CANTON DRIVE BY JAP FORCES NEARING GOAL

Preparations Hurried To Evacuate Women, Children

ARMY OF 40,000 DRAWING CLOSER

Municipal and Provincial Governments To Be Moved Further Inland from Canton

Hongkong, Oct. 14—(AP)—Preparations were hurried today to send 400,000 women and children and the municipal and provincial governments into the interior from Canton as a new Japanese force of 40,000 moved closer to that South China metropolis.

The invading army captured a point 12 miles from Bias bay, where it landed Wednesday and was reported striking due west in a 20-mile drive to cut the important Canton-Kowloon railway at a point about 20 miles from the borders of this British crown colony.

Incessant bombing and shelling left the captured place in ruins. Invaders drove relentlessly toward the important garrison city of Waichow, 82 miles east of Canton.

Chinese resistance improved as the Japanese columns moved steadily inland, but the invaders' airplanes and artillery were being used with crushing force.

With the destruction of a long wood bridge about 15 miles north of Hangkong, Canton was cut off completely except for the highway to Waichow and a water route to a Portuguese colony 70 miles south of Canton.

Blackout Observed Here Considered Big Success

Local officials of the "black-out" observed here last night in connection with the anti-aircraft maneuvers being conducted in Eastern North Carolina, reported today that merchants and homes "cooperated wonderfully, almost 100 per cent," but the lighted clock atop the court house and automobile headlights diminished the efficiency of the experiment.

FIND WARNING NET EFFECTIVE

Fort Bragg, Oct. 14—(AP)—A civilian warning net, functioning with military precision after four days and nights of exercises, today enabled pursuit squadrons defending this base to intercept two bombardment flights attacking from the Atlantic ocean.

The ability of such a civilian setup to provide information sufficient to permit accurate interception of bombardment missions is regarded by high officers as one of the most important developments of a week of air defenses exercises here.

Absence of clouds interfered somewhat with today's problem, which originally had been planned on a basis of earlier forecasts to test the ability of the ground observers to supply pursuit aviation with information which would enable it to intercept bombers trying to find concealments behind clouds.

A display of field artillery equipment has been ordered for this afternoon, with the second battalion, fourth field artillery, exhibiting the new 75mm. pack howitzer, developed especially for mountainous terrain. This weapon is said to have an accurate range of 9,000 yards.

MAN ARRESTED IN SEX MURDER

Ft. Wayne, Ind., Man Accused in Assault and Slaying

Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 14—(AP)—Detective Captain John Taylor said early today a H. Miller, 32, had confessed the sex slaying of Alice May Gorton, 17, pretty brunette business college student.

Miller lived in the same rooming house as Miss Gorton, just across the hall from where the girl's nude and ravaged body was found early yesterday. Her own bloomers stuffed down her throat to strangle her.

Capt. Taylor said Miller told him he waited until he heard Howard Zimmerman, 18, of Riga, Mich., leave the girl's room and then went and knocked on the door.

He quoted Miller as saying Miss Gorton objected, but the man forced his way in, seized a pillow from the bed, smothered her with it and then assaulted her.

DEFENSE NEEDS BEING STUDIED BY ROOSEVELT

Estimate of Budget for Next Year Held Up, Meanwhile

WEED GROWERS MAY VOTE SOON

Referendum on Marketing Quotas For 1939 Considered Being Held Dec. 10

Washington, Oct. 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today he was making an entirely new study of the nation's national defense needs and that until it was completed he could not estimate next year's budget.

The President told a press conference he could not comment on the new budget because new technical developments and national defense measures required a complete re-study of defensive requirements.

He said the reason for the re-assessment of these needs began to shape about a year ago because of information coming in in connection with world events. He said the question was forced to a head in the past month. In response to a question, he said the new information was of a technical, rather than of a political nature.

Asked about yesterday's statement by B. M. Baruch, chairman of the World War Industries Board, that America was unprepared for war because of lack of sufficient first-class equipment, the President said he had not read the statement.

Also, the President said the action of the Electric Bond and Share Company in saying it would file a plan to comply with the Holding Companies act's so-called "death sentence" provision was very gratifying.

