GRANGE SEEKS TAX REVISIONS TO AID FARMER

Teacher Tenure And 12 Grades in School Program

ANNUAL MEETING HELD IN OXFORD

Repeal of Absentee Ballot and Abolition of Professional Markers Called For

Oxford, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Harry Caldwell of Greensboro, master of the State Grange, urged today that tax reforms to help farmers be enacted and that teacher tenure and a 12th grade be included in the public school program.

Repeal of the absentee ballot law and abolition of professional markers at the polls was proposed in the interest of "clean, honest elections."

Caldwell made his annual report on the grange at an afternoon session, listing a 25 per cent increase in paid membership and organization of 17 new Granges.

There appeared to be merit, Caldwell said, in the proposal of Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, that a two-price system be developed for farm products to expand consumption and reduce surpluses. "Some method," Caldwell said, "should be derived for making surplus farm commodities available to low income groups and to stimulate their use in industry."

And farm legislation, he said, should be under farmer control and should encourage good practices.

Governmental re-organization, state and federal, should be accomplished "to the end that essential service may be provided at a minimum."

Red Oak Resident Dies at Age of 75

Mrs. Julia F. Crawford, 75, died morning at 5:30 o'clock in Pitt General hospital following three weeks of critical illness.

Mrs. Crawford was born in Pitt county March 2, 1863 and spent her entire life in the Red Oak community. She was the daughter of the late William and Louise Allen, widow of the late William Crawford. For the past number of years she had made her home with her only daughter, Mrs. Heber R. Allen.

She was one of the oldest members of Red Oak Christian church. Funeral services will be held from the daughter's home on Farmville highway Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by Rev. Gilbert Davis, Christian minister of Bellairth. Burial will follow in the Allen cemetery beside her late husband.

Besides her only daughter, Mrs. Heber R. Allen, she is survived by five grandchildren and a number of nieces and nephews.

Active pallbearers will be J. T. Manning, H. H. May, W. S. May, John R. May, N. T. Stokes, and R. W. Vainwright. Nephews and nieces will serve as flower bearers.

Tobacco Stronger

Prices on the Greenville market yesterday showed an increase over those paid on Monday, an average of $22.64 having been paid Tuesday, compared with $22.59 on the previous day.

The season's average to date as $23.70, offerings of 46,670,870 pounds having brought $11,058,859.53. Yesterday a total of 707,372 pounds was sold for $160,213.04.

Observers on the market here declare that the drop in averages was due to a great extent to the fact that many farmers are selling the last of their tobacco. Most of the farmers held their poor grades of tobacco from the market until the last so as not to use their cartage allotment on the poorer grades, and now that they have sold their good quality leaf, they are disposing of the poorest grades.

Japanese Army And Navy Complete Occupation Of Hankow And Sister Cities

JAPANESE ENTER HANKOW

After months of bitter battling and marching inland, Japanese forces entered Hankow, provisional capital of China. The big arrow at the top of this map indicates where the invading troops marched into the city along the Peiping-Hankow railroad. The smaller arrow shows the location of foreign ships ready to protect concessions of their nationals. The Chinese said they would withdraw from Hankow, Hanyang and Wuchang for strategic reasons.

Twenty-Six Warships Steam up the Broad Yangtze River

SOLDIERS ENTER FORMER CAPITAL

Control in International Settlement Is Taken from Hands Foreign Authorities

Shanghai, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Japanese and foreign dispatches tonight reported that the Japanese army and navy had completed occupation of Hankow and its sister Wuhan cities, Wuchang and Hanyang.

Twenty-six warships steamed up the broad Yangtze river to a portion of Hankow's Japanese concession, the dispatches said, and army units totaling several thousand men marched into the former provisional capital from the north-east.

Shortly thereafter a Japanese infantry force of about 2,000 moved into the international area along the Yangtze water front and took over control from the foreign authorities who had organized an emergency regime following the Chinese abandonment of the city.

Details of the occupation of Wuchang, separated from Hankow by the mile-wide Yangtze, were not immediately available. Earlier reports said Japanese infantry columns driving in along the south bank of the Yangtze had met stiff Chinese resistance in the baling city and were engaged in mapping up operations.

