

Yuba City, Calif. Woman Held for $15,000 Ransom

SUM DEMANDED BY ABDUCTORS

Wealthy Rancher's Wife Whisked Away in Husband's Automobile After Young Men Had Made Demands for Ransom Money

Yuba City, Calif., Sept. 2. (AP) — Two masked, roughly dressed young men kidnaped Mrs. W. R. Meeks, 55-year-old wife of a wealthy Sutter county rancher, from her home early this morning for $15,000 ransom, Sheriff Burt Ulrey reported.

Meeks said the kidnapers, one of them threatening her with a pistol, forced their way into his home shortly before midnight, bound both him and his wife and then ransacked the house.

As they were leaving the house, the pair stood over Meeks and demanded the ransom. He said they told him:

"We'll contact you in a couple of days for that $15,000."

Notified of the kidnaping by the Associated Press, Federal Bureau of Investigation agents left for the scene early today to join sheriff's officers and the state highway patrol.

Orders to all members of the State Highway patrol to watch the roads for the stolen automobile were issued by Raymond Cato, head of the patrol.

The rancher "guessed" the men were about 24 or 25 years old. They were about five feet nine or ten inches tall. Both were roughly dressed. White handkerchiefs covered their faces up to their eyes and kept the rancher from being able to give a good description of either of his wife's abductors.

Negro To Die For Attack On Woman

Fayetteville, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Robert Williams, 18-year-old Negro, was sentenced today by Superior Court Judge N. A. Sinclair to die in the state gas chamber after the Negro had been convicted on a charge of criminally assaulting Mrs. W. W. Bullard, prominent Hope Mills white woman.

An appeal was made to the State Supreme court.

The verdict of guilty was brought in late last night after the jury had heard 22 witnesses.

Defense attorneys presented four witnesses yesterday to testify to the strange actions on the part of the defendant. Dr. M. D. Kemp of Pine Bluff, an alienist, testified that in his opinion the defendant had the mentality of a six-year-old child. He said, however, he thought the Negro knew he was doing something wrong.

COURT SESSION DRAWS TO END

Large Number Cases Removed from The Docket Here

As this week's session of criminal court neared an end, a large number of cases had been removed from docket.

Judge J. Paul Frizzelle, presiding, today ordered John A. Brisbane to pay five dollars a month to his wife and also pay any necessary doctor's bills and remain of good behavior, after the white man had tendered a plea of guilty to non-support. A two year sentence was suspended upon the provisions outlined. Brickhouse tendered his plea, through counsel, after his case had ended in a mistrial earlier in the week when the jury was unable to agree on a verdict.

Walter Samuel Gardner, Negro, charged with breaking and entering Hatch's store in Ayden, was acquitted.

Charlie Stocks was convicted of assault on a female and also with carrying concealed weapons and was given two years on each charge, the sentences to run consecutively.

Leo Solomon was given three months after pleading guilty to a larceny charge.

Claude Brown was given a six months sentence for being drunk and disorderly and resisting an officer.

Minnie Whitley, Negro woman, charged with slaying her husband, was freed, at least temporarily, when a nol pros with leave was taken by Solicitor D. M. Clark.

Four Negroes, Tomie Brown, Frank Worthington, Ethel May Brown and Bertha Worthington, were freed of a charge of breaking, entering and larceny, when Judge Frizzelle allowed a motion for a not guilty verdict. Luby Brown, charged with aiding and abetting in breaking, entering and larceny, also was freed when the motion was allowed.

Gilbert Hargraves entered a plea of guilty to forgery and was given a 12 months' suspended sentence upon payment of court costs. The defendant was placed on probation.

George Clark and Hubert Sealon withdrew their appeals from a conviction of trespass and accepted judgment of Greenville city court.

Lois McLawhorn withdrew an appeal from conviction of assault and accepted the judgment of Ayden municipal court.

Lawyer Testifies In Hines' Trial

New York, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Max Steuer, noted New York lawyer, testified today in Tammany District leader James J. Hines' racket conspiracy trial that the political boss had asked him in 1933 to "adjust" a federal tax income case against Dutch Schultz.

Schultz, now dead, was head of a vast policy syndicate for which Hines is accused of having quite widespread "protection."

In a low voice the witness said Hines telephoned him and asked if he would be willing to take a case for the gangster.

