PWA GRANT IS GIVEN SCHOOLS

County School System Gets $20,295 Appropriation

D. H. Conley, Pitt County Superintendent of Schools, today was advised by Congressman Lindsay C. Warren that a new PWA grant amounting to $20,295 for improvements to schools in the county system had been approved by the Federal government.

Supt. Conley said that this grant will be divided between the Arthur and Grimesland schools. Two-fifths of the grant will be used at Grimesland, while the remaining part of the appropriation will be used by the Arthur school.

It was explained that the new PWA project provided for steam heat and four new classrooms at Grimesland. The allotment for the Arthur school will be used for steam heat, water and toilet facilities for the old building.

Another project under the Pitt school program carried a PWA grant of $53,181. This was approved some time ago. About seventy per cent of this allotment went to Farmville and the remaining thirty per cent to the Chicod school unit.

Bailey Is Speaker At YD Convention

Durham, Sept. 10.—(AP)—The commendation of President Roosevelt was voted today by the resolutions committee of North Carolina Young Democrats shortly before Senator Josiah W. Bailey in a luncheon address demanded that the South be allowed to work out its problems without federal interference. He asserted that the federal effort to destroy southern leaders could not succeed.

After many heated sessions the committee praised Roosevelt by name for his efforts to lead the nation to better times during the last six years. The resolution to be given to the convention later in the afternoon also pledged allegiance to traditions of the Democratic party.

A complete slate of unopposed candidates faced the final business session this afternoon with Gordon Gray, Winston-Salem publisher, groomed for president.

A last minute change announcement indicated that Governor Buford Graves of Alabama, would not speak tonight as scheduled. Meanwhile the Young Democrats held 11 congressional district meetings, electing regional chairmen, vice-chairmen and other officers. Most of the sessions were quiet and harmonious and quickly over, but differences in the tenth district caused postponement of final action until this afternoon.

District chairmen and vice-chairmen formed the state executive committee.

According to Dunn, also destroyed in the fire were several hundred bushels of oats, two hundred bushels of cotton seed and miscellaneous material. The loss was partially insured.

TYDINGS BALLOT FIRST OF WEEK

Georgia will Vote on Wednesday; State's Governor Gives Political Blessings To Lawrence Camp

Washington, Sept. 10.

(AP)—Primaries or nominating conventions in 12 states and Maine's general election are to be held next week. Nine Senators come up for renomination.

Topping other primaries in national interest because of President Roosevelt's efforts to bring about the defeat of Senators Tydings and George, are those in Maryland and Georgia.

Maryland Democrats on Monday will write their answers to the President's plea to unseat Tydings as a conservative and replace him with Representative Lewis as Democratic nominee for Senator.

Georgia will vote on Wednesday. In that state the chief executive gave his political blessing to Lawrence Camp, district attorney, who seeks to unseat George.

Voters in six other states will nominate Senatorial candidates on Tuesday. These are Arizona, Colorado, New Hampshire, Utah, Vermont and Washington.

SEES BUSINESS TURNING POINT

Babson Cites Improvements Over Year of 1937

By ROGER W. BABSON Babson Park, Mass., Sept. 10.—This is a big week. It marks a definite turning point. Now begins the Business Year. In view of the strength which business is developing, we ought to ring bells, blow horns, and put on a real New Year's celebration.

Just compare the situation today with conditions a year ago! Last September—although few realized it at the time—business was pushing off on a sharp toboggan ride. Today we are fortunate in facing exactly the opposite situation. Business is in a powerful elevator sweeping upward to higher levels. My prediction is that the 1938 trend on its way up will pass the 1937 level on its way down sometime before Thanksgiving.

Everyone Not Bullish Yet I find that my optimism is not shared by everyone. Many people fear that the current improvement is more campaign window-dressing than business upswing. Others refuse even to recognize that there has been an advance in activity this summer. Members of the latter group keep asking me: "Where do you get your figures? My business is not better!" Hence, I want to give readers some definite facts.

