It marks another year of America's reluctant retreat from the world wheat market—a retreat that began to take a definite trend in 1930.

All the big wheat-growing nations of the world are raising good wheat crops this year. It begins to look as if they will pour four billion bushels of the golden grain into the world's bread basket. Four billion bushels is 900,000,000 bushels too much wheat.

Trade Would Help True calamity could overtake part of the crops. Bugs or disease could do a lot of damage. Or a war could come along. In that event cautious nations would store wheat. But it's doubtful that these things will happen. The best thing would be a revival of world trade.

PARAGUAY AND BOLIVIA SIGN PEACE TREATY

Agree to End Century-Old Fight Over Gran Chaco

PACT NOW GOES TO GOVERNMENTS

Accord Calls For Determination Bolivia-Paraguay Border by Arbitration

Buenos Aires, July 9.—(AP)—Foreign ministers of Paraguay and Bolivia adopted and sealed with a kiss today a preliminary accord to end the century-old territorial fight over the almost worthless Gran Chaco border area.

The agreement must now be submitted to the two governments for final approval, whereafter mediators of six countries who have tried since 1935 to keep Bolivia and Paraguay from warring again over the "green hell," hope for a final treaty which can be signed in five or six days.

The accord is to determine the Bolivia-Paraguay boundary through arbitration.

The precise formula of the agreement was withheld, pending formal approval by the two governments, but information from reliable sources indicated its main part was that Bolivia and Paraguay agreed a zone varying from 12 to 50 miles through the Gran Chaco was subject to arbitration.

After the initiating ceremony, which followed a three and half hour session of the Chaco peace conference in the foreign office here, 76-year-old Foreign Minister Medina of Bolivia and Paraguayan Foreign Minister Bass embraced warmly.

S. Braden of New York, United States representative, and delegates of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru, and Uruguay also put their initials on the document.

Japanese Beetles Not Found in Pitt

County Agent R. B. Bennett said today so far as he has been able to learn no Japanese beetles had been found in this county.

Traps for the beetles were scattered throughout the county recently for the purpose of determining whether any were in this section. The traps also were distributed in other sections of the state.

Mr. Bennett said that not a single report of any beetles being found in this county had been made. The traps are checked by officials of the State Department of Agriculture.

Negro Youth Accused Of Robbing Laundry

Bernon Williams, 17-year-old Greenville Negro, was arrested last night and is being held in the city jail on a charge of breaking, entering and larceny in connection with the robbery at the Eureka laundry earlier in the night.

The Negro is alleged to have stolen $3.70 in cash from the establishment, of which D. D. Overton is manager. He probably will be tried Monday in city recorder's court.

Designers Herald Fall Styles With a Note Of Color Defiance

This fall coat recently made its debut at a New York Fashion Show featuring wool coats in "rural autumn" color. Beaver makes its collar and sleeves. (Design by Carmel Bros.)

By ADELAIDE KERR

(AP Fashion Editor)

Colored winter coats—fashion orphans for the last few years—will come back to Fifth avenue and Main street this fall if the coat and suit division of the Fashion Originators' Guild of America has its way. The 12 designer-manufacturers of the division defied midseason emphasis on black by staging an entire coat and suit fashion show in one color—"rural autumn"—a rich red rust. Although all of the models shown were in one shade, the division pointed out that this particular hue was not to be regarded as one of outstanding significance. The point of the display was not the importance of this particular color—but the accent on color—in coats.

The show was part of a concerted effort on the part of American designer-manufacturers to put "pep" in fall fashions and give lagging business a shove. Business in coats reached its peak in the days when women wore colored coats, the division spokesman said. In the past few years smart women by the thousands have chosen black or somber coats which can be worn over dresses of many different shades.

The coats shown in the display included both fitted and straight box models, ranging all the way from luxurious afternoon wraps to sports clothes. They were designed with both large and small collars and turred in a great variety of pelts including kolinsky, beaver, blue fox, gray and black Persian lamb. They reflected both sparing and lavish use of furs. A number of them were worn over frocks of the same hue.

Their diversity emphasized the fact that designers are concentrating on color instead of design in this display which preceded regular fashion showings. Stylists watched the show with interest, but none hazarded even a guess as to how strong its influence might be in stimulating a vogue for color which might jar the fashion supremacy of black.

Two colors which are receiving much consideration in the fashion world this fall are win and grape. Purple plum is regarded as a like "high style" hue. Deep laurel green, slate blue and brown are also discussed as colors of some importance.