"I told Mr. Hines I would be very glad to take it," Steuer said. "It was in the hands of the United States Attorney."

Steuer said he saw the United States Attorney, George Medalle, who was then the immediate Super-

ROME EXTENDS BAN ON JEWS

Excludes Race From All State-Recognized Schools

Rome, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The government today excluded Jews from state recognized schools, universities and "all academies, institutes and associations of science, arts and letters."

The decree, announced after a meeting of the Italian cabinet, imposed the first restrictions on the participation of Jews in the life of the nation since the expulsion ordered yesterday of foreign Jews coming to Italy since 1919.

Today's decree applies to both teachers and students.

Jewish graduates of secondary schools may continue studies in universities "in a transitory manner," the decree said.

That was the only exception. The enrollment of Jewish students in any grade of an education institution recognized by the state was otherwise forbidden.

The curtailment of cultural activities of Jews was anticipated in further restrictions which the decree indicated would be imposed by the Fascist Grand council when it meets October 1.

The decree said the Grand Council would fix a comprehensive basis for governing the "participation of Jews in the full life of the nation."

The slogan of racial policy has been "no Jews in the state one Hebrew per thousand Italians in the life of the nation."

PRISON GUARDS AND OFFICIALS ORDERED HELD

Found Criminally Negligent in Death of Convicts

CORONER'S JURY TAKES ACTION

Superintendent, Deputy Warden, Nine Guards, Two Physicians Refused Bond

Philadelphia, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Supt. William Mills, Deputy Warden Frank Craven, nine guards and two physicians of the Philadelphia county prison were held without bail today for the grand jury after a coroner's jury found them criminally negligent in the "baking" deaths of four convicts.

All were taken into custody immediately in a crowded city hall court room at the end of a three-day inquest.

Deputy Coroner Vincent Moran, charging the jury of six business men and club women at the conclusion of the inquest, specifically asked that the following be held:

Mills, Craven, Guard Captain James McGuire, Guard Sergeant James Hart, Guard S. Smith, Alfred Brough, Robert Morrow, and William Borbridge.

Moran also instructed the jury to consider carefully the testimony of three other guards and to hold them for grand jury action if it considered them involved in the deaths.

These were Joseph Lippo, Edward Corkery and Samuel James.

The deputy coroner told the jurors, however, to exonerate the guards if they were found only to have been acting under orders in turning on the heat in the punishment building.

Deputy Warden Craven denied emphatically at the start of today's inquest a subordinate's statement that he was responsible for the "heat treatment."

CHARGES AIRD IN CITY COURT

Heavy Docket of Varied Cases Completed Before Noon

Various charges, including traffic violations, drunkenness, non-support, larceny and careless and reckless driving, composed the docket in the regular Friday morning session of city Recorder's court, which was disposed of before the noon recess was taken.

W. S. Nobles, charged with abandonment and non-support, was adjudged guilty for failure to support his child. He was given a 60-day road sentence, suspended upon condition that he support his child and make payments of $2 per week to his wife for support of the child.

A case charging Miss Frances Andrews and C. D. O'Neal with operating a motor vehicle in a careless and reckless manner was not prosecuted.

When Will Reddick, Negro, failed to appear in court to answer charges of being drunk and down, his $20 bond was forfeited.

Charges of careless and reckless driving against Jesse Smith and James Smith, both Negroes, were dismissed.

At the request of the Solicitor, a nol pros was taken in the case charging Archie Williams with riotous and disorderly conduct and assault.

Lewis Everette and Bud Allen were convicted on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. They were fined and taxed with the costs of the court, and each was ordered to pay $5 to apply on the doctor's bill of the prosecuting witness.

Nathan Sherrod, Negro, charged with careless and reckless driving, was taxed with the costs of the court and pay $10 for damages done to the automobile of the prosecuting witness.

A 30-day road sentence was suspended upon condition that the defendant comply with the phases of the other judgments.

Roosevelt Says He Has No Objection To Election Of Republican, If A Liberal

HELD IN 'RAT POISON' DEATH

Mrs. Gladys Oakley (left), 31, mother of two children, and James Barbee (right), 59, were jailed at Lebanon, Tenn., after authorities quoted her as confessing she put a fatal dose of rat poison in the coffee of her husband, Levi Oakley, who died the day after drinking it. Mrs. Oakley prepared to marry Barbee the day after the funeral, officers said. Barbee denied any connection with the crime.

