PROFITS FROM LIQUOR SALES REDUCED TAXES

70-Cent Rate Compares with 85 Cents Last Year

COUNTY STORES EARNED $100,000

Budget as Officially Adopted Calls For Tax Reduction From Tentative Figure

The 1938-39 county-wide tax rate was officially set today at 70 cents on the $100 valuation, an even greater reduction than had been contemplated when the budget was tentatively adopted two weeks ago.

The new rate compares with 85 cents last year and 73 cents tentatively adopted when the budget was prepared.

Profits from the sale of liquor in excess of expectations provided funds whereby the rate could be reduced 15 cents from last year.

A statement issued by the Board of County Commissioners declared that the $100,000 to be received from the ABC board, together with county fees and certain economies the board was able to effect since the tentative budget was set up, enabled the County to eliminate all tax levies except eight cents for pensions, seven cents for schools and 55 cents for payments on bonds and interest.

Taxpayers will note with interest that only 15 cents on the $100 valuation is levied for operation of the county, the remaining 55 per cent going for payment of debts.

Of the $100,000 to be derived from the profits of the ABC board, $51,533.26 was earned last year and was in hand as of June 30. The sum was turned over to the county today by the ABC board. On the basis of sales for the past fiscal year, approximately the same amount will be left on hand at the close of the current fiscal year for use the following year.

A complete audit report of operation of the Pitt County ABC board will be found elsewhere in this paper. In issuing the report for publication, Charles O'H. Horne, chairman, declared that the single purpose in revealing the figures was to inform the public of the activities, condition, etc., of the board, and not to parade unnecessarily the board's operations.

The report reveals that profits realized from the sale of liquor in Pitt county last year approximately doubled those in the previous year, and at the same time the cost of operation was held slightly below that in 1937-38. For the year ending June 30, 1938, the board had a surplus balance of $96,255.75, compared with a balance of $53,365.02 as of June 30, 1937.

Members of the board declared they believed the increase in sales and accompanying increase in profits resulted to a large degree from the activities of the board's law enforcement agency in breaking up illegal traffic in whiskey. A note in the audit, made by Williams and Wall of Raleigh, stated that money spent for law enforcement proved to be "entirely worthwhile from a profit standpoint, however disagreeable some of the results of same may have been."

Taking note that there had been some demand that the price of liquor be reduced, it was explained that the state sets the price and the county has to abide by the schedule sent out from the state board in Raleigh.

Study Being Made Of County Pupils

Dr. Harry V. Bice, Ph.D., psychologist of the State Board of Charities at Raleigh, was in Greenville today, and will remain through Friday, during which time he will make a study of the mental health of maladjusted children of Pitt County.

Dr. Bice works with all cases where either the parents or welfare authorities, or public school officials wish to know more accurately the mental health of children.

He has recently prepared a pamphlet entitled "Study of White and Negro Pupils in Piedmont North Carolina."

First Fatality Of Army Maneuvers

Biloxi, Miss., Aug. 4.—(AP)—The first fatality of the third army maneuvers occurred today.

A. E. Bailey of Augusta, Ga., private, first class, Battery B, 83rd Field Artillery, died of a broken neck suffered in a dive from a pier falling into two feet of water into Mississippi Sound.

He was stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C.

CORRIGAN SAYS HE IS IN FOG

Grins With Pleasure At Gala Welcome To be Given

S. S. Manhattan, at Sea—Aug. 4.—(AP)—Douglas Corrigan, only a little less important in the minds of Irishmen than Brian Boru and others, grinned with pleasure today as he stood at the rail of this New York-bound liner and looked forward to the welcome awaiting him.

The ship moved at half speed through fog. Corrigan was in a fog, too, or at least he said he was, as he remembered all that has happened to him in the month past—the flight in the old crate from California to New York, the take-off for home and his surprise at finding himself in Dublin, of all places.

He knew, of course, what waited him in New York, for he had got more than a dim idea of New York's frenzied greeting a couple of days before, he started his wild trans-Atlantic flight, when the city went a little balmy over Howard Hughes and his four world-circling companions.

Extra Session Unlikely To Earmark Any Projects

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Aug. 4.—Next week's special session of the General Assembly is quite unlikely to earmark funds for which state bond issues will be made, and PWA grants sought. On the contrary, whatever bond issue is eventually authorized will probably be in a lump sum, with some discretion left to the Governor and the Budget Bureau as to the projects to which it will be applied.

Governor Clyde R. Hoey said today he has told the Budget Bureau that whatever course they follow in this respect will be personally preferred. A blanket authorization.

He was led to this point of view because it promises less local bickering in the legislature and would leave some leeway in a program which necessity has made quite hurried in preparation.

No official statement from any source has yet been made as to the total which will be sought for essential construction and permanent improvements at State institutions, even considered.

Asked Submit Integration, Simplification Plans

Washington, Aug. 4.—(AP)—The Securities Commission made public today a letter in which it asked 66 public utility holding companies to submit integration and simplification plans by December 1, 1938.

Chairman William Douglas said formally that the integration and simplification provisions of the holding company act have been in effect since January 1. By December, he added, 11 months will have passed since that date and more than three years will have elapsed since enactment of the statute.

"I expressed the hope in a speech before the annual meeting of the American Bar association at Cleveland on July 26, last," Douglas said, "that before the year is out we will obtain from the various parts of the industry their plans and programs so we can chart our course accordingly."

The purpose of our communications x x x is to give formal effect to the expression x x x."

Other developments: Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex.) of the Senate campaign expenditures committee said if any criminal violations were disclosed by committee investigators they would have to be reported to the proper authorities for prosecution.

Sen. Burke (D-Neb.) asserted President Roosevelt will be defeated if he sought a third term.

Growers Pleased As Best Grades Bring Up to 40 Cents

PRICES IN LINE WITH LAST YEAR

Several Market Centers Report Heaviest Opening Day Breaks in Their History

Florence, S. C., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Under the spur of good prices and heavy volume, delight rode hard the chant of auctioneers today at the opening sales in tobacco warehouses in the 16 border belt towns of the Carolinas.

