

DARING FLIER IS WELCOMED BY DE VALERA

Dare-Devil Hailed In Ireland for 'Wrong Way' Flight

NO DIFFICULTIES ENCOUNTERED

Californian Also To Face Warm, Probably Profitable Welcome on Return

Dublin, July 19.—(AP)—Prime Minister de Valera congratulated Douglas "Dare-devil" Corrigan today on his "wrong way" flight from New York to Dublin.

The Prime Minister hurried from a cabinet meeting to greet the 31-year-old Californian and hear the details of the daring flight in the old 900 plane which Corrigan insisted brought him to Ireland instead of California because of a "little mistake" in directions.

After thanking de Valera for Ireland's kindness to him, Corrigan, appearing as fresh as if he had just hopped across the Irish sea, visited government buildings to straighten out difficulties arising out of his failure to have any of the papers a flier abroad is supposed to carry.

Officials of Ireland's department of external affairs told him they would place no difficulties in his way.

Corrigan went out to Baldonnell airport to see "old crate" and disclosed he hoped to visit London to exhibit the plane. There also was some talk that he might take the machine to the Glasgow exposition.

"I am not going home without the plane, but I won't fly it, the Californian explained. He said he would take it back by steamer.

He had lunch at the United States legation, where messages from many parts of the world poured in with congratulations on his flight. One of them was said to have been from Henry Ford.

Corrigan was $2,000 to the good already as a result of the little "mistake" in directions, having received that much from a radio broadcast to America.

New York reported meanwhile that Corrigan faced a warm and probably profitable welcome home and nothing worse than a spanking out behind the hanger at the hands of a foreing government.

Stiffing snickers that turned to open mouth amazement and then to admiration, persons of influence indicated his penalty, if any, for nose-thumbing the authorities would be light.

Increase Shown In Suicides In N. C.; Homicides Decline

Falling Off in Homicides in State Brings Half Year's Average To Less Than One a Day

Reflector Bureau: more suicides, and fewer homicides. Raleigh, July 19.—There were in North Carolina last month than in any other month period during the last two and a half years, June figures of the Vital Statistics Division, revealed.

There were 37 suicides (a mark equalled only by February of this year) and 13 homicides—the first time there had been less than 23 in any month during the period since June 1936.

No explanation for the sudden increase of suicides and decrease in homicides has been offered—both incidents probably being just the sort of happen-so-which mark any series of statistics.

The falling off in homicides brought the half year average to slightly less than one a day, with a total of 162 since January 1. However, if the second half of the year comes up to the corresponding periods of either 1937 or 1936, the killing a day rate will still hold good for this year. In the last half of 1937 there were 204 North Carolina homicides, while in 1936 the killing total stood at 261 from July through December.

Another angle of the suicide-homicide figures for the first half of this year is that for the first time total suicides exceeded homicides with a count of 182 to 162.

Suicides of 1938 exceeded those of 1937 by 19, while homicides dropped 36. In the first six months of 1938 there were 163 homicides, just one more than this year; but there were only 138 suicides, 44 fewer than this year.

Statistics on deaths are comparatively meaningless unless figured over a period of year, but the figures for the past two and a half years indicate that North Carolinians are killing themselves and each other at about two a day.

"The Star Spangled Banner" was first sung in a Baltimore tavern.

GEORGIA MART TO OPEN SOON

Prices Expected to Influence Fate of Control

Moultrie, Ga., July 19.—(AP)—Tobacco buyers moved into this section of the southern belt today to arrange for first sales under Federal control marketing quotas.

AAA officials said prices paid at the Georgia-Florida auctions, starting July 28, are expected to influence the fate of the future control programs for such crops as cotton, corn and wheat.

Quotas are established upon a two-thirds vote of approval by the growers, and an election for 1939 is required by December 15 under the adjustment act.

The national quota for tobacco has been fixed at 733,000,000 pounds, of which Georgia and Florida will supply an estimated 90,000,000.

Farmers may sell tobacco produced in excess of individual allotments upon payment of penalty of 53 per cent of the market price at the time the leaf is sold.

Last year the sale of tobacco turned loose more than $15,000,000 in cash in Georgia alone.

SCIENTIST SAYS MAN ONCE LIVED IN TREES

Berkeley, Calif.—(AP)—There is little evidence that man walked on all fours in his early evolution, but definite evidence he once lived in trees, says Dr. Franz Weidenreich, honorary director of the Cenozoic Research Laboratory of Peiping, China.

A decisive point in evolution seems to have been reached when he descended the trees for the ground, Dr. Weidenreich said in a lecture here.

Lots of Luck! Palestine, Ill.—(AP)—In a patch of ground about a foot square, Mrs. Charles T. Connett says she picked 55 four-leaf clovers.

Election Aftermath Seen As Blessing In Disguise

Reflector Bureau: Raleigh, July 19.—This year's series of election fraud rows are probably blessings in disguise, in that they will result in definite corrective action by the next General Assembly, Raymond C. Maxwell, secretary of the State Board of Elections, said today.

The blazing aftermath of contest and controversy will, at least, center attention on the more obviously needed reforms, he said, citing particularly abuses of the absentee ballot and the terrible mess in which so many registration books have been found.

"The whole series of controversies this year could have been avoided if the 1937 legislature had heeded the advice of Major L. P. McLendon, then chairman of the board," said Mr. Maxwell.

"He suggested more stringent restrictions around absentee voting. Adoption of these suggestions would have prevented any flagrant mis-

'Lindbergh of Rumania' Prepares To Hop Thursday

New York, July 19.—(AP)—The second solo flight across the Atlantic ocean in less than a week will be attempted Thursday by Capt. Alexander Papania, the "Lindbergh of Rumania," who hopes to become the first to fly the 4,712 miles from New York to Bucharest non-stop.

The captain, famous in European sport circles and recognized as an outstanding aerobatic performer, holds the Rumanian altitude record of 41,700 feet.

For the ocean part of the route he will follow the trail of Douglas Corrigan, who conquered the ocean stretch—the eighth person to do it solo—yesterday in a surprise hop to Ireland.

Papania will use a new type transport plane and expects to complete the trip in 31 hours. The twin-motored craft, relatively small, has a wing span of 50 feet, nine inches and a length of 35 feet, eight inches. It will have a gross weight of 7,950 pounds.

The Rumanian air force officer's projected flight to his homeland was announced officially almost a year ago. Later the captain announced a $50,000 specially built trimotored speed plane, bought with the contributions of friends and the Rumanian public, had proved unsatisfactory for its purpose.

Papania decided to raise money alone for another plane and stunted at air shows at Cleveland, St. Louis, Miami, Oakland and other points. By late spring he had earned enough.

Thirty-Six To Finish at NCS Summer Term

Raleigh, July 19.—Thirty-six students in the current summer session at State College are candidates for graduation with the Bachelor of Science degree. Registrar W. L. Mayer announced today.

Diplomas will be mailed to the seniors after the faculty meets in September to pass final judgment on their qualifications. The regular summer session will end July 21, and an added term of six weeks will begin immediately.

Globe Girdler Was Born Rich But He Worked His Way To Top

Here's the first in a series of stories of Howard Hughes. It tells you facts about aviation's new Hero No. 1 never before published. The story was rounded up especially for the AP Feature Service and for this newspaper.