SAYS SEVERAL MAKING RACES

Tells Reporters That American People Beginning to Think in Terms of Principles Rather Than in Terms of Personalities

Washington, Sept. 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt told reporters today he would have not the slightest objection to the election of a liberal running on a Republican ticket.

He said the American people were beginning to think more in terms of principles than in personalities.

Asked whether he knew of any Republican liberals who were running for office, the President told his press conference there were several.

He authorized this direct quotation:

"If there is a good liberal running on the Republican ticket, I would not have the slightest objection to his election. The good of the country rises above party."

"It is an absolute unjustified assumption which is being made by Detroit papers that a failure to go to dedicate the international bridge at Port Huron (Mich.) is in anyway connected with the Michigan campaign."

"It is a deliberate distortion of the fact the Detroit papers might as well get that."

A special commission told the President, meanwhile, that British industry and labor maintain industrial peace through mutual confidence and co-operation.

The commission, which made a first-hand study of labor relations in England, offered no recommendations.

It said, however, that where collective bargaining agreements, mutually satisfactory to national unions and national employers associations, had existed for a long period, strikes had been few and strike violence rare.

Mr. Roosevelt, making the report public just before Labor Day commented, "To me, the most salient feature of it is the co-operative spirit, coupled with restraint which is shown by those who represent both employers and employees in Great Britain x x x"

Appointments Are Made By Board Of Aldermen

Garris Named to W. & L. Board; Skinner New Recorder

Appointment of a member of the Water and Light Commission and selection of a recorder and vice recorder, authorization of the purchase of street signs and reports on various municipal activities were highlights of last night's regular monthly meeting of the Greenville Board of Aldermen.

Both the Water and Light Commission members and the municipal recorder were decided by M. K. Blount when the eight aldermen decided four each on candidates.

L. B. Garris was chosen for the commissioner and L. C. Skinner for recorder.

Mr. Garris, who was placed in nomination by Alderman J. A. Watson, was chosen for the Water and Light commission post over Jesse Simpson, and J. H. Waldrop, nominated by L. B. Fleming. On the first vote Mr. Smith received the least votes and was eliminated. The aldermen then voted four each for the other two candidates. Mayor Blount broke the tie by voting for Mr. Garris, who will succeed J. S. Ficklen, who resigned at the last meeting due to the press of private business.

Mr. Skinner, who has been serving as vice recorder, was elevated to the judgeship to succeed the late W. A. Darden.

Mr. Skinner was placed in nomination by Alderman Watson. Wm. S. Tyson was put up by Alderman Jack Spain. Each candidate received four votes each and the appointment was decided upon a vote for Judge Skinner by Mayor Blount.

Mr. Tyson then was chosen vice recorder after having been proposed by Alderman A. C. Tadlock. Hammer Hannah was proposed for vice recorder by Alderman Simpson.

Award Contract For Street Work

The Greenville Board of Aldermen this afternoon awarded a contract to Ames and Webb, Raleigh contractors, who placed a low bid of $79,714.50 to do PWA street improvement work in Greenville.

Next lowest bidder was the J. A. Clark and Company of Greenville, which placed a bid of $81,425. Other companies submitting bids and the amount of the bids are A. B. Company, $86,302.50; F. D. Cline, $86,765; Coastal Construction Company, $91,370 and F. J. McGuire, $97,910.

Forty-five per cent of the total cost of the street improvement project has been appropriated by the Public Works Administration. The remaining 55 per cent, provided by the City of Greenville, has already been placed in the bank.

Henry L. Rivers, civil engineer, handling the bids, said that work would begin on Tuesday of next week. The contract was scheduled to be submitted at an earlier date, but as soon as the bids were ready, the Aldermen took action to award the construction contract immediately.

Included in the program is paving, curb and gutter, and other work to improve the streets of the city.

Since bonds for the improvement work are already sold PWA officials in Atlanta will likely be notified today, so there will be no delay in getting the work started Tuesday. It was previously planned to begin the work Monday, but since that is a holiday, the work was deferred for one day.

How's Your Health?
Diplomat for the New York Academy of Medicine
By Igoe Goldston, M.D.

Eczema Problems
Eczema is the commonest of the skin diseases. It is non-infectious and non-contagious. Primarily, it is an inflammation of the skin leading to the formation of blisters, crusts, and thickening of the skin. Serum may continuously ooze from it (weeping eczema).