He said that the action announced yesterday at a stockholder's meeting by C. E. Groesbeck, chairman of the board, illustrated exactly what he meant last week when he asked that business cooperate with the government and stop name-calling.

Flue-cured tobacco growers may vote December 10 on whether they want a 1939 marketing quota.

That is the date of the cotton control referendum and William Collins, chief of the AAA tobacco section, said it was probably the tobacco poll would be held then because a duel election would facilitate the voting.

The flue-cured tobacco poll will be taken in Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama.

The marketing quotas for flue-cured tobacco were under attack this year in the courts.

Jury Selected In Spy Ring Hearing

New York, Oct. 14—(AP)—A jury of 10 men and two women was chosen in an hour and a half today for the Federal Government's trial of three persons accused of being members of a spy ring which sold U. S. military secrets to a foreign government.

The jury was chosen after G. O. Rumrich, former U. S. army sergeant, a fourth defendant, had unexpectedly changed his plea from innocent to guilty.

Federal Judge John Knox deferred sentence until after the trial. Rumrich will testify for the Government, his counsel said.

Rumrich, alleged by the Government to have stolen a military aviation code, was a native of Chicago and the son of German parents. He deserted from the army in 1935.

HUNGARY WILL EXPAND ARMS

Decides to Take Further "Measures for Security"

Budapest, Hungary, Oct. 14—(AP)—The Hungarian cabinet announced today it had decided to take "further measures for the military security of the country" and said heavily armed Czechoslovakia had attempted to exert pressure on Hungary in the dissolved Komarom conference.

The announcement came after an all night cabinet session in which ministers sought means to obtain from Czechoslovakia Hungarian populated territory which Hungary is demanding.

Shortly after the announcement was issued 500 students of the university of Budapest staged a demonstration, demanding arms to fight Czechoslovakia.

The demonstrators chanted: "Horthy-Duce" there was no coupling of the name of Adolf Hitler with Hungary's regent, Admiral Nicholas Horthy as there had been at previous gatherings.

The cabinet's communique asserted that Czechoslovakia had mobilized men up to 60 years of age.

PREPARE OPEN BIG FAIR HERE

Many Attractions To Be Offered at Pitt Exposition

GERMANY GETS CZECH PLEDGE REMAIN LOYAL

Minister Assures Hitler Attitude Will Be Adopted

TWO CONFER ON MANY PROBLEMS

Fuehrer Said to Have Expressed Desire To See Hungarian Question Solved

Munich, Oct. 14—(AP)—An official German announcement said today that F. Chvalkovsky, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, had given Reichsfuehrer Hitler assurances that Czechoslovakia in the future will adopt "a loyal attitude" toward Germany.

The announcement some some two hours after Hitler had received the Czech envoy at the scene of the historic Munich conference which two weeks ago set the seal on Czechoslovakia's dismemberment at Hitler's behest.

The official account of the meeting said Hitler had expressed profound regret that the question of Czechoslovakia's Hungarian minority had not been solved yet and had told the envoy he hoped an amicable solution, of this problem soon would be found.

Informed circles said Hitler, in his 90-minute conversation with the Prague envoy, "took occasion to discuss all questions involving both states."

The envoy planned to leave Munich for Prague this afternoon.

The Komarom conference, in which Hungary sought from a Slovak delegation representing Prague satisfaction of her demands for Hungarian-populated areas of Slovakia, broke up yesterday without agreement and Hungary announced she would take her case to the four powers of the Munich accord.

NIGHT COUGHING CAN OFTEN BE PREVENTED

If your child often coughs at night because of even a slight cold—do this at bedtime: Thoroughly massage Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest, and back. VapoRub's positive-vapor action tends to keep the air-passages clear, helping to maintain normal breathing through the nose, and so reducing mouth-breathing (the frequent cause of night coughs). Try it tonight—learn for yourself another reason why VapoRub is a family standby in more homes than all other medications of its kind put together.

