ADMINISTRATOR ASKS HELP OF LABOR GROUPS

Strict Compliance In Work Standards Act Requested

ENFORCEMENT IS MAIN OBJECTIVE

Elmer Andrews Expresses Appreciation for Efforts of Organized Labor to Clarify Wage-Hour Law For Its Members

Charleston, S. C., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Elmer Andrews, wage-hour administrator, called on labor and industry today to help obtain strict compliance with the labor standards act.

Andrews said in an address prepared for a meeting of the International Association of Government Labor Officials that his first important job would be telling employers what records they must keep after the law becomes effective October 24.

"So great is the task of distributing precise information on this point and laying the ghosts of unfounded apprehension, that I am calling on organized industry, both employers and labor, to co-operate by circulating its membership both as to the basis of the terms of the act and the requirements in connection with record keeping and inspection," Andrews said, "and for the extreme importance of urging members to assist in obtaining compliance with these provisions from the start."

Andrews expressed appreciation for the efforts of organized labor to clarify the act for its members and for the co-operation which has been evidenced generally by industry. He said his primary concern would be equal enforcement of the law, and observed that decisions remain to be made on the question of whether certain industries would be subject to the law because of their seasonal or intra-state characters, and whether special regulations must be drafted for learners and the handicapped.

"At the moment," he said, "I can state only one general policy in connection with such questions as these, and that is that we expect to be guided by what we know to be in the intent of Congress in enacting this law."

LOSS OF JOBS CAUSES PROBE

SCEC to Ask Reason For Dismissal Federal Employees

Washington, Sept. 9.—(AP)—The Senate Campaign Expenditures Investigating committee today decided to ask two federal departments for explanations of dismissals of two federal officials who reportedly lost their jobs in Georgia because they supported Senator George in his campaign for re-election.

The committee said it would ask the National Emergency Council and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for "their side of the story" concerning dismissals of Earl Cooke, Georgia NEC director, and Edgar Dunlap, RFC attorney at Atlanta. The investigators made their reports of the matter this morning.

Other developments: The PWA authorized grants of about $4,650,000 and loans of $68,000 for 61 additional non-Federal projects estimated to cost about $10,350,000.

Allocations announced today included Princeton, N. C., for waterworks: $33,000 loan and $27,000 grant.

Directors' Meeting Is Held Thursday Night

Ernest Graham, president of the Production Credit Corporation of Columbia, S. C., and John B. Mann, field representative of the same organization, attended a directors' meeting of the Greenville Production Credit Association here last night.

A report on the progress of the local association, serving Pitt and Greene counties, was submitted to directors. The report showed that a third of a million dollars has been collected for the year. Collections for loans to farmers of Pitt and approximately $100,000. It was the present year have ranged at a level that since the organization was established in Greenville that approximately one and one quarter millions have been lent.

WEED AVERAGE SHOWING GAIN

Tobacco 59 Cents Per Cwt. Higher Than In 1937

K. W. Cobb, sales supervisor of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade, today released statistics on activities of the Greenville tobacco market covering a period ending September 8.

Comparison of figures during this period with the same date of last year, the seasonal average per hundred pounds for tobacco is 59 cents more than last year.

During the week ending Sept. 3 in the 1937 tobacco marketing season, the weekly average was $19.77. There is only a slight drop in the same period this season and last, in that the week ending Sept. 8, this season shows a weekly average of $19.52. This is only 25 cents less per hundred pounds.

The figures released by Supervisor Cobb show that the poundage for the present season has jumped ahead of poundage figures during the same period last year, despite the fact that poundage controversies have arisen over marketing quota regulations.

MEDICOS HOLD REGULAR MEET

Dr. N. T. Ennett Submits August Report to Pitt Society

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt County Health officer, today released the August report of the health department submitted to the Pitt County Medical Society in session last night.

The major activities of the Pitt County Health Department for the month of August were: Venereal disease clinics, maternal and infant welfare work, community sanitation, and safe and dairy inspections.

The contagious disease statistics for August are as follows: diphtheria, 10 cases; scarlet fever, two cases; typhoid fever, 1 case; undulant fever, 1 case; and whooping cough, 14 cases.

The health officer is much concerned over the diphtheria situation. We had one case of diphtheria in July, 10 in August with two deaths, and for September up through the 7th seven new cases have been reported. One disturbing factor in the situation is the lack of co-operation on the part of some parents in observing the quarantine regulations. It is not uncommon for parents to insist that other children in the family continue at school even after the quarantine sign is up.

The attendance at the Venereal Disease Clinics has shown a marked dropping off since the opening of the tobacco market. We are endeavoring to get the warehouse and factory superintendents to give the employees time off for treatment.

The attendance at the maternal and infant welfare centers was the largest for any month since the work was inaugurated. There were in attendance for the month of August 90 mothers and 36 babies, total attendance of 126. I desire to express my appreciation to the Medical Society as a whole and to the Clinic, an especially for the fine co-operation in this part of our program.

The monthly State Othopedic Clinic sponsored by the Greenville Rotary Club and held in the Pitt County Health Department offices under the direction of Dr. Hugh A. Thompson, orthopedist of Raleigh, continues to serve a large number of patients. The Community Sanitation program is not gathering the momentum which we had anticipated. We are only getting 8 or 10 privies a week.

Post Office Clerks Will Convene Here Saturday

Mercury Drops

The mercury dropped from a high of 87 degrees to a low of 56 degrees yesterday as Greenville and Pitt County citizens received a true indication of the rapidly approaching winter months. Although the decline in temperature was not exceedingly low, it was described by a local official weather observer as being lower than the same date last year.