Growers estimated prices ranged close to 30 cents a pound, or about the same as at the opening last year.

Offerings broke opening day records on several markets. Grumbings from farmers over allotments under the new crop control law were heard at several markets, however, and at Timmonsville officials reported growers complained more of this than of prices paid. Prices ranged from 22 to 32 cents there.

Fairmont, N. C., reported the heaviest offerings in history. Supervisor C. B. Stafford estimated prices averaged 27 cents.

At Lumberton, N. C., prices paid for 10 piles took a random average slightly over 25 cents. Growers said offerings, which were exceptionally heavy, brought prices about the same as last year's opening.

No tickets had been turned on the Tabor City, N. C., market at noon. Prices were estimated unofficially to average 27 and one-half cents. Offerings were of a better grade than last year.

Florence, S. C.—Aug. 4.—(AP)—The bulk of early offerings on the 26 to 30 cent range.

Growers, hearing the auctioneer's chant the first prices in the Carolinas as high as 40 cents a pound, were selling below the six cents mark generally.

Offerings broke opening day records on several markets.

At Darlington officials reported offerings were heaviest in history. Approximately 500,000 pounds were on the floors. Opening sales there averaged 26.65 cents.

Keen competition between buyers marked the opening sales on the Pamlico market. Prices were estimated to average 30 cents, the highest of the first markets to report.

At Timmonsville the first hour's sales averaged 27 cents.

The floors were full at Loris, the first hour's prices averaged 27.10 cents.

At Lumberton prices were reported of 26 to 30 cents with record offerings.

Last year opening day prices on the Border belt averaged 26 and one-half cents.

Mullins' 1937 opening sales brought an average of 25.05; Fairmont, 26.89 and Timmonsville, 26.96.

A direct report to The Reflector from Smith and Sugg stated: "Prices ranging from seven to 33 cents, averaging 24 cents. Quality excellent. Some rejections. Large sales and markets blocked. The report was from Mullins, S. C."

Peacetime Troops Write To Parents

Letters and post cards are being received daily by mothers and fathers of Pitt County whose sons, members of Battery A, 113 Field Artillery, National Guard, are encamped at Hattiesburg, Miss.

Members of the local battery, along with hundreds of other North Carolina National Guardsmen, left last week via motor truck for an eight-day encampment in Mississippi.

During their stay, they will be familiarized with procedures followed in a wartime area. Although no shots are being fired, regular peacetime war maneuvers are being transacted.

Among trains involved are Nos. 38 and 39, operating between Weldon and Kinston.

GENERAL HEAT WAVE EXTENDS TO WIDE AREA

Torrid Weather Grips Entire Northern Hemisphere

UNITED STATES GETS ITS SHARE

Maine, Texas, Dakotas and California Report Mercury At 90 Degrees or More

(By The Associated Press) A general heat wave gripped the northern hemisphere today with the United States experiencing its full share of sultriness and general high temperatures.

Maine, Texas, California and the Dakotas saw the mercury reach up into the 90's and intermediate readings were generally equally hot.

The meteorological map showed three atmospheric "highs" over the nation, only a few scattered records of rain, and no likelihood of cooler weather anywhere for the next three days.

A heavy wind in eastern Quebec killed one person, but moved away from the United States border.

The Portland, Me., weather bureau predicted temperature above 90 during the day and the same prediction held good for all New England where, Wednesday, six drownings and five other deaths were attributed to the heat.

New York metropolitan area entered its eleventh consecutive day of intense heat, with a prediction of a high of 92—and the humidity readings going up.

Light showers moved across the Alleghenies, but the Pennsylvania area as far west as Pittsburgh saw its thermometers in the 90's after a full month of heat above 80.

England, which because of humidity is pretty uncomfortable with high temperatures, rounded out six days of heat in the 80's with one of the heaviest rain storms in recent years along its west coast.

From China and Manchoukuo came reports of the battling armies suffering in intense heat. Central Europe, too, was hot.

Fails In Efforts Burn Negro House

Irma Lee Taylor, 11-year-old Negro, was taken in custody by officers this afternoon after having been caught in the act of attempting to set her home on Clark street on fire "so I could see the fire trucks."

Firemen and officers said the girl had set fire to the building eight times since 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Police and firemen today were conducting an investigation in what they believe were attempts by a kid or some deranged person to set fire to a Negro dwelling on Clark street, near the corner of Twelfth.

Firemen were called at 8 o'clock this morning to the house, home of Bryant Taylor, and found that someone had put some rags and paper on the sills under the house and set them afire. They were told that during 3:30 yesterday afternoon and 10 o'clock last night the same thing had happened four times, but could find no one who had seen the culprit.

Less than an hour after returning from this morning's call, firemen were summoned to the house again and found that it had been set afire again.

Fire Chief George Gardner expressed the belief that the person responsible was some kid or a mentally deranged person, adding that no sane person would attempt anything so bold.

Postpone Hearing On ACL Petition

Raleigh, Aug. 4.—(AP)—A hearing on a petition of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad for discontinuance of eight eastern North Carolina passenger trains, will be resumed August 15.

Utilities Commissioner Stanley Winborne adjourned the hearing yesterday after the line's witnesses had testified the routes had not shown a profit for years.

Among trains involved are Nos. 38 and 39, operating between Weldon and Kinston.

TERMS STATED UNOFFICIALLY

Sharp Fighting Along the Siberian Frontier Continues Meantime in Undeclared War; Russians Sign Resolutions Pledging the Support of Whole Population

Tokyo, Aug. 4.—(AP)—The Japanese government has proposed to Soviet Russia the cessation of hostilities on the Siberian-Manchoukuoan border and terms for settlement of their dispute.

The foreign office announced today the proposal was made by the Japanese vice minister of foreign affairs in a two-hour conference with the Soviet charge d'affaires. At the same time the two nations exchanged stern protests over the border conflict.