(By The AP Feature Service) The year was 1909 and the place a Texas pond. Around the pond buzzed a toy speedboat, replica of the fastest craft then afloat. And on the bank stood a four-year-old youngster yelling at the top of his lungs—

"Come on, Skidoo!" The boy was Howard Robert Hughes, Jr., a thoughtful, dreamy lad who was striving even then for speed. It was nearly 30 years before he went as far and as fast as he really wanted to. And by then he had packed enough things into his life to make a legend.

Where did Hughes get this instinct for speed? His only surviving great aunt, Mrs. Hugh L. McLain, Sr., thinks "sonny" inherited his adventurous spirit from his great grandfather, General Richard M. Gano, a soldier, preacher and business man.

Father Made Fortunes When Texas was still the wild west, General Gano went there from Kentucky, bought a farm near Dallas and practiced medicine also. At the outbreak of the Civil war he organized a company of cavalry to fight for the Confederacy. He rose to the rank of major general. When the war ended General Gano entered the ministry and baptized more than 16,000 persons.

It was in a Gano backyard, as a child, that Hughes made mud pies. Hughes' own father, Howard, Sr., amassed several fortunes before piling up the one that made his son a multi-millionaire. A pioneer of the southwestern oil fields, Hughes, Sr., finally struck it rich by inventing a drill with 166 cutting edges that chewed through flint as easily as through mud.

Howard just missed being a Christmas day baby. He was born Dec. 24, 1905, at Houston. Three months later his mother, Allene Gano Hughes, took him to Dallas. Even as a baby, relatives say, he was serious. He liked animals, although he was cautious with them. (Continued on page six)

BRITISH KING AND QUEEN ON FRENCH VISIT

Arrive Aboard Royal Yacht for a Visit of State

FIRST SUCH TRIP IN OVER 25 YEARS

Battleships, Cruisers, and Destroyers Form Double Line Outside Port of Boulogne

Paris, July 19.—(AP)—A booming salute of 101 guns welcomed King George and Queen Elizabeth today on their arrival for a visit of state to France.

Boulogne, France, July 19.—(AP)—King George and Queen Elizabeth of Britain came to France today aboard the royal yacht Enchantress for the first visit of state of British Monarch to France in a quarter century.

French naval ships, ranged before the port of Boulogne, boomed a 21-gun salute and hoisted the British flag as the Enchantress entered at 12:30 p. m. (6:30 a. m. EST).

A battleship, five cruisers and six destroyers formed a double line outside the port, and through this line the Enchantress, met in mid channel by seven other French destroyers, passed.

Two more destroyers and two submarines, which were at anchor in the harbor, joined in the salute to the British Monarchs, who came to reaffirm the common front of Britain and France, probably stronger than at any time since the world war.

Crews of all ships lined the decks and cheered, while ship's bands broke into "God Save the King." As soon as the Enchantress docked, France's foreign minister, Georges Bonet, went aboard to greet the King and Queen.

To Queen Elizabeth, wearing black with a knot of white flowers on her left shoulder, he presented a bouquet of French roses.

A huge crowd cheered and waved banners.

Old Book Analyzed By Duke Professors

Durham, July 19.—A little book written over 400 years ago, which is believed to have long been a chief source of inspiration for Mussolini, is the subject of a new approach analysis by Dr. Allen H. Gilbert, Duke University professor of English.

The book, "The Prince," by Niccolò Machiavelli, 1469-1527, is devoted to advice addressed to an ideal ruler of Italy who would deliver his country as a unit.

Dr. Gilbert, after a close study of the literature of the period, points out that there were many such attempts by writers to publish advice to their ruling princes. Machiavelli's "The Prince" while not at all unique, was the greatest of its type.

Navy Fliers Die

Sverett, Wash., July 19.—(AP)—Two navy fliers died yesterday when a scouting seaplane from the U. S. S. Louisville plunged into the Snohomish river after hitting power wires. The victims were aviation cadet Joseph Carter Booth, Glendale, Calif., and J. J. Monti, pharmacists' mate.

Recount Of "Absentees" May Cost Burgin Victory

Reflector Bureau: Raleigh, July 19.—There are strong indications that the apparent victory of W. O. Burgin of Davidson county, in the Eighth Congressional district, will be changed into a loss once the State Board of Elections has had a shot at counting the absentee ballots in Burgin's home county.

Naturally and properly no member of the state board is committing for one reason or another. There, of course, Burgin was the gainer by this wholesale tossing out of votes in Davidson, on the contrary, Deane would stand to pick up more than 200 votes if the 25 per cent re-jection should hold true and if Burgin received about the same proportionate share of absentee votes as of those cases personally at the polls.

Mr. Maxwell said that Chairman W. C. Lucas has been in Davidson looking carefully into the absentee situation.

CLUBS USED ON PICKET LINES

Crowd Forced From Strike-Bound Chicago Foundry

North Chicago, Ill., July 19.—(AP)—A force of policemen and deputies, flailing clubs and firing tear gas bombs, drove a crowd of pickets from the strike-bound Chicago Hardware Foundry company plant today.

The officers, numbering about 50 and recruited from north shore towns, moved to swift attack after a gathering of between 400 and 500 demonstrators and spectators ignored their orders to disperse.

A half dozen women pickets were knocked off the ground. A number of other participants in the battle were struck by stones and bottles, but none was injured seriously.

The demonstrators, enjoined from interfering with non-striking workers in a recent court order, retreated to a point three blocks from the plant.

They remained there while 20 foremen and employees entered the plant.

The officers placed a tight guard about the plant—closed for six weeks because of a strike called by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, a CIO affiliate.

Officers carried guns, but did not use them. They fired tear gas, pistols and three gas bombs. About 50 gas missiles burst within a few minutes.

After the first clash the pickets retreated, formed their ranks again and gave way anew as the deputies advanced, hurling tear gas bombs into the crowds.

At length the demonstrators were driven to a point three blocks from the plant.

TAX RATE CUT SEEN FOR PITT

Indicated the Present Rate of 85 Cents Will Be Reduced

The 1938-39 county budget is practically completed and indications are that the present county rate of 85 cents on the $100 valuation will be decreased for the current fiscal year.

Although figures are still in the hands of auditors, sales and profits of the ABC stores almost doubled last year when $45,000 was turned over to the county general fund. The increased profits from the sale of liquor will enable the commissioners to reduce the tax rate, it is believed.

The city of Greenville has adopted its tentative budget and announcement made that the old rate of one dollar on the $100 valuation will be retained.

Bohlinger said the horse had to be shod seven times on the journey and he averaged only 20 or 30 miles a day. Farmers, the preacher reported, still are glad to give a horse-riding traveler a night's free lodging.

Fletcher Predicts Minimum Wage Of 30 Cents Per Hour

Commissioner of Labor Believes Textile Workers Will Receive Better Than 25 Cents

Raleigh, July 19.—Major A. L. Fletcher, North Carolina's Commissioner of Labor, sees the minimum wage in the textile industry as likely to be set at approximately 30 cents per hour, rather than at the 25 cent hourly minimum permissible under the recently enacted Federal Wage-Hour bill.

