CHAMBERLAIN STATES STAND ON SITUATION

Would go to Germany If any Good Would Be Derived

DECLARES HE HAS DONE ALL HE CAN

Says Sympathy For Smaller Nation Should Not Involve Empire in War

London, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain declared tonight that "we can not undertake to involve the whole of the British empire in war, however much we may sympathize with a small nation."

The Prime Minister had declared he would not hesitate to take a third trip to Germany if he thought it would do any good, but at the moment "I can see nothing further that I can usefully do in the way of mediation."

"If I were convinced that any nation had made up its mind to dominate the world by force I should not hesitate to resist it," the Prime Minister said in a broadcast from 10 Downing street.

"But I shall not give up my hope for a peaceful solution."

At the beginning of his speech he told the world: "Tomorrow Parliament is going to meet and I shall be making a formal statement of the events which have led up to the present critical situation. An earlier statement would have been impossible while I was flying backwards and forwards across Europe and the position was changing from hour to hour."

"But today there is a lull for a brief time and I want to say a few words to you men and women of Britain and perhaps to others as well."

"I have done all that one man can do to halt this war."

"Tomorrow I shall be making a full statement of events which have led up to the anxious present situation."

Mrs. Eva Fleming Suit Being Heard

The case of Eva Fleming vs. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank et al. was started in Superior court today with indication it would continue at least all of the day.

The plaintiff is seeking to prohibit the sale of a tract of land by the Land Bank. Appearing for the plaintiff is Julius Brown, while J. B. James, J. C. Lanier and J. W. H. Roberts of Greenville and J. S. Patterson of Durham appear for the defendant.

Paul Morris yesterday was awarded $350 property damage and $150 personal damage from the Service Distributing company of Wilson. The complaint grew out of a wreck between an automobile driven by the plaintiff and a truck operated by an employee of the defendant.

Plenty of Noise But Slight Blaze Monday

When a tobacco hoghead upset the alarm mechanism at the Ficklen Tobacco Company yesterday afternoon, the aged "fire horn" in the city became twisted and local residents were unable to determine just where the possible fire could be.

The firemen knew, so they sped to the tobacco company, but found no blaze to subdue. Later in the afternoon, a power transformer in a radio at the home of Paul Hill on Evans street burned out and firemen were summoned. Only slight damage was done, however.

$25.30 Average

An average price in excess of $25 per hundredweight was struck for the first time this season yesterday as the Greenville tobacco market experienced its best day of the season, good quality selling as high as $60.

To use the words of persons familiar with the situation, "tobacco really went to town yesterday." Yesterday's sales put an additional $403,918.52 in the pockets of farmers selling their product on the Greenville market. Offerings totaled 1,596,230 pounds.

Yesterday's figures brought the season's offerings to 23,749,636 pounds, sold for $5,152,882.52, or an official general average of $21.70 per hundredweight.

Warehousemen Order By Judge Impound Taxes

Blue Beard Victim?

In a shallow grave near San Antonio, Texas, officers found the dismembered body of a girl tentatively identified as Hazel Brown (above), 22. That spurned them in their search for five other missing women, four of whom were employees of Joe D. Ball, a tavern keeper. Officers said a tavern suicide while they questioned him regarding Miss Brown's disappearance.

MUCH ACTIVITY AT ECTC TODAY

General Assembly Is Held Wright Bldg. For Newcomers

East Carolina Teachers College was flourishing with activity today, especially this afternoon when students entering college for the first time were getting the feel of the campus and transacting pre-entrance business matters.

Preceded by a luncheon, this year's freshmen assembled in the Robert H. Wright Memorial auditorium this afternoon at 2:35 for their first general group session. Dean Taber conducted the group singing.

Dr. L. R. Meadows, president of E. C. Teachers College, in delivering his welcome address, pointed out the friendly relationship of faculty members toward students and offered the co-operation of the faculty in working out student problems.

Faculty members for the ensuing year were introduced during the general session this afternoon at 3 o'clock and the faculty council session was explained by Dr. Howard J. McGinnis, college registrar.

Following division conferences with advisers and faculty of primary, grammar and high school, a tour of the campus was conducted under the supervision of student officers.

Another general freshman assembly is scheduled to be held in the auditorium tonight at 7:30. During this session, the following topics will be discussed: student's relationship to the treasurer; student's relationship to the registrar and choice of curricula. College songs and yells, and introduction of student and introduction of dormitory officers are also on tonight's program.

Nine Face Charges Of Making Liquor

Durham, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Three Durham men, Leroy Medlin, Aubrey Goss and Felton Poe, pleaded guilty in Federal court here today to charges of conspiracy to defraud the United States Government of liquor taxes. Nine Beaufort county defendants in the alleged "million dollar ring" case entered pleas of "not guilty."

Trial of the case opened following denial by Judge Johnston Hayes of a defense motion that the indictments be quashed on the ground that the indictments were returned in Greensboro, in the middle district, while the alleged blacking occurred in Beaufort county, in the eastern district, and further that two indictments were brought for the same offense.

July, now the seventh month of the year, was the fifth month during the Roman Empire. The month was named in honor of Julius Caesar who was born in it.

Jurist Defers Hearing Suit Testing Constitutionality of Federal Farm Control Act Until Oct. 11; Order Effective Meanwhile

Raleigh, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Judge W. C. Harris in Wake Superior court today issued an order continuing until October 11 a hearing on a suit to test the constitutionality of the Federal farm control act, but ordered all tobacco warehousemen in the state immediately to start impounding tobacco tax penalties they collect.

The judge said his order was issued on his own motion without objection of either side to the suit, and had the effect of a temporary injunction, though the hearing on October 11 would be on the issue of whether a temporary injunction should be issued.

His continuance order set forth that there were 250 to 300 defendants in 27 counties named in the suit and that it was deemed wise to give them an additional two weeks in which to take action to protect their interests.

He directed, however, that all collections of tax penalties for tobacco sold in excess of quotas, whether collected by persons named by parties to the suit or not, should be withheld from remittance to the secretary of agriculture and kept in separate accounts by the collectors.

Clinic Attendance Sets New Record

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt county health officer, said today that attendance at the maternal and infant clinic held at Pitt General Hospital yesterday afternoon was the largest in the history of maternal and infant clinics in the county.

Dr. Ennett said that antepartum cases included two white and 17 Negro patients. There were eight postpartum cases, all of which were Negroes. Twelve Negro babies and no whites were in attendance. The combined attendance was 39 patients.

Another maternal and infant clinic was being held this afternoon at the local hospital from 2 until 5 o'clock. A similar clinic will be held in the office of Dr. C. H. Spiggle at Grimesland tomorrow. Maternal and infant clinics were held in Ayden and Farmville last week.

All mothers who are unable to provide the services of a private physician are eligible to attend the clinics.

Chorus Organized By Local People

Good attendance was reported at an organization meeting of the Greenville Symphonic Chorus held last night at 8 o'clock in the music room of Sheppard Memorial Laboratory, but election of officers was deferred until next Monday night.

H. A. McDougle, Miss Ona Shunder and E. O. Parkinson, Jr. were chosen to nominate major officers and will report their selections at the ensuing meeting. Officers to be selected are president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer.

Efforts are being made to get the music program under way as soon as possible. The Eastern Carolina Symphonic Chorus has invited the membership of the local unit and the offer will become valid some time in the near future.