It said the Japanese vice minister offered the Soviet Russian officials a settlement based on "a broad view of the situation."

The terms were not announced, but they were understood to include:

1. Japan to withdraw from the territory around Changkufeng Hill, near the junction point of the Siberian-Manchoukuoan and Korean frontiers, where fighting has been going on sporadically since Sunday.
2. Russia not to undertake to re-occupy the area.
3. A neutral zone to exist, pending demarcation of the frontier by a commission.

Meanwhile the sharp fighting in the unofficial war on the Siberian frontier.

Moscow, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Hundreds of thousands of Soviet Russians signed resolutions today calling for vigorous action against Fascist aggressors in Russian-Japanese clashes on the Siberian border.

Soviet newspapers printed no news about the Far Eastern battlefield, but devoted whole pages to workers' resolutions pledging the loyal support of the whole population.

Mrs. G.F. Gurganus Claimed By Death

Mrs. Martha Anne Gurganus, 63, wife of G. F. Gurganus, died at her home near Bell Arthur this morning at 11:50. She had been in declining health for the past 18 months. She was a member of St. Paul's Pentecostal Holiness church, and had resided in this community for the past 20 years.

Funeral services will be conducted from the home of her son, G. F. Gurganus, at 1821 Broad street, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. J. G. Spivey of Greenville.

Burial will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Surviving are her husband and five children; three sons, Roy, G. R. of Greenville and Wilbur of Halifax; two daughters, Mrs. J. B. Asby, Washington, N. C., and Miss Edna Gurganus of the home. Also one sister, Mrs. Henry Berry, of Scranton, N. C.; one brother, Jas. Silverthorne, Washington, and six grandchildren.

Active pallbearers will be C. H. Barnhill, N. A. Roebuck, J. W. Brewer, Chas. Butts, William Lewis and Alonzo Harrington.

President Graham Asks Building Funds For UNC

The Advisory Budget Body is Preparing Recommendations

Raleigh, Aug. 4.—(AP)—President Frank Graham of the University of North Carolina, asked the Advisory Budget Commission to recommend to the legislature next week that $4,517,500 worth of building be authorized for the three units of the institution.

The commission was given requests for buildings totalling $14,685,621.84 by representatives of various state institutions, and then Chairman Frank Dunlap of the Highway Commission, said it could use up to $400,000 eliminating dangerous curves and bridges and widening narrow roads.

A reversal resulted in announcement the state could issue only $5,866,227 in bonds to get its share of the building program. The special legislative session was called by Governor Hoey in the hope that the state funds would be matched with 45 per cent PWA money, making possible a building program of about $10,000,000.

Tomorrow and Saturday the commission will weed out the "needed and necessary" proposals and write its recommendations for Governor Hoey and the legislators. It was indicated it might hold its bond recommendations to $5,000,000.

President Graham asked for $1,541,000 for buildings and equipment at N. C. State College here, $1,426,000 for the Chapel Hill unit and $1,550,000 for the Woman's College at Greensboro.

They ought to get authority to issue their revenue bonds," he added.

In short, it appeared from the Taylor attitude that only drastic change in the measure from its 1937 form will assure them of passage.

Secretary Pat Healy, Jr. of the Muni League, has expressed confidence that Governor Clyde R. Hoey will favor the passage of a revenue bond issue authorization measure; but the Governor has so far committed himself no further than to say that proposals for local units would be "open for consideration."

The revenue bond bills were enacted in 1935, but when they came up for re-enactment in 1937 they met with opposition which finally brought about their virtual defeat—the House refusing to concur in the amending amendments tacked on to the Senate where the proposition was carried 23 to 22, as amended, only when Lieutenant Governor W. P. Horton supplied the twenty-third vote to break a tie.

Muni PWA Plan To Face Legislative Opposition

Raleigh, Aug. 4.—State Senator H. P. Taylor of Anson said today that the special session of the General Assembly will "last all August" if the North Carolina League of Municipalities tries to put through the so-called "Ickes bills" in the same form as they were introduced into the 1937 regular session.

"If they introduce bills which permit the municipalities of North Carolina to go into competition with private business, we'll be here the rest of August," said the Wadesboro law maker who led the fight against the revenue bond issue bills in 1937—a fight which resulted in amending them to a point where many Senate proponents voted against them and which led to their flat rejection in the House.

On the other hand, if the municipalities introduce a bill which will enable them to take advantage of PWA grants for such purposes as would not put them in business,

FORMER MOVIE ACTRESS DIES

Liver Ailment Fatal To Pearl White of Old Serial Fame

Paris, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Pearl White first heroine of the old American serial thrillers who always did her own dare-devil stunts died today in the American Hospital.

She was 48 and had been ill several weeks of a liver ailment.

In the days when the motion picture business was young, movie audiences sat on the edge of their seats thrilling to the "Perils of Pauline" an adventure-packed in which the beautiful heroine managed to reach death's door at the end of each chapter, never to die.

"Pauline" was blonde Pearl White, catapulted to fame as the first of the daredevils of the screen.

Besides the "Perils of Pauline," there were the "exploits of Elaine" and a dozen other serials of the same melodramatic cast.

Pearl grew rich on this. She went to Paris in the early 20's and afterwards saw little of the United States.

In several years she was in the gay international set at Paris and Da-ville. Later she lived more quietly, either in her town house in Paris or her chateau near Rambouillet.

She made short trips to the United States as late as 1937.

FEDERAL LOAN IS AVAILABLE

U.S. Would Buy Good Revenue Bond Issues if Permitted

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Aug. 4.—The Federal government will not only provide 45 per cent grants through PWA, but will buy "good" revenue bond issues of North Carolina municipalities if the special session of the legislature will enact legislation permitting local units to issue bonds of this kind for self-liquidating projects, H. G. Baily, special engineer of the Public Works Administration for North Carolina, said today.

Few of such issues would be "good buys," said State Treasurer Charles Johnson, head of the Local Government Commission which would most likely be called upon to approve any such revenue bond issues.