The ultimate origins of eczema are not understood but it is evident that the skin of the eczema sufferer is particularly sensitive to external irritating agents.

Also, the state of general physical well-being of the sufferer as it is affected by definite diseases; disturbances in nutrition, assimilation and elimination; disturbances of the nervous system and of the glands of internal secretion; and foci of infection has a very marked bearing upon this skin disease.

The immediate and remote causes of eczema therefore are numerous and complicated. In treatment of this condition is equally difficult and complicated.

An initial step in the treatment of eczema is the protection of the over-sensitive skin against irritants. The exciting causes of eczema include light, heat, water, lime, soda, soap, turpentine, other volatile oils and dyes.

Medicines, vegetables, dusts, ingredients used in household or in industrial processes may also induce eczematous reactions in the sensitive skin.

It stands to reason therefore that in every way possible the affected skin should be guarded against all potential irritants.

Food sensitiveness occasionally plays a significant role in eczema, notably in the eczema of infants and children.

In general it has been found from that adult individuals suffering from eczema do well to restrict the amount of table salt they add to their food, and to limit their consumption of sugar, sweets and fats. Particularly to be avoided are sugar, jam, marmalade, honey, pastries, rich cakes, puddings, soups, fats, pork, bacon, sausages, excess potatoes, strong tea, coffee, beer and wine.

Milk, plenty of lean meat, liver at least three times a week, salads, fruits and vegetables, should make up the bulk of their diet.

The specific treatment of eczema calls for high grade medical detective work centered upon each case.

camped on Tybee Island, had a terrible time. Companies A and E of the Second Regiment had little time to seek better quarters than the tents which were wrecked. Many spent the night in box cars. Some who came to the city this morning presented a pitiful appearance. They had no breakfast this morning, the commissary having been totally destroyed. Several are missing.

The wind blew 80 miles an hour at the height of the storm. Tonight the city is in total darkness and it is still raining hard. The wind has gone down and all danger is believed over.

THE CLOUDED MOON

By MAX SALT MARSH

The Characters
Hugo Stern, handsome author, living on the French Riviera.
Arielle Lumsden, myself, Hugo's friend.
René Geiss, a cartoonist with a distorted mind.

Yesterday: Geiss tells the magistrate that I am the murderer, and will probably commit suicide or another murder shortly.

Chapter 23
The Club Of Down-And-Outs
AS Hugo's big car swung out along the coast road, I told him the events of the past few hours since I had moved to the Château la Vague. When I came to the interview with Jean-Francois and his transcript of Geiss's conversations with the juge Hugo grew serious.

"Archie, I don't like it—not a bit. Whatever dangers the Château la Vague may hold for you, I'll swear they're nothing to what Geiss is preparing for you outside. Here's the way I read it. He'll have a shot at bumping you off, in such a way as will suggest suicide, and there will be a letter confessing to Eve Monet's murder waiting to be placed conveniently near your corpse. If that effort doesn't come off, he'll exterminate some innocent and inoffensive person and contrive to throw the blame on you.

"But he'd have to prove motive for that," I suggested mildly, "and the only person I have a motive for killing is myself. I can't somehow see him offering himself as the victim of the perfect crime."

"Don't joke!" he retorted irritably. "What's your next move?"

"No idea, I answered, "except to keep my eyes skinned, but I want you to pass on the number of that car the housekeeper went off in to Dunning. It's too risky for me to communicate with him direct and he's the man to trace it."

He was silent for a moment, as the big car raced on through the summer night. "We're getting near our goal, and I fancy it's time to make a few inquiries. That gasoline station looks a likely spot." And forthwith he pulled in to the roadside and gave a hail.

An old fellow in soiled overalls answered the call, and Hugo put a casual-sounding question. "The Caves des Muettes?" he said. "But certainly I know it! It lies, perhaps, three kilometers farther on. But it is not a very chic locality! Dirty, ill kept, and the wine is bad. Why do the gentlemen not continue a little farther to Nice?"

We thanked him and drove on through a sleeping countryside, until after, as he had said, a bare three kilometers, we sighted a long low shape away to the left. There were dusky patches that might have been fig trees on either side of an open door through which light gleamed and between the building itself and the road lay a stretch of rough grass that seemed once to have been a garden.