LESTER JONES ISSUES REPORT

Nine Highway Fatalities Recorded During August

The August report on activities of the Troop A Division of the State Highway Patrol issued today by Lieut. Lester Jones, reveals that nine persons were killed on highways during the month of August, as compared with six fatalities in the month of July.

Forty-seven accidents were investigated last month, with 56 investigations during July. Thirty-three injuries resulted from the accidents in August and 57 in the previous month.

During the month 435 arrests were made, of which 39 were for operating motor vehicles under the influence of liquor, here were 343 arrests in July, with 30 defendants arrested on drunk driving charges. Of this number, seven were adjudged not guilty. Sentences meted out in August amounted to 62 years, 10 months, 428 were adjudged guilty.

Value of property recovered last month was $900. Fines amounted to $3,897.19 and costs $3,014 for a combine total of $7,811.52. Highway revenue collected for overloading and improper licenses was $3,041.90, for a grand total of $10,853.42.

Throughout the month, members of the Eastern division traveled 104,657 miles and spent 10,753 hours on duty. They used 5,116 gallons of gasoline and 844 quarts of oil.

Other activities included: Vehicles inspected, 2,442; lights corrected, 1,933; warning tickets issued, 32; court cases extended, 331; cars recovered, 4; vehicles stored, 16; complaints investigated, 234; number of citations, 341; number of driver's license examinations, 2,123; number of applications approved, 1,894; days absent with leave, 11.

Greenville Chamber Obtaining Equipment

Two office desks and several chairs, along with other essentials, have been placed in the Greenville Chamber of Commerce office, located on Evans street.

Willard T. Kyzer, secretary, said today that other equipment is expected to arrive in about a week. "This will likely complete the present furniture needs of the Chamber of Commerce," he said.

Henderson Resident Is Killed By Train

Henderson, Sept. 9.—(AP)—A man identified as Frank Taylor, 28, of Wilmington, was found dead on the Seaboard Air Line railroad tracks here today. The body had been severed in the middle. Coroner A. P. Paschall said no inquest was necessary. Taylor was the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor of Wilmington. An official of State hospital said he had been a patient at the institution.

HINES CHARGES ARE UPHELD BY COURT JUSTICE

Thirteen Indictments Sustained in Their Entirety

LEGAL ARGUMENT OVER STATUTES

Earlier, Thomas Dewey Had Battled To Prevent Collapse Of State's Four Weeks' Old Case; Justice Pecora Had Pondered Dismissal Motion

New York, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Pecora today sustained in its entirety the 13-count indictment charging Tammany District Leader James J. Hines with conspiracy and contriving a lottery.

Earlier Thomas Dewey had battled to prevent collapse of the state's for weeks' old case against Hines with Justice Pecora intimating grave doubt upon the legal basis of the indictment as he pondered the defense motion for dismissal.

The youthful prosecutor smiled a little grimly as he faced Lloyd Stryker's challenge to end the case of the Tammany leader without a word of defense testimony when he filed a four page memorandum with Pecora contending that it was perfectly proper to merge the charges of conspiracy and the actual commission of a crime.

Stryker had asserted yesterday in a three hours attack on the state case that the $20,000,000 Dutch Schultz racket conspiracy charge ended with the death of the "Dutchman" in 1935, and was out of date the two years statute of limitations for a misdemeanor. He also insisted that the people had failed to prove the 12 felony counts in the indictment of contriving or drawing a lottery.

Warned by the Justice that the evidence might not fit the specific charges against the 61 year old defendant, Dewey in his memorandum said he respectfully submit that there is no basis for the defense contention that the people may not prosecute the procure a conviction on both conspiracy and crimes committed pursuant to and as a result of the conspiracy.

Odd Accident Injury Proves Fatal To Man

Goldsboro, Sept. 9.—(AP)—J. W. Hinnant, 38, died in a Goldsboro hospital today from injuries received, Coroner T. R. Robinson said, when the pressure of a huge tire truck on which he was working, caused an explosion.

LIGHT DOCKET IN CITY COURT

Recorder Skinner Disposes of Ten Cases This Morning

One of the lightest dockets in some time was disposed of in the regular Friday morning session of city recorder's court, with L. C. Skinner, recorder, presiding. Jake Watson, Negro, was convicted on a charge of illegal possession of liquor for purpose of sale, buy prayer for judgment was continued.

Troubled European Fronts Renewing War Fears While Other Powers Seek Peace

NEW TROUBLES NEAR BORDERS

Demonstration Front of Jaegerndorf Police Station Brings Flood of Telegrams from Czechs; Trouble-Makers Get their Rights

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Several Sudeten-Germans shouting "Nazi" slogans demonstrated for an hour today in front of the police station at Jaegerndorf near the Czechoslovakian, German and Polish borders. The clamor added to the pressure on the harassed government from both sides.

Premier Hodza received a flood of telegrams from Czechoslovakians who opposed more concessions to the autonomous demands of the Sudeten minority.

Demonstrators at Jaegerndorf obtained permission to make a Sudeten party affair tomorrow of the funeral of Alfred Knoll Knoll, a German-Sudeten functionary, was killed when he fell from a railroad train while in the custody of a military guard. He had been charged with espionage and Sudeten Germans have demanded an inquiry into his death.

Fearing violence officials had refused permission for the funeral to be held under Sudeten-German auspices.

Gray to Head YDC Of North Carolina

Durham, Sept. 9.—(AP)—George Hampton, of Greensboro, withdrew today from the race for the presidency of the North Carolina Young Democratic Club and issued a statement inferentially conceding the election of Borden Gray of Winston-Salem.

