CROP SERVICE REPORT SHOWS HIGHER PRICES

Increase in Averages Paid for Tobacco Over 1937

PRIMINGS BRING BETTER FIGURES

Auction Sales on 14 Markets in New Belt Bring Averages of Around $24.00

Raleigh, August 26. (AP) - The State-Federal Crop Reporting Service said today that prices for low to good primings showed an increase over last year's opening day prices on the Eastern Carolina or New Bright Belt tobacco markets.

The auction season on the 14 markets opened yesterday with prices ranging above an average about $24 a hundred. Blocked sales resulted on most of the markets and official averages for the first day's sales were not available.

At Wilson, officials announced today 1,529,164 pounds were sold yesterday for a $23.80 average.

Officials at Greenville reported 1,429,436 pounds sold yesterday bringing an average of $23.80.

Farmville officials said 678,396 pounds went for a $23.49 average.

The Kinston Board of Trade estimated 1,200,000 pounds were sold for an average of $24.

Sales Supervisor George Arrington announced 944,328 pounds were sold at Rocky Mount for a $24.09 average.

Sales Supervisor William Moore reported opening day sales at Goldsboro aggregated 263,532 pounds - netting an average of $26.39.

The official opening day sales on the Tarboro market, 1,113,148 pounds for an average of $24.31.

A total of 219,760 pounds was sold at Williamston yesterday for a $24.71 average.

Blocked sales on several markets today continued to bring prices which averaged around $24 a hundred.

Lower grades continued to sell unusually strong today.

At Rocky Mount about 500,000 pounds of leaf was on the floors. Offerings were principally primings with some tips.

Williamston market officials expressed doubt the block would be cleared there today.

Offerings on the Kinston market covered a wide range of quality and prices remained unchanged.

Offerings on the Wilson market were estimated at 1,000,000 pounds today and price trends remained unchanged.

Thief Steals Auto Before Eyes Owner

To have your automobile stolen is bad enough, but to see a thief drive away in your automobile is next to "unbearable" especially to the owner.

That's what happened to Robert Bowen of near Greenville last night. He left his car parked near a local theatre, and while standing on Five Points around 11 o'clock, saw his car being driven away. Thinking his brother had borrowed the automobile, Bowen paid no attention to the affair. Learning that his brother had not taken the car, Bowen reported the theft to police.

Highway Patrolman C. R. Williams conducted a search for the stolen motor vehicle shortly after the theft, but it had not been recovered today.

Synthetic Get Test

Berlin. (AP) - The new swim suits of synthetic wool, cotton and rubber have appeared in a variety of color and design that this land of spas and bathing resorts has ever seen.

Opening Day!

An atmosphere of activity prevailed in Tobacco Town yesterday as curtains were raised on an all-star production entitled "1938 Tobacco Marketing Season in Greenville," with police officers and law-violators participating.

Here's what happened in the way of detected law violators on opening day: Two arrests for careless and reckless driving; one arrest for driving drunk; five arrests for persons being drunk and down; five arrests for plain drunkenness; one stolen automobile and one stolen trailer. One of the persons arrested for drunkenness was too highly intoxicated to give his name so his name was placed on the police blotter as John Doe.

Protest Made By U. S. Ambassador In Plane Bombing

Understood U. S. Envoy Took Position Such Attacks Were Likely to Jeopardize American Lives and That Assault Contravened Previous Assurances by Japan

Tokyo, Aug. 26. (AP) - United States Ambassador Joseph Grew protested to the Japanese government tonight against the destruction of a Chinese-American air liner by Japanese war planes near Canton, South China, Wednesday.

The Ambassador's representations were made during a half hour conference at the foreign office.

It was understood on good authority that the United States envoy took the position that such attacks were likely to jeopardize American lives and that this attack contravened Japan's previous assurances that the lives and property of neutrals in China would be respected by the Japanese forces.

The American pilot of the plane, H. L. Woods of Winfield, Kansas, escaped injury, but 12 Chinese, passengers or members of the crew are believed to have perished. The plane was operated by the China-National Aviation Corporation, owned jointly by the Chinese government and private American interests.

Heavy Opening on Farmville Market

The Farmville tobacco market on the opening day of the auction season yesterday sold 674,396 pounds of the leaf for a total of $158,475.19, for an official average of $23.49 per hundredweight.

A good part of the offerings on the market was of low quality tobacco and prices on this quality were far ahead of those on the opening day last year.

Other States Wish Know More About N. C. Schools

Raleigh, Aug. 26.—Three commonwealths have within a very recent months sent ambassadors to North Carolina to study its schools.

The latest of them and the one which interests most was Alabama, whose governor-nominate Frank Dixon, son of the famous Frank of Governor Hoy's home county, wishes to try Tar Heel tricks in the schools. Governor Dixon's personal representative has been in Raleigh studying the system which previously had been reviewed by Governor Leche's Louisiana, and by both Missouri and Ohio.

North Carolina's system, freed from property tax, and directed wholly by the state, appeals wonderfully to states which are having more tax trouble than North Carolina has, and Carolina is considered a pretty well taxed commonwealth. In Missouri, for instance, there are 3,000 school districts against the rapidly diminishing 800 in North Carolina. Not an acre ago North Carolina had 6,000 districts. They are being speedily trimmed.

