BUREAU WARNS OF STORM OFF COAST OF N. C.

Hurricane Expected to Pass East of Cape Hatteras

ADVISE CAUTION FOR ALL SHIPPING

Small Craft Warned to Stay in Port from Virginia Capes To Charleston, S. C.

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 20. (AP)—The weather bureau today ordered northeast storm warnings displayed along the North Carolina coast and said a tropical hurricane of "great intensity" would pass east of Cape Hatteras tonight.

The bureau at 9:30 a. m. (EST) said the storm which yesterday menaced south Florida now was moving north-northwestward or northward about 17 miles an hour.

The center of the hurricane, the weather bureau said, was about 300 miles east of Vero beach, Fla., at 7 a. m.

The storm warnings were ordered up from Wilmington to Cape Hatteras and the weather bureau said "the storm will gradually turn toward the north-northeast with the center passing some distance east of Cape Hatteras tonight."

Meteorologists warned that the hurricane would "cause increasing northerly winds on the North Carolina coast, becoming fresh to strong and probably reaching gale force at exposed places on the cape with hurricane winds some distance offshore."

Caution was advised for all ships in the path of the storm and small craft were warned to stay in port from the Virginia capes to Charleston.

The weather bureau said the "lowest barometric pressure reported last night from ships in the storm area was 27.90."

Hocutt Will Take Office October 1st

Raleigh, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Ronald Hocutt will become head of the Division of Highway Safety October 1, Revenue Commissioner A. J. Maxwell announced today, in succession of Arthur Pulk, who resigned to enter private business in Surry county.

John T. Armstrong, head of the division of delinquent tax collections for the revenue department, will become the commanding major of the patrol.

Hocutt has been chief assistant to Major Pulk. The division of delinquent tax collections will be abolished.

Maxwell praised the work of Pulk.

Beaufort Man Jailed For Slaying Of Son

Beaufort, Sept. 20.—(AP)—A man docketed as J. W. Watson, Carteret county farmer, was held in jail today charged with fatally wounding his 22-year-old son, J. W. Watson, Jr., last night.

Coroner George Dill said the man claimed he shot in self-defense.

State Commission Makes Bond Sales

Raleigh, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The local government commission sold $559,000 worth of bonds and $18,000 in notes for political subdivisions today and approved issuance of $511,000 of other bonds.

Bond issues sold included: Farmville, $54,000 electric light system and $45,000 water and sewer; to the Bank of Farmville at a premium of $49.50, with interest at four per cent.

The Circus

Despite various handicaps, the Robbins Circus gave a performance this afternoon and is prepared for another tonight. The circus arrived in Greenville behind schedule after a large circus wagon overturned on the Washington lot last night. Due to the inclement weather, the parade was two hours behind schedule, but came through as advertised. The afternoon performance was delayed due to the late parade start. A circus official said workmen had been hauling sawdust and cinders to the grounds to put them in first-class shape for tonight's performance. The tents, he said, are water-proof and even in case of continued rain the circus patrons will not be inconvenienced.

SUDETEN GERMANS FLEE INTO FATHERLAND

Thousands of Sudeten Germans are reported to have fled from Czechoslovakia into Germany, where their outlawed leader, Konrad Henlein, has established himself. This radiophoto shows refugees crossing the border on foot near Oberkingthal, Germany.

FACE CHARGES FOR 4 DEATHS

Prison Officials And Guards in Philadelphia Indicted

Philadelphia, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Murder and manslaughter indictments were returned today by the grand jury against 10 officials and guards of the Philadelphia county prison, where four convicts died from heat in punishment cells.

Those indicted included William Mills, superintendent of the prison, and Frank Craven, Deputy Warden.

James McGuire, captain of guard; F. J. Smith, and Alfred Brough, guards, also were indicted on murder and manslaughter charges.

Guards Robert Morrow, William Staines, Thomas Cavanaugh, John Mulherin and S. Waver were indicted on charges of manslaughter the convicts were found "baked to death" in their cells August 22.

TEN DEAD IN RAIL ACCIDENT

Passenger Trains Collide Head-On in California

San Francisco, Sept. 20.—(AP)—At least ten persons were killed in a head-on collision between two Southern Pacific trans-continental passenger trains at Tortuga, in southeastern California, at 1:35 o'clock this morning.

Officials of the railroad in San Francisco said the Argonaut, west-bound from New Orleans to Los Angeles, crashed into the Californian, east-bound from Los Angeles to Chicago, as it stood on a siding.

The dead included the engineer of the Argonaut, his fireman, the fireman of the Californian and six coach passengers. One mail clerk was unaccounted for and between 30 and 40 passengers were hurt.

Two high officials of the Southern Pacific escaped injury. They were riding in a private car on the rear of the Argonaut. They took charge of the situation.

Two White Men Held For Tobacco Larceny

Sheriff J. Knott Proctor declared today he was holding two white men in county jail on suspicion of having stolen tobacco and sold it on warehouse floors.

The two men being held are John Warren of Martin county and Joe Jones of the Grifton community. Sheriff Proctor declared he was continuing his investigation.

MANY TRIED IN COUNTY COURT

Same Number White and Negro Defendants Heard

Of the even dozen cases tried in Pitt county court this morning half of the defendants were white men.

Melvin Daniels entered a plea of guilty to abandonment and non-support and was given a four-month road sentence, suspended upon payment of court costs and three dollars each week for use of his wife.

Arthur Dail was convicted of driving drunk and fined $50, ordered to pay the costs of court and had his driving license revoked for 12 months.