Hundreds of young and old members of the party are pouring into this tobacco center for the opening sessions of the seventh annual meeting of the young democrats with the first business meeting set for this afternoon.

The question of endorsement of the national administration in a resolution was causing trouble to the resolutions committee.

Hampton, Gray and Mrs. Charles W. White, of Gastonia, were the only announced candidates for the presidency. Hampton's statement said, "Upon arrival here last evening I found one of my distinguished opponents had made a thorough canvass of the state personally and through his friends and had sufficient votes pledged to assure his election." The Gray forces claimed a good margin of victory.

Mrs. White was still in the fight this afternoon but was rumored as considering seeking the post of national committeewoman. Others mentioned for the committee job were Miss Hope Buck, Bald Mountain, and Miss Sarah Ruth Posey, of Murphy, who made the response to the address of welcome.

Cafe Inspections For Month August Boost Local Units

Greenville Eating Places Show Bigger Percentage of Grade A's Than During Month July

Hotel, restaurant, and cafe ratings during the month of August for the city of Greenville made by J. T. Welch, city sanitary inspector, and J. H. Moore, county sanitary inspector, were released today by the Pitt county health department.

The health officer called attention to the fact that the Greenville eating establishments showed a larger percentage of Grade A's than in the previous month. He expressed appreciation for the cooperation given the health department by the managers of the eating places.

In releasing the ratings, attention was called to the fact that a score of 90 to 100 is Grade A; 80 to 90, Grade B; and 70 to 80, Grade C. Any rating below 70 means that the establishment must close, or the operator will be subjected to indictment.

Strangled to Death

Mrs. Marie Lamont, 30-year-old cabaret entertainer, was found strangled to death in the hotel room of William Frank Raab, former convict and night club bouncer, at Chicago. Police seeking Raab found him unconscious and half-submerged in a park lagoon. Above, Mrs. Lamont; below, Raab at a Chicago police station.

NAZIS PREDICT CZECH BALLOT

Think Hitler Will Demand Plebiscite for Sudeten Germans

Urnberg, Germany, Sept. 9.—(AP)—High Nazis, in defiant mood, predicted today that Adolf Hitler would demand and get a plebiscite in troubled Czechoslovakia.

By advancing that scheme at what he deemed an opportune moment, they argued, the German chancellor would give the British a chance to save "face" upon the "failure" of the unofficial British mediation efforts, because the plebiscite is a "democratic idea."

Der Fuehrer firmly rejected all Czech efforts to compromise the Sudeten-German minority dispute over self-government. He was said to have called them "not subject to discussion" and "seen determined" for another day of numerous conferences behind the scenes of the annual Nazi Congress, to wear down the British patience.

"The mission of Viscount Runciman (unofficial British mediator in Prague) is only another non-intervention committee," prominent Nazis said, referring to the intervention efforts to stop the Spanish war.

No One Is Injured In Falkland Road Crash

A reckless driving charge was the outgrowth of a minor automobile accident about a mile from Falkland last night around 7:30 o'clock.

Neither of the drivers was injured. Damage done to both automobiles is estimated as not exceeding $50. Highway Patrolman C. R. Williams and H. B. Smith investigated.

Decline To Forecast Middle Belt Prices

Raleigh, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Farm experts declined today to predict price averages for the middle belt tobacco markets which open Tuesday. Officials of the state AAA staff here said it was impossible to forecast the prices with any degree of accuracy.

They pointed out however, that averages in the new bright and border belts were about $21 and $24 per hundred respectively. The middle belt auction markets are situated in nine towns and cities.

BRITISH PUBLIC STUDIES CRISIS

Evidence of Mounting Support for Unmistakable Warning to Germany Weighed Heavily; French Communication Facilities Strengthened

London, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Evidence of mounting public support for an unmistakable British warning to Germany "before it is too late" weighed heavily today in favor of such a course in ministerial meeting devoted to the Czech-German crisis.

Persons in all walks of life were shaken out of their indifference to the European crisis and recalled the indecision and delays of the British government in 1914. They urged a strong declaration of intent.

These developments occurred as the French government was reported to be pressing the British to follow the French example of war time preparedness. One informant said the reason was that Britain had failed by diplomacy to convince Germany she would fight if Czechoslovakia was invaded. Some Britons believed a warning to Germany—perhaps going far beyond any previous intimations of British intervention in the event of a central European conflict—was being prepared.

Extend Precaution Paris, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Leaves of employees in government-owned communications systems were cancelled by Premier-Defense Minister Deladier today, extending similar precautionary measures already applied to the army, navy and air corps since the Czech-German crisis arose.

Naval reserve officers in Paris received notices today advising them to be ready for duty if necessary. Telegraph, telephone and postal workers disclosed they had been ordered to remain near their posts in view of "international difficulties of these critical days."

While officers and sailors of the French Atlantic Fleet hurried back to their warships which were loading supplies and munitions for 60 days service, the army checked up on its defense on the Pyrenees frontier opposite insurgent Spain.

General Alfred Fagade, commander of the 16th corps area completed a detailed survey of the frontier west of Andoria paying particular attention to anti-aircraft defenses.

Unusual Happenings To Clerk and Worker

Two oddities prevailed in the city official division today, both of which were confined to the city clerk's office.

Ordinarily City Clerk J. O. Duval goes fishing in the afternoon. Due to recent obligations, he has refrained from his fishing anticipations. Bent on doing some fishing, however, he tried his luck at Bryant's Creek this morning at 5 o'clock. He failed to catch a fish. His getting up so early to go fishing and failing to catch anything was unusual.

