HITLER DEMANDS RIGHT TO DICTATE CZECH POLICY

BALDWIN JOINS CHAMBERLAIN ON WAY HOME

Prime Minister to Report on Meeting With Hitler

LORD RUNCIMAN ENROUTE HOME

British Emissary Quits Prague. After Failing in Efforts to Negotiate Peace

London, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Officials of Heston airport said today Earl Baldwin, who as Prime Minister brought Britain through the abdication crisis of 1936, had joined Prime Minister Chamberlain at Cologne on his flight to London from his meeting with Adolf Hitler.

Chamberlain, flying home to lay the results of his meeting with the Reichsfuehrer before the British government, halted briefly at Cologne.

Airport officials said this was for the purpose of picking up Lord Baldwin, who had been vacationing on the continent. Chamberlain succeeded Baldwin as Prime Minister in May 1937.

The Prime Minister's plane, which he boarded at Munich after a motor trip from Berchtesgaden, left Cologne at 3:12 p. m. (9:12 a. m. EST) after a 22-minute stop. Passengers had tea and the plane was refueled.

Still another British peace emissary, Viscount Runciman, was flying to London, having left for the time being his mediation mission in the Czechoslovakia crisis.

Lord Runciman's efforts had failed to bring peace between the Czechoslovakia government and 3,500,000 German-speaking Sudeten-Germans, when Hitler has sworn to "save" the little republic torn by internal strife.

Chamberlain, too, had come away from his momentous talk yesterday with Hitler without any indications he had succeeded in getting terms that might avoid war.

On the contrary, there was a feeling in German circles that Hitler stood firm in his determination to make the democracies take or leave his terms.

Chamberlain planned to lay Hitler's demands quickly before his cabinet and draft an answer which he may hand Hitler personally next week.

Smith Lease Case Brought To Close

The jury in the Mattie Taylor et als vs. C. D. Smith, Jr., case came in with a verdict shortly after the luncheon recess today.

The verdict set aside a lease signed by the defendant's father a few days before his death giving the son a lease on a farm for $100 a year.

It also ordered the defendant pay $900 for each of the years 1937 and 1938.

The case was brought by brothers of the defendant, who contended that their father was not mentally capable of handling his business when he signed the lease.

The plaintiffs had asked that the defendant be required to pay an annual rent of $2,500 for each of the two years he has operated the farm.

The case of Kentucky Whip and Collar Company vs. Warren Feed Co., and W. I. Hodges and Company was started before the noon recess, but was halted by the court to give time to get proper service on Warren Feed Company. The plaintiff is represented by Blount and Taft, while Harding and Lee are appearing for the H. L. Hodges Company.

A compromise judgment in the case of Stocks vs. Long was signed (Continued on Page Eight)

Lloyd Griffin, secretary of the School Commission, released the list today, saying there were 24,050 teachers in all, largest in the state's history.

Czech Premier Announces Sudeten Party Dissolution

WHERE SUDETEN GERMANS AND CZECHS BATTLED

Minor clashes between Sudeten Germans and Czechoslovaks, such as the one shown here in a street at Karlovy Vary, served as prelude to more serious fighting in which 23 persons have been killed in three days. This angry throng gathered in Karlovy Vary, one of eight communities now under martial law, after a Czech struck a German Sudeten.

Study European Effects On American Neutrality

WORK TO BEGIN AT EARLY DATE

Committeemen Will Study Tobacco and Cotton Quotas

County Agent R. R. Bennett today said that instruction schools for training review committeemen have already started in various parts of North Carolina, and work by the committeemen is expected to get under way in the near future.

Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace, will appoint two farmers to serve in Pitt County. These men will be subject to be called to other counties to serve on review committees.

The purpose of the review committee, according to Bennett, is to study individual allotments to determine if errors have been made or inequalities exist in tobacco and cotton quotas.

After individual allotment studies have been made by the committeemen, if inequalities are irregularities are prevalent, they will make recommendations for corrections.

Committeemen from this county will attend an instruction school in Snow Hill, which begins operating next Tuesday. County officials, according to Bennett, did not designate the centers for the instruction schools. These were scheduled by State AAA officials.

Funeral Is Held For Bobby Merrill Cherry

Bobby Merrill Cherry, five-months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Cherry of Greenville, died in Pitt General Hospital yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, following a serious illness.

Funeral services were conducted this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of his parents on South Washington street, by the Rev. Mr. Crisp, Pentecostal Holiness minister of Washington. Burial was in the family cemetery about six miles below Washington.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Cherry.

Forty-Five Accidents In City Present Year

A chart on display in the Greenville police department shows that 45 automobile accidents have occurred in Greenville thus far this year.

In these collisions, one person was killed and two sustained injuries.

Approximately 7,500 persons lost their lives by drowning each year in the United States.

Roosevelt, Hull And Davis are Analyzing Situation

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—President Roosevelt called in Secretary Hull, Secretary Morgenthau and Norman Davis today to canvass possible effects of European developments on America's neutrality policy, trade agreements and international finance.

Stephen Early, a presidential secretary, said these phases "are being more or less seriously discussed and considered."

He added that he was relaying that information to news men so they would know the trends of the discussion and at the same time to get away from what he called the "scares" of the sensational type.

Early said opinion might take the form of a war scare if the President were believed to be considering such.

Three Are Injured In An Automobile Crash

It was unofficially reported from the office of the Troop A Division of the State Highway Patrol here today that three persons were injured, one seriously, when a car in which they were riding struck a truck parked on two miles from Bethel last night around 10 o'clock.

Highway Patrolman W. S. Hunt stationed at Williamston investigated the accident. The condition of the occupants of the automobile nor their identity could not be ascertained here today.

Slightly Injured In Automobile Accident

F. M. Wooten, Greenville attorney, received minor injuries this morning when his car overturned on the Cox's Mill road. Mr. Wooten came to his office here and summoned physicians to treat him for lacerations and bruises.

Mr. Wooten was quoted as having said that his foot slipped as he started to put on brakes and struck the foot throttle. None of his injuries were regarded serious.

Beaufort Robber Is Sought In This Area

Beaufort County officers have asked the assistance of Sheriff J. Knott Proctor in apprehending a Negro, believed to be in Pitt county, who committed a robbery in Beaufort county Wednesday night.