Hugo pulled up a hundred yards down the road. "You know," said he, "my first thought was to walk boldly in and see what we could see. But there's something dashed sinister about the look of the place. I've a good mind to do a bit of reconnoitering first."

We took a diagonal course across the grass warily avoiding the beam of light from the open door. I could see the interior now, a shabby, dirty place with an indescribable air of squalor.

No living creature showed, but as we drew nearer a woman's shrill laugh rang out, followed by a rumble of men's voices.

Hugo signed to me to stay where I was, and himself crept softly to a window beside the door. It was shuttered, but the wood must have been old and warped, for a long crack showed between the shutters, and to this he set his eye. A couple of minutes he stood there, then stole back to me.

"Half a dozen fishermen and a couple of women," he whispered. "Nothing to interest us, but it's a big place and there may be rooms to the back. Let's take a east round it."

'At Home'
CAUTIOUSLY and holding our breath we crossed the lighted pathway and circled the house. Neatly parked along the yard were three cars, and one of them a big, black limousine bore number-plates that had seen once before that evening.

"Hugo!" I said, very low, "that's the car the housekeeper went off in."

"So-ho!" said he. "Then the damsel's somewhere within. This becomes interesting!" But even as he spoke something happened that set every nerve in my body tingling. Across that brooding silence a thin, clear sound had cut as sharply as a knife. It was the sound of a man whistling a tune that I knew well: "And you'll hear no more of poor Noah More for poor Noah More no more!"

Next instant came the sound of shuffling footsteps on the rough earth, and the dim silhouette of the whistler himself showed against the angle of the house. He crossed the yard, a tall gangling shadow, halted beside a big barn to our left and rapped three times, sharply on the door. The door opened cautiously for a moment I saw two faces, the face of the man who opened, and the face of the man waiting admission.

The man within was short, dark, and swarthy, I had seen fellows like him, hanging about the alleys of the sailor quarter in Marseille; but it was the sight of the other, the man who had whistled "Noah More," that made me catch my breath. It was a long face, dust-colored, with pendulous lips and flabby chin, but it was a face with the remains of extraordinary beauty. The man was a wreck of something splendid, and so seemed infinitely more horrible in his squalor.

It was only for a second that I saw him then, with a muttered word, he pushed past the other, and the door closed behind him.

"The Club des Sans Clubs at home!" he whispered.

Hugo grunted. "And the last arrival, I take it, was the gentleman who so kindly planted the gun on you this morning. Come on, let's have a look-see."

We circled round the barn, only to find it an ancient but solid structure, with no window of any shape. When I knelt by the door, all that came to my ear was a far-away murmur of voices.

It was unthinkable to have come so far and learn so little, but here Providence was suddenly kind, for the building adjacent to the barn proved to be an empty stable, and here we established ourselves and settled down to wait.

An hour had passed when suddenly Hugo gripped me by the arm. "The party's breaking up, he whispered. "Shift yourself!"

We crept to the entrance. As I watched, the figure of the housekeeper appeared in the lighted square of the doorway and swiftly crossed to the big, black car, followed by two men, one of whom I had no difficulty in identifying as the chauffeur.

Villainous Faces
THE black car purred gently round the angle of the house and disappeared, even as a more familiar shape, short, paunchy, consequential, emerged, in spite of the heat of the night. Baron Stahl was wrapped in a dark overcoat, with the collar turned up round his ears and a soft felt hat pulled low over his eyes, but it would have taken more than that to disguise him. He paused in the doorway to speak to a thin, shabby youth at his elbow, whose mop of frizzled fair hair caught the glow of the lantern like a halo; then both of them made off. Stahl, to take possession of the second car and the lad to vanish on foot into the shadows.

There was a moment's delay and then suddenly, through the lighted doorway, filed the queerest procession I had ever seen. Five slouching, down-at-heel men, shambled off, followed closely by a couple of painted drabs. If I searched the vilest slums of Paris I could not have made a better collection of villainous faces. The last to come out was the man who had whistled "Noah More."

He halted for a moment, whispering something to the doorkeeper, and laughed as he turned away, shambling off into the night and the laugh turned my blood cold, for it was mad, and bad, both crazy and cruel!

The doorkeeper locked the door from the outside, pocketed the key and carefully dimmed his lantern, before strolling over to the remaining car. He drove carefully around the house and for a moment we listened to the long drawn roar of his engine, slowly fading into the drowsy silence of the countryside. Another ten minutes we waited then we took made our cautious way back to the road.