When a secretarial worker reached the clerk's office this morning, she was attired in a fall coat. Attempting to put into operation an electric heater, she turned on an electric fan. The entire corps of workers was chilled.

In Local Hospital. Friends of Lewis Lawrence will be sorry to learn that he is quite ill in Pitt General Hospital.

Library News. A government employee who has been working in the school library in Grimesland during the summer, used the reading club idea with special reports to encourage children's reading. She borrowed 20 books from Sheppard Memorial Library to supplement the number in the school library. These books were returned today with a record showing that each book had been read once for every six days it was in Grimesland. The club must have been a success.

John Can't Blow. We thought John Clark was a good blower but he could not raise the wind this morning when he took out the trumpet to call the crowd together to start the sale at the Farmer's warehouse, and Al Forbes had to take over the trumpet to get results. Now Alf comes from blowing stock, and he sent the bugle blast all down the line and the boys came a-hustling.

Same Down This Way. We are sorry to learn that the freight trains on the Weldon and Kinston road have discontinued carrying passengers. These trains run on a very convenient schedule for a good many people living along the line and we hope that the company will revoke the order.

Personals
Miss Kate Harvey of Kinston, came over this morning to visit Mrs. R. W. King.

M. F. Turnage has returned from Ayden, where he has been spending some days.

J. F. King returned Thursday evening from Richmond, where he had been to buy a load of horses and mules.

H. E. C. Bryant, one of the staff of the Charlotte Observer, spent today here looking around to see what is going on in Greenville.

Notices
Much better weather today. Fires were comfortable last night. Daughters of Rebekah meet tonight.

The Knights of Pythias have interesting work on hand for tonight. Just received the celebrated "Dewey" hat. Call and get one.

Frank Wilson.
If Dickinson Avenue from Pitt street to Gorman's factory is not a mud hole when it rains, we don't know what a mud hole is.

The platform scale that was built out near the depot by a Wilmington firm handling cotton seed has been taken up and shipped back to that city.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Crocker
By D. WORTH CLARK

Middle of the Road Democratic representative from Idaho, who defeated "100 per cent New Dealer" Senator James P. Pope in the senatorial primaries.

Washington—Ever since the world began, society has been torn between the forces of the standard reactionary on one hand and the visionary theorist on the other. Both are equally bad. Either it given full run will lead any country into ruin.

Your reactionary will try nothing if it is new. Your visionary will try nothing unless it is new.

The successful nations of the world such as England have endured for centuries because they have been able to steer a middle course. The English have an apt phrase for it, "muddling through."

It seems to me that America can and will muddle through. We must not reject the wisdom and admonitions of those who built this nation merely because this wisdom and advice come to us out of the past. There are some principles that grow even more valid with age.

Far Old And New
On the one hand, in this high-speed mechanized era economic and social conditions change with kaleidoscopic rapidity, and it becomes necessary to constantly devise new methods to meet new problems. If we can utilize the new things without abandoning what is good in the old we can continue to make America great.

Tyranny in any form is a devastating thing, whether it be the tyranny of those who wield too much economic power or the tyranny of an autocratic government. We must always take care that in our efforts to avoid one form of tyranny we do not drift into another.

After the World War, Europe found her economic conditions intolerable. She used desperate methods to remedy them but in so doing ended up in fascism and communism; and I think her last state is worse than her first. It occurs to me that the tyranny of some economic overlords can be destroyed without abandoning our American system of government.

Optimist On U. S.
I am extremely anxious to see the traditional independence of the three branches of our government preserved. Party leadership and party responsibility are of course desirable. They should not, however be carried to the point of destroying the autonomy of either the executive, the congress or the judiciary. Each of these agencies has its proper functions to perform and, although there should be the fullest cooperation among them, there should be no subservience. The strength of our democracy lies in this.

As far as the future of America is concerned I am an optimist, or perhaps I should say, I am an optimistic realist. This nation was built on optimism and enthusiasm but it was not built unheedingly. Optimism must be tempered with realism; enthusiasm, with common sense; and if this is done democracy will work.

EXPECT CLOSE WHISKEY VOTE

Orange County Voting Today on Legal Liquor Stores

Reflector Bureau

Raleigh, Sept. 7.—Orange voters are today casting their ballots to determine whether their county shall become the 28th in the state to legalize sale of liquor at county ABC stores, with most observers predicting a decision by a small margin, no matter which side wins.

Some "Dry" are huffing themselves into activity in belief that an ancient statute would prohibit the sale of liquor within four miles of Chapel Hill even should controllers win the county; but leading prohibitionists here, including some of their smartest tacticians and lawyers privately say they do not believe this is true.

One of their "big shots," who would not allow himself to be quoted by name said he is convinced that the ABC law of 1927, which contained the usual repealer clause, would supersede the old law and that liquor stores can be established in Chapel Hill if the county goes wet in today's election.

Would be prophets and even confirmed jump climbers are more than ordinarily chary of making any prediction of the result, all admitting that there are so many factors to be considered that any long range estimate would be practically nothing more than a guess.

Observers here are interested to see whether Orange will stick with the heavy preponderance of western sentiment and remain in the prohibition column, or whether it will affirm its own historically "wet" position when it comes to voting on the liquor issue.

Field agents of the drys who have been hard at work in the county for several weeks have reported optimistically to United Dry Force headquarters here, but many of the Dry high command are frankly fearful of the outcome.

Should Orange go wet it would establish a new western ABC frontier.