PIRATES SHOW NEW PROGRESS

Several Players Elevate Their Playing Technique

Various members of the Pirate football aggregation continue to show marked improvement, with several slated to clinch certain berths for a longer period of time during regular contests.

ing the grid mentors that he has literally become an expert at calling signals. Smith, due to his added playing impetus will, in the future be one of the major signal callers. At present, Smith has proved that he can play football. In fact, his selection of signals is the best in some time.

Jack Noe, playing at half-back, has shown the coaches that he is very effective in off-tackle plays. Bill Shelton continues to elevate his playing methods and is a valuable member of the Pirate squad. Lester Ridenhour, full-back, is also keeping in step with that familiar Alexander standard.

One of the most promising future guard prospects among Coach J. D. Alexander's charges is Ad-dian Brown. Brown is somewhat larger than an overgrown midgt.

UNC SQUAD OFF FOR NEW YORK

Tar Heels Leave Tonight for Battle With NYU

Chapel Hill, Oct. 14.—Thirty-four members of the North Carolina football squad, accompanied by Coaches Ray Wolf, Walter Skidmore and Johnny Aught will en-train from Durham early tonight

However, he is training himself for the purpose of being able to in-crease his effectiveness at guard. Another Pirate who is progressing nicely is Eugene Carson. Carson is trying to garner a tackle berth and appears to be making much head-way in that particular direction.

This afternoon, the Pirates were completing another week of prac-tice by the light drill route. This afternoon's practice was namly confined to pass defense develop-ment. During their previous two contests, both losses, the Pirates realized the necessity of being able to heave the pigskin through the air.

Saturday, the coaches at East Carolina Teachers College will be scouting teams which the Pirates will confront later in the season. The locals have another week in which to practice before participat-ing in another scheduled contest. They hope, however, to be ready to apply some of their playing techni-que on the opponents.

DUKE-GEORGIA SET FOR GAME

Kick-off Due at Duke Stadium Saturday at Two-Thirty

Durham, Oct. 14.—Sounded by the greatest celebration in the history of Duke Homecoming and Duke-Durham Days, football teams of Duke and Georgia Tech will stage their annual battle in Duke stadium tomorrow afternoon.

The kickoff will come at 2:30 o'clock. The stadium gates will open at 12 and Duke officials request that all who can to come early. Re-freshment booths will be open in the stadium at 12:00.

The Georgia Tech contingent ar-rived here this morning, went immediately to Chapel Hill where they will make their headquarters at the Carolina Inn. They were slated to take a brief final workout in Duke stadium this afternoon.

There were six North Carolina boys with the Tech squad: Walter Rimmer, tackle; and J. A. Hart, guard, both of Charlotte; June Page, halfback, and Charlie Wood, tackle, both of Raleigh; D. E. Lac-ey, tackle, of Barium Springs, and Joe Bartlett, halfback of Asheville.

It looms as the most colorful game in the history of Duke foot-ball. There have been a record-breaking number of entries in the big Duke-Durham and Duke Home coming parade which will be staged in downtown Durham at 11 o'clock. Nine bands will furnish music for the parade and will also perform at the game.

Just as the celebrations around the game promise to break all records, the football game itself looks to be a toss-up with two of the south's finest football aggr-gations in a great battle. If any-thing, the odds would lean a bit to Tech due to the great performance against Notre Dame's legions.

1,173 ATTEND COLLEGE HERE

Registration For Fall Term At E. C. T. C. Closed Thursday

When the registration period at the College closed yesterday for the fall term, the figures had reached a new high, with 1,173 students for regular day classes and 45 Pitt County teachers registered for night classes in science—a total of 1,218 on the College rolls.

This total is something like a hundred greater than the largest total of previous years. The number of men students is greater, also, this year. With their number at 157, they have an in-crease of 38 over last fall's figures.

Although their classes meet at night, the 45 Pitt County teachers in the night classes are regular students of the institution, taking work under members of the regular science faculty, in the laboratories of the college, and getting the usual credit for the courses.

These numbers give some indica-tion of the need for the new class-room building which is to be built this fall.