There are many interesting phases of Mr. Jarman as a lecturer. His mother, a relative of Samuel Clemens, was born on a farm adjacent to the Clemens homestead. Mr. Jarman knows that Missouri country and many of the townfolk who knew Mark Twain personally. There will be given bits of information never before revealed. Not only is Mr. Jarman known as a lecturer on Mark Twain, he is also widely known for his book reviews and a member of the lecture forum of W. L. Boulder, Colo.—(AP)—Boulder county farmers are trying to increase the supply of pheasants with the hope that soon there may be enough of the birds to justify an open season. Eggs are gathered from abandoned pheasant nests in farm fields. These eggs are sent to a central hatchery and the hatched birds are released within the county. Farmers reported there has been a heavy loss of eggs because pheasant hens abandon their nests when frightened.

Washington—Every time a destroyer slides down the ways it launches 100 or more officers and men on one of the most romantic but hazardous jobs in the navy. Destroyers are those trim little ships about 300 feet long, sleek as a yacht, but in wartime loaded with concentrated hell both for the crew and the enemy. They are the pawns in every naval engagement, sacrificed to save the bigger ships or even to force a change in the course of the enemy fleet.

All the talk about the enormous expense of building up a navy hinges around the cost of battleships which, in all conscience, cost enough. But destroyers are more than twice as costly per ton. A 35,000 ton battleship costs around $70,000,000 when fully armed or $2,000 a ton. A 1,500-ton destroyer costs $7,500,000 to $8,500,000, or $5,000 and more a ton. And the fleet needs many.

Contracts for four were let recently with scarcely a ripple in the news.

Like Hunting Sharks.
 Although the public interest neglects them, the Navy doesn't. When destroyers, life on the big boats would be as hazardous in time of war as it is for the destroyers. They are the high assignments of chasing down enemy submarines, which is something like swimming around in the ocean hunting sharks. Somebody has to take the subs out of the line and the job falls to the destroyers. They are fast doing 35 knots compared to 21 to 25 for battleships, and they can spin around almost on the crest of a wave.

In heavy weather they are little different from submarines for the big waves roll over their decks and they are so narrow-gir, they slide with a crash into every sea.

In battle the tender can't stop to pick up every flier who happens to land in the water and unless the destroyers can pick him up, he goes down with his plane.

Valvary of Sea.
 The destroyers act as supplemental anti-aircraft defense at all times but particularly for the airplane tenders. Each destroyer has at least eight five-inch guns capable of swinging high into the air to hurl explosives at enemy planes. They must lay smoke screens, and while doing it are as visible to the enemy as a freight train on the horizon.

Their siddest job is in combined fleet actions, where the whole warship family meets the enemy family for better or for worse. Suppose our own naval commander finds it necessary to turn the enemy fleet in a given direction. He sends the destroyer fleet full into the face of the heavily armed battle fleet. The destroyers let go with torpedoes, and the enemy fleet must turn as intended or face destruction.

It is tough on the destroyers. They have no armor and their sides are as thin as paper as compared with other war craft. The navy calls them "cans." At their first rush the enemy fleet tries to smash them to prevent launching of the torpedoes. Half of the destroyers may be blown up—and they go down like rocks, for their hulls are loaded with power machinery, torpedoes, and the mechanism for launching them.

A naval non-commissioned officer, who had turned a trick in the World war, once commented to us that "Destroyers are expendable, like ammunition." But he added: "I wouldn't serve on nothin' else. Not me."

Insuring Examinations.
 A plan which originated at Providence College, R. I., of insuring students against failing examinations, is to be adopted by students at Boston College, Prairie View College, Columbia, Princeton and University of California.

The annual cost of medical care for all people in the U. S. is estimated at $3,577,000,000 and the wage loss from illness at $1,000,000,000.

SHORT SHOTS

Raleigh, July 9—Your correspondent has received an interesting sidelight on the rip-roaring Dr. F. W. M. Long-Julian Halifax State senate battle in Halifax county—a fight which has resulted in one of the many election fraud rows which have popped up all over the state.

Talking to a prominent Halifax man, admittedly a Long partisan, your correspondent asked for a bit of enlightenment on the situation.

What caused the charges? who controlled the election machinery? The correspondent wanted to know those and a few other facts. Are Alsbrooks charges of fraud justified? Did Long steal the election? "I can answer the whole thing by asking you a question," said the Long supporter.

"How the hell can you steal a watermelon when you can't even get in the patch?"

Which your scribe translated to mean that Long did not control the election machinery.