Figures usually make such dull reading that I avoid them whenever possible. The following facts are so cheerful, however, that everyone should glance them over:

- 1. Heavy Industries: Steel operations—at 44 per cent of capacity—up 100 per cent from the June low. August machine tool orders 50 per cent above July. Railroad equipment showing signs of life for first time in a year and a half.
2. Building: Running 5 to 10 per cent above year ago level. Recent week was best in seven years in this season. Private construction doing its part in this improvement.
3. Banking: Deposits only 10 per cent below 1937 level. Deposits up $2,000,000,000 since New Year's Loans to business reviving. Business failures falling.
4. Prices: Commodity prices up 40 per cent from lows. Commodity prices climbing. Retail prices 8 per cent below last September and holding steady.
5. Light Industries: Textile activity 33 per cent above three months ago. Shoe output has jumped 50 per cent since spring. Lumber "cut" up 30 per cent more than normal since Easter.
6. Other Barometers: Weekly car loadings up 100,000 cars, or 20 per cent, since Memorial Day. Power consumption 10 per cent above June low. Auto retail sales prospects for September most hopeful in a year.
Upswing A "Natural" After reading these figures—based on actual statistics on my desk—can anyone doubt that the upswing is real? Putting these facts all together in my Babsonchart Index, I find general business is 11 per cent higher than on June 1. Many people insist that public spending is (Continued on page six)

FRANCE MOBILIZES DOCK WORKERS

Mobilization of dock workers at Marseilles (above) is the first such move in France since before the war when Briand mobilized ratiro ad men to break up a railroad strike. SOUGHT PROBE OF HINES 1934

Attorney Tells Of Early Investigation Efforts

New York, Sept. 10.—(AP) Lyon Boston, New York lawyer and once assistant under former District Attorney William Dodge, testified today in the conspiracy-lottery trial of James J. Hines that Dodge ordered an investigation of Hines in 1934. Boston also testified that he had aided Dodge in what he described as a relentless drive against the lottery racket at that time.

The witness, a slim young man and son of the former president of the American Bar Association, was called by defense counsel Lloyd Striker to counter testimony that Dodge was influenced, intimidated or bribed by Hines, for years a powerful Tammany Hall leader, as the state charged. Boston said in March 34 Dodge summoned him in connection with the policy gambling game, the $20,000,000 a year Dutch Schultz enterprises which District Attorney Thomas Dewey's witnesses have accused Hines as serving in the role as "political fixer."

Boston said he was ordered by Dodge to investigate reports that Hines was involved in the racket and if the reports were true to indict and prosecute him. "Dodge gave me full power," the witness said. "He told me he wanted me in particular to investigate Hines. He said there was a great deal of talking Hines and the policy rackets of Dutch Schultz and he wanted me to leave no stone unturned and get at the bottom of it. He said he thought Hines was innocent but there was so much talk he wanted me to find out everything."

Previous witnesses had testified that Hines relayed $30,000 in mark-tivity money to boost the election of Dodge as district attorney because Dodge was "his man."

Candidate Shot By Unknown Person

New Orleans, Sept. 10.—(AP)—James Morrison, candidate for Congress in next Tuesday's Democratic primary in the Sixth Louisiana district, was shot in the left arm early today by an unidentified assailant at his summer camp seven miles east of Hammond.

Morrison was brought to an infirmary here. He had a .32 calibre bullet wound in the upper part of his arm and was suffering from shock and loss of blood.

Physicians said he was not seriously wounded. The candidate has been carrying on an energetic and fiery campaign against the renomination of Dr. J. K. Griffith, candidate of Governor Richard Leche's state administration.

Morrison said he would resume his speaking tonight "if it kills me." He is scheduled to conclude his campaign tonight in Hammond, his home city.

Docket Of Six Cases Now Set For Monday

An official of city recorder's court said today that three continued and three new cases are the only cases coming up for disposal in the regular Monday morning session.

Uneasiness And Fear of War Continues To Reign

London, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain in the midst of conferences with cabinet ministers, opposition leaders and critics from his own party, moved brusquely today to quell the welter of excited speculation as to what Britain would do to "stop Hitler."

An official spokesman from 10 Downing Street at 12:25 o'clock this afternoon said: "In view of the statements which have appeared in the last day or so regarding reported decisions the ministry stated authoritatively no such statements should be regarded as authentic."

Later a foreign office spokesman said no new note had been sent Germany and no new instructions had been given Sir Neville Henderson, British Ambassador, who is conferring with Hitler at Nurnberg where Hitler is attending the Nazi congress one of the two reports was that Britain had sent a note to Hitler telling him that Britain would not stand aside if German troops march into Czechoslovakia. Another report given new credence had been given new credence to confer with Hitler and convince him "there was no bluff in the repeated warnings from London."