Japanese dispatches did not report the occupation of Hanyang, once busy industrial city across the Han river from Hankow, but foreign advices said the invaders entered the third of the Wuhan communities late today.

Available information tonight indicated the Japanese had gained the huge mid-China metropolitan area with almost no fighting at the end except the street battles in Wuchang.

The occupation was culmination of a great converging movement launched early in the summer.

Patrolman Called By Two Accidents

Patrolman H. B. Smith was kept on the go investigating wrecks late yesterday afternoon and last night, having been called by two similar accidents, one at 6:15 and the other at 10:15.

Ben J. Dixon of Greenville and T. E. Meeks of Winterville were driving cars involved in a head on collision north of Tar river, in front of Red Gables, last night at 6:15 o'clock. No one was seriously injured in the wreck and no arrests were made.

In the other accident, four hours later, Lloyd Whitehead of Grimesland was driver of one car and Jas. Hopkins, Negro, of Greenville was operator of the other. The two cars sideswiped each other on the Bruce Farmville highway, but no one was injured and charges were preferred against neither of the two drivers.

Burgin Certified By State Board

Raleigh, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The State Board of Elections formally certified W. O. Burgin of Lexington as the Democratic nominee for Congress in the Eighth District today.

Court action in the long drawn, hard-fought controversy was terminated by a voluntary non-suit before the board certified Burgin.

The formal certification papers said Burgin automatically became the nominee after C. B. Deane of Rockingham withdrew. It was set forth, however, that Deane resigned a majority of the votes under amended returns and that his certification had been withheld so that Burgin could take legal action.

Burgin was the unanimous choice of three referees, agreed to in an unprecedented move to end the dispute and assure the name of a Democrat on the ballot on November 8 in opposition to John R. Jones the Republican nominee.

The vote for Burgin's certification was three to one with W. V. Hill of Charlotte, a Republican, not voting. The Democrats, Chairman W. A. Lucas of Wilson, George McNeill of Fayetteville and W. O. Bell of Hendersonville, voted for Burgin and other Republican Adnan Mitchell of Winston, voted negatively.

ACT IS UPHELD BY MURCHISON

Says New Labor Law Should Prove Stabilizing Force

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Dr. Claudius Murchison, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, said today the new wage-hour law should prove "a stabilizing force" upon competition in the cotton industry.

Speaking at the institute's annual meeting, he declared the new basic wage rates were "not unreasonable" and that "the first point of 'reasonableness' in the law was that, unlike the Labor Relations act, it did not put its powers in the hands of a board."

"To my mind," he said, "it was extremely fortunate that wage-hour legislation was delayed until the spring of 1938. By that time the whole country had learned from observing administration of the National Labor Relations act what could be accomplished by a board with arbitrary powers when those powers extended into the field of industrial relations."

Greensboro Negro Physician's Wife Wins $150,000

New Market, Eng., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Contrevent, French-bred 3-year-old owned by Princess de Faucigny-Lucinge, today won the hundredth running of the classic Cesarewitch at two miles and a quarter, the race on whose running depended the distribution of about $7,000,000 of Irish hospital sweepstakes prizes.

J. P. Hornung's Dubonnet was second and E. Benson's Fet, third. William Woodward's Olympus, only American-owned entry in the field of 28 starters, failed to place.

Contrevent started as a 100-to-7 shot with Dubonnet also quoted as 100 to 7 and set at nine to one. The French horse finished a length and a half in front of Dubonnet, with Fet in third place by the same margin.

Seven tickets on Dubonnet, second place winner, were held in the United States and won $75,000 each. Four tickets held by Americans on Vet, third place winner, paid $50,000 each.

Holders of tickets on Contrevent included: "Lucky Dreamer," 427 Bennett street, Greensboro, N. C.

SEES SUCCESS OF LABOR ACT

Administrator Andrews Says Reports Encouraging

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Elmer Andrews, the wage-hour administrator, told the Cotton Textile Institute today that reports from all over the country regarding inauguration of the fair labor standards act "encourage us to believe that the operation has been a success."

Speaking from the "vantage point of two and a half days" the administrator reported that "unpleasant repercussions" had occurred only in scattered instances and that a minimum of industrial dislocations resulted. These, he asserted, should disappear soon.