THE CLOUDED MOON

By MAX SALTmarsh

The Characters:

Achie Lumsden, myself, visitor to the French Riviera.
René Geiss, master mind behind a murder plot.
Venner, one of Geiss's confederates in crime.

Yesterday, we take Otilie from Geiss's studio. A yacht will be available for Geiss's get-away, should the plan fail.

Chapter 29 A Warning

VENNER laid a wrinkled, trembling hand on my wrist, and looked sharply about him. The servant, Amédée, had retired, but the big black dog had settled himself with a grunt of satisfaction at my feet, looking up at us through sleepy, half-closed eyes.
"Lock the door," he said sharply. "No, not that one, ye fool, the outer one and leave the other open. We'll soon know then if anyone's trying to overhear us."
I did as he bade me. "And I think, if you don't mind, sir," said I, with a vivid recollection of the events of the morning, "we'll have this side-window closed, too." And I suited the action to the word.
He waited till I had resealed myself and then leaned forward, lowering his tone. "Young man, he said, 'before I say what I have to say, I want you to remember that I'm your friend, and I should be sorry—very sorry indeed—if anything should happen to you; but you've got to be frank with me. Tell me, what do you know of Eve Monet?"
I stiffened. "Why do you want to know?"
"Because," said he, "I know that the police suspect you killed her."
The cards were on the table with a vengeance, but I had to play my own hand with circumspection. "Look here, sir," I answered. "I don't know what right you have to question me, but I've nothing to conceal. Until that morning on the Carlton terrace I had never seen or heard of Eve Monet in my life before. Geiss took me up the wrong way, when I told him I didn't know her from Eve, but if he hadn't made himself so objectionable I'd have disillusioned him right away. As it was, I played up to him, and it was then that he mentioned you and two fellows called Stahl and Rakovsky as being friends of hers."
"Of course," I added thoughtfully, "since I've discovered that the police suspect me of her murder, I've naturally taken a certain interest in the case, and I'd like very much to hear what you, personally, know about her, sir, and why you think anyone should want to kill her."
He pondered that. "Well!" he said at last, "here's the way of it. I met the girl for the first time at Le Touquet this spring. Baron Stahl introduced us."
"She went to Paris and I called on her there. She would walk beside my chair in the Bois in the mornings; she would come to my apartment and read to me when my eyes were tired. Yes—he sighed again, with a catch of the breath—"she had a good heart! But when Rakovsky came to see me one day and found her there, he got a shock. We had, you see, the three of us, been engaged in a financial transaction in which certain other people had lost some money, and he had got the idea into his head that this girl was a spy employed by them. It was, of course, nothing that we need be ashamed of, but there it was! He said she was a spy, and I wanted no unpleasantness, so I let her go."
"Naturally," I agreed. "And you never saw her again?"
He shook his head. "Never," he said. "I missed her very much, but I never saw her again, and now she's dead."
I couldn't tell whether to believe that he had known nothing beforehand of the murder, but his next words seemed to confirm the supposition.

Heart Attack
"WHEN the police came here to question me, after her death, I could tell them nothing more than I have told you, but the whole affair upset me extremely, and that is what I want to speak to you about. I am convinced, young man, that as long as you stay here you will be in danger. I know these French police—if they do not succeed in finding the real murderer they will do their best to pin the crime on some innocent person."
He paused and looked at me keenly, but I kept my face as blank as a turnip. "Meaning me?" I suggested mildly, and he nodded as if relieved.
"Exactly I would even go so far as to say that if they cannot implicate you, they would not hesitate to arrange your death, in such a way as to suggest suicide."
I whistled for it seemed time to be expressing a little innocent amazement. "Great Scott! You don't mean they'd go to that length?"
"I do indeed," he assured me solemnly. "And that is why I have sent for you. It is essential that you get away at once, but you would find it difficult to arrange it yourself. I am willing to help you. I will advance you money and lend you my private car, which will run you across the frontier tonight. Once in Genoa, you can take a boat for any port you like."
"I see," I answered slowly. "I'm very much obliged to you, Mr. Venner, but the trouble is, I can't accept your offer. The difficulty is that I've made a pact with myself not to clear out until the business is settled and my name is cleared."

"That's absurd," he retorted sharply, "but I'm not going to have my wishes put aside in this manner." He glared at me, a febrile flush spotting each hollow cheekbone. "I won't be checked like this," he went on excitedly. "I tell you, I dislike it very much when people I know meet with violent deaths. It keeps me awake at night, and I am too ill to be upset. I have myself to consider, and I have been very seriously unwell ever since poor little Eve was murdered. If anything happened to you, so soon after, why, I might not survive it!"
"And I probably shouldn't either!" I commented dryly as I got to my feet. "I'm sorry, Mr. Venner, but I can't do it. Here I am and here I stay, though of course you're perfectly at liberty to turn me out of your hotel. The tragedy wouldn't touch you quite so nearly then."
He glared at me, impotently furious, and I saw his bony chest begin to rise in great convulsive heaves. "My heart!" he gasped. "Quickly—get me the drops on my bed-table!"
I started about me and saw a door in the opposite wall that I guessed must lead to the bedroom. When I pushed it open I found, directly facing me, a narrow, white-painted bed, with a small table by the head-board. I snatched up the little bottle that stood on it, seized the water-carafe and glass and dashed back to the sitting-room. The old man was leaning back with closed eyes, fighting for breath, but as I approached he looked up at me. "Five drops, no more," he gasped, and I measured out the dose and poured it down his throat.