Nurnberg, Germany, Sept. 10 (AP)—Air Minister Wilhelm Goering praised the German air forces as the best in the world today as the Nazi spokesman declared Adolph Hitler could not demand anything less than outright annexation of the Czech Sudeten Germans.

The air minister in a 90 minute speech pounded war into the consciousness of his 25,000 hearers of the Labor front at the Nazi congress with references to Germany's air might, strong fortifications and ability to withstand a blockade if it lasted 30 years.

Germany, he declared, was invincible and Czechoslovakia was not a cultured state. He was the first congress speaker to refer directly to Czechoslovakia. His hearers cheered themselves hoarse and gave him an ovation only such as has been given Hitler, when Goering shouted "what our Fuehrer does is always right, therefore we follow wherever he leads us."

Regarding the German air forces he asserted, "Our air force, technically is the most perfect, numerous and strongest from the viewpoint of morality and is the most ready to give its all to the fatherland of any country in the world."

Goering's speech followed Hitler's address to 60,000 Hitler youths and girls in which he reiterated the assertion that the Germans would "stand united, come what may."

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 10.—(AP)—President Benes, in a calm and reassuring voice, broadcast to the Czech nation today an appeal to "be ready for any sacrifices" in the Sudeten-German crisis. But the president expressed the belief the country's troubles over the minority question could be overcome and the state survive to follow peaceful pursuits. "We wish to cooperate with all nations, especially with our great neighbor, Germany, and with all Europe and America, and we want to demonstrate particularly to England and France that we understand clearly our responsibility for general cooperation," the president said. "We are ready to meet this responsibility to the extent of which necessities of state will permit us," he declared.

KIWANIS HOLDS CLUB MEETING

Judge Frizzelle Endorses Monday Bond Election Issues

Hon. J. Paul Frizzelle of Snow Hill, principal speaker at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club last night, endorsed the proposed municipal improvement program being put to a vote Monday.

Mayor M. K. Blount and Martin Swartz, superintendent of the Water and Light plant, outlined the proposals to the Kiwanians in detail, and urged the support of the civic organization in the efforts being launched to make the proposals become a reality.

Although Judge Frizzelle had been invited to speak on "The Constitution in observance of Constitution Week, Sept. 11-17, he preceded his talk with an endorsement of the issues now left to the vote of Greenville citizens.

"In traveling about in various localities of the state," declared Judge Frizzelle, "I have heard high praise and favorable comments about the progress being made in Greenville, and about its government. As a resident of contiguous territory," he added, "I would like to see the projects go through on the Monday election."

During his main talk about the Constitution, Judge Frizzelle said, "It is remarkable that our predecessors had the foresight to establish aims and ideals that are still alive today." He pointed out that what the Constitution means, and how important it is in the daily life of the average American citizen.

Mayor Blount's remarks were confined primarily to each of the five bond issues, while Martin Swartz spoke on the progress of the Water and Light plant, and explained the need of the improvements to enable growth to meet the demands of the fast-growing public of Greenville.

Retreating the bond issues being voted on Monday are water and light system extensions, new fire alarm system; municipal building for fire house; city hall, and a storage yard for storing municipal conveniences. As explained heretofore, each of the issues will be voted separately.

D. H. Conley, president of the club presided over the session. Willard T. Kyzer, secretary of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, made a few brief remarks. Dr. J. L. Winstead, president of the Rotary Club, and Bill Jones of the Carolina Motor Club, were other special guests. Miss Helen Phelps offered a music solo, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Ray Tyson, club pianist.

NATIONS FOCUS THEIR AIMS ON GENEVA MEETS

Article 16 of League Covenant Under Discussion

WEIGH TROUBLES NOW PREVAILING

Scandinavian Nations Bitterly Oppose All Sanctions; Large Powers Convinced Punitive Machinery Would be Valuable in Future Wars

Geneva, Sept. 10.—(AP)

—France and Great Britain, determined to keep every road open in the midst of the Czech-German crisis, fired the opening gun today in the League of Nations battle of sanctions. Delegations of the Scandinavian nations, Netherlands and Belgium, came to Geneva ready to start a bitter offensive against Article 16 of the League covenant which provides for punitive measures against aggressor nations.

The larger league powers, apparently convinced the punitive machinery would be valuable to them in a future war, went into action in advance of the first important session of the league assembly next Monday.

Spokesmen let it be known they would agree to each member participating in the sanctions to the extent each saw fit. Britain and France, through their spokesmen, said they will support such an idea in a resolution but that was the most they could do. Neutral block spokesmen promptly replied that it was not enough. "They can not keep us quiet with such a weak offer," said a Scandinavian diplomat. "We want it clearly understood we will not be dragged into a war we have not made."