"It is unfortunate," he added, "that anyone should lose his job because of this law, but as every surgeon knows, there are few operations in which the patient does not lose some blood."

"The reports which we have from all over the country encourage us to believe that the operation has been a success and that the patient now on his way to permanent improvement."

GERMAN PAPER FLAYS CHURCH

Says Unpatriotic Attitude Taken in the Czech Crisis

Berlin, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The weekly organ of the Nazi Black-Shirt SS guards today attacked the Roman Catholic and Protestant Confessional synod churches "for their alleged unpatriotic attitude in the German-Czech crisis and declared the Jews in Germany and Italy were 'hostages.'"

The paper said "Jews living in Germany and Italy are hostages given into our hands by fate so that we may defend ourselves in the most effective manner against attacks by world Jewry."

This assertion may seem rather severe," the paper continued, "to those who in their soft mentality always are at hand with a slogan about the innocent Jew."

"Whoever envisages in all its ramifications the incitement to war with world Jewry has unlocked upon us along a broad front and whoever recognizes the true intentions of these world criminals would be a fool indeed if in the face of such a threat he permitted anything like compassion to surge within him."

Candidates in California Accused of Having Strong Communist Leanings

Washington, Oct. 26.—(AP)—House investigators of un-American activities received testimony today that the chairman of the Democratic Campaign committee in California, John Clark, was a Communist and that three of the party's nominees for high office had Communist connections.

H. Knowles, chairman of the radical research committee of the California American Legion, appearing before the Dies committee, listed these candidates:

Culbert Olson, for governor, who fraternizes and accepts the program of the strategy committee of the Communist party.

Sheridan Downey, for United States Senator, a running mate of Communist Upton Sinclair in 1934.

Knowles' testimony came shortly after the committee had been rebuffed by President Roosevelt for calling itself to be used in what he called an "unfair and un-American attempt to influence an election," in Michigan.

Chairman Dies (D-Tex.), took sharp exception to the presidential assertion and then proceeded to let Knowles testify about Communist political operations on the coast.

In a formal reply to Mr. Roosevelt, the Texas charged that cabinet members were a party to a cam-

Literature Department
The Literature department of the Woman's Club met with Mrs. D. R. Stall Tuesday afternoon (October 25th). Mrs. K. T. Futrell, chairman, was in charge of the business meeting.

We were glad to welcome as members Mrs. Posey and Mrs. Toll and to have as our visitors for the afternoon, Mrs. Denver Baughan and Mrs. Schneider.

After the business meeting the program was in charge of Mrs. J. L. Savage, who very ably reviewed "The Citadel" by Cronin. Mrs. Savage gave a short biographical sketch of Cronin's life and works. It seems that he had done many things but medicine was his greatest love. The New York Times said of him that he was better as a physician than as a writer. The story gives one an understanding of the lives and work of Andrew Manson and his wife, Christine—their struggles in the mining districts of Wales where Andrew did his best work for humanity. Then the incidents of the time when making money seemed to be his sole object in life as the experiences of his life near London proved. When he saw his great mistake at the time of an operation performed by an almost brutal butcher, known as a surgeon, he gave up this practice and went back to his old friends in the mining districts of Wales.

The loss of his wife, who had been of so much help and encouragement to him in his real work, caused him to become temporarily despondent and almost give up his work. His friends of former years came to his rescue and he gave his time and attention to his real work—the cause of tuberculosis among the miners—and the possible cure of this dread disease.

After the program the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Schneider and Mrs. J. R. Gulledd, served delicious pumpkin pie with whipped cream and hot coffee.—Reported.

who are in Greenville this afternoon for their quarterly meeting. Reports have come in from several Troops in the county in relation to our campfire and overnight camp at the District cabin Friday, October 28. Some troops find that the date conflicts with hold-over carnivals and parties, however we plan to go ahead with the project and will plan another campfire at a date in November. If you have not sent in the number of boys you expect to bring please do so at once.