We took our way back to Cannes, and it was a while before we were humming the non-stretch that Hugo spoke.

"The Club des Sans Clubs!" he said slowly. "The club of men without a club without a home or country or a conscience or a morality: the club of the down-and-outs. Men who would stoop at no villainy to get a fleeting sense of power or a still more fleeting revenge against the order that has discarded them. Arielle, it's a fearful thought, the power that such an organization would be in the hands of unscrupulous men!"

"At least," I said, "we can spot quite a few of its members again when we see them."

He shook his head. "Of the local ones, yes; but I've a feeling that the club itself has a much wider scope. I wouldn't wonder if its members are scattered broadcast over Europe—if some of them were at the bottom of each of the killings. Dunning spoke of those fellows tonight were called together for a special purpose—to get instructions, perhaps, for whatever drama is to be staged on Sunov week and as you say it's as well we've got a sight of them."

He broke off suddenly and jammed on his brakes for round the bend of the slope a big black limousine swept towards us holding the crown of the road with a fine disregard for approaching traffic.

A moment, only I saw it as it whizzed past. "The housekeeper said I had been returned to cold storage, I wonder who the fellow was with her?"

"Time will show," said Hugo philosophically and pulled up at the head of the lane that led to the chateau. "Good night old son I'll be waiting here at midday tomorrow and meantime don't let yourself be persuaded into committing suicide no matter how great the inducement!"

Birds Show Signs Of An Early Fall
Raleigh, Sept. 2—Signs of an early fall, as indicated by migratory birds, have been noted by J. D. Chalk, State game and inland fisheries commissioner.

Game Protector A. R. Baum, of Currituck County, reports to the game division of the Department of Conservation and Development that "quite a few ducks are coming into the marshes now."

In addition to the early duck migrants, Protector Baum also reported "plenty of grass, which means, according to the game commissioner that there should be ample food for ducks, geese and other migratory wild fowl. From other sources, there have also been numerous observations that the supply of eel grass which was reduced almost to extinction several years ago has come back on the coastal waters of the State.

Regarding the reports of early arrival of Ducks, Commissioner Chalk asserted: "This is rather early for ducks and it may be another indication of an early fall. I have heard several older friends who pride themselves on their ability to make weather forecasts say that we will have an early fall."

DON'T DITCH THE CONTROL PROGRAM

Following dissatisfaction on the part of many farmers with their tobacco quotas and a slump in tobacco prices since market openings, farmers' meetings are being called to discuss the matters and give assurance that the control program will remain in effect next year. While apparently there have been inequalities in the allotments this year and we believe that certain adjustments should be made, it is our opinion that it is essential that a control program remain in effect if our farmers are to receive a fair price for this year's tobacco crop and future crops.

There are many who express the opinion that in view of the complaints regarding quotas, there is a possibility that the growers will not vote for control next year, and that the tobacco companies, realizing that no control would mean an over-production next year, are holding back on their purchases of this year's crop.

Like the farmers, we feel that in making the allotments, there probably have been numerous inequalities which should be corrected at once, but we believe that at this time the farmers would make a mistake to signify that they would not vote for control for another year. When the campaign for control was under way early this year we supported the movement because we felt that a control program was necessary for the protection of the farmers' interests, and we still feel that such a program for next year is necessary.

Instead of talk of ditching the program there should be a movement for continuation of the program and an effort to see that existing inequalities are promptly adjusted and that future quotas be allotted upon an understandable basis in order that the farmers might rest assured that all are being treated fairly and squarely.

Washington Daybook. By Preston Grover.

By THURMAN ARNOLD. Washington—Forty years ago the Federal government launched an effort to halt harmful monopoly and price fixing by small groups and the concentration of wealth and power in a few hands. It has been a popular effort but despite a government religion of officialty dedicated to the economic independence of individuals, the growth of great organizations in America has been amazing. The reason is that we have been trying to police the industrial activities of America with a corpora's guard.

net profits is earned by less than 4 per cent of the corporations reporting. Today that 40-year effort must be renewed on a new tack. We can no longer treat the anti-trust laws as a moral problem. They are being employed as far as their capacity will permit to bring practical results in restoring a competitive market which in many fields has been lost.

The problem then is to define the public responsibility of such organizations and to determine which are efficient combinations for mass production and which are instruments arbitrarily assessing inflexible prices after achieving monopoly.