Earl Gurganus was convicted of resisting arrest and was fined $50, costs to be deducted, and given a 90-day road sentence, suspended condition he pay the $50 and not interfere with any officer for two years.

Robert Lee Webb was fined $50 and ordered to pay the costs, and had his driving license revoked for 12 months. On a charge of carrying concealed weapon he was fined $50.

Session Held For Train Discussions

N. G. Barlett, secretary of the East Carolina Chamber of Commerce, presided over a meeting which opened under way in the city hall this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock relative to the removal of trains in this section.

Representatives of several Eastern Carolina towns were in attendance. They were familiarized with what has been done and what is hoped to be done relative to the proposed removal of the trains.

A delegation has already appeared before Utilities Commissioner Stanley Wimborne asking that the lines be retained. No final action was taken on the matter, however.

Changes Loom In Foreign Treaties

Washington, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The United States will have to revise its five-months old reciprocal trade agreement with Czechoslovakia if the Sudeten territory is ceded to Germany.

Experts listed this today as one of three prospective changes in American relations with Germany and the little war-born Czech republic, in the event the British-French peace plan is adopted. The others are:

1.—Adding the Sudeten area to this country's economic blacklist.

2.—Revising the immigration quotas for both Germany and Czechoslovakia.

If the Hungarian and Polish minorities in Czechoslovakia are permitted to break away from Prague, and there has been agitation for such moves, still further adjustments will have to be made.

President Roosevelt meanwhile arranged an afternoon conference with executives of three large railroads and representatives of railway labor organizations to discuss with

ANGLO-FRENCH PLANS FACING GRAVE THREAT

Outbreak of Frontier Incidents Delay to Peace Aims

BRITAIN AWAITS CZECHS' ANSWER

Reply Said to be Delayed both by Weight of Question and Diplomatic Moves

London, Sept. 20.—(AP)—An outbreak of German-Czechoslovak frontier incidents and a reported Soviet Russian promise to help Prague resist attacks threatened today to wreck the British-French plan for settling the conflict peacefully.

As border hostilities spread, Great Britain was said to lack official information of the Czech government's stand on the joint British-French proposal to let Germany have the Sudeten areas.

The answer was said to be delayed both by the weight of the decision thrust upon the Czech cabinet and by Prague's diplomatic negotia-

Prague, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The Czechoslovak government announced tonight that it had delivered its reply to Great Britain and France on their proposals to end the European crisis and that it considered the way was left open to further "diplomatic negotiations."

It was reported that the proposals, which appeared to be mainly for Soviet Russia.

In Geneva there were reports Moscow was supporting Prague.

During the day Prime Minister Chamberlain met with the "inner cabinet" which consists of Chamberlain, foreign secretary Viscount Halifax, Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare and Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer.

British officials maintained silence as to details of the British-French peace plan. Chamberlain is expected to take this "expedient surrender" back to Chancellor Hitler tomorrow at their second meeting at Godesberg on the Rhine.

Despite the apparent decisions of the British and French governments to stand aloof, there were obvious concern at the possibility of their plan might fail to prevent an explosion.

LEAF AVERAGE OF $23.82 PAID

Season's Record Price Paid on Market Yesterday

The Greenville tobacco market established a season's record yesterday when farmers were paid an average of $23.82 for their offerings.

The figure was the highest paid this year, surpassing the opening day average of $23.80 per hundred pounds.

Offerings of 1,697,314 brought a total of $404,342.93, both records for this season.

So far this year 17,991,256 pounds of the golden weed have been sold on the Greenville market, bringing a total of $3,817,711.70, or an official general average for the season of $21.22 per hundred weight.

Setting of a new record yesterday brought encouragement to farmers and indications that better grades of tobacco had started coming in. A good portion of the tobacco offered so far on the market has been of medium or low quality.

There have been 18 selling days on the market this year, through yesterday, and practically 18 million pounds of the weed have been sold, setting an average of a million pounds a day. Most persons, however, predict the marketing season will be over earlier this year than usual.

44th County

The forty-fourth county was represented on the Greenville tobacco market today when T. R. Bryant of Statesboro, Ga., brought a load of the weed here traveling a distance of 468 miles to sell his product on the local market.

Mr. Bryant, who lives in Hullock county, Ga., planted 72 acres in tobacco. He appeared satisfied with the price his product brought, indicating that he would be back, possibly with other Georgia growers to sell tobacco on the Greenville market.

Czechs And Sudetens Wage Series Of Engagements On Border Of Czechoslovakia

OFF FOR GERMAN REFUGEE CAMPS

In this radiophoto refugees from the Sudeten area of Czechoslovakia are shown boarding a train at Klingenfahl, Germany, for transportation to German refugee camps. Some of the men in this crowd doubtless will enter Konrad Henlein's "free corps" and fight for the Fatherland in the event war flares.

Three Attacks Are Made On Czech Custom House

Bands of Men Said to Have Crossed Border from Germany

Prague, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Three attacks on Czechoslovakia frontier customs houses by bands of men who were said to have crossed the border from Germany armed with machine guns, hand grenades and pistols were reported today by the Czechoslovakia government.

A custom house near Aussig was reported burned after being wrecked by a barrage of hand grenades. Two Czech officials were wounded.

At a place near Friedland, government reports said, men who crossed the border shortly before dawn occupied the customs house for a time and broke into and took possession of the post office.

Czech officials then returned their fire and a detachment of Czech Gendarmery finally dislodged the attackers from the two buildings.