The Tar Heel virtue of special appeal is transportation. This state hauls more children to school than any other, nearly 200,000 annually, and does it at the lowest cost. In New York, for instance, the item of transportation is $29 a term. In North Carolina it is a shade above $6. The visitors are asking questions about this.

But the point of greatest appeal appears to be consolidation where the merging of districts finds its greatest justification. The visitors are impressed with the fact that North Carolina, a state with small individual income, kept every school open during the worst of the depression and defaulted on no teachers' salary. The maintenance of the North Carolina system these visitors regard, high effective.

J. H. Rose in Charge of Plans for Three Counties

Organization of Wilson, Edgecombe, Pitt Counties for the Anti-aircraft defense was begun this morning.

J. H. Rose has charge of these three counties, and serving under him as County Chief are Henry Bourne, of Edgecombe County, W. H. Dunn, of Wilson County, and J. B. Kittrell and T. J. Swain, of Pitt County.

At the meeting this morning were Gen. Q. C. Gardner, of Fort Bragg, defense commander, Chief of Staff Colonel Jarman, of Fort Bragg, and Hector C. Blackwell, State Department Commander of the American Legion.

Tentative plans were made looking to the establishment of an observation post every eight square miles in these counties. The same plan will be followed in all thirty-nine counties which are included in the attack area. This is called an aircraft warning net, and of course, the purpose of this net is to keep headquarters at Fort Bragg informed as to the presence of attacking planes during the maneuvers. Maneuvers will be held from October 12 to 15.

Raleigh, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Fifteen hundred Tar Heel civilians serving as a far-flung "warning net" will participate in the aerial war games in Eastern North Carolina October 3 to 17. Brig. General Fulton Gardner announced today.

The civilians, who will peer into the sky to observe "enemy" planes flying in from the Atlantic to bombard a mythical airbase and munitions base at Fort Bragg will be organized by nine leaders appointed by the war department.

The leaders and the counties in their district follow: First district, Mayor Jerome Flora of Elizabeth City, Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Dare, Pasquotank and Perquimans. (Continued on page seven)

INEQUALITIES PREVALENT IN WEED QUOTAS

County Agent Says True Productivity Not Reflected

CLAIMS COUNTY SHORT OF SHARE

Farmers Called Upon to Stand Together in Efforts to Secure Fair Distribution

In a formal statement today, County Agent R. R. Bennett declared that tobacco allotments do not reflect the true productivity of many Pitt county farms, and called upon the farmers "to stand together and strive to gain equality in the distribution of the marketing quotas."

The statement, entitled "posting allotments," follows: "Pitt County farmers are urged to stand together and strive to gain equality in the distribution of tobacco marketing quota. A destructive attitude on the part of the farmers will destroy the very thing that today is making possible 18 to 20 cent tobacco rather than 8 to 10 cent tobacco.

"In order that the producers of the county may understand the formula which was used by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in Washington to break the state quota down into individual farm allotments.

A copy of the forms which the producers executed and which were sent to Washington where allotments were calculated will be posted in the court house. These sheets will be an actual case in the county, except for identifications.

"Producers were given an opportunity to present their warehouse bills or books records and execute a farm data sheet with their township committee a few weeks ago. These data sheets were turned in to the county office at which time the cropland, the 1933 yield from the marketing card, the cotton and peanut allotments were entered on the sheets and the committee reviewed the data to make corrections for abnormal weather conditions, disease, blight, and errors.

"These data sheets were then sent to Raleigh where they were audited for errors and were forwarded to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in Washington, D. C. where the individual marketing quotas were calculated.

"A listing showing the allotment and the farm data sheets, were returned to the county Saturday night, August 20, at 1:30 through the Raleigh office.

"The county office typed the allotments on the marketing cards and delivered them to the farmers through township committees.

"After reviewing the allotments for individual farmers and talking with numerous farmers it appears evident that the allotments calculated by the Washington AAA Office using a uniform formula does not reflect the true productivity of many farms in the county from a yield per acre standpoint, but it must be kept clearly in mind that the poundage quotas are set up on a somewhat different basis from that used in setting up acreage." Official Tobacco Average Of $23.80 Recorded Here For Opening Day Auctions

Total of 1,429,436 Lbs. Sold for $340,354.45 Exceeds Figures for Opening Day Last Year and Compares Favorably With Other Markets in Eastern Carolina on Opening Day

Farmers selling tobacco on the Greenville market yesterday on the opening of the 1938 auction season were paid more than a third of a million dollars for the near record offerings.

A total of 1,429,436 pounds were sold, bringing $340,354.45, or an official average of $23.80.

The offerings, money paid out and average exceeded those of last year, when 1,317,484 pounds brought $311,555.73 for an official average of $23.62.

Yesterday's Greenville figures also compared favorably with those paid on other large markets in the belt.

Buyers and warehousemen were held strictly to the rule of 360 piles an hour throughout the sales.