Congratulations to Scoutmasters Sam Dees, Pohonia Moseley and Sherman Parks, they all had the same number of Scouts at their meeting last week, this proves that the contest for attendance and new members is "getting hot." Five Scouts representing every Troop in Greenville went to Goldsboro Sunday to pass their test in Swimming and Life Saving, those passing swimming were: John Saled, Edgar Denton, James Pinner, James Worsley and Heber Adams. All of them passed Life Saving except one.

In every 1939 Buick you get the skilled engineering and sturdy quality traditional in Buick—permeated by all the extra value which General Motors science and Buick workmanship can provide.

THERE you sit in a seat like an easy chair, comfortable as a puppy on his pillow.

The wheel in your hand has a fine and friendly feel—the treadle under your foot is a pressing invitation to travel.

You look out through windows deeper all around—through as much as 413 added square inches of safety glass.

You spot your path through windshields that are higher, over hoods that are lower—you've got a front-porch view of the whole wide world—that sitting-in-a-bathtub feeling's gone!

That's just one of the things we were after when we planned this new Buick. Better aerodynamics was another. So was the highly effective "catwalk-cooling," practiced on Europe's high-speed racing cars.

It's because our designers achieved these things without straining for effect that Buick's the beauty of this and many a season to come!

There are scores of fresh advances to please you: A gearshift out of knee-way. The true "full float" BuicOil Springing ride. And the quick, quiet Dynafash straight-eight engine which keeps Buick so easily out in front!

We can't begin to list them here. But your Buick dealer can show them to you. Go see him—right now!

ALL YOUR CURIOSITY satisfied by Your Mileage Merchant... Ask him exactly how you're sure of fast winter starting and extreme oil economy by changing now to WINTER OIL-PLATING

IS OIL-PLATING just a different name? ...No. OIL-PLATING is what Conoco Germ Processed oil does! The out-and-out difference is this: OIL-PLATING will stay firmly attached—plated—clear to the topmost point in your engine, while any plain mineral oil drains clear down the crankcase at every stop.

Exactly where is your gain? Well, in starting up again—next day or next month—the coldest OIL-PLATED engine is always oiled in advance... pre-lubricated before any oil down in the crankcase could ever stir. OIL-PLATING thus keeps every engine part constantly slippery. The starter speeds... the battery lives and so does the engine, free of fierce starting friction.

But is there any oil saving? Why?... Because less engine wear puts more miles between quarts. And OIL-PLATING itself never passes out during the use of Germ Processed oil. Only the Germ Process, patented, creates OIL-PLATING, the sensible reason for you to switch to Your Mileage Merchant today.

WELCOME TO GREENVILLE

Greenville is host this evening to a hundred or more building and loan and savings association directors gathered in district meeting here. It is always a pleasure for this city to be host to delegations or conventions of any kind and more especially such men as those who compose the guiding forces of the building and loan and savings associations. There are hundreds of local people who would have never found it possible to own their homes but for the building and loan plan of purchase and savings and what is true here is equally true throughout the country. We are glad of this opportunity to say "Welcome" to these representatives of the building and loan and savings association of 25 Eastern North Carolina counties.

ACCIDENT BREEDERS

The nation-wide reduction in highway fatalities this year challenges the mobilized forces of the traffic safety movement to go forward with a yet broader program to combat existing maladjustments, said Wallace Falvey, chairman of the advisory committee of the National Conservation Bureau, recently. Paying tribute to the part state authorities have taken in saving lives, sparing human suffering and protecting property on America's highways, he emphasized that greater uniformity of laws, regulations and administrative practices of motor vehicle departments would benefit not only the officials charged with motor vehicle control, but also legislators and the great body of motorists.

"The multiplicity of traffic control devices and regulations which confront the motorist when he ventures beyond his home territory, create confusion and irritation," he declared. "And confusion and irritation breed accidents."

States and municipalities developed traffic control in a more or less helterskelter fashion. No effort was made to achieve uniformity. The consequences are obvious. A motorist traveling in a strange territory is confused. He drives through overhead control lights, because in his town the lights are placed on sidewalks, or roadsides, or on the pavement itself. He looks in the wrong places for Stop and warning signs. He violates laws innocently, and unknowingly takes risks that lead to accidents.