Six government officials were reported wounded and Czech officials said several of the invaders were hurt and dragged back across the boundary by their comrades.

These reports came as the Prague government, confronted with Anglo-French proposals to cede the Sudetenland to Germany, stalled for time in his struggle to maintain the life of the 20-year-old state.

The cabinet was reported to have found "unacceptable" the plan of the western democracies to partition the republic but to be prepared to make use of the proposals in future negotiations.

Child Badly Hurt When Hit By Auto

Willie Tyson, five-year-old son of Heber Tyson, Pitt County Negro, is in Pitt General Hospital in a serious condition after having been struck by an automobile driven by G. W. Best of Greenville this morning.

Dr. J. L. Winstead, chief surgeon at the hospital, said the child sustained a badly fractured skull in an unconscious condition, but regained consciousness before noon.

Highway Patrolman C. R. Williams declared that the small boy attempted to cross the road after one automobile had passed and started into the path of the oncoming automobile driven by Best.

No charges have been preferred against Best pending the outcome of the child's condition. Patrolman Williams said the accident appeared to be unavoidable. If the child dies, however, the accident will be subject to a coroner's inquest, if such course is deemed necessary.

The accident occurred on the Falkland highway about four miles from Greenville, Patrolman Williams said.

MANY INJURED IN SKIRMISHES

Seventeen German Frontier Guards Said to Have Been Injured in One Incident; Nazi Forces Reported Asked to Volunteer for 'Free Corps' Service

Berlin, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The German official news agency today reported a steady series of Czechoslovak frontier clashes between Sudeten Germans and Czech detachments.

The reports were issued by the news agency DNB with the regularity of clock-work.

They told of incident after incident in which Czech frontier detachments fired on deserting Sudeten soldiers and also endangered civilian fugitives.

In one of the engagements 17 German frontier guards were said to have been wounded. All the incidents reported by DNB occurred in the mountains on the Silesian side of the German-Czech border.

In one of the engagements 17 German frontier guards were said to have been wounded. All the incidents reported by DNB occurred in the mountains on the Silesian side of the German-Czech border.

German strategy seemed to be to get Sudeten deserters and Konrad Henlein's "free corps" men to fight it out with Czechoslovak frontier forces without involving the regular German order.

However, an Associated Press correspondent learned from reliable sources that, for instance, members of the 57th Infantry regiment stationed near Berlin have been asked to "volunteer" for "free corps" service.

Similar detachments of Berlin S. S.—Nazi black-uniformed elite guard troops—have been shipped southeast for "volunteer service in the 'free corps'."

In Vienna brown-shirted storm troops were also being recruited for "free corps" duty.

In other words, Adolf Hitler is re-training German's armed forces from officially taking part in border exchanges, at least until a second meeting with British Prime Minister Chamberlain has been held.

Wayne Infant Buried Near Parker's Chapel

Little Alvin Wayne, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Alvin Padgett, died at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Josephine Fleming, on Seventh street last night at 11 o'clock.

The infant, who lived only a day and a half, is survived by his parents, several uncles and aunts, both grandmothers, one great grandmother and one great-grandmother.

Burial services were held at 3 o'clock this afternoon near Parker's chapel.

Enter Pleas of Guilt; Then Ask For Appeal

H. B. Drum, clerk of city recorder's court, is still grinning about what happened during yesterday's proceedings.

He said when Bill Manning and Heber Ross came into court charged with drunkenness, that both defendants entered a plea of "guilty."

Recorder L. C. Skinner meted out sentences of "costs or 30 days" to each defendant.

Both men then made an effort to appeal their cases. The appeals were not granted because the men had nothing to appeal from.

dimensions and price of each plot which had been offered.

Mr. Flanagan then discussed the lot on Evans street, next to the post office property, which he is offering for $6,000.

W. M. (Stellie) Jones also called attention to his offer of a lot on Cotanche street for $6,000.

J. Hicks Corey then spoke for several minutes, urging that the city purchase tracts on Fifth street offered by J. B. James for himself and others, or some other property which would be easy to reach.

He declared that the new city-county armory was hidden and said he would hate to see the municipal building put there where it could not be seen. "We are spending a lot of money for these projects and we want a real asset, something we will be proud of," he declared. He expressed the opinion the tract offered by Mr. James had the best location of any for which a bid had been received.

J. E. Winslow told the board that he was certain the Leon Tucker property at the corner of Third and Greene, which is owned by the county, could be purchased. Mr. Winslow then declared that the city was moving away from Five Points. He explained that he had moved five times in the past 35 years, trying to keep up with the town. He declared that the crossroads of the city had moved from Five Points until now the center is at the Atlantic Coast Line railroad and Dickinson avenue.

R. V. Keel spoke briefly, saying that the building should be erected at a place convenient to the most people, adding that Five Points no longer was the center of the city.

Mr. Turnage, who offered the property on Third and Cotanche, observed that most people had to go to the court house and post office and locating the municipal building in that area would prove a convenience to the public in general. He explained if a fire station were built on the property he was offering it would be able to get to all sections of town with the least traffic congestion.

J. W. Roberts declared he would like to see the municipal hall erected on the site which he believed most convenient to the most people. He added he would like to see it constructed on a site where it would have plenty of room on each side and not be crowded in the middle of a block, surrounded by other buildings and where it would not be accessible from at least two sides.

N. C. Brooks briefly stated his preference that the city hall be located in the same section as the court house and post office are now situated.

W. S. Tyson declared he, too, favored the court house-post office area.

James T. Little also said he favored locating the city hall in the vicinity of the other two oft-visited public buildings.