In the event the figure is 30 cents the result will be a necessity of raising minimum wage rates in the "majority of the textile industry," both Major Fletcher and his chief aide, Forrest Shuford, believe.

Neither would express an opinion that the majority of textile mills in North Carolina are paying minimum wages of less than 30 cents, but they did think it true of a majority of the industry throughout the country.

Major Fletcher pointed out that under NRA the textile wage minimum was set at 30 cents by the industry itself—a fact which backs his view that this figure will be decided on by the new Wage-Hour (Continued on page six)

Milk Truck Driver Testifies Before Senate Body

Washington, July 19.—(AP)—A milk truck driver told the Senate Civil Liberties Committee today that steel company guards clubbed and gassed a crowd of 200 persons in the Berger Manufacturing Company strike at Canton, Ohio, May 27, 1935.

D. Smith, a witness, testified the attack was unprovoked. About 30 guards, he said, hemmed in union pickets and on-lookers, flooded them with tear gas from the roof tops, and closed in with iron clubs.

Christian Science Church.

"Life" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, July 17.

The golden text was from John 5:26. "As the Father hath life in himself, so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." (Gal. 6:7-8).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The belief that God lives in matter is pantheistic. The error, which says that Soul is in body, Mind is in matter, and good is in evil, must un-derstand it and cease from such utterances; else God will continue to be hidden from humanity, and mortals will sin without knowing that they are sinning, will lean on matter instead of Spirit, stumble with lameness, drop with drunkenness, consume with disease—all because of their blindness, their false sense concerning God and man. When will the error of believing that there is life in matter, and that sin, sickness, and death are creations of God, be unmasked? When will it be understood that matter has neither intelligence, life, nor sensation, and that the opposite belief is the prolific source of all suffering?"

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—With no intentions of slighting the fair cuties now displaying their charms on Broadway, I must come out with the statement that two little Mexican girls have more explosive "zing" than any showgirls in New York.

They are Joyita and Maravilla, and you may have seen them if you are partial to Mexican movies. For that is where they began their careers before Benito Collada, wield- ing more of that accustomed ledger-domain, rounded them up in Mexico City and carted them off to his Greenwich Village rendezvous, El Chico. He must have chloroformed those night club and theatrical operators down there to get them out of town with signed contracts.

Permit me then to be your go-between, since they speak no English and your correspondent knows a dozen words in Spanish. Spoken, to be sure, with some trace of a southern accent, but Spanish nevertheless, and here we go.

The Senoritas Joyita and Maravilla are sisters. They look about 16 but I suspect they are nudging 20. Maravilla is slightly taller which brings her about five-feet-two. She has a countenance that is highlighted by a pair of the most amazing dimples you ever saw. Joyita is perhaps a year younger, barely reaches five feet in height, and has an engaging roguishness that shimmers through her personality like moonlight in wine.

I should like at this point to give an adequate description of their eyes, but being no poet, I can only say that they are not just show-girl eyes. It is true they use mascara, and it is equally true that they use all the tricks of theatrical make-up designed to make little girls what they aren't. But there is a vast difference. Si, Senor, there is a vast difference, but you will have to see for yourself to understand what I mean.

Apparently they have a thousand costumes, for I never have seen them wear the same dresses twice. But usually they are adorned with large Mexican sombreros, and they come walking out singing joyously and lustily, songs of the Mexican rancheros.

If you are a pretty girl and are visiting El Chico, be not surprised at anything which may happen to your escort. For they take great delight in teasing their sister fem-ales by showering attention on at- tentant swains. It makes for good fun, and that after all is what you go to night clubs for.

(Hey, fellows, Psst!! In New York, during off hours, they live on Riverside Drive. In Mexico City their address is No. 55 Campeche. And if that isn't a friendly bit of information, I don't know what is).

And now, if you'll excuse me, I'll be putting on my hat and getting down to 80 Grove street. I gotta hear some more about those Mexi- can rancheros.

Fast Punching

New York (AP)—One ringside statistician estimated Henry Armstrong hit Barney Ross 1200 punches in winning their 15-round welterweight championship bout—an average of two punches a second for 45 minutes.

A study made of the labor done by a farm housewife over a period of 30 years showed that she prepared approximately 22,488 meals. The labor cost at 15 cents a meal would be over $35,000.

LOVE ON THE RANGE

BY NELSON C. WEE

The Story So Far
Under the name of Abe Street-er, quick-fire Ankrum takes a job on the troubled Rafter T ranch to help lovely Lee Trone. Colonel Struthers and his daughter Betty come to visit and Ankrum recognizes Struthers as a gambler, Kelson Dream. Then Dream is mysteriously shot. Both Rafterford, the burly sheriff and Claydell, a neighboring rancher, had also recognized the imposture. Trouble breaks in a new quarter when rustlers wipe the range clean.

Chapter 15 A Leak

"THEM rustlin' polecats was on us boys before we could get from our blankets," the puncher continued breathlessly. "Blowed Charlie's lamp plumb out! Slammed Ed outen the saddle s' quick he never knowed what hit 'im! I riz up empty'n my iron fast as I could work the trigger, grabbed Ed's horse as it come larrupin' by. I been slick'n leather ever since. Figgered you'd wanta know quick."

"Where'd they head for?" bel-lowed Rafterford.

"I didn't do no lingerin' on that lan'scape! F you wanta know, I'd suggest you fork a bronc right out there, mister."

"Where'n hell was Hackett?"

Leaving it then with trailing reins he went to the bunkhouse and left the corral to the punchers.

When he emerged several moments later a belt and holster sagged about his waist. His spurs rang thinly as he crossed to where three mounted men awaited him beside the saddled buckskin. He climbed aboard and threw his glance against the man from the northwest line camp.

"Lead off," he said, "and don't wear these horses out. We may need 'em later on."

When Ankrum returned to the Rafter T's home ranch it was almost noon. After caring for his buckskin, Ankrum strode stiffly to the ranch-house and, without knocking, quietly entered Trone's office. The old man looked up with a scowl.

"Back, eh? What did you find out?"

"You got any idea where these rustled cattle been goin'?" Ankrum countered.

Trone's scowl grew blackly deeper. "No," he said, and crossed his arms.

"Do you know how they've been goin' away with?"

"No, I don't know that, either. Don't you ever take a paseo around your range?"

"Polecat On The Payroll"

TRONE regarded Ankrum coldly hard-held temper plainly visible behind the pupils of his faded

"Lead off, and don't wear these horses out."

Trone demanded, spurred by a sudden surge of anger at his loss. "Couldn't say, boss. Haven't seen 'im for a week."

Ankrum stepped forward from the shadows. "Didn't he go to your southeast line camp last night?" he asked. And at Trone's dispirited nod: "He hasn't showed here since?"

Trone shook his head and again his hand brushed across his eyes as though to shut away unpleasant pictures. "It's been this way right along," he muttered slowly. "Hackett's always somewhere else when these rustlers strike. I can't understand this thing."

"Must be a leak someplace," Ankrum suggested thoughtfully.