Sheriff Proctor said today that he was told by Beaufort officers last night that the Negro was in this county. He instructed Deputy Sheriff Ruel A. Tyson to arrest the Negro. The Negro will be turned over to the Beaufort authorities when apprehended.

PITT STUDENTS ARE EXAMINED

Personal Hygiene Improvement Noted by School Principals

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt County Health officer, today said that inspections of all elementary school children for such contagious diseases as scabies and pediculosis are under way in the county.

The health department, along with various school principals, decided two years ago that such examinations would be an ideal plan shortly after the fall school term began and after the Christmas holidays.

Dr. Ennett said he was particularly anxious to discover how effective these examinations had been in retarding the progress of scabies (itch) and pediculosis (parasites of the hair).

"I inspected four grades yesterday no scabies in either grade," declared the health officer, "and only one case of pediculosis in the four grades combined." He said also that examinations in four grades of another school revealed no scabies in either grade, and only two cases of pediculosis in one of these grades.

Discussing his findings with principals of these schools, Dr. Ennett was told that two years ago, when the inspections first began, that the average number of students who had to be sent home from school on account of the hair or skin disease ranged from 6 to 30 per grade.

"One grade had a total of 15 pupils excluded from school because of itch or lice," one of the principals recalled.

"Both principals said the program had increased the general personal hygiene of the students 100 per cent," Dr. Ennett concluded.

Aldermen Of City To Purchase Sites

The Greenville Board of Aldermen will meet tonight for the purpose of receiving bids on property upon which to place the new city hall and fire station.

Several sites have been proposed, but no official action has been taken on whether the two new buildings will be located on the same block or not. Both, however, will be located in the center of the business district.

The board has advertised for sealed bids to be submitted at tonight's meeting, scheduled to convene at 8 o'clock.

The new city hall and central fire station are two of five projects at a bond election Monday. The other three, all to be financed partially with PWA grants of 45 per cent, are extensions and improvements to the water and light plant, a new fire alarm system and a street department storage, garage and yard.

Leader Flees In Face of Arrest on Charge of Treason

ORDER CITIZENS SURRENDER ARMS

Government Takes Action as Sabotage, Strikes, Bloodshed Stalk Sudeten Area

Prague, Sept. 16.—(AP)—The Premier's office announced tonight the Sudeten-German party had been dissolved by the Czechoslovak government.

Previously informed sources said the government had decided on suppression of the storm troops of the Sudeten leader, Konrad Henlein, who had fled into Germany from a warrant for his arrest on charges of treason.

These decisions were taken as continued disorders in the Sudeten areas coincided with reports of a split between radical and conservative Sudeten factions over Henlein's proclamation of yesterday, demanding annexation of the Sudeten country to the German reich. It was this proclamation that led to the charge of treason against him.

Prague, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Sources close to the Czechoslovak government said today it had approved preliminary steps for dissolution of the storm troops of Sudeten leader Konrad Henlein, who has fled before a government decision to arrest him for treason.

At the same time the regional government of the province of Bohemia ordered a 24-hour time limit in which all residents of 63 provincial political districts must surrender all arms and munitions they have stored in secret places.

These steps came as strikes, sabotage and bloodshed stalked the Sudeten regions.

Premier Hodza, in conference with his cabinet, was said to have approved the preliminary steps for dissolution of Henlein's uniform corps.

Informed sources said, however, the government had not completed its dissolution decree.

The Bohemian government provided punishment of prison terms ranging from one month to five years for failure to obey the order to surrender arms.

Henlein's manifesto yesterday demanding German annexation of Sudetenland, President Benes' order adjourning parliament and departure of the British unofficial mediator, Vice-Count Runciman, for London, apparently ended negotiations for peace in the long-standing Sudeten-Czechoslovakia dispute.

Czechoslovakia circles derived some satisfaction from the fact Viscount Runciman and members of the British mission remained in Prague.

Reports from the Sudeten region told of one new incident, details of which were not confirmed immediately in official quarters. Sudeten-Germans were said to have demonstrated in a clash with police and Czech troops. Two or three soldiers were said to have been killed.

Bureau Plans For Membership Drive

Between 80 and 100 officers and supporters of the Pitt County Farm Bureau met at the court house last night in one of a series of meetings being held in Eastern North Carolina for the purpose of making plans for waging extensive membership drives.

All old memberships expired on September 1, at which time there were between 1,500 and 1,800 farmers and business men on the rolls of the federation. Since the date of expiration many persons have voluntarily renewed their memberships.

Plans call for young women to be located in each of the warehouses to invite farmers to renew their memberships.

E. F. Arnold, executive secretary of the State Farm Bureau, and W. W. Eagles, official in the federation, made reports on results of conferences they held in Washington with AAA officials.

A number of others made short talks, in which they declared that an organization was necessary to protect the interests of farmers. The new farm control act also was declared necessary for the salvation of the farmer.

BRITAIN'S FLYING PRIME MINISTER

This radiophoto shows Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain (left) as he landed at the airport in Munich, Germany, en route to Berchtesgaden for his peace-seeking conference with Adolf Hitler. With the prime minister is Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister. Today Sir Neville arrived back in London, where he will make his report to Parliament.

Outline Procedure For Anti-Aircraft Defense

Experiment to be Conducted in Eastern North Carolina

An experiment for the purpose of determining if the citizenry could serve as a warning net in case of invasion by enemy aircraft, to be conducted in Eastern North Carolina October 10-15, inclusive, was explained here today by J. H. Rose, district chief, and T. J. Swain, county chief, following a meeting in Tarboro last night at which time the maneuvers were explained by General Fulton Gardner, who is in full charge of the experiment.

Langley Field, Va., will be used as a base for the "enemy" planes, while defense craft will be concentrated at Fort Bragg. Two hundred bombing and 60 pursuit planes will take part in the maneuvers, for which all of the anti-aircraft artillery east of the Rocky Mountains has been concentrated at Fort Bragg.

Thirty-nine counties, between the Virginia line and Wilmington are being organized for the experiment. Counties are divided into districts, with Pitt, Wilson and Edgecombe comprising the fifth district, headed by Mr. Rose.

Mr. Swain has divided Pitt county into 12 areas with a chief for each post on duty eight hours daily, four hours during daylight and four at night. Radios will be used to designate what hours the chiefs will be on duty and also to give a resume of the previous day's proceedings during the actual maneuvers.