(There has been a growing move to abolish the punitive provisions of the league covenant ever since sanctions against Italy in 1935 when this country was declared the aggressor against Ethiopia. The sanctions led to Italy's resignation from the league last December. Since then several nations have declared publicly they would not participate in sanctions again.)

Chapter 80

Murder At Night

HUGO, Dunning and Ada were waiting for me in the courtyard of the chalet. All three of them wore an air of anxious expectancy and as I sank gratefully into a chair Dunning said: "It has occurred to me that if we don't succeed in averting the trouble, Otilie and Mr. Wills would be mighty glad of some quiet place to retire to, until the fuss blows over, or even—" he hesitated—"in a certain eventuality Otilie might come alone, and Miss Ada—she kindly said she'll be prepared for them at any hour of the day and night."

His words were like cold water on my spirits. Until then, I don't think I had seriously envisaged the possibility of failure, but now, as I saw how gravely he viewed our chances, I knew for the first time what fear was.

"Look here, Dunning," I said, "isn't it about time that we did what any ordinary person would have done in the first place and went to the police with what information we have?"

He sucked reflectively at his big cigar. "And just what," he asked mildly, "can we offer them in the way of concrete facts?"

I was silent for a moment and the more I thought, the more fully did I realize that there was nothing, literally nothing, that we could produce as documented fact on my face, for the big man leaned forward heavily and patted my shoulder.

"Son," said he, "don't you think I've been worrying over that diffidely since the first minute I got here? Mr. Wills is being guarded, as well as the local police know now, against the average accidents that could befall an American citizen in a foreign country. But if we ask them to keep an eye on Gelez or Stahl or Venner, we can give no proof of what we believe."

He dropped back, like a man suddenly fired, and flung his glass and as Hugo refilled it, he turned to me again. "There's another point that is doubtless in your mind—why we haven't told Mr. Wills himself of his niece's death, and the rest of the same that's going on. Well, that's a question that's given me a lot more sleepless nights, but I've the same answer for both queries. You've heard what Otilie says of her uncle; you can guess the kind of man he is, and I tell you this if once he knew what had happened to Melanie, he wouldn't rest until he had found her murderer. He'd remove any chance we have of helping him, and he wouldn't save himself."

I sighed. "You're damnably right," I said. "If I could only get my hands round Gelez's neck."

Dunning nodded grimly. "And I don't mind admitting that a quiet bit of assassination is a solution that has often presented itself to me, though it's not so easy as it sounds, but meantime what we want is the major evidence."

"And that is?"

"The gun," said he. "The second run—the gun that killed poor Pat if that could be found—on his premises—I'd have a good enough case to go to Paris with. Of course it's possible he's disposed of it long ago, but there's a factor in our favor—the man's colossal vanity. I firmly believe he doesn't credit there's a single living thing with the brains to see through him, and on that assumption there's just a chance he's still got the gun."

Rakovsky

THERE fell a heavy silence that Hugo finally broke. "And to think," said he, "that we were in that damned villa this afternoon if we'd only tied up the fellow and searched the place!"

"And got into a nasty bit of trouble if you'd found nothing," commented the American. "No, no, Mr. Stern, we'll never win out on those methods. Son"—he turned to me—"I am anxious to hear your news, but first I'll recapitulate what I've been telling you. Miss Ada and her brother here—that was a useful bit of observation of yours, when you signed that singularly unpleasant lady, Miss Adams, going off for her journey. Mr. Stern passed on the trail of the car, and I bet you and I don't fancy you'll be surprised to hear it to a gentleman named Vladimir Rakovsky, who inhabits a small villa in a hamlet named San Lorenzo. From now on it will be my pleasure and privilege to see that he does not stir a foot outside it without I know where he's heading."

"I whistled. "Then it was he I saw with her?" said I, with a sudden and not too pleasant recollection of the pale face and prominent eyes I had glimpsed for an instant through the window of the car.

"Precisely," agreed Mr. Dunning.

Miss Alice Ruth Bundy Entertainments. Last night from eight until eleven o'clock, Miss Alice Ruth Bundy entertained the younger social set at a dance in celebration of her twelfth birthday. The affair was held at the Club Pitt.