As no others rose to speak, the board went into executive session to consider the proposals.

EXPLAIN WORK FOR CRIPPLES LAUNCH DRIVE ON SCRAP LAW

Rotary Club Reviews Its Public Service Program at Meet

Accomplishments of work done to aid crippled children in a clinic conducted under the sponsorship of the Greenville Rotary were shown to local Rotarians in a regular session last night.

The crippled children committee, headed by Dr. N. Thomas Ebnett, Pitt County health officer, was in charge of the program. Individuals who have benefited under the program were in attendance as special guests of the Rotary Club.

Aiding crippled children is one of the major public services rendered by the Greenville Rotary Club and the work they have been doing was accepted with a double dose of enthusiasm at last night's meeting.

Dr. Ebnett explained that the cripple has been known to society since the beginning of recorded history and probably since the beginning of time. Many are references in the Bible to the lame and the blind, he said. "In ancient times the crippled child was put to death as unfit to live, later tolerated and endured then simply overlooked and neglected," he continued.

"Not until 1782 was a hospital established for the treatment of cripples. This was in Paris. No hospital was established in Great Britain until 1817, nearly 100 years after the hospital in Paris. It was nearly 50 years later, 1863, that a hospital was established in New York, known as the New York hospital for ruptured and crippled children.

"Within the past 20 years," said Dr. Ebnett, "widespread interest has been given to the care of the cripple. In fact, it was immediately after the World War with thousands of soldiers returning maimed and crippled, that this country began to become cripple conscious."

Included in the number of persons in attendance at the session, who have derived benefits under the Rotary program, was a case of corrected infantile paralysis; a case where a man had been given an artificial leg following an amputation at the mid-thigh; a case where a girl had been given an artificial limb after an amputation above the knee, and after using an ordinary peg leg for some time; cases of improved extreme knock-knees; club feet, and bow-leggedness.

Rotary Club Reviews Its Public Service Program at Meet

Accomplishments of work done to aid crippled children in a clinic conducted under the sponsorship of the Greenville Rotary were shown to local Rotarians in a regular session last night.

The crippled children committee, headed by Dr. N. Thomas Ebnett, Pitt County health officer, was in charge of the program. Individuals who have benefited under the program were in attendance as special guests of the Rotary Club.

Aiding crippled children is one of the major public services rendered by the Greenville Rotary Club and the work they have been doing was accepted with a double dose of enthusiasm at last night's meeting.

Dr. Ebnett explained that the cripple has been known to society since the beginning of recorded history and probably since the beginning of time. Many are references in the Bible to the lame and the blind, he said. "In ancient times the crippled child was put to death as unfit to live, later tolerated and endured then simply overlooked and neglected," he continued.

"Not until 1782 was a hospital established for the treatment of cripples. This was in Paris. No hospital was established in Great Britain until 1817, nearly 100 years after the hospital in Paris. It was nearly 50 years later, 1863, that a hospital was established in New York, known as the New York hospital for ruptured and crippled children.

"Within the past 20 years," said Dr. Ebnett, "widespread interest has been given to the care of the cripple. In fact, it was immediately after the World War with thousands of soldiers returning maimed and crippled, that this country began to become cripple conscious."

Included in the number of persons in attendance at the session, who have derived benefits under the Rotary program, was a case of corrected infantile paralysis; a case where a man had been given an artificial leg following an amputation at the mid-thigh; a case where a girl had been given an artificial limb after an amputation above the knee, and after using an ordinary peg leg for some time; cases of improved extreme knock-knees; club feet, and bow-leggedness.

Washington—From gleanings here and there we are able to present something of a picture of what the New Deal strategists expect will result from the so-called purge.

Keep in mind there is another side to the picture, but this is their side.

Some of the other heads, who had buttered their bread with politics for many a year, knew before the purge started that defeat was certain in several instances and likely in others. They knew the defeats would be interpreted as setbacks for the administration. What was to be gained?

First off, as these people see it, a Democratic senator listed for the purge will be a marked man in the future. That may or may not influence his voting in the next congress. New Deal figures participating in the purge suspect it will. The party loyalty of those "marked" senators has been questioned by the head of the party.

These marked senators may consider that blind following of party leadership is not party loyalty. They may hold that true party loyalty compels them to vote administration proposals they consider unwise.

May the As Marry? Contrary to some N. W. Deal expectations, an aura of martyrdom may attach to them, increasing their independence and benefiting them in other ways. Senator Clark of Missouri, for instance, was examined more closely as a presidential prospect after his name was "posted". Nevertheless, N. W. Deal sources predict that a Democrat accused of disloyalty will be a "very uncomfortable" Democrat.

It is within the realm of possibility that the marked senators may meet real trouble from Republican opposition in November. Here is the situation they foresee. The popular name of Roosevelt won't be at the head of the ticket this November to help along. Moreover, in some states the controlling vote lies with the Progressives, who for the most part have been with the New Deal since 1932. They have followed Roosevelt. Now, New Deal sources point out, Mr. Roosevelt or some of his lieutenants has stamped these senators as no longer progressives in the Roosevelt sense.

Another Iowa Test Ode man with whom we talked cited Iowa as a possible example. Iowa was predominantly a Republican state until 1932. It had a roving progressive vote which had been GOP so long that it was considered party property. In 1932 it swung heavily to Roosevelt and again in 1936 to such a degree that a veteran Republican senator, Louis J. Dickinson, was defeated.