Prices on better grades began rising in the afternoon and a large amount of this quality brought up to $35 per hundred pounds. The lower grades brought the best prices throughout the day, however, and in many cases selling as much as a third or even twice as high as on the opening day last year. Medium grades sold good and since the majority of the tobacco in Pitt county is considered of this quality, farmers stand to realize satisfactory prices on their yield.

More complaints on marketing cards were heard than on the prices being paid. Farmers have expressed the belief Pitt county did not get its proportionate share of the national and state allotment. Pitt is the largest tobacco producing county in the world and the belief was expressed unofficially the poundage quotas were cut a large percentage here than in other counties.

MURDER TRIAL NEARS AN END

Cabarrus Farmer Accused of Slaying Sister-in-Law

Concord, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Testimony was completed on the stroke of noon today in the case of Baxter Parnell, 32-year-old Cabarrus county farmer, on trial in Superior court on charges of murder in the slaying of Martha Jane Fink, his sister-in-law.

Lawyers' summations began immediately. Completion of testimony came after the defense had called Parnell, his mother and the Negro witch doctor, from whom the defendant claimed he got a root which affected him greatly.

Parnell testified he did not remember having stabbed the Fink girl and that he did not recall being taken to the county jail after the slaying.

Later his mother, Mrs. Sally Parnell, testified her son had received a head injury when he was a child and had not seemed normal since.

Jennie Morris, a little old Negro dressed in a pink-flowered dress with black hat and veil, said she first "treated" Parnell Sunday before the slaying.

While ambulances were taking the dead and wounded to hospitals, enraged Arabs were trying to set fire to the Jewish-Anglo-Palestine bank and other buildings.

Police and soldiers, however, got the situation under control. All roads into this busy seaport were closed and the border sections between here and Tel Aviv were patrolled by soldiers and police.

British troops dynamited several houses in Jenin last night as punishment for the slaying of British District Commissioner W. S. Moffat by an Arab, who later was shot when he was said to have tried to escape from the Jenin military camp.

Nearly 300 persons have died in Arab-Jewish strife in the Holy Land since July 8, when the ambushing of a bus brought on a wave of rioting and tension.

Eighty Graduated At College This Morning

Five-Point Dividend Program Outlined By President

Completing a milestone in their formal education, eighty summer graduates, honored with Bachelor of Arts degrees in the Austin Building at East Carolina Teachers' College this morning focused their visions on a new era in life.

Using "Dividends" as a basis for his address, Dr. Leon Meadows, president of East Carolina Teachers' College said that time, money, hard work, sacrifices, and dedicating their lives to the State and community were the investments the graduates had made during the procedure of being educated.

Good health, privilege of associating with well-educated people, opportunity of service, happiness and developing character are five dividends to be derived from investments made by graduates. Dr. Meadows asserted.

Explaining the five-point investment program executed by the students, Dr. Meadows recalled how they had devoted at least one-fourth of their lives in being educated. He pointed out that some students had worked harder than others, and how students, mothers and fathers had made sacrifices instead of submitting to necessities; also that the students had dedicated their lives to the State and community.

Good Health. Dr. Meadows said, can be sustained only if a person adheres to the laws of good health. In relating phases of dividends, he revealed that background and training gave the graduates the necessary facilities for associating with well-educated people.

Referring to opportunity of service that lay in the path of the graduates, Dr. Meadows declared "that service is not confined to the classroom alone; it also is possible in the community, and when" (Continued on page seven)

SAFETY UNITS PLANNED HERE

Anticipate Patrols at Greenville City Schools

Plans are definitely under way for the purpose of establishing permanent safety patrols in Greenville, which will be trained and equipped to handle traffic conditions in local city school zones.

F. E. Fox, representing the Carolina Motor Club and American Automobile Association, promoters of the safety patrols, is in Greenville working with school authorities, civic leaders, and law-enforcement officers, relative to organizing the safety units.

"The major purpose of organizing and equipping the patrols," declared Fox, "is a step taken by the American Automobile Association some twenty years ago, during which time thousands of boys and girls have been taught better citizenship due to training and supervision." (Continued on page seven)

Bullock Youth Bitten By Poisonous Reptile

Yesterday afternoon while feeding the chickens in a chicken coop, Frank Bullock, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bullock of Belvoir, was bitten by a poplar leaf snake, one of the most poisonous members of the cotton mouth family.

Young Bullock was rushed to Bethel where Dr. Hemingway administered treatment. At last reports he was resting comfortably.

Address By Sen. Bailey Gets Into Circulation

Raleigh, Aug. 26.—Large numbers of "The Democratic Process" the commencement address of United States Senator John H. Bailey, have been found in Raleigh and other places, raising anew the speculation whether these copies are being sent out by friends or foes.

It will be recalled that Senator Bailey was decorated with a doctor's degree by President Johnson of Colby, who in bestowing the honor of Colby, gave praise to Senator Bailey for his defense of the constitution "against perversion and attack."

Maine happens to be one of the states which did not give its electoral vote to Roosevelt. Senator Bailey was in friendly hands up there in June.

Speaking of the "Independent functioning of the three branches of the government, Dr. Bailey said: "Nevertheless, we are frankly made aware not only that members of

FDR AND FARLEY AGREE, AS USUAL

Chief Executive Declares He and Chief Aide in Accord On Political Situations

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 26. (AP) - President Roosevelt today reappointed Donald W. Smith of Pennsylvania, as a member of the National Labor Relations Board.