One North Carolina project was included in the 66 for which Rural Electrification Funds were recently made available, according to a bulletin received by the State REA. The Washington bureau has allotted $128,000 to the Caldwell Mutual Electric Co-op for construction of approximately 128 miles to serve approximately 384 customers in Watauga county.

Dudley Basley, State REA head, said that left standing only one North Carolina project not acted on by the Federal REA—an application from the Tide Water Power company for about $150,000 for construction of lines in its territory in Eastern North Carolina.

Incidentally not one of the 66 projects, in 11 states, for which funds were allotted, is to be undertaken by a private utility. All are for co-operatives or similar organizations.

Swan Quarter has a "disappearing" delegation. Utility Commissioner Stanley Winborne had a date to meet a group from the Hyde county municipality Thursday, but nobody ever showed up. Mr. Winborne pressed entire ignorance of what happened to the anticipated visitors.

"Scott, Graham at Farm Meeting," said the headline. Quick reading of the story thereunder showed it wasn't "Bill" Graham planning to hobnob with his successor as Commissioner of Agriculture.

From Wilson comes a story that the Washington-Florida Short Route which runs along the coast through eastern North Carolina has been christened "The Tobacco Trail" by members of the Washington-Florida Short Route Association.

Who said Southerners were prejudiced against "Tobacco Road?"

Locating the veterans hospital at Fayetteville may not be good for the morale of the Field Artillery.

When those calson riders see what the last war did to its "cannon fodder" they may not be much off a mind to fight the next one.

There's talk of a fraud investigation—with grand juries and all attendant paraphernalia—of the Kinston Republican primary in which ten voters took part July 2. They claim Democrats left their party to participate in the nomination of the G. O. P. candidate for coroner.

Nobby believes there are ten bona fide Republicans in Lenoir county.

LITTLE BROWN JUGS USED TO TEST MOISTURE

St. Paul—(AP)—Souvenir counterparts of the "Little Brown Jug" the famed trophy of Minnesota-Michigan grid battles, are aiding foresters in producing vigorous tree seedlings essential to successful reforestation.

The little jugs usually sold at Gopher-Wolverine games, are an essential part of a forest nursery moisture meter developed at the Lake State Forest Experiment station to determine soil water conditions.

The unglazed jugs are placed in the ground about five inches deep, or in the zones of maximum root development of seedlings, and filled with water.

Passage of water from or into the somewhat porous jug caused by an increase or decrease in ground moisture, indicates through variation in the height of a mercury column whether the ground is "dry," "fresh" or "moist."

By being able to determine accurately the moisture content of soil at the roots of seedling trees, foresters are able to prevent injury from dryness which might not otherwise be detected until the trees begin to wilt.

Usually the wind gets five or six flags despite her efforts. The French government recently recognized her position as official Eiffel tower flag repairer by awarding her a small

The Story So Far
 Trying to leave his reputation for gun-play behind him, "Blair" Ankrum becomes enmeshed in trouble again when he rescues Lee Trone from a band of thugs. The Trone ranch, the Rafter T, is in difficulties, and Ankrum accepts a job there under the name of Abe Streeter. Lee tells her father, Ankrum knows friends of theirs, Colonel and Betty Struthers. Then the Struthers come for a visit.

Chapter Eight Masquerade

WHILE Lee Trone went off to meet her friends, and to take them to luncheon, Blair Ankrum took himself to a small restaurant on a side street labeled, "Greasy Spoon," and put some grub under his own belt. It was, therefore, in a fairly cheerful frame of mind, considering the prospect of trouble that lay before him, that he returned to the car and gave himself up to speculation concerning the appearance, habits and characters of those old friends of his—the Struthers.

Colonel Struthers would be a stuffed shirt, he mused—a pompous old belligerent with horsey notions and little depth. The thought brought an amused grin to Ankrum's lips. Should the Colonel be such a character, Lee Trone would find her work cut out attempting to get around the lie that Abe Streeter was an old friend of Struthers.

A man whose emotions had long been controlled by an iron will, he could not understand his feelings toward this girl who had come so precipitously into his life. That he was drawn to her he realized, and the knowledge irritated him, made short his temper. He strove to fight against her charm. There could never be anything between them, to push their acquaintance deeper could only mean sorrow and heart-break for one or both. This frame of mind had been one reason for his reticence during the drive this morning.

There was another cause. He had headed for this country in an effort to leave his past behind him—to live as other men had the right and freedom to live. But already the promise of further turmoil was driving black thoughts across his mind. Nowhere, it seemed, could he find the peace he craved. Where his reputation failed to follow, he found himself embroiled in new difficulties: new trouble enmeshed his steps. So he had always found it in the past.