When Ya Gotta Sneeze—Ya Gotta Sneeze Chicago (AP)—Albert Humphreys used hay fever as the reason he drove past a stop light and he got off with a light fine. "My hay fever made me sneeze and I failed to see the traffic light," he told the judge.

general election by former Senator Odde, who fell before McCarran by a narrow 1,700-vote margin in the Democratic landslide of 1932. All in all, as the purge management seems to see it, those independent Democratic senators who outside the party may survive the general elections by narrow margins, so that their independence may be decidedly tempered. And if they lose, it will be much easier for Roosevelt forces to control selection of delegates to the national convention in 1940.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Sept. 20—Gregg Cherry and Libby Ward, chairman and secretary, respectively, of the Democratic State Committee, will probably breathe a bit easier after tomorrow.

Meaning that they probably will know for whom they are campaigning in the Eighth Congressional District. The Supreme Court is expected to determine Wednesday whether C. B. Deane of Richmond county or W. O. Burgin of Davidson is the party's nominee.

In the interim the state Democratic big shots have been trying to line up something of an organization and start some preliminary work in the Eighth.

While it hardly seems possible, a really stiff fight from Republican John R. Jones is being freely predicted in many quarters. Some who are not professional viewers-with-alarm and who have been in the Eighth, declare there is even more feeling than has been shown on the surface. They don't laugh when they predict a possible G. O. P. triumph.

Incidentally, there is now talk that Walter Lambeth, sitting Congressman from the Eighth, may be inclined to change his course, contemplates first inducing the Supreme court winner of the Deane-Burgin row to withdraw gracefully—a consummation which may be devoutly wished, but hardly easy to consummate in view of the fact that both men have spent considerable money in the contest and neither would be likely to take kindly to quitting after being declared the victor.

Still stranger things have happened.

Wake Forest's football boys looked much more like Demons than Deacons Saturday night against Randolph-Macon's Yellow Jackets. Peabody Walker's charges gave every indication of being cocked and primed to do some fancy shooting of the works against favorite opposition this year.

Still on the football line. The changed spirit at State College this year is so evident as to be almost a thing with physical size and shape.

If ever a man sold himself to the student body, Doc Newton has done it. The respect and good will with which he is regarded seem substantial enough to resist almost any number of reverses—and in view of the "outside" sources the Wolfpack is attempting this fall that's what may have to be resisted.

Organization of an Electrical Co-Op in Orange county has been just about completed—the proposed line to be about 120 miles long, with something like 515 prospective customers.

J. M. Gratings, engineer for the State REA will go over the county this week to put the finishing touches on organization; after which application will be made to the Federal REA for funds with which to finance construction—that is, unless a private utility can be secured into taking over the project which seems a bit "thin" to the unbiased observer.

The Department of Labor lost its Maslunas Hour for Men case in Winston-Salem last week and so there will be no Supreme Court test of the statute yet-while. Judge H. Hoyle Sisk non-suited the test case when he was not satisfied by the Department's evidence against the Question Manufacturing Co.

THE CLOUSED ROOM

By MAX SALTMARSH

The Characters
Arehle Lumsden, myself, visitor to the French Riviera.
Henrietta Adams, beautiful American heiress.
René Geiss, head of a murder conspiracy.

Yesterday, Otilie and I were caught in Geiss's house between Geiss and Henrietta Adams on the one hand, and crazy Noah More on the other.

Chapter 33 Night Of Horror

THERE was one chance, only one, and that a thin one. I gripped Otilie's wrist and drew her after me round the angle of the stairs to the studio door. As I did so, finding it mercifully ajar, I heard Geiss's step on the marble flags.

I thrust her inside, slipped after her myself. The footsteps passed our door and proceeded down the passage to the secret room; I heard the sound of a key turning and next minute the click of a closing lock.

Escape by the front door was impossible, and I looked round desperately for some corner where we could hide ourselves until the inmates of the house had gone their dark and devious ways. Even as I hesitated, I heard a shuffling tread in the hall. There was a second door on my left, which must lead to the secret room, and now I realized that it, also, stood ajar for a murmur of voices came faintly through the crack. I drew her towards it and as I did so, turned my head and saw the door we had entered slowly move inward.

There was only one thing for it. I caught her by the shoulders and gently thrust her into the second room, so that she stood flat against the wall behind the heavy curtain, and as I followed her and softly closed the door behind us, it seemed to me that the situation had reached its pinnacle of fantastic horror.

I moved stealthily a fraction to one side, where the division of the curtains showed a thin line of light, and found that, by putting my eye to the crack, I could get a very fair view of the upper end of the room. The housekeeper stood watchful and defiant looking up to the dais, where, behind the monstrous statue of the goat Geiss, was doing something that I could not see.

"Come then, Henrietta!" he called mockingly. "Do you not wish to see where I have my secret hiding-place, now that it is too late to be of use to you?"

The woman walked slowly forward, rounding the long black table that stood before the dais, and stood between it and the statue and it seemed to me that now her watchfulness was relaxed, for her angular figure was poised and tense.

"I'm not coming any nearer," she said. "And I think I'd better tell you, René Geiss, that there's a revolver under this coat of mine. If you try anything, I know how to use it."

"A gun!" he exclaimed. "You are a resourceful woman, Henrietta, but I promise you that you will have no occasion to use it! René Geiss, promise you that! And as he spoke, he stooped swiftly, disappearing behind the statue. There was a moment's silence and then, to my horror, I saw the white, monstrous shape suddenly tilt forward. The woman beneath screamed, once, horribly, and then tried to spring backward, but the long black draped stone table was close behind her, shutting her in. She swung round, trying madly to scramble over it, and as she did so, the thing toppled forward and fell straight down on her, with a thunderous crash that almost drowned the second dreadful scream that rang out.