As the guests arrived they were greeted by the hostess, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bundy, and her house guest, Miss Betty Smith of Bethel. Dancing was enjoyed throughout the evening. Unusually attractive favors, horns and hats, were distributed among the guests. At intermission food and punch was served, and at the close of the evening, orange ice and cake.

Miss Bundy remembered her house guest, Miss Smith, with a gift. Approximately fifty guests enjoyed this most delightful entertainment.

gravelly. "And that means to me we have all the chief conspirators located, but if we had all their thoughts and plans finally laid, I must confess I'd feel a lot easier. And now," said he, "what's your end of the tale?"

I told him, and I don't think a pin could have dropped unnoticed while I was speaking.

"You don't imagine," said Hugo, "that with this new development in the way of chassers in the hotel, I shall let you go back there for the night?"

"But I certainly know I'd be a fool not to spend another night in the hotel, and what the new development means. Only, if you like, you can do something for me. Meet Jean-Francois down the lane and tell him from me to keep an eye skinned for the arrival of that yacht."

He agreed with extreme reluctance, and after supper, at a little before ten, I strolled back to the hotel. I had purposely timed my arrival to get in before the place closed, but though my watch still showed five minutes to the hour, the big gates were closed when I reached them.

I turned the key in a lock, and felt freshly cooled, entered the darkened house, and stepped in. I could almost hear the house breathing in its sleep.

I opened my room, switched on the light, and made a dash in, in spite of the fact that everything seemed to be in order. Even the lock on the door still worked, a fact that surprised me mildly for ever since I had identified the new chasseur I had had a vague suspicion that things were going to move that night.

I fastened the door, wedged a chair under the handle, and closed the door. I looked at my watch, and found that it was ten past midnight. I felt that if I was to wake up in the morning, I would have to take precautions. I went to bed.

But the long hours wore on, and I slept and woke and slept again, until suddenly, somewhere about the dawn, I woke with a start. What had aroused me, I couldn't tell. I was panting as if I had dropped out of a race, and in my ears I still seemed to hear the echo of a muffled cry.

I crept to the door, unlocked it, and then, with trembling precaution, turned the key in the lock. As I opened the door, I saw that the passage outside was filled with the grey half-light of dawn, but then, a little way to the right, with a stealthy step, I made a dash for my room.

By the time I had moved and closed the door, I had a full breath. I could not find the door, but I was in the room, and I could not count the shadow that I watched something appear round the edge, pushing a wide—something that sent a shiver of horror slicing down my spine. It was the fingers of a man's hand, heavily knuckled, but they were not all white, for the nails dripped red in the marble floor below.

In one swift stride I was back inside my own room, with the door shut and locked and my ear to the crack. For a moment all was still, and then I heard a small, ominous sound that I knew to be the broken tile in the passage outside, giving under a stealthy tread.

There was no more sleep for me that night. Something horrible had happened but I dared not try to discover the truth for my own life and Hugo's and Dunning's. I would wait until the old man, Virgoe Wills, and a friend came.

Just as my watch showed seven, I heard footsteps outside and peering cautiously round the window, saw the housekeeper crossing the gravel walk with long, nervous strides towards the gate. A minute later a thin figure in dark trousers and a long white jacket followed after her. I recognized the mop of wavy, yellow-colored hair and shuddered involuntarily. It seemed a reasonable hour to make my appearance, but before starting any investigations I had an uncontrollable longing to take a header into the sea. I pulled on my bathing trunks, flung a towel round my neck, and ran down, through a deserted house and garden, to the white beach and the sparkling water.

After a gorgeous half-hour of swimming, floating and laziness I made my way back. The hall and lounge were still deserted but as I came up the stairs to the corridor I saw at the far end outside Mr. Venner's door, the stout, blue-overalled figure of Amédée, armed with a breakfast tray.

He turned as he heard my step showing a troubled face. "Bon jour monsieur!" he called, and then set the tray carefully on the floor and came at a lumbering trot towards me. "Monsieur will excuse," he said, tumbling nervously at his apron. "It is unstatable that I approach him, but I know that he is a friend of the patron."

"Well, what is it?" I asked curiously.

He hesitated. "I am a little alarmed," he admitted. "For fifteen minutes I have knocked at the door of the patron—and there is no reply."