His father, a frontier marshal until checked in mid-career by dry-zulch lead, had in his time made many enemies, some of whom survived him. One of these, two years ago, had found occasion to slur the marshal's memory. With gun smoke young Ankrum had purged the insult. That incident had started Ankrum on the trail of No-Return.

In many ways it had been a lucky shot with which he had downed Storm Dren that day. The man had been a former rustler, a man whose draw was speedy and striking snake. He had that day got in the first shot, yet only Ankrum had lived to tell about it, for Ankrum's fire had been more accurate. Since that day a constant flood of trouble had forced the marshal's son to become a past master in the art of draw-and-shoot; had forced him also from the trodden trails in self defence.

Because of these things, Ankrum long since had resolved to live his life alone. The life of a gun man's wife was in his opinion no fit lot for any woman. There should be no place for sentiment in Ankrum's mind; the dictates of his heart should be discounted.

But though he had made these decisions firmly, and lived up to them as well, never before had he encountered anyone like Lee Trone. Despite the shortness of their acquaintance he could recall her features vividly; her vision was before him during all his waking hours. He could not get her out of his mind.

Voices drove in upon his consciousness and he looked up. There came Lee now, and with her a man and girl. The girl got but a glance from him; it was the man that drew his eyes.

He was well dressed this fellow was, and short, pale and handsome. Around forty-eight in years. There was laughter in his eyes, sardonic, mocking laughter, though his lips were grave and closed.

Lee said, "Colonel Struthers, this is Abe Streeter, the friend I told you of, Abe, shake hands with Colonel Struthers."

"Howdy," Ankrum nodded, and guessed the gods were chuckling. For the owner of that hand stretched out to him was the cousin of Storm Dren!

Why?

ANKRUM read amusement into the faint smile with which the fellow said, "Glad to meet up with you—Streeter."

"You're going to find I don't improve with age, or time—Struthers," Ankrum said it coldly and, reaching back across the seat, pulled open one of the car's rear doors for them. In Lee's green eyes that were fixed on Ankrum's him he read wonder and speculation and knew that she had not missed entirely the significance of those low-spoken words.

"This is the Colonel's daughter, Betty," she said.

For the first time Ankrum let his glance play over the girl. She was little and pretty and golden. Her bare head in the rays of the past-noon sun was a tumbled mass of fine-spun gold. She thrust her hand toward him almost timidly, as though fearful lest his own much larger one might crush her tiny, well-manicured fingers.

"Pleased to know you, ma'am," Ankrum said, and dropping her hand, turned back to stare across the wheel as the girls climbed in. The Colonel got in last. When settled, he said, "Let's go, fellow."

Ankrum pressed down on the starter. He let the clutch in gently and sent the car forward.

"By way of Peso Pinto, Abe," Lee called, and Ankrum nodded.

Once clear of the town Ankrum opened up the motor. Scant were the scraps of conversation reaching him from the back seat. But Ankrum felt no interest in their talk. His mind was busy with things which meant more to him than a general lack of water and the condition of other people's thirsty steers. The situation in which he found himself was not at all to his liking and had been complicated enough before Lee had told her father that crazy lie. But now, with the supposed Struthers proving to be a cousin of the man whose death had placed Blair Ankrum's youthful feet on the trail to gunhawk glory, immediate prospects for that hoped-for peace looked dark.

Why had Kelton Dren come here masquerading as Colonel Struthers, as an old friend of the Trones? Not because he'd guessed that here at last he would find Ankrum. No—that veiled pleasure and gleam of amusement in his glance on seeing Ankrum disproved at once that theory. Why then, had he come? It bothered Ankrum.

Puzzled And Apprehensive

THE girl who was posing as his daughter also bothered Ankrum. Who was this glowing creature introduced by Lee as Betty? Not Dren's daughter, certainly! Dren had no daughter. Was this girl the real Colonel's daughter? "But no," he thought, "she would never lend herself to such a deception."

Where then did she fit into this web of conspiracy that was spinning about the Rafter T? Was she merely an accomplice of Dren—Or was she more—Dren's wife or—

Behind the wheel Ankrum's form went tense his hands clutched the hard-rubber circle. He had seen this girl before. She was the one who had leaped from between the red drapes of that second-story window in Peso Pinto the other night and cried, "Up here, cowboy! Quick!"