It was emphasized that only the county district chiefs can telephone the messages, which it is estimated, will take only from two and one-half second to two minutes to be transmitted from the county chief to Fort Bragg.

Any person sighting an "enemy" plane should advise his respective district chief, to be listed elsewhere in this story. The chief in turn will pick up his telephone and tell the operator "flash message." The operator will immediately connect the chief with district headquarters in Wilson. While one operator is taking the abbreviated message another will be sending it to Fort Bragg.

Signal corps will be established at Wilson, from which place instructors will come to Pitt to train local chiefs in the procedure to be followed.

Pitt county is divided into the following districts, with the chief for each designated:

One—Stokes and Conleton, William Stokes; Two—Bethel community, to be appointed later; Three—Falkland community, Carson R. Jones; Four—area in vicinity of Bethel—Greenville—Falkland, C. E. (Continued on page four)

SAID TO HAVE REVEALED AIM IN CONFERENCE

Absorption of Sudeten Area Not Regarded an Issue

WOULD CONTROL MUNITIONS MILLS

Information Volunteered by Man Who Talked to High Officials of Chancellery

By LOUIS LOCHNER (Copyright 1938 by The AP) Berlin, Sept. 16.—(AP)—

Adolf Hitler was said today to have demanded both cession to Germany of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten area and binding assurances that Czechoslovakia's foreign policy should be in harmony with Germany's.

This information was volunteered by a man who talked to high chancellery officials at Berchtesgaden where Hitler received Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain yesterday.

(Czechoslovakia has defenses alliances with France and Soviet Russia, which is a target of the German-Italian-Japanese anti-communism pact.)

Another German demand, this source said, was that after German absorption of the Czechoslovakia Sudeten area, what is left of that republic should fit itself into Germany's system at least to the extent that Czechoslovakia did not hinder realization of German economic aims.

Germany, for instance, must have the decisive word to say on the output of the great Skoda Munitions works at Pilsen and the destination of this output, the source said.

The question of union of the Sudeten area with Germany, this informant said, is not even regarded as an issue by Hitler.

It was said to have been Hitler's starting point in discussions, with all other questions, such as procedure under which the change could be effected without war, growing out of it.

Chamberlain, it was said, apparently came prepared to concede some form of "anschluss."

Whether Britain and France were prepared to support Hitler's virtual demand for a German protectorate over Czechoslovakia was believed to have been the question which prompted Chamberlain's sudden return to London.

Business Increase For Month August

Raleigh, Sept. 16.—(AP)—The State Labor Department reported today that a survey of 940 business establishments in North Carolina showed increases in August of 5.4 per cent in industrial employment and 126.3 per cent in wholesale trade employment, as compared with July.

It was pointed out a large part of the increase in wholesale trades, was due to tobacco sales, a seasonal occupation. In that group the week payrolls in August ran $58,337 for 3,806 workers and the increase over July was only 31.9 per cent as compared to the 126.3 per cent increase in workers. The weekly earnings averaged in the group dropped 41.7 per cent in August.

In 848 manufacturing enterprises 121,189 persons were employed during August and they received about $1,800,000, a gain of 12.3 per cent in total payrolls and 6.8 per cent in average weekly earnings.

 Archie Lamsden, myself, Hugo's friend.

Chapter 35

Toothpicks For Two
 THE café was a vast sea of crowded tables, set out under a canopy of trees. Hugo was sitting at a table on the outer fringe.

"Well," I said, as I dropped into the vacant chair beside him. "I've had a quiet day, but the evening promises to be livelier. If one can judge by the advance sample I've just had."

For answer he kicked me sharply on the ankle, motioning impatiently towards a man seated with his back to us at the next table. I bit back an exclamation for the fellow had raised his glass to his lips, and I saw that the index finger of the hand that held it was missing from the first joint.

Hugo's eyes met mine, but neither spoke a word, and so for a matter of twenty minutes we sat there, exchanging the most ultra-banal of small talk. Then, suddenly, things began to shift.

I noticed, gliding through the throng on the pavement, a tall Negress, in a crisp, white cotton dress, with a snowy muslin turban folded flatly about her small head. She was a splendid-looking creature, moving with a free untrammelled grace, but there was a purpose in her movements, for as I looked, she turned sharply, threading her way among the tables, and with a murmured word of apology sat down in the vacant seat opposite my neighbor.

He glanced up at her without the slightest sign of recognition. The Negress settled herself at the table, reached forward and helped herself to one of the little paper-wrapped toothpicks from the china container before her.

For a moment she sat there idly twisting it between her fingers; then, to my surprise, instead of stripping off the flimsy covering, she started to thrust it into the bosom of her dress, changed her mind apparently and replaced it in the little china pot. It was a pointless action, but its very meaninglessness made me suddenly on the alert. I glanced at Hugo and saw that he had noticed nothing.

A waiter passed, scurrying, and the Negress called him and gave him her order. At the same moment the man opposite her threw a couple of coins on the table, yawned ostentatiously and got to his feet; but as he did so, he stooped and in his turn, with an absent-minded air, extracted a toothpick from the container. Then he turned and slowly sauntered away in the direction of the harbor.

"Come on," I said to Hugo. "I've had enough of this." He glanced up sharply, caught the look in my eye, and rose to his feet. "What's the trouble?" he whispered as he followed me down the narrow aisle to the pavement.

"The trouble," said I, "is walking just ahead" and in half a dozen words I told him what had happened. "It's my hat that a message passed from hand to hand, snuck away in that toothpick."

He whistled. "What do you propose to do?"

"Catch him in some dark spot and take the toothpick off him," I answered lightly.

"That's coming out into the open with a vengeance! If it could be arranged I'd prefer something more subtle." And even as he spoke, Providence itself answered him.

A Mission
 I CANNONED into a dim figure in flowing white robes which promptly laid a hand on my arm. "Monsieur," he whispered, "you have had no further trouble?"

It was the Arab carpet-seller and at sight of him I gave a gasp of relief. "Tell me," I said, catching him by the shoulder and drawing him on with me, "you work for Monsieur Dunning?"