This determination may be made only after a factual investigation. Once that investigation discloses to us the existence of a harmful monopolistic condition within an industry, the corrective process under the anti-trust laws begins.

Guide And Warning. Three courses are open. Criminal prosecution may punish past conduct and serve as a warning. Civil prosecutions may look to the future beneficial organization of the industry. The third is the concurrent prosecution of the two, sharing elements of both but at the same time leaving the door open at any time for the business men involved to volunteer a practical solution of major and immediate benefit to the industry, to competitors and to the public.

It is the policy of the department to make public in connection with each case the basis of the criminal complaint and civil action. Such statements serve (1) as a guide to business men who seek information on the probable action of the department in similar circumstances; (2) to aid the department itself in formulating a consistent policy of anti-trust law enforcement; (3) to serve as a warning to those engaged in similar illegal practices; and (4) to call the attention of the congress to the interpretation and application of anti-trust laws by the attorney general, as they may have a bearing upon contemplated legislation.

Greenies Win 11th Straight; No Chance Catch Billies

HOMER IN 11TH WINNING RUN

"Whitey" Heavener's Circuit Blow Gives Locals Another

By JAMES L. WHITFIELD
Whitey Heavener's round-tripper in the second extra inning of play here yesterday afternoon gave the Greenville Greenies a 5-4 victory over the Kinston Eagles. If there could have been a more fitting climax for the last home game of the season, you'll have to show us. We're from Missouri.

What's more, they're still thinking that fellow Heavener, leading hitter of the Greenie aggregation, for that victory. But why not? There were plenty of eleven's involved in the nightcap, but it wasn't a crap game. It was one of those old-time ball games.

Here's what Mr. Heavener did: He was the first man to face Hurler McMullen in the eleventh; he hit the first pitch in the eleventh; it was the only hit in the eleventh; it was Greenville's eleventh hit of the contest, and the blow extended the locals' winning streak to eleven in eleven starts. And to reiterate, it won the game in the eleventh.

Heavener was truthfully the hero of the game and was treated as such. As a result of his homer, he got a ride to the showers on his mates' shoulders. Young members of the "knot hole" gang tugged at his shoe strings. Spectators peppered his anatomy with pats. Heavener's face is red ordinarily, but it became more rosy after yesterday's accomplishment.

This game was checked with the unusual. The unusual even extended to the pitching staff. It was Lefty Don King who created the unusual in this division. In the last three games he has pitched, he has struck out ten men in each.

Kinston broke the ice in scoring ways in the second on Glisson's double to right field and errors by Vincent Smith and Harry Jenkins. It looks as if we can't keep Heavener out of the scoring doings. He hit a two-bagger in the third scoring Douglass who singled and Simpson who doubled. Manager Rube Wilson's homer over the right field wall put Greenville in front by a one-run advantage.

The deadlock was created in the ninth. Patton singled to right, advanced to second on Stringfellow's sacrifice and scored on Glisson's single to right.

Greenville's candle of hope to participate in the Coastal Plain semi-finals and possibly the finals, went out at a meeting in Ayden last night when officials of the four top clubs in league standings turned their thumbs down on a suggestion made by G. V. Smith, president of the Greenville club, that tied and rained-out games be played.

Objection to the proposal was an outgrowth of the "gift meeting" held in Tarboro some time ago. The president of the Snow Hill club attended the session, but left before the meeting adjourned. Meanwhile, of the seven remaining clubs voted that the tied and rained-out games be played.

But the president of the Snow Hill club objected to the idea, so when the motion was made last night relative to playing the tied and rained-out contests, it was voted down. This automatically pushed Greenville out of the play-off picture.

The locals' last home game for the season was witnessed here yesterday afternoon. The Greenies journeyed to Kinston today for a scheduled contest, which will draw curtains on seasonal play. Yesterday's 5-4 triumph made it eleven wins in as many starts for the locals. It was the third consecutive win of a four-game series with the Kinston club.

Semi-final play of the Coastal Plain League will begin Sunday. Teams to engage in the semi-finals are New Bern, Tarboro, Kinston and Snow Hill.

Serps Wake Up, Save Roth Hits 2 Homers Top Rung for Selves As Bears Beat Aces

Tarboro, Sept. 2.—Tarboro snapped out of its losing streak by edging a 5-4 win over Goldsboro here yesterday.