The time for a change has arrived. We have managed to start the accident curve

NEW YORK'S ELECTION IN 1938 MAY INFLUENCE NATION IN '40

GOV. HERBERT H. LEHMAN Seeks fourth term

THOMAS E. DEWEY 'Best Chance for G. O. P. since '20'

While the results in many of the November 8 election battles will be chiefly of local interest, personalities or issues give some campaigns national significance. This is the first of ten articles outlining the situation in those states that are being closely watched by national political leaders.

(By The AP Feature Service)

New York—The No. 1 political battle of the year is the New York governorship contest—racket-busting, 36-year-old Thomas E. Dewey versus 60-year-old Herbert H. Lehman, former banker, now serving his third term as governor.

It gets top ranking among all 1938 election struggles because: 1. Republican triumph in the state with the biggest electoral vote would be the greatest spur to G.O.P. hopes of winning the presidency in 1940.

2. The election of District Attorney Dewey, whose activities as a prosecutor have attracted national notice, would make him an outstanding Republican presidential possibility. 3. Conversely, a Lehman victory would strengthen prospects of New York remaining in the Democratic column in 1940 and of the Democrats retaining control of the national administration.

From a party standpoint, New York is ostensibly the richest single prize in the November elections because its electoral vote of 47 make it the capstone in any national political structure.

Its Vote Makes Presidents. In the 20 quadrennial Republican-Democratic contests since 1856, only two presidents—Hayes in 1876 and Wilson in 1916—have been elected without the support of New York state.

Another potentially "significant" candidacy is that of Representative Bruce Barton seeking a second term in Congress. Barton, writer and "business man in politics," is rated a possible Republican presidential nominee.

New York Republicans, with Dewey slashing at Tammany, have made the fight on graft and crime a campaign issue. Democrats counter that Lehman, who picked Dewey in 1935 to prosecute racketeering in New York city, has an excellent law enforcement record as well as a demonstrated general capacity for the governorship.

"The Strongest in Years" Republicans bank on Dewey's popularity giving them "the best chance to win since 1920," when they last captured the governorship. Democrats boast that in drafting Lehman to run with Senator Robert Wagner, veteran labor legislator, and Representative James Mead, ration of a movement to standardize traffic control devices and regulations would help to keep it going down.

The U. S. partly to offset German trade subsidies and partly to meet Germany's discriminatory trade relations favoring other nations. The American policy is to demand and give "most-favored-nation" treatment in its commerce. Secretary Hull has based the success of his whole reciprocal trade program on that principle. Under that system, whenever one country is given a trade concession, all other countries are entitled to the same provided they in turn give the U. S. as good terms as they give other nations.

A Controlled Trade The one current exception is Russia, unless we enote Cuba's protective treatment. With Russia, the fact that all production is in the hands of the government required a special quota arrangement.

The argument can be advanced that when viewed realistically, German trade conditions are akin to those in Russia. Under its foreign trade regulations, the German government also can dictate the time and quantity of imports involving foreign exchange, and largely govern exports.

There are a lot of irons in the fire. Some statesmen believe that the best way to beat Hitler is to extend relief to the German people by means of increased trade. Others suspect Hitler will make certain that any profits from the trade will continue to be used to buy bullets, not butter. We're Competitors, Too The fact remains that the profitable trade this country once had with Germany is much reduced. The table shows the history of U. S. exports to and imports from Germany.

Table with 3 columns: Year, Exports, Imports. Data for years 1913 to 1937.

The 1937 increase was laid largely to higher prices. And in that year the United States found itself supplanted to Brazil as the principal supplier of cotton to Germany. A principal difficulty in the way of arranging any trade agreement with Germany on a strictly bi-lateral basis is that most of the things Germany manufactures come in direct competition with American production.

DON'T MARRY THE MAN

By Jeanne Bowman

The Characters
 Kathleen Gregory goes West incognito to secure a right-of-way for the Gregory mine shaft from MacDonald.
 Donald MacDonald hates the Gregorys, suspects Kathleen's identity.
 Bridget: Kathleen's companion.
 Yesterday: Balmy gives Kathleen the key to the MacDonald-Gregory feud — half a blood-stained shirt — and tells her to piece it to the other half.

Chapter 24

Hours of Torture

NEW Year's Eve and the MacDonalds arrived together.