"Leak!" Trone thundered. "Leak! Hell—they know every move we make!" He glared to ward Rafterford. "If the law was worth a damn—"

"That's enough of that brand of lip, go. Rafterford growled. "I ain't no mind-reader!" He turned to the puncher. "You say two of the Rafter T men were downed?"

"I ain't sure whether they cashed in Ed's chips or not. But they sure blowed Charlie's lamp out! An' last I seen of Ed he was sprawled out on his face an' not doin' any movin'." He looked toward Trone. "We goin' to stand round here gassin' all night?"

"I guess the sheriff here will take charge," Trone answered.

"Not now I won't," Rafterford growled. "Right now I got all I can tend to runnin' down this murder business. You'll have to take care of it yourself, Trone."

eyes. "I gave you a chore this mornin'—but I don't recollect givin' you any authority to—"

Ankrum checked him. "The-issn't the time for that," he drawled. Thrustin' his hands deep down in his trouser pockets he took a turn or two about the room. When he next faced Trone his eyes were hard and cold. "You've got a polecat on your payroll. Maybe two or three."

Trone stared back in silence.

Ankrum said. "This polecat I mentioned is passin' the word to these rustlers. He tells 'em when it's safe to make a haul an' like-wise where to make it."

"You got proof of this?"

"Hasn't Hackett been reportin' that you're losin' cattle?" At Trone's nod Ankrum shrugged. "I'd say it was evident then. As your range boss, it's up to Hackett to stop the stealin'. Evidently he can't stop it. There's only one feason, as I see it, why Hackett can't stop your losses with the men at his disposal. Someone on your payroll is tipping the rustlers off tellin' 'em where Hackett and the men will be at a time when a bunch of your critters are loosely guarded someplace else."

"You ought to be a detective," Ankrum grinned. "Then you've known that much right along, eh? How come you don't know then how your cattle are bein' stolen?"

"They're bein' run off into the badlands, into the lava beds or across that big salt flat. Trail peders out in them places an' we can't—"

"Do you know why the trail peders out?" Ankrum interrupted.

"Sure. It peters out in the badlands because steers don't leave much trail on lava. An' who could trail steers across a loose salt flat with the kind of winds we have in Texas?" Trone growled. "You got any more bright remarks?"

"Yeah—one or two. You, or your foreman, has jumped to the wrong conclusion."

"What do you mean?"

"Those rustled cattle of yours have never been driven more than a hundred yards into the badlands or out onto that salt flat."

"You're crazy!" Trone snapped testily.

"Your cattle," Ankrum went on imperturbably, "have been taken off this range in trucks."

Ankrum has a showdown with the range boss, tomorrow.

"Must be a leak someplace," Ankrum suggested thoughtfully.

"Leak!" Trone thundered. "Leak! Hell—they know every move we make!" He glared to ward Rafterford. "If the law was worth a damn—"

"That's enough of that brand of lip, go. Rafterford growled. "I ain't no mind-reader!" He turned to the puncher. "You say two of the Rafter T men were downed?"

"I ain't sure whether they cashed in Ed's chips or not. But they sure blowed Charlie's lamp out! An' last I seen of Ed he was sprawled out on his face an' not doin' any movin'." He looked toward Trone. "We goin' to stand round here gassin' all night?"

"I guess the sheriff here will take charge," Trone answered.

"Not now I won't," Rafterford growled. "Right now I got all I can tend to runnin' down this murder business. You'll have to take care of it yourself, Trone."

Take The Boys

TO ANKRUM it seemed that Trone was about to make some violent retort. He straightened stiffly, but then shrugged. "Streeter, take the boys an' see what you can do," he said and went back inside the house.

Ankrum went toward the corral. "Rattle your hocks, fellas, an' let's get movin'."

"An' be damn sure you come back when you're finished!" the sheriff shouted.

Ankrum strode inside the corral building a loop in his rope. The horses broke and circled, piling up against the pole enclosure's farther side. His buckskin saw him coming and dropped its head. Ankrum waited. When the buckskin's neck came up again the rope snapped out and dropped its loop for a ring. Ankrum led the horse outside and swiftly saddled it.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

New York—This, folks, is my day of atonement and embarrassment. Here I've come to New York to check up on a lot of things. My two weeks have slid by like a greased pig, and what's this on my desk, leaning at me, but a pile of scrambled notes marked: Unfinished Business?

Printhead:

Write a piece on Jack Holt, and let the world know that Jack—more than 20 years a movie star, and no longer so hot in Hollywood—is the biggest star on Broadway. Tell Jack, if he doesn't know it, that his name goes up in monstrous twinklers every time he sends a picture to the old main stem. Tell the Holt fans everywhere now their clamor kept Columbia from "droppin'" him when that studio tried to "wash him up."

Four Young Ladies

See this pretty Martha Scott of "Our Town," the girl that has all the movie talent scouts dithering. Find out why she can't make up her mind—or if she has.