"Indeed yes!" he murmured. "Good enough!" said I. "Now help! I've a job for you. You see that man ahead—in the white shirt and trousers, who is now crossing the square towards the left? You must follow him, see where he goes, and report to Monsieur Dunning. Tell him it is the man without a finger and he will understand also." I broke off hesitating how to broach a delicate subject, "there is a small matter of a toothpick which he carries in his right-hand trouser-pocket. Is it possible that, under pretext of offering him a cigarette, one might purloin that toothpick and convey it to Monsieur Dunning?"

He gave me a swift nod and departed.

"And where," said Hugo impatiently as I turned back to him. "Did you find that addition to the League of Nations?"

"Draw up your stool to Uncle's knee," I retorted benevolently, "and I'll tell you." For I was feeling fairly pleased with myself. But as we drove home and I unfolded the tale, I detected a certain unreasonableness in its reception. "It's immensely exciting," he said, "but all it establishes when boiled down is the fact that Geis won't rest until he's done you in and if you find that a comforting thought to sleep on, you may have it!"

"I did sleep on it very comfortably notwithstanding, but at six next morning I woke to find Hugo sitting on the edge of my bed. 'I can't sleep,' he said abruptly, 'and I therefore don't see why you should either. Look here, Archie. Do you realize that this is Saturday? In twenty-four hours the game starts, and we're as far as ever from knowing how they mean to play it. I can't stand it, I tell you!' He broke off and stood up suddenly, as if the mere physical movement eased his nerves. 'It's not only Virgoe Wills, but who knows what they may do to that fool of a girl, if she tries any more of her precious detective work?'

"Steady, old man," said I, "try to realize that there's nothing you can do." But he shook his head impatiently.

"If I don't do something, I'll go mad. I'm off to have another shot at finding out what Amouris is. I've got an idea that I can pick up some information on the other side of the frontier. It's just possible that it may be some place near Rakovsky's villa."

"I think it's an uncommonly sound idea," I assured him. "Do you want me to come along?"

"No," he answered more calmly. "It's essential that someone should be here in case anything crops up. Jean-Francois may have stumbled on something, or Dunning, or even—" he hesitated—"the girl. I'll telephone at midday and hear if there's any news, and I suggest that you call a conference for, say, six thirty, here. I'll be back by then, and we can pool every possible shred of information we have and try to work out a plan."

The Message
 I ACCEPTED my orders the more readily because I could think of nothing better to suggest, but when I tried to ring up Dunning, I was told that he had just gone out; Ottilie was not to be found either, and I had perforce to leave a message for the big man, inviting him and Miss Wills to cocktails at the chalet at six thirty.

Dunning's vast white figure lumbered round the angle of the terrace promptly at the time set. "Where's Ottilie?" I asked, as I helped him to a drink.

"Hasn't she come yet? She said she'd drive herself for me, but she was taking lunch with friends in Monte Carlo, but she surely won't be long."

"Well," I said, "Hugo's not here either, so we're not wasting any time." But even as I spoke, the telephone rang within the house, and when I sprang to answer it, I heard Hugo's voice at the other end.

"I'm here," he said, "and I'm alive and well, to save you the trouble of anguished questioning, but I'm no nearer finding what I came to seek, and I've had a darned near shave of being turned into a superior kind of sandwich paste."

"The deuce you have," I gasped, and heard him chuckle. "My own fault entirely," he admitted. "All due to asking too many questions in the local inn and not keeping an eye skinned when I drove on up the road to Rakovsky's villa. A very pretty avalanche of rock crashed down on the track, not five yards ahead of me, and if my brakes hadn't been working, it would have been forewell for me. As it was, I found I'd struck a boulder that knocked a hole in the oil-pump. Even temporary repairs will take the devil of a time, and it'll be nearly midnight before I'm on the road again, so you'll have to do your conferencing without me."

I strolled back to Dunning. "We're resolved into a committee of two," I informed him. "Hugo's spent the last two days running around after this precious Amouris," I added, "and what good it will do us when he finds it the Lord may know, but I certainly don't."

He looked at me oddly. "I'm not so sure of that," he drawled. "Am I right in supposing that you encountered an Arab on the quay last night and gave him a job to do? Well, he did the job very nicely. He followed your fingerless friend out along the left. Our gentleman, named opposite the good ship Rendezvous and for a moment it seemed he was going aboard. The yacht was dark except for her riding-lights, and the rope was across her gangway, but he gave a hail and presently a head bobbed up. 'Master aboard?' says he or words to that effect, but the head shook itself. 'Oh, well,' says he, 'if he wants his news, he must cross the border for it. I can't wait.'"

"My henchman trailed him to the place by the town hall where the cars are parked, and he saw his man halt by a big limousine. He patterned up and 'Nice carpet, sar?' says he. 'Go to Hades,' said the other, but our Arab hung onto his arm, pleading with him, and all the time, under cover of the carpets, his other hand was busy in the fellow's pockets. Next minute he received a well-placed kick but he that time he'd got what he was after, and here it is." And with that he tossed a small rather battered null on the table.

I picked it up and gingerly withdrew the crumpled twist of paper that it contained, but as I spread it out and stared at the single word roughly printed upon it, once again I felt that old, hopeless sinking of the heart. "I'm Amouris!"

A P arable
 And it came to pass that after he had advertised his goods there came unto him great multitudes from all the region around about, and did buy of him. And when his competitors saw that they marvelled among themselves, saying: "How be it that this man is busy, while we loaf about our doors?" And he spake unto them, saying: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, in this fast age of push and rustle, it is easier for a camel to enter the eye of a needle than for a business man to flourish without advertising."

Mrs. Proza was one of the 4,000 Czechs, Slovaks, and Carpathian Russians who met in Pittsburgh to consider the plight of Czechoslovakia and to formulate plans for a subscription list of 50,000 Czechs and Slovaks—all pledging support to homeland.

THE COSTUME SUIT

This season's styles essential—
 A special collection just received

$29.75 and up

Keyed to the new feeling for elegance, the new formality of town life, the costume suit emerges as one of the most important single fashions for Fall, 1938. Weeks ago we sensed the trend, planned a collection of ensembles to satisfy your need for a complete costume. We are now showing our successes—graceful wool frocks styled in subtle colors with the simplicity which marks true chic,—and matching coats or jackets richly trimmed with fur—costumes that are not only smart but practical, for you'll wear the coat or jacket now over separate frocks; you'll wear the dress later under your fur coat.