Both Baily and Johnson agreed, however, that there should be legislation permitting local units to issue revenue bonds for purposes which are sound and seem to be good propositions from the point of view of being self-liquidating in fact.

Mr. Baily said that his experience while the Revenue Bond act of 1935 was in force was "not a happy one" as only comparatively few units attempted to take advantage of the act, and those few were mostly small units which could not show that the projects would yield sufficient revenue to make investment in the bonds a safe one.

Mr. Johnson pointed out that in the case of waterworks construction of extension most municipalities have already pledged the receipts from water rents up to the very limit and that it would generally be impossible to show there would be a sufficient increase in rents as a result of the improvements to pay off the increased indebtedness.

The N. C. League of Municipalities has announced its intention to seek enactment at next week's special session of legislation reviving the power of municipalities to issue revenue bonds which would not be "debts" within the meaning of statutes limiting the extent of indebtedness they may incur.

How's Your Health?

Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine

By Iago Goldston, M.D.

The thyroid is a gland of internal secretion. Its function appears to be to produce a hormone which regulates metabolism (the burning up of the body's fuels) and thereby exercises a profound effect upon development, growth and function.

This gland utilizes iodine derived from food and water and manufactures an iodine-containing secretion. Iodine is therefore necessary for the proper function of the thyroid but the hormone secreted by the thyroid functions differently from simple iodine.

An inadequate intake of iodine leads to the condition of hypothyroidism (that is, an underfunctioning of the thyroid), and frequently also to enlargement of the gland, with the formation of a so-called simple goitre.

Hypothyroidism is preventable by taking an adequate amount of iodine.

When hypothyroidism has been developed it can effectively be treated by taking iodine and the thyroid extract, under the direction of a physician.

Hyperthyroidism, or toxic goitre, is the opposite extreme of hypothyroidism. In this condition the thyroid gland is over-active. Hyperthyroidism is not due to an excessive intake of iodine. In fact, hyperthyroidism is frequently treated at least in part by administering iodine to the sufferer.

The thyroid does not operate independently. Its functions are affected by the functions of the other endocrine glands and notably by that of the master gland, the pituitary, which is a gland of internal secretion located at the base of the brain.

Precisely what causes hyperthyroidism is as yet unknown. The thyroid gland is intimately connected with the central nervous system.

This brings the thyroid under the control of those portions of the nervous system which are affected by, and influence, the emotional states.

Clinically it has been found that psychotherapy—which serves to relieve anxiety and to improve the emotional state of the patient—is

Washington—Until this day I had never been inside a submarine and a one-hour's visit compelled a complete rewriting of all previous impressions about what goes on in the war beneath the seas.

Impressive stories have been written about the dozens of dials and gauges a pilot of a big air-bomber has to watch. But in comparison a modern bomber looks as simple as a modern bomber looks as simple as the backside of an alarm clock. For every dial on a plane there are 10 in a submarine. Every two paces a person must step-step an outcropping motor or a jutting dial board.

The Seal (submarines are named for sea creatures), a spanking new 1,200 ton submarine, put in at Washington after sailing up the Potomac and a few newsmen were permitted to go into her belly. A submarine looks like nothing so much as a 300-foot section of a huge metropolitan water main pinched together neatly at the ends.

On the top-side is a platform deck, above which sticks a tapered-off deck cabin and a single gun. Several hatchways, each the size of a manhole, let a person down in. You do better in a submarine if you are middle height and thin, of which this correspondent is one but not the other. Inside, it is the beautifully polished intricacy of a fine watch.

Have A Cigar
 The $4,000,000 Seal has some of the Navy's latest devices for making a submarine the terror of the seas. In a spot or two as our party squirmed through the boat we were told not to look too closely or ask questions but at the end of the journey I emerged with only one or two ideas that conceivably might be considered naval secrets.

This lady had four torpedo tubes forward and four aft, and ton-weight torpedoes were tucked about here and there like cigars in the pockets of an electioneering congressman. It can spit out torpedoes from the surface or when down a hundred feet or more. Under their own power, torpedoes automatically seek the level at which they are set to race through the water, several miles if necessary, to open up an enemy cruiser.

Hitting the right spot, one torpedo can lay open a hole in the flank of a battleship as big as a tunnel.
 On the walls, the floor and even the ceiling are valves, dials, switches, buttons, speaking tubes, signal lights, steering wheels, motors, gauges, speedometers and devices to measure constantly the distance to the surface and to the bottom.

Mr. Grover's Observation
 In battle, a submarine travels "blind" much of the time. It sticks its periscope above the surface for an occasional fleeting glance at its target and then jerks it back out of sight. In those instants of vision the sub officer must learn the distance, speed and course of the enemy ship, so he can send a torpedo to meet it.
 On the surface the boat travels with Diesel engines which also charge tremendous storage batteries. These batteries furnish power for underwater travel when the Diesels can't be used.

Before the boat dives, every hull opening must be closed and the Diesels shut off. If left running with all air sources cut off, the Diesels, gasping for breath through their 4,000 horsepower lungs, would create an instant vacuum within the submarine.
 "It might kill the crew instantly," said an officer. With all normal air pressure gone the men probably would explode like popcorn.
 You should see the Seal's kitchen. In space the size of a double telephone booth, the cook prepares meals for 50 men and five officers. He can lock his pots and pans in place on the electric stove. Like other cooks, he, looked pained at having visitors.
 The whole submarine is a beautiful mechanism, as deadly as a witch's blessing. I, personally, would not feel bad if it spent its whole working life lolling about in the Potomac, needing never to take a crack at an enemy vessel.

SHORT SHOTS
 By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Aug. 4.—Your correspondent is already too far out on a limb in the matter of predicting result of the Deane-Burgin Congressional row in the Eighth, but action of W. A. Lucas, chairman of the State Board of Elections, in calling the board to meet in Rockingham Saturday to consider Burgin charges indicates that as matters now stand the Richmond county man is in front on the basis of returns after they have been purged by the State Board.