Charges Are Brought In Minor Local Wreck

Officer W. L. Brewer of the Greenville police force booked B. N. Worthington and S. J. Roberts on charges of operating a motor vehicle in a careless manner following an accident on Church street yesterday.

H. B. Drum, desk sergeant, said that only slight damage was realized in the accident. Neither of the drivers sustained injuries. The charges will likely be aired in the regular Friday morning session of city recorder's court.

Son of County Jailer Not One Convicted

County Jailer W. G. Leggett explained today that the William Leggett convicted in City court yesterday of carrying concealed weapons was not his son, also named William.

"I know it was not my son, for he has been home in bed sick," said the jailer, adding that a number of people had mentioned the court record to him.

NEW HOPE FOR AVOIDING WAR SEEN IN TALKS

Sir Horace Wilson Of Britain Visits Adolf Hitler Today

SECOND MEETING LAST TWO DAYS

Believed Envoy Had Something Concrete To Discuss with the German Fuehrer

Berlin, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Another visit by Sir Horace Wilson to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today raised new hopes of a warless solution of Germany's demands on Czechoslovakia.

The meeting, the second between Hitler and British Prime Minister Chamberlain's emissary in two days, fulfilled the hope expressed by President Roosevelt that negotiations not be broken off.

It was believed Sir Horace had something concrete and constructive to talk about in the half-hour he spent with Hitler.

That was Chamberlain's conciliatory statement on Hitler's speech yesterday and particularly his offer that Britain would guarantee that Czechoslovakia carry out her part of the Sudetenland agreement provided Germany refrain from force.

Sir Horace took off by airplane for London from the airfield at 1:45 p. m. (7:45 a. m. EST), after seeing Hitler. He was expected to arrive at Heston airfield about 5:15 p. m.

The British emissary was accompanied by the chancellor by Sir Neville Henderson, British ambassador to Germany, and an embassy secretary.

He was reported to have pleaded eloquently that where such a far-reaching agreement in principle has already been reached over the Sudetenland, the world should not be plunged into war merely because of differences of putting it into effect.

Emphasizing that they could not speak for Hitler, some commentators intimated that they thought Chamberlain's offer pointed a way out of the impasse.

They felt both Hitler and President Benes of Czechoslovakia accepted this British guarantee there would be no necessity for Germany to seize the Sudetenland next Saturday by force of arms.

Responsible German sources, however, made no secret of their displeasure at the British-French-Russian stand supporting Czechoslovakia.

Funeral Thursday for Martin Woman

Mrs. Bettie Ann Malloy, 60, died at 8:15 this morning at her home in Martin County near Flat Swamp Church. Funeral services will be conducted from the Robersonville Baptist church at 2:30 Thursday afternoon by her pastor Rev. E. C. Shoe. Burial will follow in Robersonville cemetery.

Active pall bearers will be Cleve Taylor, Clayton Teel, Harvey Roberson and Mr. Simpson, of Robersonville, and Sam and Ben Everett, of near Robersonville.

Mrs. Malloy was born and reared near Danville, Va. About six years ago she moved from Caswell county to Martin County where she has made her home in the Flat Swamp since that time. Besides her husband Thomas A. Malloy, she is survived by four sons, Raymond Malloy, of Pelham, Clyde Malloy of Daavie, Va., Tom Malloy of the homeplace and S. E. M. Malloy, of Stokes Route one, four daughters, Mrs. Essie Cobb route one, Burlington; Mrs. Janie May Kilrman, route one Stokes, Mrs. Alma Boswell, route two, Burlington and Miss Louise Malloy, of the homeplace.

Stacy Will Hear Railroad Dispute

Washington, Sept. 27.—(AP)—President Roosevelt appointed a three-member fact-finding commission today to investigate the wage dispute between railroads and their employees.

Members of the commission are Chief Justice Walter Stacy of the North Carolina Supreme Court, chairman; Professor Harry Mills of the University of Chicago; and Dean James Landis, of the Harvard law school.

Under the railroad labor law they will report within 30 days.

Railroad workers have voted to strike if the carriers insist on a 15 per cent wage reduction proposed for October 1. Because of arbitration machinery contained in the labor law, however, employees could not actually walk out before December 1.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Nearly a million railroad workers—from section hands to streamliner engineers—were committed today to a nation-wide strike this week-end, but presidential intercession, postponing the walk-out, was considered imminent.

The zero hour for 790,000 employees in 18 unions constituting the Railway Labor Executive Association was 6 p. m., Friday, September 30. The 160,000 members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen were ordered to quit work at 12:01 a. m., Saturday.

All of the nation's major railroads were involved in the dispute.

Hitler Outlines Case In Reply To Chief Executive

OFFICIAL MAP ON WHICH HITLER BASED HIS CLAIMS

This topographical map, obtained from Czech sources and sent to this country by radio, is the map that accompanied the final memorandum of Chancellor Hitler to Prime Minister Chamberlain regarding German claims to the Sudeten territory of Czechoslovakia. The area between the boundary and the heavy black line is that which Hitler demanded outright by October 1. The area vertically shaded are those in which he demanded that a plebiscite be held before November 25. Later there came reports from Prague that Czechoslovakia had rejected Hitler's demands.

HITLER REPLY BEING STUDIED

No Comment, However, Forthcoming From President

Washington, Sept. 27.—(AP)—President Roosevelt studied today preliminary to this afternoon's cabinet session, Adolf Hitler's reply to his recent note urging peace on European nations.

Hitler's reply was received at the White House late last night, translated immediately and read by the President.

This afternoon Mr. Roosevelt and his cabinet expected to listen to a broadcast from London by Prime Minister Chamberlain.

Other developments: "The State Department 'strongly advised' Americans to forego travel to Europe."

The department warning was based upon reports reaching here from nearly all sections of Europe that travel there is becoming increasingly difficult.

Delays were being experienced by American citizens, the department said, in obtaining immediate passage home.

The department made an exception to its strong advice "only in case of absolute necessity."

Mayor Calls Meeting Of Aldermanic Board

The Greenville Board of Aldermen will meet tonight to consider, among other things, placing of a roof over the municipal stadium now being constructed on the old Fair grounds property.

The new municipal improvements also are due to be considered. No site has been purchased for the street department yard, storage and garage, but it probably will be located on property adjacent to the water and light plant.

Emergency!

London, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The official Gazette today published a royal decree from King George declaring "a case of emergency exists" and authorizing the calling up of auxiliary air forces for defense.

Earlier Viscount Gort, chief of the imperial general staff, and Marshal Sir Cyril Newall, air chief, conferred with Chamberlain, strengthening the belief that Hitler was obdurate in his "final" demands on Czechoslovakia.

BIG FIRST DAY FOR OLD BELT

Record High Offerings Reported On Various Markets

Winston-Salem, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Opening day offerings of quality tobacco on the Old Belt markets today brought prices averaging between $24 and $25, considerably higher than last year.

Unusually heavy offerings which will take several days to clear were reported by several markets.

A total lot 139,694 pounds sold on the Winston-Salem market in the first hour averaged $25.64, officials announced.

Prices for the better grades showed a tendency to advance. Officials said almost every type of leaf was offered here.

Winston-Salem Tobacco Board of Trade officials estimated more than a million pounds of the weed would be sold here today.