The Ladies Art Club met Tuesday evening at the home of Misses B. C. and I. M. Donnell on Tyson street. After the opening a short business session was held, after which the meeting was turned over to the pro-gram committee. Miss B. C. Donnell was in charge of the program and a memorial to James Weldon John-son, noted Negro author and educa-tor, was held. Mr. Johnson, who was the author of the Negro National Anthem, was killed in an automo-bile accident during the summer.

Mr. W. H. Davenport was the guest speaker for the evening and gave a general talk on the man as an in-dividual, stressing the human side of his attainments. Mrs. Bell At-kinson gave a brief resume of the "Life and Death of Johnson," and Mrs. Anna Mason sang his "Since You Went Away," which he wrote in collaboration with his brother, Rosamond. Johnson's "Creation" was recited very impressively by Mrs. Lillian Perkins. Mrs. D. M. Battle gave some interesting re-marks on "Johnson's Attainments." The Negro National Anthem was sung by the club, accompanied by Mrs. Lillian Perkins.

After a brief discussion the club members were served a very tempt-ing repast by the hostesses and ad-journed to meet next week with Mrs. L. B. Forbes.

Again we call your attention to the coming Pitt County Fair next week.

Indications are that the fair will be one of the best ever held in this section and the efforts of the two American Legion posts in the county to develop a real agricultural fair deserves the support of the county's citizens.

Most Greenville citizens cooperated in the test blackout last night, but there were some who continued to drive through the streets with glaring automobile lights during the period of darkness.

On the whole, the blackout was considered a success and those who have labored in getting the plan over to our people deserve much credit for the success attained.

Despite the fact that the action was contrary to the personal views of some of the members of the Board of Aldermen acted wisely when they voted to face the new city hall on Fifth street.

The board had invited the public to a meeting to express its wishes in the matter and when those present voiced sentiments overwhelmingly for facing the building on Fifth street, the board acted accordingly.

After all it's the people's money that must be spent for public improvements and the wishes of the people as to how it should be spent should be given consideration.

MOTION FILED IN PARTY ROW

State Board Asks The Court for Right To Certify Deane

Raleigh, Oct. 14—(AP)—The State Election Board asked the Supreme Court today, in a rare and unusual legal step to grant it a mandamus forcing Judge W. O. Harris in Wake Superior court to permit the Board to certify C. B. Deane of Rockingham as the Democratic Congressional nominee for the Eighth district.

The motion was filed with the court by Attorney General Harry McMillan and copies were served on J. C. B. Ehringhaus, chief of counsel for W. O. Burgin of Lexington, who also claims the nomination. Ehringhaus said he had not had time to read the paper. Clerk Edward Murray of the court said he did not expect the motion to be considered before Tuesday.

Their request to the high court asked that Judge Harris be required to permit the certification of Deane in accordance with an opinion of the Supreme court which remanded the case to Judge Harris to await final returns of the July 2nd second primary from Davidson and Richmond counties.

Judge Harris announced Wake Superior court he probably would offer a jury trial of the matter due to allegations that the State Board had acted arbitrarily in removing the old Davidson county election board and appointing a new one.

DON'T MARRY THE MAN

By Jeanne Bowman

The Characters
Kathleen Gregory: peppery red-haired member of the Gregory clan, goes West innocently to secure a right-of-way for The Golden Girl mine.
Donald MacDonald: owner of the rival Stubbins Boy mine, hates the Gregorys.
Bridget: Kathleen's companion.
 Yesterday: Kathleen learns that a right-of-way could be secured if there was priority of claim.

Chapter 14 'Come With Me'

OVER tea and "sly cake," which Kathleen thought resembled Napoleon with raisin stuffing, Donald's housekeeper told how the garden and chickens augmented her husband's salary.

"A deed Donald has given to each of us, so should anything happen to him, or the mine, or new owners come in, we own this home and could manage to live. Ah, the poor Gregorys." Mrs. Arthur concluded, and Kathleen knew she referred to the Gregory miners.

The rain which had threatened to fall all day, had made good its threat when they were leaving. Mrs. Arthur looked at the sky and sighed deeply. "A green winter, Donald, a green winter."

"Nonsense," laughed Donald. "This is only a green fall; we'll have snow."