If this were not so, there would be little point in having the Rockingham session. Mr. Lucas has finished his tabulation and calculations with reference to all matters properly before him at the end of the last hearing. He has definitely brought him the results. If they indicated that Burgin is still winner, as he was on the face of returns from the various counties, it is unlikely that Mr. Lucas would think it worth while to spend more time purging a purely Burgin project which could only result in increasing the Davidson man's majority—if he had a majority.

And so this column's "guess" (and it should be recalled that Mr. Lucas said some time ago that all newspaper forecasts of results can be nothing more than findings so far show Deane the winner.)
 It's your correspondent's idea that Mr. Lucas is summing the Rockingham meeting solely because he does not intend to give anyone an opportunity to say he didn't look into every single, solitary angle of the case which was called to his attention.

A leading state legislator from a western county (who asked that his name not be published at this time) says that the strength of Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell in all sections he has visited is "amazing." "He's fully fifty per cent stronger now than he was in 1932," said the law maker.
 "They can have plenty of fun, if they want to," said State REA Director Dudley Bagley, commenting on the fact that there will be 25 "lame ducks" in the House when it meets for the special session Monday.

This correspondent has been unable to find anybody who will predict the special session will last more than the minimum of six days required for passage of the PWA bond measures.
 All are agreed that if any one thing should come up in addition to the bonds, then the flood gates will be definitely down and there's no telling where the thing would stop.

One of the first resolutions likely to be passed is one pledging the Assembly not to consider anything but the subject for which it was called by the Governor.
 Of course such a resolution would not be worth the paper use to write it on insofar as any definitely binding effect, but it seems to be good psychology and will give everybody a chance to go home and explain he would have introduced that pet local measure, but couldn't on account of the resolution.

Another good bet is that the biggest attendance will be on Monday. Those who get entered on that day will immediately begin drawing their $8 per day. If they don't check in until later, they will not get paid for the previous sessions.

Your correspondent has yet to find one Democrat from the far Western part of the state who favors repeal of the absentee ballot law as applied to general elections. All seem to think they need it to keep down the "Radicals."

LOVE ON THE RANGE
 Chapter 30
 Ripping Lead

A WIDE grin broke over Ratchford's face; his eyes began to glow. "Well, now!" he said with heavy pleasure. "That's sure too bad—poor fella." He shot a glowing look at Ankrum; tensed. Slowly his grin took on a sickly look and faded. The hand holding his pistol drooped.
 Ankrum's gun was in his hand, held rigid at his thigh. How it had gotten there Ratchford could not have told but there it most certainly was, its muzzle covering the third button of the sheriff's vest. The alertness of his glance never strayed from the sheriff's mottled features.

"The responsibility for Trone's death is yours, Ratchford. It's the thing you've been strivin' to bring about for months—perhaps for years. I reckon it's time you paid." Ratchford glared in silence.
 "Sheath your gun," Shadow-like, it was—just a blur of motion. Yet Ankrum's heavy pistol had been holstered. Ankrum's hand hung empty at his side.
 There was a shake to Ratchford's hand as he pounced his own. Or had Ankrum, but imagined it?
 "Windy here'll count three," he said. "You can yank your gun any time you've a mind to. I'll fire when Windy hits the three."

Ratchford's face appeared to pale. "You can't—I won't be no party to it!" he muttered. "I—I wouldn't stand a chance against you!"
 "What kind of a chance," asked Ankrum coldly, "do you think Trone had against you an' all your hirelings?"
 A tremor shook Ratchford's massive frame. "You can't make me do this! I had nothing to do with his death! It was Claydell that got him drinkin'; Claydell that been supplyin' him with booze! I had nothin' to do with it, I tell you. It wasn't me!"

"It wasn't you what?"
 "It wasn't me that's been tryin' to smash him." He seemed to make an effort to pull himself together, as though his fears were partially allayed at Ankrum's continued inaction. "Claydell's the man you want."
 "Yeah!" Ankrum's glance was sceptical. "What about that bedtime story you was spinnin' me about how you was goin' to marry Lee Trone?"
 "I was only funnin'."
 Ankrum's lips grinned coldly. "Well, that may be so. Peej off that badge an' hand it over!"

He watched narrowly while the sheriff did so. Then he pinned the bit of metal to his own vest, using his left hand in the operation.
 "Now we'll stroll up front an' visit your office," he said pleasantly. "Any time durin' these proceedings you think you've got a break just make a pass at your gun an' find out for sure."
 As they traversed the narrow corridor Ankrum wondered what had become of the trail old jailer. He had not seen the man since he had left him at the entrance to the cells. And the fellow was not sitting there now.

Once the sheriff turned his head to cast a look behind him and Ankrum saw the smouldering fury in his eyes. It came to him that Ratchford's momentary show of fear might well have been a sham designed to catch him off his guard, even as he himself had turned the tables on the sheriff.
 He cast a fletting glance at Windy as they gathered in the office and Ratchford closed the door. The puncher's face was stamped with an expression telling far more plainly than words that events were moving much too fast for his comprehension.

Ankrum faced the sheriff and his jaw thrust forward grimly. "Ratchford—sit down behind that desk an' get out some paper an' a pen. You're goin' to do some writin'!"
 "Your Resignation."
 "YEAH? What am I goin' to write?"
 "Your resignation from the sheriff's office. To take effect immediately."
 "Are you crazy?"
 "We won't argue that. Get busy writin'."
 "You're bitin' off considerable more'n you'll be able to chew."
 "You watch my dust."
 "This thing ain't over yet."
 "Stock phrase. Why'n you think up a new one?" Ankrum jeered. His cold blue eyes bored steadily into the long smoky ones of Ratchford, who suddenly broke forth in a flood of invective. A gleam of derision entered Ankrum's glance. "Turn it off. You're wastin' steam. Get busy an' add to that paper that you're recommendin' me to finish out your term."
 "You don't think that'll buy you anything, do you?"
 "You do as I say an' never mind what I think. There's a number of polecats still stinkin' up this country. That paper ought to cover me long enough to get 'em exterminated. Far as that goes, this office would make a fine—"

Ankrum broke off abruptly. A knock had sounded upon the office's outer door—and Ankrum's back was toward it. He dared not turn his head for he was in a line between the sheriff and the door. He raised his voice: "Who's there?"