The Serpents tallied three runs in the first inning. They won the game in the sixth frame, on three singles—by Lehman, Dick and Malone—and Ed Black's long fly.

The Bugs reached Eddie Malone for five hits and three runs in the third. Malone pitched two-hit ball the rest of the route.

Lefty Flora hurled for the Bugs and gave up eight hits with the five runs Tarboro racked up.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Goldsboro 004 000 000-4 7 2 Tarboro 000 002 000-5 8 0 Flora and Mulvihill; Malone and Dick.

RASSLE ROYAL ON FIGHT CARD

Five Wrestlers to Mix at Once at Armory Monday Night

Johnnie Lautares, promoter of the wrestling doings in the city-county armory, said today that a real treat is in store for local grappling fans on Monday night of next week, when a wrestling royal will be staged.

Preliminary boxing events are also on tap for the wrestling show, but those to participate have not yet been announced. Bickett Carroll, whose peppering-punch gave him a decision over his opponent last Monday is expected to be in the preliminary battle.

A wrestling royal is similar to a boxing battle royal, except that wrestlers instead of punchers will provide the entertainment. In Monday night's battle, five husky wrestlers, their combined weight totaling ranging at some less than a thousand pounds, will be executing strange holds, arm locks, body smotherers and what have you on each other.

Fighters to participate in the wrestling royal are Eddie Williams, Lon Chaney, Dick Gammon, Chin Lee, and Al Perry. Each of these fighters has appeared on previous local mat cards and clicked with the fans.

The wrestling royal will be the beginning of the wrestling show. The second and third man to be eliminated will feature the semi-final bout. The fourth and fifth man will supply the roughness for the final event.

Preliminary boxing events are also on tap for the wrestling show, but those to participate have not yet been announced. Bickett Carroll, whose peppering-punch gave him a decision over his opponent last Monday is expected to be in the preliminary battle.

The Board adopted a motion that a resolution expressing the regret at the death of Mr. Darden be drawn up and copies sent to Mrs. Darden and placed on the minutes of the board.

Several persons appeared before the board in regard to minor matters. Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt county health officer, made a report on a small drainage project and the board authorized the street department to conduct the work with the property owner paying for the material. Dr. Ennett also spoke in regard to the question of the city making up $102 out from the sanitary inspector's annual salary by the state. The board later authorized that the inspector's salary be increased this amount by the city.

H. R. Rivers, city engineer discussed the stadium and a proposed drainage project for the city and he was instructed to proceed with plans to secure a WPA drainage project, which will include paving of certain alleys.

Upon motion of Alderman Simpson, the board voted to ask the Chamber of Commerce to investigate the possibility of securing a freight bus terminal, whereby large trucks would unload and deliveries would be made from small vehicles.

Chief George Gardner of the fire department advised the board that the tripping mechanism of the alarm system had been sent to the factory for repairs and was expected back at any time. The system went out of order recently, but it was explained tentative arrangements were made whereby firemen could be warned of a large fire by sounding the alarm by hand.

E. G. Lynch, street department superintendent, was authorized to

Last Woman Carrier Of Mails is Retired

Anaconda, Mont.—After having trudged 65,648 miles, Anna McDonald, called the last of Uncle Sam's women letter carriers on city routes, has been transferred to a postoffice clerical position.

She started carrying the mails in 1918 when the war caused a shortage of men carriers. During her 20 years of service, she estimates, she has made 2,590,112 stops and carried 283 tons of mail.

Mrs. McDonald did not ask for the transfer; the postoffice department ruled that carrying letters is a man's job.

purchase a quantity of new street markers with funds earmarked for this purpose when the budget was drawn up. Mr. Lynch declared it was the purpose to erect new markers in the business section and also on the highways in the residential sections. Different types will be used for the business and residential sections. The markers in the residential section will be placed on two-inch iron pipes, while those in the business section will be attached to power poles.

Alderman Simpson made a motion that the municipal pool be kept open until September 15, but received no second and the move died and the pool will close tonight, as originally scheduled.

The board voted to tear down the shed just behind the city hall to make buildings on the city property line up with other buildings on the street.

City Engineer Rivers was in-structured to survey the property line in all cases where an owner of adjacent property was preparing to erect a brick building. This action was taken, it was explained, in order to prevent any possible misunderstanding over property lines after a building has been erected.