"Ah, but Donald, Mrs. Campbell saw a blossom on her apple tree, three days back. I heard her calling to Annie. That's death before spring."

Donald laughed again. "I'm going to send Balmly over to see you. He'll take the woe out of that one; tell you the Campbell apple tree is in a warm corner and with the rain the tree thinks it's spring. He'll tell you that superstition sprang from people growing careless in warm weather and not laying up for the cold."

"Aye, Balmly has a reason for every a perturbation. I wish I could believe him."

Kathleen left Mrs. Arthur's home in a thoughtful mood. The mood remained through the long evening, through the delicious dinner on the menu which included all the favorite Scottish dishes from onion pudding to Rice Flour cake.

Donald MacDonald in his own home was yet another person—charming, considerate. He spoke of his family, especially of his widowed mother who summered with him, then returned to Los Angeles for the winter, and of his cousin Norman who would be with him before long.

Kathleen listened with one ear; with the other she seemed tuned to some vibration in that room: a peculiar throbbing which had an intoxicating quality. She was shocked to learn that the throbbing was the quick beat of her heart. The attitude, unquestionably; that and the air. The air in these mountains was so clear and light one felt buoyant.

She admitted enjoying the comfort of the lodge. Later, huddled before her own fire, she spoke of it.

"Imaging that fire kept going without me. And that cough, Bridget, there were moments when I wanted to sink clear out of sight and spend the night on it."

Her bed was a uncompromising as the future it was a gold, barren fact. She spent most of the night tossing on it, her mind active—building, rebuilding and with each board laid on board calling MacDonald to come and see: if he could have built as well.

Morning dawned with a steady rain dimming the landscape and the big room filled with damp cold air. Had she not been so intent upon her plans, Kathleen might have complained. As it was she felt vague pity for Bridget who had been drawn into this life with her, and slipped in to build a fire for her.

'A Fairy Tale'

"I'm going to crash the Gregory cots today," she confided. "I don't know how, but . . . watch me."

If intense desire were prayer, then Kathleen's prayers were answered. She was idling along the trail when a man rushed up to the door of a cot. A moment later a woman throwing a coat over her head, rushed out with him, caught sight of Kathleen and called.

"Oh, Miss Riley, go stay with the baby My Johnny's got took!" There was no more. She had fled in the wake of the man who was striding on ahead and Kathleen, after one glance around, went into the cot.

For a moment she stood in the doorway, then hastily she closed the door. The big room was dark. The big room, she realized, encompassed most of the cottage. There was a tiny kitchen alcove, and in a moment she discovered a second alcove. Coughing came from there. She hurried in.

A tiny girl lay there. When the paragon was over she smiled up at Kathleen. "You're the gold lady," she said hoarsely. "Like in fairy tales. Tell me a fairy tale."

The Gold Lady sat on a stool by the bed. Tell a fairy tale in these surroundings? The house was immaculately clean, but it was cluttered. The pots MacDonald had prophesied would be used during a rain were there. The ceiling was discolored by previous rains. It sagged in places, was crudely patched in others.

An iron stove stood in one corner of the room, a tiny coal fire burning. Kathleen made a move to replenish it but the child stopped her. "We only make big ones in winter," she admonished. "Once upon a time—" began Kathleen and stopped.

"—there was a Golden Girl," prompted the child, and when Kathleen didn't go on—"and she riz right up out of the mine an' she had golden oranges in her hands and she give us all we could eat. And she was so beautiful we was all blinded. Us kids made up that one," she confided. "When my throat don't hurt no more I'll tell you all of it."

Kathleen told a fairy tale then. It was the truth but to the listener unbelievable. A story about a Golden Girl who lived in a Golden room and slept in a bed of Gold and drove in a Golden chariot.

And as she talked she saw the poverty about her. Under the child's guidance she rubbed the botchy little chest with goose-grease and kerosene. When the coughing started again she fed her what she assumed was a precious liquid of crushed onion and lemon.

"Go easy on it," warned the child. "Pop's got miner's cough. Don't you know what that is? Well you're green. It's the rock dust that gets in miner's lungs. Most all muckers have it; all the Gregorys anyhow."