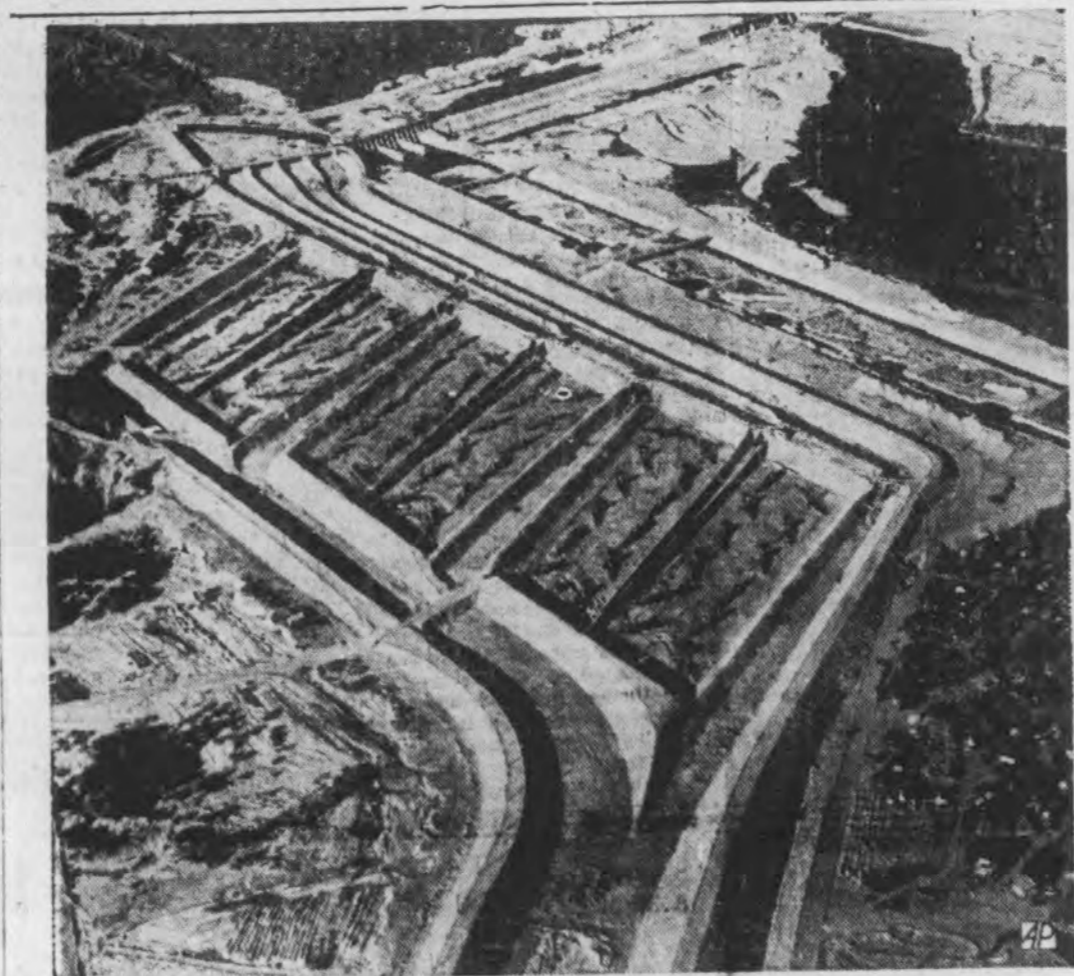

Find out why the movies haven't grabbed up Patricia Morrison, the striking dark beauty of "The Two Bouquets." And write a yarn about Marcy Westcott, the loveliest blonde (after Zorina) the other side of footlights now. Tell how Marcy, signed by Metro for movies, got this stage break as her first film

NEWLY-ELECTED CAROLINA FARMERS

Shown above are the newly elected Carolina Farmers, the highest degree awarded to Young Tar Heel Farmers in this State and therefore coveted by more than 10,000 students studying agriculture in the high schools. These young men received this merit on the basis of both their scholastic records and for outstanding achievement in their farm practice program. They were chosen from the ranks of their fellows at the Tenth Anniversary State Convention held at State College recently. According to Roy H. Thomas, State Supervisor of Vocational Agriculture, this is the largest number of boys being awarded this degree in any one year.

assignment, when Producer Marc Connelly couldn't find the right girl, and the movies saved his day with the loan of Marcy.

Dish out some praise for Connelly for daring to present a quaint old-fashioned musical—without a line of filth or double-meaning—to New York audiences. They're supposed to have lost taste for lavender and old lace, sachets, and the scent of mignonette, but Connelly reminded 'em.

Write a fan letter to Josephine Dillon Gable for Julie Haydon's New York triumph in "Shadow and Substance"—because Julie's dramatic coach stuck by her in Hollywood when too many producers didn't realize what a star they might have had. "Will you, really?" said Julie. "And give her my dearest love!"

Blood And Thunder

Look into the strange case of Arthur L. Mayer, Harvard graduate and movie exhibitor, whose motto is "Everything is hunky-dory at the Rialto." Mayer plays murder, blood-and-thunder, wild west and he-man flickers exclusively—and to heck with the women's trade. And he makes it pay. And then, on the Harvard and culture side, he brings over "artistic" foreign films on which he stands to lose his hunky-dory profits. Strange, strange case.

Do up Paramount's Max Fleisher (Betty Boop's papa), only man with courage—or is it nerve?—enough to follow Disney with a full-length cartoon feature. Our "Gulliver's Travels" will be a most unusual picture," Max said. Meaning he realized, I hope, it would have to be after "Snow White."

Interview John Hoyt, the ex-history teacher now wowing the Rainbow Room with his monologic mimicry. Talk to other Rockettes besides blonde Bonnie Bradley of Youngstown, Ohio, and see if they're all as typical of the Hollywood choline as Bonnie is—which is meant, Bonnie, for a compliment.

Well, there are other notes, but you can see how it is. It's this way in Hollywood, too, but I'd thought New York would be different. I'd thought to get things done.

And now I've got to make a train to keep a date with some fresh country air—somewhere between the movie capitals of east end west. Some talented writing and acting folk of Hollywood are going to take over while I practice breathing—and I'm as grateful to them as even you will be.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Conner

Washington—In connection with the current discussion of Jimmy Roosevelt's wealth and influence, some figures this correspondent gathered might be interesting. Our figures, near enough first hand to be satisfactory, were rounded up before the recent publication of estimates of Jimmy's insurance income. They do not indicate anything ultra fancy.

Our information is that the young Roosevelt puts the "capitalized value" of his insurance business at $150,000 to $200,000. That is a somewhat elastic factor but at the time we obtained the figures we were told that his earnings from insurance were considerably less than the "capitalized value." This latter represented the amount at which he valued his business as a going concern.

In arriving at the capitalized value of a company this procedure is followed. A company may estimate that it is making a 10 per cent profit. Then its "capitalized value" becomes 10 times its earnings. Thus, if the company's earnings are $20,000 its "capitalized value" is $200,000.

Anyway, He's Got A Job Reversing the process, a company with a "capitalized value" of $200,000 might be found to have earnings of $20,000, or anything else from nearly nothing to nearly 100 times the capitalized value.

But whether Jimmy's insurance business was valued for us on the basis of 10 per cent earnings or on some other figure can not be said. Bits of further information coming to us indicate that he has $13,000 equity in the $37,000 home he recently purchased at Framingham, Mass.; has $15,000 in securities, and a $10,000 trust fund set up for him by his father. In addition, his wife, Betsy, daughter of Dr. Harvey Cushing, a prominent Boston brain specialist, was described to us as having about $20,000 of her own.

Earnings on the securities and the trust, calculated at five per cent would be $2,250. Besides this income, Jimmy of course gets $10,000 as secretary to the President.

Note On A Bus At this point we turn to a little item that seems to indicate that literary talent may yet be blossoming in government bureaus, and please note that Walt Whitman once was a government clerk in Washington. We were riding in the bus that brings us to work from far off Maryland when the little brunette item sitting beside us wrote a neat bit in a small black book. No doubt she will sometime draw heavily on the little book in drafting the great American novel.

What she wrote was: "An orchid min in a cauliflower body." It does seem to mean something.

And another thing, the Walter Johnsons certainly do eat cantaloupe. People who don't follow baseball may have forgotten that Johnson is considered by almost everybody as the greatest baseball pitcher who ever lived. We went by our favorite outdoor fruit market on the outskirts of Washington looking for cantaloupes.

"I'm sorry but I have only one left," said the manager. "Walter Johnson just came by and bought 32." We sucked in our breath and made proper exclamations about people who buy 32 at a swat, but he said: "Well, he has a pretty big family." (Note: We didn't buy that remaining cantaloupe. It had a soft spot).

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, July 19—Do you know any good fishing holes where a young lady who Garbo-like "wants to be alone" can exercise her skill as a disciple of the famed Isak Walton?

If so just notify the Advertising Division of the Department of Conservation and Development which has received this request. "Can you tell me where a woman, alone, can go in North Carolina to fish in peace? I realize that this is an unusual request, since women are not supposed to care for fishing. Can you help by giving some suggestions for my vacation?"

The State Farm Tenant Advisory Committee for North Carolina met here yesterday and recommended allocations of funds to be loaned to tenants to purchase land.

The state's share of the funds this year is $1,318,965. Names of the counties in which loans were recommended will not be made public until after they have been approved by the Secretary of Agriculture.

North Carolina melon growers are getting better prices this year, the state Department of Agriculture says, because growers here agreed with those of South Carolina, Georgia and Florida to prohibit shipment of melons lower than U. S. No. 1 grade. As a result the local market are not glutted with low grade melons from other Southeastern states.