We have received several complaints of late about the operation of radios late at night at a loud volume, and have been asked to do something about it. Naturally we can do nothing about a matter of this kind but bring it to the attention of our people and urge them to realize that their actions are proving a nuisance to their neighbors. We do not believe that the average person would want to be considered a nuisance and we feel that this reminder will cause some of the offenders to cut down on the volume of their radios when operating them late at night.

Many times in this column we have called attention to the congestion in our business section brought about by the city permitting big trucks to park at random on the street for the purpose of loading or unloading. We realize that these trucks must load and unload but there are back alleys in the business section where this can be done without blocking the main streets and congesting traffic, and city authorities should immediately take steps to bring an end to this practice. There is no sense in permitting trucks to block traffic when motorists are not permitted to stop on the no-parking side of the street long enough to pick up or let out passengers.

Just what the outcome of the present European crisis will be cannot be foretold, but one thing is certain and that is that since the so-called "Little Man"—Hitler—grabbed off for himself the control of the German nation, he has been able to bluff his way a long way toward recouping a good part of Germany's World War losses.

DYNAMITE WENT OFF—BUT NOT ON SCHEDULE Melbourne, Australia.—(AP)—Explosive which thieves left in an office safe here after an unsuccessful attempt to open it, went off later and killed a welder trying to cut his way into the safe. The thieves left a note of warning about the unexploded charge in the keyhole and safe experts were sent for. The charge apparently fell into the door as the welder was at work. Other workmen were severely injured and the half-ton door to the safe was blown in two and tossed 25 feet.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Sept. 16.—The North Carolina State Employment Service reports evidence of simulated activity in the construction industry in many sections of the state.

It cites: Requests from Wayneville for skilled labor in anticipation of work on Western Carolina Teachers' College; plans to rebuild a part of the Rutherford high school; plans of a Shelby business man to erect six residences for rental purposes; beginning of three Federal aid highway projects in the neighborhood of Goldsboro; proposed expenditure of $50,000 for additions to an Albemarle full-fashioned hosiery plant; letting of a contract to a Fayetteville concern for erecting officers' quarters at Fort Bragg; construction of a 40-apartment house, costing $150,000 at Rocky Mount; erection of a brick school plant at Creswell, in Washington county; plans for a new $17,000 creamery in Raleigh; beginning of six new school buildings and improvement projects in Beaufort county, planned for about October 1; and other instances.

The Governor's Hospitality Committee and the Division of State Advertising of the Department of Conservation and Development are well known to the Postoffice Department all over the country if to no one else, judging from a card delivered to the committee's office recently, according to T. E. Pickard, executive secretary.

This card was addressed as follows: "Chamber of Commerce, "North Carolina, U. S."

"Marketing work is the paramount agricultural problem facing North Carolina today,"—Hon. Clyde Hoy, Governor of North Carolina.

So reads a line on "The Challenge to Agriculture," pamphlet recently put out by the State Department of Agriculture.

Railroads of North Carolina are reported to be urging and encouraging bus companies to use the same terminals in cities and towns of the state.

But most of the bus executives recall the famed remark Virgil put into the mouth of a Trojan at the time the Greeks walked off and left a wooden horse on the shore—"Timeo Danaos et dona ferentes," which translated into language of this jitterbug age means, "Watch the guy who offers to give you a nickel—it's probably wooden."

And so far there's been no rush of the bus flies to walk into the parlors of the railroad spiders.

Speaking of rails and buses, this occurrence is authentic.

On a July day, temperature 90 plus, a bus and a train—the latter hauling two air-conditioned coaches in which the thermometers were registering a consistent and comfortable 70—left Fayetteville at almost exactly the same time, scheduled to arrive in Wilmington within a few minutes of each other. The rail and bus fares are within a few cents range.

Yet 26 persons rode the hot bus, as against six who boarded the two air-conditioned coaches.

Why?

INVITED VISIT FAIR GROUNDS

Public Asked to Drive Out and See Many Improvements

The Greenville and Farmville American Legion sponsored Pitt County Fair is making rapid progress in the building of main exhibit halls and livestock display pens along with a poultry show building on the new fair grounds located on the Falkland road, and it is promised by the fair manager, A. J. Grey, with whom the fair directors are working, that there will be one of the finest displays of agricultural and livestock exhibits ever to be witnessed in Pitt county.

The fair bulletin and premium list is now being distributed through out the entire county and the premium committee urges each and every producer to obtain his copy and read it carefully in order that he may have the opportunity of exhibiting in the Pitt County Fair as well as to receive some of the money awarded. The Live-at-Home farm exhibits consisting of the various communities in Pitt county are being offered liberal prize money, first award $50, second $40, third $30, fourth $20. These community farm exhibits are to be judged on the following points: Field crops, garden crops, home industry, fruits, educational values and artistic arrangement. Each community booth not being awarded a prize but in the opinion of the judges being meritorious will be given $10 for expense money. This, it is hoped, will create much competition between the various communities, and Albert E. Gibson, superintendent in charge of this department, urges each community chairman to make reservation for display space in the new exposition hall in advance in order that proper preparations may be made to accommodate all. A post card to the fair association office in the Reflector building, Greenville, will be sufficient. The community display booths will be size 8x10 feet.

In an effort to establish a permanent institution in the Pitt County Fair, the finance committee has allotted the management a sum of money to be expended in new buildings and renovation of the grounds, and this money is being spent exclusively with the fair county merchants, and to payment for Pitt county labor. In the past two weeks the new fair grounds has been buzzing with activity far beyond the expectations of those who have visited on the grounds, and the directors extend a cordial invitation to everyone on a Sunday drive to include a visit to the new fair grounds on the Falkland road.

FAIR TO HAVE FARM DISPLAY

Arrangements Being Made for Machinery Exhibit

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Sept. 15.—General Manager J. S. Dorton of the State Fair, to be held here October 11-15 said today that visitors at the fair this year will see one of the most outstanding displays of farm machinery and tractors ever exhibited in the South.

Pointing out that North Carolina, one of the largest crop producing states in the Union, is near the bottom in use of farm machinery, Dorton expressed the belief that this year's display will be of particular interest to farmers desiring to modernize their operations.

"There seems to be a close correlation between the amount of machinery used per farm worker and the income per farm worker," he said. "A study of the whole United States reveals this to be true almost without exception. In this day of mechanized industry, agriculture must keep in step. Without the use of modern farm machinery, no up-to-date farmer can hope to compete with farmers of other sections when they are using such equipment."