Locals Win 24 Out Of Last 28 Contests Before Season Ended

GOOD SHOWING DURING SEASON

Despite Fact Manager Wilson's Greenies Were Unable To Be in Final Playoff, His Protoges Were Envied Among All Coastal Plain Teams

Here is the 1938 edition of the Greenville Greenies. These are the fellows who, on the morning of August 5, were resting uncomfortably in the Coastal Plain cellar, (revised), won 24 out of the last 28 games, and missed being in the playoff by only a fraction. The last 12 games played were consecutive victories.

Taking a look in the Greenies' book of 1938 activities, they showed up favorably over other teams in the league, especially after they climbed from their cellar berth. Here's how the inter-city series for the season raked up for the Greenies with Tarboro, Kinston, Goldsboro, Ayden and New Bern.

The best showing was with Ayden, with whom they recorded 13 wins and 5 losses. Their worst showing was with New Bern. The Bruins defeated the Greenies an even dozen times and permitted the Greenies to garner only four victories. Ten wins and six losses were chalked up in the several series with the Tarboro Serpents. Eight wins and seven losses was the mark reached with the Kinston Eagles, combined with a tie. The Greenies won ten and lost 6 to Goldsboro. Snow Hill took 10 victories and gave the Greenies six. The play with Williamsport was seven wins and nine losses.

During the season the Greenies shut out the opposing team on eight different occasions and were held scoreless but three times. The locals went into extra innings of play nine times during the 1938 season, winning four and losing four. The other was deadlocked. This was with Kinston. The contest lasted 13 innings and was halted because of a Sunday blue law.

Despite the march of progress by the locals as the season neared its nightcap, it was officials of the Coastal Plain League, directors of clubs in the upper berths, who kept the Greenies out of the finals. They turned thumbs down on a suggestion to permit rained out and tie games to be played. It is believed that the Greenies would have proved to be dynamite in the semi-finals, as well as the finals. With respect to playing off rained-out and tie games, the league's by-laws provided that they should be played as fast as they accumulated on first open dates—which were Mondays.

Rube Wilson took over the managing reins of the Greenies in the middle of June and made an enviable record in a baseball season before the season ended.

One of the major factors in the Greenies' comeback was the fact that the pitching staff reached its optimum stage. Another contributing factor to the progress made by the locals came about through the timely hitting of Whitley Heavener, Harry M. Christopher and Manager Babe Wilson. First-sacker Birch Douglass, handicapped the latter part of the season by injuries, was going good when the going soured. He stole 28 bases during the season, which is quite a good record.

While on the hitting subject, compilations by Official Scorer Tom Dennis reveal that the Greenies' timely hitting corps also were tops in seasonal averages. Manager Wilson led the club in hitting and hitting. His pitching record for the season gave him a percentage of .823. His hitting percentage is .352. Heavener was next with a percentage of .346, with Christopher batting .306. They were the only members of the Greenville aggregation to bat above the .300 mark.

Don King, according to official compilations, was second highest in pitching averages. His average for the season was .727. He also was the strikeout king of the club, his total for the season being 145. In the last three games he pitched—and won—he whiffed ten batters in each. Fred Caligiuri, with a percentage of .588, was third among the pitchers and second highest in strikeouts. He fanned 129 during the season.

Like Caligiuri, John Delaney was the club's other half of the work-horse unit. Delaney worked in 29 games, won 10 and lost 12. He fanned 113 batters.

Spence, who joined the club late in the season, was going good at the finish. He was particularly effective against some of the first division clubs.

Hoey Thinks Road Would Benefit Under Southern

By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Sept. 9.—Governor Clyde R. Hoey is convinced that operation of the Atlantic and North Carolina railroad by the Southern would work a three-fold benefit to the road, the port of Morehead City and the rail's employees.

That's why he issued an optimistic and enthusiastic statement on Thursday in which he lauded the Southern and practically told the Mullet directors to work out some plan which would enable the state to unload the losing venture. His recommendations amount to directions because of the fact that the state owns something like 70 per cent of A. and N. C. stock.

As the Governor sees it, the line would benefit by becoming an integral part of a large system instead of a loose end tied on to nothing. Morehead City's future as a port would be immeasurably brighter, he thinks, because the Southern would make a point to route cars goes through the North Carolina port. At present the Southern has lines into both Norfolk and Charleston, and quite naturally is moving all its water traffic over its own lines into these cities rather than into Morehead over a line from which it gets no profit. Employees of the line would benefit, too, the Governor is certain, because the Southern would pay a wage scale something like 20 per cent higher than is now in effect on the Mullet.