Locked In
I CLAPPED my hand over Otilie's mouth, and slid my other arm round her waist, feeling her shaking as if with a palsy.

"You see, Henrietta," said Geiss's voice gently, "you did not see the gun." The moans ceased and I knew that the woman was dead. He stood there for a moment, while I held my breath, and then moved swiftly his pebble-eyes turned animal-like, to right and left, over to the curtain that showed the farther wall. A moment later, he fumbled behind it, then turned back, thrusting what appeared to be a wad of notes into his pocket, and crossed to the table.

He picked up something that looked like a pack of cards, flicked them over with practiced fingers, and dropped five cards, one by one, on the velvet cushion, then stood staring at them, with a face suddenly drawn and contorted by fear. Suddenly he clapped his hands over his eyes. "I do not believe it!" he shrieked, in a voice so hoarse that I hardly knew it, and turning on his heel, dashed from the room. The next minute I heard a confused uproar in the studio at my back.

"You!" came Geiss's voice in a frenzied scream. "You would dare to spy on me, you drug-sodden half-wit! If I did not need you to-morrow, I would kill you now! As it is, go—go at once, before I change my mind!"

There was a scuffle, a half-strangled groan close to the other side of the door, and then silence, broken only by a small sound that seemed to drain the blood from my veins, leaving me cold and shivering, for it was the sound of a key turning in a lock.

The door behind us was locked, and it was odds that the other door, through which Geiss had fled, was also fastened. Only too well did I know how impossible it was to break down either of those two doors, and yet the alternative, the long hours that must be spent in that dreadful room, shut in with that gruesome, broken body, waiting until Hugo or Dunning or the police should come to free us, was a prospect almost too awful to contemplate.

I stood there listening for another five minutes, for if the madman who roamed the house learned of our presence, I dared not imagine what would happen.

At last I moved. "I think we can shift ourselves now," I whispered. "Our host wouldn't wait longer than he could help, after that last effort."

"But, Arehle," Otilie said, very low, "what happened? What was that awful cry, and the crash?"

"That," I answered slowly, "was when Geiss killed Henrietta Adams. She's out there now, Otilie—but there's worse than that to face."

"I can guess," she said. I felt her tremble against my arm, but her voice was amazingly steady. "We're locked in."

"You've said it," I agreed with a groan. "Stay here for a minute, like a good girl, and don't bawl until I tell you."

Swiftly, I dragged down the heavy wall curtain and covered the body. "You can come out now Otilie. But you've got to face the fact that we're stuck in this room until Dunning or Hugo—or the police, even—I think to come and look for us here."

The Idol
WHEN I caught sight of the play-ing-cards Geiss had used, they were like no cards I had ever seen before. Quaint little pictures they were, crudely drawn, yet startlingly vivid.

The girl was standing at my elbow. "The tarot," she said. "Don't tell me he took time to consult them before he left! I wonder what they told him?"

"Whatever it was, he didn't like it," I answered, with a vivid recollection of that frenzied cry. "I do not believe it!" But Otilie was bending over the cards, fingering them intently.

"I don't wonder he didn't like it," she said under her breath. "Here's the reading of his fortune: Failure, madness, death, and eternal damnation, all caused by a dark woman."

"Strange," said I. "He was always scared of dark women. He said she would cause his death in the long run."

She stared at me. "Melanie was dark," she said slowly. "Her name means the dark girl, and if we ever get the better of Geiss, it'll be through what she managed to discover."

It was true enough, and a queer thought it brought, but as she spoke her sister's name, I saw her slip quieter, and I swung round searching for something to divert her thoughts. An idol gleamed at us from a niche on the wall, and as my eye lighted on it, something suddenly clicked in my brain.

"Otilie," I said, "there's a connection here. Geiss was busy being kind that curtain before he cleared out, and he came away with money in his hand."

"Arehle, there's something funny about that statue," she said. "You bet there is," said I, and in a couple of strides I was across the room.

The image stood there staring far-offly at us with its twin faces. It was carved, as far as one could judge, from a solid block of smooth black stone, and when I struck a match to examine it more closely, there seemed no crack or joint that could conceal an opening.

But Otilie reached over my shoulder and gripped something that looked like a simplified Tuder rose, turning it with all her strength, and as I looked, I saw the image slowly swing to one side, disclosing a deepish hollow in the center of the plinth.

There was something lying at the bottom, something long and gray-black and sinister, and as I recognized it for what it was, I drew a long breath of relief, for it seemed to me that we had rounded the last bend of the road.

"My!" said she, with a sort of triumphant gasp. "What wouldn't I give to have Mr. Hugo Stern here this minute!" And as she spoke she reached her hand down into the opening, but I gripped her by the wrist.

"Don't touch it," I told her. "It's a fun all right, and I'll take a bet it's the one we're looking for, but if so the fingerprints on it are precious to us; we're not going to disturb them. And furthermore, I added, as she jerked her head impatiently, "we're leaving it exactly where it is for the police to discover."

MYSTERY MAN ON FIGHT CARD

Yellow Jacket Makes Debut Here on Next Monday Night

A. B. Bracey, local fight promoter, will introduce another "mystery man" in his wrestling show next Monday night when the "Yellow Jacket," another sort of masked marvel, makes his debut in the local arena.