Smith will serve a term of five years. His present term expires on August 27.

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, recently discussed the expiration of Smith's term with the President, but said he had lodged no specific objections against Smith. Instead, Green said, he had suggested to the President that members of the N.L.R.B. generally should be "more judicial-minded."

Also, the President said he and James Farley "were in complete agreement, as usual" during a political conference yesterday. He made this direct statement in response to questions at his press conference.

He and Farley were understood to have gone over the political situations in every state where the New Deal is an issue.

Farley repeatedly urged the President to go personally into Maryland in an effort to defeat Senator Tydings, an administration opponent seeking reappointment.

The President did not comment on this, however, saying only that he had no engagement besides the one already announced for patriotic observance in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Chattanooga, Tenn.

The President also said that a proposal being discussed in California to give $30 weekly pensions to all persons over 50 years of age, can be described as a short cut to Utopia.

Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex.) of the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, advised David Lassiter, president of the Workers Alliance at Washington, not to carry out his plans to raise $50,000 political funds from donations made largely by WPA workers.

Citing a section of the criminal code defining "principals," the chairman said it was his personal belief that Lassiter and the Alliance would be violating the law if the Alliance solicited funds from relief workers.

Freeze Sentenced To 20 to 30 Years

Concord, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Judge Frank Armstrong sentenced Jack Freeze to 20 to 30 years today after a Cabarrus county superior court convicted the 62-year-old automobile salesman yesterday of second degree murder in the slaying of Roy Lentz, another automobile salesman last May 24.

Freeze's expression remained unchanged throughout the day's proceedings.

R. F. James and C. M. Llewellyn, defense attorneys, had asked the mercy of the court for their client.

Freeze, white-haired and stockily built, said he shot Lentz after Lentz had made remarks to him which he considered threatening.

Address By Sen. Bailey Gets Into Circulation. (Continued from Page One) friends and states in lawmaking, taxing and spending.

"What a maze me is that many millions approve this, many members of Congress accept it, and nowhere do I find that indignant and determined resistance with which it would have been met throughout the land, regardless of party, in every decade hitherto, by millions who believed in the sanctity of an oath and the inviolability of our national covenant.

"Is it necessary to say that the Democratic process of representation of states by senators and of districts by representatives, responsible to God upon their oaths and to the people upon their records, and to no other, is essential to the preservation of the Republic and the Democratic liberties, to preserve which it was founded and dedicated. That is restrains both the Federal government and the people in the interest of liberty.

"A subservient Congress means a dependent court, and the two together mean overnment by presidential decree and without restraint."

Good-sized batches of these addresses, the commencement talk appears to be a composite of senatorial speeches, have come to the state. It is very easy to imagine that Colby treated Senator Bailey so well and that he gave Colby such an address as the great Republican commonwealth relished. In either Colby rich an address as the great Republican commonwealth relished. In either instance, the home folks could be proud, with a little elasticity employed. It is also quite probable that enemies of Senator Bailey are circulating this speech as an illustration of the complete senatorial metamorphosis from the 1938 national convention in Philadelphia, when in nominating Mr. Roosevelt Dr. Bailey coveted the opportunity to run ahead of the crowd and snare any Republicans who got in the way of redeemer march. And Mr. Bailey called Mr. Roosevelt Redeemer of the American people.

It will be four years before there is a senatorial contest in the East and the late Dick Croker said 40 years ago that American's memories generally last about eight days. There are several North Carolinians who are reputed to have recollections, in so far as they relate to Dr. Bailey, a trifle longer than an eight day clock's activities.

How's Your Health? Edited for the New York Academy of Medicine. By Iago Galstos, M.D.

The importance of keeping alive in the public mind the memory of the long and arduous labors spent upon each important medical discovery cannot be emphasized too much.

In England the organized opposition to animal experimentation is rather powerful and has seriously impeded medical research. Fortunately there prevails a more intelligent and more humane attitude toward animal experimentation in the United States.

Needless and avoidable cruelty to animals is vigorously opposed by medical men no less than by the laity, but humaneness to mankind is not sacrificed in the services of animal worship.

Without animal experimentation medical science would be most seriously handicapped. The solution of the major disease problem, diabetes for example, would be inconceivable.

The earliest clues to the disease were of course gathered from observations made of the human sufferers but the unravelment of the diseases fundamental and mechanisms was possible only through experimenting on animals.

In the public mind the names and reputations of Banting and Best, the discoverers of insulin, overshadowed the names of those who did the earlier work on diabetes.

Medical history, however, gives much credit to Thomas Willis (1621-1675) who was the first to notice the characteristic sweetish taste of diabetic urine. This made possible the differentiation between diabetes mellitus and the other disease known as diabetes insipidus which resembles it. Oscar Minkowski and Joseph von Mering are names eminently associated with the history of diabetes.

Minkowski and von Mering, by surgically removing the pancreas of dogs, experimentally produced diabetes.

The search for insulin dates from this discovery and was for years carried on through experiments performed upon dogs.