Kathleen might have learned more but the mother reappeared, her face set in white, stoical lines. "Can't you tell me?" begged Kathleen.

"Tain't much," sighed the woman. "The boys at school tried to make apparatus like the MacDonalds, damn them, have. They couldn't. The bar broke when Johnny was up. Only his leg is broke, but where can I get a doctor? They said they were takin' him to Carsted, that's twenty miles and those bones a' rubbin'—"

"But there are doctors at both mines," protested Kathleen.

"You're Crazy!"

JUST for the miners. There's a MacDonald doctor but I'd ne'er trust a lad of mine to his hand. We have to pay for the Gregory one and I haven't the money. They'll wait for it in Carsted, or we'll go charity."

Kathleen felt an insane desire to rush to the Gregory mine, lift the doctor up by the nape of the neck and bring him to the cot; and in so doing, to walk over Kit-Smyth, preferably on his plucky face.

"An' Balmly said 'pray belivin' an' I did."

Kathleen stood up rigid with determination. "I'll get the Gregory doctor!"

She was off like a whirlwind. For once the car started without too many objections. Reaching the mine she went directly to the emergency hospital to find the doctor studying a medical magazine.

"You'll come with me!" she exclaimed.

"What is it?" he asked.

"Don't you dare ask questions—"

"But my dear young lady, how will I know what I'm going to need if I don't know what kind—"

"Oh," Kathleen relaxed. "A schoolboy has broken his leg. They were taking him to Carsted."

"Right!" The man was on his feet, giving quick orders to two nurses who had appeared. "I'll bring him here. Ruth, you come with me." He turned to Kathleen. "We'll take my car. I can convert it into a carrier. Come on."

Kathleen rode beside him and enroute talked of the little girl as well as her brother. "I didn't learn their names," she confessed. "I was so furious at you for refusing to take cases unless you were paid on the spot—"