With upwards of a million pounds on the floors at Reidsville at the opening, officials of the market there predicted about 450,000 pounds would be sold during the day.

An unofficial average of prices during the first hour's sale ranged from $25 to $26.

Burlington had the biggest opening day in local tobacco history, all observers generally agreed. Offerings crowding warehouse floors this morning totaled 250,000 pounds, with prices averaging $22 per hundred through high medium grades brought prices averaging over $25.

Early sales at the Roxboro market indicated the leaf would bring about $21 or $22 per hundred. Between 400,000 and 500,000 pounds were offered.

U. S. CITIZENS LOOK TO HOME

Steamship Agencies Besieged With Passage Requests

London, Sept. 27.—(AP)—A peaceful army of Americans—business men, tourists, naturalized immigrants—just ordinary Americans—looked homeward longingly today from all over Europe.

Most of them set out to do something about it. They wanted no truck with the war clouds hanging over the German-Czech border.

From the British Isles, France, Italy, Germany, European Russia and intermediate points came applications for return passages to the United States.

Steamship agencies were besieged in London and Paris lines reported every available space in all classes had been reserved up to October 15.

United States lines officials said they planned to increase the passenger-carrying capacity of their ships by setting up army cots in the salons if necessary to aid the repatriation of Americans aboard.

Preference was being shown women, children and the aged.

FHA Begins New Building Program

Several representatives of the Federal Housing Administration from the Insuring Office located in Greensboro will visit Greenville on Thursday, October 20th, for the purpose of launching the new FHA program under the recent amendments to the National Housing Act, according to Mrs. Cora S. Powell, Chairman of the local Better Housing Committee.

A special conference of all architects, contractors, realtors, lumber dealers, representatives of financial institutions, newspapers and utilities has been scheduled for 7:30 p. m. in Greenville at Pitt County Court House.

The meeting will be confined to discussion of local activities covering an educational program to be launched here under the New Amendments, according to F. H. A. Representatives from the State office in Greensboro, who will be present at the meeting: Round table discussion will be held at the close of the meeting, covering preparation of applications, financial arrangements and local activities.

The public is invited to attend this meeting.

Mother Of Teacher Claimed By Death

Mrs. John Graham of Warrenton, mother of Miss Maria D. Graham of the college mathematics department, died last night at her home at the age of 90.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at Warrenton. Several members of the college faculty here attended the services.

DECLARES WAR UP TO CZECHS

Appeals to President Roosevelt's Understanding, Declaring Review Would Show Germany Not Wanting in Patience or Will to Peaceful Understanding

Berlin, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler carefully marshalled Germany's whole case today in an unusually long communication replying to President Roosevelt's appeal for European peace.

He ended with these words: "It is now solely in the hands of the Czechoslovakia government and not in the hands of the German government to decide whether it desires peace or war."

Hitler appealed to the President's understanding.

"I have the conviction," he wrote, "that if you visualize the entire development of the Sudeten German problem from its beginnings to the present day you will realize that the German government certainly was not wanting in patience or a sincere will to peaceful understanding."

"In London Prime Minister Chamberlain announced he would make a speech broadcast to the world at 8 p. m. (2 p. m. EST)."

He told the President: "I completely and in every way share your views concerning the immeasurable consequences of a European war."

Reviewing the history of the Sudeten Germans and their relations to the Czechoslovakia state, Hitler reminded Roosevelt that Woodrow Wilson himself had proclaimed the principle of self-determination for nations in the famous Wilson "14 points."

Other nations involved in the World War, Hitler said, have accepted the principle as binding on them.

But Germany's faith in accepting this principle was "shamefully betrayed," Hitler observed.

He charged that the victor nations "created a political regime in Europe that reduced the vanquished nations to pariahs stripped of all rights."

The creation of the Czech state, Hitler contended, was the clearest proof of how the victor nations violated the principle of self-determination.

He declared the Sudeten-Germans particularly were adversely affected.

The Czech government, he charged, not only failed to accord the Sudeten Germans their guaranteed rights, but proceeded to "Czechify" Sudetenland.

Arrest Negro Wanted In State Of Virginia

Greenville and Pitt County officers, working with deputies Rowden and Powell of Norfolk county, Va., arrested Gordon Rivers, Virginia Negro, on a charge of breaking and entering this morning around 1 o'clock.

Search for the Negro was started early last night and the arrest was later made in the Maple Cypress community in Craven county. After committing the robbery, the owner of the home that was robbed, Rivers' girl friend to Pitt County. It was by this route that officers were able to make a speedy arrest.

Chief of Police George Clark said the Negro committed the robbery about two weeks ago. He said also that Rivers had recently completed a prison sentence in Virginia.

Christian Science Church.
"Reality" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, Sept. 25.

The golden text was from Psalms 45:6: "Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever; the sceptre of thy kingdom is a right sceptre."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson sermon was the following from the Bible: "But in the last days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of the house of the Lord shall be established in the top of the mountains; and it shall be exalted above the hills; and people shall flow unto it. And many nations shall come, and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths; for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem." (Micah 4:1, 2).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "All reality is in God and His creation, harmonious and eternal. That which he creates is good, and He makes all that is made. Therefore the only reality of sin, sickness, or death is the awful fact that unrealities seem real to human, erring belief, until God strips off their disguise. They are not true, because they are not of God. We learn in Christian Science that all inharmonious of mortal mind or body is illusion, possessing neither reality nor identity though seeming to be real and identical."

Brief Reflections

Jesse Speight went to Tarboro today.

It is less than three months to Christmas.

The tobacco stemmeries are having to work night and day to keep up.

In the bicycle world the tandem furnishes conspicuous evidence that woman is going to the front.

Columbian Dance
The Columbian Club is sending out invitations for their annual dance which will take place in the new Opera House October 19th. A Washington City band has been engaged to furnish music.

Infantile Paralysis
The late summer and early fall months are usual seasons of prevalence for infantile paralysis. It is fitting therefore that we should review what is known of this epidemic disease, and what measures we can take to safeguard ourselves and the community when the disease appears.

As to the specific prevention of infantile paralysis, it must be reported that none of the procedures applied have yielded encouraging results.

No safe and effective vaccine is as yet available. Adult blood and immune serum have not been shown to protect the recipient against the disease. The different chemicals employed as nasal sprays have also proved disappointing.

Lacking a specific preventive, we must depend largely upon prevention of exposure to the disease, early diagnosis and competent treatment.

Poliomyelitis, or paralysis, which is caused by inflammation and withering of the gray matter of the spinal cord, is transmitted mainly by personal contact. The virus cause of the disease does not survive outside of the human body for any length of time.

Infection may be conveyed by persons suffering from an acute typical attack of the disease, by individuals having a mild form of the malady, by healthy persons who have been in contact with infection, and by chronic carriers who have apparently quite recovered from a previous infection.

The virus of poliomyelitis is present in the secretions of the nose and throat, the urine and the stools of the diseased individual.

In the presence of an epidemic it is well to restrict the contacts made between "outside persons" and the younger population. All crowded assemblies should be avoided.

Parents should be alert for every sign suggesting possible illness in their young children. When suspicion has been aroused, the ill child should be put to bed and effectively isolated. A physician should be called.

There is some evidence to show that sick children who are kept strictly at rest fare better than those who are allowed to move about or are subjected to too much handling.