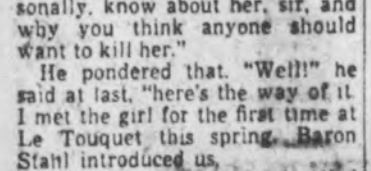

The effect was magical. In a bare couple of minutes the troubled breathing grew easier. "That's better," he whispered. "But you see how it is? I must not be upset, for the consequences are very serious. Anyway, we will talk about it later, when I have rested."
I was about to agree with him, when suddenly he sat bolt upright. "What was that?" he gasped. "I heard a sound in the bedroom."
A Killer
"I DIDN'T hear a thing," I told him, but he waved me aside. "Go and look—quickly; on the balcony!" And to quiet him I returned to the bedroom. Nothing stirred. The barely furnished room was empty and the shutters were closed. I opened them and stepped out, realizing for the first time that while his sitting-room balcony had no communication with any other, this window opened on a wide upper terrace that ran the whole length of the house above the portico.
I came back to the sitting-room. "Not a soul to be seen," I announced cheerfully, and was relieved to see that he had regained control of himself.
"Very well," he said testily. "That will do for tonight. I will see you in the morning, and in the meantime will you very kindly tell Amédée I am ready for bed!"
I took my way down the staircase, moved by a queer sort of pity for the old scoundrel though there was no getting away from the fact that the main cause of his aversion to my sudden demise was the effect it would have on his own health. A man was sitting behind the office counter, immersed in a newspaper, and I paused to deliver the old man's message. As I did so, he looked up sharply and I saw a pale, flatfish face, with queer, light eyes, set slanting under invisible brows, and topped with a halo of waving, tow-colored hair.
There was something familiar in the sight—some memory that stirred in the recesses of my brain. "Hello," said I, "where have I seen you before?" and next moment could have bitten my tongue out, for it was the pale-faced lard who had quitted the Caves de Muettes in company with Baron Stahl the night before.
"I have never seen Monsieur before," he answered with a thick, guttural accent that told me he was no Frenchman.
"What part of the world do you come from?" I asked, trying to indicate a harmless, idle curiosity but he shook his head.
"I come from Paris, monsieur," he told me. His voice was of a piece with the rest of him, flat toneless, completely without character.
"From Paris?" I echoed. "But you weren't born there, I'll swear. Hold on a minute; I'll have a guess. Somewhere east of Vienna, Serbia? Rumania? I've got it—Slovakia!"
I had spoken without thinking, but as I finished I saw him stiffen slightly. His small pale eyes retreated behind the pasty lids, becoming mere dangerous slits. I had hit the nail on the head, that was evident, and it was still more evident that it had alarmed him, but for the life of me I couldn't see why; and then a sudden memory came, of Dunning's big, booming voice telling a strange story, of a Czechoslovak statesman shot down in cold blood as he left the opera-house in Prague. I knew in that instant, without the shadow of a doubt, that the killer of Dr. Raditch stood before me, staring at me inimically with those dangerous, slitted eyes.

Tomorrow: Murder at night.

They seven Congressional candidates will be snowed under on all fronts—and that includes popular John R. Jones in the Eighth where Democrats have been scrapping for more than two months about who really is their nominee.
Here and there the G. O. P. will capture a county office. It's even possible that a Republican will succeed Mr. Jones as solicitor of the Seventeenth Judicial. The General Assembly will contain a sparse sprinkling of Republicans—probably not more than two in the Senate and an almost certain maximum of ten in the House.
That's the outlook and in the absence of a political upheaval nothing short of a first-magnitude earthquake it's the best the G. O. P. can look for. Up to the present riting there is absolutely no sign of any such upheaval.
Statistics from past races supply plenty of evidence that this is the situation. Going back as far as 1920 for analysis of election returns, it is revealed that in the five gubernatorial races since that time only 39 of the 100 counties have been carried even once by the Republicans.
Of these 39, the G. O. P. was successful once in 13 counties, twice in eight, three times in nine, four times in two and every time in seven.
The counties which have landed in the Republican column for Governor just once are Ashe, Cabarrus, Montgomery and Yancey in 1920, Tyrrell in 1924; Alamance, Gaston, Harnett, Jackson, Lincoln, Moore, Rockingham and Rowan in 1928.
Two time Republican counties are Alexander and Watauga, 1920 and 1924; Burke, Caldwell, Carteret, Stanly and Transylvania, 1920 and 1928; Johnston, 1924 and 1928.
The three-time G. O. P. units are Brunswick, Catawba, Cherokee, Graham, Henderson, Stokes, Surry and Swain, all of which went Republican in 1920, 1924 and 1928, but which have since landed in the Democratic column. Davidson voted for the minority party every other time, in 1920, 1928 and 1936.

Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus kept Clay and Randolph from being every-time Republican counties. He carried them in 1932, but is the only Democratic gubernatorial candidate who has managed to do so.

VOTE FOR PROGRESS

The citizens of Greenville will have the opportunity on Monday to vote for or against bond issues covering five local public works projects on which the federal government has agreed to pay 45 per cent of the costs. While we realize that there are some of our citizens who do not favor further bond issues by the city, frankly we feel that these projects will prove a step forward for us, and now while we have the opportunity to get government grants covering 45 per cent of the costs is the time for us to act in bringing about these improvements.

In yesterday's paper we covered in detail each of the projects to be voted upon, setting forth that each will stand or fall upon its own merits, as the voters who favor some and object to others will cast their votes accordingly.

Looking at it from our point of view, we consider the five issues from their standpoint of importance as follows:

1. Improvements to the water and light plant are essential if the plant is to be able to continue to furnish unexcelled service to our city and take care of the rapid growth that is in progress here.