And another thing—something the chief executive isn't saying a word about, but which undoubtedly is in the back of his mind. Operation of the road by the Southern would permit the graceful dropping overboard of H. P. Crowell, imported and high-priced manager who has aroused no end of opposition since he took charge of the line.

Of course the operating plan which the Southern seems willing to undertake does not relieve the state, through its holdings of stock in the A. and N. C., of any possible loss in operation. The Southern is distinctly and emphatically unwilling to take any responsibility for that phase of the matter. All the big system is willing to do is to operate the Mullet—if it shows a profit, give it to the Mullet stockholders; if it loses, let the Mullet stockholders make it good.

Atlanta Again Wins Pennant in Southern

Atlanta, Sept. 10 (AP)—Under the leadership of Paul Richards, who stepped down from the major leagues for his managerial role, the Atlanta Crackers have clinched the 1938 Southern Association pennant.

The 29-year-old pilot known to his teammates as "Slug" played in 10 leagues, including duty with the Philadelphia Athletics and the New York Giants, before transferring to Atlanta and directing the Crackers to their third championship in the last four years. Assuming the leadership late in June, Atlanta remained in front the rest of the way although seriously hampered by injuries. It is the ninth pennant for Atlanta since the league was organized in 1901.

The U. S. consular service was established in its present general form in 1856 and was reorganized under the Rogers act of 1924.

days' developments seems to be that solution of a vexing problem is perhaps a bit nearer, but by no means certain. If the Mullet can be leased, sold given away, torn up or otherwise disposed of, it would be a great relief to Governor Hoey and all others now worrying about it. All of which recalls how poor a railroad prophet Josephus Daniels turned out to be. Some quarter century ago, there was a bona fide offer of $1,000,000 for the road—an offer which would have permitted the state to escape with a whole hide, at any rate. But Carl Duncan, then active in Republican circles, was one of the proposed purchasers and Daniels led in successful opposition to the plan. He predicted that the Mullet would in time pay all North Carolina's taxes and, eventually its entire debt. And now look at it.

BILLIES GO INTO THE C-P FINALS

Longest Beat Snakes For Third Time To End Series; to Meet Bears for Pennant in First Game, New Bern, Sunday 3:00

Snow Hill, Sept. 10.—Snow Hill moved into the Coastal Plain League's final series with New Bern by turning back Tarboro, 8-4, yesterday behind the three-hit pitching of Cecil Longest. More than 1,300 fans—the largest local crowd of the season—turned out for the game.

Snow Hill gained the required four victories in the semi-finals while losing two games. The Billies won the first two, the Serpents then gained their pair of victories, and Snow Hill won Thursday and Friday.

Play in the championship series will be started on Sunday—at New Bern, 3 o'clock.

Friday's triumph was the third of the series for Cecil Longest. He was in line form. He fanned 10, walked only four.

The locals put the game on ice with a four-run third inning. Malsano's single scored Stirewalt, who had doubled. Soufas' single and Joyner walked to fill the bases. Ciceralo's fly to left scored Malsano. Bistroff beat out an infield hit, and Rabb's single brought in two runs.

Tarboro scored its first run in the fourth. Maynard walked, went to second on Campbell's out, and came home when Joyner erred Robinson's single.

Catcher Bill Dick poled a two-run homer in the fifth.

Walter Rabb, with two for three topped the Billies' attack. He also took fielding honors for the Billies; Bistroff, for the losers.

New York, Sept. 10.—Hank Greenberg who today hit his 47th home run of the season, is only one game ahead of the pace set by Babe Ruth when the Bambino hit 60 home runs during the 1927 season.

Today's game was the 131st for the Tigers; Ruth's 47th in 1927 came in the 132nd game.

"Red" Dawson's Question Box. By LOWELL (RED) DAWSON. BUT THAT WAS A QUICK KICK FOR-MATION! I THOUGHT I NEEDED A LITTLE EXERCISE!

QUESTION: What constitutes a "quick kick"? Answer: A punt is considered a "quick kick" when the ball is kicked from a close up position, usually about five yards behind the line of scrimmage. The element of surprise is its greatest advantage, hence it usually is executed on an early down, the idea being to kick over the safety man's head.

Raleigh, Sept. 10—She who got spanked may get $1,000 for a rate of $500 per spank for it, if the Supreme Court reverses the judgment of Buncombe county Superior court in the case of Bernice Lorene Robinson.