FEW COUNTIES 'ELECTRIFIED'

Eighty Per Cent Of Lighted Farms In 35 Counties

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Sept. 26.—More than 80 per cent of North Carolina's approximately 45,000 electrified farms are located in 35 per cent of the state's counties, while 27 of the state's 100 units have less than five per cent of the electrically served farms, according to J. M. Grainger, engineer of the State Rural Electrification Authority.

Mr. Grainger based these data on figures in his office and the fact that North Carolina's counties follow the national trend along these lines.

In the United States, one-third of the counties have 84.9 per cent of the electrified farms of the nation. In a "middle third" there are 12.9 per cent of the electrified farms; while the bottom third of the country's counties have only 2.2 per cent.

Of the state's 100, there are listed in the "top third" 35 counties, according to "Electricity on Farms," an advertising-boosting publication of the Farm Journal. The same publication puts 38 North Carolina counties in the "middle third" and 27 in the "bottom."

The "top third," says the publication contain 44.2 per cent of the nation's occupied farms, 84.9 per cent of the electrified farms and from them comes 55 per cent of the nation's farm income.

In North Carolina the 35 counties listed in the "top third" are—Alamance, Alexander, Buncombe, Burke, Cabarrus, Caldwell, Catawba, Cleveland, Davidson, Durham, Forsyth, Franklin, Gaston, Guilford, Harnett, Henderson, Iredell, Johnston, Lincoln, Mecklenburg, Nash, Orange, Randolph, Robeson, Rockingham, Rowan, Rutherford, Sampson, Surry, Union, Wake, Wayne, Wilkes, Wilson and Yadkin.

And "Alexander's Ragtime Band" isn't educational—unless your education in Irving Berlin's music has been overlooked; it doesn't instruct you in anything; it isn't morally uplifting; and it doesn't cure anything—except boredom and the blues, sometimes known as the bots.

It used to be a trusty maxim of this business—"There's nothing wrong with the movie industry that good pictures can't cure." The present come-on-and-see campaign is inspired by a realization that something more is needed, some general stir-up of the old public enthusiasm for the screen. But back of it all, that old maxim still holds true.

Last spring when producers were wailing, there was joy to spare at Walt Disney's little plant because "Snow White" hadn't heard about a recession. Later on, the Warners had a grin because "Robin Hood" had hit a bull's eye with his trusty longbow. And "Alexander's Ragtime Band" is well on its way to prove the same thesis, that "Movies are your best entertainment."

Which they are, when they ENTERTAIN. I hope the emphasis will always be on that last word of the campaign slogan.

That will be fine. It will be finer if all these highly touted new flickers turn out to be as fine as they're supposed to be. And I don't doubt that many of them will. I've seen a few that can go down on anybody's must list right now.

On the other hand, I'm thinking like a great many other people that the best way to convince people about their "greatest entertainment" is to make the picture so goldbrainer entertaining that they can't deny it. Get a picture like that, sell it with showmanship, and the public will take care of the rest.

I'm thinking in particular about "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

There's a number that has had one of the smartest of exploitation and advertising campaigns. The campaign brought the people into the theatres, and the picture apparently has lived up to the campaign. I don't know when I've heard so much word-of-mouth advertising on a picture since "Snow White." In any gathering, on street cars, at railroad stations, on the street when people stop to chat, it's "Have you seen it?" or "I tried to get in but there wasn't a seat," or "Gee, it's a swell movie!"

All the movie studios are in on the big "educational" campaign designed to make you—and many others—come and see the new season's flickers. They're telling you that movies are educational; that movies are instructive; that movies are morally uplifting; that movies inspire high ideals; that movies are fine for bunions, corns, chilblains, yellow fever and ptomaine poisoning. A few of the sermons, of course, will stress

Hitler's March Eastward

By MORGAN M. BEATTY (AP Feature Service Writer)

Washington—If you stop at the headlines you'll get the impression that Adolf Hitler is only this year beginning his push to the east—that 20th century dream of all German empire builders.

But if you had been checking the figures piled up by the men who keep tabs on the world's commerce for Uncle Sam, you'd know that Hitler began four years ago to dig the foundation for economic leadership eastward.

These experts have been talking and writing about Hitler's "Drang Nach Osten" (march to the east) for two years. Of course, they don't use that flowery figure of international speech. They simply use commercial facts.

Here's what's been happening: Back in 1934, the year after Hitler ascended to power, he began to turn German eyes again toward south-eastern Europe—as they were in 1914. Eastward, he said, was self-sufficiency; and if you want to win back your place in the sun, you've got to be self-sufficient.

HERE'S WHAT HITLER WILL GET if Sudeten German regions become part of Germany. Note that much of country's industrial, mineral and farm wealth is in the area Hitler has demanded. Czechoslovakia in 1936 produced more than 5,000,000 metric tons of grain; 11,000,000 of hard coal; 1,180,000 of steel. It has more timber than it needs, is one of Europe's richest agricultural countries. Control of it would be a big step forward in Germany's push to the east.

A Balkan Deal

German buyers began to offer higher prices to the Balkan countries for their raw material and foodstuffs. Trade sprang up.

But when it came time to collect the bills in Berlin, the Balkan states discovered they had to spend German money in Germany. Then they learned that Germany would be only too glad to sign up clearing arrangements. In economics that means: You scratch my back and I'll scratch yours. Well, a sale with a string attached was better than no sale at all, so it was a deal.

Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Rumania, Greece, even Italy and Turkey, began to trade more heavily with Germany and sign up on German terms. The three-year period, beginning in 1934 and ending in 1936, tells the story. Rumanian trade increased by one-third, Hungary's went up by half, Yugoslavia's doubled. It was about the same with Turkey, Italy and Greece.

machinery of the nation to a strain, to gain Sudetenland and military command of the strategic mountains surrounding Czechoslovakia on the west and north.

The next step was, to gain more territory and to attempt to exercise closer control over the newly created German sphere of influence. That helps to explain annexation of Austria, with its command over that historic artery of trade—the Danube. It also throws better light on the new Hungary, which may cut off Czechoslovakia from that Danubian valley. And now comes agitation

But at the same time, Germany's trade with free exchange nations, such as the United States, was going down in proportion. Trade with France and the United States was almost halved. Traffic with Russia, Poland, and most important of all—with Czechoslovakia—slowed to a mere dribble.

Why did Germany take this course?

Because (1) Germany desired above all else to establish her own economic and political sphere, and (2) she had no gold (foreign exchange) to spare to buy her way. The Balkan states especially had the raw materials that Germany wanted. They were close to home. They were also having a hard time in the world market because of the hangover from the 1929 depression.

Monkeying With Business

Therefore it was natural to cut off industrial America and France, and more important, over-industrialized Czechoslovakia. What point was there in trading with Czechs, when they, too, were trying to establish their own little industrial empire, almost up against the heart of the great German industrial system?

How did Germany change the stream of her commerce?

Let the department of commerce trade reviewer explain:

"State domination of the national economy has become more distinct. . . . The economic structure follows a certain pattern, one government intervention following or forcing another, with the line of demarcation between politics and economics growing fainter all the time. . . . German economy is being radically reshaped in harmony with the new political structure. . . . Frequently . . . imports of commodities are obtained at an excessive price in exchange for subsidized exports. . . ."