Practically every leading manufacturer of agricultural machinery and equipment will display his products at the State Fair, according to the rate at which space reservations are pouring in, Dorton said. All types and designs will be on exhibit. Exhibits will show all recent improvements in farm machinery design, and companies exhibiting their products will have trained representatives on hand to display the equipment and explain its advantages.

Dorton explained that his objective in securing an extensive display of farm machinery is in line with the policy of the fair to stress agricultural and educational trends and achievements.

CLYDE BEATTY

This lithe, 130-pound, 32-year-old youth this season is presenting the largest group of lions and tigers—both sexes, ever assembled and given in a single display—43 jungle bred, savage, man-eating beasts.

Clyde Beatty! Everyone knows the name! It is one to conjure with in circusdom, for it is the name of the greatest wild animal trainer the world has ever known. He is the only man ever to present 43 lions and tigers of both sexes at one and the same time!

The world knows Clyde Beatty as the fearless, nerveless conqueror of treacherous beasts, in the circular all-steel arena of the famous Robbins circus, which is coming to Greenville on next Tuesday for afternoon and night performances at the old fair grounds.

This year, Beatty is presenting "King and Menelik" two huge black maned Nubian lions, which he has trained to sit up on their haunches like dogs. "King and Menelik" are in addition to "Nigger," his famous tiger, which rolls over like a kitten.

then spins like a top at whirlwind speed. It is the only wild beast ever before taught to perform a "spin." Beatty is but one of a glittering gathering of world-wide stars under the banners of the famous Robbins circus this year. Others include Hoot Gibson, world-renowned cowboy movie star, who heads a huge assemblage of expert and daring riders from all corners of the world; the famed George Hobson Troupe of bareback riding champions; the internationally known Beebe Troupe of high trapeze stars, and the Toyama Family, from China, with their thrilling and spectacular acrobatic feats.

The performances, starting at 2 and 8 p. m., will be preceded at 11 o'clock by a mile long street parade through the downtown streets. It is through the old-time variety, and said to be the most colorful in history.

WHAT IT MEANS: ROOSEVELT'S PURGE

By MORGAN M. BEATTY (AP Feature Service Writer)
Washington — President Roosevelt's decision to put the principle of liberalism ahead of political party labels may be just another headline to most people, but it is as awesome as doomsday to every practical politician in the land—including the President himself.

Practical politicians are the people who have to translate principles and ideas into votes. Numbered among them is the President, because he is famous not only as a humanitarian chief executive, but as a practical politician.

In the past, the important element of big-time American politics has been the political party. Politicians usually don't get anywhere in politics unless they wear a party label. Even such famous independents as liberal George Norris of Nebraska and liberal Bob LaFollette, Sr., of Wisconsin won their spurs under the protection of the Republican elephant.

Likewise it is almost taken for granted among practical politicians that a political party should be many things to many people. They can, all along the line. And everybody has a vote, be he conservative, liberal, radical, farmer, worker, doctor, or whatever else. That's the reason why the usual national platform has enough planks to floor a 10-acre barn.

Even Died For Their Party
Then, too, party labels, like flags, or trade marks, just naturally mean things to people. They are loved and hated. Men have swapped punches, even killed each other over political parties. It is even said in all seriousness that the father of Daniel Webster, a Federalist of his day, became ill in a Democratic town, and had himself moved to another place, for fear he "should die in such pollution."

Also steeped in political lore is the principle of party loyalty. Carter Glass, the unreconstructed rebel of Virginia, recognized it when he supported Roosevelt in 1936. It was the same with fiery Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, when he appeared under the Landon banner. Party loyalty is a matter of being for your party, right or wrong. The heaviest, meanest epithets in political language have always been heaped at the party turncoat. Thus is the man who changes his label warned of the fate in store for him. And thus is political machinery preserved in the lean years when patronage is going to another party. Lastly, any ward workers can tell you that issues and personalities may come and go, but party machinery must go on forever—and the wise man heretofore charted his course accordingly.

Strategists Have Answer
And yet, seemingly in the face of all this, the President has plunged for liberalism, under whatever party banner it may be found.

Why?
Strategists hereabouts say there are several reasons. There are reasons of principle, and reasons of party psychology within the Democratic party. They say a second term President hasn't a chance to enforce his will, liberal or otherwise, unless he can find a way to keep congressmen fearful that he may single them out for the finger of scorn. It is certainly scorn to call a man a reactionary.

But on the score of practical politics, they lean to the belief that it's simply a case of the President betting his money on a political

BOND PROBLEM CAUSES WORRY

State Treasurer Johnson Anxious to Sell Securities

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Sept. 15.—State Treasurer Charles M. Johnson is sitting on pins and needles. He says so.

It's not because Charlie has intentions—most honorable of course—on the 1940 governor's nomination. It's because he sees a perfectly fine bond market for the $4,620,000 bond issue authorized by the recent extra session of the General Assembly, and fears that this market may not last any longer than Indian Summer.

Mr. Johnson is fairly itching to put those bonds on the market. He told your correspondent today that it's hard to remember when the State has had such a fine chance to sell its bonds to advantage.

But it just can't be done right now, he laments, because of the fact that the Federal PWA folks haven't acted on all the projects included under the big bond issue. There's no point to selling the bonds piecemeal as the various projects are authorized, says Mr. Johnson, and so there's nothing to do but wait.

If the PWA finally approves and authorizes grants for all the projects passed on by the extra session, then the entire $4,620,000 will be sold immediately—assuming, of course, that this curiously "fine" bond market is still in the same state of fineness.

If the PWA finally disapproves some of the projects, then the state's proportionate share of the bond will be deducted from the grand total and the rest issued and sold promptly, said the Treasurer.

"That's why I really am on pins and needles" he added.

horse named "economic theory."

It would seem off-hand that economic theory has little to do with lassoing votes, but the gulf might not be so wide as it looks. The strategist cites you, for instance, to the national resources committee survey of American incomes, just published. It says, for one thing, that 87 per cent of the families in the United States earn annual incomes of less than $2,500, and only three per cent receive more than $5,000. In politics, the votes of 87 per cent of the families in the United States would be Utopia, forever and ever. But does a plea for liberalism above party assure the votes of those people, or even most of them?