Kathleen, standing at the window, looking down at Donald MacDonald, thought she'd never seen anyone as handsome.

The disturbing, quick smile, the quickening light in his eyes, then at her beckoning the sure, swift stride that brought him up the Gregory steps and through the door before she could gather her reserve about her.

"Seems like we've been away a year," he greeted, lifting the bandaged hands. "How are they? Mother had a letter from the doctor. He says you'll be strutting the keys with them before spring and no grafting necessary."

Bridget came in before Kathleen had time to answer, and still holding the bandaged hands, Donald turned to her. "Into your glad rags, we're stepping out tonight. Hotel for dinner then on to a dance. How about it Cleo, feel up to it?"

"Right now," answered Kathleen. "I could climb mountains and do a Suzy Q on the peak."

She felt that evening that she had climbed mountains and the air at the top was rarefied leaving her buoyant, carefree.

They returned before midnight and Kathleen had the memory of the first and last and many other dances with Donald and his solicitude concerning her injured hands.

"You girls go on in," Donald ordered.

They went in. A few moments later the midnight chimes rang out and on the last echo there was a rap at the door, and in walked Donald with an armload of wood and a hod of coal.

Another rap and Norman came in with a second load.

"Why the two?" inquired Bridget.

"Because," answered Donald, "something tells me one of the two of you will be having a home of your own before this year ends, and we would bring you both good fare."

Kathleen looked at Bridget and was astonished at the radiance she saw. Bridget was agreeing. She was looking at Donald as though, already, there was some secret understanding between them.

A pain greater than the searing of her hands seared her heart: a sickening nauseaing pain. She slipped from the room and went to the veranda to look out on the cold hills, the painted cliffs shrouded in snow, the white blaze of stars.

She knew now with a sense of defeated finality that she was in love with Donald MacDonald: a love as hopeless as her quest for the right-of-way. She couldn't fight Bridget even if there were hopes of an ultimate victory.

Donald found her there. He approached, warily and Kathleen, turning, thought they were like two fencers, each waiting for the other to take the offensive so they could gauge their defense accordingly.

"You shouldn't be here," he ventured.

"I Need Some Advice"

"I KNOW" she agreed with a softness in her voice he'd never heard before. "but I like to come out and see the bigness of things I wonder why people who live in the open like this haven't broader, more tolerant views."

"Balmy says horizons are individual and not limited by physical outlook."

"That settles it," laughed Kathleen. "I wouldn't attempt to argue with him."

"Wait here for me. I've something I want to ask you. I need some advice."

He returned in a few moments with blankets and rugs and they settled on a broad veranda sill.

"You've changed a lot since you've been here, Cleo."

"Changed?"

He sat beside her, his arm bracing her. "I should say, developed. At first you went around with a chip on your shoulder."

"That's still there, but it's been there so long it's worn a groove to fit into and doesn't knock off as easily."

MacDonald laughed. "You would explain it that way," he chided, "but I meant you've been too busy helping others to think about the chip."

"I don't deserve any credit for that. I just happened to be ambling past Mrs. MacBride's when she rushed out looking for someone to stay with Laura."

"And of course you were forced to go after a local doctor? And you had to bring Laura, the first of your patients, into your own quarters? And of course you had to stamp out the fire with your hands because there wasn't time to go for water if Balmy's Bible wasn't to be burned."

Kathleen glanced up swiftly, but MacDonald's face was too breathtakingly close. "Any one would have reacted the same way," she demurred. "But what has all of this to do with the value of the pound sterling?"

MacDonald looked out across the snow, up to the blue-black sky with its blazing white stars, then softly he spoke. "Just this. Suppose a man were in love with a girl who came from a world entirely different from his, whose people lived across the continent, whose way of living was so totally different from his. Would he have the right to make her forsake her people, her world, her religion, for him? And would she do it?"

Kathleen had tensed. Bridget's people lived in another social world; lived a thousand miles from Neutrality. Two thousand from Los Angeles.

Poor Bridget, Kathleen tried to pierce herself in her friend's place. Would she give up her family, the very background of her individuality for the man she loved, when they had done nothing to deserve such desertion?