The reviewer was writing that explanation two years ago, long before the world suspected the coming absorption of Austria, and the action against nettlesome little Czechoslovakia. The expert was showing how Germany was willing to lure Balkan business by offering high prices, and pay her own industries a bonus to sell machinery back within the same trading zone, to accomplish that push to the east.

Rumanian oil and wheat, Yugoslavian prunes and dried fruits, Bulgarian lard, all came Germany's way, and she shipped back machinery, precision tools and a thousand and one manufactured articles.

Naturally, as the department of commerce experts explain, this amounted to commercial distortion and subjected the whole economic

PAVING ROADS TO TEST FARMS

Paving Projects Declared to be Distinct Service

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Sept. 26—All roads connecting North Carolina Department of Agriculture test farms with hard-surfaced highways will be paved this year for the first time in the history of the state, Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott said today.

These road paving projects are "a distinct service rendered to the thousands of farmers and others who have, in the past, traveled through mud and dust in their quest for knowledge of how to make themselves better farm men and women," the Commissioner said as he paid a tribute to the State Highway Commission for its action in initiating the projects which will result in paving of all roads to test farms.

Scott was himself largely instrumental in bringing about the decision.

"The tremendous investments the state has in these farms, together with the worthwhile service rendered by research workers at the farms, obviously makes the expenditures for the road work excellent and economically sound, and makes better service to a greater number possible," he said.

Test farms are located at Willard, Wenoona, near Reocoy Mount, at Swannanoa, at Statesville, and at Oxford.

The following roads leading to the farms are now being paved or their paving has been approved, work to start within the next few months:

In Edgecombe—The Cokey road, beginning at State highway No. 43 and running by the Upper Coastal Plain Test Farm near Rocky Mount—4 miles.

In Washington county—The Pike road, beginning at State highway No. 97 and leading to Blackland test farm at Wenoona—nine miles.

In Iredell county—The County road, beginning at State highway No. 90 at the Piedmont test farm property line, near Statesville, and running north through the farm property—approximately one-half mile.

Recent amendments to the Federal duck hunting regulations make allowances for "mistaken identity" in shooting prohibited species like redheads, canvasbacks, buffheads and ruddy ducks.

BRYANT LEADS SPEAKER RACE

Reported to be Gaining Ground Over Two Opponents

Reflector Bureau.

By HENRY AVERILL.

Raleigh, Sept. 26—Victor S. Bryant, Durham's Representative who aspires to be Speaker of the 1939 North Carolina House, has already "in the bag" at least 50 votes in the Democratic caucus, if apparently authentic reports reaching your correspondent are as reliable as they appear to be on the surface.

These reports come direct from a chap who was himself a member of the 1937 House, but who will not be back in 1939, and on their face seem to be about as unbiased as any such reports can be. He's a fellow who gets about the state—all over it, in fact. He says he has talked to most of the men who will compose the 1939 House and calls names as well as numbers in listing the Bryant supporters.

All of which makes interesting conversation and, if the informant's name could be quoted there's no doubt that this piece would make even more interesting reading.

On the other hand, your correspondent has lately heard optimistic reports from the camps of Libby Ward and Bill Fenner, announced contenders for the post. Bryant also wants. The Ward backers are claiming a majority for their man, while Fenner partisans content themselves with predictions that the Rocky Mount legislator will hold a "balance of power" vote which will make him a logical compromise candidate when a deadlock develops.

MEAT MARKET INSPECTION

It has just been announced from the Pitt County Health Department that the State Board of Health Regulations pertaining to Meat Markets is now in the hands of the Sanitary Inspectors.

The last Legislature, realizing the importance from the health standpoint of Meat Market sanitation, put the enforcement of such sanitary regulations under the State Health Department.

Dr. Ennett, Pitt County Health officer, stated today that the score sheets had been handed to Mr. J. H. Moore, County Sanitary Inspector and to Mr. J. T. Welch, City of Greenville Sanitary Inspector, with instructions that they now begin to score all meat markets.

The Health Officer called attention to the fact that while the Sanitary Inspectors inspect the Meat markets from the standpoint of cleanliness and general sanitation, only a Veterinarian is competent to inspect the meat itself. He also stated

THE 'BIGGEST BUSINESS'—TAX COLLECTING

Tax collecting has become a big business in this country.

According to a recent study, the national tax has increased 76 per cent in the past six years. Almost 24 per cent of our total national income is today consumed by branches of government. And, believe it or not, there are more than 175,369 taxing bodies in the United States, with an army of 3,000,000 employees.

Needless to say, this legion of tax gatherers doesn't exist simply to mulct the business or the individual with large means, whose salary or income is in the upper income tax brackets. It exists primarily to tax the little fellow—and to tax him deviously, through hidden, indirect levies assessed against every necessity of life. When you buy a 25-cent tube of toothpaste, you pay six cents in taxes. When you buy a 10-cent loaf of bread, you pay 2 1/2 cents in taxes. When you pay a $40 rent bill, you pay $10 in taxes. So it goes down an endless list.

What it all amounts to is this: If you earn $18 a week and own no taxable property, you still pay $112 a year—12 per cent of your hard-earned wages—in taxes. If you are a white-collar worker with a $150 salary, you pay $220 a year in taxes—which means, to put it another way, that you work a month and a half for government.

Get over the delusion that the rich pay the tax bill. There aren't enough rich—even if every dime they earned were confiscated by government. In 1937, 70 per cent of all tax receipts represented hidden taxes. These are the taxes you pay every day of your life—when you eat a meal, ride in your automobile, go to a movie, buy a shirt and a necktie, or do anything else. More and more of them are being levied each year. So never forget that taxation is your own personal problem, on whose reasonable solution your own welfare is vitally dependent. —(Industrial News Review)

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Sept. 27.—Idly thumbing the pages of Alice in Wonderland your correspondent reached the well known passage "The time has come the Walrus said, to talk of many things—of ships, and shoes and sealing wax; of cabbages—"

And just then Frank Parker, high mogul of the State-Federal Crop Reporting Service, broke in to report that North Carolina's crop of mountain-grown cabbage is now rumbling to market in thousands of trucks which come from every section to get the crisp, succulent vegetables, regarded as the finest grown anywhere in the eastern portion of the United States. This year's crop is estimated at from 25,000 to 30,000 tons.

"These cabbages are grown at an altitude of from 3,000 to 4,000 feet, assuring cool days and nights throughout the summer with an abundance of rain and moisture during the growing season," said Mr. Parker.

The National Safety Council, about to stage its "Silver Jubilee" has a thought-provoking "cacher" stamped on envelopes it is sending out.

"Accidents don't happen—They are caused!"

Recorded Francis D. Winston of Bertie county, will celebrate his 81st birthday Monday, October 3, by announcing from the bench his support of the proposed Constitutional amendment lengthening the term of North Carolina sheriffs to four years.

He has so notified State Senator John D. Larkins, who is in charge of the campaign to win support for the amendment which will be voted on by the people at the November elections.

Just try and get any news out of a Raleigh office this week—it's almost impossible. But you can get any number of opinions on the result of the coming Saturday's game between Carolina and State.

Three reporters gathered outside the door of Charlie Johnson, state treasurer, on Monday. Within there was a meeting of the commission to study limitation of legislative power to enact local laws. Word was sent in to the treasurer "Three news men wait without."

Back came the Johnson secretary with the scribbled query: "Without what?"

"News" was added to the note and it was sent back in, whereupon Mr. Johnson came out, and a conference followed.