For long seconds as the road flashed past, Ankrum's mind was a rush of wild conjecture, then as the rush of blood receded from his brain he forced himself to think more coolly. Dren, he reasoned, had not come here unprepared. He must have known that the real Struthers had not been seen by Trone for many years, else he would not have dared this impersonation. That he had now committed himself to the role, showed that he had every intention of bluffing it out.

Why? What was he expecting to get out of it? Ankrum knew the Dren breed pretty well both from experience and reputation. He knew that a Dren would never risk his neck if there was not money, and good money, to be forthcoming. The man, he reasoned, must be working under orders. Whose?

Blair Ankrum was a puzzled and apprehensive young man as he sent the car across the miles toward Peso Pinto. And it was not for his future that he felt apprehensive—it was for Lee Trone and the gaunt old man who rodded the Rafter T.

For any possible danger this mystery might hold for himself, Blair Ankrum was not concerned. Even his object in coming to this country was momentarily thrust into the background of his mind by the nature of current events and a sudden interest and absorption in the ride set up by them.

He did not believe that Dren would give away the Streeter masquerade. The man could not afford to—yet. Nor could he immediately afford to bring his quarrel with Ankrum into the open. The chances were that Dren would bide his time, would wait until this sinister business that was bringing him to the Rafter T was finished before calling Ankrum to account.

Was there some connection between Lee Trone's adventure in Peso Pinto and the sudden arrival of the spurious Colonel? To Ankrum it seemed likely that there was, but its nature he could not surmise. One thing only seemed certain—there was trouble ahead for Old Man Trone and all who sided with him!

SEVEN INDICATORS CONFIRM THEM

1. Bond yields are falling; security financing is higher.
2. Stock prices and trading volume have leaped upward.
3. Sensitive raw material prices advance sharply.
4. Interest rates charged banks' customers stiffen.
5. Bank deposits have been mounting for months.
6. Steel operations and scrap prices jump impressively.
7. Wholesale cloth buying means merchants are restocking.

on at ridiculously low levels. Rates charged to customers, however, still have a semblance of a free market and are, therefore, an indicator of business conditions. These rates for touched their lows in February and March and since then have stiffened.

5. BANK DEPOSITS are a splendid forecaster of business. They usually turn six months or more before the business trend shifts. They began to dip well before business

SWALLOWS FISH MANY TIMES ITS SIZE

THE "PELICAN" CURIOUS MONSTROSITY OF THE OCEAN HAS ENORMOUS JAWS AND A STOMACH CAPABLE AMAZING DISTENTION,

Although the War Between the States virtually ended April 9, 1865 with the surrender of General Lee at Appomattox, it was not until the 29th of June, 1865 that Waddell commander of the SHENANDOAH, learned of the final capitulation of the Confederacy. During all that interval of time, the Shenandoah, famed Confederate privateer, was unknowingly "without a country", and continued to make war upon Federal commerce! Because a great many captures were made after the close of the war, Captain Waddell and his officers were actually accused of piracy on the high seas, but were never molested. With one exception, the Shenandoah inflicted more injury to U. S. commerce than any other ship.

Far down into the mysterious depths of the ocean dwells the PELICAN, one of the queerest monstrosities of the sea! So huge are its jaws and so elastic its stomach, it can actually swallow creatures much larger than itself! In almost unbelievable contrast, its nether portion is long and slender—entirely out of harmony with the rest of the body. Just why it has such an enormous mouth and yet such tiny teeth remains a puzzle to scientists. The strange looking creature was first discovered off our Atlantic coast in 1883, and since then has been found in various places in both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

gains. Moreover, volume of new security financing has been moving higher for several months.

2. STOCK PRICES are up about 30 per cent since their extreme lows several months ago on March 31. The market traditionally turns upward or downward two or three months before the business trend changes. Moreover, history shows that when stock trading dries up to 10 per cent or less of the peak volume of the previous bull market, the turn in business is about to be, or has just been, made. The volume signal was given on June 8 when, with one exception, trading hit the lowest level in 20 years.

3. WHOLESALE PRICES as a whole are not sensitive indicators. Certain raw materials, such as hides, steel scrap, wool, silk, lead, zinc, and export copper, however, are extremely quick to mirror the change in the basic business trend. Recently quotations on nearly all of these commodities have jumped spectacularly. All the other false upturns since the Recession set in over a year ago have taken place while sensitive commodity prices were slipping to lower levels.

4. INTEREST RATES were perhaps the most famous of all revival indicators in the old days. But now rates on bankers' acceptances, commercial paper, and the like, are frozen slanted downward last year and they have been steadily increasing since last December. Meanwhile, commercial loans have been falling for months. This indicates that inventories have been steadily reduced.