Afraid to look at MacDonald, lest he see what was in her eyes, loving him with a love that seemed half hatred because it wrought such havoc in her heart, she studied. At least she could help Bridget.

"Only One Like Her"

"SHE answered his question with a firm finality. "A man who would demand a girl sacrifice her principles in such a fashion doesn't love the girl enough to think of marriage."

"But Cleo, he does love her tremendously. He's fought it from the moment he first saw her. God knows she's the last person in a world full of girls that he would have chosen if he'd had any say. He hadn't. He knows there's only one like her; only one as completely fine and adorable. What is he going to do about it?"

Kathleen felt she could not stand the torture of listening to that low passionate voice expressing its love for another. She slipped from the sill. "Accept her as she is, and remember that she is as she is because of her heritage."

MacDonald stood beside her. "I can't do that! Isn't there any other way?"

Down the trail yellow lanterns came swiveling, polka dots of moving light. Voices came softly, the sound of footsteps crunching in the snow.

A mischievous smile appeared on Kathleen's face. "Once upon a time you suggested Balmy's influence would be good for my soul. Why don't you try some? He'll teach you the real meaning of love. You shouldn't expect the girl to do what you say you can't do."

She hurried into the house to be ready to receive her guests. This was the night one paid off old scores. She hoped she had settled her debt to Bridget.

But all through the hours, and until dawn came gliding across the snow, first gray, then golden she thought of that one hour with Donald MacDonald and she wondered how he had known what happened in Balmy's cot.

Out of that evening she had only the cold consolation of Donald looking upon her as a friend. She must build on this, it was one step towards the fulfillment of her new plan. She must teach him to respect and trust the Gregorys.

The days that followed were lonely days. The use of hands, she thought, like love, was something one didn't miss until denied. Bridget, absorbed in the writing of her book, and in her dreams, moved about in silent radiance.

Kathleen spent her hours visiting the Gregory mine homes learning gradually to grasp handles and handle bedding, listening to stories of the old world and the early mining days, welcomed always as an eager listener is welcomed.

The mine doctor, meeting her at the advent of a lusty-voiced brother to Laura, frowned at her and suggested a tonic. Unable to convince her she needed one he appealed to Balmy.

"It's her heart, not her system, that needs a tonic," the old man said.

For Kathleen's evenings were not lonely, they were hours of exquisite torture. The MacDonalds were tireless in their efforts to make life pleasant for the two girls. And Kathleen was tireless in her effort to make life pleasant for Bridget. She turned her charm on Norman, contriving to leave Donald and Bridget alone together, and was humiliated constantly by Norman's obvious preference for the Irish girl's company. Was she so unattractive that no man wanted her company?

It didn't make it easier to know that Donald saw this and sought to take the sting out of it by treating her with special tenderness and consideration.

Tomorrow: Kathleen runs away.

DUKE FAVORED TO WHIP U. N. C.

Blue Devils Holding Slight Edge Over Tar Heels

Chapel Hill, Oct. 26.—If statistics may be taken as a criterion, Duke will enter the Carolina game here Saturday with an edge in most departments.

The statistical chart shows the undefeated and unscathed on Duke team to be superior in most defensive departments, in rushing and in punting. Carolina has the better record in scoring and in pass offense and defense.

In five games the Blue Devils have amassed a net rushing total of 1118 yards compared to only 224 for their opponents. The Tar Heels have advanced the oval 783 yards against 583 for their opposition.

In punting Eric Tipton and Wesley McAfee have averaged approximately 40 yards, 39.3 to be exact, compared to 36.2 for George Stirmweiss. "Sweet" Jim Lalanne and Wally Winborne Tar Heel booters.

Carolina's record in passing is perhaps as impressive as Duke's in rushing. Stirmweiss, Lalanne and Radman have pitched 75 times, have completed 39, for a total gain of 442 yards. Duke has made good 10 of 37 flips for a total gain of 96 yards. Carolina also enjoys a better record on pass defense. Tar Heel opponents have connected 32 times in 96 tries for 390 yards while Duke's rivals have completed half of their passes—27 out of 54—for 328 yards.