But when the treasurer went back in the news men were still just about as "without" as they were before he came out; though they did have this statement:

"We have decided to ask the deans of the law schools of Duke, Carolina and Wake Forest to make a preliminary study and when that is done to have a meeting with the Commission and we will then advise them something definite as to where we want to go."

Did he say "definite?"

North Carolina farmers who sell their peanuts through the Peanut Stabilization Corporation this year will receive a premium over last year on the "better grades of nuts," Randal B. Eberidge, chief of the State Department of Agriculture's Markets Division, says.

W. O. Burgin of Davidson, and at least some members of his legal staff, were in Raleigh Monday, probably preparing for the State Election Board meeting Wednesday. He had nothing to say about the status of the Eighth District Congressional row in which he now appears to be the loser.

Normal Operations in Cadillac Auto Plant

Detroit, Sept. 26.—Faced with one of the largest pre-announcement banks of new model orders in the 36-year history of the company, the Cadillac-LaSalle plant resumed normal operations this week.

"The volume of new car orders in advance of the showing of 1939 models to dealers is a sound sign of continued business recovery," commented General Sales Manager D. E. Ahrens. "Orders far exceed the usual 'stocking' of cars. Hundreds represent actual sales to customers."

"The sale of new cars sight-unseen and based this year on only fragmentary information regarding the importance of engineering and appearance improvements in the 1939 Cadillacs and LaSalle, indicates an upward trend. It is also a gratifying expression of the public's confidence in our reputation for building quality automobiles."

The 1939 Cadillacs and LaSalle, Mr. Ahrens said, will be placed on display at dealer showrooms soon.

"We plan adequately to cover the field with new models before opening our retail campaign," he added. "This is necessary in view of the expanded scope of our 1939 program. Formerly we felt safe from a marketing standpoint, if we had sampled the major markets prior to public showings. Plans for next year especially concerning the LaSalle, make the smaller markets as vital to our success as the larger cities."

Production was resumed at the Cadillac-LaSalle plant with several changes that will improve product manufacturing and inspection processes. Of interest is an enlargement of the final check line, an exclusive function in Cadillac-LaSalle operations that assures all cars leaving the factory in perfect condition.

START PLANS FOR SEAL SALE

It was learned at the Health Department today that Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Chairman of the Tuberculosis Seal Sale was taking steps to organize for this year Seal Sale Campaign. Dr. Ennett commented on the fact that the citizens in general had become so much interested in the control of tuberculosis that he was confident that the Seal Sale this fall would be the most successful ever held in the county.

The Treasurer of the Seal Sale, Mrs. Karl B. Pace, has just released through the Health Department, the expenditures of the Seal Sale Fund for the months of July and August, according to townships, as follows:

ECTC Grid Mentors Try Pre-Game Polish Moves

Several Positions Are Showing Weak Foundation

East Carolina Teachers College Pirate Football squad has a long way to go in order to press the polishing attack desired by the Coaches in Saturday's game. The center berth is still wide open with Rick-fellow Venters and Bill Murner holding slight edge for the position.

The backfield looks much better on offensive play but are incredibly weak in pass defensive as was revealed in yesterday's scrimmage.

The line play is ragged in spots particularly on defensive charge. Walter Rogers and Mel Wagner look good at times on defensive and on offensive but are still weak in tackle assignments. Joe Williams lacks speed in pulling out of the line. One end berth will probably find Joe Hatel, but the other end berth is as yet indefinite. Milton Glass, 6-2 husky from Hopewell, Va., is good on offensive but lacks defensive ability. Ralph Elliott is good on defensive but lacks offensive ability. The problem confronting the coaches now is to find somebody who can do both.

A number one backfield combination will probably find Shelton and Smith at halfback. Ridgman at fullback, and Dandash at quarterback.

Two work-outs daily through Wednesday should find the boys in much better shape for Saturday's game.

The Belmont Abbey team lost four regulars last year and have one of the finest small college teams in the South.

In Calurecha they have one of the finest triple-threat backs in small college football. He passes left handed, is an excellent kicker, and a fine blocking full runner.

In Kuteh and Clement Coach Wheeler has two fine linemen capable of playing a fine offensive and defensive game.

It will be the opening game for both teams and the work of the team will probably decide it.

Plans Are Mapped For Music Session

Miss Ona Shindler of the Greenville high school music department and H. A. McDougall, director of the high school band, have already mapped their plans for participation in the tenth annual State Music Teachers' conference to be held at Woman's College of the University of North Carolina.

Music supervisors, band leaders, choral and orchestra directors, and teachers of instrumental music conduct conferences which open Friday, October 14, and continue thru Saturday, October 15.

Miss Shindler said that she will accompany a mixed quartette from the high school to Greensboro. The quartette will be composed of two boys and two girls, who will learn four numbers. Noble Cain, Chicago one of the leading choral directors of the country, will conduct vocal clinics.

Band Director McDougall said the University of North Carolina band will play numbers on the national music list. The North Carolina list will be compiled from these numbers. McDougall has been named on the committee to select the State music list.

Chapter 44
Into The Fiery Furnace
WE CARRIED Noah More out and laid him on the scorched grass under the orange trees, and he lay there like a dead thing, eyes close, breathing hardly perceptible. Fleuriot dropped on one knee beside him, struck a match, and raised an eyelid.

He turned to Dunning. "Go then to the house, my friend, and see if you can find some brandy."

"See here, man!" said Hugo harshly. "Why all the anxiety about bringing this vermin round? Don't you realize that Miss Willis is in deadly peril, and a minute's delay may mean life or death to her?"

The man from Marselle looked up at him. "My friend," he answered gently. "This Auberge des Allouettes is probably some small unknown inn and without the help of this wretched clod we may never find it."

Dunning had been fumbling in the pocket of his white coat, and now produced a serviceable-looking flask.

I bent over Fleuriot's shoulder, holding my breath, as I watched the putty-colored face on the ground and gradually it seemed to me that a faint tinge of color spread over it. The eyes opened, staring straight upwards at the night sky and the rising moon, and suddenly there came a cough, a choking convulsion, and Noah More sat up and stared about him. He pushed the dark hair from his forehead and then suddenly gave a hoarse cry.

"They shan't get me!" he gasped. "I won't be caught!"

"Steady friend," I said. "Get a grip on yourself. No one's going to hurt you." But a gesture from Fleuriot silenced me.

"There is more here than fear of the police," he murmured, and then to the vagrant: "Who is it, then, 'sh' you fear?"

The tattered object gave him a swift, sideways glance. His eyes were wild, his fingers plucked and wisted at his tattered shirt.

"I don't know," he said, scarcely moving a whisper. "I can't think my brain—there's something the matter with my brain." And then, with a swift, crafty look: "And why should I tell you? If you shan't the police, you have nothing to gain from me."

"You're perfectly right, Mr. More," I retorted. "The police have nothing against you, but I wouldn't say as much for the 'Job des Sans Clubs'."

He gazed at me, his jaw dropped, his face contorted, and then suddenly he threw back his head and screamed.

"You see," I said, while Fleuriot wore softly to himself, "we know all about it, but if you help us, I guarantee that the police will look after you until all danger is past. You saw something last night in the villa of Monsieur Geiss, didn't you?"

He stared up at me with wide, terrified eyes. "I did not see, but I heard and I guessed," he muttered.