That's a moot question. The strategist recalls, however, that it was James Madison who first recognized a definite link between a man's economic status and his party faith. They quote him like this:

"The most common and durable source of parties has been the various and unequal distribution of property. Those who hold property and those who are without property have ever formed distinct interests in society."

The Life Of The Party
Now for the next step:

The strategists explain that "liberal" is a swell word to snare votes. It appeals favorably to most voters because it offers or appears to offer hope to the underdog. It implies fair play, generosity, tolerance, kindness, and a host of other virtues. In short it is a common, dime-a-dozen word that packs a million-dollar wallop among the 87 per cent of the families who earn less than $2,500 a year.

So it is that the President—from a practical point of view—has economic theory on which to base his judgment. And it must be remembered that he hasn't shucked the Democratic party by any means. He has merely offered it a choice. In his recent speech to the Maryland voters he said:

"The Democratic party will live and continue to receive the support of the majority of Americans just so long as it remains a liberal party.... as the leader of that party I propose to try to keep it liberal...."

The question is: Will the President—and the other practical politicians in his party now have to choose between practical politics and liberalism? That remains to be seen. Likewise, the Republicans won't give up their own label, and their own claims to liberalism without a fight.

Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

Washington, (AP)—Back of the army's plan to teach manufacturers how to make war materials is the dramatic story of an enlightening experience the country had in the last war while trying to equip itself with cannon.

When the United States entered the war, France, eager for early aid, agreed to disclose the secret of the famous "75" which is considered by artillery experts to be the best light artillery weapon ever invented. It was designed by French artillery officers in 1897 and except for minor changes it is the same gun today—devastatingly fast, accurate and dependable.

Germany captured hundreds of French "75's" during the World War, but never could solve the mystery of their manufacture. The trick is known to only two countries—France and the United States—and to only a dozen trusted persons in each of these countries.

they were projected from an angle unfamiliar to American designers and had to be done over. A second set was scaled in meters and lettered in French while Americans worked in inches and spoke English. Weeks were passing.

Delayed By Nuts, Oil

A sample recoil system was sent to the U. S. under heavy guard, accompanied by two French mechanics. But they knew only part of the mystery. By this time it was August, four months after U. S. entry into the war. In October, trusted United States mechanics and army officers were sent to France to study in the secret arsenal.

So cautious were the French that they allowed only one mechanic to enter at first, then others followed. By February 2, 1918, they returned with full data and plans.

There was more delay. Nuts and bolts were threaded differently in France and tools were different. French experts insisted nothing should be changed. A special oil had to be found in America to fill

Change In Mullet Road Would Not Effect Port

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Sept. 16.—Should the Southern Railway take over operation of the Atlantic and North Carolina, Morehead City would not be a great port, according to well-informed opinion of all shades. In fact, it has been learned on reliable authority that in all negotiations leading up to prospects for an operating agreement, officials of the Southern have repeatedly warned state officials that the road will not be able to make any tremendous campaign to route traffic through the North Carolina port linked to Goldsboro by the Old Mullet Road.

The Southern, they point out, has well-established ports now at Norfolk, Charleston and Savannah and cannot be expected to go out of its way to divert traffic from them and through Morehead.

Rail officials are unofficially quoted as saying to the State's representatives, in effect: "If you'll insure us against losing any money, we'll take over operation of the Mullet, but we will not guarantee that there will be any appreciable increase in business over its line into Morehead. We cannot make any special effort to route traffic that way. The best we can do is to offer no objection to and throw no obstacles in the way of shipments through Morehead. We'll give you rate parity with Norfolk."

"After all this is done, it will be strictly up to North Carolina shippers and its various traffic associations. We can't and do not intend to drum up trade for the port."

Incidentally, the Southern's President is said to be none too optimistic about Morehead, of which he recently made an inspection. In his view there is no better harbor anywhere round than Morehead, but that's all.

He pointed out, so it is said, that there is no business at Morehead, no adequate warehouse space—in short, nothing but an unusually fine harbor into which almost no ships come.

He warned that development of the port is a matter of great difficulty and a job which must be undertaken and pushed through by North Carolina officials, traffic groups and shippers.

Incidentally, the Southern's action in even considering the Mullet operation is laid largely to the RFC, which reports indicate has loaned no less than $58,000,000 to the road.

The RFC, too, has a big stake in Morehead's future, having put up some $2,000,000 for development of the port there.

The connection between the government corporation's Morehead investment and its willingness to underwrite possible losses by the Southern in operating the Mullet is, of course, quite obvious.

Best informed circles are satisfied that the Southern will go through with any reasonable operating agreement, very largely because it cannot afford to do anything else—not because it wants all or any part of the Mullet.

But even faced with knowledge that the Southern cannot and will not go "down the line" in any concerted and intense campaign to develop business for Morehead City, those charged with decision as to Mullet's ultimate fate are convinced that an operating agreement with the big railroad is the best "out" of a bad bargain now in prospect. They believe the Southern is sincere in promising no hindrance to Morehead City and rate equality with other South Atlantic ports.

NOW HE KNOWS HOW MUCH THE TANK HOLDS

Port Wayne, Ind.—(AP)—R. J. Truex took the hard way to learn that his automobile tank capacity is 16 gallons.

Truex took vigorous exception to a filling station attendant's claim that he put 15 gallons into the tank.

"You're crazy," said Truex. "It won't even hold that much." Motorcycle policemen who were called to settle the argument summoned Barry Tolan, city inspector of weights and measure. Tolan drained 16 gallons from the tank and the cigars were on Truex.

DUKE'S TIPTON AT BEST FORM

Backfield Ace Appears Ready For Greatest Year

Durham, Sept. 14—Eric "The Red" Tipton, who in his two years on the Duke varsity has already won high national ranking, is roaring around the Blue Devil practice field these days running, passing and kicking better than he ever has.

His showing has served to brighten Duke followers who were downcast after the loss for the season of George McAfee, highly promising triple threat halfback.

Always a highly dependable player, Tipton has gone about his duties methodically this fall, showing the way to the inexperienced boys as Coach Wallace Wade uses him to demonstrate running, passing and punting—tackling and blocking.

His ball-carrying has been the most sensational of all his accomplishments in fall drills. Opposing teams have long complained that Tipton was hard to knock off his feet as he runs in that half-plunging, half-stumbling fashion in which he is as sure-footed as a warhorse.