A hikers' campers' and outdoor enthusiasts' paradise is rapidly coming into being in western North Carolina through the independent but interlocking efforts of the three agencies—the National Park Service, National Forest Service and the North Carolina Park Service.

There are many straws in the election row winds pointing to even more sensational developments than have broken since the primaries. A good tip is that not only a few scattered precinct officials will be ousted, but one whole county board will be tossed out, bag and baggage, by the state board of elections.

Governor Clyde R. Hoey was recently quoted as saying he was "not worried" because the Governor of North Carolina has no veto power. If he ever was, he quickly got over it when the 1937 General Assembly enacted the county option ABC liquor law.

Think what a spot our esteemed chief executive, a life long and professing dry, would have been in if he had had the power to say "Nay" to that legislation.

In politics and sports, both, today you're a hero, tomorrow you're a bum; a truth which was forcefully called to this correspondent's attention last week by baseball headlines of two consecutive days.

First head said: "Ace Parker's Hit Wins for Athletics."

Second ditto chronicled: "Ace Parker's Boot Beats Athletics."

Just the same the former All-America back seems to be making good with a vengeance with Connie Mack's "Duke Annex" as the Athletics have been dubbed.

There will be no executions at Central Prison during the rest of this month, at least. With Governor Hoey up "nawth" on his vacation, whatever doomed men are scheduled to die before he comes back will undoubtedly be given reprieves until he gets back.

Just before he went North the Governor was urged to call a special session of the legislature to consider appropriations to match Federal and private funds for higher education for Negroes. Not much chance.

TICKET TO PARIS?

Ships Like These Will Put Flights To Europe On Business Basis

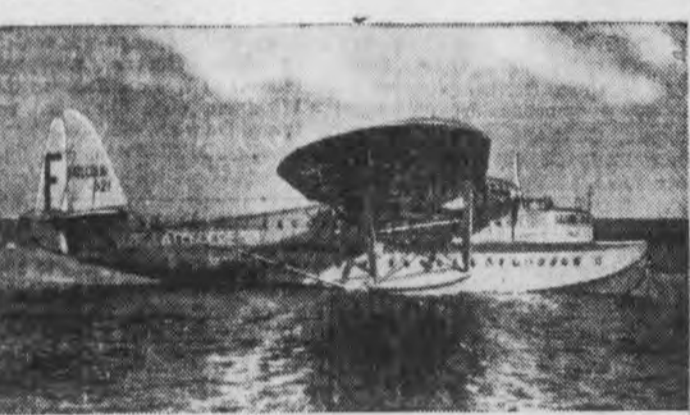

(By the AP Feature Service)

Next summer you may be able to step up to your travel agent and get an airplane ticket to Europe. Because long before Howard Hughes proved how fast you can get there, aviation companies were planning transatlantic hops on a paying basis.

Fifty or more survey flights are scheduled for this summer and four countries are lining up contenders for the North Atlantic business. Here are some of the planes they are entering:

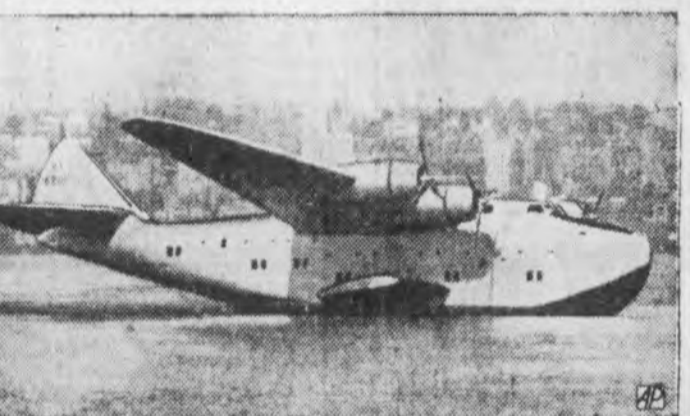

BRITAIN'S ENTRY is this famed pick-a-back combination of the Imperial Airways. The little plane, Mercury, is launched in mid-air from the big plane, Maia. Such a scheme lessens the danger a heavily-loaded plane faces on the take-off. The Mercury is designed to carry 2,500 pounds of mail or freight.

THE FRENCH are counting on this 64-passenger seaplane, Lieutenant de Vaisseau Paris. This is the ship that turned over in a squall off Florida two years ago, but it's been rebuilt. France, the only interested country that made no survey flights last year, has ordered two 66-ton seaplanes (the Lieutenant weighs 40) for passenger service to New York in 1940.

GERMANY usually launches its transatlantic boats by catapult. This is the 16-ton Nordwin, one of the planes with which the Luftwaffe expects to conduct weekly experimental flights from Portugal to New York by way of the Azores.

THE UNITED STATES is likely to be less busy over the Atlantic this summer than other nations. For Pan American Airways completed survey flights last summer and is awaiting its new super-clippers, being built in Seattle. They'll be ready in the fall. Here's one of them during a test—it weighs 41 tons, has a maximum speed of 200 miles an hour, can fly 4,000 miles with a payload.

Diabetes Now and Back Yonder

By C. W. BYNUM

Bissette's Drug Store

The critical scrutiny of a physician today quickly recognizes the symptoms and the stage of diabetes, or Bright's disease. Once this malady was thought to be incurable. Persons so affected lingered through a period of pain and distress and went to their death long years before their life span was due to end.

Medical science has changed this dreadful verdict to one of hope. There is relief and even cure for this once fatal disease.

The patient who suffers from this malady should be under the care of a capable physician, one who is thoroughly in touch with the progress of the insulin discovery. Such a doctor can prescribe accurately and hopefully for symptoms of diabetes.

His prescriptions must be filled by a pharmacist who has also kept abreast with research in this field.

Walker's Club Wins First Coastal All-Star Game, 9-3

DON KING IS CREDITED WIN

'Walkers' Allow The 'West's' Only 5 Hits and 3 Runs; Delaney and Smith Other Greenie Stars in the First All-Star Tilt

Kinston, July 19.—Peahawk Walker's forces in the Coastal Plain League's first All-Star game showed absolutely no favoritism while working on three opposition hurlers for a 9-3 triumph over Tommy West's club here Monday afternoon.

Nearly 2,000 fans paid to see the Class D league's first all-star game, and league officials decided the occasion was a real success. The game will be an annual fixture.

Walker's team made five hits and three runs against each of the West team's hurlers. In contrast, the Walker chunkers delivered a combined performance in which the losers were set down with five hits. Bill Herring, starter for Walker, yielded the West club's three runs in the third inning, his last. Herring walked two batters and hit one; a tally came home on Earl Carnahan's fly to center, and two registered when Tarboro's Frankie Ware cracked a double.

The Walkers made three in their half of the third, at the expense of Kinston's Ed Hurley.

Walkers Break Tie

The 3-3 deadlock lasted only until the fifth, when the Walkers counted twice against Lefty Flora. Mullinax and Knowles hit singles to start things. Flora struck out Stringfellow and Patton, but Williamson's Ace Villepique hit one to the far reaches of right center. The luck, good for two outs, drove in two runs.