"Just so," said I, "you guessed that Geiss had killed Miss Adams, and think you taxed him with it to get money from him before he fled."

To Grips With The Fire
I PASSED a long, bony hand across his eyes. I knew that it was the end of everything," he said. "The Club des Sans Clubs was finished, Geiss was on the run. When I asked him to settle up, he laughed at me and told me I was cheaper and safer for him to report me to the club as a rator who must be exterminated." He smiled a wry, drawn smile, and for a moment I saw a shadow of the man he must once have been. "I cannot blame him," he admitted. "For it was his life against mine. He knew I could testify that he had killed that woman, but he knew too that the club would kill first and ask questions afterwards. If once he said the word 'That club—' he shuddered. 'You do not know what it is!'"

"Listen, man, you know where this Auberge des Allouettes is?" I asked.

He nodded. "But you will never get there," he said. "Geiss might have got through this morning, but now the place must be a red hell."

"Not half as ruddy as we'll make it when we get there," I retorted. "Come on, you've got to show us the way." With Hugo gripping him by the other arm, we half-dragged half-carried him up the steps and across the terrace, and in another minute we were packing ourselves into the Hispano.

Dunning, by virtue of his weight took the place beside Hugo, while Fleuriot and I settled ourselves in the tonneau with the bony form of Noah More wedged between us, and as we swung out of the lane and whizzed off along the highway, I turned curiously to the vagrant.

"One thing," I said, "before life gets too full for words—do you happen to know just how Geiss got hold of Miss Willis?"

He turned soulless, lack-luster eyes towards me. "It was easy," he answered in his toneless voice.

"There is a chambermaid in the Carlton who is a member of the club. Geiss knew that Miss Willis had been absent from the hotel all night, and he instructed this woman to wait in the corridor until she returned and tell her that by her uncle's orders, her room had been changed to one at the back. She accepted this without question, and once she was inside the room, we seized her, gagged her, and led her down the fire-escape at the back to the lane where Geiss's car was waiting. She fought," he added, with a wan grimace, "but Geiss threatened her with a revolver and forced her to do what we wanted."

"We had been running straight to the cape, with the sea on one hand and the illuminated by the reflection from the flaming cape, and on the other quiet, dusky slopes of woodland, but now we had come into the main street of a village. Here, for the first time, we came to grips with the fire, for though the place itself was untouched it was brightly lit; every inhabitant was out in the street talking, gesticulating, or standing in frightened, silent groups, watching the rim of flame that danced along the crest of the ridge above, threatened every moment to sweep over and come crackling down through the pine trees towards us.

"Death To Venture Farther"
THERE were troops too, infantry of the line and Chasseurs Alpins, shirt-sleeved and tint-hatted grimed to the eyes; some lying prostrate by the roadside, sleeping the sleep of utter exhaustion; others refreshed, piling into lorries to return once more to the fruitless struggle. Fleuriot called to a young lieutenant, whose red-rimmed eyes looked glazed with weariness, and after a minute's whispered conversation the lieutenant scribbled something on a card and handed it to him. "Our passport," he explained, as we crawled forward at snail's pace, hooting out way through a mob of people. "The cape is in the hands of the military and after Le Trayas the road will be closed—even to me, unless we have permission."

We came to Le Trayas, where the thoroughfare was a milling mob of frightened, hysterical people and where bayoneted sentries at the further end barred all egress. But the lieutenant's card was a magic token and we sailed through.

The fire might have been a hundred miles away, for the brows of the hills shut off the fiery glow but suddenly, rounding the bend, we came full into an inferno of blinding, glaring heat. A wind like the opening of an oven door struck at our faces; glowing sparks bit our naked arms and faces, and our eyes were further and further blinded by the glare of light from a valley of sheer flame, lying directly below us. Troops were hacking away at undergrowth, felling trees.

Straight ahead a tall fellow that I took to be an officer raised a warning hand, checking our progress.

"Out of the question," he said sharply as Fleuriot bent and whispered to him. "The valley is impassable. I can let no one through."

Fleuriot turned quickly to Noah More. "Is there any other way to the inn?" he demanded, and the scarecrow shook his head.

"There is no other way," he muttered. "It is the right-hand fork at the bottom of the valley that runs up to the hills."

Again the detective leaned out whispering, and this time I fancied that he told something of our errand for the officer gave us a curious, commiserating look as he slowly shook his head.

"It would be death to venture farther," he said. "I feel for you messieurs, but one can only hope that the fire has not yet reached the inn. If it escapes during the night by tomorrow it may be possible to get through."

Fleuriot looked at me. "You hear?" he said; but there was more in his resignation in his tone, and even as he spoke, Hugo swung round, his face, illumined by the ruddy glow, showed hard and drawn and his jaw was set. "You others must do as you please," said he, "but for myself I'm going through."

Fleuriot gave a short cackle of satisfaction. "You see," he murmured regretfully. "We are willing to take the risk, and the responsibility is not yours, for I am an officer of the law, in pursuit of a dangerous madman who is also a murderer, and these gentlemen are, for the moment, my assistants. I fear that, in this case, my authority overrides yours."

The other hesitated for a moment, and then his hard, smoke-grimed face broke into a smile. "I compliment your courage, messieurs," said he, "and I wish you luck!"

At a word of command from him men came running with wet cloths which we wrapped round our faces, leaving only the eyes and nostrils free, and at the last moment some inventive genius dashed up from the cottage with a water-soaked sheet which we bound about the radiator of the car. In an instant we were off shooting down the long, curving slope, straight into the fiery furnace below.

GHS Gridmen To Open '38 Season Here Friday

Mentors Prime Hopes With Severe Practice Tactics

By "SMUT" BURKS
Thirty-five grid aspirants of Greenville high school jumped into their playing togs early this month, and since that time have been "put through the mill" by Bo Farley, head coach, and Herman Fulkerson, assistant coach.

The first few days were limited only with limbering up exercises, Assistant Coach Fulkerson, who matriculated at Eastern Kentucky Teachers College, is supervising activities on the line. Coach Farley has charge of the backfield division.

For the most part, the boys are now in good condition as an outgrowth of three weeks of concentration on the fundamental points of the favorite American winter sport. These fundamentals include blocking, tackling, kicking and passing. The squad, thirty-five strong, is now polishing up for the plays for the last few days before they engage in the initial contest of the present season. Plymouth high school will collide with the locals on Friday afternoon of this week, September 30.

Seating accommodations at Third street stadium have been improved during the year and are in better condition and more comfortable than last year. Game time is 3:30 o'clock.

Coach Farley is well-pleased with the team's showing during the pre-game practice. Although only seven lettermen, Wayland Tucker, Earl Kittrell, George Tyndall, Leslie Babeock, Charles Williams, Claude Hardy and John Vincent are on the squad, the other members are working hard and are showing up good considering the fact that the majority of them are unexperienced.

Edgar Gibson, 17-pounder, formerly of Albany, Ga., is holding down one of the end positions and is expected to be one of the most stalwart defenders of the line. Outstanding line play is also expected from Tucker, Kittrell, Paul Scott, Hardy, Russell Rozerson, Larry James and Vincent. Tyndall, speedy wing back, and Marvin Stocks, triple-threat full-back, are expected to be the main ground-gainers for the Green Phantoms. J. B. Kittrell, Ford McGowan, John Laurens, Dick Paul, Allen Taylor and Bill Moore are doing the work in the backfield, and will be plenty of action.