 "Craig. There was impatience in the answer.
 Ankrum looked at Ratchford. Ratchford grinned and his smooth, unwrinkled forehead expressed a mighty satisfaction. "My deputy," he chuckled. "Your game's up, fella."
 The calm tranquility of Ankrum's glance was disconcerting. His chuckle matched the sheriff's. "Think so? Go ahead an' call him in."
 For the space of a dozen heartbeats there was stillness in the office; a lack of sound that was tight with danger, wherein the clicking of clashing thoughts was almost audible; a silence strained and electric—a thing to cock one's muscles, to set one's teeth on edge.
 Across this hush the two men stared malignantly, each striving to eye the other down. Slowly Ratchford's face went purple.
 Ankrum was leaning a trifle forward. "Go on, Ratchford—call him in," he purred.
 Ratchford choked. His lips worked several times before words came, and when they did his voice was shaken by the repression with which they were uttered: "Go back to the men, Craig. I'll be with you in a minute."
 With a short laugh, Ankrum straightened. "Shucks, Windy," he drawled, "this Ratchford's just a whizzer. There ain't no bottom to him—ain't no sand in his craw."
 He crossed to the desk and picked up the paper Ratchford had written and tucked it in his pocket, while Ratchford hung there tense with anger, his eyes blazing.
 Ankrum sent a contemptuous glance across the sheriff's burning features. "You're not sheriff any longer, Ratchford," he said evenly. "You're just an ordinary man. As such I'm warnin' you. Never set foot again on Rafter T territory. He backed to the door with Windy; opened it.
 "If you do," he finished, "I'll see that you're planted there."

The Sheriff's Star
 A LARGE moon, aided by the lamp on the telephone pole across the street, made the space before the sheriff's office fairly bright. The two machines which had been parked beneath the light had disappeared. But the group of horsemen were still gathered. Most of them were in saddle, but two or three stood beside their mounts engaged in a low-voiced conversation. These looked up as Ankrum and Windy emerged from Ratchford's office.
 "What's holdin' Ratchford?" called one of the group.
 "He's windin' up one or two matters," Ankrum said. "He'll be with you boys in a jiffy, I shouldn't wonder."
 He knew these men would not recognize him for he had not appeared in town since the day he had driven the phony Struthers in from El Paso. But some of the posse could and probably did recognize Windy.
 "Better git in the car with me," the puncher muttered. "Somethin' tells me we better hump ourselves."
 "Don't put on like you're in a hurry," Ankrum cautioned softly. He caught the glint of the sheriff's star where he'd pinned it on his vest; with the sight came inspiration. He raised his voice so that the posse might overhear: "All right, fella," he said. "Don't try any of those gags on me—I've been in this sheriffin' game since who laid the chunk an' I reckon to know all the tricks. This your car?"
 "Huh? My gosh, you oughta know."
 "Get it started then. You heard what Ratchford said. I've just about got time to get there. How're your tires?" he asked. "Ain't expectin' any blowouts, are you?"
 Windy's shin got a heavy kick.
 "Them tires are all right. If they're good enough for Rafter T, they're good enough for the likes of you," Windy grunted, and jammed his foot down on the engine came awake. Ankrum thanked his gods he'd thought to borrow Ratchford's star. It was that glint of metal on his vest which so far had held the posse silent. Without that star, their natural curiosity might have spelled disaster.
 Windy let out the clutch and the car began to roll. Just as he shoved it into second, the door of the sheriff's office banged open and Ratchford appeared with a rifle. He did not seem to pause, but dropped at once to a knee and whopped the long gun to his shoulder.
 Ankrum swore. "Here's Ratchford on the prod. Duck low an' give this the juice!"
 Windy ducked and his foot slipped hard.
 Zang-g-g! Zang-g-g!
 The motor's roar as the car leaped forward into high drowned the reports of Ratchford's rifle, but it could not obliterate the ominous sound of lead ripping through sheet metal nor the ping-g-g! of bullets knocking splintered holes in the windshield's shatter-proof glass.
 Windy's foot on the accelerator went down to the floor and stayed there!

Man About Manhattan
 By George Tarker

New York—Every morning at four o'clock a squadron of big trucks leaves New York and heads up toward West Point. Those trucks are heavily guarded. They have machine guns and rifles and revolvers. And if you get in the way of one, or attempt, even innocently to block traffic you are apt to find yourself in serious difficulty.
 For they are filled with silver that the government is removing to West Point for safe keeping. Just as the gold is now being stored in a vault in Kentucky, the contract is for a million bars to be transferred. And each bar weighs 75 pounds. Under the present setup they are moving 5,000 bars a day.
 These operations are under the supervision of the Federal coast guard. But the truck drivers aren't Federal men. They are just good truck drivers. And there's some labor trouble. And so every morning, while the silver is being loaded into the trucks, a line of pickets encircles them, screaming "Unfair." As yet, no noses have been bloodied.
 This correspondent has a neat stack of letters and clippings from most of the important cities in Europe. But they aren't doing me any good. I can't read them. They're in French, German, Italian, etc. They're from Estelle and LeRoy, the dancers, who went to Europe for a three weeks engagement during the Coronation and haven't returned yet. They are well liked over there, even as in New York. And so they have been going from city to city, from country to country, dancing at the pleasant spas and resorts.
 Before they left I had dinner with LeRoy and he promised to send me accounts of his adventures so that I could tell how he was getting along. And I thought it would make good copy. I still think it would. But LeRoy evidently believes in doing as the Romans do when in Rome. For all his letters are neatly typed in foreign languages. And the newspapers are just as bad. I know what they mean when they refer to Estelle and LeRoy as "les grands danseurs americains" but the rest is all Greek. I suppose I'll just have to wait till they come home.