The Walker club had everything needed to win—Peahad got good pitching, and there was power in the outfield. Greenville's Don King, who pitched three frames, gave two hits in the fourth but fanned the side. He yielded no further hits. Snow Hill's Allan Gettel worked two innings and pitched to only six batters, none of whom succeeded in hitting the ball out of the infield. Greenville's John Delaney pitched the ninth. He yielded a hit to New Bern's Black with two out, and then fanned his regular battery mate, Greenville's Vincent Smith, to end the game.

Walker's Siege Guns

About that power in the Walker outfield, New Bern's Worliss (Pop) Knowles cracked a double and three singles for five times to pace the attack. Goldsboro's Glenn Mullinax contributed a double and three singles for five, and Williamson's Ace Villepique chimed in with a double and a single for five. Each of the three gardeners drove in two runs, and Mullinax and Knowles scored two apiece. Walker harvested a good scoring crop from his garden.

Wake Forest college was well-represented. As you know, Boss Walker is head coach at the Baptist school. On his club today were Floyd Patton and Bill Herring, former Deacon athletes; on the other side was Howard Earp, another ex-Deacon.

The Wake Forest folks, on hand got their biggest kick when Patton banged into one of Breezy Beard's pitches in the ninth. The drive just cleared the fence in right center at a point about 280 feet from the plate. The two-run homer followed a double by Knowles and a single by Sid Stringfellow.

Patton's homer was the fifth over-the-fence circuit ball since Kinston's new park opened this season. It was his second. Earp was one of the fielding luminaries. He made especially nifty plays on raps by Mullinax and Gettel.

Campbell Stars Afield

Another bright performer afield was Tarboro's Soup Campbell.

There wasn't anything spectacular about catches he made on drives by Stringfellow and Patton, but a less expert and less speedy gardner would have looked like a circus performer in handling both. Stringfellow made a very good play on a smash by Harper in the sixth, and Red Harper looked good in heading off a smash by Villepique in the second and his throw to second, while spread out on the ground, to force a runner. The stop cut off a run.

The Walkers' third-inning runs resulted from a walk to Mewborn, Myers' single which was erased by Black, Mullinax's double and Knowles' single.

The Walkers made one in the sixth. Mewborn walked. Myers bunted and Flora's throw to second went into the outfield. Mullinax's single scored Mewborn. With the count at 3-2, Knowles swung and missed. Buck Overton pegged to Frankie Ware to get Mullinax, advancing to second. This was the only double-play of the game and this also was the only time Worliss Knowles failed to get a hit.

Scouts Are Present

Three major league scouts were in attendance—Gene McCann, New York Yankees; Fred Hunter, Boston Red Sox, and Bill Piez, New York Giants.

Judge W. O. Gramham, head of the minor leagues, wired his regrets—official business kept him from attending. J. B. Eare of Avden, president of the Coastal P. L., was on hand. In shirtsleeves, Eare was just another fan—he sat with the hot polio, and not in the special box. When Eare lined up with the rival managers for a pregame photo, Chester Brooks of the News and Observer loaned the league people a coat.

Baseball's First 99 Years

By GARDNER SOULE

(HEAVENLY DAYS! YOU'VE ALL BUT WORN ME OUT TRAMPING. CLEAR UP HERE, AND NOW WE HAVE TO PAY ADMISSION. I DECLARE I NEVER HEARD THE LIKE OF IT!)

THE FIRST admission charge (50 cents) in baseball history was made for a game between New York and Brooklyn, at the Fashion Race Course, Long Island, July 20, 1858. Fifteen hundred fans, who made a difficult trip by boat and rail, saw the game.

Denver (AP)—The U. S. Open golf championship has been won several times in recent years by comparative "outsiders." Among these were amateur Johnny Goodman, Olin Dutra, Sammie Parks, Jr., Tony Manero and Ralph Guldahl.

AROUSED FANS JOIN IN FIGHT

Enter Ring After Williams Punished by 'Masked Marvel'

Wrestling fans got more than they bargained for at Jimmy Johnson's show at the Armory last night and some went away the worse for their experiment.

It all started when the fans became aroused at the rough treatment being accorded wrestler Eddie Williams by the "Masked Marvel." Eddie wanted to concede the second fall, but the "Marvel" did not appear satisfied with such a victory and continue to punish his foe by strangling and picking him. The mad crowd booed the winner at length, further arousing the ire of the wrestler who renewed his attack on Williams. It was then that a number of fans rushed into the ring and at the "Marvel." Fists were thrown and even pop bottles were said to have been wielded. Howard Allen, Court View filling station operator, apparently suffered the most serious injuries, a broken nose, said to have been sustained when struck by someone's elbow or head.

The "Masked Marvel," incidentally won the third and final bout of the evening, each wrestler had taken one fall.

Farmer Miller lost the last two falls of the semi-final card to Ernie Dugan.

Next week's wrestling-boxing show will be held on Tuesday evening, same hour.

OUTSIDERS SOMETIMES WIN

Denver (AP)—The U. S. Open golf championship has been won several times in recent years by comparative "outsiders." Among these were amateur Johnny Goodman, Olin Dutra, Sammie Parks, Jr., Tony Manero and Ralph Guldahl.

NOT A LEG TO STAND ON had Yankees' Shortstop Frank Crossetti (left), who gave a Nazi salute with his right hoof after tagging Bus Mills of the St. Louis Browns. This was in first of a doubleheader in New York. Yankee won 7-2 and 10-5.

IN NEXT WEEK'S WRESTLING SHOW

Ching Lee (above), Chinese grappler of San Francisco, who appeared on the local wrestling card last week, has been matched to meet Ernie Dugan, of Texas, here next Tuesday night. Lee is an exponent of many Chinese tricks of the wrestling trade, which he combines with American rules to keep his fans on edge. Dugan is a tough hammer, also. He won his match last night with Walter (Farmer) Miller, the bearded Kentuckian.

FLETCHER PREDICTS MINIMUM WAGE OF 30 CENTS PER HOUR

administrator.
Incidentally, the commissioner said he is well acquainted with the newly appointed Federal Administrator, Elmer F. Andrews of New York.
"He's a splendid man with a long experience which fits him for the place," said Major Fletcher.
Mr. Andrews, in accepting the Federal post is voluntarily taking a reduction of $2,000 in his annual salary, according to Major Fletcher who said the New Yorker has been receiving $12,000 a year as New York's industrial commissioner, while the new place pays only $10,000.
"And besides that, he sure is going to be in a hot spot," added the North Carolina commissioner.
Major Fletcher declined to express any definite opinion for publication, whether textile mills are engaging in a systematic reduction of wages in order to influence decision on minimum wages rather than because they sincerely believe economic conditions make wage cuts imperative at this time.

CHILDREN SAFE IN CHICKENWIRE PEN

Mt. Tamalpais, Calif. (AP)—"Please Do Not Touch or Feed This Child."
This sign appears on a chicken-wire pen atop Mount Tamalpais in which Edward and Martha Wolford, both under 3, spend much of their time.
"People think it's cruel, caging their youngsters," said Frank Wolford, proprietor of the mountain-top tavern, "but it's really the only safe thing."
He explained that in addition to perils of steep precipices and cars climbing the mountain roads, the children were endangered by tourists who used to give them too much candy and soda pop.