6. STEEL OPERATIONS are a sensitive barometer of industry. They rise and fall with business activity more closely than 90 per cent of the other industrial indexes. Since early June, operations have improved modestly. Meanwhile, steel scrap prices, almost an infallible forecaster of steel operations, have jumped more than 20 per cent.

7. COTTON CLOTH SALES are the favorite "caller of the turn" for many observers. Cotton cloth is representative of the inventory situation. When cloth purchasing starts vigorously, it means that inventories must be replenished. Therefore, it is highly significant that in the last few weeks sales of print cloth have far outstripped production. Moreover, inventory buying has already spread into other textile lines and into the hide, leather, and shoe markets.

Why Fall Business Will Be Good

There are many other indicators which I could cite to back up my optimism. However, I have listed the major signs of the turn. Just as important, of course, are the factors which will keep the business machinery going now that it has started again. Among them are:

1. Largest credit reserves and easiest credit rules in history.
2. Biggest crops in many years to be sold at fairly good prices.
3. Best possibilities for a home building boom in history due to FHA mortgages.
4. Billions of dollars being spent for armaments, public works, and relief.
5. Prices of most products and wages of most workers have been reduced to a sane basis.
6. Vast potential demand for goods of all kinds—from shoes to shirts to locomotives and generating plants.
7. These vital trends can give business a great forward push this Fall. The sharpness of the Recession drop may, I believe, be equalled by an almost vertical upswing. There is no financial debris to clean up after this Recession as there was after the 1929-32 debacle. People have lost money, but few have been ruined. Business organizations are intact and all set to go. Washington wants good business. Hence, I am confident that the Recession turn has come and that business should be better in the months ahead.

Greenies Come From Behind to Whip Ayden Aces, 8-6

DOUGLASS HITS FIVE FOR FIVE

Late Rally Nets Trio of Runs, Herring Was Victim

Having lost several games recently by late rallies by their foes, the Greenies turned the tables yesterday and scored three runs in the ninth after having marked up one each in the seventh and eighth to defeat Ayden 8-6.

The Aces had a six to three lead at the start of the seventh, having scored five in the second and one in the fifth while Greenville was able to make only two in the third and one in the fifth.

Birch Douglass started off the winning three run rally in the 9th with a double. Morris walked and Heavener's single scored Douglass.

Sunday—Greenville at Kinston.
Tuesday—New Bern at Greenville.
Wednesday—Greenville at New Bern.
Thursday—New Bern at Greenville.

Morris came in on Pitcher Bill Herring's wild pitch to tie the score. Christopher then singled to score Heavener.

Douglass led his mates at bat, getting five hits in as many trips to the plate. One of these was a one-run homer, three were doubles and the other a singleton.

Manager Rube Wilson started on the mound for the Greenies, but was chased in the five-run rally in the second frame and was relieved by Winston, who received credit for the win. Wilson went out in the second with none down and after three successive singles had scored one run. Purcell, first man to face Winston, poled a homer to bring in two men ahead of him, but after that Winston tightened down and after the second allowed only three hits. Following the homer in the second a single and a triple scored one run.

Eagles Break Even In Series With Bears

Kinston, July 9.—Kinston's Eagles gained an even break in the latest series with New Bern by winning today, 6-4.

Ed Hurley, crack right-hander of the Eagles, took the pitching verdict over Durden Archer, a south-paw. The Bears out-hit the Eagles, 11-10. Hurley fanned seven; Archer five.

Wyrostek's single and Southworth's homer, in the second, gave Kinston a 2-1 lead. Two errors and Anderson's single had tallied one in New Bern's half.

Hits by Hurley and Stringfellow, mixed with an error and sacrifice, gave the locals two in the third. Archer hit Crouch in the 4th, and he went around on Wright's single and an infield out. In the next inning the New Bern hurler hit Wyrostek—an error and Patton's single sent him around.

The Bears made two in the 4th. Harper was hit by one of Hurley's pitches. Singles by Black and Mack scored Harper, and Black tallied on an infield out.

New Bern rallied in the ninth. Black and Burns hit singles. A fly by Smith put Black on third, and he scored on an infield out.

Score by innings: R H E
New Bern . . . 001 200 001—4 11 4
Kinston . . . 022 110 000—6 10 2

Gettel Back in Win Column Once More

Goldsboro, July 9.—Allan Gettel, Snow Hill hurler, struck out 11 batters and yielded only 7 hits in a 7-2 victory over Goldsboro today.