WAITRESS SOBS AT MURDER TRIAL

Verna Mae Fowler, roadhouse waitress, burst into hysterical sobbing in the court room at Waycross, Ga., upon hearing the jury convict her of the "draw-straws" slaying of 12-year-old J. C. Nelson, son of her employer, Harvey Nelson, in a plot to collect $900 insurance. She was sentenced to life imprisonment. Beside her sits her attorney, O. E. Bialock. Previously Nelson was sentenced to death for participating in the plot.

know: "Why don't you forget about New York and write a fish and game column? That's all you think about anyway." And then he adds this little clipping, taken, I imagine, from some sporting magazine: "Behold the Fisherman . . . He Riset up Early in the Morning and Disturbeth the whole Household . . . Mighty are His Preparations . . . He goeth forth full of Hope, and when the Day is Far Spent he Returneth, smelling of Strong Drink, and the Truth is not in Him."
 I wish I knew who wrote that. It's a peach. I'm going to send copies of it to a lot of people I know.
 One of the swimming pool proprietors, fearing for the safety of his guests, has turned poet and written little couplets (?) which have been placed at advantageous points around the pool. One of them is:
 "Don't dive in the shallow end. If you do where the body shall we send?"
 It's things like this that sometimes drive people to destruction.
 Andorra, the tiny Republic in the Pyrenees, has a population of only 5,500 persons scattered in 30 villages.

New Bern Bears Take Double-Header From Greenies

LOCALS FAIL TO SHOW 'PUNCH'

Had Easy Victory In Nightcap But Rally by Visitors Turned Tide to Bears

The New Bern Bears defeated the Greenies in both games of the double-header here yesterday, 6-1 and 5-4. Burgess received good support from his mates in the first game and won the verdict over Fred Caligiuri, who allowed but seven hits. The locals made four errors.

Benny Roth's homer featured a third inning attack in the opener which netted the visitors four runs. Mack's triple in the eighth drove in the other two runs.

Greenville's only run in the first contest came in the ninth on Vincent's Smith single, a couple of outs and a wild pitch.

Archer, one of New Bern's ace hurlers, had a shade the better of a duel with Lefty Spence in the 7-inning nightcap. He allowed the Greenies six hits, while the Bears were rapping Spence for eight. The visitors won by a rally in the 7th, after trailing the locals 4-2. In this frame a walk, Anderson's single and Norwood's triple produced two runs, and Norwood scored later on Roth's outfield fly.

The locals best stanza was the second in which three rallies were made. Manager Rube Wilson's homer featured this rally.

Christopher was the day's fielding star.

The locals are in Williamston today and will meet the Martins here tomorrow. Saturday the Greenies go to Snow and on Sunday return to play the Billies at Third street park.

Eagles Defeat Aces; Plenty of Long Hits

Kinston, Aug. 4.—Kinston's Eagles walloped Ayden's Aces, 9-1, yesterday.

Cliff Wentz and Eddie Nowak turned in an 8-hit pitching job for the locals. Nowak relieved Wentz at the start of the third inning. The Eagles made 10 hits off John Yent.

Batting star of the game was Kinston's Johnny Wyrostek, who batted 1.000 with a homer, a triple and two singles. His triple was the main item in a two-run first inning. Southworth's triple in the second inning sent in two runs, and Southworth scored on a single by Wyrostek. Wyrostek hit his homer in the eighth.

Wright and Gasaway were the fielding stars.

Ayden's top hitter was Earl Carnahan, who banged a double and two singles.

Score by nines: R H E Ayden 000 000 010-1 8 5 Kinston 203 300 10x-9 10 1 Yent and Purcell, Baba; Wentz, Nowak and West.

Mooney Gets Credit for Tarboro's Victory

Tarboro, Aug. 4.—The Snow Hill Billies used two home runs to get a 4-0 lead in the opening inning, but Tarboro came from behind for an 8-5 victory yesterday. It was the Serpents' fourth straight win.

Ben Mooney, who entered the game as a relief hurler at a time when the score was tied, went on to gain his 16th victory of the season.

Ed Malone, Tarboro starter, just couldn't handle the Billies. Bob Cassell, his successor, hurled two-hit ball in his 4-1-3 innings turn.

Tony Malsano contributed a three run homer to the Billies' strong start, and Harry Soufas followed with a round-tripper.

Tarboro used power to win. Solly Myers contributed a two-run homer in the fourth. The game was settled by Lehman's triple, Dick's triple and Myers' double.

The largest Wednesday crowd in baseball history here turned out for the game.

Score by innings: R H E Snow Hill 400 000 001-5 11 0 Tarboro 001 211 30x-8 16 0 Ciclerale, Sudol and Bistrot; Malone, Cassell, Mooney and Dick.

MORRIS IS STILL LOOP'S LEADER

Ayden Outfielder Is Trailed by Joyner, Wyrostek, Knowles in C-P Hitting

Phil Morris, Ayden outfielder, picked up a dozen points during the week ending Sunday and improved his standing as the Coastal Plain League's top hitter.

Morris' latest average is .383, 17 points better than the runner-up mark of Monk Joyner. Snow Hill outfielder, Joyner dropped three points, from .369 to .366, during the week. The No. 3 man, Kinston's Johnny Wyrostek, stayed put at .353.

Worless Knowles, Ayde outfielder, jumped from ninth to fourth place by lifting his average from .336 to .347. Knowles is the league's top man in driving in runs and is tied with Benny Roth, also of New Bern, in homers.

The latest official averages, including games of Sunday, were released Wednesday by J. Gaskill, McDaniel, of New Bern, league statistician.

Honored

J. D. Alexander, athletic director and supervisor of the physical education department at East Carolina Teachers College has been awarded the distinguished honor of being placed in the "Who's Who" list of America's young men. Coach Alexander is one of 11 North Carolinians, all under 45, to attain the coveted honor. His honor is an outgrowth of contributions to intramural athletics and promotion of high school athletics in Tennessee and Kentucky. He has also done work here since assuming his position at the college.