And from the day he is hurting the leather now, he will even surpass his high total of 594 yards gained running from the line or scrimmage last season. He passes with the ball every time he runs in practice and gets loose for numerous touchdowns although plenty of tacklers get their hands on him.

Tipton completed 37 per cent of his passes last year, which is an excellent average for a passer on a Wade-coached team where they pass rather than to be intercepted than be completed. It is throwing the ball even more accurately these days—just about putting it into a dime.

Health Officer To Examine Athletes

The Pitt County health department next Monday will begin to make regular annual physical examinations of football and basketball aspirants in the city and county schools.

Supt. J. H. Rose of the city school system, and D. H. Conley, superintendent of the county school units, are heartily in accord with the program.

According to the health officer, experience has shown that it is unsafe for boys or girls to engage in strenuous athletics without at least a heart examination.

Examinations Monday will be held in the Ayden high school. Schedules for the examinations are not mapped, but the examinations are made when the health department is notified by the principals of the respective schools.

"Red" Dawson's Question Box

By LOWELL (RED) DAWSON

QUESTION: What is meant by the football expression "mousetrap?"

Answer: When a defensive lineman is purposely let through to be sideswiped by an offensive lineman or a back, the play is known as the "mousetrap." This type of play when skillfully employed keeps the defensive linemen from charging too hard and is likewise an easy way to open holes in the defensive line. The "mousetrap" is a form of cross-blocking, as cross-blocking is merely the technique of hitting a defensive lineman from the side rather than approximately head

Duke, North Carolina Still Favorites In Southern

Eric Tipton will carry on for Duke's shattered team...

Steve Maronic, tackle, will co-captain North Carolina...

Dan Hill, center, is a veteran Duke lineman returning...

But Duke Coach Wade faces a grayish outlook.

By BARTON PATTIE
Richmond, Va. (AP)—North Carolina and Duke, dominating Southern conference football competitors for years, suffered serious graduation losses in June but still are favored to set the pace for the 15-member circuit this fall.

The defending champions of North Carolina, beaten only by Fordham last year, were the hardest hit, having lost seven regulars, and will have to depend heavily on a promising band of sophomores. Coach Ray Wolf, an exponent of passes, had the help of Sammy Baugh, pro star of the Washington Redskins, for spring practice, and expressed satisfaction with the progress made by George Strimweiss and Jim (Sweet) Lalanne in tossing the pigskin.

George Watson, ranked as one of the south's best blockers, is also counted on to bolster the riddled backfield. Co-captain Steve Maronic, tackle, and Wells, 200-pound center, and Gates Kimball, sophomore tackle, are expected to go places on the Tar Heel line.

Wade Needs A Line
Wallace Wade, beginning his 20th year of coaching and his seventh year at Duke, faces a fairly dark outlook. Backs are plentiful, but only two of last year's regular linemen are available. Capable replacements are scarce with the 1937 freshman team turning in the poorest record of any Duke first-year squad since 1930.

Wade began last season without an experienced end and was forced to convert candidates for other positions into wingmen; all four ended their grid careers in 1937. Leading ball-carriers who will carry on for the Blue Devils are George McAfee, Bob O'Mara, Eric Tipton and Bob Spangler. Dan Hill, center, and Fred Yocke, tackle, are the veteran linemen.

Virginia Military Institute, Maryland and Clemson are given the best chances of ending the Duke-Carolina reign, but all three have weaknesses in reserve strength which must be overcome in order to make serious title bids.

V. M. I. Has Paul Shu
V. M. I.'s spectacular Paul Shu, leading scorer in the conference last season and the only sophomore making the mythical all-Southern squad, is the Keydets' big threat in a well-balanced eleven. Andy Trzeciak, Shu's running mate in the backfield, is also a fine kicker and passer.

Maryland also has an all-Southern player, Big Jim Meade, to head a versatile backfield which includes one of the circuit's best pass-heavers in Charlie Weidinger. The Old Liners dropped but two gains in 10 last season.

Clemson's team will be built around Charlie Woods, all-Southern center, and Don Willis, full-back blocking ace.

South Carolina, Wake Forest, and Washington and Lee are expected stronger teams than last year. Richmond, Furman, North Carolina State, The Citadel, William and Mary, Virginia Tech, and Davidson must develop greater material into dependable replacements for graduated regulars and reserves.

Methodist Bishop To Preach Here Sunday
Bishop Clare Purcell, who is in charge of the Methodist Conferences of North and South Carolina, will preach at Jarvis Memorial Church next Sunday night at eight o'clock.

Bishop Purcell, formerly of Gadsden, Alabama, was elected Bishop at the General Conference which met in Birmingham last April. He will dedicate Rainbow Church in Green County next Sunday morning and will be here for the night service.

The Methodist Church feels very fortunate in being able to secure this distinguished minister, and invites the public of Greenville and vicinity to hear him.

There will be no Union Service in the Christian Church, but an invitation is extended to all denominations to worship at Jarvis Memorial Church next Sunday evening.

The pastor will preach at the morning service, as usual.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 16—(AP)—Settling in a narrow orbit after an early sell-off the stock market regained today an outwardly peaceful air while it waited for the next decisive move to clarify the question of war in Europe.

In the quietest session since Monday, transactions dropped about 650,000 shares, only half yesterday's trading pace.

In the first hour numerous shares yielded half or so of yesterday's extensive gains, which were rung up in a revival of hope for maintenance of peace on the Chamberlain-Hitler talks. Losses were reduced later, however.

BOLTED THEIR DOORS WHEN GEOLOGIST CAME

Washington, (AP)—In the early 1800's geologists were unheard of curiosities to the majority of the inhabitants of the American hinterland. When they saw a robust, grown man tapping at the rocks and breaking off bits of stone to carry away with him they decided he must be a lunatic at large, and treated him accordingly.

On one occasion when William Maclure, "the father of American Geology," approached a remote tavern, seeking a night's lodging, everyone rushed indoors and bolted themselves inside.

Senator Herring (D-Iowa), disclosed that Treasury experts and aides of a special Senate committee were trying to devise tax alterations which would encourage development of industrial profit sharing.

"If we can find a profit sharing plan that would work in 60 or 70 per cent of the nation's plants," he said, "we hope to recommend a compensatory act by the federal government to encourage it."