In 1922 Banting and Best attempted the preparation of insulin by making an alcoholic extract of pancreatic tissue. They were successful in their preliminary attempts but failed when they tried to produce insulin in larger quantities for the treatment of a group of diabetic patients.

Local Belk - Tyler Store Sets Mark

C. A. Plyler, manager of the Greenville unit of the Bely-Tyler stores, declared today that yesterday's opening of the local branch was the biggest day in the history of the store's system. The 143 salespeople were kept busy throughout the day to make the day the biggest in the department store's history. Mr. Plyler said he and other officials were well pleased with the reception they received in Greenville.

How's Your Health?

The importance of keeping alive in the public mind the memory of the long and arduous labors spent upon each important medical discovery cannot be emphasized too much. In England the organized opposition to animal experimentation is rather powerful and has seriously impeded medical research. Fortunately there prevails a more intelligent and more humane attitude toward animal experimentation in the United States. Needless and avoidable cruelty to animals is vigorously opposed by medical men no less than by the laity, but humaneness to mankind is not sacrificed in the services of animal worship. Without animal experimentation medical science would be most seriously handicapped. The solution of the major disease problem, diabetes for example, would be inconceivable. The earliest clues to the disease were of course gathered from observations made of the human sufferers but the unravelment of the diseases fundamental and mechanisms was possible only through experimenting on animals. In the public mind the names and reputations of Banting and Best, the discoverers of insulin, overshadowed the names of those who did the earlier work on diabetes. Medical history, however, gives much credit to Thomas Willis (1621-1675) who was the first to notice the characteristic sweetish taste of diabetic urine. This made possible the differentiation between diabetes mellitus and the other disease known as diabetes insipidus which

Stage Set for Young Democrats' State Convention

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Aug. 26—Roster of the Young Democratic orators for their Duem state convention shows generous mixture of new and old dual speakers and a fixed purpose to keep down any uprising.

Keynoter Robert Love Thompson, private secretary to Governor Ho-y, isn't a new dealer at all, nor is United States Senator Josiah William Bailey; but Our Bob Reynolds is and if these other gentlemen can skate more gingerly over thin ice than Our Bob can they'll have to get up very early in the morning.

Senator Bailey prophesied to the Colby, Maine, College commencement folks that the purge would take place. It is here upon us. But it is not at all probable that Senator Bailey will assail it and even more improbable that Senator Reynolds will defend it. The Young Democrats are going to get a grade lesson in party decorum.

Both Senators Bailey and Reynolds spoke at the Winston-Salem convention a year ago. Justice Hurro Black was just setting back from Europe, and the country was raving over a Ku Klux Klan Judge. But there was no talk at the convention for or against Judge Black, barring pleasing references to him by visiting Alabamans.

The Young Democrats, in other words, under the mastery pilotage of Arch Turner Allen Jr. of Raleigh are going to conduct a convention of very significant silences.

MORE COMPLAINTS BEING HEARD

Complaints on the part of Pitt County tobacco growers over the low poundage of their allotment cards is becoming more widespread, with the result that unless some steps are taken to correct apparent discrepancies against farmers of this county, the farmers will not again support the federal control program. The farmers had been told in advance that if they co-operated with the soil conservation program and took their acreage cut under that program they would be allowed their poundage of the acres left in production based on what the acreage had been produced in recent years.

The growers now contend that instead of being permitted to sell their usual production from the acres left in cultivation, the allotments on these remaining acres is in the majority of cases far below the average poundage harvested from these acres. As a result of the poundage reductions the growers contend that they have received big cuts at the hands of the government instead of one, and that the cuts in this county apparently are much greater than in other sections. Pitt County in the past has been the world's largest producer of bright leaf tobacco and was the leader in support of the federal crop control plan, but if the government hopes to continue to receive the support of the farmers of this county, any discrepancies against this county must be corrected at once.

PUBLIC FORUM

Please Make Your Discussion As Short As Possible. DISCUSSING PROBLEMS OF INTEREST TO THIS COMMUNITY. IN ALL CASES NAMES MUST ACCOMPANY ANY COMMUNICATION.

To The Daily Reflector: There appeared in your paper on August 24th and also on August 25th, two articles calculated to mislead the reading public; therefore, in fairness to my son I am asking you to defend. These articles pictured my son as being guilty of grand larceny and that he was given your paper by the Greenville police department had been advised that an error had been made in withdrawing the charge and steps were being taken to annul the prosecution. The date August 21st, my son left Virginia on an en route home, and at the time he packed his wearing apparel he had been drinking and not being himself packed properties belonging to others in his traveling bags. When he was near Williamston, N. C. he discovered what he had done and notified owners of his mistake and assured them they would be returned. He hurried to Greenville that I might assist him, and when he arrived Patrolman Williams arrested him and turned him over to the Greenville police department. When advised of all that had happened, I called parties at Virginia Beach and learned from them they were trying to correct their action, which was told to the Greenville police department. I learned the amount of bond necessary and less than one hour returned to the police department with bondsmen who could qualify for ten cash bonds, or could have posted cash bond if required, and was just outrightly refused the privilege of giving bond at all, after being promised such. They suggested that I come back the next morning, which I did, at or shortly after nine o'clock, and again was refused. I then left for Virginia Beach to see what I could do among strangers of another state, and I must say I was never treated with more courtesy and respect.