2. A new fire building removed from the congested downtown section is needed. The preservation of our property depends upon the fire department and certainly this branch of our city service is most important.

3. Improvement to the fire alarm system. The present system has been in use here for around 25 years and the city has so far outgrown it that it has become inadequate and needs replacing with a new system.

4. Our present city hall is inadequate, and while there are some who feel that plans for the new city hall are too elaborate for the present day needs, we feel that in the erection of a city hall we are building for the future and the government grant will bring the cost to our city down to what it would be necessary to spend even at this time to take care of our needs if the city was paying the whole cost, so we cannot lose by supporting the city hall project.

5. City lot and garage for storage of street department materials and equipment, and maintenance of equipment. At present the city garbage trucks are being stored overnight in the space to the rear of the present city hall, attracting thousands upon thousands of flies to the very center of our city. Certainly some provision should be made to store this equipment at some more isolated spot. Likewise some provision should be made to protect other city materials and equipment. Whether this project should include the proposed city garage, frankly, we do not know.

Taken as a whole, all these projects would mean well worthwhile improvements for our city and we believe that the citizens would make no mistake in voting them. The citizens must remember however, that each can be voted upon as a separate project and a separate bond issue, so if you do not favor all these projects we urge you at least to vote for the more essential ones for providing them now will save us money in the long run.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Sept. 9.—Fish stories from several points on the Tar Heel coast.

Morehead—A 100-pound marlin was caught between there and the Gulf Stream last week. It was the first fish caught in these waters and bears out the contention of Northern fishermen that the big fellows are there for those who know how to fish for them.

Beaufort—Three-foot alligator was hooked in South River by a party of anglers.

Manteo—Over 150 bluefish were caught by one party at Oregon Inlet last week.

Southport—J. B. Atkinson, of Spartanburg, S. C., and F. P. Summers, of Charlotte, came back from a foray to the nearby Gulf Stream with a catch of seven barracuda, 15 to 20 pounds, and three amberjacks, weighing from 35 to 40 pounds. What's Nothing from Wilmington. What's the matter down that way?

Speaking of Wilmington, its irrepressible Mayor Thomas E. Cooper is alleged to have said he's going to run for Governor and plans a statewide broadcast which is to be listened to "either by those who have been in trouble or who are afraid they'll get in trouble."

"That," added Tom, "will give me an audience of everybody."

An interesting fact brought out at the tax classification hearing this week was the fact that there was an increase of 600 per cent in the listed value of intangibles, as a result of the state's taking over the listing duty and imposing a far lower rate of taxation.

On the other hand, counties and municipalities claim they lost an aggregate of $800,000 in the total intangible taxes collected.

Wagers at even money are being offered that George Hampton will not "go to the post" in the Young Democratic Club presidential stakes at the Durham convention.

And if he does, these wagers are willing to risk a little something, he will make a Corigan race—which is to say in the wrong direction.

Seriously, everything indicates that Gordon Gray is "in."

Major A. L. Fletcher, who is retiring as State Commissioner of Labor in order to take charge of the compliance division of the Federal Wage-Hour Administration is credited by the North Carolina State Employment Service News with establishment of the state employment service. It says in its current issue:

"Seizing upon the opportunity created by provisions of the NRA for the establishment of temporary employment offices maintained by Federal funds he became the moving spirit in an effort to develop from this beginning a system of permanent free state employment offices.

The result was the acceptance by the North Carolina legislature of the provisions of the Wagner-Peyser act, through a statute creating a state system of employment offices, with an annual appropriation of $75,000. He has been regarded as the father and friend of the Service and anyone connected with it, while congratulating him upon his new appointment, will regret to see the Service lost his counsel and enthusiasm."

A specimen of cypress wood hanging in the Louisiana state museum at Baton Rouge is said to be more than 1,200 years old.

The first comprehensive study of the cost of living in the United States was made by the bureau of labor in 1890.

NO CIRCUS WITHOUT GIRLS AND CLOWNS

ELSIE AND JANET VELARDE, AERIALISTS, AND FRED YOST

Girls and girls, clowns and clowns—without them there would be no circus.

When the Robbins Bros. Circus with its great star, Hoot Gibson, the western movie actor and cowboy, invades Greenville on Tuesday, Sept. 20, at the old Fair Grounds for performances at 2 and 8 p. m., there will be 60 clowns and 100 girls.

Circuses of the better class look after the welfare of their woman performers with a surprising regard to detail. They are provided with a special sleeping car in which to live while on the road. Conversation with strangers is prohibited.

Looking after the ballet girls or other unmarried feminine members of the circus is the "mother." She is one of the most interesting characters of the circus. In short, she is a chaperon.

Mrs. Claudia White, the chaperon with the Robbins Circus, through her long experience with life under the "big top" has become familiar with every detail of the business and she knows what to do when an emergency arises. Men and women, alike come to her with the petty troubles that are bound to occur in the uncertain and strenuous existence they lead.

As an added feature attraction, Clyde Beatty, greatest wild animal trainer of all time, will present the world's largest wild animal act, battling 40 ferocious jungle bred lions and tigers.

BILLIES WIN BY SOUFAS' HOMER

Count in C-P Semifinals Now 3-2 Favor Snow Hill

COASTAL PLAIN LEAGUE (Semifinal Series)
	W	L	Pct.
Snow Hill	3	2	.600
Tarboro	2	3	.400

Tarboro, Sept. 9.—Harry Soufas' sixth-inning homer gave Snow Hill a 2-1 win over Tarboro yesterday and sent the Billies out front in the Coastal Plain League's semifinal play with a 3-to-2 lead in games.