SHORT COURSE

JULY 25 TO 30

Conference Be Conducted for Farm Boys and Girls

Raleigh, July 19—Conferences to be held at the annual 4-H short course at State College, July 25-30, will be conducted by officers elected by the 800 farm boys and girls who attended the short course last summer.

The officers are: Elmer Johnson of Cumberland county, president; Mavin Warren of Iredell county, vice-president; Carlton Mock of Davidson county, secretary; and Marguerite Ricks of Johnston county, historian.
L. R. Harrill and Miss Frances MacGregor, 4-H club leaders at State College, said that they hope to see all 100 counties represented at the short course this summer. There are some 1,500 clubs over the state and each is eligible to send one boy and one girl to the short course.

The short course has been described as an educational vacation that will give outstanding club members opportunity to spend a week on the college campus having a good time while studying things that will help make them better farm men and women and better citizens of their communities.
They will also hear talks by Governor Clyde R. Hoey, and Col. John W. Hargett, Dean I. O. Schaub, Dr. James S. McKimmon, L. R. Harrill and Miss Frances MacGregor of State College, and take part in many other activities of the short course.

GLOBE GIRDLER WAS BORN RICH—AND WORKED WAY UP

Shyness distinguished him, however, as well as his love for machines.
Invents Engine Muffler
Howard was vastly fond of his father, and from him inherited or acquired his knack for mechanics. Tools, supplied by his father, were his playthings. The elder Hughes was proud of his boy's leaning to mechanical work. But even then, he relatives were frightened lest he hurt himself.

Before entering high school, Howard had invented a practical muffler for motorcycles, although his father did not patent it. He had an early-type steam-driven automobile to play around with and study. A car constructed by him of old parts was a common sight in Dallas.
He yearned for a motorcycle but his father drew the line at that; so Howard got one in his own way.
"When he wanted that motorcycle worse than anything else," says Mrs. Eugene D. Nims, an intimate friend of the family, "he gathered odd parts from here and there, wherever he could get them, and built his own machine."
"He was always interested in science, and even in his teens we regarded him as a dreamer and a doer."

Inherits $17,000,000

It wasn't all play for the young speedster and inventor.
He was educated at Fessenden School, Boston, and Thatcher School at Ojai, Calif., and was permitted to study for a time at the California Institute of Technology before he was old enough to matriculate.
When his father died in 1922, he was a student at Rice Institute, Houston. His mother had died two years previously and Howard Hughes was alone in the world, with a $17,000,000 fortune.

Young Hughes was a money-maker in his own right but he was interested primarily in what it could do for him.
While the hard-headed oil man who was his father gave him a loose rein and lots of tools, he gave him also a thorough education in business. Hughes learned the oil business from the ground up.
At one time he was in charge of the California branch of the family enterprise. Hardly come of age, he directed the whole concern, and made substantial profits.

Income In 7 Figures

"He still knows all about it," relatives say, and he is listed today as chairman of the Hughes Tool Company and president of the Hughes Industries Company.
His income of course, is not public property. A few years ago it was reputed to be $3,000,000 a year. Even the expenses of big time experimentation—his round-the-world flight cost $300,000—could not eat far into such figures. There were losses, of course, as well as gains. But he had $17,000,000 to start with.
The death of his father sent him to California. There he made his home with an uncle, Rupert Hughes, the famous author who was writing for the movies, and who found Hughes a very inquisitive young man. Hughes became inquisitive about movies. That's how he met Jean Harlow.

BACK-SEAT DRIVING is eliminated in snappy tandem cycle used by 68-year-old Charles "Mile-a-Minute" Murphy and pretty Jane Gutkowski, for their initial spin along a new bicycle road on Long Island. Murphy tells of his stunt ride 43 years ago when he breezed over a mile course in 57-3-5 seconds. New road is barred to all but cyclists.

Hollywood Made Fun of Hughes But Now He's a Hero

They all laughed when Howard Hughes went into the movies. This lanky, good-looking youngster from Texas—who was he to buck Hollywood?
The lanky youngster smiled, but his money down to back a friend, lost it, and still smiled. Reaching his own conclusion, as always, he decided the way to do it was to do it himself. He became his own producer.
His first picture, "Everybody's Acting," showed a 150 per cent profit. That was the first of seven—including "Front Page" and "Hell's Angels"—every one a profit maker.

Good Laying Pullet Better Than 2 Hens

Raleigh, July 19—One good laying pullet will earn a poultryman more money than two older hens, said C. F. Parrish, extension poultry specialist at State College.
For years, he said, it has been argued that it is cheaper to feed a hen through the moulting period than to raise a pullet. But a group of poultrymen who visited the S. P. Williams farm in Henderson county the other day found definite proof that pullets return a greater profit above feed costs.
Over a laying period of eight months, Williams reported, the pullets netted a profit of $1.95 each.

Two Directors Quit

For his biggest success, "Hell's Angels," Hughes had engaged Director Luther Reed.
The company moved from the studios to the air field, and Hughes went along to offer advice. He made a number of good suggestions and Reed began to wonder who was directing Hughes, in his quiet way, told Reed that unless he could take suggestions they would have to get a new director.
Reed quit on the spot and next day Hughes sent him a check for the full amount of his contract. Hughes finished directing.
Another director, Ed Sedgwick, had a difference with Hughes over another air film, "Sky Devils." Without argument, Hughes gave him a full check and hired a new one.
Hughes made a $3,000,000 profit out of "Hell's Angels," which might have been a $4,000,000 flop. Production on the film was nearly complete when the new sound technique loomed on the scene.

He Went Ahead

The question was whether to go ahead with the expensive silent film to a big deficit, or gamble more millions on sound. Hughes took the gamble, recast the picture, retook the closeups where princ-above feed costs, while the older hens average only 70 cents return each above feed costs.

The group, accompanied by Parrish; Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the State College poultry department; W. D. White, county agent; and Hood Van Den Arend, manager of the Mountain Egg Producers Association, also stopped at Walter Pike's farm to inspect his two-story laying house.
The house cost about $2,000 to construct, will accommodate 750 birds, and should last 20 years or longer. A special feature is the dropping pits used in place of the customary dropping boards under the perch poles. The pits permit better ventilation, and Pike sprinkles gypsum over the manure to prevent flies from breeding.
On the J. W. Plain farm, the poultrymen saw small range shelters that can be moved about by two men. Parrish said such shelters are better than the larger ones if used where there are no horses and mules. D. M. Sewell explained his project for raising turkeys while keeping them confined. He has 750 birds from 4 weeks to 31-2 months old, and he has lost practically no birds from blackhead or other diseases to which turkeys are especially susceptible. The meat from confined birds is more tender and brings a better price, he added.

STRAY PALM SPROUT CHANGES LANDSCAPE

Port Isabel, Tex. (AP)—A coconut palm sprout washed ashore here in the hurricane of 1933 may mean a new landscaping plan for Port Isabel.
Someone planted the sprout and it grew. Now 60 more have been planted. If they flourish Port Isabel expects to set out to line the bay front and all roads to the city limits.