Not being in his office, I was unable to contact the Commonwealth's Attorney until around 7 p.m. When he heard the facts he ruled that the State of Virginia had no case against my son, and granted complete annulment of all charges. At 7:50 p.m., the Greenville police department was advised by wire of the Commonwealth's Attorney's action, and at 8 p.m. they got time to make the release. All the while his car was being held without a shadow of authority, and from the time he was released every rag of his wearing apparel was held until the next morning, and to safeguard against contamination of the unsanitary city jail, he had to secure sleeping clothes. The Greenville police department has as much right to confiscate the car and wearing apparel of any visitor to this city, as they had in the above actions.

Every statement in this letter can be proven by disinterested parties, or can be proven in black and white, and I defy any man on the force to deny one of them. Why was my son refused bond, when such had been promised? Why was property confiscated after the case had been dismissed? Why publish a man as a felon when such was not the case, and was known to the Greenville police department? No one can plead ignorance, as it is their paid duty to know. Finally, I want to suggest, and thousands join me in the request, that the state Patrol turn their prisoners over to the Sheriff of Pitt County until such time as a shake-up can raise the standard of the Greenville police department.

(Signed) D. A. WINDHAM, Aug. 26-33.

THE CLOUDY MOON

By MAX SALTmarsh

The Characters

Hugo Stern, handsome author, living on the French Riviera.
Archibald Lumsden, himself, Hugo's friend.
Ottillie Wills, a beautiful American heiress.

Yesterday: The police (tipped off by Geis) search the chalet, but Dunning saves me by taking the gun and Eve's letter. Later we tell Ottillie that the murdered girl was her sister.

Chapter 17

Ottillie's Story

"I KNEW it," Ottillie said at last, in a flat, expressionless voice. "I've been sure for a long time that something terrible would happen to her. That's why I was scared to ask you. Tell me about it, please."

And so I told her the story of Eve Mone's death, though with certain reservations, for I did not speak of the letter, nor of the startling events of that morning and the part the ubiquitous Mr. Dunning had played in them. "I ought to warn you, though," I finished, "that the police here are convinced I had something to do with your sister's murder. You see, I can't give any reasonable explanation as to why she spoke to me."

She smiled at that, a pathetic little twist of the lips. "I could tell them the reason right off. There was a man that Melanie liked a lot—I guess she would have married him, only he was killed in an airplane crash last year—and you're the living image of him. She was in trouble of some sort, and she felt she could trust you."

She clinched her hands. "You're expecting me to do some weeping," she added, "but I've been steeling myself to face something of this sort, these last three months, and I won't crack up—not yet awhile. She looked from one to the other of us. "You've been so frank, and so wonderfully kind. I owe you some sort of explanation, and the best way is to tell you just how it happened. My sister, for the past year or so, had been acting as secretary to my uncle, and last February she complained of feeling poorly and arranged to go and stay with a school-friend in Santa Barbara. Six weeks passed, and her letters all said what a good time she was having and how she wasn't ready to come home yet awhile—and then one day I had a short note announcing her safe arrival. That was sure a queer thing that I took a plane to California, and when I arrived I found she had never been to Santa Barbara at all. She'd left a lot of letters with her friends to be mailed at regular intervals—only, you see, the first one had got sort of misplaced."

Hugo was eyeing her closely, and even as he called a hovering waiter and ordered champagne cocktails, his gaze never left her face. "And the sequel?" he prompted. "Finding that your sister was not at Santa Barbara, what did you do then?" "Why," she said uncertainly, "the obvious thing, I flew back to New York, told my uncle what had happened, and we started to try and find her. In his position it was easy for him to make private inquiries, and we soon discovered that she had sailed for Plymouth two days after she left home. She was traveling under her own name, and we traced her as far as London, but there—she spread out her hands—"the trail was lost. My uncle asked Scotland Yard to help, and when they drew a blank we appealed to the Sûreté, but the trouble was we couldn't risk a scandal, with my uncle's position. It all had to be done so secretly."

"Who Will Be Next?" "AND just why," said Hugo quietly, "did you expect a scandal?" "It was natural, wasn't it?" she retorted. "A young girl, the niece of a man like my uncle, leaves home for no reason, comes to Europe, vanishes! If I had had my way, I'd have let rip—tried all ways to find her—radio, the papers, everything—but my uncle couldn't think only of himself. He was putting through a big deal and he had to think of his business associates."

"And what did the Sûreté do?" I asked. "The Sûreté," she answered, "after six months, reported that they had a clue. An unnamed girl, answering to my sister's description, had been seen at Dezeville with a man called Vladimir Rakovsky, but they lost track of them both, and when they found him again, in Italy, he was alone and denied ever having seen her. It was then that my uncle decided to send Pat O'Donnell across to look for her. We had known him a long time. He was working for an agency whose head was a friend of ours. He was kind and trustworthy."