Both Carolina and Duke have met virtually the same calibre of opposition. The Tar Heels have played Wake Forest, N. C. State, Tulane, NYU and Davidson and have lost only to Tulane. The Blue Devils' five victories were counted at the expense of Davidson, Colgate, VPI, Georgia Tech and Wake Forest.

The president urged the duty of each club member of living up to the club pledge and paying of the monthly dues. Our farm agent, D. D. DuPre, was present and gave the club a very encouraging talk. He stressed the importance of keeping records and asked all club members to keep their record books accurately.

Remarks were given also by Messames Wilson and Garrett.

The club is planning to have "Arbor Day" on November 3, at which time all club members are asked to bring trees and shrubs to plant.

It is interesting to know that Mabel Moore and Elizabeth Taft, 4-H club members, have as their year's project about twenty turkeys that will be ready for market Thanksgiving or Christmas.

The three agencies participating in the Chest are the Boy Scouts, Salvation Army and Thrift Shop. Results of activities of last year will be explained in the press as the campaign nears.

Campaign Director Ryan declared today that it was his plan to conduct a much brief campaign this year than last. He explained that solicitors were expected to find the public better informed on the Community Chest since it was conducted successfully in 1937. Rev. Mr. Ryan added that he believed the public considers the Community Chest "the proved coordinator of giving in Greenville."

The board of directors of the Chest is composed of Mr. Ficklen, chairman; J. H. Blount, secretary-treasurer; and J. E. Winslow, Rev. T. McM. Grant, Dr. L. C. Skinner, R. M. Garrett, Rev. Mr. Ryan, with Wyatt Brown, publicity chairman.

Other developments: President Roosevelt's efforts to end a shortage of aircraft mechanics gave fresh emphasis to reports that the projected revision of national defenses will include a substantial increase in the air corps.

At his press conference yesterday, Mr. Roosevelt said he was studying the needs for training a large number of aircraft mechanics.

The election next month may be a dose of poison for the unspoken hopes of a few men, who wouldn't mind being persecuted to accept a presidential nomination.

Likewise, it may get some other clamoring for attention in that bank handed fashion by which the friends of politicians put forward their principals apparently haven't heard about.

On the Republican side, for those whose names have been pushed to the front are pretty much in the if-they-win category. They are Thomas Dewey and Representative Bruce Barton of New York, L. Saltonstall of Massachusetts and Arthur H. James of Pennsylvania.

Five Democrats whose names at one time or another to presidential speculation are running for the Senate. They are Senators Bennett Clark of Missouri, Walter George of Georgia, Millard Tydings of Maryland, A. W. Barkley of Kentucky, and Governor George Earle of Pennsylvania.

HOPE REVIVED AT HIGH POINT

Panthers Preparing To Meet Pirates Friday P. M.

High Point, Oct. 26.—No longer listed as the "underdogs" as a result of the 7-0 victory over the favored Norfolk division of William and Mary last Friday, the High Point College Purple Panthers returned to the practice field today in high spirits to prepare for the battle with East Carolina Teachers College at the local stadium Friday.

Carrying out a hard practice program, the Panthers showed up well in scrimmages today. It was pointed out by Coach Virgil Yow. The Panther coach intends to concentrate his attention on the Pointers' aerial attack in this week's drills.

Coach Yow indicated he was pleased with the results of last Friday's contest. "It was a hard-fought battle," he stated, "but our eleven had a slight edge over W. and M."

Although this is the first season since 1933 that High Point college has sported a varsity football team, they have chalked up a not half-bad record so far. With three defeats, one tie and one victory to their credit this current football year, the Panthers are fast regaining their one-time "crack" football eleven.

ECTC STUDENTS AT MEMPHIS SESSIONS

Edna Geister, author of "Fun Fest" and authority on entertaining and group good times, will direct a huge party as part of the social side of the conference.

North Carolina is expected to send over a hundred delegates to Memphis for the occasion.

The other students going from the college are Misses Edith Evans Kelford; Clyde Coppedge, Rocky Mount; Ina Mae Pearce, Micro; Ruth Batten, Selma; Frances Harman, Conover; and Juanita Davis, all seniors; and Misses Thadys Johnson, Pendleton; Ruth Powell, Colerain and Virginia Whitley, Nashville undergrads.