Ernest (Mule) Shirie, manager of the Bugs, was ordered from the game when he protested too vigorously a decision in the seventh inning.

Home runs by Joe Bistoff and Taylor provided enough tallies for the Billies to gain the victory. Bistoff's hit was in the 6th with a four-run 8th-inning rally in which three singles also were collected.

Pete Kunis, reached for 13 hits, went the route for Goldsboro.

The Bugs' run came in the third—on a walk, Morris' triple, and Mullinax's single.

Goldsboro filled the bases with one out in the ninth, but Gettel hurried things to a close by striking out two batters.

Taylor, with three for five, paced the Billies on a black Mullinax, with two for three, led the Bugs.

Score by innings: R H E
Snow Hill . . . 000 002 140—7 13 0
Goldsboro . . . 002 000 000—2 7 2

Design For Pleasing Football Fans

(By The AP Feature Service)
LYNN, Mass.—The J. Fred Manning bowl, Lynn's municipal stadium, is designed to get the majority of football fans near the 50-yard line. Named after the mayor of Lynn, the bowl is believed to be the first of its kind in the United States. The stadium's capacity is 20,000 persons—about 12,000 in the mid-sections. The cost was $520,000. The Manning bowl has a cinder track, a projection room for outdoor movies, a radio broadcast studio, and flood lights for night-time events.

Sports Exam Answers

1. Tony Galento. His idea of training for a fight in a bar room on a beer diet fascinated boxing fans who compared him to John L. Sullivan.
2. Lou Gehrig, New York Yankee first-baseman, is top salaried at $39,000.
3. Walter Hagen.
4. Seabiscuit developed a sore leg.
5. Great Britain.

Water & Light defeated Carolina Sales, 19-3, and Blount-Harvey won over the Furniture Dealers 18-13 in Friday afternoon's two softball contests, both of which produced plenty of hitting.

Jim Seiler, new pitcher for the Water and Light team, fared better than any of the other three hurlers. Barnhill caught for the utilities men and started at bat, getting five for five. Jesse Brewer looked good in the field. Sumrell started pitching for Carolina Sales, but was relieved by Lynch.

It was a free-hitting contest that Blount-Harvey won over the Furniture Dealers, both teams keeping the bases warm circling them.

THEY SPOILED NO - HIT GAMES

(By The AP Feature Service)
No-hit baseball games are rare. The only ones in the major leagues this season were pitched by Cincinnati's John Vander Meer, two in succession. Six other hurlers came close, just one hit away from the perfect game. Here are the reasons they failed:

A bunt by BILL SULLIVAN, St. Louis, was the only hit off Cleveland's Bob Feller, April 20.

GOODWIN ROSEN, Brooklyn, spoiled no-hitters for Hal Schramm, New York, April 24, and Bill McGee, St. Louis, on May 17.

DEBS GARMES, Boston, made only one hit off Pittsburgh's Russ Bauers-Rip Sewell combination, May 17.

GEORGE STAINBACK, Philadelphia ruined the day for Carl Hubbell, New York, May 28.

A double by HAROLD WARSTLER, Boston, wrecked hopes of Van Lingle Mungo, Brooklyn, June 30.

Attorney - General To Rule Whether Badge Is Uniform

Question Coming Up After Motorist Declined to Show License to Officer Without Uniform

Raleigh, July 9—Attorney General Harry McMillan and his competent staff of assistants are gravely, and bravely, preparing to grapple with the serious problem of whether an officer's badge constitutes a "uniform" within the meaning of North Carolina statutes for some cases made and provided.

The question hasn't reached them officially—not yet; but it is reported to be on its way from Durham, via and through the office of Major Arthur Fulk, commanding the state Highway Patrol.

It seems that an A. B. C. officer over in Durham the other day went a-searching for liquor and bootleggers—as ABC officers are wont to do.

He stopped a suspect, apparently found no liquor and then demanded to see the driver's license of the chap driving the car suspected to have contained a load of illicit booze.

The driver demanded to know "how come" he must show his license, refused to do so; and finally wound up in the hoosegow charged with obstructing an officer, resisting arrest and maybe three or four other things.

Arraigned at the bar of justice—in this case in the recorder's court of Durham—the defendant came off triumphant, the recorder ruling that North Carolina's uniform driver's license law requires a motorist to show his license only to an "officer in uniform." So reads the statute in words and figures.

ABC people think such a ruling seriously handicaps their men, who do not wear uniforms, but for whom official badges are standard equipment. They want a ruling—have started on the way to get one.