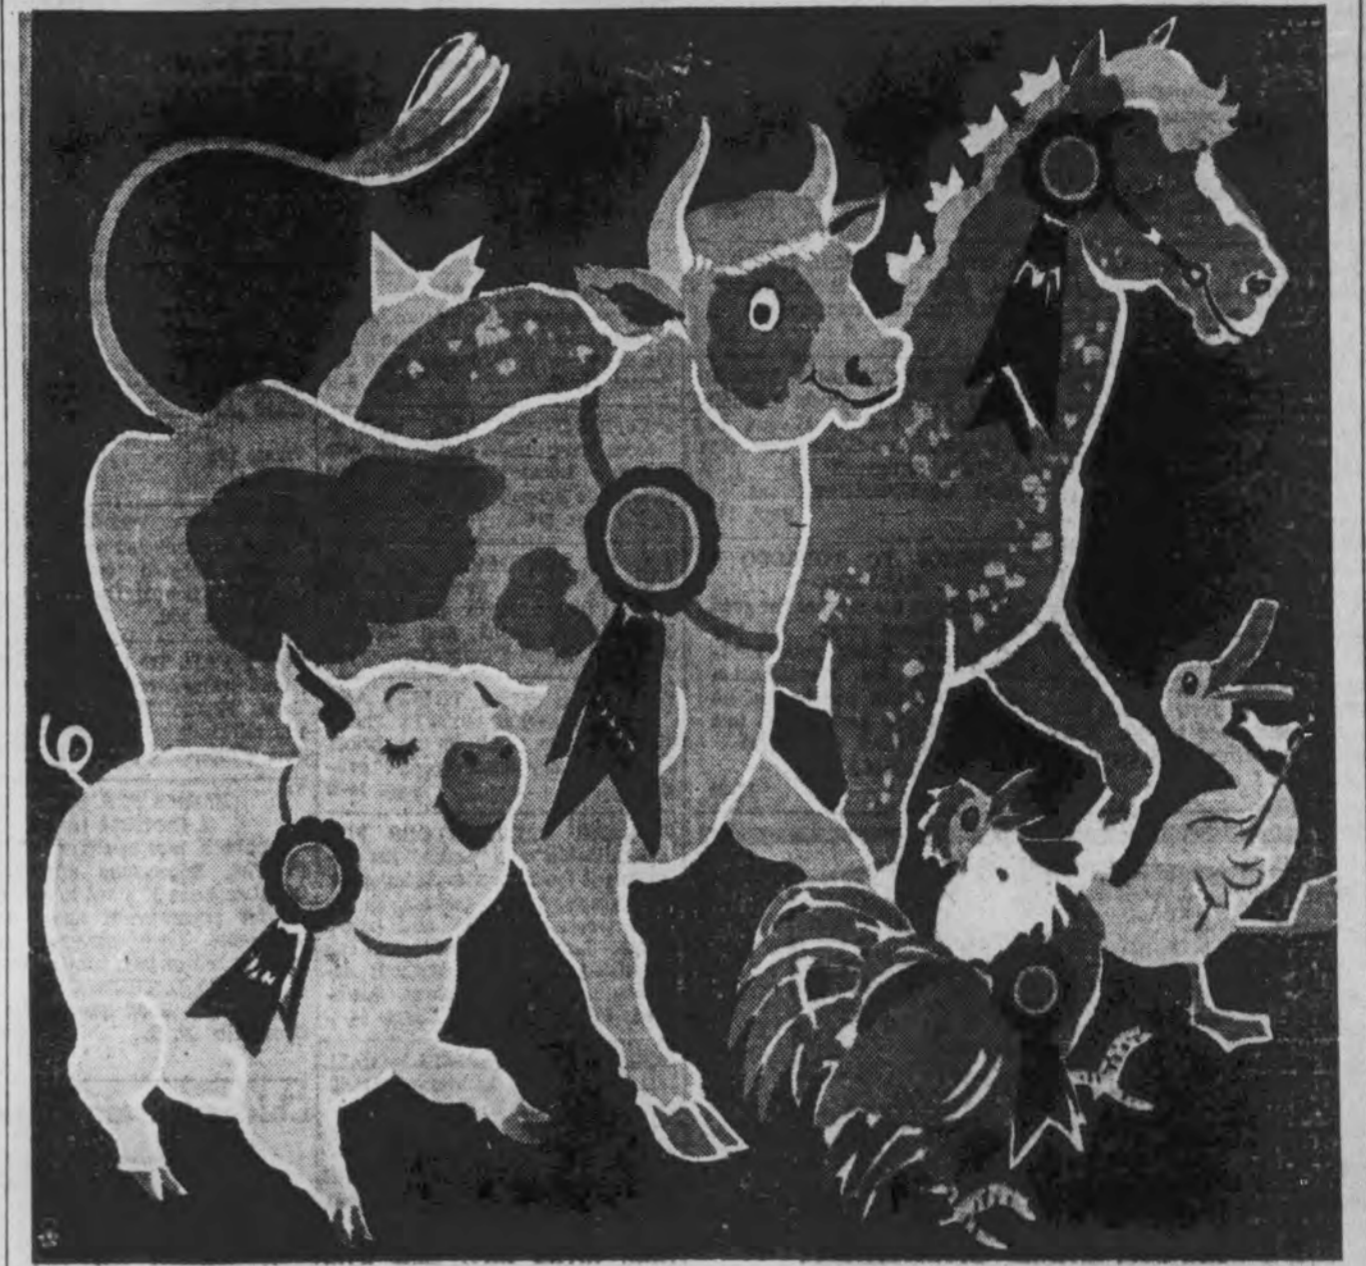

"You are crazy!" The car didn't slacken its pace but the force of the doctor's words brought Kathleen to a short stop. "I'd take every case in this town on both sides of the road for nothing, understand, nothing if I could. Do you think I like to camp there at the mouth of the mine playing solitaire; picking slivers out of miners' fingers; dressing an occasional break when I could be making myself useful? Good God, young woman, if it wasn't for old Balmly drumming into my ears my responsibility to the miners under-stand, I'd take every case of an experienced man; the hope that some day the Gregorys would get something besides gold into their veins and allow me to serve everyone; if it wasn't for Old Balmly, I'd have been out of here three years ago. I don't think I can stand it much longer. Here we are. I'll be up to the house as soon as I finish with the boy."