She broke off and sipped thirstily at her cocktail. "I should have explained," she went on, "that last fall my uncle decided to come to the Riviera this summer for a short vacation. He had engaged rooms for us all at Cap d'Antibes, and we were to have sailed the first week in August; but then we suddenly got a cable from Pat saying: 'On the trail. Come at once,' and we came a week earlier than we had meant. We got here two days ago and have been waiting news from him ever since. I can't think"—her lip suddenly trembled—"why he doesn't get in touch with us."

"Ottillie," I said hurriedly, "you've taken a big knock—now you must face a lesser one. O'Donnell was the second man to leave the casino last night. He was shot down trying to catch your sister's murderer."

She gasped, and every atom of color drained from her face. "Pat too?" she said tonelessly. "First Melanie, then him. Who will be the next?"

"To answer that," said Hugo quietly, "it would be a considerable help if you would explain just why your sister left home and what you know of the three men she was associating with."

For an instant she was silent, obviously fighting for self-control; then she looked up at him calmly. "I don't understand you," she said. "I've told you how it happened. I can't do more."

Hugo stood up abruptly. "In that case," he said, and though his voice was level I could hear that he was very angry, "there's no more to be said. If you will tell me where you left your car, I will bring it round for you. You know, I added reflectively, "you are a very foolish young woman. You have no reason to distrust me. You know who I am, and I have kept very little back from you."

She caught him up quickly. "Then you have kept something back?"

"Certainly," he answered gravely. "And I am very glad of it, for I shall now use that something to bargain with you, Miss Wills, we are no disinterested spectators. We are both of us, my friend and I, deeply involved as you are—he because your sister came to him for help, and I because I knew O'Donnell. But if you refuse to put your cards on the table, I certainly see no reason why we should tell you the contents of your sister's letter."

Reunion

"I EITER!" she cried. "What letter?" "The letter she wrote to Lumsden here, shortly before her death, but which he only received yesterday afternoon. There are some queer items of information in it. She speaks of something 'they' propose to do to a mysterious 'he'—certain date, she begs Lumsden to warn this man 'he' and persuade him to go back home. He broke off, eyeing her keenly. "Does that date interest you, Miss Wills, and the other details that I haven't mentioned?"

She stared up at him, wide-eyed, piteous. "I can't fight any longer," she said wildly. "I must see that letter. I'll tell you everything." "But not just yet," I put in quickly. From where I sat, I faced the premises, and at that moment I had seen threading its way through the pine boles towards us a squat, podgy figure in white trousers and lavender shirt—"Baron Stahl" on the way to break up the party."

She caught her breath at that, but before she had time to speak, the fat man stood beside our table, a most unpleasant smile creasing his swarthy face. "Miss Wills," he said, and bowed jerkily. "I am so happy that I find you! Your uncle, he is so disturbed. He look everywhere for you—he not find you nowhere, he ask everyone in the hotel. You come back with me now—no?"

Hugo turned slowly and faced the other. "Baron," he said softly, "you arrive in the nick of time. Miss Wills has just accepted an invitation to have tea with my sister at our villa in Cannes, and we were debating how to let her uncle know her whereabouts. If you will give him a message we shall be most grateful."

Ottillie Wills was very silent as I drove her back to Cannes in her long, white roadster. Hugo kept the Hispano a comfortable twenty yards ahead of us, and from time to time I saw her eyes resting on the back of his head with a curious, reflective scrutiny.

"I asked you to take me along," she confided, "because I don't dare to be alone at the moment—Besides, I find that friend of yours a trifle terrifying. He's brilliant, of course, and terribly good-looking, but there's something relentless about him. When we're talking, I feel that I've got to be fighting the whole time to hold my own."

I too, had the feeling that between her and Hugo a spiritual battle was imminent, the clash of two dominating personalities.

The gates of the Chalet stood open. As we crossed the hall the sound of voices drifted from the living-room and my heart sank, for that resonant bass could come from only one larynx that I knew, and I did not fancy that Hugo was at all in the mood for another encounter with Mr. Dunning.

Sure enough, as I opened the door, the gentleman himself came into view, reclining as before in Hugo's favorite chair, with Ada, primly upright on her tabouret, beside him.

"Well, Mr. Stern," he drawled, in his big, booming voice, "the wanderer has returned as you see."

He broke off, staring, and in that moment there was a sudden movement beside me. "Cuthbert!" cried Ottillie Wills. "Cuthbert, have you heard what they've done to her?" and in a flash she was across the room and had thrown herself into his arms, sobbing as if her heart would break.

EIGHTY GRADUATED AT COLLEGE THIS MORNING

(Continued from page one) a teacher confines her services only to the classroom, she is making a great mistake." He told the students they should attempt to elevate the level of the community along with those of the classroom.

Dr. Meadows reiterated a remark made to June graduates that "the students owe a debt to the State." He urged today's graduates to "go out to the people and draw their dividends."

DARDEN RITES HELD AT HOME

(Continued from page one) ville attorney, judge of municipal recorder's court and former judge of county court, died in Duke hospital at Durham yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock after several months of declining health and three weeks of critical illness.

A native of Scotland Neck, Mr. Darden had made his home in Greenville and had practiced law here for approximately 25 years. He was educated at Wake Forest College and obtained his license to practice law in February, 1911. After practicing law in Ayden and Farmville for awhile, he came to Greenville.