Nobody in the Attorney General's office is talking for publication, in view of the fact the request hasn't been received; but it's a safe bet that the ruling will be Solomonlike in its wisdom, to-wit: It will decide that "in uniform" means just that and without equivocation; but at the same time it will be pointed out that under the general power of peace officers, any officer, in uniform or not, can ask reasonable identification and check on suspected law violations.

tries; the fellow convicted of a crime, other than a capital one, does almost exactly as well on a percentage basis; but the defendant who has heard a Superior court judge pronounce the death sentence on him, has only about one chance in five and a half of winning a new trial by taking his case before Chief Justice W. P. Stacy and his six associates.

Since last August 30, the Supreme court has heard appeals in 27 capital cases. In 22 of them the lower court verdict was upheld, and upheld unanimously; in five cases the defendants were given another chance to try their luck before 12 good and lawful men (incidentally in one of these cases the court refused to hold that "men" includes "women" or at least it said a man hasn't the right to contend it does—only a woman having such a privilege.)

Other criminal cases numbered 49 in all, with 33 resulting in the upholding of the lower court; 16 were reversed.

Of the 397 civil cases, 128 were either reversed outright by the Supreme court or were sent back for new trials below. In 269 instances the verdicts of the lower courts were upheld.

In the entire number of criminal cases heard at the two terms there was only one in which any justice dissented from the majority opinion. This was in the decision granting a new trial to Henry Mosley, Forsyth Negro, convicted of first degree murder.

erty, and the James heirs' plot at the corner of Fifth and Washington. The last named site appears at present to have the most support.

The third project endorsed by the board last night was the construction of a street department yard adjacent to the Water and Light plant property. It is proposed to spend $43,000 for this construction.

Felons Get Scant Hope From State's Highest Tribunal

Defendant Sentenced to Death Has Less Than One Chance In Five Winning New Trial

Raleigh, July 9—Persons convicted of capital felonies get scant comfort from the North Carolina Supreme Court, statistics compiled from decisions handed down at the Fall, 1937, and Spring, 1938, terms reveal.

The average civil case litigant who carries his cause to the highest appellate court in the state wins once in slightly more than three

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE —BUT NONE IN THE WELL

Otoe, Neb.—(AP)—All during the long drought years the village of Otoe got along. Now, with the heaviest rainfall in years, the town well is drying up, lawns are withering, automobiles go unwashed and water has been restricted to human needs.

Mayor R. R. Irland doesn't know the answer. But, he says, unless a test well being dug produces a good supply, Otoe faces a dangerous water shortage.

THEY TRY TO PICK THE BEST SMELLER

Muncie, Ind.—(AP)—A raccoon in a gunnysack and about 100 keen-nosed dogs give Muncie sportsmen something new on which to bet.

It's a mile race along a "coonscent" trail. Trails are made by dragging a raccoon in a burlap sack over field terrain. Sharp angles are included for benefit of the "slow but sure" dogs. The faster hounds overrun the trails and lose time getting back on the scent.

About a block from where the 'coon is chained, two judges stand at the sides of the trail and the dogs must pass between them to qualify for prizes.

Demand Makes The Prices.
Vienna.—(AP)—English lessons used to cost only 37 to 50 cents an hour here. But now there is a rush of business from persons wishing to escape from Nazi rule to America or England, and the price has gone up to $2.25-$2.50 an hour.

Wages in cotton mills in the early part of the 19th century were under $4 a week for women, and usually over $5 a week for men.

more and more wheat to make bread for the homefolks. But even so, America still had one-fifth of the world's export wheat market in 1929.

But all along, Canada, Australia, Argentina and Europe's Danubian basin were closing in. For instance, Canada contributed a mere 20,000,000 bushels to the world in 1900. In 1936, she exported 12 times that much.

Tariff Walls Go Up

And as if to complicate an already cockeyed situation, Uncle Sam was constantly raising his tariff walls. Then a few years after the World War he stopped lending money to European nations. These things cut off from foreigners the supply of money they had been using to buy American wheat. Then other nations began raising their own tariff walls in the late 20's.

The drought years—1933-37—knocked the American farmer out of the world market. True, he had a piece of good luck in 1937. A wheat shortage in other big exporting nations handed him 18 per cent of the world market, which meant the sale of around 90,000,000 bushels.

But 1938 is a different story. The American farmer planted 80,000,000 acres to wheat, close to a record. This time he guessed wrong. There is no wheat shortage abroad.