"I'm paying you," Kathleen told him, and as he demurred, "I don't want the Gregorys firing a man like you. But don't tell anyone. Let Kit-Smyth think the family paid."

GREENVILLE "The City Of Sunshine"

PLANTING THE SPRING GARDEN
The first real fall days, early October, serve to remind us that there are tasks for the gardener if he is to have an early spring garden. Outstanding among things to be done at this time is the sowing of rye for winter lawns, planting of bulbs and setting of shrubbery.

For those who are contemplating the use of rye, it is suggested that the lawn be prepared carefully. The grass should be mowed as short as possible and then raked over, making sure to scratch the dirt surface at the same time. The rye should be sown evenly, not too thick. Some lawn experts recommend that after sowing the seed, it should be pressed into the soil. There are others that say this last step is not necessary. It has proven successful by either method.

There is nothing that adds so much to the beauty of a spring garden as bulbs, narcissus, tulips, hyacinths and minor bulbs excellent for planting in rock gardens.

If we wish to have a bed of daffodils which will last from year to year, it is necessary that we provide proper conditions for their growth from one year to the next. For this reason, it is wise to dig out beds where bulbs are to be planted to a depth of perhaps two feet, replacing it with either good soil or fibrous material such as peat moss or sand with soil so that it may be loose and porous. This allows for correct drainage and the growing shoots of bulbs to penetrate.

Bulbs may be planted in formal beds or they may be neutralized, that is, planted where they naturally fall when scattered on the ground; planted in drifts in the perennial border or planted in clumps of four or five.

It is wise to plant bulbs deep enough to be out of the way when cultivating at least four or five inches of daffodils, snail's, three inches. Bulbous flowers appear best when planted not too far apart so that they will have the appearance of being crowded. Bulbs of tulips and daffodils may remain in the soil year after year. When clumps become crowded, however, they may be dug and transplanted after the foliage has died down.

A Garden Of Sunshine
An article appearing in the Garden Club year book expressed our spring slogan for us—Greenville, the City of Sunshine—by outlining the planting of a yellow border. The plan was submitted by Elizabeth Lawrence, an outstanding landscape

In Budapest, Hungary you pay a fare, usually about two cents, to go up in an elevator in the fine modern apartments; the fare doubles after midnight. Most folk ride up and walk down.

Tourists and botanists who today climb the slopes of Mount Pilatus in Switzerland have long forgotten that it was not till the 16th century that anyone approached it. Pilate's ghost was supposed to hover there.

architect of Raleigh. I am sure Miss Lawrence will understand my quoting from her article to you, for it will be so very useful in helping us to make our enterprising community a city of sunshine.

Yellow was recommended for the main color note because it is most pleasant and one of the easiest colors to handle in the garden. Also a color combination between yellow and orange running into the browns for richness, perhaps a touch of blue for contrast, is easy to accomplish and pleasant to look upon.

It will require pre-thought to make a display of yellow for a continuous bloom of yellow for a period of time is a difficult task.

Our earliest bloom in a border will be the yellow pansies which range from a pale lemon yellow to the deep crimsons and browns. Pansies can be kept blooming from January until June if they are pinched back and watered.

Following the pansies, the early comperules start blooming and then the smaller sweet scented jonquils. By late February or early March, we find the daisies (Yellow Leopard's Bane) and soxatle alepsium and orange Siberian wallflowers, all of which will make a gay edging.

Other flowers for this delightfully bright border are California poppies, twilight and orange King, Bruder tulips and Lady Stratheden. Now is the time to do your spring gardening and planting. And remember, the Greenville Garden Club is asking for a bright leaf spring to be portrayed in each lawn this coming year. Do your small part by setting out your daffodil bulbs and forsythia shrubs this week. Help to make Greenville—"The City of Sunshine" for the Garden Pilgrimage in April.

(Your next Garden School of the Air over WPTF will be on October 19, by Mrs. R. L. McMillan of Raleigh. Time will be announced later.)