A jury in Buncombe's General County court awarded Bernice this summer because Hewitt, allegedly acting as agent for McAlhaney, struck her twice "across the hips" with a thin lath about the size and weight of a yard stick—the assault allegedly taking place while defendants were illegally endeavoring to oust Bernice from possession of a cabin.

The Superior court sustained several defense exceptions and ordered the cause remanded to General County court for a new trial.

Governor Clyde R. Hoey is quite pleased with early reaction to the plan to have the Southern Railway take over operation of the Atlantic and North Carolina from Goldsboro to Beaufort.

Knowing that the Southern hasn't any great or overwhelming desire for the line (it has too many losing branches already) the Governor feared that any unfavorable reaction would scare the railroad off.

So far, however, practically all comment has been to the general tenor and effect that the Southern would have a better than anybody else to make the Old Mullet into something resembling a paying proposition.

Between August 1 and August 27, the State Employment Service reports, 1,713 persons actively claiming unemployment compensation were placed in jobs.

This relieved the compensation fund reserves of a heavy drain and restored the 1,713 to employment at full pay.

Most of the Democrats from Raleigh who were seen getting ready to go over to Durham for the Young Democratic convention were Democrats, all right, but hardly to be classed as "young."

Dallas Mallison, Representative nominate from Pamlico, was in the office of Henry M. London, legislative reference librarian, Friday, getting some information on how legislating is done and how to prepare a number of bills.

He said he is going to be "most a local legislator" indicating there are several "little matters" his folks back home want attended to; but he expressed the opinion that his General Assembly should not, as a matter of principle, have anything to do with these local bills.

Mr. Mallison is a college professor—he taught at Louisburg college last year—despite physical handicaps of lameness and extremely poor sight. He was stricken with arthritis when eight years old.

Despite these handicaps he won the distinction of winning out in the state's most-numerously-contested primary battle for a single seat. In June he faced no less than five men and a woman in the contest. He lost the ticket and won over his runoff opponent with something to spare.

Speaking of hot campaigns, as things now shape up this fall's tobacco control referendum is likely to outdo the "purge" or any other contest in the public eye.

Stars From Many Nations Appear In Great Circus

MISS JEAN FISHER AND NED

Eighteen foreign nations have contributed at least one new act to the Robbins Bros. circus this season. There is Miss Jean Fisher, who hails from the Ural Mountains of Continental Europe. She weighs less than 100 pounds, is not 20 years old, yet she is conceded to be one of the greatest equestrians in the world.

Like the conductor who went trolley riding on his day off, circus people spend their spare time "performing."

Before the matinee and between the afternoon shows of the Robbins Bros. circus exhibiting in Greenville Tuesday, Sept. 20, at the old Fair Grounds, at 2 and 8 p. m., it is eternal practice. And the big top is a jumble of gyrating tumblers, equestrians, trapeze artists, animal trainers, clowns, all of them working to perfect new stunts and to keep their acts in form.

"It is necessary that we don't waste our spare time," Jerry Carroll, the little elephant trainer, explains. "The performance itself is the easiest part because we have practiced so well that—well, I'd almost bet I could do my act blindfolded. The audience wants novelty and something new. Some of my stunts have been practiced many thousands of times before being polished enough for public presentation."

There are 300 performers with the Robbins Bros. circus. They represent 18 foreign countries. Among the highlights there will compete two great ring acts, the Flying Thrillers of Europe, and the Aerial Behes Troupe. The famous Toyama Family of equilibrists; Hobson Troupe, 10 European bareback riders and Cese O'Dell, the greatest woman gymnast in the world, who weighs but 100 pounds.

A magnificent pageant of gorgeous professional beauty will serve as a prelude to the main circus performance. It is called the "La Argentine" and embraces the efforts of upwards of 1,000 men, women, horses, elephants, camels, yaks and other beasts of the forest and jungle. There will be 100 dancing girls, great choruses of trained singers and native dancers. Yet it affords but a single feature of the colossal big show.

Circus day's festivities will be inaugurated by an immense street parade to be seen on the downtown streets at 11 a. m. There will be nearly 50 magnificent and elaborately carved and gilded allegorical floats, tableaux, cages and dens, phantoms and mounted riders; 20 elephants and two caravans of camels. Five trumpeting bands and two callopes will furnish music.

Hoot Gibson, famous western screen star, will be seen with his congress of rough riders, Indians and Cossacks. As an added feature attraction Clyde Beatty, greatest wild animal trainer of all time, will present the world's largest wild animal act, battling 40 ferocious jungle bred lions and tigers.