The first string line is only fairly heavy, averaging 170 pounds. The backfield is rather light, averaging only 140 pounds. Farley and Fulkerson do not prophesy anything for the coming season, but are hopeful for a successful one. If the team will fight with all its heart during every game, the coaches will be satisfied. As a whole, the reserves are better than those of previous years, including several first class line reserves and backfield substitutes.

The probable lineup for Friday's game is as follows: Ends—Gibson 170 and Larry James 150; tackles—Earl Kittrell 185 and Hardy 170; guards—Tucker 155 and Vincent 210; center—Williams 150; quarterback—Ford McGowan 122; halfback—Tyndall 140 and Jack Kittrell 145; fullback—Stocks 155.

The Governor's Stand Spurs Antis to Increased Efforts

Raleigh, Sept. 26.—Action of Governor Clyde R. Hoey in taking a firm stand in opposition to a Constitutional amendment banning diversion of gasoline tax money to other than highway uses was the first major reverse proponents of such an amendment have met in their campaign; but all signs point to intensification, rather than abatement of the anti-diversion drive for change in the state's organic law.

Quite naturally, none of the anti-diversionists is going to make any open attack on the Governor. The strategy will be to ignore the High Point speech as far as any formal reply is concerned, but to continue the organization tactics which have carried the anti-diversion forces to the very brink of success.

Even a casual glance over the roster of prospective 1939 General Assembly shows a very strong nucleus of anti-diversionists. There will be, for one thing, at least three—possibly many more—members of the House who make their living out of the petroleum industry. There's Croyan C. Efrid from Stanley, president of the N. C. Association of Truck Owners. There's Charles B. Park, Jr., from Wake; and there's Ashby Robinson from McDowell—both gasoline and oil dealers.

These men were actively supported by every legitimate aid and comfort the petroleum industry could give them. There are many other legislators who were similarly backed up their announced intention to favor an anti-diversion amendment.

Despite the Governor's cry that "it's as much a catastrophe to close a school as a road," there's going to be extremely strong anti-diversion sentiment in the 1939 General Assembly.

And the anti-diversionists are not going to quit just because the Governor isn't with them. Keep an eye on the activities of State Senator S. Gilmer Sparger, who is now heading the Petroleum Industries Committee.

GATHERING JUNK KEEPS CARTMEN OFF RELIEF ROLLS

Chicago (AP)—Chicago's pushcart men, lean and in tatters, don't accept relief as long as their junk-collecting business nets them from 35 to 60 cents a day.

The army of "pushcart" men has grown to such proportions as to attract attention.

Day and night more than 5,000 of these men struggle through streets and alleys, piling their carts high with junk, mostly boxes and old paper.

The carts are looted from central junk yards. Paper bins, the best priced—15 cents per 200 pounds for ordinary paper and 15 cents per 100 pounds for the corrugated stuff.

A good hauler can make from 35 cents to 60 cents a day. One said there are lots of men with trades gathering up paper these days. They make barely enough to keep body and soul together—most important of all—it keeps them off relief.

Technology is the science of foot-prints, and treats of the impression made in mud or sand by the animals of former ages.

$431,801 SENT N. C. FARMERS

Checks Mailed For Cotton Price Adjustments

Raleigh, Sept. 27.—Checks totaling $431,801 had been mailed to North Carolina farmers by September 17 on 4,179 applications for cotton price adjustment payments. E. Y. Floyd, AAA executive officer at State College, announced today.

He added that 16,241 applications had been received up to that date, and that thousands more are coming in daily from over the State. Each application covers one farm, and in cases where there are several tenants on a farm, all come under the same single application.

The payments are on the 1937 crop and are based on the difference between 12 cents a pound and the average price of 3/4 inch middling cotton on the 10 spot markets on the day each bale was sold. Three cents a pound was the maximum amount set, and the average is expected to run close to 29 cents a pound.

The payments are being made on 80 per cent of the 1937 base cotton production for each farm; that is, the actual acres planted plus the acreage considered as being diverted from cotton under the agricultural conservation program.

The AAA has $130,000,000 for making cotton adjustment payments over the southern cotton belt, and a grand total of 1,400,000 applications covering 2,400,000 farmers are expected. North Carolinians will get their part of these payments in the same ratio that North Carolina's crop bears to the total crop.

The Federal Bureau of Fisheries added 7,822,000,000 fish to the streams and lakes of the U. S. in fiscal 1938, slightly less than the previous year.

DOG KEEPS GOING ROUND AND ROUND

Omaha, Neb.—(AP)—Dan Griffin's little black dog keeps going around and around to the left faster and faster until it has to rest so it can go around again.

Unless the dog is tied up it spends its walking hours going around. It starts slowly and picks up speed until it makes 50 revolutions a minute. And it keeps this up for several minutes, then rests and starts again.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grosser

Washington—If a general war engulfed Europe, the important historical question of its exact opening date may never be answered.

Will history say it began with Mussolini's invasion of Ethiopia or Hitler's occupation of the Rhineland in 1936? Franco's challenge to loyalist Spain in that same year? Hitler's occupation of Austria in 1938? Or some memorable date like Chamberlain's visit to Hitler?

The historian's problem arises from that strange practice... about first, and declare war when it suits, if at all.

Civil wars within a nation long have started without any declarations, including the Spanish revolution, and our own war between the states.

Until the turn of the century, a declaration of war was a patriotic thrill. In ancient Rome they gave themselves over to a complete enjoyment of histrionics before the opposing armies fell on each other.

emissary unruffled his toga and politely declared his host was a pain in the neck. Then everybody went home to buckle on his sword.

Today China and Japan are locked in a war a year old, and neither has hinted a declaration of war ever will be made.

In the past half century, the advent of modern war machinery had the effect of outmoding the practice of declaring war. The nation taking the offensive found it almost necessary to surprise the enemy.

Probably the last great war which was formally declared all along the line before hostilities began was the Franco-Russian war of 1870. Both armies waited for a declaration of war. Even so, the German general staff had gone so far as to map out its mobilizations and army movements in advance. Germany won, by and large, because of advance preparation.

Then Came The Maine

In our own Spanish-American war in 1898 congress was caught off base by the sinking of the Maine, and was forced to content itself with recognizing on August 25 that a state of war had existed for four days. In this country, Congress has to make it legal.

The next big conflagration was the Russo-Japanese war of 1905. A strategic naval battle had been fought and won by Japan's heroic Admiral Togo two days before war was declared.

The World war was little different. True, Austria declared war on Serbia. But the great powers were hiding their strategy and declarations would have given them away. The German army invaded Luxembourg two days before a declaration of war against France. France and Great Britain likewise were moving into battle formations before they got around to formal statements.

When we entered the World war, congress had a difficult time making up its mind, and when it did (on April 6, 1917, the lawmakers decided to recognize the existence of a war that Germany had started against the United States months before.

This change in custom has played havoc with international law built up through centuries. A country declaring war is supposed to have certain belligerent rights, such as legal blockades, and the like. Neutrals have certain rights of free passage on high seas. A violator of these rights is supposed to be subject to damages.

Modern practices seem to have scrambled all that, despite Secretary of State Hull's appeal to reason and lawful procedure. The big objective of a war-bent nation today is always concealed, every invasion must appear to be a defense of national honor.