Soufas' blow, over the left field fence, decided a pitchers' battle between Snow Hill's Al Gettel and Tarboro's Eddie (Pat) Malone. Malone was reached for seven hits; Gettel, six. Al's wideness—he walked seven—kept him in hot water, but his mats offered splendid support.

The Billies took the lead in the third inning when Stirewalt singled seven—kept him in hot water, and came home on Joyner's single. Jim Taylor of Snow Hill suffered a fractured shoulder in the 3rd inning as he tried to make third from first on Stirewalt's single. A fine relay, Black to Myers to Lehman—caught him, and Taylor was injured on the play.

Lou Cicera, who replaced Taylor, took fielding honors. His peg, following a single by Bullock, nipped Myers at the plate in the 5th frame. In the sixth Lou made a nifty catch—off the fence—of a drive by Black.

In Piedmont

Games at Charlotte and Norfolk tonight will open the Piedmont League's post-season semi-finals.

Rocky Mount will play at Norfolk; Portsmouth at Charlotte. Each of the semi-finals is for the best three-for-five games.

Winners of the semi-finals will clash in the closing series of the Shagnessy playoff.

Pirates Help Start World Series Doings

As Pittsburgh anxiously awaits the close of the National League campaign and what is hoped may be another pennant, old-timers here recall the important part the town has played in the institution of the World Series classic.

In 1903, Fred Clarke won the pennant and sent his Pittsburgh team against the Boston Red Sox in a nine-game series that laid the groundwork for the inter-league classics. The Pirates won that year 5 games to 4.

In four series, the Freebooters have won twice and lost as often. They won in 1909 and 1925, and lost to the Yankees two years later.

College Students Regret Grid Loss

Considerable anxiety was expressed throughout the campus of East Carolina Teachers College today when word was received that Felix Cecot, husky varsity center in football, would not enter school this fall.

Cecot, a native of Massena, New York, played five ball last year and was being depended on to fill the varsity center berth this year. Cecot's parents, it seems, hope to have him enter school nearer home.

ECTC Make Preparations For Eight-Game Schedule

At East Carolina Teachers College everything is being made ready for the beginning of varsity football practice on September 19, at which time two practice sessions will be held daily in an effort to get the Pirates in shape for their stiff eight game schedule.

Considerable work has been done on the field. Twenty-five men are expected to report for duty for first practice. Coach Alexander and Gilbert spent the past two weeks preparing for the opening of the season.

This year's Pirate aggregation will be considerably weakened by the fact that Felix Cecot has decided to attend school at Syracuse University. Cecot is a fine line maning up the line. This loss to the team will leave a gap both in the team hard to fill as both he and Robert Pittman, reserve center of last year, will not be in school according to the latest dope.

Coach Alexander will have some difficulty in developing a tackle to replace big Jimmy Johnson who was graduated and is now coaching. Bill Dudash, husky little quarterback, will be back together with Bill Shelton, one of the best broken field runners in the country. Shelton will likely be groomed for the kicking position and is likely to play safety on defense. Shelton is fast and elusive and reports that he is in fine condition.

Paul Dean's Back With the Cards

St. Louis, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Paul Dean came back to the St. Louis Cardinals today—in an endeavor to show that his once diseased right arm has regained its effectiveness.

Paul, recalled from Dallas of the Texas League, pitched in batting practice before this afternoon's game with the Cubs. Dizzy, now with the Cubs, was in Chicago—with a sore throat—and so he was not on hand to greet his brother.

After watching Paul in action, Manager Frankie Frisch's verdict was that he "looked good."

The younger Dean, with Houston of the Texas League early this season and later with Dallas, won eight games and lost 18. Eight of his defeats were by one run.

A NEW TIRE COMES TO TOWN!

WILL STOP YOU QUICKER, SAFER ON WETTEST ROADS ...come in and let us prove it

It's here to save your life! It hugs dry roads... it dries wet roads. It will protect you against dangerous car-spinning skids in all directions—forward, sideways, and in reverse.

That's because the new deep-grooved Goodrich Silvertown with the Life-Saver Tread is actually a road dryer. Its never-ending spiral bars, acting like a battery of windshield wipers, sweep the water right and left, forcing it out through deep drainage grooves—making a dry track for the rubber to grip.

You'll never know what the word STOP really means until you've felt the grip of the new Silvertown Life-Saver Tread on a wet, slippery road; you'll never know what real freedom from blow-out worries is until you've discovered the peace-of-mind that comes from riding on tires built with the exclusive Golden Ply.

Get the safety ride of the new Goodrich Safety Silvertown. See us today.

YOU ALSO GET GOLDEN PLY BLOW-OUT PROTECTION

NO EXTRA COST!

IN FACT, MANY TIRES COST MORE BUT NO OTHER TIRE—AT ANY PRICE—CAN GIVE YOU THIS LIFE-SAVING PROTECTION AGAINST BOTH SKIDS AND BLOW-OUTS

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 9—European war news took the principal blame today for another sinking spell in the stock market. Traders scampered to neutral territory early in the session as the German-Czech controversy apparently became more complicated. The list drifted downward in the morning's proceedings and a fair-sized selling wave knocked down pivotal motors, steels and industrial specialties near midday for losses running to three or more points. Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 9—(AP)—Cotton futures opened up to four off on lower Liverpool cables and hedge selling. December sold off from 8.10 to 8.04 and late in the first hour was 8.06 when the list was five to six points net lower. December sold off at 8.02 and at midday was 8.03 with the market at net losses of eight to 10 points. Futures closed steady 11 to 14 points lower. Spot steady. Middling 8.08.