Yellow Jacket is dynamite. He's tricky and has clicked with fight fans in other localities. If he meets with the approval of local fans, Bracey plans to match him with the city's original masked marvel. Only the wrestling tactics of these fighters are known.

In next Monday's show, the Yellow Jacket will match tricks with Al Caddell, 180-pounder from Boston, Mass. Caddell has appeared on previous local fight cards and showed the spectators he could dish it out, as well as take punishment.

Eddie (Cowboy) Williams, 180-pounds, of Springfield, will be going the route with Dick Gammon, 185. In the semi-final doings next Monday night. Both fighters are liked here and are expected to put up a fine showing in the scheduled sixty-minute wrestling engagement.

Taking a glance at last night's duels, one finds Eddie Williams victor over Jim Logas, the Greek champion. One of Williams' toe holds, strictly his own, did the trick. This was a 60-minute bout. Floyd Bird was finally disqualified in a match with Dick Gammon of Canada after each wrestler had garnered one fall each.

IT'S ODD. But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLER
New York—If "globular lightning," that is, a ball of fire, starts rolling toward you it will be well to run.

For the first time the power in one of these rare freaks of nature has been measured accurately and found dangerous. The findings are described in Nature, the official British journal of science.

Near Belfast museum a short time ago such a ball of lightning was seen to explode near a haystack.

The explosion broke off the 10-inch trunk. Branches were scattered. One was thrown 100 yards. Clay was blown 40 yards from the ground at the foot of the tree.

On the same day, six miles distant, a similar ball of fire blew a large crater in the mud of a river bank. In this case it was reported the "explosion shook the whole countryside."

Ball lightning is rare. Its existence, however, has been verified by photographs. Sometimes the globes of fire hang in the air, in iridescent colors.

Spectators have reported seeing them roll along the ground and reported their explosion. But in these cases the spectator was unable to tell whether the explosion was like that of a toy balloon, or something more powerful.

BETTY STEVENS AND OLD DINGUS

This petite young lady is recognized as one of the greatest elephant trainers in the world. Ton after ton of these huge elephants obey her slightest command.

Kids And Old Folks, Too Enjoy Parade And Circus

Today is Circus Day, so step lively, folks, step lively, or you'll miss those gigantic stupendous acts about to go on under the big top.

Yes sir, the Famous Robbins Circus is camped at the Old Fair Grounds—folks, only ONE DAY—THAT IS TODAY, so step lively and hurry.

Out of the musty past today at noon came a new thrill for most of Greenville's youngsters—the old-fashioned circus parade. Bouncing like rubber balls—out of school at noon and free for the rest of the day—the youngsters ripped and raced, screamed and cheered, or simply stood in awed wonder, as with flags flying and callopes tooting, the parade of the Famous Robbins Circus swept majestically by in all its splendor.

To the children it was a novelty, a "new thrill," to the oldsters it brought back the days of childhood and sweet gladness of the head—of things long forgotten, but quickly remembered.

A circus parade doesn't amount to a hill of beans if it isn't late. Any old timer will tell you that, but the management of the circus, while it had advertised the parade for 11 o'clock held it off until 12 as school officials very graciously declared a half holiday at noon. This did not seem to make a bit of difference to the thousands who jammed the streets long before the time set and it was a good natured crowd—the craning of necks, the hushes of expectancy, the wild and false rumors of the parade's approach and then suddenly three feet were forgotten as the first strains of a blaring band came to their ears, carried by a fitful breeze. The whole world loves a parade—and Greenville is no different. Young and old, they swarmed the sidewalks and jammed the roadways. They stood on the running boards of cars, sat on window sills with their legs dangling out, and walked over everybody else's feet to get a better look—what we are trying to say is that Greenville witnessed its first old fashioned circus parade in years and did it like it—scores of big heavy draft horses, cage after cage of wild animals, pretty girls astride fine horses, clowns, bands, elephants and the only steam callopes in the country.

Great Show.
This summer would not have been complete without the coming of a big circus. (The Famous Robbins Circus now being the largest railroad show on the road) with its sawdust tracks and a wildness of airial rigging and contraptions and elephants and clowns and wire-walkers and acrobats and girl riders in fluffy skirts and horses and more horses and more of everything than the mind and eye can follow.

Following the parade the circus opened its matinee performance at 2 o'clock to a near capacity crowd, and one of the finest circus programs ever seen here thrilled the big crowd and no doubt the big top will be crowded to capacity for the night show.

Clyde Beatty, Big Favorite.
The lithe young animal king, Clyde Beatty, with 40 new lions and tigers, is this season presenting one of the most dangerous and sensational acts in his career. Armed only with a common kitchen chair, revolver loaded with blanks and whip, he leaps into the big steel arena which seems fairly alive with those roaring, snarling man-eaters, and what this 150-pound young man does not make them do is not in circus calendars. There is not a one of them but what at one time or another has given serious consideration to taking a chunk out of Clyde's anatomy.

And Hoot Gibson—here's a regular fellow whose popularity with the American public seems unbounded. Hoot Gibson has galloped his way to fame and fortune, having starred in over 100 western motion pictures, and this hard-riding cowboy has assembled one of the largest arrays of champion cowboys, cowgirls and Cossacks ever with any circus.

Clyde Beatty's wife, a very pretty, very petite young woman, is not to be outdone by her famous husband. She has an act of her own creation, the celebrated lion, tiger and elephant act—three natural enemies working smoothly together in the arena, the thrilling climax being when she forces the lion and tiger to jump through flaming hoops of fire onto the back of the elephant and ride side by side.