Baseball's First 99 Years

By GARDNER SOULE

WHENEVER a baseball player today steals home, he gets his name in big headlines. But on June 13, 1913, the Indians and Red Sox played a long, overtime battle. With the score 5-5, three Indians stole home in succession against Dutch Leonard.

The Pitt County Health Department today called attention to the regular monthly State Orthopedic Clinic held every first Friday, from noon until 3 o'clock p. m., in the Health Department offices, 215 West Third Street, Greenville. The next clinic will be held on Friday August 5th.

This clinic serves not only Pitt County, but Beaufort, Hyde, Pamlico and Carteret as well, and is open to both white and colored. All types of cripples are received into this clinic for examination without cost and where eligible, and when needed, free treatment is given.

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt County Health Officer, requests that, where practical, all patients bring a note from their family physician. He extends a special invitation to all physicians and all welfare officers to visit the Clinic.

Attend Camp Meet Being Held in Bertie

A large number of Greenville and Pitt county members of the Pentecostal Holiness Church left today for Aulander to attend their annual camp meeting, which lasts through August 14.

The Rev. H. T. Spence of Newport News, Va., assistant superintendent of the Baltimore conference of the church, and the Rev. O. T. Howard of Tarboro, are the invited ministers. Other pastors of various North Carolina and Virginia Holiness churches are expected to attend, however.

People from all parts of North Carolina and Virginia attend the camp meeting each year. An attendance increase has been noted yearly. There will be a Bible study each morning. All persons are extended a cordial invitation to attend the ten-day session.

PITT COUNTY BOARD OF ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE CONTROL, GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA, GENTLEMEN:

Pursuant to contract, we have audited the books and financial records of PITT COUNTY BOARD OF ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE CONTROL for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1938, and submit herewith report thereon, consisting of Exhibits and Schedules listed in Index on the preceding page, and the following comments:

FINANCIAL CONDITION

The following is a summary of Balance Sheet, Exhibit "A", at June 30, 1938:

CURRENT ASSETS:

Cash—(Schedules 1 and 2)	$ 73,547.81
Liquor and Wine Inventories	42,066.17
Claims Receivable	242.39
Prepaid Expenses	1,156.82
TOTAL	$117,013.19
Less: Current Liabilities	6,666.72
EXCESS OF CURRENT ASSETS	$110,346.47
Fixed Assets—Depreciated (Schedule 4)	532.11
	$110,878.58
Deduct: Reserve for Law Enforcement (Schedule 7)	14,622.83
	$96,255.75

SURPLUS (Exhibit "B") $ 96,255.75

An analysis of Surplus showing that portion of same available in Cash is shown on the following page:

SURPLUS AT JUNE 30, 1938:

Total Cash	$ 73,547.81
Less: Store Change Fund	475.00
Petty Cash Fund	150.00
	625.00
Balance	$ 72,922.81
Deduct: Accounts Payable	6,666.72
Reserve for Law Enforcement	14,622.83
	21,289.55
Surplus Available in Cash	$ 51,633.26
Add: Change and Petty Cash Funds	$ 625.00
Liquor and Wine Inventories	42,066.17
Accounts Receivable	242.39
Prepaid Expenses	1,156.82
Fixed Assets—Depreciated	532.11
	44,622.49
Surplus—Not Available	$96,255.75
TOTAL SURPLUS	$96,255.75

From the above you will note that you have a Cash Surplus of $51,633.26 after retaining $625.00 for Petty Cash and Change Funds, $6,666.72 for payment of Accounts Payable, and $14,622.83 for Law Enforcement purposes. Therefore, it will be in order to remit amount of Cash Surplus to County General Fund. Remittances to or payments for County General Fund during the three years you have operated, and Profits by years are summarized below:

YEAR ENDED JUNE 30:

	Net Profit	Cash Remitted	Surplus Balance
1936	$ 45,946.44	$ 475.00	$ 45,946.44
1937	47,419.58	40,000.00	53,366.02
1938	71,039.73	28,150.00	96,255.75
TOTAL	$164,405.75	$ 68,150.00	$ 96,255.75

As Balance Sheet and supporting Schedules 1 to 7, inclusive, reflect asset, liability and reserve for law enforcement accounts in considerable detail, additional comments on Balance Sheet items are not, in our opinion, necessary.

Grifton—No. 7	219.13	799.63	337.76	494.76	1,851.28
Greenville—No. 8	2,903.86	6,705.67	3,560.49	3,560.32	16,442.34
TOTALS	$13,587.47	$32,019.76	$13,459.17	$11,973.33	$71,039.73

Details of above figures for the year are shown on a consolidated basis in Exhibit "C" and by stores in Exhibit "D." Percentage figures are also shown on these Exhibits.

Condensed Statements of Profit & Loss for the years ended June 30, 1937 and June 30, 1938, are as follows:

	6-30-37	6-30-38
Sales	$457,654.90	$253,098.16
Cost of Sales	299,402.94	161,899.60
Gross Profits on Sales	$158,251.96	$ 91,198.56
Other Income	3,732.60	2,742.52
Gross Profit	$161,984.56	$ 93,941.08
Expense, General Whse. & Stores	35,629.32	36,180.06
Net Profit—Before Reserve	$126,355.24	$ 57,760.82
Less: Reserve for Law Enforcement—5% in Prior Year; 20% for first nine months and 10% for last three months in current year	23,342.22	2,519.45
Net Profit—Before Sales Tax	$103,013.02	$ 55,241.37
Less: Sales Tax to State of North Carolina	31,973.29	7,371.79
Net Profit—Due County General Fund	$ 71,039.73	$ 47,869.58

From an analysis of above figures, it appears that expenditures for Law Enforcement—See Schedule 7—were entirely worthwhile from a profit standpoint, however disagreeable some of the results of same may have been.