Judge Darden ceased his law practice when the United States became involved in the World War in 1917. He entered the first officers' training camp and served as a commissioned officer throughout the war.

He was a member of the Immanuel Baptist church here and took an active interest in affairs of the church. He was known among a wide circle of friends over the state.

Reside his wife, who was Miss Sallie Bet Quinley of Ayden, surviving are his step-mother of Scotland Neck; a brother, W. H. (Buck) Darden of Scotland Neck, and a sister, Mrs. Richard Kitchin, of Nashville, Tenn.

He explained that the Carolina Motor Club, during its 16 years of operation, had not realized a single child accident or fatality in the two Carolinas, where they have had safety patrols organized.

Students to serve as members of the safety patrols will be selected from the various schools, by school authorities on a basis of scholastic records, athletic achievement and other school activities. Each patrol will be headed by a captain, lieutenant and sergeant.

Fox pointed out that the size of the patrols will be determined by traffic conditions. Surveys will be made by AAA officials and they will train members of the patrol to handle conditions surrounding the schools they attend.

Fair-weather equipment for the safety pioneers will consist of a red police hat with a badge; white sand-brown belt with a badge, and a blue jacket or a sweater. During inclement weather, members of the patrols will wear a poncho and rain hat. Fox explained that yellow capes are being used because they can be more easily detected in bad weather.

Permanent headquarters are being established in Greenville by Fox, who plans to conduct extensive safety campaigns in other Eastern Carolina towns and cities.

"Local officials and school authorities have promised to cooperate 100 per cent toward organizing the safety divisions here," he said.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT DEFENSE ORGANIZE FOR SECTION

Third, Tom Daniels of New Bern, Carteret, Craven, Jones, Onslow and Pamlico.

Fourth, H. L. Swain, of Williams-ton, Bertie and Martin.

Fifth, June Rose, of Greenville, Wilson, Edgecombe and Pitt.

Sixth, Henry Stevens of Warren, Wayne, Greene, Lenoir, Duplin and Sampson.

Seventh, Col. R. S. McClellan of Wilmington, New Hanover, Pender and Bladen.

Ninth, R. I. McMillan of Raleigh, Johnston Wake, Chatham and Lee.

Tenth, Hector Blackwell, of Fayetteville, Robeson, Cumberland, Hoke, Harnett, Moore, Scotland and Richmond.

There is no eighth district.

The warning net, most extensive ever organized in the United States will extend over an area bounded by Elizabeth City, Wilson, Siler City, Rockingham and Wilmington.

INEQUALITIES PREVALENT IN WEED QUOTAS

"The poundage quotas are based primarily on the past marketings of tobacco, the number and size of the tobacco barns on the farm for use in 1938, the number of families on the farm and the amount of cropland available for the production of tobacco on the farm."

"Producers should keep in mind that this is a new program; that it takes time to perfect a program; to work out inequalities; that the Congress of the United States worked during the special session and until late in the regular session before the program was announced, and that day and night the Washington, State, and County offices and Committees have rushed with all possible speed to get the program into effect in 1938."

"This tremendous effort commands the support of the producers in order that the apparent inequalities may be ironed out by proper adjustments or explanation of principles."

"The aim of the program is parity prices for farm products through control of burdensome surpluses and soil conservation."

"The law requires that under the new act a review committee will be appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture to review individual poundage quotas in an effort to iron out inequalities."

"Under this procedure a producer who feels that his quota is out of line may file a written statement with the Review Committee within 15 days after the marketing card is received."

"Until the Review Committee has been appointed producers may leave their written claims at the county agent's office to be reviewed by the Review Committee later."

LARGER SPACE FOR 4-H CLUBS
State Fair Gives More Attention to Farm Work

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Aug. 26—Announcement that a larger amount of space at the State Fair will be devoted to 4-H Clubs during the exposition in Raleigh, October 11-15 was made today by Dr. J. S. Dorton, general manager of the fair.

At the same time, State 4-H Leader L. R. Harrill and Miss Frances MacGregor, assistant leader, outlined plans calling for the most ambitious 4-H exhibits in the history of the fair.

"Over 42,000 farm boys and girls, member of the 4-H Club, will turn their eyes this fall to the North Carolina State Fair and toward co-operating in making this year's fair the best of all," declared Miss MacGregor. "We are planning for the most outstanding exhibit that we have ever had since there are more club members participating and because careful plans were made far in advance."

Five booths will be devoted to educational features of 4-H Club work, with the theme this year again being "4-H Club Work Trains Farm Youth in the Art of Living." Every section of the State will be represented in the displays.

Exhibits arranged by 4-H girls will be similar to last year's. Ten girls will exhibit complete costumes made by themselves, ten will show the results of room improvement work, ten will display window treatments and from 50 to 75 girls will exhibit canned products. The 4-H girls who exhibit their products at the State Fair must have excelled first in their counties and their districts.

The boys' department will consist of the corn exhibit, poultry show, livestock show and wine show. The large 4-H corn exhibit of previous years has attracted State-Wide attention.