The flying Behees have their following, too. The band stops playing. The audience sits still as a slender young man, high in the dome of the big top, swings himself to a bar 50 feet above ground. Trapeze in hand he stands alert, at the ready, timing the swings of his catcher, hanging head downward far across the tent. Suddenly, the young man swoops in a giant arc to the far stretches of the canvas. Back he beats—up, up, again scraping the canvas. Then a swift swoop, and off the bar into the air, whirling, whirling—two and a half complete somersaults and body twist to a catch—that's Clayton Behees of this famous team, who seems to defy all laws of gravitation, by their seemingly impossible feats on the flying trapezes.

Scores of "thrillers" on the ground and in the air are on the big two-Hobson, king of the riding come-hour program; such names as the Riding Hobsons, featuring Homer Hians—four beautiful girls and three agile men bare-back riders. This is the greatest bareback riding act ever brought to this country; the Valers, high and slack wire artists; dainty Cyce O'Dell, premier lady gymnast; the Moreens' feats of strength and skill; the Larkin troupe, head balancers; the Morren's, English teeter-board experts; Esma Wilson and Ella Harris, champion aerial artists; Janita Hobson and Georgia Sweet, solo equestriennes; Major ohn Smith and his ground of imported stallions; Arkansas and his three herds of performing elephants; the Flying Ballet Plastique, whole top being filled with beautiful girls lavishly costumed doing thrilling feats on the swinging ladders and trapezes; and over two score other features by champions in their respective lines—clowns, well, the circus man tells us that there is a small army of funny fellows, headed by the famous Otto Grebbling, Paul Jerome, Joe Lewis.

Greenville fans will witness the same show today that thrilled and amazed over a half million people in New York City during their 25-day spring engagement and 17-day run in the huge stadium in Chicago and their tour which has taken them through New England, Canada, mid-west and now on their way to the south-west and west coast.

No "ifs," no "ands," no "whens"—you have been waiting for it—here it is, the famous Robbins circus, with Clyde Beatty and Hoot Gibson, giving its last performance tonight at 8 o'clock.

No Need to Leave Comfort of Porch To Tune Radio With Mystery Control

It is now possible to tune the radio from a different room, from any remote point in the house, from the porch, from a seat under the trees, all without a wire, as a result of the most amazing invention since radio itself came into being. This remote control of the radio is exercised with the little box shown on the knees of the young lady in the porch swing. It is known as Philco Mystery Control because it tunes the radio, changes stations, controls the volume, or shuts it off entirely by the mere flick of a finger on the dial. Engineers call it the device that will revolutionize radio and radio listening. It is remote control to the nth degree, and operates without wires.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Sabre rattling in Europe sounded less menacing to Wall Street today and the stock market took courage to extend its recovery move briskly. Gains of one to around four points were posted throughout the list in lively forenoon buying spurts particularly at the opening. The forward march halted after midday for a time, but was resumed toward the finish. Transactions approximated 1,200,000 shares.

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened 10 to 13 higher on more favorable European developments and trade and foreign buying.

The tone held steady with prices at net gains of nine to 12 points shortly after the first half hour. December by that time had reacted from 7.97 to 7.93.

December sold up to 7.97 by midday, when the list was 12 to 15 points net higher.

Futures closed 19 to 22 higher. Spot nominal, middling 8.25.

FUNDS SOUGHT BY DEMOCRATS

Financial Status of State Party Said to Be at Low Ebb

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Sept. 19.—State Democratic headquarters have been opened here on the mezzanine floor of the Sir Walter, but according to State Chairman Gregg Cherry and Secretary David Livingston Ward there isn't money enough in the party's till to keep things going even a short time.

As a result the very first job to be tackled by headquarters is a campaign to raise money from the faithful from all parts of the state. Wherefore a stenographer is being put to work writing to the good Democrats of North Carolina urging them to kick in with the news of war.

Except for the fact that it seems a good old custom to open headquarters each general election thereby giving some of the deserving—or influential, at least—a chance to draw salaries during the campaign, there appears to be pressing need for a Democratic organization for this fall's balloting. This despite the fact that G.O.P. Senatorial Candidate Charlie Jonas concedes himself an outside chance to beat Bob Reynolds, and some other disciples of Republicanism—notably Jake Newell and some others of the Charlotte old guard—openly disagree with Charlie claiming he is by far too modest in his predictions.

But whether necessary or not, headquarters are open and will remain so until the November balloting. It will give politicians somewhere to loaf when they come up to Raleigh to see what's going on.

Incidentally, a part of the headquarters is to be occupied by advocates of a four-year term for sheriffs—a proposal to be voted on as a Constitutional amendment this fall. State Senator John D.

In 1938, only the three lowest priced cars out-sold Buick nationally—although there are 14 cars priced lower than Buick—that's why we say Buick "Looks Fine for '39!"

Larkins of Jones county, will head up this organization. There seems to be no real opposition to the four year plan. But the voters of North Carolina have formed a long standing habit of beating all proposed changes in the organic law, and so proponents are taking no chances of losing through sheer inertia.

Too Tired to Stir? Operate Radio by Mystery Control

The most revolutionary invention since radio itself came into being, Philco Mystery Control has taken the country by storm. Above the little control box is being operated at a distance from the radio. Not being operated by wires the Mystery Control box can be carried to any part of the house, or outdoors, and by a flick of the finger on the dial any station can be tuned, the volume controlled, or the radio silenced. The amazing device is attuned to the radio it is operating, cannot be interfered with nor will it interfere with any other radio, and represents a completely new method of remote control.
